For the Mirror.

When the ways of the world oppress my heart,
And I'm tired of its vanity, its art;
The wild tumult of a wearisome life,
With its scenes of oppression, corruption and strife,
When dark clouds of sorrow my soul o'ercast,
And sick of the present, I turn to the past;
There the shadows of things that have long since Come hovering round like ghosts of the dead,
The home of my childhood, the haunts of my prime,
All the pleasures and scenes of that rapturous time.
In life's gay morn, when the world seemed new,
All robed in splendor enchanting to view,
Where the landscape around me in loveliness lay,
And my youthful companions, all cheerful and gay,
But those youthful companions and friends whom I loved
By the cold hand of death to the grave are removed,
And what once made my soul overflow with joy—
The sun's morning march up the deep blue sky,
And the wild woodland notes of the birds in their glance—
Have all lost their charms and their magic for me.
The eye has grown dim that gave beauty to flowers,
And the ear has grown dull that gave music to the hovers.
The phantoms of earth, like the floating clouds, fly,
And the pleasures of life, like the fair flowers, die,
The visions of hope have vanished so soon:
Bright in the morning—all gone at noon!
My high aims abandoned, my projects undone,
I find 't is vanity all that is under the sun.
Wearied with travelling, I am here to-day;
From the place that now knows me I'm passing away—
Passing away to take my last sleep
Where sepulchral sentinels night-watch keep,
There soon in weakness, for worms to devour,
And again to be raised by Almighty power;
With the clogs of the valley disengaged to lie;
Then in glory raised, and embowered on high,
With the whole creation here I travail in pain,
Waiting to be created again.
When this mortal, with immortality dressed,
Shall enter into that glorious rest,
Where there is no more pain, no sickness or sighing;
No more DEATH—no sorrow or crying,
Then why should I love a world like this,
When there's a world beyond of superior bliss?
This world was once washed by a mighty flood,
And again it was washed by the Saviour's blood,
When by friends forsaken, betrayed and denied,
He was bound and condemned and crucified.
But while in this wilderness thus I roam,
Like Elijah at Horeb's Cave—alone,
As still small voices come through the wild,
Like a father controlling a frolic child:
It banished bitterness, grief and fear,
"Crying: 'My Son is distant, but God is near.'"

EYESIGHT.

Milton's blindness was the result of overwork and grief. Under the most eminent American have made their eyes weak for life by the too free use of the eye sight by reading fine print and doing fine sewing.
In all of these things it is well to observe the following rules in the use of the eyes:
Avoid sudden changes between light and darkness.
Never begin to read, or write, or sew, for several minutes after coming from darkness to a bright light.
Never read by twilight, or moonlight, or on a cloudy day.
Never read or sew directly in front of the light or window or door.
It is better to have the light fall from above, obliquely over the left shoulder.
Never sleep so that on first awaking the eyes shall open on the light of a window.
Do not use the eyesight with a light so scant that it requires an effort to discriminate.
Too much light creates glare, and pains and confuses the sight. The moment you are sensible of an effort to distinguish, that moment cease, and take a walk or ride.
As the sky is blue and the earth green, it would seem that the ceiling should be of a bluish tinge, and the walls of some medium tint.
The moment you are instinctively prompted to rub the eyes, that moment stop using them.
If the eyelids are glued together on waking up do not forcibly open them, but apply the saliva with the finger; it is the speediest diluent in the world.
Then wash the eyes and face in warm water.

PRINTERS' DEVILS.—From wild, friendless boys in the streets are made what are called printer's devils; next they become printers, after that sometimes make their mark in the nation and not infrequently make their mark in the nation in the world. Dr. Franklin was a most eminent instance in the early days of our country, and Thurlow Weed, Horace Greeley, Simon Cameron, Hannibal Hamlin, Gen. Dix, Schuyler Collax, Gideon Wells, and many others, are striking examples at the present time.

SELECTION FOR A NEWSPAPER.—Most people think the selection of suitable matter for a newspaper the easiest part of the business. How great an error! It is the most difficult. To look over and over hundreds and hundreds of exchange papers every week from which to select enough for one, especially when the question is not what shall but what shall not, be selected, is no easy task. If every person who reads a newspaper could have edited it, we should hear less complaints. Not frequently is it the case that an editor looks over all his exchange papers for something must be had—his paper must come out with something in it, and he does the best he can. To an editor who has care about what he selects, the writing that he has to do is the least of the labor. Just as many subscribers as an editor may have, so many tastes has he to consult.

