There Must Be a Reason

That a great many of the garments that we have received in the past month were from new customers who had those garments misshapen by other dyers and were sent to us as a last resort before a settlement was made with the owners. We were able to doctor up the majority of those crippled garments to the entire satisfaction of those owners. If you have any such garments of this character send them to us. If our customers don't accept the garments after we doctor them, don't pay us. No cure no pay. We have received a new shipment of dye, the best on the market. Raglans cleaned and dyed at shortest notice. Outport orders get my personal attention.

"Flatterers" OR The Shadow of the Future.

CHAPTER V. A HOME UNHOMELIKE.

From the first of the Alwyn's residence at St. Clair's this kind woman had taken to the youngest of the newcomers—the ailing father's faithful little shadow. She was ready enough to be friendly to all, but Mrs. Alwyn kept her steadily at a distance. A woman of her stamp might penetrate to the seclusion of the invalid. Men in Mr. Alwyn's state are given to indiscreet confidences, thought his wife, and determined he should be allowed no opportunity for such. So, as the lady never advanced beyond distant civility, and as Leonora was ready to ignore the existence of people who wore the same bonnet summer and winter, Sydney was the only one who grew intimate with the doctor's family.

When she was still small, she strayed one day into the big parish church, and stood, imitative, before a fine tablet of lord and lady, with effigies of children carved on the panel their recumbent figures, one little maid in quaint garb bearing a skull in her outstretched palms. "What does she mean?" asked Sydney of Mrs. Dacie, busy close by with her harvest decorations, and was answered: "It means that child died young, my dear; underneath it says in Latin, 'She was a daughter most sweet, most dear, whom to lose was to the father mortal pain, to the mother as a foretaste of Death's dart in her own breast.' So, 'round up practical Mrs. Dacie, 'don't go home by the lower houses, my dear, there's scarlet fever there. If you caught it we might have you ending just like that little lady with the skull, you know."

Sydney pondered gravely for a minute, and then turned away. "Except that my mother wouldn't so much mind," she said. And the naive confession planted the little half-shorn straying firmly in Mrs. Dacie's pitying regard.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE LIFE A Dangerous Period Through Which Every Woman Must Pass Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow. Afton, Tenn. "I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. During the Change of Life I was in bed for eight months and had two good doctors treating me but they did me no good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and in a short time I felt better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me. Now when I feel weak and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good. If you think it will induce some one to try the Vegetable Compound you may publish this letter." - Mrs. A. KELLER, Afton, Tenn.

to carry women safely through the Change of Life. She says: "It is with pleasure that I write to you thanking you for what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I was passing through the Change of Life and had a displacement and weakness so that I could not stand on my feet and other annoying symptoms. A friend told me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the first bottle helped me, so I got more, and I am now doing my housework. Your medicine is certainly woman's friend and you may use this testimonial as you choose." Mrs. MARY LARSEN, 938 Frank Street, Adrian, Mich.

"Sincerity in word and deed, that is what makes friends, wins customers, grows business, insures success. We make no claim we cannot substantiate, declare no values we cannot show." Our claim is that Phosphate Cough and Cold Cure is the best preparation for all kinds of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and various lung troubles, and to substantiate our claim we can produce the proof by the sales we are making. If Stafford's Phosphate was not what we claim it to be why should people be continually asking for a bottle and wholesalers purchasing it in gross quantities. Phosphate is only one of the many preparations we manufacture and have succeeded in obtaining a very large sale for owing to its medicinal qualities. DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, Wholesale and Retail Chemists and Druggists, St. John's, Newfoundland.

ways by Mr. Vaughan. Did you observe his hat? It was a perfect scarecrow!" "No, I did not, mamma. Mr. Bruce—a neighboring vicar—asked me who the charming girl in white was—meaning Sydney. And the countess said she had the prettiest, most natural figure she had seen for a long time." "Very polite of the countess," coldly. "And Mr. Duvesne watched Sydney all the time she played with the school children at that idiotic gathering nuts in May. After you brought him to me he hardly spoke. I don't think he liked me when I talked. I said I was tired and would he get me some tea? And, finished Leonora, shaking her elegantly quite bristly. But he never came back! Instead, he followed Sydney for an hour with a heavy dish of cake!"

This was serious. Mrs. Alwyn seated herself for meditation, surveying the situation unsmiling. Mr. Duvesne, an honorable and renowned scion of the great Comyngham family, was the man whom she was ready to move heaven and earth to gain for a son-in-law—a husband for Leonora. But it was on the cards that John Alwyn's daughter might come most undesirably to the front, and, once there, hold her own in any company. The thought that the child, unwelcome from her first breath, should oust the darling offspring of her first marriage, was intolerable. The mother, weighed with uneven burden, puckered her brows, and bit her lips, and sighed, but saw no light through her difficulties—quick though she mostly was at finding the straightest road to her own advantage.

For once Leonora's unimaginative self opened the way out of perplexity. "It would be awkward, mamma," she said, plaintively, "if this sort of thing always went on. I should dislike Sydney—and I've no desire to do so. I can only think of one plan to set things comfortable." "Ah! Her mother looked up, anxious, not hopeful.

"And perhaps that isn't possible. But would it not be very nice if we could get Sydney pleasantly away? Get her married, or going to be, so she wouldn't interfere at all? Could it be done?" Mrs. Alwyn got up and kissed her daughter affectionately.

"Do not! It's the very thing! An admirably unselfish thought! I fancy I see my way. I believe I know the very man. I won't lose a day, my love, in attending to it." And surely enough that same afternoon's post brought forth the first move in this newly suggested family game.

CHAPTER VI. DELICATE ARRANGEMENTS AFOOT. The massive calculated to inter-mediate with our heroine's fortunes was compiled with much thought and care, addressed in her mother's faultlessly correct handwriting to one "Major Villiers, Petersham," and ran thus: "The Dale, St. Clair's, June 30. "My dear Alfred—It was only an hour ago, when talking with Leonora that it occurred to me your visit to us, postponed these last two summers, ought surely to take place this present one. Pardon me for not writing and pressing this before, but, as you know, with all the weight of domestic minutiae, and the cares inseparable from the charge of two unmarried girls, my mind is always on the stretch, and fear I am sometimes remiss when I ought to be the very reverse. Your niece and I both hope, however, that you will show you are not attended by coming to us as quickly as possible. We shall be so glad to receive you any time you may fix. I may add, if you need further persuasion, that I have much to consult you about, much to speak of, whenever I feel your advice will be invaluable."

turned out she wanted to stay at my cousin Sarah's in Piccadilly, and to get an invitation for Miss Leonora to the artillery fête. The time before it was Henley Regatta; and before that—Well, with a great puff, "I can't recollect; but the good lady's affection isn't disinterested, as a rule. However, I needn't cry out before I'm hurt. We'll see what's on the carpet now. 'Advice'—h'm, h'm—invaluable—no! here's the piece." "Perhaps it may be as well to name the point that disturbs me now before we meet. Candidly, then, it's about Sydney; and though she is no real relation to you, yet as you are associated with my own brother in the trusteeship of her little property (which charge will end next year, for she is twenty now), I am sure you will not mind my troubling you with what concerns her."

"Twenty! Is she really?" pondered Major Villiers, with another pause. "How time flies to be sure! And what's the young lady up to, I wonder? Got into some love-scrape, I'll be bound, as all girls do—except my niece, Leonora, by the way. She doesn't seem to hurry herself. Now, Miss Sydney. At your service. (To be continued.)

Cruel Frauds on Inventors. TRICKS AND TRAPS TO STEAL PATENTS. If it is true that a nation lives largely by its inventive genius, then it is time more attention was paid to one of Britain's most valuable assets. Every year there are over 20,000 applications for patents in this country. Many of them, of course, are of no value. There is the man, for instance, who thinks he has discovered the secret of perpetual motion, and there are even optimists who claim to be able to reduce delay on the telephone lines. Some inventors are wonderfully clever; their only fault is that nobody wants them. In addition to these, however, there are men who produce something that is really wanted. Several cases have come to light recently which show that in regard to these a scandalous system of exploitation is going on. There are firms to-day deliberately using patents they have never paid for and for which they do not intend to pay.

