Fighting in the Philippine Islands.

MADRID, June 27.—Advices from Manila show that a desperate fight has occurred in the Island of Mindanabo, the largest of the Philippine group. A force of 6,000 rebellious natives, under the leadership of their sultan, made an attack upon Fort Pollanno. The Spanish garrison succeeded in repulsing the natives after a stubbornly contested fight. The natives lost 87 killed, including the sultan, while 300 of their number were wounded. The Spanish loss is not stated.

Grand Trunk Management.

LONDON, June 27.—With the arrival of Messrs. Gould and Foxwell in London came Mr. Duncan McIntyre's return from Paris. Mr. McIntyre, however, when approached by a correspondent as to his mission here particularly with reference to the mooted Grand Trunk deal, replied that his trip was induced entirely on account of his health — not business. Questioned in regard to the statement that he and George Gould hoped to be able to secure a controlling interest in the Grand Trunk Railway to oust the president, Sir Henry Tyler, and remove the presidency, with all that implies, to Montreal, "Nonsense," replied Mr. McIntyre, "I know nothing about it." "It is all untrue, then!" "I know nothing more than you do of it," was Mr. McIntyre's assurance.

The correspondent saw Sir Henry, who laughed heartily at the published motives of Messrs. Gould, McIntyre and others.

The Silver Subject.

CALCUTTA, June 27.—General satisfaction is expressed at the action regarding the currency taken by the Indian Government. Securities rose rapidly.

A London cable says: Rupee paper is very strong at 71, owing to the action taken yesterday by the Government of India on the silver question.

LONDON, June 27.—In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Robert Lacey Everett asked the Government whether, now the value of the rupee having been artifically raised by the closing of the Indian mints to the free coinage of silver, compensation would be given to those persons in India who had entered into contracts to pay rupees without knowing that free coinage would be stopped and the value of the rupee raised? Were the people of India, he further asked, consulted in the matter?

Mr. Gladstone replied that all measures modifying a State currency may affect pecuniary values and influence current transactions. He was not aware that it had ever been the usage to make alteration subject to compensation, and he did not see how such a usage could be beneficially established. He was confident that the Government of India was using all the means in its power to ascertain the public sentiment.

The Right Hon. George J. Goschen asked whether the Government of India had to coin rupees as the need arose.

Mr. Gladstone replied that if the published report was not clear on the subject he would ask the India Office concerning it. He had little doubt what the answer would be.

GLADSTONE WINS

In the Pontefract Election—True to the Liberal Cause.

LONDON, June 28.—The bye-election in Pontefract yesterday resulted in the victory of T. Willans Nussey, Liberal, who received 1,191 votes, over Elliott Lees, Conservative, who received 1,159 votes.

The vacancy was left by the unseating of Harold James Reckitt (Liberal) for securing his election on Feb. 13, 1893, by bribery. At the last general election Rowland Winn (Conservative) was elected, but a few months afterward was raised to the peerage.

The constituency is very close, as is shown by the fact that Mr. Nussey's majority was but 32. In the February bye-election Mr Reckitt's majority was 63, and in the last general election Mr. Winn's majority was 40.

A Boulder Chained to the Track.

OTTAWA, June 27.—On the Pontiac and Pacific Railway, near Conroy's mills, a few miles from town, a huge boulder was found yesterday chained to the ties. The discovery was made only shortly before the Sunday evening train from Aylmer was due. The chain was of the kind used to connect timber booms.

How It Works.

WINDSOR, June 27.—Windsor customs officers seized Senator Casgrain's horse this morning just as he was about to drive to Tecumseh. It seems before the Senator purchased it it had been used in Detroit for a time, and the officers claim when the former owner returned it to Canada it became liable to the usual duty on imported stock.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 27.—United States Commissioner Edmunds this afternoon decided that Lee Kee, a Chinese laborer "is unlawfully within the United States," and directs that he be removed to China at the cost of the Government. Lee Kee's case was selected as a test. Of the 1,500 Chinamen in Philadelphia 900 have registered. What disposition will be made of the remaining 600 is not known.

Buying Census Returns.

TORONTO, June 27.—Mr. W. R. Fish, of Prince Albert, N. W. T., is in the city. He was census commissioner for the Saskatchewan district, and relates some interesting stories of how the census was collected in that region. The Indians would frequently demand a sack of flour or a side of bacon before giving the information asked for, and in some parts it cost as much as $1 a head to extract any answers from them.

Sam Jones' Joke.

BRISTOL, Tenn., June 26.—The Rev. Sam P. Jones played a practical joke on a young couple who were eloping from Floyd county, Va., to get married. He showed the prospective groom, Mr. Kinglea, a telegram purporting to be from the boy's father, saying: "Don't allow my son and Miss Ekiss to marry; under age. Arrest them and put him in jail." The telegram was put in the hands of a sheriff pro tem. The boy gave right in, but the girl said she would never do it. Mr. Jones finally agreed to go on the young man's bond for $50,000 and turned the couple loose. They went into the Wicketts House, where they were married. The boy was badly scared and thought all the while that the evangelist was in dead earnest.

How to Cure a Corn.

It is one of the easiest things in the world to cure a corn. Do not use acids or other caustic preparations, and don't cut a hole in your boot. It is simply to apply Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, and in three days the corn can be removed without pain. Sure, safe, painless. Take only Putnam's Corn Extractor.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

Awful Alternatives!

