THE PEACE CONFERENCE AT THE HAGUE

THE HAGUE, June 22.—The eyes of the civilized world have for some time been fixed on The Hague, the scene of the Peace Conference. Hence the place of the assembly is of unusual interest just at the present time.

The Hague was not found entirely convenient for so large a gathering. There was hardly enough room for all the representatives in the great hall and the various committee rooms in which the multifarious details of the work of the conference had to be discussed.

their pointed turrets pierce into the air above the topmost carving of the central screen. Between them and beneath the rose window is a flight of stone steps with a small Gothic porch supported upon pillars which give the relief of their white coloring against the masonry.

Within the feeling of solidity and strength, of absolute fitness for its varied purposes of splendor or defense, of pompous ceremonial or of proud security, becomes yet more accentuated. The western porch opens straight into the Knights Hall, and this is the vast and nobly proportioned apartment which entertains the conference.

is covered in oak-panelling enriched with Gothic carvings. In such a setting the scheme of decoration is on a large and dignified scale and magnificently has it been carried out by the local authorities responsible in this instance. The coloring is rich but substantial and is chiefly obtained by the lavish use of porphyry. Eastern lapis lazuli and rugs upon the floor and walls in sombre but magnificent tints of crimson, blue and gold; and the enormous floor space available has enabled the architect to arrange with convenience and even beauty, for the benefit of two hundred and fifty representatives from nearly fifty nations.

IRISH HOMES RUINED BY RUTHLESS EVICTOR Many Families Ousted from Humble Cottages

COBK, June 22.—Evictions on the Leahy estate, at Killinacowan and Crevin, near Castlerea, Berkenham, were proceeded with yesterday, when about a dozen holdings were visited.

WOMEN LOSE THEIR HEADS At the sight of the hated evictors the women of the village lost their heads completely. With shrill cries in Irish and English, they rushed down on their lagging menfolk and told them what they thought of them for hanging back from the fight.

PHOTOGRAPHERS VICTIMS. Then occurred the most exciting incident. A party of villagers, about two dozen altogether, had climbed to the top of some rocks overhanging the houses where the evictions were taking place.

BILL MAY BLOCK PREMIER'S MOTION Resolution on House of Lords May be Dead Letter.

LONDON, June 2.—Doubt has suddenly arisen as to whether the Prime Minister's resolution against the House of Commons on June 24th. It is stated Lord Robert Cecil has given notice of his intention to introduce a bill in the House dealing with the power of the House of Lords to alter or reject a bill after it has passed the House of Commons.

JAMES J. HILL ON A FISHING TRIP IN CANADA

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 22.—James J. Hill, chairman of the Great Northern Railway, with a party of five or six friends, started last evening for Canada for the annual fishing trip which Mr. Hill has taken every year for a long time.

There will be a sacred concert in the Every Day Club hall tomorrow evening as usual.

UPHOLDS HONOR OF HIS COLONY Bond Has Impressed Sir Edward Grey With Intention.

Standard Says That Britain Has Gone Length of Considering Possibility of War.

LONDON, June 21.—The Standard gives prominence this morning to a story of the efforts of Sir Robert Bond, Premier of Newfoundland, to obtain agreement with the British Government that colony's attitude towards the United States on the fisheries question.

Frequent conferences between Sir Robert Bond, Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Secretary, and the Earl of Elgin, Secretary for the Colonies, are now closed. Sir Robert will sail for home on the steamer Virginia on June 21 without having accomplished all or nearly all that his government considers essential to the well-being and honor of the colony, but he has impressed the Foreign Office with Newfoundland's unchangeable determination to enforce her own laws unless those laws are abrogated by the only constitutional authority empowered to do so, namely the British Parliament.

WILL UPHOLD COLONY'S HONOR. Sir Robert has definitely refused on behalf of Newfoundland to be a party to an agreement between England and America, inconsistent with the colony's honor and dignity.

LOOKING FOR MINERALS IN PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

CHARLOTTETOWN, June 22.—Dr. Ellis, of Toronto, of the Dominion Geological survey, is visiting the province and in company with the lieutenant-governor goes down to Earmaciffe today to consult with the Earmaciffe Exploration Company.

RAILWAY WRECK REPORTED.

LITTLETON, Mass., June 22.—A report has just reached here that two trains on the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine were in collision three miles from here today. It is understood that no one is killed though several persons are reported injured.

THE RIOTS IN FRANCE.

ADGE, Department of Herald, France, June 22.—Six hundred men of the 17th infantry, who mutilated yesterday and marched to Besiers under arms returned to their barracks here today.

had already agreed in principle to a additional provision prohibiting Newfoundland from serving legal process upon its own citizens while aboard American vessels in Newfoundland waters is, says the Standard, incorrect.

PORTUGAL IS NOW HAVING TROUBLE People Up in Arms Against the Rulers.

Fighting Has Occurred in Which a Great Deal of Blood Has Been Shed—The Facts are Suppressed.

NEW YORK, June 22.—A Paris despatch to the Times today says that despatches received there last night from Lisbon by way of Madrid report that popular hatred of the system of government by decree instituted by Premier Franco after the dismissal of parliament in the beginning of May has had as its outcome a series of fighting between the troops and the people and much bloodshed.

When the dictator returned to Lisbon there was a furious riot outside the railway station. Cavalry charged the mob and infantry fired into it. The officers' commands were drowned by cries of "Death to the Dictator!"

A neighboring square was filled with killed and wounded laid out in rows. The principal fighting occurred under the windows of the hotel D'Angleterre. Several English visitors witnessed the struggle. It is said that the people fought for hours with sticks and stones against the soldiers who fired volleys.

Thursday was a day of mourning for the dead. All the newspapers appeared with deep black borders and on business offices and private houses flags were flying at half mast and windows were draped with crepe. Last night the troops were again firing on the people in the public squares. Most serious events are expected. The spirit of revolt is widespread. The censorship is strict.

MAKE IT EASY TO TELL HOW FAST AUTOS TRAVEL

French Company Offers a Patent Device To Assist the Police - Two Children Fell From Speeding Train.

Paris - June 21. - French newspapers are discussing with interest the several states on the continent to the Warner Instrument Company of Beloit, Wisconsin, for speedometers which might enable the local police to apprehend the owners of automobiles supposed to be violating the speed laws in the various localities. The Swiss authorities, for instance, have been very anxious to obtain from the American concern a giant auto-meter which tells the rate of speed at which the automobile is traveling and which can be read blocks away, the figures which register on the large machine being nearly a foot in height. It has been suggested that all automobiles ought to be forced by legislation to adopt these machines, and that it would be impossible for the owners of automobiles to misrepresent the rate of speed at which these machines are traveling. The French authorities however, the Warner concern the patents of these giant machines, and the Swiss Government has already granted the Warner Instrument Company to manufacture anything which might be regarded as a "spotter" by the automobileists. The French papers have been educated to believe that American manufacturers will handle anything provided there is money in it for them. Commenting upon this and the fact that the Americans have already surpassed the Europeans in the manufacture of automobiles and automobile appliances, the Parisian journal, "Le Poidis Lourd," says: "In regard to automobiles transportation the speed is the factor that controls the expense, and it is useful to limit it. In order to do this it is necessary to know the speed attained by the vehicle, allowing to judge the quality of its results and resistance. Knowing these two things, the speed and the distance run, the manufacturer can secure valuable information and important economic data. Modern science has supplied the surest device which will never fail. America's practical people have readily seen the necessity of such an instrument, the use of which is constantly increasing. While we have been sleeping we have let them get ahead of us, and we acknowledge they have out-run us in the manufacture of such instruments, and the American brand is ahead of any that we make. The Auto-Meter as built by the Warner Instrument Company even goes so far as to combine the Auto-Meter and the Cyclometer. The speed is recorded on a circular dial placed on the top case, on the side of the instrument is the Cyclometer which indicates the number of miles travelled. Truly wonderful has been the escape from death of two children who fell out of a train running in the North of France, and were little the worse for the adventure. A Madam Rivot was travelling to Arras with her four children when suddenly the door of the compartment flew open and Marcel, aged four, tumbled out on the line, soon followed by Emile, who is twelve. The poor mother who did not know how to set the alarm signal going was compelled to wait until Arras was reached to report the accident. The officials set off at once and met the two small boys tramping along together on the line in the direction of Arras. A goodly number of men, which picked them up and the mother's delight may be imagined when her little ones were brought to her safe and sound except for a few bruises. An employe nearly seventy years old, a widower, with two married daughters, has just been tried by the Seine Assize Court for the murder of a correspondent half a century old, and has been acquitted, rather a curious commentary on the protest which so many jurists are making against the proposed abolition of capital punishment. It is an old story. The two daughters and their husbands thinking that the old man was leading a lonely life looked out for an eligible wife for him, and their choice fell on the coquette, who appeared to have considered him a very good match. The couple were formally engaged last summer after meeting at a dejeuner given for the purpose of enabling them to become acquainted and all went well for several months, the bridegroom-elect being extremely generous in his presents to his betrothed. The trouble came when he suggested that she should take up her abode with him for a few weeks preceding their wedding. The coquette removed to his dwelling was bitterly cold and the fare their age there could be no propriety in this, but the old woman had hardly settled there when the disagreeable fact began to dawn upon her that the old employe was by no means as well off as she had been led to understand. The dwelling was bitterly cold and the fare was most frugal. Where was all of the money of which she had heard so much when she was asked to leave? She confessed that it had nearly all gone on the gifts which he had presented to her and that he had only a matter of $25 left. Here was a poor look-out she pondered. A man on the verge of seventy with no sympathy with the law and a property. She would have to support him in a few years. No, this would never do. After a residence of twelve days the coquette left his dwelling and went back to her own abode, sadder and wiser than when she came. But the old employe was in no mood to put up with this desertion. The presents had cost him a great deal of money, and he had heard that he had been tricked. Taking a revolver with him he proceeded to the shop of the coquette, who was lying in a back room, and after a lot of altercation in which she firmly declined to return to him, he discharged three shots at the poor woman and killed her. At the trial he said in his defence that he had been in a dream and had not realized what he was doing. His counsel backed him up by representing him as a poor old man for whom his children had wished to find a happy home but who had been bossily tricked. And as a result of all of this special pleading the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. In sympathy with England and the United States the price of flour and consequently the price of bread has gone up and will further rise here very shortly. For a wonder France at present is not self-sufficing in the production of wheat. By the end of the next three months, closing July 31st, next, the country will have consumed 25,000,000 hectolitres of wheat. The stock in hand to cover that period is 25,000,000 hectolitres. France will therefore have to purchase at least two million hectolitres from abroad. Proposals are made to seriously reduce temporarily the custom duty on imported wheat.

