One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion,
One ounce Compound Seltzer,
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;
Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, is pronounced by a prominent physician to be the best mixture for the care of the kidney, bladder, and all urinary troubles.
This says the doctor, is the most simple though remarkable prescription ever written to cleanse the system of impurities and waste matter. It acts as a powerful tonic to the kidneys, forcing them to discuss the acids and poisons, overcoming rheumatism, lame back, sciatica and other ailments arising from sour, impure blood.
The ingredients can be procured at any good drug store, and being purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can easily be mixed at home.
If you have a suffering friend show this to him, as he will undoubtedly be pleased to learn of so simple and highly recommended a remedy.

The Important Thing.

You boast about your pedigree,
You tell me that your blood is blue,
But is your fine old family Bottled to be proud of you?
Your uncle whose proud name you bear, Whose deeds are ever on your tongue,
Does he go boasting everywhere
That from one source you both have sprung?
You trace your lineage to one Who crossed with Conquering William's crew,
But what great service have you done!
And are your kinsmen proud of you?

The Senior President.

By WINIFRED KIKELAND.
A wood road, a golden glow, October sapphire sky above, a tawny haze along the hill time, the swirl of drifted leaves underfoot, and two girls who walked unseeing, because of the things they were saying and thinking. Lily was willow and slim in the long blue water away by the wind; her bare blond head was set light and straight as a flower's. But who could tell Lily's thoughts?
Beside her, stocky and thick-set, Theresa trudged with heavily planted steps. Her shoulders showed square under the grey sweater. There was that about even the back of Theresa's black velvet head that suggested possibility, and Theresa had made up her mind to something that afternoon.
Now then, as she spoke, she flung out an impulsive hand and clutched Lily's arm for emphasis; but Lily did not move or turn, walking with light, lithe grace, and looking straight ahead at the wind-whipped clouds that scudded the blue above the hills. It needed no pounding of Theresa's emphatic little fist upon her arm to make her understand Theresa's meaning.
"You know all the girls think the same thing, and have talked and talked about it, but of course no one has ever talked to you. You're rather dignified and distant, you know, my dear."
"But when it came to a matter as big as this election for senior president, I felt as if some one must speak.
It wasn't fair to you not to speak. So I undertook it, being a courageous soul. All the girls know that I'm telling you all about it to-day. I'm not exactly delegated, you understand; still, they all know that I'm telling you. They're waiting to know what you'll say before—before—before they vote for me. I must say, it's a pretty delicate matter to speak to a girl about her best friend—but you don't mind my going on?"
Lily turned her head with a little quick smile, non-committal, amused.
"Oh, no, you may go on," she said.
"Frankly," continued Theresa, bluntly, "you'd have been class president long ago if it hadn't been for Millie Harlow."
A sharp little wince of pain touched the self-control of Lily's lips.
"She's stood in your way from first to last. At first, in freshman year, we thought you couldn't be a vice girl if you had a friend like that, however fine you seemed. So we left you both alone. Then afterward we saw that you were just as lovely as you looked, and we wanted to know you; but, my dear, how could we? How could we? We simply couldn't get hold of Millie, and there was no getting hold of you without Millie. Millie is always with you. She'd be here this minute if I hadn't carried you off bodily. So we just haven't known you, gone with your, been friends, all on account of Millie."
"Perhaps you haven't noticed, my dear," —here Theresa's arm went about Lily's shoulders in a sudden compelling affection that caught at Lily's heart—"and we want you now. Will you?"
Not noticed! Not noticed! Did any of them guess how proud Lily was? And how friendly, and how exquisitely fastidious too? Under her bright self-sufficiency no one guessed with what intensity she had longed to know them all, these girls who were really her kind, who elected her to many an important office, complimented her thus on her executive ability, looked at her, too, with frankly congenial eyes, but somehow never came any nearer, somehow elusively slipped away from any real acquaintance, any genuine friendship.
Was not Lily keen-witted enough to know that for three years she had missed the best thing in college, and keep enough also to guess the reason, without Theresa's telling?
And here at last, for her last, best, brief year at college, the class was ordering her its highest honor, and with that, she knew, its friendship—or only its affection?
So far Lily had not turned upon her fiercely, as Theresa had half-feared. Lily had let her go on, and Theresa felt her waver, so she thought, over so little. With her arm still about Lily's neck, she went on:
"You know we just must have the finest girl in the class for president.
Except for Millie, Anne Brower doesn't stand one chance against you, for you are the finest girl in the class, Lily."