The Victoria's Men Faced Death in Threefold Form.

Drowning, Scalding and Mangling by the Terrible Screws.

A Vivid Description of the Appalling Disaster.

Fearful Experience of Those on the Doomed Vessel—Similar Disasters Within the Past Thirty Years.

LONDON, June 27.—A special cable dispatch from Tripoli, Syria, says:

About 3 o'clock last Thursday afternoon the English fleet came in sight of Elmina, the port and town of Tripoli. It was coming from the northeast and making directly for the harbor. The five big iron-clads—Victoria, Camperdown, Edinburgh, Nile and Sanspareil—were drawn up in full front. The Victoria was in the center, the Camperdown was on her left and the Edinburgh on her right. When they were within five miles off shore Vice-Admiral Sir George Tryon signaled to turn and FORM IN DOUBLE LINE.

This meant that the Victoria and Camperdown were to go ahead a little and describe a turn—the Victoria turning to the left and the Camperdown turning to the right—then they would advance side by side in the direction from which they had come, the others would swing into double column order and advance two and two behind the leaders. When the order was given the distance between the ships was less than two cable lengths. The execution of the order was easy enough for ships further away from the center, but extremely difficult for the Victoria and the Camperdown, who, in turning their bows, would pass within a few fathoms of each other, even if the movement was executed with the greatest precision. This movement is rarely made, and is chiefly for the purpose of training ship commanders to move expeditiously away from shoaling waters.

FATAL DELAY.

Whether because Admiral Markham, of the Camperdown, could not believe this movement was to be tried when the ships were so close together or because he thought Admiral Tryon had miscalculated the distance, he did not set about executing Admiral Tryon's order, but signaled that he did not understand it. The Victoria and the other vessels had not hesitated. The Victoria began to turn at once, as she still held to the signal. The Camperdown no longer hesitated, but also began to turn. The brief delay, however, had been fatal. The Victoria had nearly turned, and the Camperdown, swinging around, bore down upon her.

THE INEVITABLE CRASH.

Both admirals were quick to act. Admiral Tryon swung the Victoria so as to receive at the smallest angle the blow which both officials saw was inevitable, and Admiral Markham did the same for the Camperdown, besides reversing her screws. The twelve-foot ram of the Camperdown struck the hull of the Victoria just in front of the armored bulkhead and plunged into the thin plates of her starboard side. The armor ends of the bulkheads and the forward part of the Victoria above the water-line were mere cardboard to the great iron wedge so mightily propelled. There was a smashing of wood and iron plates, and the ram and eight feet of the bow of the Camperdown crashed twenty feet into the bowels of the Victoria. The Camperdown was halted by the heavy armor of the Victoria, and as her screws were reversed, she at once began to back away.

GENERAL DISASTER IMMINENT.

As all the other vessels were moving to get into double line behind the two leaders, they were bearing down upon the entangled ships, and a catastrophe involving all the ironclads was imminent. Only the coolness and prompt action of the other commanders prevented a general disaster. The Victoria's bow was now pointed all toward the shore. It seemed that Admiral Tryon did not realize the extent of the damage to the Victoria. As no accident of this kind has happened before, he could not know what the effect of the hole in the compartment was to be. He no doubt thought that as only one compartment was damaged, the others would keep his ship afloat, so when the Camperdown and the other ships signaled offers of boats, he replied that he did not need them. The Victoria began to under full steam. It is one of the rules of the British navy that if a ship is in danger of sinking, and shore is not far away, she must be got into shallow water so that if she goes down she may be raised again. So Admiral Tryon was making for the shore and was widening the distance between the Victoria and the other ships. When the Camperdown's ram struck the Victoria, Admiral Tryon, the navigating officer, two signal officers and the men at the wheel were all upon the bridge, either in full view or in the chart-house. Most of the crew were on the forward deck, lounging about, trying to keep cool under the blazing sun of the clear, calm day.

DISCIPLINE WAS PERFECT.

With the crash they rushed into the battery and as far aft as possible, but when the two vessels separated all returned to their places. Discipline was perfect. The admiral and officers remained steadfast upon the bridge, setting an example. So good was the discipline that within five minutes after the blow a diving suit had been brought on deck and a diver was getting into it to obey an order to go below and find out the extent of the damages. The untangling and the getting under full headway had taken some little time. About ten minutes after the blow the Victoria, having got something like two miles nearer shore from the scene of the collision, all at once leaned away over the starboard, and with a great roll and plunge beneath the calm surface of the sea. It was almost instantaneous. There was only a chance for a few wild cries and the Victoria was almost self submerged, bow foremost, with her swiftly-revolving screws whirring clear of the water and high in the air. Those on deck were plunged immediately into the water. The men forward and below had no time to rush to the deck, but found themselves groping for doors of rooms filled with water and compressed air. There was a little more time for those in the officers' quarters. They heard the shouts and warning cries and rushed to the almost perpendicular deck. Commander J. Ellicoe, lying in his berth sick with fever, started up and dashed to deck in pajamas to find himself immediately struggling in water. A lieutenant swam up to him, put his arm around him and despite the handicap of supporting a helpless man, was able to get away from the side of the sinking ship. The huge hull was drawing in the water as it went down and several hundred men, hurled suddenly into the water, fully dressed, had to battle against the increasing suction.