MERGER BILL MAY BE CAUSE OF SOME LENGTHY LITIGATION

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21. - Railroad officials here are reticent on the subject of the Massachusetts bill aimed at restraining the merger of the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Boston and Maine railroad systems. The general talk in railroad circles, however, indicates that the bill is considered as very radical and as going far beyond western legislation in its bearing on the powers of railroad corporations and their stockholders. The bill from the local railroad view point is regarded as the transaction. Secondly, First, its restraint of the powers of private stockholders to transfer their shares to other interests. Secondly, its possible class of the bill, if it should become law, with rights and powers of the Boston and Maine corporation under legislation of Maine and New Hampshire. The bill as a law is regarded as pretty certain to raise grave constitutional and interstate questions not likely to be settled until after much litigation. An interesting question which has also arisen in the hearing of the Boston and Maine merger and the possible Massachusetts legislation on the new issue of New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad stock. The directors of the New Haven Company several months ago voted to issue new stock in the ratio, as was understood, of one new share to each four shares outstanding. But the issue, then intended for announcement in July, was subsequently deferred until next autumn. Boston and Maine stockholders exchanging their shares for those of the New Haven corporation would share in the new stock of the latter company except as the Massachusetts legislation. The question of the future new stock issue thus enters as a factor in the exciting merger complications. THE PICTURE SUPPLEMENT. To the Editor: Sir - I was sorry to learn through your paper of Saturday, June 16th, the attitude you took towards the persons who had opposed the Saturday Picture Supplement. You say colored pictures and other pictures are in demand. With this I agree. Children and many grown people get the most of their literature through pictures representing, and rightly so. But what kind of literature is furnished them in the picture papers? Perhaps the things to be found most in evidence in the children of today are - lack of reverence for parents and the desire to hoodwink the powers that be. It is difficult in school or elsewhere to endeavor to teach respect for law and order, when at every arching hand the paper wherein the parents or policeman, representing the law, is shown as a person to be tricked and fooled. The boy who is revered for his mischief, and the upholder of the law who is the tricked one. Journalistic art today invariably seeks to depict things as they should not be, rather than as they should be. Many evils of a minor character are directly traceable to this source, such as a distaste for good pictures with an added taste for vulgar caricature. We have too high a respect for the majority of journalists to think they would persist in such publications if they knew them to be harmful. I have recently lived in one of our Canadian cities where this kind of art had been carried on in the papers for some time. It became noticeable in the schools and elsewhere that the children were possessed of a spirit of caprice which could not be accounted for. The teachers tried to investigate and found that many of the children carried the colored supplements and were constantly found poring over their contents. Teachers, parents and ministers became alarmed at the havoc this danger was making and much public feeling was aroused with the result that the papers were topped and have not been printed since. I believe a pictorial page could be made attractively, humorous and educational and the sanctity of home and law be still preserved. LOUISA E. IRWIN. St. John, June 21st, 1907.

PRIZE WAITING 48 YEARS IS WON

Phila. Scientist Gets $1,000 Award for Light Experiments Half Century Ago.

Dr. Paul R. Heyl Demonstrates Velocity of Projection, Using the Star Agol for Experiments

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 20. - A prize of $1,000 that has been standing for forty-eight years and is awarded to the resident of North America who should determine by experiment whether all rays of light and other physical rays are or are not transmitted with the same velocity, has been won by Dr. Paul R. Heyl, assistant in the Department of Chemistry of the Philadelphia Central High School. The money was deposited with the Franklin Institute of this city, on March 23, 1859, by Uriah A. Boyden, in his day an eminent mechanical engineer of Boston, and the Institute has advertised the proposition monthly ever since. During this half century twenty-five or thirty essays have been presented by investigators, but after careful investigation by a committee appointed in each case none was found sufficiently meritorious to warrant the Institute in granting the prize until the recent investigation by Dr. Heyl was submitted. Dr. Heyl succeeded in demonstrating by experiment that those of the ultra-violet rays of light for which glass is transparent, have the same velocity as the light rays proper. He reasoned that if the velocity of these rays were different they would not arrive from a distant source at the same time. For his test he selected Agol, a well known, variable star in the constellation Perseus, as the source of light. By means of a diffraction grating he eliminated all but the ultra violet rays of a known frequency, and by focusing them on a sensitive plate obtained photographs of the star. For the purpose of identifying the rays so recorded with the light rays regarded the time of their emission, he selected for the time of his test the time during which the light of this star shows the peculiar phenomena of fading and re-emission. The period of this variation is known to be about six hours. During this period he took several photographs, one half hour apart, each exposure being twenty minutes. After developing the plates the successive images plainly showed a fading and re-emission, and although the exact location of the minimum brightness could not be absolutely determined, the approximate coincidence of the time of the minimum brightness of the visible and the photographed rays was obvious. These tests were repeated several times to eliminate the possibility of error and also to take in a certain range of the ultra-violet rays. The investigation extended over a period of two years.

A FISH'S TAIL

The Wonderful Power It Develops in Its Strokes.

A fish's tail is its wings. Thanks to the machinery of muscle set along its spine and to its cleaving form, a trout or salmon can dart through the water at a tremendous speed, though its rapid flight, unlike the bird's, are not long ones. It is soon dead heat. The water is not so friendly to flight as the air. The stroke of the fish's tail is one of great power, and by means of it and the writhing, snake-like flexion of the body, high speed is reached. The strength behind this speed is shown in the way a fish or sea mammal out of the water will raise its tail and strike the ground or boat. A fisherman told the writer he once had a rude proof of this power. He caught and, with aid, got into his boat a whale thresher. After lying still awhile as if spent or dying, the creature, on its captor approaching, suddenly lashed furiously up and down. The startled men and their captives between them nearly upset the boat. It was an experience they wish never to repeat. The slapping stroke of a helpless and landed fish may be often a specimen and no more, but when a large and naturally aggressive fish or mammal like this thresher, bill, feet and wings, he put the question: "What is it a bird can do which I am unable to do?" "Fly," was the answer he hoped to get. For several moments the boys thought but gave no answer. At last one held up his hand. "Well, my lad, what is it?" "Lay an egg, sir," said the boy.

TROUBLESOME TIMES.

The poet had a dreadful time in weather such as this. He tries to write a little verse On June's ecstatic bliss, But when when sings of roses sweet Enveloping the town The drenched cranky mercury Will Go Right Down. He changes then his little tune To win at any cost And in a touching lay or two Apostrophizes on frost. Alas, it doesn't help a bit And sorrow fills his cup. The drenched cranky mercury Will Tip Right Go Will.

WHERE THEY DIFFERED.