In Germany when a paper says anything witty, they kill the editor; and not one editor has been killed there for two hundred years.

It is currently reported in town that one of the States Central Penitentiary in the United States, is at present on a mission to Halifax, connected with the movement. It is the duty of the authorities to be on the alert.

My son, what would you do if your dear father was suddenly taken away from you.
Son—Swear and chew tobacco.

THE WIDOW'S STORY.

How I do despise that old man! said Mrs. Wheeler, addressing Mrs. Wilson, and looking after Judge Withrow, who had just passed along the sidewalk under the window.
Despite him! said Mrs. Wilson, giving a peculiar emphasis to the pronoun him.
Yes him. Why not?
Rather let me ask why, Mrs. Wheeler.
Well, returned Mrs. W., I can scarcely say why; but the other day, when the sewing circle was held at my house, he became the subject of conversation, by passing along the sidewalk, as he has just this minute done, with that same straight, haughty dignity, and unbending self-pride so peculiar to him, and we all agreed that he was a grotty, proud old aristocrat, and that he cared for no one but himself.
Of course you would read his thoughts and tell who he cared for, and for whom he did not, said Mrs. Wilson, ironically. But pray tell me, continued she, did any one know a single thing that could detract from his character as a moral, a noble-minded, and a humane man?
Well, yes, replied Mrs. Wheeler, Harriet Smith said she had called upon him one day last winter, with a subscription soliciting a little aid to our sewing circle, and he evasively told her that when he wished to dispense benevolence he would prefer not to sound a trumpet before him. Now don't you think that was very impudent, to say the least of it?
I wish, replied Mrs. Wilson, her voice trembling with emotion. I had been there to defend the good old man.
Why, what do you mean? inquired Mrs. Wheeler, in surprise.
I mean to give honor where honor is due, and to rebuke such injustice to one of the best and noblest of men. I can well bear witness that he does not sound a trumpet before him when he goes to do good.
You surprise me still more. He is not, certainly, in any way connected with your husband's family? said Mrs. Wheeler, dropping her crochet work into her lap, and looking inquiringly into Mrs. Wilson's face.
No; he is no family connection of his or acquainted with him? I did not suppose that you had ever spoken to him, much less did I suppose he was an intimate personal friend.
Nor is he. He has never spoken to me, nor have I to him.
Do you know that he is a Freemason, Mrs. Wilson?
Yes, I do.
How is it possible, then, that you can speak well of him to be a Freemason? Why defend a black-hearted Mason?
Mrs. Wheeler, I will tell you why, and after I have told you, if you do not love the dear old man, you are not as good a woman as I have always given you credit for being.
Love him, Mrs. Wilson? No I shall never even respect a Freemason, much less love one.
I think none the less of him on that account, though I fully realize the responsibility of my blood-run cold at the name of Freemason. But it is different now; I love the word. To Judge Withrow I owe a debt of gratitude that nothing short of love can ever cancel.
For what do you owe him gratitude?
For peace of mind, for a home, for bread for my orphan children, for plenty, and, to crown all, for one of the best, the noblest of husbands.
Mrs. Wilson, said Mrs. Wheeler, pray to explain yourself?
I will. You know that Mr. Clarke, my first husband, was without means, and, in fact, very poor. He bought a lot in the suburbs of the village, and built a small house on it, which was not yet finished when he died. He had no means except such as resulted from his daily labor, which, through the most scrupulous economy, enabled him to pay for the lot and the building, as far as it was completed. After his death I fully realized the responsibility of my position. An inexperienced widow, with two little children to provide for, the elder but five years old, the winter approaching, and no provisions for our subsistence. The only resource left me to provide my children with bread was to take in washing and sewing. There was so much competition in this line of business in our little village that I could not get employment one-half of any time. The consequence was that the first December storm caught me without fuel or food. I had not a friend nor an acquaintance in the country. We had been a short time in the State, and had made no acquaintances. I had not a relative in the world but the uncle who had reared me, and he was very old and indigent, and was not within a thousand miles of me.
On the 10th day of December I had been two days without food. I had husbanded a few potatoes, the product of our little garden, for my starving children. Oh, Mrs. Wheeler! continued Mrs. Wilson, you do not know the pangs of hunger, nor do you know the still deeper pangs and withering anguish that commenced another struggle to rise it over the threshold. His effort was unsuccessful: the barrel rolled back. After some time thus spent in vain the poor old man arose from his labor, and wiping the perspiration from his forehead with his pocket-handkerchief, he again stood at some time. After several fruitless efforts he at last succeeded, and rolled the barrel along the grassy door-yard till he got out of my sight. Shortly afterwards I heard it rolling on the floor of the little stoop in the rear of the house. He soon reappeared, and taking a paper from his pocket he stole softly up to the window, and threw it in at the broken pane. He then shut the gate, and, taking his wheelbarrow, started towards his home. I watched him as he retired, still his form in the moonlight, as seen through the tears that filled my eyes, seemed to dissolve into a halo of sparkling gems of light.