BURIED HER BOW

STILL ANOTHER PERIL.

A moment more and a new peril more horrible descended upon them. The great engine deep in the heart of the hull and inclosed in water-tight compartments was still throbbing at full speed and the great steel fingers of the twin screws were whirling round up in the air. As the vessel sank the screws came nearer and nearer the water and descended into the midst of struggling human beings. The vessel sank slowly and when the screws were low enough to begin to whirl in the water again the suction had increased until there was a deepening vortex like a maelstrom. At the bottom of this maelstrom the screws were revolving like circular knives. The poor creatures battled in vain against the suction. They were drawn down and thrown against the swift blades.

APPALLING SCENES.

Then came a scene which made the officers on the decks of the other warships of the fleet turn away, sick with horror. Screams and shrieks arose and in the white foam appeared reddened arms and legs and wrenched and torn bodies. Headless trunks were tossed out of the vortex to linger a moment on the surface and sink out of sight. All within reach of that vortex lost their presence of mind. Men who knew how to swim ceased swimming and fought with the waters. Men struck each other in frenzy and struck each other off. The deep cone of whirling water with the swift knives chopping human bodies at the bottom of it was a horror to daunt the bravest. One man who escaped says that he saw in this great vortex at least 50 of his fellows fighting with each other and with inevitable death. In a moment or so the knives disappeared and the vortex began to close up. The ship was beneath the surface just as the whirl was shallowed almost to the surface.

IN SCALDING WATER.

Then there was a muffled sound of thunder, the waters were tossed up and steam burst from them. Again the shrieks and screams burst from the swimmers. The boilers had exploded, the sea had rushed into the furnaces and the swimmers were beating waves of scalding waters. Thus in less than ten minutes death in three awful forms attacked the officials and crew of the Victoria—death by drowning, death by knife-like screws and death by scalding water.

WORK OF RESCUE.

With the first under plunge of the Victoria all the boats were called away from all the other ships and came straining over the calm sea to save the strugglers. These boats were seen picking up the fortunate ones who had got out of reach of the terrible vortex. So long as the vortex was there the boats dared not venture near, but they did lift from the scalding water several wretched sailors who were horribly burned. It is thought that more than half of those drowned got out of the ship, but were caught in the vortex or scalded to death by the boiling water.

THE ADMIRAL'S LAST ORDER.

Admiral Tryon stuck on the bridge and refused to leave it. Just before the Victoria made her under plunge he saw what was about to happen and issued an order for each man to save himself, but the order never got beyond the bridge, for ruin descended straightway.

MANY ACTS OF HEROISM.

The diver whom he had ordered below to look into damages was still on deck and dressed for his descent except his helmet. He would have been dragged to the bottom by his heavy lead-soled shoes had it not been for a seaman who stopped to cut him loose from his heavy clothes. The diver was saved but the man who cut him free was drowned.

There were many acts of heroism, self-forgetfulness and daring. The peril of those in the water was increased by the fact that the sea hereabouts is infested with sharks. It is the duty of the marines when a collision occurs to immediately go below and close all the water-tight compartments. When the Camperdown struck the Victoria, the Victoria's marines went below for their duty, and as a result out of 120 marines on the Victoria, 99 were lost.

SIMILAR DISASTERS WITHIN THIRTY YEARS.

Here is a table of similar disasters to British warships during the past 30 years:

The Orpheus, off Manukau, Feb. 5, 1863; lives lost, 190.

The Race Horse, off Che Foo, Nov. 4, 1864; 99 lost.

The Bombay, River Plate, Dec. 14, 1864; 91 lost.

The Slaney, Paracels, May 9, 1870; about 40 lost.

The Captain, off Finisterre, Sept. 7, 1870; 472 lost.

The Eurydice, off the Isle of Wight, March 24, 1878; 318 lost.

The Atalanta, in the Atlantic, March, 1880; 280 lost.

The Wasp, Tory Island, Sept. 22, 1884; 52 lost.

The Wasp, in the China Seas, September, 1887; 73 lost.

The Lily, Labrador, Sept. 16, 1889; 7 lost.

The Serpent, off the northwest coast of Spain, Nov. 10, 1890; 173 lost.

The Times says this morning: "Among the naval catastrophes of the century which, so far as loss of life is concerned, rank with the foundering of the Victoria are the wreck of the Birkenhead, 436 lives lost, in 1852; of the St. George, 731; the Defense, 587, and the Hero, 590, in 1811; of the Minotaur, 400, in 1810; of the Blenheim, 590, in 1807; of the York, 491, in 1806, and of the Invincible, 464, in 1801.

"These and the foundering of the Captain are, we believe, the only cases comparable with the awful event which we record to-day.

"It may be worth while adding that, with the Royal George, which at Spithead overset and foundered in 1882, there were lost upward of 600—in addition to Rear-Admiral Kempenfelt — officers, men and visitors, and that earlier in the last century the foundering of the Victory involved the sacrifice of upward of 1,000 souls, an unusually large proportion being midshipmen."

SERVICES IN MEMORY OF THE DEAD COMMANDER.