Is a Patent Sufficient Protection? A man had a clever idea for an electrical contrivance. He took the precaution of patenting it, and, thinking he was perfectly safe, approached a commercial undertaking with a view to its adoption. This was agreed to, and the man went away elated. Imagine his consternation when, a few weeks later, he received a letter from the firm stating that they proposed to utilize his idea, but would pay him nothing for it unless he sued them in court—and won his case.

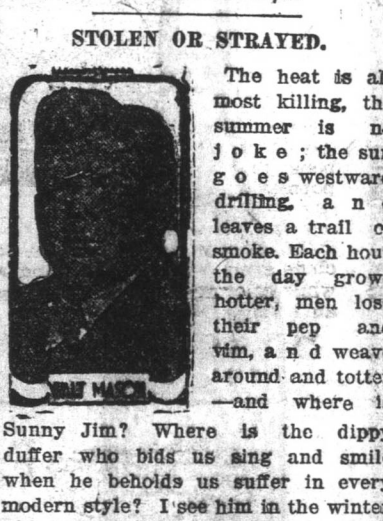

They excused this as the mere patenting of an invention was not sufficient protection, and that the only real test of its validity was through a legal action. The explanation of this scandal is that the firm had discovered that the man was too poor to sue them, and they took advantage of his poverty. A swindle of another kind is revealed by the following story. The inventor of a rotary pump put the idea before a firm of manufacturers with a view to giving them permission to manufacture the article and sell it. His reward was to come in the shape of royalties. An agreement embodying this bargain was put before him and he signed it. He went home dreaming of a steady stream of royalties which would enable him to live in affluence.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS. ALL KIDNEY DISEASES. BRONCHITIS, DIABETES, GRAVEY BACK, PAIN IN THE BACK. 23 THE PHARMACY.

But time went on and not a penny came his way. When, at last, he asked the reason, he was told that his idea had been pigeon-holed and that there was no intention whatever to manufacture and sell the pump. He realized too late that the agreement was worthless because it contained no clause compelling the firm to put the pump on the market. A patent expert informed us that there are men who make a practice of persuading inventors to sign agreements of this kind. They are not out to push patents, but merely to prevent rivals from obtaining them.

Another class of exploitation is to enlarge upon the alleged difficulties of manufacture and to demand a high subsidy for the purchase of new tools and appliances. In a recent case, the inventor of a new lock for motor-cars approached a firm of motor-car makers. They filled his mind with glowing stories of the wealth he would accumulate if he allowed them to take it up. It would be necessary, however, they said, for him to put £1,000 down to enable them to install the necessary plant. The man placed his hard-earned savings in their hands, only to find that his new lock was unsalable, and had never had a chance of success. The transaction, in fact, ended in his ruin, but the firm retained the £1,000.

A State official who could give advice to inventors on traps to be avoided in agreements would perform a very valuable duty.—Tit-Bits.

STOLEN OR STRAYED. The heat is almost killing, the summer is no joke; the sun goes westward drilling, and leaves a trail of smoke. Each hour the day grows hotter, men lose their pep and vim, and a d weariness and totter around and totter and where is Sunny Jim? Where is the dippy duffer who bids us sing and smile when he beholds us suffer in every modern style? I see him in the winter when blasts are raging loud; a glad and merry sprinter he dashes through the crowd; he bids me can my sorrow, and cries, 'So help me, Pete, the sun will shine to-morrow, and melt the snow and sleet.' I see him in the springtime, I see him in the fall; he says it's dance-and-singtime, and beams upon us all. But now that I am melting, and life seems stark and grim, and solar rays are pelting, oh, where is Sunny Jim? No gent, with precepts priestly, comes up to cheer my heart, but men, in language beastly, their sentiments impart. They say, 'Dodgad! the climate, it seems to have no sense; why don't you roset and rhyme it, and bang it on the fence?' Why don't you flay the weather in one great soaring hymn?"

CRAIG SUMMONED.
LONDON, July 14.
Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, has been summoned to London to confer with Premier Lloyd George on the Irish situation. It was expected here to-night. Sir James is present in Belfast.

SATISFACTION SO FAR.
LONDON, July 14.
One of the men who accompanied Mr. De Valera to the Irish Peace Conference to-day with Premier Lloyd George, to-night said:—"We are satisfied with the result of the initial conference." A communique issued stated that free exchange of views took place between Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera and their relative positions were defined. The Conference will be resumed at 11.30 o'clock to-morrow, it was announced.

THE IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.
LONDON, July 14.
The Irish Peace Conference at the Irish Premier's official residence, 10 Downing Street, to-day, crowded out the Conference of Dominion Prime Ministers. In consequence there were very few meetings of Committees, dealing with reparations, shipping and other matters, and the main conference will be held in the next few days. It is understood that the basis for division of reparations among various portions of the Empire has been agreed upon, and that it is likely to be satisfactory. There is not, however, a great deal of enthusiasm over the matter, British statesmen having apparently long since concluded that no substantial amount can be got out of Germany. Premier Meighen did not attend to-day's committee meetings.

LLOYD GEORGE SPEAKS.
LONDON, July 14.
Premier Lloyd George held a Council of Ministers at the House of Commons to-night to discuss his meeting with Eamon De Valera. Later he proceeded to a dinner of the Liberal Millionaires, where he received a great ovation. Apologizing for his appearance, he said he had been engaged in important tasks during the day, and after discharging them had met his colleagues and reported to the sovereign, who, he declared, was being very keen and close interest in the proceedings and to whose intervention so much was attributed. We have him, added the Prime Minister, with gratitude for this, one of the greatest services he has rendered. His reference to Ireland Mr. Lloyd George besought his audience not to tempt him into indiscretion. The less he said at this stage, declared the Prime Minister, but there is the fact that Mr. De Valera, chief of the vast majority of the Irish, has been in conference for three hours with the Prime Minister of this country, discussing various subjects and suggestions for the settlement of this long controversy, old, bitter, wasteful feud over which there has been for ages long numbers of disastrous murders and endless opportunities lost. Let us trust that this one will be the one that is not lost. I can only say after long discussion that I am certain, we both did our best to secure peace. Beyond that it would not be wise for me to go, at this moment, because we both have our difficulties to deal with. Mr. Lloyd George alluded to a remarkable invitation issued by the President of the United States, to discuss the issues involved in the Pacific problem, on which the leading heads of the world depend. He went on to say "I am hopeful that it will result in a pact of peace that will make the Pacific in reality a Pacific Ocean. I also trust that it will lead to useful discussion of the problem of disarmament, upon which so much depends for the future of our race, because it matters not what treaties are signed, what pacts are entered into between nations, what understandings they may establish, it makes no difference what associations they may be found in if the nations are against each other for war, war will ensue in the end. Therefore, no treaty is of value unless it leads to an understanding among the nations that they will not utilize their resources, their wealth and their strength for the purpose of developing amongst themselves. I am very hopeful that when that conference meets it will lead to some real arrangement, involving the keeping of those armaments within innocuous limits." At the same dinner Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, said he believed that a permanent settlement would be the ultimate result of the Irish Conference.

Obituary.
MICHAEL HALLERN.
For the past six months the Angel of Death has been hovering over the home of Mrs. Michael Hallern, St. Vincent, and on Monday, July 11th, it descended and claimed as its victim her devoted husband, aged 68 years. Deceased was not feeling very well for some time past. His death was due to cancer of the eye, affecting his whole system. Everything available to save the precious life was done, but in vain. The great God willed it otherwise. Few would think a year ago that the bright, robust looking and strongly built form was so soon to be cut down, but the God fearing principles of our dear friend were too staunch not to submit to his master's will, and he bore the most intense suffering with a saintly resignation. He has gone, fortified by all the rites and helps with which Holy Church sweetens the passing of those who are faithful unto death. He leaves to mourn him a widow, five sons, three daughters, Mrs. P.K. Gibbons, Middle Gut; Mrs. Harry McDonald, Everet, Mass., U.S.A., and Nellie at home; two brothers and two sisters. No all of whom the writer extends sincere sympathy. On July 5 his remains were laid to rest in the village cemetery. Here the summer sun will shed effulgent rays on his last resting place. Here the winter snows will enshroud his mound in their fleecy folds, and here the winds of Heaven will sing their perpetual requiem.—R.I.P.
St. Vincent, July 11, 1921.