relaxed into a sudden little laugh of pure cordiality and amusement. It was low, hoarse, of course, but still it was sweet to hear Theresa say it. It was something for a lonely girl even to be talking with Theresa Jacobs, the most influential girl in college.
Theresa was growing quite bold now, she meant to say it all; she meant to have Lily Myrick for senior president. But Lily was very still as she listened.
"You know, Lily, what a position the senior president has in the college, socially, as well as every other way. Why, she's a part of everything. You can see how—here even Theresa, the hold, stopped for a breathing space, how it would look if you were to marry with a girl like Millie, a great, uncouth, illbred thing like that."
The color surged to Lily's delicate face, but still she did not speak. "You understand, to be very clear," concluded Theresa, "we want you for senior president. Lily, to represent us on all occasions—but we do not want Millie Harlow to be made prominent thereby." And here Theresa's voice sharpened. "But we will not have her, either! She finished more gently:
"But you do understand, don't you,
Lily?"
"Oh, yes," said Lily, "I understand."
"It really is very easy to break off a friendship," Theresa continued, in a brisk, matter-of-fact way. "It doesn't need a quarrel or anything horrid and disturbing like that. You just stop going to the girl's room, and always have an excuse for not going with her to things, and lots of times don't see her at all. You do it all gradually, and at last it dawns upon her that you're not coming, and after that the rest is easy. I've done it several times." The clouds were never more white against the blue, but Lily did not see them, for all her intent eyes.
"Of course, Theresa went on, "I'm not asking you to promise to give up Millie Harlow—not exactly that.
Only before the election to-night all the girls will be wanting to know how you've taken our—well, our suggestion. If before the class-meeting at eight you could do some little thing to show that you see—say—the wisdom of being less intimate with Millie—it would be a very good thing.
If, for instance, after chapel, instead of putting your arm round Millie and going off to the reading-room with her, as you always do, you put your arm round some of the rest of us, it would seem to indicate your frame of mind. Please, please, Lily, you need make no promises, but am I forgotten for all I've said? There's one thing you might think of in this connection; in a choice between your friend and your class, isn't some of your duty due to your class?"
"I'm thinking," answered Lily.
"Lily," Theresa brought her hand down sharply on Lily's shoulder, "ever in the world do a girl like you ever have anything to do with a girl like Millie? You're so sweet, so dainty, —and she! It isn't only that she's so plain and so terribly uptight,—how do you stand that awful hair—but she's so ill-natured and rude. You might think, with all her physical disadvantages, she'd at least try to be polite and agreeable to people, but the outrageous things she says! Why, if she treated even you decently, it would be easier to see her absorbing all your time and preventing our ever getting at you. To think that you and she are friends! Lily, how did it ever happen?"
"I guess it just happened," said Lily. "I've known her always, since we were very little girls."
With valiant resolution to keep it self calm during the half-hour before election, the class surged out of chapel. One thing it must know before eight o'clock, and so it crowded about the chapel door waiting for Lily Mey-rick, and watching her. A crowd of girls surged round her. It was so easy to realize her and separate her from Millie, pressing up all unwittingly for her usual place by Lily's side. All about Lily were faces, before often bold, but now bright with friendship. Warm hands were pressing hers; eager voices were speaking their hopes of their candidate. Theresa had given the class to understand that she had won. Her words now were light enough, but meant much.