I could sleep no more that night. After some time I went below and found the note under the broken pane. It was in the same plain handwriting, and ran thus: "There's bread for the widow and orphans. They shall not want. Be of good cheer."
In the morning I found a barrel of flour in my porch. The secret was out as to whose was the kind hand who had been supporting me and my babes when there was no eye to bear witness save that All-Seeing Eye which is ever awake to take note of such goodness."
But Mrs. Wheeler, continued Mrs. Wilson, you can never know the anguish of my mind on discovering my benefactor. I reproached myself severely as I reflected and called to mind with what bitter feeling, almost amounting to hatred, I had regarded the dear old man. While such feelings were rankling in my breast no doubt he was devising plans to supply the orphan with bread in secret, in obedience to that divine direction: "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth."
My dear Mrs. Wilson, said Mrs. Wheeler, her eyes suffused with tears, I shall never forgive myself for having misjudged this good old man. Indeed, how people will talk about those who merits they cannot know.
Think of it: only think of it, Mrs. Wheeler, continued Mrs. Wilson; only think of my children being fed by the man who had been called "proud old aristocrat—black-hearted Freemason," by their father. He had been told by my husband—the parent of my little ones—that he was no more than a murderer; that he would not believe him or any other Mason under oath. Still he had money for the wife and bread for the orphan of the man who had thus insulted him.
It was noble in him. Many a man having seen you gathering sticks would never have given you a second thought, said Mrs. Wheeler.
Yes, and when my child came screaming with joy that she got a piece of wheat bread how readily his benevolent soul interpreted her joy, and traced it to its true cause. With what a thrill it must have appealed to his great heart to have led him to penetrate my situation from so slight a circumstance! This shows how diligently his suffering heart keeps vigil for suffering humanity white on his mission of mercy. I could stoop down and kiss the dust of his feet. Mrs. Wheeler, tell the sewing circle that God will thank Judge Withrow notwithstanding their decision to the contrary.
Thus was I supplied till Mr. Wilson and I were married. Since then I have been a rich man's wife. I am proud to own that my present husband is a Freemason. When he sued my hand I told him that I would remain unwed or marry a Freemason, and that, until he became a member of the Order his suit must prove unavailing. He then told me that he had been a Mason, and that he was indebted to that circumstance for his acquaintance with me, as it was in the Lodge he had first heard my name mentioned by Judge Withrow, whose eloquent pleadings for the widow and orphans had directed his attention, and ultimately his affection towards me. And in this manner I learned that I and my children had long been subjects of the special care and solicitude of the Lodge.
I will never say another word against the Freemason's again, said Mrs. Wheeler, and I will persuade my husband to join the Lodge if he is not afraid that the church might reproach such a step. You almost make me love old Judge Withrow.
Well you may, said Mrs. Wilson. But little does he need our love; he has the brave manly love of the strong hearts of his brethren over whom he presides. They love him with an affection surpassing woman's love. Their love is an offering to the truth of his noble soul; their love is that heritage which true hearts pour out upon the shrine of purity and goodness. He has that fame which, like his own good deeds, is not the less glorious from being enjoyed in secret, and not the less pure from not having floated on the breasts of the babbling multitude—not the less dazzling from being looked up as precious gems to the faithful bosoms of his brethren.