Sponge a Queer Fish.
Sponges were long thought to be vegetables, but they are now known to be animals. Their appearance when they come to the market is so unlike that of the living sponge that it is quite to be expected that seeing it on a plate in use one would hardly suspect its origin. The sponge grows mostly at the bottom of the sea on rocks to which it is fixed by a kind of root. It is made up of a jellylike substance and a framework of tough fibers. This framework is really the skeleton of the sponge; it is the sponge of commerce. The skeleton is covered with a jellylike substance and is sticky when taken out of the water. Sponges are usually buried in dry sand for a time until the jelly part decays. They are then put in wire cages into the sea until they are washed clean.

Correspondents and Correspondence

Quite frequently letters are received at the offices of newspapers, the publication of which would not be consistent with the ethics of true journalism, for many letters are offensively worded and contain most malicious libels on the persons to whom they refer. The authors of such communications sometimes wax indignant when their brain children are murdered by the editor and turning their wrath upon the humble occupiers of the editorial chair, they express their opinions of them and their knowledge (or lack of it) in running a newspaper in far more lurid language than they devoted to the object of their ire in their own little community. And lots of people wonder why editors are so short tempered and so abrupt in manner, when approached during the busiest hour of the day by persons soliciting contributions of money, for some cause or other, or with the object of getting this or that into the day's issue. But happily there are different types of correspondent from those already referred to, though in some ways these are not a class apart, because in numerous instances, their letters also have to be suppressed, yet on the whole this class delights the editorial heart and wreaths the brow with smiles of pleasure, because the subject matter, while not altogether quite appropriate for publication, may supply the inspiration for an article on men or things or both. Lately we have been receiving many such letters, for which we have to offer thanks to the writers, even if we cannot accord their contributions the privilege of space. These few lines may make it perfectly clear to those correspondents whose letters have not appeared in cold type, no doubt much to their disgust, and denunciation of the man who uses the blue pencil and piles up the W.P.E.

Since the homecoming of the members of our military and naval forces engaged in the Great War, we have received hundreds of letters from the men of both services, the majority of which have been published, the minority, for obvious reasons, not. The burden of complaint of the bulk of these writings was the manner in which complainants, and their comrades, had been treated in the matter of positions, and in the receipt of post war pay. The dissatisfaction over both these matters has not yet been overcome. For instance the men of the Royal Naval Reserve of Newfoundland are seeking for the proportion of Prize Money due them, arising out of the capture and sale of enemy ships during the war. They claim that there is a large sum coming to them on this account, Canadian aid other dominion naval contingents received their portion, and it seems passing strange that Newfoundland has not been able to collect its allotment from the Admiralty. Surely it cannot be said that the share of our men went into ships of little value to the country? Yet there is no record made public of either the receipt from or non-payment by the British Admiralty of Newfoundland's award, and the men are still waiting. In the matter of positions, particularly those in the gift of the Government, returned men protest that there has been discrimination against them, and that they have not been treated with that courtesy and fair play to which they are entitled. In a communication now before us, a returned soldier, whose name would be familiar to many, denounces the manner in which he, and such as he, has been treated by the Government. He applied for a position as light-keeper and after considerable correspondence with various gentlemen of the Executive, received an intimation from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, through the Secretary, that his application could not be considered, as "an appointment was made to the station for which you applied a week ago." The irony of the situation, according to our correspondent is "that he went over and did his bit, while the man who got the job of light-keeper stayed home." And there you have it in a nutshell. The men who didn't get the plum; the men who did are offered pick and shovel work. That does not exactly dovetail with the promises made by the leader of the Government, when fighting for power in 1919. Neither do many others.

Ave Atque Vale.

When the s.s. Rosalind sails tomorrow she will take from our shores Rev. D. B. Hemmeon and we shall be the poorer in thought and leadership by his departure. For seven years he has helped to mould thought and direct conduct in this community, and has left the impression of his personality deep within our life. Gifted with a mind of keen judicial discernment, and trained to the exercise of his fine faculties, he has been a potent influence in the solution of many of our problems. What a fine blending of courage and fact is required to fit a man for leadership, no matter how great his talents or his training may be. Courage and tact—these have been outstanding traits in Mr. Hemmeon's life amongst us. How rare are these great qualities among those upon whom leadership is thrust!

Legislative Council.

THURSDAY, July 14th.
The House opened at 4 p.m. but the sitting was brief. The third reading of the Road Commission Bill was passed and it was sent to the Lower House with an amendment. The Committee state of the Bill to indemnify the St. John's Municipal Council for acts done in connection with recent public works was deferred. The House went into the Bill entitled, An Act representing the extension of the Railway system of the Colony. Hon. Mr. Milley in the chair. Hon. W. Shee in moving the first section explained that it was to indemnify the Government for the building of the Argenteo railroad at St. Patrick's. Mr. McGrath pointed out that in the last clause of the Bill there occurred the words: "The said Commission," but that nowhere else in the Bill was there any reference to any "Commission," and he said it would be necessary to have certain corrections made in the Bill to give effect to what he supposed was the intention, namely to legalize the acts done by the Railway Commission. He also suggested that any indemnity given should only be for acts that were legal. Mr. Shee agreed and moved that the Committee rise until he could get the necessary changes made. The Bill respecting the Delinquent Children was then put through a second reading after brief speeches from Messrs. Shee and McGrath supporting. The House then adjourned until Tuesday next.

The parade held last night by the C. L. B. Cadets was fairly well attended. The parade was held at 8.30 p.m. and after considerable correspondence with various gentlemen of the Executive, received an intimation from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, through the Secretary, that his application could not be considered, as "an appointment was made to the station for which you applied a week ago." The irony of the situation, according to our correspondent is "that he went over and did his bit, while the man who got the job of light-keeper stayed home." And there you have it in a nutshell. TO-NIGHT'S GAMES.

At 7 o'clock at the Shamrock Grounds (next to St. George's) the four baseball teams will go to the top in the drive for the Killarney Cup. The first bout will be between the Cubs and C.E.L., and fans are eagerly looking forward to this match as it will test their strength in the big league game on Tuesday night. The second event will be between the C.E.L. and S.L.S., in which the former hope to have their revenge on last night's whaling. As each game will consist of five innings only, it will be an interesting and exciting evening for those who attend. Admission will be 10 cents, which will go toward the Garden Party funds.

IRISH VICTORIOUS LAST NIGHT.

Hardly had the Institute had time to recover from the defeat which they suffered them by the Lions, than the R.I.S. under the leadership of the only Richard McGrath, sailed to the aid of the team, and made them bite the dust to the tune of 13 runs to 2. There was a large attendance and the game was well divided in their sympathies. The Irishmen started hostilities and before their tails could be caught they had 3 tallies to their credit, following it up by another in the third, 3 more in the fifth, seventh and eighth. It was not until the fourth inning that the Institute boys succeeded in scoring. They had a great game in the 6th of doing something good, with two men on the bases and one out, but through over anxiety to swat the pill O'Leary tricked the batters and they were moved in in the 1-2-3 order. Churchill in excellent form, but is not getting the support that his efforts deserve. Overthrows were prolific, and points to a great extent, which were made against them. It is quite evident that the great A. Harvey must necessarily don the uniform himself in his presence appears to have a very strong effect on the maroon-and-ives.

Bishop's Visit to Curling.

(Western Star, July 13.)