"Coming up to my room for a bit,
Lily?"
Resolution made Lily's face white for an instant, made icy cold the hands they were clasping, but her voice was even and sweet, eyes and lips were smiling as she said:
"No, I'm going down to the reading-room with Millie." Her eyes sought the unkept head, the ungaily shoulders that she loved.
"Where is she? I want her."
Instantly they had separated, so that Millie stood by Lily's side.
Lily put her arm about her, while her slim figure in the white muslin gown advanced just a little as she stood there.
"I hope you will excuse me," she said to Theresa. "Thank you for asking me." The words were addressed to Theresa, but they were meant for all. Meant for all, too, were the proud uplift of her golden head, the shining sweet defiance of her gray eyes, the resolution of her wistful lips, the proud protecting tenderness, as she stood by Millie. The crowd melted away silently, each girl knowing that the finest girl in the class had put aside their highest honor, and had chosen instead—Millie Harlow!
It is etiquette that nominated candidates shall stay quietly in their rooms during an election. A little before eight Lily parted from Millie at the reading-room door.
"I don't honestly believe you'll get a dozen votes, Lily," said Millie, with well-meant comfort.
"I know I shan't get one," said Lily, laughing.
"Oh, yes, one!" cried Millie.
"Yes, one," corrected Lily, her eyes tender as they watched Millie's awkward stride in the corridor.
In her own room Lily did not turn up a face. She was tired, and thought she would lie down a little while. To that end, she removed Millie's coat that sprawled on her couch. Lily dearly loved her. Millie used Lily's room as if it had been her own, also Lily's books and Lily's note-paper and Lily's manicure set.
Lily sank down, pressing her hands to her tired head.
She smiled as she looked at Millie's coat on a chair. It looked so big and sugary, so like its owner.
Poor, dear, old Millie! The other girls did not understand.
Lily knew that Millie would go through fire for her; then a bit of a smile touched Lily's lips. It probably would never be necessary for Millie to go through fire for her, whereas a little every-day amiability, a little pleasantness on Millie's part would be very grateful to Lily's patient nerves.
Steps came flying down the corridor, the door burst open, in the light of the hall Millie's face was radiant.
"Theresa wanted to come, but I wouldn't let her. I'd have killed any one who tried to tell you before I did —and I let them know it, too! Anne Brower got up and made such an old speech—about loyalty and friendship and sacrifice, and a lot more. I didn't understand what she meant at all.
But the girls clapped. Oh, how they clapped! And then they took the vote.
Lily, it's you! And unanimous! I never heard of such a thing in college before! Unanimous, can you't imagine how it happened, can you?"
"No," said Lily, humbly, "I can't."

Yes, 100,000 times each day.

When the Spaniards built the city of Panama to be the great port of their Pacific commerce they expected to save them from raiders of all sort.
Although these walls were built by natives forced to work almost for nothing, they cost says Mr. Forbes-Lindsay, not less than $11,000,000.
The King of Spain, the story goes, looked severely and long one day out of the westerly windows of his palace.
One of his Ministers inquired the reason for his apparent anxiety.
"I am looking," said the King, "for those costly walls of Panama. They ought to be visible even at this distance."

The Stomach on Strike.

THE TONIC TREATMENT FOR INDIGESTION IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL.
"I had no appetite, coated tongue, bad taste in the mouth, heavy dull headache and a dull sluggish feeling—these are the symptoms of stomach trouble. They indicate that the stomach is on strike, that it is no longer furnishing to the blood the full quota of nourishment that the body demands, hence every organ suffers.
There are two methods of treatment, the old one by which the stomach is humored by the use of pre-digested foods and artificial ferments, and the Pills method—by which the stomach is toned up to do the work nature intended it. A recent cure by the tonic treatment is that of Mrs. Jas. W.
Haskell, Port Maitland, N. S. She says: "For years I enjoyed perfect health, but suddenly headaches seized me. I had a bad taste in my mouth; my tongue was coated; I grew tired and oppressed; my appetite left me and such food as I did eat only caused distress. I had severe pains in my chest. I lost all strength and was often seized with vomiting. At different times I was treated by some of our best doctors, but although I followed their treatment carefully I did not get any better. One day while reading a paper I came across a case similar to mine which had been cured by Dr.
Williams' Pink Pills. I immediately purchased a supply and it was not long before they began to help me. I grew stronger day by day till now I am as healthy as I ever was. I have a good appetite, an strong and active and can attend to my household duties without fatigue. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all sufferers from indigestion."