THE BURNING STAR.
The following account of an event more awful and sublime than the most vivid imagination can fully conceive is given by Edwin Dunkin, of the Royal Observatory, England. It is only one of several similar cases on record. In May last a star blazed forth in the Northern Crown, and was of the second magnitude. The astronomers gave it immediate scientific observation and recorded the results in technical terms which need not be repeated.
"There can be little doubt that, from some cause unknown to us, it must have been the subject of a terrible catastrophe at a period perhaps distant; for it must be borne in mind that, owing to its immense distance from us, we may be only witnessing the calamity of a past age. From the sudden blazing forth of this star, and then its rapid fading away, Mr. Huggins and Dr. Miller have suggested that, in consequence of a great internal convulsion; probably a large quantity of hydrogen and other gases were emitted from it. During a discussion on this star, at a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society, on June 8th, the Astronomer Royal expressed his firm belief that this wonderful object was actually in flames.
"If we were inclined to speculate on this unique astronomical phenomenon, or the consequences arising from such a sudden outbreak of fiery gas, what an extensive subject for contemplation is opened up to us! Astronomically we have taken this minute star for years without suspicion; it has been classified with others of similar magnitude; it has been one of many millions of such; while now it will be remembered by all future generations as one of the most extraordinary among the most celebrated stars of the universe. Or, let our speculations be carried a little, and let us reasonably suppose this small and hitherto nearly invisible object to be an immense globe like our own sun, and surrounded probably with planets and satellites depending upon their centre for light and heat, what would be the effect of this sudden conflagration on them? It makes one almost shudder at the idea of a system of worlds being annihilated at once without warning. But such must doubtless be the fact. We, however, in this quiet world of ours, can scarcely, perhaps, realize such a catastrophe; but were our sun which, is only a star analogous to those in the heavens around us, to be suddenly ignited in a similar manner to this distant and unknown sun, all its attendant planets and satellites, the earth included, would be destroyed."

ery of one's offspring for bread sends to the heart of the mother, when she has no bread to give them. Alas! I do; too well do I.

On the morning of the 10th of December I divided the morsel I had left between my two little ones, and put the last chips on the fire, a boxful of which I had gathered the day before, when the snow commenced to fall. Without having eaten anything for two days, I went out through the snowstorm to the grove where I found some sticks and brush; with those I started homeward, I had not gone far till I saw Judge Withrow, at a distance behind me making his way towards the village. I then regarded him as a proud old man, who cared for no one but himself. Embarrassed at my situation, I hid behind an old barn until he had passed: I had every reason to suppose that, if he knew me at all, he must dislike me, for my husband had abused him. My husband was a warm anti-Mason. His seal had led him, on one occasion, that too, but a short time before his decease, to ridicule the institution of Masonry in the presence of Judge Withrow. This had no other effect than to produce a smile from the old man. My husband, as he informed me, became exasperated at the coolness, and reproached the good old man as a Mason. He treated him very unkindly, and from what he informed me, must have allowed his feelings to betray him into very imprudent and abusive language, to which the poor old man made no reply.

I went home with my sticks and limbs, borrowed a loaf of bread from Mrs. Lisle, and after a day of grief and despair, went to bed at dark. The next morning, upon rising, I found upon the floor, and under a broken pane in the window, a sealed letter. It contained a twenty-dollar bank note, and ran thus: Poor woman keep stout heart, and an upright life. The virtuous have nothing to fear, though they may be poor. The poor have nothing to fear if they are upright: This is your money, and there is more in store for the widow and the fatherless in the time of need.

I could scarcely believe my own senses.—I started for joy, and laughed like a maniac, until I startled my children with the vehemence of my joy.
A little longer, and this munificence would have been too late, for I was near the finishing point. I had begun to writhe under the hunger pangs of fainting mortality among the famishing ravers of Ireland.
Ah! Mrs. Wheeler, fancy a scorpion gnawing at the heart strings; fancy coils of fire applied to the naked flesh? No, no, you cannot. It is only those who have felt Death's cold fingers stealing along their pulses, and his chill, damp breath fanning their cheeks, that can know the pangs of starvation.

Of the sources of this gratuity, and the kind, the comforting, the blessed words which the letter contained, I could not form the remotest apprehension. But there they were, and I was happy.
From that day forward the same blessed handwriting, accompanied by a like donation and a few brief words of encouragement, periodically found its way through the broken pane in my window; but the kind hand that fed the widow and her orphan was still unknown to me. From that day neither I nor my little ones wanted anything.

The spring came, and the price of flour arose to eleven dollars per barrel, and was very scarce in the market. I would not—in fact, I could not—indulge in the luxury of wheat bread at such a price, and used Indian meal instead of flour altogether.

One day my little girl came running through the gate, shouting at the top of her voice: "O ma, I've got a piece of bread!" Just as she entered the gate Judge Withrow passed along. I was overwhelmed with mortification, for I knew he must have heard what the child said.