(It Bits.) His Majesty's inspector was examining a class of boys on the subject of "birds." Having received correct answers to the questions relating to feathers, bill, feet and wings, he put the question: "What is it a bird can do which I am unable to do?" "Fly," was the answer he hoped to get. For several moments the boys thought but gave no answer. At last one held up his hand. "Well, my lad, what is it?" "Lay an egg, sir," said the boy.

MINISTERS IN BUSINESS.

The Methodist Conference which has just concluded its sessions in Toronto of interest all over Canada. Attention was given to the matter of gambling at racetracks, and strong resolutions were passed endorsing the action taken by the management of Woodbine Park. Following this came a discussion based on a request made by the United States to Great Britain for permission to place on the lakes a warship to be used for training purposes. This was opposed by the Toronto conference, which stand will no doubt be generally supported in Canada. The United States with its immense coast line can surely find enough places for training ships without endeavoring to disturb the present peaceful arrangement. Canada and her neighbor have got along very nicely for a hundred years without any military or naval forces on the border, and there should be no entering wedge in the treaty conditions now existing.

But in matters relating more closely to the church and its ministry, the conference engaged in a somewhat heated discussion as to whether a clergyman who takes up so-called secular business should resign from the ministry and drop the prefix "Reverend." By a large majority a motion that he should do so was passed. And rightly so, for the cloth is often regarded as a guarantee, and in business it is the man himself and not the preconceived opinion of him that should count. Churches as a rule make much of what is spoken of as the divine call to the ministry. Sometimes a clergyman realizes after time elapses, that it must have been another sound he heard, and feeling that he is not fitted for the holy calling, decides to go into business. Why then should he remain in orders, why continue the "Reverend" which can only be regarded as a letter of recommendation. A clergyman is always more highly esteemed if he resigns from the ministry upon taking up secular work.

THE PAPER TRADE.

The Pulp and Paper Magazine draws attention to the fact that British paper manufacturers are, seemingly, unable to meet United States competition in the Canadian market, and this even in enjoyment of a preferential tariff. The magazine refers to instances in which British dealers, when offered orders from this country, felt compelled to decline even though future business was promised, because they could not get down to United States quotations. From a manufacturing standpoint there is probably no good reason why this should be the case, for Britain has the advantage in every respect. But it may be assumed that the difference in the policies of the manufacturers will account for the United States' success. Paper manufacturers as well as others, in the latter country favor ready sales with small profits, while the more conservative Briton holds out for what he regards as a reasonably large return on his capital.

But why should Canada desire to buy paper from either the United States or Great Britain? Capitalists in this country are throwing away their chances and allowing one of the greatest assets of the Dominion to pass to the credit of the United States. Almost every week sees the transfer of timber limits to foreign investors or the organization of outside companies to manufacture in Canada from Canadian wood, pulp, which will be taken to the United States for conversion into paper. The Canadian paper market is now large, and is expanding at an enormous rate, yet by far the greater proportion of this commodity used is imported, and a very large part of this is made from Canadian wood shipped across the border.

Hay is selling at twenty-four dollars per ton. This is considerably more than a cent per pound. It costs more these days to keep horses, and city folks who enjoy this luxury are paying for it this summer. But the scarcity is perhaps most felt by farmers within reach of the home markets who months ago sold all their hay at half the present price and are now buying. It will, however, be noted that beef is going up.

The Star's story of the burning of the Crystal Stream yesterday was read with much interest throughout the city. No other paper was able to secure a detailed statement of the catastrophe.

THE CARDS.

"Can anybody tell fortunes by cards?" "No, my son. Many a man who has thought he could has found by subsequent experience that he didn't hold the right cards."

BALLAD OF SOAPERINE.

Bill Jones, he was a plodding man, But still of a strenuous mien; He owned a plant, a product too, Which he called Soaperine.

He telled from morn to early dusk, Grew old but never wise, Until an Adman came one day, And whispered "Advertise."

Now, Bill did not a thing by halves, He gave his desk a clout And said "By Jinks, I'll start and knock All competition out."

Full quickly then the sky was filled With paper aero cars, And Soaperine ads went to stir The citizens of Mars.

The Transatlantic tourists, too, Beheld a fleet of toys, But when they sought the legends there They read Bill Jones' buoy.

Cats ran with collars celluloid, And dogs with blankets green, And mobs/read as they scampered by The praise of Soaperine.

So Jones went on for ninety days, Outdining Frank and Jim, Until he sat up nights to read The bills that came to him.

Lo, in his dreams a fenceman bold Went through his coat and vest; He called aloud, but agents too, Were perched upon his chest.

And statements came from Admen from Bereahba unto Dan, Till Jones a quiet refuge found— The place is called a "San."

He's doing better now; his friends All helped him out, I think; He advertises still, but with White paper and black ink.

OLD BURY ST. EDMUNDS.

The ancient shire hall at Bury St. Edmunds, in which the judges of assize hold their court, has been reconstructed, modernized and enlarged. The old buildings formed originally part of a monastery which, in 1578, was given by Thomas Basky by deed that the "offices" might use it for petty sessions, assize, jail delivery and "any other uses for the public good." It was a thatched building up to 1609, and in the time of the Commonwealth was hired "at a great rent" for the use of the Congregational Church. In 1729 it was leased to the county justices for ninety-nine years at a rent of half a crown a year.

THE SHAH'S JEWELS.

An inventory of the jewel treasure left by the Shah of Persia shows that the precious stones collected by him are valued at about $10,000,000. The collection contains a number of unrivalled diamonds and other stones. The old crown of the Persian dynasty holds a ruby as big as a hen's egg. A belt studded with diamonds, worn only on great State occasions, weighs eighteen pounds and is valued at millions of dollars. A wonderful silver case is decorated with a hundred emeralds, one of which is so large that it was possible to engrave on it the Shah's numerous titles. A sword with a diamond covered scabbard is valued at $250,000. A remarkable feature of the collection is a square block of amber of 400 cubic inches, which Persians say dropped from the skies in the time of Mohammed.

TWO APEACE.

Battle Craig, the magisterial authority of a small town in Scotland, had six stout sons, with whom he loved to parade the market place, says Dr. Kerr in his "Memories." They furnished him the basis of a mathematical joke. "A fine family you have," strangers would often say, "is this the whole of it?" "No, indeed," the battle would reply, "I have two sisters at home for each and every one of them."

CROMWELL AND FOOLSCAP.

The triumph of Cromwell What is foolscap? Everybody the world over recognizes that paper foolscap means a standard measurement of thirteen inches by sixteen, yet how few can give the reason why. In England the paper mark was originally a crown, and when the commonwealth was set up Cromwell was approached as to what mark should be used in the future. He, with characteristic contempt for crowns, replied, "A fool's cap," and so it became and remained, for at the restoration the matter was overlooked until too late to act upon the ultimate discovery.—London Chronicle.

DR. PARR'S SARCASTIC.

"Dr. Parr," said a young student to the celebrated linguist, "let's you and me write a book." "Very well," replied the doctor, "Put in it all that I know and all that you don't know and we'll make a big one."

Once to a volatile and vain young man who said in his presence, "I make it a point to believe nothing I cannot understand." Dr. Parr said, "Then young man, your creed will be the shortest of any man's I know."

GODIVA'S CITY IN ENGLAND.

(London Chronicle.) Coventry is the industrious apprentice among English cities. When an ill wind blew upon one enterprise the citizens gayly turned to another. In the time of that Leofric, who, for love of Godiva, made Coventry toll free, the honest and caps of cloth were the staple. By the sixteenth century vast quantities of blue thread were being turned out, of such sterling quality that all England was familiar with the phrase "as true as Coventry blue." Then came in the eighteenth century, ribbons and the dainty fabrics of women's wear. Now she makes sterner stuff and keeps abreast of the age with sewing machines, cycles and motor cars. A century ago Godiva's city had barely 10,000 inhabitants; any one sent to Coventry today will find 70,000 companions.

HANDICAPPED

It is not a pleasant sight to see a horse overloaded. He is doing his best, but the load is out of all proportion to his strength and he goes slowly. It is the same with the man whose work is handicapped by the poverty of his parents and grandparents, and I suppose in the final summing up due allowance will be made for our inherited sin if we do the best we can to get rid of our inheritance.

Sometimes it is a bodily infirmity; our "presence is contemptible." We cannot with our five feet two and crooked spine do the work the six feet of superb manhood can.

DISINHERITED BRIDE

IN A PITIABLE PLIGHT

Romance of an Impulsive English Girl Ends in Misery and Want.

GENEVA, June 21.—The romantic story of Miss Maud Bennett, the only child of the late Dr. Thomas Jarvis Bennett, of Turnbridge Wells, and her present sad position are arousing the compassion of English visitors.