Rheumatism, kidney trouble, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, nervousness, backache, palpitation, general weakness, and a host of other troubles, find their root in bad blood just as in the case of stomach trouble. That is why the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills treatment is always a success—they are a powerful blood builder and nerve tonic. Sold by all druggists or direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brookville, Ont., at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50.

You May be Sick to Night.
Without a moment's warning pain springs upon us. At the outset it is instantly cured by Nervine. Surprising what fifteen drops of this marvelous medicine will do. It's external action is no less certain than it's wonderful effect when taken internally.
Of course Nervine is powerful or it couldn't be so penetrating. But not irritating or caustic. There are other pain remedies, but when you use Nervine you see the difference.
That difference is—others relieve,
but Nervine does cure sprains, reports as the result of a series of measurements of growing apple and and other plants, that eighty-five per cent of the growth of trees takes place between midnight and 6 o'clock in the morning.

The growth continues at a much diminished rate until 9 o'clock.
After that it is very slight until noon, when the tree falls into a condition of complete rest, lasting until 6 o'clock.
Then there is a gradual renewal of the growth. Which, however, does not become rapid until the middle of the night.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., OCT. 4, 1907.

Sanctum Suggestions.

Some of the posts recently elected in town by the telephone company certainly do not improve the appearance of the streets. A number of them are decidedly crooked and describe anything but a straight line. We understand the company's charter requires that the posts be set under the direction of the streets authorities, and we are therefore at a loss to know why they were allowed to disgrace the town with such an array of "crooked sticks."

At a special convocation of the University of Toronto recently held, on the occasion of the installation of Dr. R. A. Falconer as president, the honorary degree of LL. D. was conferred on the new president and on Cecil C. Jones, chancellor of the University of New Brunswick. Howard Murray, dean of the college of Dalhousie University; Monsignor Oliviere Elzear Mathieu, rector of Laval; William Peterson, M. A., LL. D., C. M. G., principal of McGill University, as well as on a number of other prominent men, including the Bishop of London in absentia.

Wolfville has been in semi-darkness during the past week in consequence of an accident to the boiler of the Acadia Electric Light Co. on Saturday evening. A new boiler has been ordered and should be here by the first of next week. Some time will be required for its installation, however, and it will probably be the end of next week, at least, before the plant will be again running. Much inconvenience is experienced by citizens generally as most of the residences and business places depend on electric lighting. The churches on Sunday evening, as well as the streets, presented a gloomy appearance. We understand the company's loss will be quite a heavy one.

College opened on Wednesday morning with an unusually large attendance. The Freshman class, it is said, will number well on to a hundred, nearly one-third of whom will be ladies. This is a considerable advance in number over any other year. The opening lecture, which was to have been given this evening in College Hall, has been postponed until the first of November. Dr. W. B. Hutchison, the new president, will, we understand, be the speaker on that occasion. The Acadians gladly welcome back the old students and extends a hearty greeting to those who are coming as strangers to take up their residence in our town. We trust one and all may enjoy a prosperous and pleasant year in their work.

Town Council Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Council was held on Wednesday evening with the Mayor and all the Councilors present.

The Streets Committee reported that the principal work done had been the laying of about 800 feet of granite curbing on Main street. Another carload had been received, which will be laid as soon as possible, after which a number of small repairs will be attended to. A short time ago the committee had been approached by the Acadia Electric Light Co. in reference to all-night service. The committee arranged for a meeting with the company, the outcome of which was an offer from the company of an all-night service at the rate of $15.00 per light per year, they reserving the right to limit the service if they found it impossible to procure coal sufficient for an all-night service.

The Finance Committee reported receipts during month $344.47, and expenditures of $207.39. The debit balance at the bank on Sept. 30th, was $1293.65. It was resolved that Policeman Crowell be given a vacation of one week each year without reduction of pay.