The night following, about twelve o'clock, I was alarmed by a noise at the gate. I stole softly to my chamber window, and, concealing myself behind the curtains, looked out. The moon was at the full, and her pure silver light rendered objects almost as distinct as the noon-day sun. What was my surprise on seeing old Judge Withrow at the gate, straining every nerve to ease down a barrel from a wheelbarrow! What could it mean? I could not be mistaken in the person although his back was toward me. At last, but with considerable noise, he succeeded in getting the barrel down to the ground, which from the manner in which he handled it, appeared to be filled with some heavy substance. Panting with the exertion, the old man bared his head, and fanning himself with his hat, turned his face in the direction of the window, where I stood concealed. There he stood, the Good Samaritan, for nearly a minute, the moonlight falling full upon his broad forehead and flushed face, and giving a silvery brilliancy to his white hair as it yielded in fitful flutterings to the motions of his hat, with which he fanned fresh currents of air into his face. Laying his hat upon the wheelbarrow, he softly opened the gate. He rolled the barrel to the gate, and then commenced another struggle to rise it over the threshold. His effort was unsuccessful: the barrel rolled back. After some time thus spent in vain the poor old man arose from his labor, and wiping the perspiration from his forehead with his pocket-handkerchief, he again stood at some time. After several fruitless efforts he at last succeeded, and rolled the barrel along the grassy door-yard till he got out of my sight. If the man in the moon could only pay this world of ours a short visit we imagine it would be very short indeed, unless he would alight on some happy spot where the inhabitants are satisfied and let well enough alone, there he would learn pleasing tales to carry back and rehearse to the moonites and make them think well of us down here. But if he should happen to drop on Nova Scotia he would not be long here till he would be seen paddling his own canoe up some moonbeam to the place from whence he came.

Strange tales would he tell of a people, blest beyond an average, in a free and christian land, where it would appear, and truly to, that Providence anticipated their wants, and bountifully supplied them. Yet these people are, many of them, discontented, and envy or hate one another. He would speak of it as called a free-land. Yet because one man ventures to hold a different opinion from another, it engenders very often a hatred which ought not to exist. No matter whether this opinion is with regard to religious or political subjects, it is all the same.

He would speak of every one almost (according to their own account) as being first-rate fellows, but according to those who hold different views, as being deceitful above all others and desperately wicked. He would speak of the public institutions of the country as objects of bewilderment, inasmuch as no two accounts would coincide. He would tell of the churches of the country to the effect that each one was the right kind in the right place. He would speak long and loud on the Government of the country as being the very best and at the same time the very worst in the world—one respectable informant saying that the present arrangement will be the making of the country, while another, quite as good looking, says it will be the ruination of the Province. He would tell that the inhabitants of this sphere do not live very long, and have the means within their reach of leading very happy and useful lives, loving and being beloved; yet, alas! too many of them seem to desire nothing better than injuring those who will some of these days be made companions perhaps for eternity. He would also speak of the spirit of the Press in Nova Scotia, which is so well calculated, and which has done so much good, but at the same time is capable of doing much harm. Compared with the Press in France, or Austria, or Spain, or Russia, it is free indeed, and only takes too much liberty with its freedom by tampering with the good name and estate of its best supporters and neighbors.

If "His Highness" from the moon would think of commenting on this state of affairs, and supposing him to have visited other places on the earth's broad surface, he would draw comparisons between Nova Scotia and other lands, and truly prove that in some places the morning and evening papers can be issued, without the editors or operators forfeiting their right to the title of gentlemen.

But oh! what a tangled rhapsody will the man in the moon have to recite if he undertakes to give any kind of a true account of Nova Scotia.

What a look of astonishment will be pictured on the faces of the people up above on the moon, after hearing such a recital, but as our time is limited we must stop with the earnest desire that the above remarks will make people think of the times as they are.

Correspondence.

For the Mirror. TEACHERS' PROVINCIAL ASSOCIATION.

Mr. Editor.—Knowing that you take a deep interest in the noble cause of Education I send you a few jottings from the late meetings of the above named Association. Agreeably to previous notice the Teachers met, about 150 strong, in a class room of Dalhousie at 3 o'clock, P. M., on Tuesday, 31st December. In the lamented absence of the venerable President, Rev. Dr. Forrester, the chair was taken by one of the V. Presidents, J. B. Calkin, Esq. During the first session, which lasted till about 5 P. M., a large amount of routine business was gone through with. One of the most practical matters brought up this day, was a programme of the subjects which were to be brought before the Association for discussion, and the time at which they might be expected to come up. Said programme was the work of the committee of management, and was adopted almost "in toto" by the Association.