In 1901, at the age of 17, Miss Bennett and her governess met in the park at Turnbridge Wells a handsome young Swiss, employed as valet to an English gentleman. An engagement followed, but when Miss Bennett informed her father he refused his consent to her marriage. On reaching the age of 19 Miss Bennett, nevertheless, married her fiancé, Dr. Bennett presented his daughter with $5,000 and said he did not wish to see or hear from her again.

The young couple settled in the little village of Isle, canton of Vaud, where they bought a farm. But they did not prosper, and now are living in the greatest misery. Repeatedly Miss Bennett appealed to her father and mother for help in vain. Lately Dr. Bennett died, leaving to a hospital at Bath, much to the surprise of the hospital authorities, who had never heard of the gentleman—his estate of $100,000.

Miss Bennett says that she wrote to the hospital authorities explaining her sad position and asking them to help her, but received no reply.

ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1907.

CARNEGIE FINDS IT HARD TO DO MUCH GOOD WITH THE MONEY.

Union of Presbyterian and Episcopal Churches in Scotland is Regarded as Only a Pleasant Dream—No Hope of it Being Brought About.

GLASGOW, June 22.—Mr. Andrew Carnegie in returning thanks for the freedom of Abernethy which was conferred on him not long ago confessed that it was difficult to distribute money so that it would do no more harm than good.

The Royal Commission is expected to make an inspection of the Caledonian Canal towards the end of June. Mr. Herbert C. Boyd, secretary of the Caledonian Canal Development Committee has received a letter from the secretary of the commission to the effect that the commission are disposed to consider the scheme for the development of the canal and that the members of the commission would like to visit it as soon as possible.

Americans who are becoming interested in the Scottish Church problems will also be interested in learning that in many ways the present situation is undoubtedly critical. The future relations of the United Free Church and the Church of Scotland will be affected by the action of the Assemblies. Men's minds, in a favorable phrase of Principal Rainy's are "considerably exercised" as to the line of duty, especially the minds of those United Free Churchmen who are most anxious to union.

The United Free Church has apparently very little interest in the notions which have recently found their way into a union between Presbyterians and Episcopalians. These are regarded as fanciful and almost amusing in view of the present attitude of Episcopalians in England with whom Scottish Episcopalians are professedly at one.

It will be admitted that Dr. Scott was within the truth when he stated to the Edinburgh Presbytery that the initiative must be taken by the Established Church. A proposal from the United Free Church side for a conference might even be regarded as insolent or at least a repetition of a wily policy.

On the supposition that Dr. Scott's overture is adopted there will be obvious advantages if a year passes before the United Free Church responds.

STEPS TAKEN BY HINDU GOVERNMENT TO SUBDU THE PRESENT FEELING OF ANGER.

Natives Are Clearly Shown That No Lawlessness Will be Permitted—The Principal Agitator Deported and Regulations Provided for the Conduct of Schools.

CALCUTTA, June 22.—Unsatisfactory as the situation may be in some of its features, those who are studying it on the spot appear to consider that the exercise of firmness and decision is all that is necessary to bring the agitator and his dupes to a sense of conditions as they exist. It is difficult amid a welter of native assertions and rumors to get at the actual facts of many of the recent outbreaks but there is no doubt that the latitude allowed to native press has had lamentable results in bringing the ignorant masses with the idea that the hand of the ruler was weakened. This led to the free advocacy of violence against upholders of the present regime with the result that whites and Mohammedans alike suffered. The latter in their turn have not stopped at political considerations and political confederation for self protection but have turned the lesson taught them and returned to the lash against the innocent and the old racial antipathies that long seemed moribund.

As to teachers the circular observes: "Although it is the firm intention of the Governor General in Council to neglect no means of preventing schools and colleges from being turned into centers of political agitation he does not wish unduly to curtail the liberty of individual teachers. A schoolmaster has a right to his own opinion as such as anyone else, but he is subject to special responsibilities, and it is recognized in every civilized country that these responsibilities limit his freedom of expression to the individual views. If a teacher is unable to control his own conduct as to the dissemination of doctrines subversive of their respect for authority, and calculated to impair the peace and order of the community, he is liable to be removed from office."

This step has been followed by another which is less dramatic, but less clearly proclaimed that the limit of toleration has been reached and that the Government means to discharge its duty. A circular has been issued to the educational authorities of the empire regulating and in certain cases prohibiting the participation of pupils, students and teachers in political agitations.

While the government appears to be doing all that it can towards a resolution of a sane public spirit, it is regarded as satisfactory to note that leading men and bodies, both Hindus and Mohammedans, are increasing their efforts in the same direction.

At Amritsar the Anjuman-ul-Islamia has passed a resolution denouncing the disorders at Rawal Pindar and Lahore. At Dacca the Moslem Conference has appointed six delegates to propose to the Hindu leaders the establishment of a permanent joint committee for the settlement of differences and the promotion of a better mutual understanding.

Well known Hindus have written to several of the vernacular newspapers, pointing out the suicidal nature of an anti-British agitation, the success of which would mean the disappearance of one Power which ensures peace and justice to all races in India.

A number of Calcutta gentlemen have combined to try and quiet the excited communities in Eastern Bengal. Two Mohammedans and two Hindus met in the Yakkis library at the High Court and decided to organize a large meeting. In pursuance of this decision there was a public meeting on Saturday evening in the rooms of the British Indian Association.

A committee was appointed to devise means of restoring peace in Eastern Bengal. It was suggested that several prominent Hindus and Mohammedans should go to Dacca, Mysore and other centres in the disturbed area and enter into a conference with the leaders there.

That energetic action was necessary is amply shown, not only by the various riots, but by the extreme violence of the language indulged in by the agitators. In Beadon Square for instance a public meeting was held long ago at which one orator suggested that every father who had sons should get apart with his boys and long ago at which one orator suggested that every father who had sons should get apart with his boys and long ago at which one orator suggested that every father who had sons should get apart with his boys.

At the meeting of the Architectural Association of Ireland, Mr. Joseph Holloway complained of the tardy and unsubstantial modern architecture which was converting the city into a city of stables in the great Smithfield market in London owing to the number of countries from which chilled and frozen meats are shipped to London.

Argentina is now said to be the chief source of supply of the chapter grades of frozen beef. Embassies of the Chicago packing interests have for some time been working in Argentina and their favorable reports induced the trust to make an attempt to enter the market.

By controlling the American and Argentine markets there will be but little question about the ability of the Chicago packers to control even the markets of Great Britain.

Other important developments besides the purchase of the La Plata Company are expected to follow as purchase negotiations have been in progress for some time past.

The Chicago packers expect with the enormous resources at their command they will have little trouble in buying up the majority of the Argentine meat freezing companies.

The price paid for the La Plata business is not disclosed but it can be fairly well estimated from the fact that the capital of the company which was registered in Buenos Ayres, in 1903, is $2,000,000.

Its principal business was the export of frozen and chilled meat to England.

A remarkable story of half pennies being substituted for half sovereigns was told at the Manchester city police court when Henry Douglas Anderson, who had been employed at the Man-

LORD DUNRAVEN TURNS FROM YACHTING TO POLITICS.

At a Meeting of the Reform Association He Spoke in Support of Birrell's Irish Bill Which He Thinks Will do With Certain Amendments

DUBLIN, June 22.—Lord Dunraven, whom Americans will remember as the yachtman who attempted to win the America's Cup and whom cartoonists on the other side of the water loved to call "Lord Dunrading," presided at a meeting of the Irish Reform Association called the other day to consider the Irish Council Bill, Lord Dunraven finally proceeded with a proposition for the passage of a resolution which criticized Mr. Birrell's bill in the following particulars:

"The association proposed a larger transfer of departmental authority than would be affected by the bill, and a larger monetary contribution for the due supply and effective working of the departments transferred. They regret that in both these respects the bill, and the proposals therein, are defective, and that they entirely exclude consideration of any powers of a legislative character. The financial arrangements proposed in the bill are inadequate and liable to cause unreasonable charges to which the Irish funds or may be liable."

On the other hand the resolution expressed the view that a discussion of the bill in parliament would have resulted in advantageous modifications and continuance.

The association does not regret the attitude of the National Convention towards a bill which it suitably amended, and which would constitute an advance towards reforms which the association have always advocated, and which would have probably paved the way for the introduction at no distant date of larger and more liberal measures."

Lord Dunraven said that the bill had differed from the proposals that had been made by the association and did not do all in fact possible. In one respect it differed not only in degree but also in kind. It did not do all that he would have desired. It ignored that the demands of the Nationalists for an independent devolution. It was in fact merely a continuation and enlargement of the policy which was pursued by the Unionist party in 1888 in granting local self government to these counties were concerned. He presumed the intention was that if these seven or eight departments had been worked wisely and well in the course of two or three years other departments would be transferred to the council.