The following bills were ordered to be paid:—
E. E. Moser $3.50
Acadia Electric Light Co. 39.02
Rebecca Gould 10.00
Mrs. Weatherbe 4.00
A. V. Rand 1.50
B. C. Bishop 3.52

A letter was read from Mr. G. W. Murray, secretary of the Acadia Electric Light Co., in answer to a communication from the committee of the Council, stating that the company is willing to sell to the town all its electric property, plant and franchise for the sum of $35,000.

The annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Press Association will be held at Yarmouth on Wednesday, October 9th, at ten o'clock, a. m. The officers for the year will be elected. A paper will be read by one of its prominent members on the "History of Journalism of Nova Scotia," and it is expected that other interesting matters will be discussed.

Sir F. W. Borden's Latest.

The minister of militia has visited this province during the week and has propounded something new in the shape of the introduction of physical and military training in the public schools. We are accustomed to receive surprises from the minister of militia, though not always in connection with this department. His new scheme is as yet very much in the rough. Nothing but the roughest outlines have been made public, the Morning Chronicle setting them forth as follows:

The plans are for a system of physical culture and elementary military drill to be taught in the schools by the regular teachers, and the Militia Department undertakes to provide instruction for these teachers. Sir Frederick Borden has always been in favor of having a system of physical culture for all children taught in the schools, as the children got older, a system of elementary military drill, hoping to teach the children order, discipline and alertness as well as develop their bodies and also qualify them to defend the country should the necessity ever arise.

There would be no objection to the provincial government hobnobbing with Sir F. W. Borden in this matter had it performed more necessary duties in connection with education in this province, if it had for example provided for adequate remuneration to teachers, if it had restored their grants and if it had dealt intelligently with the question of supplying schools which are closed owing to the death of teachers. It might be well to teach the school boys to shoot, but this branch of instruction could well be left until the more pacific problems of education had been thoroughly solved.

Sir Frederick says that the teachers are to be given military instruction which will fit them for imparting it in turn to the pupils. He intimates that the province will pay for this instruction, but does not intimate where it will be imparted. Nor does he tell us if the already overburdened and underpaid teachers are to be given any extra remuneration for the additional burden which it is proposed to place upon their already stooped shoulders.

But it occurs to us that the main stumbling block lies in the fact that where there is one male teacher there are ten female teachers. This we believe is the first occasion upon which the gallant minister of militia has forgotten the ladies. Does the provincial government propose to drill armed squads of lady school teachers? Are the residents of country sections to witness the novel sight of a body of boys going through military tactics under the direction of a blooming young school mistress? Or is the minister of militia endeavoring to raise up a Joan of Arc among us? When Sir Frederick next is in town, we would like to see him draw the musket on him.—Yarmouth Times.

Painless Teething.

There is no period in baby's life that mother's dread more than teething time. The little gums are tender and inflamed; the child suffers and is sleepless and cross, and the mother is usually worn out caring for the child. The use of Baby's Own Tablets at the tender swollen gums, softens the teeth through painlessly. Mrs. N. Sauve, St. Rose de Lima, Que., says: "When my baby was cutting his teeth he was feverish, cross and did not take nourishment. After giving him Baby's Own Tablets he cut six teeth without the least trouble. I have never used any medicine for children I prize so highly as the Tablets. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

October 'Canadian Pictorial.'

A brown October maid, matching the tints of the waning season, looks out from the cover of the current issue of the 'Canadian Pictorial' (142 St. Peter street, Montreal) She is a truly Canadian, healthy, out-of-doors girl, and leaning on her rifle, is proud of the trophies of the hunt which she has secured. The Canadian picture man of the month is the Hon. G. P. Graham, the new Minister of Railways. As promised last month there are two pages of gems from the recent photographic competition. The terrible disaster near Quebec, in which more than three score and ten men lost their lives, is strikingly illustrated. The distorted ruins of the massive steel of which the bridge was composed are shown with wonderful clearness. The stirring events in Morocco have made specially interesting two pages illustrating the Sultan's army and navy, the latter consisting only of two merchant vessels. This is in sharp contrast to a page showing Britain's naval power as demonstrated in a review which brought out 85,000 officers and men who, with their vessels, made twenty miles of frowning might. There is an intimate picture of the King as he is now and another taken in Canada forty-seven years ago. Those who contributed to the Chinese famine fund will be interested in a page showing how the refugees lived before the new crops were harvested. The riots in Belfast, the great pageants in England, and other current events are depicted. The woman's department includes seasonal furs, autumn military, rainy day dress and many other interesting features. The magazine has been enlarged considerably this month.