LONDON, June 27.—Services in memory Vice-Admiral Sir George Tryon were held to-day in St. Peter's Church, of which Vice-Admiral Tryon was an active member. The services were largely attended. Among those present was Lady Clementina Tryon, widow of the vice-admiral and members of her family, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke of Cambridge, Earl Spencer, George J. Goschen, ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Gladstone and a large number of high naval and military officers. The services were extremely impressive.

AN OCEAN COLLISION.

The Cunarder Servia Sinks the Big Sailing Ship McCallum.

The Latter Impaled on the Servia's Bow—Superb Seamanship—A Narrow Escape.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The first detailed account of the collision wherein the big sailing ship Alexander McCallum was sunk by the Cunarder Servia was told yesterday, when five men who formed a part of the McCallum's crew reached this port on board the steamship Alaska, of the Guion Line.

Collaj Anderson, able seaman, gave a reporter a graphic recital of the mishap which sent his vessel to the bottom.

The night of June 7, he said, found the ship in latitude 46°, longitude 69°, or about 60 miles south-southeast of Nantucket. With midnight came a fog which brought the horizon within a stone's throw of the vessel's side, and it so increased in density that all hands were called on deck for lookout purposes.

The men, 22 in number, were straining their eyes, when suddenly a faint point of light was seen to hover a moment on the starboard quarter. An instant later a huge shadow was evolved, and then came a shock and the noise of splintering timbers as the stem of the Cunarder crashed through the side of the ship. The Cunarder was traveling at such a rate that the ship was almost severed by the blow.

Then came a superb exhibition of seamanship on the part of the Servia's officers. Had the engines of that vessel been immediately reversed and the steamship backed clear of the wreck, the chances are that the McCallum would have sunk with all on board before the rescuing boats could have had time to pick them up. The Servia's commander appreciated the fact, for the engines, which had been slowed a moment previous to the collision, were set ahead again and the forward motion kept the wreck impaled upon the steamship's bow and prevented her sinking.

With a swiftness that would have reflected credit upon the crew of any man-of-war, the two lifeboats of the Servia were manned and lowered. The moment they touched the water the engines were reversed. As the vessel backed clear the water rushed into the frightful wound the prow had made and the boats, which were then on hand to pick off the men still clinging in the rigging, had hardly time for the work before the wreck lurched under, leaving a swirl behind her that resembled a small maelstrom.

Mate White was in his state room at the time of the collision, and was held there a prisoner by the bow of the Servia, which cut the compartment in two. When she backed away he was half drowned by the rush of water which poured into the gap. In some way he managed to extricate himself, and floated to the surface just as his ship showed an inclination to go the other way. Henry Mills, seaman, was never seen. He is supposed to have been below at the time of the collision.

The McCallum was in command of Capt. O'Brien, and was bound from London to New York with a cargo of chalk. The rest of the crew are still in England, whither they were carried by the Servia, which was outward bound when the collision occurred.

Health Officers in Council.

GUELPH, June 27.—The eighth annual meeting of the executive health officers of Ontario opened in the City Council chamber here this morning. Mayor Smith and Dr. Howett delivered addresses of welcome, which were replied to by President Willis, Chipman, Dr. Coventy (Windsor) and Dr. McDonald (Hamilton).

Prisoners Revolt.

FOLSOM CITY, Cal., June 28.—Twelve prisoners in the penitentiary here, headed by George Sontag, a brother of the notorious bandit, revolted yesterday afternoon. They seized the lieutenant of the guards and carried him with them. The guards fired, killing three persons, all life-termers, and mortally wounded Sontag.

Suicide at Wallaceburg.

WALLACEBURG, June 28.—J. G. Brander, brother of A. D. Brander, druggist, of this town, committed suicide at the Queen's Hotel here early this morning by shooting himself in his right temple with a small revolver. The weapon still remained grasped in his hand with one empty chamber. He was apparently laboring under a fit of temporary insanity.

Canadian Banks Involved.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Charges of a serious character have been made against the Northern Pacific Elevator Company and the Red River Valley Elevator Company, which recently went into the hands of a receiver. These companies controlled lines of elevators throughout the Northwest. They borrowed heavily from Canadian and eastern bankers on warehouse certificates. The case is in court on petition of the receiver to deliver the wheat out.

Business Sympathy.

A bright printer's clerk, who was instructed to write a letter of condolence to a firm, the head of which had recently died, did it in this way:

"We are greatly pained to learn of the loss sustained by your house, and extend to you our heartiest sympathy. We notice that the circular you send us announcing Mr. ——'s death was lithographed in the provinces. We regret that you did not see your way clear to let us estimate for the work. The next time there is a bereavement in your house we shall be glad to quote for your printing, and are confident that we can give you better work at less cost than anybody else in the business. Hoping soon to hear from you, we remain, with profound sympathy, yours truly."

THE CANTEEN CONDEMNED

By the local W. C. T. U.—Sunday Steamboats Scored—A Spirited Debate.

The W. C. T. U. held their semi-monthly meeting yesterday afternoon. Fifty-seven members were present. As the summer advances the attendance is not so large, though the interest and enthusiasm remains the same. Rev. Mr. Sage, of London West, kindly conducted the Bible lesson. A communication was read from Miss Tilley, Dominion corresponding secretary, conveying the thanks of the Dominion W. C. T. U. for the invitation to hold their next convention in this city and also the acceptance of the same.