Personally he was not so much dissatisfied with the election, he thought a smaller council elected by the county councils would have been a better body. Nevertheless if the were lost because of its summary rejection at the hands of Ireland he believed that Ireland would receive a heavier blow at her own hands than the ingenuity of her enemies could possibly have devised.

Mr. William O'Reilly, D. L., seconded the resolution and said if the bill were amended it would draw Irishmen together and enable them to prove to each other that their mutual distrust was unfounded. The resolution was finally adopted, but no one believes that there is any possibility of any measure modeled along the lines indicated giving any satisfaction to the Nationalists or even the Orangemen of the Architectural Association of Ireland.

Mr. Joseph Holloway complained of the tardy and unsubstantial modern architecture which was converting the city into a city of stables in the great Smithfield market in London owing to the number of countries from which chilled and frozen meats are shipped to London.

Argentina is now said to be the chief source of supply of the chapter grades of frozen beef. Embassies of the Chicago packing interests have for some time been working in Argentina and their favorable reports induced the trust to make an attempt to enter the market.

By controlling the American and Argentine markets there will be but little question about the ability of the Chicago packers to control even the markets of Great Britain.

Other important developments besides the purchase of the La Plata Company are expected to follow as purchase negotiations have been in progress for some time past.

The Chicago packers expect with the enormous resources at their command they will have little trouble in buying up the majority of the Argentine meat freezing companies.

The price paid for the La Plata business is not disclosed but it can be fairly well estimated from the fact that the capital of the company which was registered in Buenos Ayres, in 1903, is $2,000,000.

Its principal business was the export of frozen and chilled meat to England.

A remarkable story of half pennies being substituted for half sovereigns was told at the Manchester city police court when Henry Douglas Anderson, who had been employed at the Man-

RESCUED HIS BEST GIRL FROM A PRISON.

GENEVA, June 22.—A chivalrous prisoner awaiting trial in the jail of Thonon on Lake Lemane, made a daring escape early the other morning with a companion and effected a still more daring rescue Friday by liberating an imprisoned woman who was his sweetheart.

The man whose name is Foretti aided by a fellow prisoner called Spaggiari fled through the bars of a chimney in their cell. Creeping into a main pipe they climbed down and found themselves in a cellar where they discovered a quantity of rope. Spaggiari was now anxious to climb the rope and escape but Foretti insisted on attempting a rescue of the woman whose name is Gentili.

The two men climbed the chimney again, crept stealthily over the roof, reached the women's prison, evaded the warders, effected an entrance and released Gentili from her cell. After another scramble over the roof all three safely scaled the prison walls and escaped into the neighboring forest. Hands of warders have been hunting them ever since without success.

GIRL HAS BEEN ASLEEP FOR MORE THAN A YEAR.

PARIS, June 22.—Marie Dalbin, a sixteen-year-old girl, who has been in a state of coma since June 1st of last year in the little village of Recoules, in the Aveyron department, is still asleep. She lies in her bed almost always with a smile on her face. Her breathing is hardly perceptible but her pulse makes fifty-five beats to the minute.

Early last spring she was affected with gastric troubles and ceased to take food. A few days later she fell asleep. She has not since opened her eyes. Several doctors are studying her case with the greatest interest.

CHINESE REBELS ON A CAMPAIGN OF MURDER.

PEKING, June 22.—The native rebels in the district around Swatow are increasing in force and the authorities are greatly concerned. The rising is due to a protest against increased taxation. The rebels have attacked a number of villages in the district of Chinghai and the officials fearing that they will be massacred have fled to Swatow. The victory of Canton is taking energetic measures to suppress the rebellion.

AUBURNDALE, Mass., June 20.—G. Anderson of the Woodlawn Golf Club today won the Massachusetts amateur golf championship by defeating F. H. Hoyt of the Allston Golf Club by the score of six up, four to play.

MANY VISITORS TO LONDON FALL VICTIMS TO EXPERT CONFIDENCE MEN.

The Same Old Game is Worked Along Familiar Lines But With Modern Improvements, Which Lead the Unwary Into Trouble.

LONDON, June 22.—The advice of Scotland Yard is, "Don't on your life talk to strangers; this town is packed with 'bumo steers' who are after your money."

This is also in substance the good advice which Americans are giving their countrymen newly arrived in London for the season. The advice appears to be a very necessary warning against the wiles of the international confidence tricksters known to Americans as "bumo steers" who are now flocking in shoals to London.

This year, apparently because a record year in travel is expected, these wily mobmen have rushed to London by hundreds, and over a dozen expert gangs are known to be at work. Already the London police have received many complaints from confiding Americans who have trusted wily dressed strangers and have lost their valuables in consequence.

"These confidence trick men are the aristocrats of the criminal classes," said a Scotland Yard official in an interview upon this subject. "There are so many 'crooks' in this world and there are so daring in their methods of operation; so difficult to bring to book. They travel like princes and many of them succeed in stealing more than the income of a cabinet minister."

"This year they are up to all manner of new tricks, for they are always up to date and ready to play any part to fit in with the season's arrangements. Many of them pretend to be multimillionaires or even English aristocrats."

Their mainstay however is the old, old trick of inspiring confidence, getting their weatherly victim off his guard and then robbing him of all they can lay hands on.

"They are very hard to catch for often the person robbed refuses to prosecute for fear that the news of his folly will reach his friends at home. It annoys the Americans to let others know that any one has got the better of him in this way—even by a trick. "They begin their tricks directly the liner on which they engage saloon berths leave New York. In the smoking room they play cards with accomplices until they have induced others to take a hand and then they start to make their passage money."

"On their arrival in London the confidence men usually engage rooms at the best hotels where they and their accomplices wait for their prey. Their methods are unknown. Here dressing immaculately and living on the fat of the land they await their opportunities and make the most of them when they do come."

"When a home-sick American is met in London by a well groomed prosperous and affable countryman who by a strange chance knows the old home well, he is naturally taken off his guard at once. It is not long after this that on some pretext or other the American is induced to show his valuables and money, and the rest is easy for his new found friend."

The chief trick in trade of these rogues is the art of inspiring confidence. One man who posed as a member of a millionaire New York family sold a string of valuable horses only a few days ago to a new arrival who was anxious to mine as the owner of the stock. "They only flew in the bargain from the point of view of the purchaser was that after the confidence man had vanished it was discovered that the horses belonged to another and a respectable American."

An important contact which it is believed they have a far-reaching effect on the main trade of London has just been signed between the firm of Swifts, of Chicago, and La Plata Cold Storage Company of Buenos Ayres.

The purchase is regarded as an attempt on the part of the Chicago packers to obtain control of the meat supply of Argentina—by the way one of the chief providers of cheap beef for London alone independent lines.

WOMAN OF TITLE LEADS GYPSY'S LIFE.

Lady Arthur Grosvenor "on the Road" on a Caravan Tour.

LONDON, June 22.—Touring with a caravan is the method of spending holiday chosen by Lady Arthur Grosvenor, of Broxton Old Hill, Chester, a relative of the Duke of Westminster.

It is explained that Lady Arthur Grosvenor finds travel by caravan without attracting the attention of the inquisitive and intrusive a very pleasant method of seeing the country.

Her ladyship's travelling equipage includes four horses, four dogs and two birds, and it is stated that she dresses in keeping with the role she has adopted.

Part of the holiday will probably be spent in the Dartmoor district.

Lady Arthur Grosvenor was one of the first subscribers to the Gypsy Lore Society.

She is the daughter of Sir Robert Sheffield, and was married in 1883. Her husband is aged 47, and he is an uncle of the present Duke of Westminster.

EXPLORER ELECTED TO BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

Earl of Ronaldshay Has Walk Over in the Unionist Borough of Horsey.

LONDON, June 23.—The young Earl of Ronaldshay has been returned unopposed to the House of Commons for the borough of Horsey. He stood in the Unionist interest, and the Liberals did not put forward a candidate.

Besides being a politician of no mean ability, he is also a sportsman and traveller of renown. He has explored the Himalayas thoroughly, and is quite at home in that majestic region of the eternal snows. On the fingers of one hand could be counted those Englishmen who know more about Persia than he does. He has, in fact, "a practical working knowledge" of all the northwest, north and northeast borders of India, extending from Persia to Tibet.

The results of his travels in these alluring lands are to be found in two books, "Sport and Politics Under an Eastern Sky" and "On the Outskirts of Empire in Asia." Lord Ronaldshay was for some time on Lord Curzon's staff in India, and somehow or other one cannot help seeing in him a future viceroy.