At 7 P. M. the Teachers again assembled, and this time they came out in full force, for in the afternoon it had been announced that our worthy and much-loved Superintendent, T. H. Rand, Esq., would address us. In due time Mr. Patterson, the other V. P. who occupied the chair in the evening, introduced Mr. Rand, who, on coming forward, was loudly cheered. In a dignified and lucid manner he briefly traced the rapid strides which the cause of Education has made during the last few years. He pointed with pride and satisfaction to what the Legislature had done, and with equal feelings of gratification to the appreciation which the people have manifested, of the priceless boon which the late legislative enactment has placed within their reach. In view of these things, and also in view of what the government does directly for the teacher, he tacitly showed the fairness and propriety of the C. P. Instruction, demanding a re-examination of all teachers who still wish to continue in the profession; which examination, as he explained, should be conducted in such a way as to preclude the possibility of partiality in the granting of licenses, and such licenses so obtained would be valid from Cape Sable to Cape North.

At a late hour that evening we heard that the Dalhousie could not be had on New Year's day, consequently on the morning of the new year, we met in the Presbyterian College Hall. At most the entire day was taken up discussing, in a free and manly manner, the justice of summoning all teachers, old and young, to undergo another examination in November of 1868. When the question was finally put, the Association, by a large majority, agreed to express its approval of the late legislation in this matter.

At 8 1/2 P. M. notwithstanding the violence of the storm a goodly number were present. In view of the approaching examination next fall, a resolution was passed praying the C. P. Ins. to grant to all teachers who wished to undergo the same a week for that purpose, which week might not be a loss either to themselves personally or to their respective sections, as far as county or Pro. monies are concerned.

A brief discussion then ensued on "the nature and limit of the Teachers authority." The hour for closing soon came, but oh! what a night to turn out in, and that too for a pretty large number of young and interesting damsels. The wind howled through the streets like a mad dog, the rain descended in torrents, and in many places one (no two) had to wade through little brooks. I can vouch for it that at least one fair damsel from Truro reached her boarding house with a pair of wet feet that night.

Thursday 10 A. M. we re-assembled in Dalhousie. Text books of our Common Schools formed the main subject of discussion in both the A. M. and P. M. Sessions of this day. These, with few exceptions, were regarded as highly satisfactory. During the A. M. sitting, a grave and bold charge was preferred against the publisher of one of the Nova Scotia series of School Books. After some discussion it was left in a very unsatisfactory state, for want of time precluded further investigation.

I must not forget to note that this forenoon, for the first time during this series of meetings, the unmistakable locks of our Rev. President, Dr. Forrester, were seen coming through the door; and it was well for the Governors of Dalhousie that there were strong floors in the College or they might have had some holes to repair. We regret to say that the good Dr. was unable to address us this year through indisposition. We trust that for many a long year the loved and honored principal of the Pro. Normal and Model Schools may be spared to labor on in his high and holy work, and that his valued presence and sage counsel may be always had, while he lives, in the Pro. Teachers' Associations.

At 7 P. M. we had a plain and practical Lecture of a very high order, "on the relation of Common School Education to the higher Education," by Prof. McLeod, of Windsor, addressed us on "The Dynamical Theory of Heat." The lecture was elaborated with great care and precision, showing a master mind, but we fear, it was to a large extent, shot over the heads of the audience. Such at least is the opinion of Waverley, Jan 6th, 1868.

MR. EDITOR:

DEAR SIR.—In the last number of your paper you intimated "that preparations are being made by the Young Men's Christian Association to have a course of lectures." I am glad to know that such is the case, and perhaps you will allow me to furnish your readers with fuller information on the subject. Almost as soon as the Association was organized its Committee of Management determined to make it as profitable, not only to the youth but to the community at large, as such an institution can be made. With this view, among other means of doing good, they decided on a course of lectures, and I, as their Corresponding Secretary, was requested to invite a few well known men of talent, whose "praise is in the gospel throughout all churches," to take part in it. So far the application made to these gentlemen has met with a response most gratifying to the Association. When it is known who the lecturers are, and what subjects they have chosen, our people doubtless will look forward to hearing them with great interest. On the 14th of this month a rich treat may be expected from the Rev. Thomas Cumming of Upper Steiwacke on "The Brotherhood of Humanity;" and on the 20th another from the Rev. George M. Grant of Halifax on "The Paris Exhibition of 1867." Early in March the Rev. George S. Milligan, M.A., of Halifax, will favor us with "Ancient Egypt—its History and Remains," illustrated by Diagrams;" and on the 26th of that month, the Rev. J. M. Cramp, D. D., of Acadia College, with "Fifty years ago—Reminiscences and Contrasts." The Rev. Robert Sedgwick of Musquodoboit has also kindly consented to lecture, and will likely do so in April, should nothing prevent. The Committee also hope that two or three other popular speakers not yet written to will favor the Association with addresses. These lectures besides relieving the tedium of the long winter evenings in a profitable manner are expected to aid in the establishment of a Reading Room and Library in connection with the Association, which, in connexion with the contributions of kind friends, in money and books, the Committee trust will become very attractive, and made a great blessing to the young men of Truro.