The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, who is making a visitation of the West Coast and Labrador, arrived in St. John's on Friday morning, July 11, accompanied by his chaplain Rev. Canon Bunting, who is on his way to the various parishes, and a large number of citizens assembled at the station to extend to His Lordship a very warm welcome on this his first visit to the Parish of Bay of Islands since his consecration. The Episcopal parishes met at the train by the Rector and Churchwardens, who accompanied them to the Rectory. A number of appropriate selections were read by the Canon, which were very much appreciated. A magnificent arch had been erected for the main gate leading to the Rectory, and the Bishop, at 10 o'clock the church of St. Mary the Virgin of beautiful gothic structure was thronged with people, when His Lordship, accompanied by the Rector and Churchwardens, entered the church. A magnificent altar was placed in the nave, and the Bishop, in a metal case covered with velvet, signed by representatives of the Anglican congregations of Bay of Islands, to which Bishop White made a visit on his recent tour.

Confirmation followed, at which the Bishop preached, dealing principally with the subject of Confirmation. Confirmation at John's Beach, Saturday morning, the Episcopal confirmation was celebrated by the Rector and Churchwardens, joined by the Rector and Churchwardens, proceeded to John's Beach, where at 11 a.m. Confirmation was administered to 25 persons. As the same came to anchor the inhabitants of that part of the parish of the beach and extended a most cordial welcome to their Bishop. A very pretty arch had been erected for the entrance to the church grounds, and the service of Confirmation, which was served in the school, where the young ladies of the parish were given every attention to the needs of the summer.

At Melville's.

The Bishop and his entourage were met at Melville's, where similar manifestations of welcome were exhibited. At 2.30 p.m. a service of Confirmation was administered to 10 persons. This was followed at three o'clock by His Lordship administering the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation to candidates. Quite a number of people, including some of the candidates, motored from Middle Arm, and the school chapel which had been very tastefully decorated for the occasion, was filled to its utmost capacity.

Confirmation and Confirmation at Curling.

At 10.45 Sunday morning the Bishop celebrated and set apart an addition to the cemetery at Curling, the petition of the people being read by Mr. N. Bagg, C.W., after which His Lordship celebrated Holy Communion. St. Mary's Church, and preached the Gospel for the day. At 3 p.m. confirmation was administered to 108 candidates. The Bishop's addresses on the different services were very interesting and instructive and were listened to with rapt attention by the large concourse of people, which gathered for the sacred office on each occasion.

Yesterday morning Bishop White, accompanied by his chaplain and the Rector of the Parish, left for Leamington by the s.s. George. The Bishop during the episcopal visitation has been very deeply impressed with what he has seen and appreciated the cordial welcome extended everywhere.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

CROWDS GREET DE VALERA.
 LONDON, July 15.
 Eamonn De Valera, Irish Republican leader, arrived at No. 10 Downing Street at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon for his conference with Mr. Lloyd George set for that hour. The Premier was waiting for him and their conversations over the peace question were begun immediately. Despite the drizzling rain, a great crowd had gathered shortly after Mr. De Valera entered the Premier's house. The crowd knelt in Whitehall and began to recite the rosary. The Irish Republican leader drove directly from his hotel in Buckingham Palace Road to Downing Street in a motor car. He was accompanied by Art O'Brien, President of the Gaelic League in London, and R. C. Barton, a member of the Irish delegation. As Mr. De Valera's automobile drove along Whitehall and turned into Downing Street, the great crowd broke into cheering intermingled with Sinn Fein yells, some in Gaelic. De Valera walked directly into the Premier's house. Mr. Lloyd George, accompanied by Sir Maurice Hankey, Secretary to the Committee of Imperial Defence, had previously arrived. Sir Hamar Greenwood and Austin Chamberlain arrived shortly after them but since it had been announced that the conversation between Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. De Valera was to be private, it was assumed that they were merely on hand in case the conferees wished to call them in.

Reids Buy C. B. Coal Mine.

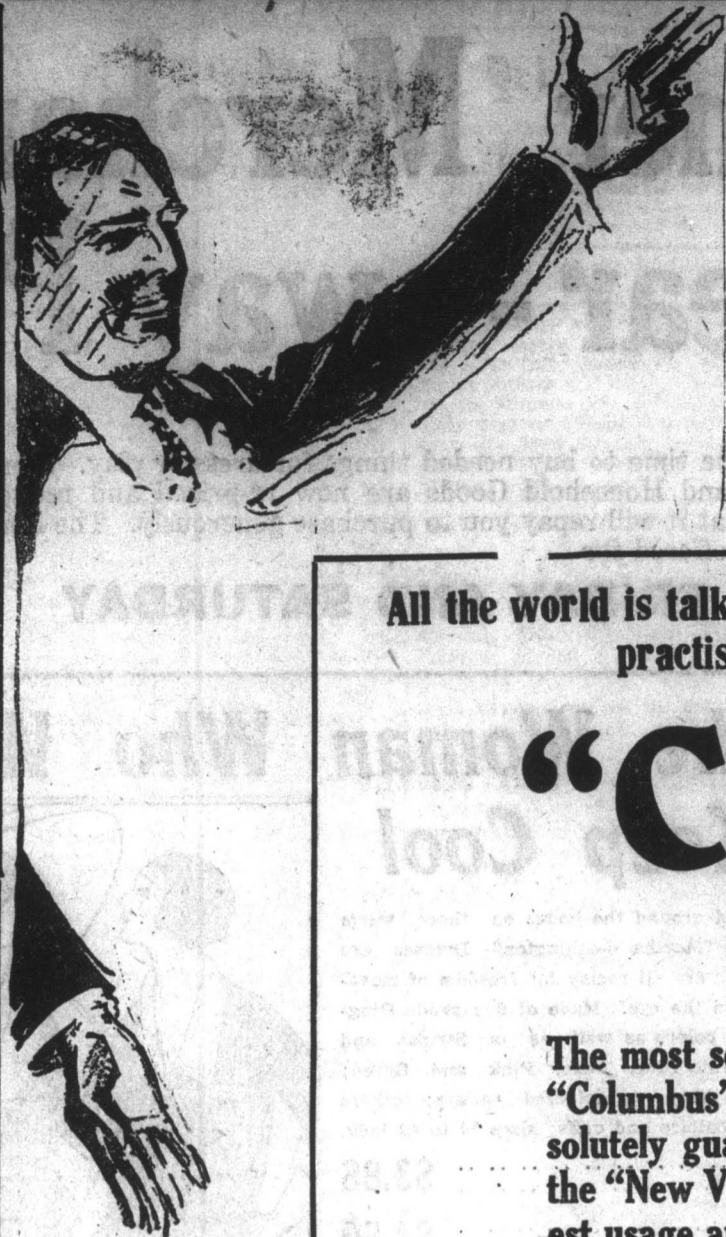

The Hiawatha Coal Mine, owned by V. J. Caviechi of Halifax, and Glace Bay interests, has been sold to the Reid-Newfoundland Company, who will begin to operate it for their own use in the near future. It is understood that the price paid for the mine was in the vicinity of a quarter of a million dollars.
 The Hiawatha mine was purchased over a year ago by Mr. Caviechi and associates from J. H. Emmett of Halifax for a price in the vicinity of $30,000. The mine when purchased, however, was filled with water, and the main shaft fallen in and since its purchase many thousands of dollars have been spent in its development. Machinery for the extraction of coal was installed and many improvements were made about the surface property as well for the improvement of coal shipping facilities.
 Under the management of Vincent McFadden considerable headway has already been made in cutting a channel through False Bay Beach and a wharf has been constructed. About 5,000 tons had been taken from the mine when the owners closed it recently owing to poor market conditions.
 The Reid-Newfoundland Company will operate the Hiawatha mine for their own use and principally for the supplying of coal for the railway and the Reid steamship lines. It has not yet been learned who will be in charge of the mine for the new owners.—Sydney Post, July 12.