THE ST. JOHN STAR

FOR THE HOME DRESSMAKER

The Panama for Outing and Other Occasions

FOR general outing wear the Panama hat seems to have no rival. Schoolgirls and young women alike, who wish to be distinctly up-to-date, should aim to number at least one of these products of South American industry among their summer headgear. Indeed, many women past their youth find the Panama convenient for marketing, shopping or morning rides in the country. Nor, if care is taken, does it give it a too youthful or rakish angle. There is danger of unseemly girliness. As all that glitters is far from being gold, so every Panama sported is far from having made its debut into the hat-world from Colombia, the home of "the real thing." Not all of us can afford a hat of such exquisite fineness that it wears a year in the wearing, and cost $150 near the equator, as did that presented recently to the Archbishop of Trinidad by some of his admiring flock. But what matter when the coarser weaves are so wonderfully attractive? After all, it makes small difference in the beauty of a fresh young face if the hat that tops it is Lucky the girl or woman who possesses one of these hats last summer. All she need do is to change its roll slightly more to the side instead of straight back from the front, drape some of the new pompadour or Roman scarf, stick in a quill or not, as is becoming, and she has a thoroughly modern hat. Children or very young girls still roll their Panama's brim back from the face; older women are more apt to turn it up stiffly at the side, wear it straight around, or, for more dressy occasions, it is even bent into a mushroom or poke shape. A charming little hat of this last type seen the other day was evolved from a hat that came straight from Cuba in the high-rigged crown and unshaped effects in which they are always imported. With a few clever turns the crown was crushed in, the brim drawn down into a poke, and the whole affair raised from the face by a bandeau covered with brown maline. A bunch of moss roses was stuck in front, and wide, soft blue ribbon was brought around the crown in a broad band and carried straight across the back. Several loops and ends of the

with a stiff flat bow against the crown, with an owl's breast and wing caught in velvet loops against the side. An effective trimming for the round-shaped Panama is to encircle the crown with a two-inch velvet ribbon, fluted in cartridge-belt folds, with two quills against the crown at one side. Very smart is such a trimming in a rich red velvet with red wings. A Panama that invariably attracts attention by its modish simplicity is turned up sharply at the side, and has a brown velvet ribbon brought around the crown and through a slash on the side to rest in eight flat-wired loops close to the brim. The French Panama is more exaggerated in its lines than are ours, as can be seen from the models shown by Jeannette Hope today. They are so simple, however, that any young woman sufficiently daring to be different from her neighbors can easily remodel her last year's hat after the one she fancies will be most becoming to her style. Many of the French Panamas are turned down all around like the top model, and are worn quite far back from the face. The arrangement of the soft brown ribbon trimming is decidedly novel with its bows and long ends on each side. A plain band of colored ribbon held by two large-headed shell-pins is the sole trimming of the second model with its broad, drooping brim. Very smart is the trimming of the next hat, even if the shape is somewhat trying. The brim is encircled by folds of a white crepe de chine scarf, with two odd, feathery quills in brown and white running back from the centre of the front. The odd shape of the last Panama has nothing to relieve it but a scarf of pompadour ribbon tied in a graceful, many-looped bow with long ends at the back. String color combined with old blue is a favorite combination. A medium-sized hat of the shape called "Calotte," with a tall bell crown, and a brim turned at the front and drooping at the back, was in string color, edged with old blue and trimmed with a single black feather and a drapery of electric blue silk twisted through an Empire buckle.

made of fibre no thicker than a couple of horsehairs, from the stemless screw pine woven entirely under water from the crown out, or if it is of Yraps straw or the even coarser imitation from Jamaica. The effect is the main thing, and that is gained more by shaping and trimming than by the quality of the straw. Naturally, every one who can afford it wants to own just as fine a Panama as possible. Indeed, it is quite customary to hear a school-girl extolling the superior fineness of her hat over her companions' as they industriously roll back the brim to the approved angle. Lucky was the young person in the pre-Rooseveltian days who possessed a brother in the navy, for many a rare Panama which would have cost a small fortune here was brought in free of duty. The very costly hats must be woven without irregularity, even when covering a large surface, and the best test of their superiority is that they can hold water without leaking. While a good Panama will last for years, even the cheaper qualities may be reblocked or just re-rolled to a new angle season after season and, with the last approved trimming, look quite like new.

ribbon fell from under the brim on the hair. For strictly outing Panamas the gay scarfs are much used, particularly for children. A particularly good-looking hat for a young girl was rolled sharply in front, and had loosely tied around the crown a broad ribbon sash in green and white stripes. This was tied in long loops in the back with two fringed ends falling on the hair. Quite as often, the young girl's Panama has merely a stiff band, sometimes in college colors. When used as a riding hat the band is invariably worn. Bandeaux are used in many of the Panamas worn by older women. This is especially necessary for those turning sharply up at the side. One of the smartest hats of the season in this shape had soft overlying folds of black, apricot and a delicate pinkish-yellow lousine ribbon crushed around the crown and brought over the rim at the side, where they were caught by two large-headed hatpins like big cherries. Two black quills ran through these folds. This style is equally pretty in black and two shades of light blue. A somewhat more severe Panama had a band of brown velvet ribbon

HINTS ON FASHION'S FADS

POMPADOUR silks make charming evening gowns under transparent overskirts of point d'esprit, net or spangled tulle. As a relief from the ubiquitous brown, there is a medium tint of rather yellowish green, known as "tilleul," which is seen in many of the new summer silks. Underskirts are growing more and more elaborate, and broad ribbon plays an important part in them. Many are of peau de sude, with deep silk flounces, while white batiste petticoats are much trimmed with insertions of lace and minute white batiste and mousseline de soie. Trimming of alternate rows of ribbon and lace insertion are seen on some of the late summer silk models. For indoor gowns or elaborate tea gowns the broken or primitive Greek-key pattern is much used as a trimming.

A new trimming for afternoon or evening dresses is of chenille flowers, especially in white in combination with silver, as, for example, silver outer petals, silver berries or silver foliage. Some of the new hatpins can truly be regarded as jewelry. One of the novelties was a large head of tortoise shell, set with rubies and diamonds. Still another was encrusted with turquoise and diamonds. The intermingling of flowers in contrasting color is a charming treatment for summer hats when the colors are chosen with discrimination. Dark crimson roses combine nicely with a few sprays of white jessamine. Clusters of gardenias look well with Neapolitan violets, and another favorite combination is of hyacinths mixed with small bunches of moss roses and rosebuds. Navy blue is more in favor than it was at the beginning of the season, especially mixed with crude green and mandarin.

CANCER EXPERT MAY FIND ORIGIN AND CURE

Highest Authority in Germany Believes He is on the Eve of Important Discovery

BERLIN, June 22.—Professor Von Heyden, the greatest authority in Germany on cancer, in a remarkable article in a leading medical journal here confirms the widely felt belief that we are on the eve of remarkable discoveries regarding the treatment of cancer and its origin.
Both he and his assistant, Professor Bergell, state that after a long and complicated series of experiments they have arrived at the conclusion that the growth of cancer is due to the loss or absence of certain chemical substances in the liver. This substance is described as a ferment, and all healthy human beings possess it. In the livers of persons afflicted with cancer it is absent or in insufficient quantities. The direction, therefore, which the investigations of cancer specialists will take will be to discover a method of supplying the livers of their patients with this substance.

FOREST FIRES DOING A GREAT DEAL OF DAMAGE

UTICA, N. Y., June 22.—Forest fires are reported to be raging along the line of the New York and Ottawa railroad in the Adirondacks. A bridge 100 feet long has been burned near Moira and traffic delayed. Fires are also reported between Mono Station and the Blue Mountain House and the little hamlet of Spring Cove, near Malone, called on Santa Clara for help yesterday.

VOICE WANTED.

The Prima Donna—"Why don't you give the part to my daughter. She sings beautifully. She has inherited my voice."
Manager—"That so? I've often wondered what became of your voice."

HE HAD SOME HELP.

The man who applied at headquarters for a "little help" from the charitable association set forth his case with so much tact and moderation that the secretary was beginning to be favorably impressed.
"I can't ask them to do too much," the applicant said modestly. "You see," he continued, in an outburst of delicacy and ingenueness, "they paid for my wedding last month and 'twas a real swell one."—Youth's Companion.

PAIN OF A WOODEN LEG.

"Barney's wooden leg has been paining 'im of late," said Scholes to his wife.
"How can that be?" asked Mrs. Scholes irritably.
"Mrs. Barney has been thrashing 'im with it," was the explanation.

Dr. Lewin was called to the police station last night to give medical assistance to Michael Donovan, a drunk, who was ill as the result of a long "booze."

PLAY FOR BIG STAKES IN MILITARY SCHOOL

Another Gambling Scandal in German Army is Unearthed and Officers Arrested.