I have, &c., I. LOSWORTH.

Truro, January 7th.

FROM OUR HALIFAX CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YEARS GATHERING IN HALIFAX.—The usual New Year's fetes, which have become so very popular of late among the various Sabbath Schools of Halifax, took place on the morning of the 1st of January. The good people of St. Paul's, Chalmers', Poplar Grove and the Church of Scotland prepared, with customary liberality, for the occasion; and early in the forenoon the young folks were seen rising from every street to their respective churches.

Perhaps the largest gathering was that which assembled in St. Matthew's Church, comprising the pupils of all the schools connected with the Sabbath School Association of the Church of Scotland, namely: St. Matthew's, St. Andrew's, Richmond, North West Arm and Freshwater, altogether numbering about 650, and embracing young men and women, as well as the child of 4 or 5 years. The proceedings here were most interesting. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. W. G. Hill of St. Paul's, Messrs. C. M. Grant and G. M. Grant, pastors of the city congregations; and the happy voices of the children mingled together harmoniously in the singing of a number of very pretty hymns. After that came the distribution of prizes. All eagerly listened to the names announced by the Superintendents, and one after another the lucky ones marched modestly up the aisles to the front of the pulpit to receive a token for regular attendance (the prizes being awarded to those who missed not more than one Sabbath during the year); and upwards of sixty came back to their seats smiling, with a handsome bible, standard work, drawing or picture-book in their hands; and several others received cards of honorable mention. Then came a few special prizes by the teachers for very good conduct, and a present of a framed picture to Dr. Cogswell, containing the photographs of the young ladies of his class. But the handsomeness of all was the present of a superb silver ten-set, by the teachers of the Association to Mr. Neil Alexander, who has for a long time conducted the musical exercises of the schools, and whose uniform kindness and courtesy well deserved the compliment.

A couple of hours having been thus engaged, the proceedings were terminated by the benediction, when the assembly retired to the banquet, where a nicely ornamented Christmas Tree had been placed for the benefit of the younger children by the lady of the Hon. Alex. Keith; and as the whole company passed out packed away in their pockets and muffs, and with happy hearts and beaming faces they scampered off to talk over all the beautiful presents they got, and "how glad they were they had come."

Early yesterday morning the chimney of Mr. Eben. Smith's house was discovered to be on fire. A few buckets of water was all that was necessary.

The Union Prayer Meetings held in the various churches during the past week have been well attended.

—100 barrels of oysters passed through Truro en route for Halifax yesterday.

—The St. John News says the robbers have domesticated with them this winter, and are to be seen in hundreds in the vicinity.

HAVANA, Jan. 5.—Steamer "Danube" from Vera Cruz, brings telegrams from the Capital of Mexico to Dec. 31st. By orders from General Porfirio Diaz, Commanding the Department, who had arrived at Vera Cruz, a steamer with fifteen hundred troops, under General Alatorre, has sailed from that port for Yucatan to suppress the rebellion in that Peninsula. Gen. Millan replaced Gen. Alatorre in command at Vera Cruz during the latter's absence. The Mexican Treasury is reported as empty. So great was the excitement that troops had to be sent by the Government to the district to preserve order and guard the mines. Desperate and bloody conflicts have taken place between the natives and soldiers.

FROM THE STATES.

GALVESTON, Jan. 6.—Information has been received here that all the business portion of Indianola was destroyed by fire on the 3d inst. Loss $100,000. No insurance. The Custom House and fifty other buildings were destroyed. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Information has been received of the sudden sinking of Recluse Island, near Bolton, Lake George, which was owned by Mr. R. Wastes, of New York. It occurred about 5 o'clock this afternoon, accompanied by a tumultuous upheaving of the lake. The shock was felt here and lasted about five minutes, passing in an easterly direction.

FROM MEXICO.

New York, Jan. 8, P. M.—A City of Mexico letter of Dec 17th, states that every device has been put into operation to raise money—the first great need of this Government; a municipal tax law has just been issued which it is estimated will produce some three millions of revenue; an excise law comes into help, also putting a tax on every conveyance. Private carriages must pay $60 a year; public conveyances $120 to $180; pawn brokers from $480 down according to their class; bakeries $100; gambling saloons, a necessity here, $480, and so forth.