Insects That Snare Birds
 It seems incredible that insects should trap and kill birds. Nevertheless, there is a spider which snags birds, and not flies, to stop into his paragon. He is a very beautiful fellow with slate-colored back and breast of scarlet and gold, and in his home in the mountains of Ceylon he spins his wide yellow web.
 The cords of the web are very strong. When a fat lizard strays into the net, or a bird alights upon it, the spider rapidly winds his threads about his victim, which he binds and chokes. In the jungle are often seen skeletons of small birds which have been caught in the deadly yellow web.
 Crepe dresses have matching tringe from hips to hem.

Another House Resolved to Watch
 The Railway House and some of its members, Sir Michael Smith and Sir John Crowe, concluded yesterday that they could not find fault with the breach of the Government's contract in a manner which rendered the House had read a first time.

Sir Michael Smith and Sir John Crowe, in their messages of the 14th and 15th inst., and Sir John Crowe's messages and that of Sir Michael Smith.

The House resolved to watch the matter.

Sir Michael Smith, in his message of the 14th inst., stated that the Railway House had read a first time a bill for the purpose of amending the Railway Act, 1917, and that the bill was intended to give effect to the recommendations of the Committee of Enquiry into the Railway Accounts, 1917.

Sir Michael Smith also stated that the bill was intended to give effect to the recommendations of the Committee of Enquiry into the Railway Accounts, 1917, and that the bill was intended to give effect to the recommendations of the Committee of Enquiry into the Railway Accounts, 1917.

Another Midnight Session

House in Committee on Railway Resolutions—Mr. Coaker, Chairman of Commission Did Not Watch Expenditure.

The Railway Resolutions were dealt with at yesterday's session of the House and some startling facts were made known by various Opposition members. Sir Michael Cashin's brilliant address of the afternoon could not be concluded yesterday as, unfortunately, he could not find it possible to be present at the night session. Mr. Sullivan and Sir John Crosbie, however, filled the breach valiantly and castigated the Government's conduct of railway affairs in a manner which caused the "trembled financiers" to squirm. After the House had met, at the usual hour, the Exportation of Timber Bill was read a first time.

Sir Michael Cashin returned the messages of Trade Commissioner Smith and told the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that he wanted all the messages and that they must also be read.

The House resolved into Committee of the Whole on the Railway Resolutions.

Sir Michael Cashin took up the remainder of the afternoon session with a brilliant address on the Government's Railway policy which he will probably continue to-day. He quoted from the report of the Prime Minister's speech of last year on Railway matters as published in the Daily Star of July 9th, 1920. The present situation, he said, was deplorable but was only to be expected from a Government such as this one, which had proved itself utterly incapable of dealing with any matters of importance. Sir Michael read the headline to the report of the Prime Minister's speech previously mentioned. It was "Premier Squires hammers Reid Newfoundland Co. unmercifully." "The Railway policy of last year consisted of a loan of $1,000,000 to the Reid's to be repaid with interest. It also called for the appointment of a commission to supervise the expenditure of the money loaned. This commission was to have consisted of seven members, four of whom would represent the Government. Sir Michael asked the Prime Minister if that $1,000,000 was charged to the Reid Newfoundland Co. and was told that such expenditure as was made on capital account had been charged up to the company.

Sir Michael then enquired about the interest and was informed that this also had been charged to Reid's account. Sir Michael stated that the Government had charged up the amount at the Treasury Office but had not notified Reid's that they owed the money. No attempt had been made by the Government to unravel the railway mystery which was now before the House. $2,500,000 had been spent and yet another $1,500,000 was asked for to go on with the Railway. He would not say it was not necessary. Under existing conditions somebody had to run the Railway somehow. If the Reid Newfoundland Company had not got the money, it was the Government's policy to run the Railway, whilst they had money, and when there was none left they would throw up both the Railway and the Government. He asked the "Minister of Railways," (a title which seems to suit Mr. Coaker exceedingly well), questions concerning the appointment of the Railway Commission and was told that only five men had been appointed, two only of whom represented the government.

These were Mr. Coaker, and the Government Engineer, Mr. T. A. Hall. The Reid's had three representatives, Messrs. H. D. Reid, R. G. Reid, and J. P. Powell.

Sir M. P. Cashin—How did you watch expenditure?

Mr. Coaker—I didn't watch it at all.

Sir M. P. Cashin—What we thought you were the watch dog looking out for the rights of the underdogs. But who did watch?

Mr. Coaker—Mr. Hall.

As regards the expenditure of the $1,000,000, Sir Michael could only come to one conclusion, that Mr. Hall was the only member of the Commission who supervised it. Mr. Coaker was journeying abroad and the Company's representatives could not have been expected to supervise the expenditure in the Government's interests. Dealing with the improvements embodied in the Railway policy of last year, Sir Michael said that none of them have been carried out. He had been told that Mr. Coaker was a physical wreck. He sympathized with him and with the country and the Government which let the Minister make a financial wreck of the Colony. It had been heart-breaking to hear the Prime Minister on Railway matters on Tuesday. On top of his denouncement of the Reid's as published in the "Star," the Prime Minister handed out $2,000,000 to them. Under Government management $153,000 had been spent to keep part of the road open during the winter so that a Government supporter would get his planks carried. The Prime Minister and his Government must be afflicted with some kind of disease to cause them to put up with the treatment his people were getting. Not a word had been told how the $2,000,000 had been spent. Still the people put up with it. There was not even any sentiment in the city of St. John's. Sir Michael then noticed that there was no quorum and called the Speaker's attention to it.

The members of the Government returned to the House in answer to summons by the Speaker. Sir Michael let loose on them for the indifference they showed to their country's interests by leaving their seats and going in the rooms to smoke their pipes at a time when a matter of a million and a half dollar gift was being discussed. For 4 months said Sir Michael the House has been in session, and practically no business of importance has been transacted. The Government members in great part did not care so long as they got their mess of potato. Some of these members came to this House as champions of the "underdogs," but now that their seasonal pay has been raised from $200 to $1000 they are content to let everything else drift.

Reading that part of the Commission's report, dealing with the Company's failure to make the Railway pay, Sir Michael said that Mr. Coaker had also made a miserable failure at the business, though no doubt he did his best. He was sorry for him as he sat in his seat taking his medicine.

Mr. Coaker—"Could you do better?"

Sir Michael—"Yes I could, but the people preferred you to manage the affairs of the country and now they are saddled with a burden of 10 million dollars for their choice. Where you are going to get this 1 1/2 million dollars for the Railroad is still a mystery. It certainly will not come from the Revenue of next year. That will bring only 9 or 10 millions, which will not cover the estimates. You can get another loan as you did the last, when you submitted a false statement showing a surplus of 1 1/2 millions. Will the country then have to go insolvent? We discuss this Railway expenditure as if the country had unlimited means. We are in a mess of the worst kind. Is that not so Mr. Chairman? Did you not say so Mr. Coaker? Our country will suffer long for the mismanagement of the present Government. Personally it will be no worse for me than any other man, but when I consider that this is my native land I cannot stand without raising my voice in protest. The mark put on the country by the present administration is RUIN. After two years of being in power not one measure of benefit to the country has resulted."

The Prime Minister at this juncture came into the Chamber and excused himself saying that he was absent seeking important information from the Finance Department.

Sir Michael, directing his remarks to the Premier, said when he handed you the Government there was 4 million dollars of a surplus, and what have you done with it. During the past 12 months you have expended 6 millions of dollars, and have added 2 million dollars yearly to expenditure. The country is looking in vain to you to keep her off the rocks, but you are not troubling. You asked for a suspension of the rules of the House three weeks ago so as to rush the business of the country knowing well that the Railway problem had to be considered. Sir George Bury came here and took from the colony 7 or 8 thousand dollars for a report on this matter, which he manufactured from the report written by Mr. T. Hall. This man was brought here for a blind and he left behind him only two sheets of fool's cap. Addressing Mr. Coaker he asked, did his suggestion in the commissions report to close down the Railroad mean only camouflage and what was meant by the statement that 50% ought to be allowed for the padding of account as made out by the Reid's. He offered to sit down if Mr. Coaker would explain these matters. It was not fair to say that the Reid's padded their statement, when they showed a loss of 1 1/2 millions on operation, when Mr. Coaker lost 2 million on the same transaction, unless he too padded.