A strong resolution expressing entire disapproval of the way in which the canteen is managed on the military camp ground was unanimously adopted. Also it was resolved that this union greatly regrets that the boats are allowed to run on Sunday, thus desecrating the Lord's Day.

At the close of the business four young ladies, members of the W. C. T. U., entered into a spirited debate. Subject: "Resolved, that the liquor traffic should be abolished by a prohibitory law." Misses Rigsby and Brenton took the affirmative, and Misses Trebilcock and Plewes the negative. Both sides displayed cleverness of thought and speech, and greatly interested the audience.

As the president, Mrs. Thornley, expects to be out of town for some weeks, a few farewell words were spoken, and all joined heartily in singing "God be with you till we meet again."

ATHLETICS.

Pen Mightier than Sword.

The course of true love was going smoothly enough with him until the man with the white flannel suit appeared. Then his life became scarcely bearable. In vain did he make covert reference to the undesirability of dudes as husbands, and say things about people who force the season. He could not shake her opinion that the occupant of that suit was a most interesting and attractive man.

Then he bethought him of a stratagem, and was observed to wrinkle his brow and say "Ha! ha!" several times in rapid succession. He proceeded to affect a friendship for his rival, and even induced him to accept a slight gift as a souvenir of their acquaintance.

Soon after the white flannel suit disappeared. Also the man. The suit was found afterward, but it was bespangled with black and looked like a circus clown's full dress uniform. The young man smiled and said the flannel suit was there, but the owner must have got caught in a shower and shrunk up.

Then he smiled again, for he knew that his rival was permanently out of the way.

He knew his business when he presented him with a balky fountain pen.—[Washington Star.

A Quiet Day Among the Volunteers.

The Battery Leave for Port Stanley This Morning.

A Soldier Breaks His Leg—Sergt.-Major Rowland's Career—The Twenty-eighth and Thirtieth—Happenings Around Camp.

Rain interfered somewhat with the afternoon drills yesterday and necessitated the calling in of the battalions from the field. The men have advanced to battalion drill and are making splendid progress. This morning at 7 o'clock the battery leave for Port Stanley to spend the rest of the time allotted for camp in target practice on the lake. The baggage and supernumeraries go down by rail in the morning. The cavalry go on their reconnoitering trip through the country to-day also, so the infantry will be left in sole charge of the field, and will have the entertainment of Hon. J. C. Patterson, Minister of Militia, should he arrive.

Yesterday was an uneventful one, save for the breaking of the leg of Corp. Ginn, of No. 6 Company, Twenty-sixth Battalion. The corporal comes from Arkona, and was playing ball in the evening on the field. He was chasing a fly and stepped into a hollow with the above result. The injured man was conveyed on a stretcher to the military hospital, where his injuries were attended to. The volunteers this year have shown an unusual inclination to remain within the lines at night and indulge in games and sports. There are generally two or three games of baseball in progress, a cricket match, a football game, or some lacrosse practice. Then there are feats of agility in jumping and running, and last night a tug-of-war in the cavalry lines between the four companies of the regiment. Court-right won the final tie. The men of the Twenty-eighth have a fiddler, and last night they enjoyed a "stag" dance greatly. Piper Angus and Sergt. Smith, of the Forty-eighth Highlanders, were again to the fore, the former with the shrill music of his pipes, and the latter dancing Scotch dances.

Sergt.-Major W. T. Rowland, of the Twenty-eighth Perth Battalion, is a native of Ireland and a remarkable man. Mr. Rowland was formerly sergeant-major of the Forty-seventh Regiment of Regulars and took part in the Crimean war. He has two medals and three clasps to show for engagements at Alma, Inkerman and Sebastapol. Mr. Rowland was recommended for the Victoria cross by the commander-in-chief for saving from drowning, in the midst of winter, and at the imminent risk of his own life, a comrade of the Twenty-eighth in Sebastapol. He was then employed as assistant provost marshal, but could not get the cross owing to the circumstances not having taken place on the field of battle. The risk of the deed was largely increased by the fact that Mr. Rowland was dressed in full uniform at the time. In 1866 he came to Canada with the Fifty-third Regiment and was stationed in London. From London he went with his regiment to Quebec, and from there to the West Indies, where he received his discharge. From the West Indies he came back to Canada and has been connected with the militia ever since. In 1870 he enrolled a company of old soldiers in London, himself acting as captain. Shortly after that he went to Stratford, O[nt.] has lived there ever since. The s[ame] major has seen thirteen years' servi[ce] the Twenty-eighth, during seven o[f] he has been acting in his present ra[nk] one would naturally suppose, Mr. R[owland] is by no means a young man, but [for] his age he is hearty and vigorous, a[nd] senior officers speak of him in h[igh] terms as an instructor. Previous t[o] Crimean war he served through[out] Mediterranean stations, on the Islan[ds] Corfu and Santa Mora. For two yea[rs] was in Malta and for some time at [Mal]ralter.

THE TWENTY EIGHTH BATTALION.