BERLIN, June 22.—Another military gambling scandal is reported from Hanover. The military school of that city, under the command of General von Festerberg, is one of the best known in Germany, and is largely attended by officers of crack cavalry regiments. For some time past it has been suspected that the officers were in the habit of meeting at one of the Hanover hotels for the purpose of play, but it was regarded as comparatively harmless until the father of a young lieutenant reported to General Festerberg that his son had contracted gambling debts which neither he nor his son was able to settle.
General Festerberg opened an inquiry, with the result that about twenty officers have been ordered various terms of barracks arrest, and about fifteen others ordered to return to their regiments. General Festerberg discovered that these young men were in the habit of playing for sums out of all proportion to their income.
The matter has been reported to the Kaiser, who has ordered a searching investigation.

SAINT'S BODY INTACT AFTER 300 YEARS

Surgeon Cuts Off Portions Which Are to be Distributed Among Italian Bishops.

MILAN, June 2.—A tremendous concourse of bishops, priests and people has been attracted to the centenary festival at Brescia in commemoration of the canonization of St. Angela Merici. In consequence of the announcement that on this saint's coffin being re-opened, after a space of 300 years, the body was found to be absolutely fresh and intact. The ecclesiastical authorities avow that no chemical preparations whatever were used to preserve the corpse.
Monsignor Cifuri, bishop of Brescia, had the body removed from the coffin and placed in the centre of the Church of Santa Anna. Prof. Gullia, a well-known surgeon, was then summoned, and in the presence of the bishop and Cathedral Chapter was directed to cut away portions of the saint's shin and thigh, intended for distribution as precious souvenirs to Cardinal Ferrari and each bishop participating in the fetes.

COUPLE CHARGED WITH NUMBER OF BURGLARIES.

SANFORD, June 21.—A young man giving his name as Frank Wilson was arraigned before the local court today charged with a number of burglaries that have occurred here recently. A search of the rooms occupied by Wilson and his wife, disclosed stolen property enough to fill a wagon. Wilson pleaded guilty to some of the breaks, but denied making them all. He was held in $50 for the grand jury. The couple came here some three weeks ago and Mrs. Wilson has been working in one of the mills. They are said to have near relatives at Biddford. Wilson is about 24 years old.

SHELTER OF UMBRELLA COMES HIGH TO YANKEE

Accepts Courtesy of Stranger in Shower and is Robbed of 10,000 Francs.

PARIS, June 22.—An American, described by the Liberte as M. William Mussechy, is mourning the disappearance of a pocketbook, which he says contained 10,000 francs in checks and banknotes. The police have not found any clue to its present whereabouts, nor to the actual domicile of the seemingly kindly disposed individual who, on Thursday evening, offered Mr. Mussechy the shelter of his umbrella during a shower.

Mr. Mussechy was caught in a shower while walking through the Rue Saint Antoine and took refuge in a doorway, where he vainly waited for a cab. He was in a great hurry to get back to his hotel, and a man, who was also in the doorway, noted his impatience. "Would monsieur, who seemed to be pressed for time, do him the honor to accept the shelter of his umbrella?" Monsieur accepted with thanks, and the Good for return until July 2, 1907. ### MOROCCO'S SULTAN IN HOURS OF DILEMMA is Unable to Leave Fez and There is Grave Danger in Remaining.

TANGIER, June 22.—The rumors that Mulai-el-Hand, the victory of Marrakech, and half-brother of the Sultan, has taken up arms, are quite false. He has not risen against the authority of Abd-el-Asis; he has even maintained reasonable order in the southern capital.
But it is significant that a message has been sent to the heads of some of the most important clans in the south summoning them to meet as soon as harvest operations are over and to decide upon a plan of campaign "to save the country from the infidel." If this movement assumes the proportions of a crushing character on the mobilized armies of both the French republic and the Russian empire.
Germany, he declares, in order to protect herself against the combinations of other powers, must increase her naval and military armaments and refrain from lending money to Russia or any other country which shows any tendency to join the anti-German coalition headed by Great Britain.

ACCOMPLISHED LONDON CABMAN.

The late Lord Rosslyn told a story to illustrate the kind of man who may be sometimes doing duty on a horse. One night his lordship halted one close to his club and drove to his town house. As he alighted the cabman touched his hat and said: "Lord Rosslyn, I believe?" "Yes," was his reply. "What do you want?" "You sometimes sell Gordon setters, my lord." "Yes, but not to cabmen." In the blandest and most gentlemanly tone the cabman stated that might be true, but still he had the advantage he thought on the point of education. He had been at a university and could speak several languages, among them Italian, which he happened to know Lord Rosslyn could not speak. An Italian count who had once been a friend of his was staying in London and wanted a brace of Gordon setters. It proved quite correct. The Italian count bought the setters for 50 guineas, and Lord Rosslyn gave the accomplished cabman a five pound note for his trouble.—London Telegraph.

TWO-POWER STANDARD IN THE GERMAN ARMY

Imperial Councillor Says She Could Beat Russia and France Combined.

BERLIN, June 22.—"Germany thanks to her thoroughly efficient and magnificently equipped army, is absolutely predominant in continental Europe." This emphatic verdict on the international situation is pronounced by Imperial Councillor Rudolph Martin. The German government official who, during the last two or three years, has assumed the role of political philosopher with considerable public success.
Herr Martin declares that Germany could face a war with France and Russia with perfect equanimity, because the German army would be quite capable of inflicting simultaneous defeats of a crushing character on the mobilized armies of both the French republic and the Russian empire.
Germany, he declares, in order to protect herself against the combinations of other powers, must increase her naval and military armaments and refrain from lending money to Russia or any other country which shows any tendency to join the anti-German coalition headed by Great Britain.

THE STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B. SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 1907.

THE SURVIVORS OF THE
CRYSTAL STREAM DISASTER
TELL OF THRILLING ESCAPES
Capt. Mabec Says Fire Could Only Have Been Caused by Lantern Exploding or Being Set—Mrs. Chase
Had Premonition of the Disaster and Wanted to Sit Up—Aberdeen to Have Watchman.

Several of the crew of the Crystal Stream who were injured in the fire yesterday brought down on the Aberdeen...

Long before the Aberdeen arrived the Indian-ton wharves were lined with friends of the injured persons, and others desirous of hearing the story of the disaster at first hand...

It was not till Herbert McAlary was carried ashore that the awful sufferings of the women passengers were comprehended by the onlookers...

Mr. Purdy said he intended purchasing another vessel at once if one could be found suitable. The vessel was on the route five years and was valued at about $22,500.

Second Experience for Mrs. Chase
Mrs. Chase, stewardess of the ill-fated boat was next interviewed and told a most pathetic story. Five years ago she said she had been through an experience on the steamer Star, of a similar nature, in which she had lost all her belongings...

Stream was ablaze he ran over the wharf looking for a boat. Two men who lived nearby had, however, got into the boat and were bringing Mrs. Chase to the shore...

Other Members of Aberdeen's Crew
Mate Worden and Purser S. Perry, of the Aberdeen were also interviewed regarding the fire. They could give no opinion of how the blaze started outside of the reports they heard from the officers of the Crystal Stream.

Capt. Mabec's Story
Capt. Mabec, when seen by The Sun, stated that he was sleeping in his stateroom, which is about the pilot house on the upper deck, when he heard the alarm...

ARCHIBALD P. BELYEA,
Crystal Stream's Purser.

First Outside Fire
John West, the first person outside of the boat to arrive at the scene of the disaster, when seen by The Sun, said that he was sleeping in the mill house of Alfred West's mill when he heard the wild shrieks of fire and help.

The Inquest
Dr. Earle, of Young's Cove, who was summoned as coroner, empaneled the following jury this forenoon: Albert West, foreman; Billy Kierstead, Charles Arthur, Bradford Northrup, B. Taylor, J. E. Coles, J. N. Taylor. The jury viewed the remains before their removal and the evidence of Captain Mabec and Engineer Roberts was taken.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE
(Toronto Star)
There are now two examples of proceedings under the Lord's Day act, one showing what ought to be done and the other what ought to be avoided.

Watchman in Future
Capt. Perry of the Aberdeen, when interviewed by The Sun, informed The Sun that the alarm was first given him by his wife, who had been aroused by Mrs. Chase. He thought at first it was the star, Aberdeen which was on fire, but when he found the Crystal

LOCAL NEWS.

The L. C. R. freight shed which collapsed a few months ago has been torn down and a large number of teams are now employed at hauling away the bricks.

The annual Sunday school picnic of Main street Baptist church is being held at Westfield Beach today. A large number of children and grown-ups went out on the 9:25 train this morning, and it is expected that a large number will go to the outing on the 1:10 train this afternoon.