Mr. Coaker left the House but when he came back Sir Michael said to him, you beat the Prime Minister when you took the Chairmanship of the Railway Commission.

Mr. Coaker—"I did not want to be Chairman."

Sir Michael—"While you were on that commission was any of your propositions turned down?"

Mr. Coaker—"No."

Sir Michael—"You were boss of the whole outfit. You refer in your report to new freight sheds at St. John's. Have any plans been prepared?"

Mr. Coaker—"I assume they have."

Sir Michael—"Are they to be seen? Will you table their to-morrow?"

Mr. Coaker—"Probably I can."

Sir Michael—"Did I understand that Sir George Bury said in his report that the rails were good for the next 5 years?"

Mr. Coaker—"Yes!"

Sir Michael—"How then do you justify the commissions report on this matter?"

Mr. Coaker—"I do not know."

Sir Michael—"I understand that men are now putting props under the railway bridges so that they will be safe for the new engines to pass over."

Mr. Coaker—"I do not admit that we are only strengthening the bridges."

Sir Michael—"Did Sir George Bury know the condition of these bridges when he made his report?"

Mr. Coaker—"I do not know."

Sir Michael—"You do know. You are jeopardising the lives of passengers with those heavy engines going over bridges that were not built to bear their weight and that was my reason for saying a few days ago that the railroad should be barred off. Is it not true that the engines slow down when crossing some of those bridges?"

Mr. Coaker—"No!"

Sir Michael—"You are not telling the truth. The facts have been reported to the Government and to you."

Mr. Pitt the auditor who is receiving a salary of $400 per month was referred to as was also Messrs. Joyce, Powell and Graham, who had been slurred by having people from outside the country, whose credentials are not known, placed over their heads. The coal boring exploits of the Railway Commission were shown up in their true colors by Sir Michael. A glaring instance of what was being done was that while the motor trucks were supposed to be hauling coal from the mines over 100 pairs of snow shoes were ordered for the "miners." It sounds ridiculous, said Sir Michael, but it is true nevertheless. Sir Michael had not concluded his speech when recess was taken for tea.

NIGHT SESSION.

After recess, in the unavoidable absence of Sir Michael Cashin the Railway Resolutions were dealt with by Mr. M. S. Sullivan in a very convincing manner. He said that he did not expect the Government to be influenced by his remarks, but at the same time its members could not refute the statements he would make. As far as he was concerned it would be a renunciation of duty to have a further burden of 1 1/2 million of dollars placed on the people without his offering a protest. He did not intend to embarrass the Government and the criticisms he would make were done with the best of intentions, and he invited the members of the Government to question him on any statements of his that they had a doubt about. He wished to impress upon the House that this vote to the Reid Company was an extra burden of $30,000 on every family in Newfoundland and before giving their consent to such a hardship he advised them to thoroughly consider what they were doing. As to the report of Sir George Bury, Mr. Sullivan said that there was nothing in it that was not already known and certainly not worth $7,500 he had been paid for it plus $500 for travelling expenses. In the resolutions of the Prime Minister the country expected that reason would be given for the handing over to the Reid Co. of 1 1/2 millions of dollars to help out an enterprise that they were operating under an agreement which would not expire for the next twenty years. It is true, said Mr. Sullivan, the Prime Minister stated that the amount was necessary to meet loss of operating for 1921-22, but he submitted no statement showing how this loss

War Memorial Executive Meeting.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Newfoundland War Memorial was held yesterday afternoon in the Board of Trade and was well attended.

The treasurer's report showed that $9,384.40 had been banked to date and further promises of subscriptions amounting to $2,230 had been received. The total amount, however, had been subscribed by less than one thousand people.

It was the wish of the meeting that everyone in Newfoundland should subscribe—however small—to the Newfoundland Memorial and with this object in view a Committee was appointed with Miss Mary McKay as Convenor, to place books of Share Certificates in all places of business and with the different Clubs and Societies. Every subscriber of one dollar or more will be entitled to a share or shares in "The Newfoundland War Memorial, Unlimited," which guarantees its shareholders "a suitable monument to be erected in St. John's in Memory of their countrymen who gave up their lives in the Great War in the cause of Freedom and Humanity." Smaller subscriptions from persons who cannot afford a dollar will also be received as it is the wish of the Executive to have nobody from having an interest in the Newfoundland Memorial.

A Committee to interest Outport subscribers has been arranged consisting of Lady Crosbie, Mr. D. M. Baird and Mr. W. H. Jackman. It is intended to add to this Committee prominent residents of the different Outports. A Committee on Design and Location has also been appointed with Mr. Frank Bradshaw as Convenor, and this Committee is at present collecting all the information on War Memorials that is available from prominent monumental architects in England, Canada and the United States.

It was arranged that the Chairman and Secretary should interview the heads of the different denominations asking them to bring the matter of the War Memorial before the people in their charge.

It was decided to defer the publication of a list of Shareholders in the "Newfoundland War Memorial Unlimited" until the subscription list had been finally closed. As an impression seems to have gotten abroad that the Executive were aiming at an objective of Ten thousand dollars it is desirable to state that this is not the case. The subscription list will be kept open as long as possible and the larger the amount that is received voluntarily, the more handsome a Memorial it is going to be possible to erect. Subscriptions are invited from every Newfoundlanders who has not yet subscribed and may be sent either Mr. R. G. Rendell, Mr. P. E. Outerbridge or given direct to any authorized collector holding one of the War Memorial Certificate books.

DRIVEN BY CHAUFFEUR.—In a reporter's note of a collision between a motor and a street car yesterday, an omission was inadvertently made. Mr. Harvey of Reids was a passenger in the auto, the machine being driven by his chauffeur, Mr. Bownton.

Prospero's Passengers.

S.S. Prospero sailed for the northward at 3.30 p.m. yesterday, taking a small freight and the following passengers in saloon: Messrs. Moore (2), Jennings, H. Watson, Scammell, L. White, P. Belvidere Flower Festival.

The usual garden party opens after dinner and patrons are more or less tired out by tea time. At the Floral Festival to be held next Tuesday at Belvedere, the hours are 4.30 to 8.30, making it very inviting for business people generally, and arrangements are being made whereby nicely-served home teas will be awaiting the 6 o'clock arrivals. For the young folks there are some new games, and for the pleasure of all, the full C.C.C. band will discourse the latest music, by kind consent of Lieut.-Col. Conroy. Ice cream, candy and special souveniers will offer for sale at nominal prices, and unless the weather man is out of sorts, a really pleasant afternoon awaits you.—adv.

With the Rod.

Godden Tilley of Sandy Point spent a few days whipping the pools of Robinson's River and caught nine salmon.

Dr. Wetherell, of Indiana, and F. H. Lathrop of Birmingham, Ala., landed thirty-three salmon during the past ten days, from the pools of the Robinson's River, weights ranging from five to eighteen pounds. They are guests at the Shears Hotel.

J. B. Orr lost a very fine salmon at Harry's Brook recently. After playing with the fish nearly two hours he managed to get the gaff into it, but the fish was still too much for the gaff, which it straightened out and got clear. He estimates the salmon was forty pounds or more.—Western Star.