This battalion was organized in [1866] under the command of Lieut.-Col. [Fo]Service—since brigade major of this [dis]trict. Col. Wm. Smith succeeded him, [and] he was followed by Col. David Scott. [The] present commander is Col. R. S. McKni[ght] who has been connected with the battal[ion] in various ranks for many years. The b[at]talion consists of six companies—three fr[om] Stratford, two from St. Marys and o[ne] from Listowel. The majors are White, [of] St. Marys, and Hamilton, of Strat[ford], both of whom were formerly captains for many years. Maj. White is a lawyer and Maj. Hamilton is a doctor, and both are first-class military school men. Surgeon Parke is assisted in his duties by Assistant Surgeon Ellis. Mr. Wm. Lawrence, city treasurer of Stratford, is paymaster. The quartermaster is Mr. Beck. Adjutant M. J. Beam, of St. Marys, is not in camp this year. He is lying at his home at the point of death. Capt Moscrip is acting adjutant.

The captains are: Johnson, Cook, Moscrip, James Hamilton, Morphy and Guy. The lieutenants are: Haggerty, Eason, Colbert, Corrie, Copus, Jamieson, Shand and Gibson.

THE THIRTIETH RIFLES.

This battalion from Wellington is one that the County Council of that place takes pride and interest in. They are augmented by the Guelph City Council and the result is that each man receives a bonus of 25 cents in addition to his regular pay. This costs the county something, but the result is quite noticeable in the battalion. The Guelph Field Battery is also helped in this way. The battalion was formed like many others in 1866 under Col. Higginbotham. He was succeeded by Col. Clark (Hon. Charles), now Speaker of the Local House, Toronto. He has resigned since camp was inaugurated, and Col. White is now in charge. His fellow-officers are Major Mutrie, Major Allan, Capt. and Adjt. Porter, Major Harvey, Paymaster and Quartermaster Capt. Mann, Surgeon Johnson, and Assistant Surgeon Mennie.

The captains are Shultz, Craig, Moir, Coyne, Johnston, McDowell, Booth, Jamieson, Laidlaw, and Robinson. The lieutenants are Beattie, Conroy, Holton, Rose, Gilmour, Dodd. The battalion is the strongest one in camp—ten companies in all.

NOTES.

The battery will fire a royal salute on the hill at noon Dominion Day.

Capt. Denison lectured to the officers on "Fire Discipline" last night.

The Thirtieth were photographed in a body yesterday.

The officers of the London Field Battery are stayers. The youngest one—Capt. Hiscott—has been with them for ten years, and has proved himself a first-class soldier, while Surgeon-Major Brown has been connected with them since the battery formation in 1856.

The field officer to-day is Maj. McL[ean], Twenty-sixth Battalion; next for duty, Maj. Mutrie, Thirtieth. Medical officers for the day, Surgeon Roome, Twenty-sixth Battalion; next for duty, Surgeon Parke, Twenty-eighth Battalion.

The battery regimental ridout of noncoms. occurred on Monday night under the command of Sergeant-Major Alf. Taylor. A pleasant ride around the city was indulged in. An exercise ride was held yesterday morning to get the boys used to the saddle for their long ride to Port Stanley.

The canteen that was closed Sunday was opened again Tuesday morning.

Capt. Hobbs, of the Hussars, presented the best shot in each troop with a revolver at the ranges yesterday.

Canon Richardson assisted in the services at the R. C. R. I. Endeavor tent last night.

A Teacher Arraigned Before the Finance Committee

Charged With Punishing a Pupil Too Severely—Evidence Pro and Con—The Committee's Verdict.

The finance committee of the Board of Education met last evening to consider certain charges made against Miss Coyne, principal of Colborne street school. Mr. Harry Thorne accused the teacher of having administered an uncalled for and too severe thrashing to his 11-year-old boy. The lad's arms, he said, were badly marked and blood was oozing from one of the marks.

Miss Coyne explained that the boy refused to obey her and that she whipped him on the arms to make him submit to a thrashing with the regulation rubber strap on the hands.

Inspector Carson explained that the boy was shown to him, and said that he considered the punishment had been too severe. On account of the offense the boy should have received a whipping, but not such a severe one.

The lad himself acknowledged that he should have been punished.

Mr. Carson further stated that the regulations would not permit of such a thrashing. The rule provides that if a pupil does not submit to corporal punishment he should be sent home until he is willing to take such punishment.

Miss Coyne explained that the reason she had sent for the lad, Thorne, to come to her was that he had struck little boys over the hands with a piece of wire. The boy refused to obey her, and she took him by the coat-collar and forced him into the school. Here he again refused to obey her, and she struck him over the arms with the strap. She punished him, and he appeared quite penitent. She then ordered him to go into his room, and he ran out of school with the other boys. Miss Coyne said she could not have been in a temper when she whipped the boy.

Dr. English was present and explained that both arms were bruised in numerous places. He saw the lad two days after he had been punished, and thought that the whipping had certainly been severe. No child should receive such a punishment.

Miss Trebilcock explained that she had shut the door and that over a dozen of the pupils were in the room. The boy was "hollering" and kicking, and the punishment was not too severe. The boy was habitually disobedient.

Miss Yates said she had witnessed the boy's disobedience.

Misses Johnson and McCutcheon, two pupils, stated that they had seen the boy striking smaller boys with the wire, and had also seen him disobey Miss Coyne.

Dr. Campbell—According to the regulations the teacher has evidently exceeded her liberties.

Mr. McRobert said that no such punishment would likely be seen outside the Central Prison.