Father Fischer, the well known confidant and confessor of Maximilian, has at last been set at liberty through the intervention of friends, including some Americans.

St. Domingo, Jan. 6.—The Dominican Government has fled to Turks Island. Baez has been proclaimed President and the capital was blockaded by his brother for 5 days. It was expected that Cairal would soon announce his abdication. Baez was at Caraco, and his arrival at Porto Plata was daily expected.

FROM OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Jan. 7.—It is understood that tenders will be immediately invited for new six per cent Canadian Dominion Stock. The loan will remain open about three weeks.

"Can you do all sorts of casting here?" inquired a solemn looking chap at the iron-works the other day.

"Yes, sir," said Frank preparing to take an order, "all sorts."

"Well then," returned the solemn enquirer, "I would have you cast a shadow." He was immediately cast out.

Canadian railways carried, last year, two million and a half passengers. Only seventy seven were killed.

YORKSHIRE FILLAL AFFECTION.—A curious illustration of the fondness of old Yorkshire men for cruel sports is remembered at Leeds. A West Riding miner had a bull pup, which he was training to bait bulls and badgers. Going down to the mine one morning, he strictly enjoined on the sun the duty of teaching the pup some baiting accomplishment. The boy was diligent in his vocation, and when his father came up in the evening, exclaimed with triumph, "No, feyther, you jast go down on your knees in front of t'pup, and snarl, and say, 'blatherum, blatherum,' and see what t'pup'll do." The man obeyed, and in an instant the pup flew at him and fastened on his nose. He quivered with agony, when the boy shouted out, "Don't let go, feyther, it'll be t'making of t'pup!"

Local and Other Items.

The weather for the past few days has been cold and stormy.

The price of paper has considerably increased since 15 per cent duty has been put upon it. We wish our readers to bear this in mind as they peruse the pages of the Mirror, and hope they will resolve to keep clear of the books.

We have been requested to say that the Rev. Thomas Cumming will lecture before the Young Men's Christian Association in Rev. Dr. McCulloch's Church on Tuesday evening next, 14th inst. Lecture to commence at 7 o'clock. Subject: "Brotherhood of Humanity." A collection will be taken up in aid of the Association's Reading Room.

By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that the Brass Band of the Rothsay Blues Volunteer Company intend giving a Grand Concert under the distinguished patronage of Col. Laurie, I. F. O., Lieut.-Col. Blackard and officers of the Company, in Cobequid Hall on Tuesday evening the 21st inst., for the benefit of Mr. Hall, their bandmaster, who has lost all his property by the late fire in Halifax. The object is praise-worthy, and deserves to be well patronized.

FORGETFULNESS.—A very great deal of harm is done through forgetfulness. A little thoughtfulness and care with respect to others would often save them from a great deal of suffering and aid them in their work. A man is discouraged in consequence of the difficulties he meets with. An encouraging word may be all that is necessary to revive his energies and to cause him to persevere. These words were wisely spoken. There are those who are perfectly willing to speak it, but they do not think of it.

MRS. WINSLOW, An experienced Nurse and Female Physician presents to the attention of mothers, her Soothing Syrup, FOR CHILDREN TEETHING, which greatly facilitates the process of teething, by softening the gums, reducing all inflammation - will ALLAY ALL PAIN and spasmodic action, and is Sure to Regulate the Bowels Depend upon it mothers, it will give rest Relief and Health to your Infants

We have put up and sold this article for over 30 years and can say in confidence and truth of it, what we have never been able to say of any other medicine - NEVER HAS IT FAILED IN A SINGLE INSTANCE TO EFFECT A CURE, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of highest commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "what we do know." After 30 years experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfillment of what we here declare. In almost every instance where the infant, suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered. This valuable preparation is the prescription of one of the most EXPERIENCED and SKILLFUL SURGEONS in New England, and has been used with never failing success in THOUSANDS OF CASES. It not only eases the child from pain but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will almost instantly relieve Griping in the Bowels, and Wind Colic, and overcome convulsion, which, if not speedily remedied end in death. We believe it is the best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of Dysentery and Diarrhoea in children, whether it arises from teething or from any other cause. We would say to every mother who has a child suffering from any of the foregoing complaints - do not let your prejudices nor the prejudices of others, stand between your suffering child and the relief that will be sure - yes, absolutely sure - to follow the use of this medicine, if timely used. Full directions for using will accompany every bottle. None genuine unless the face of the wrapper is CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, on the outside wrapper. Sold by Druggists throughout the world.