Another Midnight Session.

should occur. It was necessary that the details of this transaction should be known before voting such an immense sum. If the expenditure had to be made and there was no other way out, then the members of the Government should safeguard that money and see that it was expended on the actual operation of the railroad. Last year when prices were at their zenith there was a deficit of $1,600,000, and why should the deficit be 1½ millions this year, with the prices of everything declining even the price of labor. Last year we had a daily service and trains were operating on all branches. Under the new agreement there is to be only half this service and at least the cost of operating next year should be lessened by at least 25%. For the compensation to take over the railway was a scandal. It was not authorized by this Legislature. This House authorized an expenditure on certain specific railway works, but some of them have not been performed. The members on the other side of the House are surely not convinced that this was a proper procedure. Continuing Mr. Sullivan asked in the event of a deficit next year what could be expected from the railway people, and in reply to his own question read the following answer to the same question tabled by the Prime Minister: "The Reid Ntd. Co. assured the Government that through their bankers they would be able to handle any deficit over 1½ million." Are we justified in placing this burden on the people to relieve a great corporation from a contract which they are legally bound to carry out. Mr. Sullivan referred to the extravagance of the Government on the one hand, and the policy of cutting down the Civil Service salaries on the other hand, and in their eagerness to economize they had dismissed an official of 16 years standing on this score. Speaking again on the railway, he said that there was a great possibility of over-charging under the new agreement, and unless we kept strict watch it would be easy to show a loss of 1½ millions. Last year improvements amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars were charged to operating expenses. Another point, said Mr. Sullivan, is that in the event of the sum being voted, the Government should have some control of the wages of the employees. In the resolutions of the Argentina or Placencia branch railways. As the resolutions stand there was no incentive, and he suggested that if the company is to be guaranteed against loss, all the employees should be offered a bonus on the amount that their good management would save. He did not think that the Government would be justified at the present juncture to authorize heavy expenses on capital account. Reading a portion of the Commission's report, Mr. Sullivan asked the Chairman of the Commission if when he wrote the report did he realize that the 1½ millions was to be given as a subsidy.

Mr. Coaker—"No we did not."

Mr. Sullivan—"I would like to know about this $100,000 in the Reports."

Mr. Coaker—"We owed the Reid Co. certain sums and they were deducted."

Mr. Sullivan—"So you had a contra account?"

Mr. Coaker—"I suppose."

Mr. Sullivan—"There are a number of important accounts of which we will have to get further information. We would like to know who will get the profits in the event of the railway paying. Something like that may happen, and is the agreement so one-sided that Government guarantees all the losses and all the profits are to go to the Reids. It may be asked are the steamers to be operated under the railway agreement."

Mr. Coaker—"Steamers this coming year are distinct from the Railroad."

Mr. Sullivan—"All the more reason for approaching this new control with caution." He next dealt with some of the increased expenditures of operation under Government control as compared with the cost of Reid operating expenses. In this connection he submitted the pay roll account increased by $445,000 in one year.

Mr. Coaker—"This must have been paid out for extra help."

Mr. Sullivan—"Did you, sir, get paid?"

Prime Minister.—"The employees received increases of from 10 to 15%."

Mr. Sullivan—"This decrease did not come into effect until 6 months after the Commission took control."

Mr. Sullivan—"Before concluding Mr. Sullivan made reference to the trestle at the Northeast of Placencia, which, being built over 25 years ago, was not now in the condition for the safe passage of heavy traffic."

Sir John Crosbie before dealing with the Railway resolutions, asked the Prime Minister how he is going to obtain the money to pay the Reids for operating expenses. He gave some interesting figures regarding our revenue, and said that Reids had better arrange with their banker about the 1½ millions before signing the contract. The figures submitted by him showed that the Government had absolutely no chance of getting the revenue they anticipated. Sir John said he did not believe that inflated prices increased the revenue as much as many people claimed, and he quoted figures of the increased amounts of foodstuffs which were imported during the 1919-20 fiscal year. Showing where the loss of revenue will occur for the coming year, Sir John said that very little could be expected from duties on luxuries, as under present conditions the people could barely supply themselves with necessities. Whilst the war was on money had been plentiful and a great deal was spent on luxuries which formerly were done without. This statement was proved by figures which Sir John quoted, of goods, under the heading of luxuries, imported between 1914 and 1920. Amongst these articles were china, furniture, confectionery, etc. The value of importation of one of these articles increased from $55,000 in 1914 to $420,000 in 1920. Dry goods jumped from $200,000 in 1914 to $369,000 in 1919. So Groceries jumped from $122,000 in 1914 to $560,000 in 1919-20. After studying the revenue these years he was convinced that it was not wholly derived from inflated costs, but from the quantity of goods imported. He thought the quantity would drop this year to an alarming extent, especially in automobiles, perfumes, confectionery, etc. Necessities only would be imported. He expected our total trade for this year would amount to about $2,000,000, made up as follows:—1½ million quintals of fish at the optimistic price of $3.00 per quintal, $4,000,000 in miscellaneous goods, or $12,000,000 as total exports and $20,000,000 importations. In years when our total trade was thirty millions we used to get a revenue of $3,600,000, and when the Sales and Super Taxes are added to this, a total of about $5,000,000 will be the utmost for the current year. The Budget estimated a revenue of $3,500,000, but it was a practical impossibility to get within three million dollars of that estimate. Where did the Prime Minister expect to get the $1,500,000 for Reids? He had said he would get it from the $6,000,000 loan. Where then was the rest of the money coming from? Money for the Badger Road, fishery supplies, pit props and other requirements? Nobody believed that the Government would get half of it.

Sir John spoke for several minutes longer but it is impossible to-day to give a detailed report. One startling statement he made was that Mr. Coaker had told him when crossing from Europe on the "Adriatic" that he saw nothing but Confederation before this country. During Sir John's speech Mr. Coaker said that if he could be shown that the railway might be run this year with a Government subsidy of $500,000, he would move his seat to the centre of the House.

After Sir John had concluded, the Woman's Suffrage Bill was again considered in Committee after which the House rose until 3 p.m. to-day.

Clergyman's Opinion of Our Prohibition Law.

(Toronto Mail and Empire, July 8.) A bottle a week, a bottle every three months or no bottle at all—that is the question which is just now agitating the minds of Newfoundlanders, according to Rev. S. W. Dean, head of the financial department of the Methodist Church in Canada, who has returned to Toronto after an extensive tour through the Maritime Provinces. Chatting with a representative of The Mail and Empire yesterday, Mr. Dean discussed the temperance situation in the island.

Although Newfoundland has had a prohibitory law for some time there has been considerable difficulty in its enforcement. Two factors have increased the difficulty, the indifference of the Government officials appointed to administer the Act, and the near impossibility of preventing smuggling owing to the immense extent and inaccessibility of the coast line. The result has been a considerable dissatisfaction.

Then again, as Mr. Dean pointed out, a big percentage of the Islanders still hold to the opinion that liquor is the one cure-all for the ills of humanity, and as such must be accessible to the afflicted. This latter feeling has resulted in two alternative proposals now before the Legislature. The one put forward by the moderate temperance party is that in case of sickness the patient be allowed one bottle of whiskey every three months, with two dozen bottles of beer during the same period. The other alternative, fostered by the party which corresponds with Ontario's Liberty League, would grant the same dose, but would reduce the time limit to one week. On the other hand, the Methodist Conference recently put itself on record as favoring more stringent enforcement of the present Act with no amendments, and appointed a delegation to put their views before the House.

Mr. Dean was of the opinion that unless there was some change in the Government one or other of the amendments would go through.

Tone of Optimism.

In spite of the serious depression which has made itself felt in the island, the general atmosphere in the business world was one of optimism. One of the difficulties was the inability to market all of last year's fish catch, a considerable proportion being still unsold. To make matters worse from the standpoint of the fishing communities, prices have sunk to at least 50 per cent. below the level of last year. Where codfish was selling for 17c. and 18c. a pound, this year's top price for prime stuff was only 8c.

This year's salmon catch has been one of the best in recent years, stated Mr. Dean, a factor which, with the prospect of a very large codfish catch, is largely responsible for renewed optimism.

Wedding Bells.

A wedding of social interest took place on Tuesday, July 12th, when Dallas Victoria, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Baird became the wife of Dr. J. Bartram O'Reilly, Rt. Rev. Monsignor McDermott officiating after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Bryn Maur. The bride looked charming in her wedding dress of cream lace over satin. A court train of gold brocade was fastened on the shoulders with pearl clasps and had three feathers tied with gold ribbon on one corner. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley, white carnations and sweet peas. Miss Helen Anderson acted as bridesmaid wearing a gown of primrose taffeta and hat of brown tulle. The train was carried by the bride's small niece and nephew, Miss Margaret and Master James Baird. Mr. Jack Peterson was the best man.