Mr. Alexander moved that Miss Coyne's attention be drawn to the regulations and that she be cautioned against a repetition of the offense. The motion defined that the boy's conduct was deserving of punishment, but that Miss Coyne should not have inflicted so severe a chastisement.

The motion carried and the committee adjourned. Messrs. McRobert, Griffin, Stephenson, Dewar, R. J. Blackwell, Dr. Campbell, Powell, Sanders, Craig and Alexander, and Secretary McElheran were present.

A CENTURY OF MEETING PLACES.

A book that will be of permanent value* has just been completed and published by Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto. The recent opening of the new Parliament Buildings at Toronto suggested to the mind of this versatile young Canadian the propriety of presenting to the public pen-pictures of the various homes of the law-makers for this portion of Canada since the first Government was set up in 1792. How many and interesting have been the changes! Mr. Yeigh provides most entertaining historical sketches, together with many fine engravings of the legislative structures, past and present, and of the leaders in the Parliamentary arena during the last 100 years.

Twenty-eight years after Canada was ceded to the British by France, the King and Parliament of Great Britain divided Quebec into Upper and Lower Canada, and John Graves Simcoe, an English lieutenant-colonel, who had figured in the revolution, was appointed the first Lieutenant-Governor of the Upper Province. Though his first Government was established at Kingston—in a little log church, the historian tells us—Newark, now Niagara, which had previously been known as Lennox, was chosen as the capital. At that time the white population of Upper Canada was only 10,000. On Sept. 17, 1792, the sixteen representatives held their first session. There is a dispute as to the place of meeting. Some say that his first Parliament was held under an oak tree, which is still standing at the southern limit of the beautiful property known as the Anchorage. Others assert that it was convened in the upper room of a Freemason's hall, while there are those who claim that it met in a camp tent, and that Simcoe took his seat on a camp stool when he delivered his address. Another authority asserts that Navy Hall was the original meeting place of the Legislature as well as Simcoe's official residence. Certain it is that the Legislative council chamber was in a building near the barracks of Butler's Rangers on the hill. Simcoe started the legislative machine with fully as much pomp as has ever been displayed at an opening of the Imperial Parliament. He delighted the U. E. Loyalists and caused great wonderment among the Indians by his glittering cavalcade. Complaint is made nowadays of the lack of attendance on prayers by members. If they had served under Simcoe they would have been compelled to listen to a sermon as well as prayers before the House finally prorogued. Small though the first Parliament was, it sowed valuable legislative seed. The country was given its first constitution; English law was made the rule, instead of French, till then prevalent; trial by jury was established, and a bill was passed to "prevent the further introduction of slaves into this Province." The House of Assembly desired the bill to provide "for the gradual suppression of slavery," but the Legislative Council thought this proposition altogether too radical! In 1793 the Legislature ordered that all bills passed should henceforth be translated into French "for the benefit of the inhabitants of the western district of this Province and other French settlers who may come to reside within this Province." This is the first reference to the dual language question that we have in the official records.

It is not generally known that Gov. Simcoe came very near locating the capital of Upper Canada in London. Soon after his arrival in Newark, he found that place to be unsuitable for various reasons. Indeed, he chose the site of this city, then known as La Franche, as his capital. By the way, the Thames was then known as the River Trancke, and was a much more imposing stream than it now is. However, Gov. Simcoe was prevailed upon to decide in favor of Little York, the present site of Toronto, and there, in 1794-5, the governor lived in a tent that originally belonged to Capt. Cook, the intrepid voyager, perfecting his plans for the erection of new parliamentary buildings. The structures were of wood, and were ostentatiously called "The Palace of the Government." They were utilized when Parliament was not sitting as the courtroom for the Court of King's Bench. At that time, what is now Toronto was surrounded by dense woods, bears were often shot on King street, and at night the legislator who might be out of doors could easily hear the hungry wolves howling! While the work was in progress, the Governor signed an order for rum to be given to the carpenters. Then, and for long after, it was believed that alcoholic stimulants were strength-givers. Before the first meeting of the new Legislature in its new quarters the Governor notified the inhabitants of York that 25 gentlemen will want board and lodging during the sessions," and he added that this might "possibly induce them to fix up their houses and lay in provisions to accommodate them." Honorable Peter Russell, who succeeded Governor Simcoe, was owner of slaves, and while holding this elevated position he advertised for sale "a black woman named Peggy and her son named Jupiter," the price set upon Peggy being $150 and upon Jupiter $200.

The liberty of the people was very much restricted in other directions. In 1797 the Assembly by a vote of eight to two declined to accede to the petition of "Darius Dunham and 119 other members of a Methodist society, praying that Parliament provision the same toleration be extended to them as to other sects in this Province, so as to give validity to their marriages." Many years elapsed before the Methodists obtained fair play from the dominant party. In the early years of this century petitions in favor of granting the ballot were first presented, but it took over 60 years to effect the reform. Verily, great changes, even though in themselves beneficial, are often brought about with difficulty.

The second Parliament buildings of Upper Canada were burned by the United States troops on April 27, 1813. The destruction of the State papers and records proved a far greater loss than the burning of the structures. In a duel that took place at the back of these buildings in 1800, Attorney-General John White was shot by John Small, clerk of the executive council, and soon afterwards died.