A few days ago the dredge Beaver dug up two very large boulders. One weighed 72 tons and the other 64 tons. The huge rocks were placed on the mid bank and holes drilled in them. Last evening 20 pounds of dynamite was placed in the 64 ton boulder and the rock was broken up. The larger boulder will be broken up the first of next week.

Ten deaths occurred in the city during the past week resulting from the following causes: senility, 1; paralysis, 1; meningitis, 1; bronchitis, 1; consumption, 1; tuberculosis, 1; spinal meningitis, 1; measles and pneumonia, chronic pancreatitis, 1.

SAYS DRUNKEN WOMEN ARE RARE IN FAIRVILLE

Officer Lawson Takes Exception to a Paragraph in Last Evening's Globe.

A paragraph appeared in last evening's Globe to the effect that the temperance people of Fairville are greatly exercised over the prevalence of drunkenness among women over there. It was stated that nearly every day parties of drunken women are to be seen about the streets. Officer Lawson called at the Star office today to enter an emphatic denial of this report. He stated that he has been on duty in Fairville for several years and in that time he has only once seen a woman intoxicated. That was two years ago, and she was a resident of the city who had wandered over that way while under the influence. He further states that Fairville people are greatly annoyed over this report, which they consider reflects on their village.

RAILROADS WILL ADOPT THE TWO CENT RATE

CHICAGO, June 22.—The Inter-Ocean today says—Passenger rates on all railroads of the United States will be reduced to 2 cents a mile. The lowering of the price and complete abolition of the old 3 cents rates will begin on June 1st.

This was the decision reached in Chicago yesterday after a long and heated discussion by the leading railroad presidents of all the western and transcontinental roads. It is not a formal agreement, it is merely a binding for two large roads doing a transcontinental business are said to have served an ultimatum to the other that they would put the rate into effect immediately.

JAPANESE CONSIDER COMMERCIAL RELATIONS

TOKYO, June 22.—A joint meeting of five Chambers of Commerce was held today to consider and pass resolutions on the American question, but owing to the inability of representatives from Kioto and Kobe to arrive in time, the formal meeting was postponed. The absentees are, however, expected early next week. The members of Commerce to be represented are those of Tokio, Osaka, Kobe, Kioto and Yokohama. It is apprehended that the subject of commercial retaliation through it might come up for discussion, will not assume any definite form. Most careful deliberation is expected before any resolution is given final form.

POLICE COURT.

There were eight prisoners on the police bench this morning. A few were in bad shape from the effects of last night's jags. Six drunks were fined the usual amount. Mark Allan, a boy arrested for being one of a disorderly crowd, was allowed to go.

Theodore Hamilton was charged by Mrs. Jones with stealing a watch and chain and a pocketbook with a dollar in it. From the evidence it appeared that Mrs. Jones has boarded Hamilton for four months and received only $2. She had frequently loaned him her watch and she claimed that last Tuesday Hamilton took the watch against her wishes and also assaulted her. He was fined $50.

Walter Pickup, a newboy, was tempted by the fruit in front of John Sperdake's store, Charlotte street, yesterday and in court this morning he acknowledged having taken two plums and two bananas. He was allowed to go with a warning.

Jeremiah Damery, reported by Inspector Simons for hauling meat from the slaughter houses without a license, was represented by Daniel Mullin, K. C., and J. B. M. Baxter appeared for the slaughter house commissioners. Damery was ordered to take out a license or pay $40.

THE DEATH ROLL.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 22.—Former U.S. Senator Lucien Butler died today. He was born in Fulton County, Ohio, in 1846, and served in the United States Senate from 1895 to 1901, as a Republican. He was shot accidentally in a street in Leavenworth in 1871 by a man who was engaged in a fight with Col. D. R. Anthony, two blocks away. He never fully recovered from the wound.

ADVANCE PARTY LEAVES FOR THE SUSSEX CAMP

Army Service Corps Went up This Morning—Others to Follow Next Week.

No. 7 Company, Canadian Army Service Corps, went into camp at Sussex this morning. The corps, composed of 100 men, left on the Boston train under command of Capt. Gross and Lieut. Fred McKean. Major Massey went to Sussex last evening. No. 7 Company is up to full strength this year and the great amount of work to be done by this corps in camp will be capably handled. The men will start in this afternoon to arrange for the coming of the New Brunswick regiment which will go into camp on June 27th. Tents will be pitched and everything will be in readiness by that date. The company is going up nearly a week before the other companies this year as a great deal of preparatory work has to be done, and last year everything was not in readiness when the regiments arrived, as the Army Service Corps had not been given quite enough time.

The other local corps who are to go into camp have been drilling nearly every night for the past two weeks and by the 27th of this month they will be well up in drill. No. 8 Field Ambulance Unit will go into camp with 90 men this year. Major Thomas Walker, M. D., will be in command. Lt. Col. McLaren, M. D., having been placed on the reserve list. Outside of this change the staff of officers will be the same as last year.

It is probable that on Dominion Day some of the local cadet corps will visit the camp. The Scots Co. Boys' Brigade will probably hold a tournament at Sussex on that day.

The regiments from outside the city will leave for camp on June 26th, 27th, and 28th. The 7th Regt. of York Co. will pass through the city on the 27th and will go to Sussex accompanied by the local Field Ambulance and Signaling Corps. Several changes have been made in the staff of the 7th Regt. Allan Stirling, M. D., has been promoted to captain since returning from Halifax where he qualified for that rank. Several provisional lieutenants have also qualified since the last camp.

MEN FROM CRYSTAL STREAM FEELING BETTER TODAY

McAlary Likely to Attend the Inquest on Tuesday—The Funerals of the Victims on Sunday.

The Star yesterday had an amateur photo taken of the burned Crystal Stream at Cole's Island bridge. The picture was not sufficiently clear to be reproduced. It, however, shows the two stone piers, all that remain of the new covered bridge, and the upper works of the steamer showing above the water alongside of one of them. The beam and funnel of the Crystal Stream and a mass of charred timber alone remained in sight. The spot is a very pretty one.

The inquest will be resumed at Cole's Island on Monday. Several persons living at that place, and some members of the crew of the Aberdeen will give evidence. Captain Mabey and Engineer Roberts of the Crystal Stream will go up on the Aberdeen, and may be accompanied by Mate McAlary, if the latter is well enough to go. Reports from the hospital today are to the effect that Mr. McAlary passed a good night and is now feeling much better. Mr. Belyus is also improving. Captain Mabey states that he has no reason to believe that any evidence of a sensational nature will be given at the inquest, for so far as he knows there is nothing to be said which would justify the paragraphs appearing in the morning papers.

No disposition will be made of the hull of the burned steamer until after the insurance has been adjusted. The funerals of the four victims will be held at their homes up river on Sunday.

STUDENT STABBED BY AN INSTRUCTOR

Lads Waylay and Beat an Unpopular Teacher and He Uses Knife in Defense.

MERIDEN, Conn., June 21.—Stabbed by an instructor, whom he with other students attacked last night when commencement preliminary was at its height, Walter A. Freeman, of Boston, was dangerously wounded in the Chestnut School in Cheshire today. Professor Edmunds, who stabbed Freeman, is technically under arrest, but it is believed that the parents of the injured lad will insist that there be no prosecution.

At the one hundred and thirtieth anniversary exercises of the school the incident was freely and excitedly discussed today. Until recently the school was known as the Chester Military Academy, and numbers among its graduates many men of national prominence. Prof. Edmunds, who is a graduate of Yale, and came from Ohio to teach in the school last fall, had not been popular with some of the students. He was walking in a secluded spot on the campus last night when, he says, several grotesquely attired students surrounded him and knocked him down. He was beaten almost into insensibility before he drew a knife, and slashed wildly with it. The blade was buried in Freeman's back and he fell to the ground. The other students became frightened and gave an alarm, which resulted in Edmunds' arrest. Physicians say that Freeman will recover. Edmunds shows the effects of the punishment he received.

Edward Dodge, of No. 111 Broadway, New York, is treasurer of the school, and E. H. Harriman, is a member of the board.

GREAT SPORTS TODAY.

With some forty-five competitors, including some of the best known of the young athletes of the city, the sports on the Victoria grounds this afternoon will be intensely interesting and the contests very exciting. There is a good representation of the Marshalls, St. Peter's, Algonquins, Portland Y. M. C. A., the F. M. A., Clipper A. C., Crouchville A. C., High School A. C., the U. N. B., and others, besides entries from Hampton, McAdam, Fairville and Sussex.

The fine weather was all that was necessary to the success of these sports. St. Mary's Band will be in attendance, and the sports will begin at 2:30 sharp, and be pulled off promptly. It will be like old times on the Victoria grounds this afternoon.