Make Presentation to Rev. A. T. Talk.

On hearing of the removal of Rev. A. T. Talk from Burin Parish to another part of God's Vineyard, the members of the C.E.W.A. of St. Lawrence met in the school-room on July 10th (a special meeting for the purpose) and the Rector was invited, and presented with an address, accompanied by a purse, and a cassock, as a token of respect and esteem, for the many and valuable services rendered to them during his thirteen years of labor for the church in the parish. The following is a copy of the address:

To Rev. A. T. Talk, Rector of Burin Parish.

We, the officers of the C.E.W.A. on behalf of the members of our organization, do extend to you as Spiritual Director, our appreciation of the many services rendered us during your stay amongst us. We record with deep regret our loss in your removal from us, and we trust that success and happiness will ever follow you and yours in your new parish.

We are, yours truly,
E. M. COOK, President.
D. OTTS, Vice-President.
M. BECK, Treasurer.
L. REEVES, Secretary.

Pursuant to reading of address by the Secretary, the Rector made a suitable reply. He expressed his deep appreciation of their thoughtfulness and also the wish that he would like for the sisters to carry on the work so ably and capably begun by them, which paves the way for the extension of Christ's Kingdom upon earth. In closing, the Rector said it was always a source of pleasure to him to visit that section of his parish, which was very extensive, and the memory of the C.E.W.A. of St. Lawrence would long remain with him.

At the close of the meeting, the President on behalf of the Association wished the Rector God-speed and every success and hoped that his work in the new Parish would be more congenial for him. The C.E.W.A. of St. Lawrence wishes also to extend to Mrs. Talk their regret on her departure and that she may live long to enjoy many years of prosperity and comfort in her new home.

At 6.30 p.m., the Rector conducted his last service in St. Matthew's Church, St. Lawrence. He preached a very practical and forcible sermon on the text 1 Peter, v. verse 6. In the course of his sermon he pointed out the many ways in which the mighty hands of God worked for the salvation of man. He advised the congregation to put unbounded trust in Him who provides all for those who seek it faithfully, and he also implored his hearers to seek their livelihood in accordance with religious principles. After the sermon he expressed his regret to the congregation and wished that very soon a new rector would be appointed to carry on the work of the church of Christ in St. Lawrence. Sunday, July 10th, 1921, will be a day long to be remembered by the congregation of St. Matthew's. May God bless Rev. A. T. Talk and family in the prayer of the grateful—Omn.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DOES ANYONE EVER CONVINCE ANYONE ELSE.

Does anyone ever convince anyone else in an argument?

Sometimes, after I listen or join in an argument and see it end with each person as convinced of the rightness of his stand as at the beginning, I am a little above wonder. struck with the and with the further wonder—if there is any sense or sense in argument?

The Net Results.

Three times lately I have been one of a group of people gathered together for pleasant converse when some of the group got started on an interminable argument, and all pleasant converse was at an end while the battle raged. Once it was a religious argument as to whether prejudice against a certain sect was justified or not; again it was a political argument as to whether a certain great man was really great or not; the third time it was a League of Nations argument. The net results of these arguments, so far as I could judge, were these: The participants got quite worked up, and in one or two cases, disgruntled and almost abusive; the on-lookers were distinctly bored, and everyone remained of the same opinion still. Furthermore, as in the majority of arguments, many statements were made which one felt were made without authority or any real knowledge, but could not deny because one had no real knowledge oneself.

Would Be Few Arguments.

If people only argued about things they really knew a good deal about, how few arguments, comparatively, there would be! And if people only argued because they wanted to get at the truth, whether it was their truth or the other fellow's truth, how few arguments, comparatively, there would be.

I used to be a great believer in arguments because I considered them a form of mental gymnastics. Or perhaps a better comparison would be to some form of physical sport—you might say that arguments were mental lawn tennis. And, of course, arguments are good in that way and it is better to indulge in them than not to use the mind at all—although as in the case of physical exercise, it is not usually the fat witted, who need the exercise to keep in trim, who take it.

The Right Kind of Argument.

But to argue for the sake of getting at the truth, to be really interested in the other fellow's point of view and conscious of a willingness to be convinced if he is right rather than a determination to make a good showing at any cost, and to make no statements that haven't a basis in actual knowledge, is just as good exercise and much more intelligent.

It seems to me that it wouldn't be a bad resolution to make—not to join in any argument which one felt was not being conducted in that way. Better sit silent, smoke your pipe, read your book, or think your own thoughts. You'll really travel farther that way, even if you don't get a chance at the centre of the stage—which I think is one of the things the ordinary arguer subconsciously is reaching for.

THE LIVING WORLD.

Let all who will, sing "After Death." The sky is blue to-day. The blossoms everywhere about make sweet the breath of May. The dead have passed from pain and care; but here the living throng. Need beauty and the friendly smile to cheer their way along. And life is good and life is sweet as men are brave and true. And laughter lives and joy is born when kindly deeds they do.

I know there is a heaven to be, but let By lightening the loads of care which burden men on earth. And let me sing the living joys, the fragrant morning breeze. The roses jeweled fair with dew, the sunlight on the trees; Though after death come rest, and peace to every weary brow. There is a wealth of happiness for all who're living now.

So I would sing the living world, the world that now we see, With children playing in the sun and blossoms on the tree; And I would sing the friendly hearts which help us all to smile, The deeds of kindness everywhere which make the world worth while; And I would walk the ways of men, and wish them take and give. And learn with all the care and strife, that it is good to live.

Mansfield Ross Weds Miss Perry.

YARMOUTH, July 8.—The final curtain fell in the famous drama which has held this Province and Eastern Canada so tense for months past, and this town and County so prominently before the eyes of the public, took place this afternoon when the marriage of Eleanor Rogers, the youngest daughter of the late Captain George Henry Perry and Mrs. Clara Elizabeth Perry, to Mansfield Dupon Ross, was solemnized in Holy Trinity Church at four-thirty o'clock. The service was conducted by Rev. H. L. Haslam, rector of Holy Trinity Church and was witnessed by only the immediate families of the bride and groom. After the service the young couple returned to the Perry home on Argyle Street.

When Jews Marry Gentiles.

Jews have married into some of the most distinguished families in England and the United States. At least two American Jewesses have married into the English nobility: Daisy Leither, departed consort of Lord Curzon former viceroy of India and present head of the British foreign office, and Eleanor May Guggenheim, who recently became the bride of Viscount Stuart, scion of "lang sryn" Scottish royalty. Lady Curzon's brother, Joseph Leither, of "wheat crone" celebrity, also married a gentle. Dr. Borsky, a Bohemian Jew, ambassador from Czechoslovakia to the Italian court, recently was married to the daughter of President Masaryk of the new republic. Walter Damrosch, the New York orchestra conductor, is the husband of the daughter of James G. Blaine. Mary Antin, who has achieved such a signal success as a writer, is the wife of Prof. A. W. Graham of Columbia university. The eminent physician, Dr. Abraham Jacobi, married Mary Fudman, Rose Pastor, a Russian Jewess of remarkable gifts, is the wife of J. G. Phelps-Stokes, of the New York family of Millionaire aristocrats.

Morning frocks and simple afternoon dresses have elbow sleeves. Narrow silver ribbon is used to finish the edges of lace tunics. Bias stripes of taffeta are used in bindings on organdie dresses.

"KODAKERY"

If you want to keep lasting souvenirs of Summer and its pleasures you can best do so by "snapping" the events as they happen.

To do this you want a Camera, and if you want the best you want a "Kodak".

Kodaks of all grades and sizes can be obtained at the Kodak Store, and Tooton, the "Kodak" man, will be glad to advise you as to the best Camera for your particular needs.