Ten cents a copy, one dollar a year postpaid to any part of the world.

I ain't got time to talk to you; I'm late already! replied the breathless beginner as he dodged his way to the door of his classroom closed.

A horse with an income is King, formerly owned by the late George C. Watts. He is now passing his old age on a farm on a monthly allowance of $150 left him by his former owner.

Under the will of Mr. Watts, King was to have an allowance of $200 a year during the period of his usefulness and after that an income of $150 a month until his death. Billy, a pet dog, also received an allowance, but he died last February. Mr. Watts left an estate of $100,000, of which a part will go to charity, but the division of estate has been delayed pending the death of the horse of the horse. King is twenty-one years old.—Chicago Tribune.

AMBERGRIS is worth at present $65 an ounce. Last year there was used about $120,000 worth of this peculiar substance in the manufacture of perfumes. It is a fatty substance of an ashy gray color with red or yellow streaks in it and is found floating on the sea or taken by whale fisher from the carcass of the sperm whale. Much is also picked up on the shores of the Bahamas. It is generally agreed that ambergris is secreted by the sperm whale as the result of a disease. It is chiefly bought by scent makers, but is also valuable as a constituent of certain medicines.—London Standard.

How to Cure a Cold. The question of how to cure a cold without unnecessary loss of time is one in which we are all more or less interested, for the quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger of pneumonia and other serious diseases. Dr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for years and says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me. For sale at Rand & Dryden Store."

There was a barber in South Bend, who, having been out late the night before, had a shaky hand the next morning and cut a patron's cheek four times. After each accident the barber said, as he sponged away the blood, "Oh, dear me how careless and laughed, and let it go at that."

The patron took all these gashes in grave silence. But when the shave was over, he filled a glass of water and with compressed lips proceeded to shake his head from side to side and to toss it up and down.

What is the matter? the barber asked. You ain't got toothache, have you?

No, said the customer, I only just wanted to see if my mouth would still hold water without leaking, that was all.

A New Kind of Bread.

An entirely new kind of bread made either of wheat or rye, is becoming popular in Germany, and is likely soon to be introduced into this country. It is made of the whole grain, but not according to any method hitherto familiar.

The grain is germinated by alternate steeping in warm water and aeration, this being accomplished by a simple mechanical apparatus. As soon as rootlets appear it is ready for use, and is crushed to fineness between rollers, after which it is dropped through a chute into an iron trough on the floor below, where it is kneaded by a machine.

The preliminary process is one of matting—similar to the matting of barley. All the water used in the sprouting process, which contains a large part of the mineral salts of the grain, is poured into the iron trough to make the dough. This nothing is lost, the entire substance of the grain being included in the dough, which, with the addition of yeast and salt, is finally formed into loaves and baked in the ordinary fashion.

The bread thus made is said to have a delicious flavor. It is claimed for it that the process of germination makes the substances of the grain much more digestible.

Recurring Headaches. Do THEY BOTHER YOU? You find life a miserable affair because you have headaches, but you have neither nausea nor are you weak. You know if you could only prevent headache you would enjoy perfect health.

Such headaches indicate a general lowered condition, because they arise from a general decay of the nervous system.

This depressed condition of the nervous system has its origin in the reduction of quality and quantity of the blood.

The blood is thin—its red coloring is reduced—it contains no nourishment.

The digestive organs are not supplying it with sufficient nutritive matter. The result—nerve weakness, nerve debility, ill health.

If you had used Ferreroze you would know how powerfully all the digestive and assimilative functions of the body are stimulated.

Ferreroze does more—it supplies all the elements that are essential to the rebuilding of the body—supplies the reconstructive forces that contribute to the formation of rich, red blood.

You see, Ferreroze doesn't treat a symptom—it remedies a cause and that's why a month's treatment will absolutely remove every vestige of recurring nervous headaches.

Nothing like Ferreroze to build you up, to give the reserve of forces that happy health that contributes so much to happiness and contentment.

Ferreroze will make you feel like new, try it—sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes.

A man who runs a truck farm in Virginia tells of the sad predicament in which a colored man named Sam Moore, who is in his employ, recently found himself. Sam had had considerable difficulty in evading the onslaught of a dog from a neighboring farm. Finally, the dog got him as Sam kicked at him.

Sam's wife, hearing a tremendous yell, rushed to the rescue of her husband. When she came up the dog had fastened his teeth in the calf of Sam's leg and was holding on for dear life.

Seizing a stone in the road, Sam's wife was about to hurl it when Sam, with wonderful presence of mind, shouted:

Mandy! Mandy! Don't frow dat stone at de dawg! Frow it at me Mandy!—Youth's Companion.

The Tremble of Old Age. With the advance of years the vital functions of the body slow down. In consequence the organs of secretion suffer, the action of the bowels is lessened and there is no longer healthy circulation. The brain is congested with blood, giddiness, trembling and cold extremities are common. No assistance is so potent as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. By their direct action on the stomach, liver and kidneys they cause an immediate change. Mild, free from grip, strengthening and cleansing the whole system, no medicine is so valuable in old age as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butterbean. Try these Pills, 25c per box at all dealers.

HUMORS

ALL ABOUT A BOOK.

Trouble in Store For the One Who Threw it Out of the Window.

"Will you please take that book out of this seat?"

"What for?"

"I'd like to sit down here."

"Plenty of other seats in this car, are there not?"

"Yes, sir, but this happens to be the one I want."

"Just so."

"Will you take that book out of this seat?"

"No, sir."

"You will not?"

"I will not."

"I think it's hogwash for a man to pile his baggage on the seat alongside of him."

"I don't care a continental what you think."

"Once more, will you take that book out of this seat?"

"Once more, sir, no."

"Then I'll throw it out of the window."

"I advise you not to do it."

"Yes, you might get yourself into trouble."

By the way of reply the irate passenger picked up the offending book and snarled it through the open window.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham—"

"When I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was suffering with weakness and wobbly tremors, headaches, backaches, and that worst of all, tired feeling. I have only taken the Vegetable Compound a few short weeks, and it has made me well, strong and robust. I believe that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is without equal for female troubles."

When a woman is troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), inflammation or ulceration, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and vigor by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

WOMEN WHO CHARM

HEALTH IS THE FIRST ESSENTIAL

It Helps Women to Win and Hold Men's Admiration, Respect and Love.

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect, and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than more magnificence of feature.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill-health, painful or irregular periods, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Mrs. T. E. Gillis, Windsor, N. S., describes her illness and cure, in the following letter:

"When I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was suffering with weakness and wobbly tremors, headaches, backaches, and that worst of all, tired feeling. I have only taken the Vegetable Compound a few short weeks, and it has made me well, strong and robust. I believe that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is without equal for female troubles."

When a woman is troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), inflammation or ulceration, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and vigor by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

They talk of the man behind the gun, And the deadly work that he has done; But much more deadly work, by far, Is done by the fellow behind the bar.

They talk of the man behind the gun, Yet only in battle his work is done; But never ceases, in peace or war, The work of the man behind the bar.

A Promise is a Promise for Ever. Once, when Abraham Lincoln was a member of the House of Representatives, according to a well-known story, a friend criticized him for his seeming reticence in declining to test the rare wines provided by their host, urging as a reason for the refusal, "There is certainly no danger of a man of your years and habits becoming addicted to its use."

"I meant no disrespect, John," answered Mr. Lincoln, "but I promised my precious mother only a few days before she died that I would never use anything intoxicating as a beverage, and I consider that promise as binding to-day as the day I gave it."

"There is a great difference between a child surrounded by a rough class of drinkers and a man in a home of refinement," insisted the friend.

"But a promise is a promise for ever, John, and when made to a mother it is doubly binding," replied Mr. Lincoln.

Paying Taxes With Boys. Some people never can see anything but the dollar argument in everything presented. Their first thought is, Will it pay in dollars and cents? We believe that the prohibition of the liquor traffic would greatly reduce taxes by reducing court and paper expenses. But even if it could be proved that prohibition does increase your taxes, are you not willing to pay something to protect your boys? It increases your taxes to maintain a police department and a fire department to protect your homes, but you do not object to this increase of taxes. Why then, should you object to a small increase of taxes, if necessary, to protect the boys who live in these homes? If you vote for license in order to get the saloon's revenue to reduce your taxes, then you should be willing for your boys to patronize the saloon, for the saloon cannot run without boys any more than a saw mill can run without logs. If to get the saloon's revenue, you vote for license, will you contribute a boy to keep them running? Would you rather pay your taxes with your money or with your boy? Which?—National Advocate.

A Child's Influence. When John Stone was sober there was not to be found a kinder or better husband, or one more generous with his money. When in work he earned good wages at the gas works, and was always ready to help a neighbor in need. He had chosen to press for payment those to whom he had lent money he would have had relief in a short time. In two days I was a little fortune, but he was good-natured, and always said, "Wait to pay till you can afford to do so," and that day never seemed to come.

The Stone's cottage was the picture of neatness. Having no family, Mrs. Stone had plenty of spare time on her hands, and by taking in plain needlework managed to keep a very comfortable home together, notwithstanding John being out of work from time to time and his falling of lending or giving his money away. His wife always looked upon the easy way her husband parted with his money as a failing. "John's weak—very weak," she would often say, but she would always add, "He has a kind heart."

One day there came a letter to John with a deep black border to the envelope. It was to tell him of the death of his only sister, and his brother-in-law wrote asking if John and his wife would take care of his little daughter Heater for a few weeks, as the child was sick and ailing, and sadly needed country air.

A week later little Heater and her uncle had become great friends. The child would always run to meet him on his return from work, and with her small hand clasped in his would dress him for the cottage, little dreaming she was keeping him from temptation, for the "Black Cow" stood only a few steps from the cottage, and John had turned in there most evenings to have a glass, which had too often been followed by more than was good for him.

John could never tell how it came about, but a feeling of shame crept over him that Heater should see him turning into the "Black Cow," and by the silent influence of a little child he became a sober man.—Friendly Greetings.

A Message for Pile Sufferers

Mr. Geo. H. Simms, Grant, Russell Co., Ont., writes:—"Eleven years ago I began to suffer with the piles, and as they caused me distress and became worse I doctored for them, but with little or no avail. They were bleeding, itching and protruding and the tortures I suffered at times can never be described. It was with suffering that the bowels moved, and as nothing brought relief I could only endure the misery with an aching heart and without hope of cure."

"Finally a lady friend told me about Dr. Chase's Ointment curing piles, and to my surprise I felt relief at once on using this ointment, the little tumors soon disappeared, the ulcers healed and the bowels became regular. This was five years ago and I have never been troubled with this terrible ailment since, a thousand thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment."

To persons who have given up looking for a cure for piles or hemorrhoids this letter should bring new hope. There is, we believe, no more effective treatment for piles than Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers or Edman, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Try to Look Dainty. Don't fail to look dainty. It is the most expressive word which can be applied to a woman.

A woman may be stylish, well dressed, good looking and lots of other things, without any considerable expense, but to live up to the requirements of "daintiness" means something more. It means absolute freshness of neckties, gloves, etc., and can be achieved by the woman or girl of average means if she will have a weekly wash of muslins, laces, gloves, etc., herself.

Women who would be shocked at the idea that a stranger should see them in dishabille, inflict untold bitterness on all husbands and sons, fathers and brothers.

A Certain Cure for Croup—Used for Ten Years without a Failure Mr. W. C. Bott, a Star City, Ind., was merchant, an enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have all been subject to croup and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they most feared the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy never failed to effect a speedy cure. He has recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequalled for croup and whooping cough. For sale at Rand's Drug Store.