In 1813, while Sir Gordon Drummond was military governor, Parliament met in the ball-room of Jordan's York Hotel, and for two sessions the House talked of little else but war at home and abroad. Seven members were found to be absent when Parliament met in 1814—Alex. McDonald, Ralph Church, John McGregor and Wm. McGregor, prisoners with the enemy; John Wilson, sick; Abraham Marcle and Joseph Willcocks, deserted to the enemy. The deserting legislators were expelled from the House and their estates declared forfeited. After one session in the hotel ball-room several succeeding sessions were convened in the house afterwards occupied by Chief Justice Draper, at the northwest corner of Wellington and York streets. In 1815, Gov. Gore returned from England. He did not get along well with Parliament. Some measures that they proposed did not meet with his approval, and he declared he "would dismiss the rascals." Suiting action to word, he proceeded to the House in undress garb and sent the members about their business.

The third House of Parliament was completed in 1820. It was a substantial brick structure, and occupied the site of the Toronto jail on King street. In 1824 the buildings were again destroyed by fire, this time by an over-heated flue. The old general hospital was the place of meeting for the next three sessions, when the old court house was selected as a temporary home. This brings us down to 1832, when the new buildings were finished on Front street. Within the walls of that structure, so recently deserted in favor of the handsome new buildings in the Queen's Park, there were some remarkable achievements. There was fought the struggle for responsible Government; there the clergy reserves secularization was accomplished in 1858; there the ballot and manhood suffrage replaced the old restricted franchise; there the last vestige of favoritism in religious matters was wiped out; there the splendid educational system of our Province was developed; and there Sir Oliver Mowat, to whom this interesting work is dedicated, completed his 21st continuous year as Premier of this progressive Province.

In the stirring times of 1837 these old Parliament buildings were used as a barracks and an arsenal. Again, in 1859, after the peregrinating Parliament left the structure, there was another military occupation. Then various British regiments were quartered in the buildings. After the act uniting the two Provinces was passed in 1841 the chamber was deserted for nearly ten years. Then, in 1849, it was turned into a lunatic asylum. It was also temporarily turned to account as the quarters of the Court of Queen's Bench and as a medical school. From 1861 to 1867 the buildings were utilized as military barracks, and from 1867 to 1892 the sessions of the Ontario Legislature were held in them.

Mr. Yeigh devotes chapters to famous scenes in the old chamber, to the reporters' gallery and the notables who have sat in it, to the governors and their homes, to the "privileges" of the House, and to the new buildings in which the Assembly and its officers are now quartered. An admirable list is the honor roll of Parliamentarians, with the list of Speakers. Altogether, the work, which is handsomely printed and bound, is unique in its conception and complete in its outline. It should have a large circulation.

*ONTARIO'S PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS; or a Century of Legislation, 1792—1892. A Historical Sketch. By Frank Yeigh, Toronto. Illustrated. Toronto: The Williamson Book Company (limited).

A correspondent of the American Israelite in Jerusalem says the Sultan's Government has again licensed Jewish real estate brokers and purchasers to acquire landed property in Palestine without being Mussulmans, and secures to all settlers the protection of the High Porte and equal rights with the natives of the land. This opens that country again to foreign immigration, and will attract thousands from Roumania, Russia and Morocco. Dr. Senner is not there, thanks to the Sultan. Since Baron Rothschild founded colonies on land bought by him for the purpose, the tithes due the Turkish Government from these properties have been almost quintupled. This circumstance having been brought to the knowledge of Baron Edmond, he proposes to buy more land, and to advance to the Government the tithes for a certain number of years. M. Elie Scheid, of Paris, the capable administrator of the colonies and Baron Edmond de Rothschild's confidential agent, has been for some time in Constantinople, and the object of his visit is said to be to submit the Baron's offer to the Government.

Ten coach loads of people, accompanied by the Twenty-first Fusiliers Band, left Windsor for Tecumseh on Tuesday to celebrate the Jean Baptiste anniversary.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN.

A gentleman interested in music, and who knows both England and Canada, tells me the singing in chorus in the former country is not on the average so loud as on this side the Atlantic. According to this observer the English tone, though not so loud, is sweet and with considerable carrying effect in proportion to volume. Climate probably has much to do with the piercing voices so prevalent on this continent, but lack of parental care, and the deadly shrieking in unison in many of our public schools may be partly responsible. I suppose there are very few who pause to remember that a sweet, not over-loud, cultivated voice is more to be desired, and is a better passport, than a merely pretty face.

When visiting the militia camp at Carling's Heights yesterday I was struck with the fact that though the comfort of man is well looked after, the Ottawa authorities have discriminated against the horses. So very stingy has the Government become in matters of this kind that they refused to roof over the stalls in which the horses are tied up. This leaves the animals constantly exposed to danger from the changeability of the weather. When a horse is in a park he can take refuge under a tree during a rain or hail storm, or to get shelter from the scorching rays of the sun. There is no such luck for the horse at camp. When not in action he has to stand in his open-air stall, exposed to every variety of weather. Several of the officers complained bitterly to me of the policy that provides for expending large sums of money on unnecessary works, while neglecting the comforts of those who, out of patriotic goodwill, give so much time and effort to make the militia force efficient. Apart from this view of the question, I join with those who believe that the authorities at Ottawa should be indicted by the Humane Society. If the horses could speak they would give unassailable evidence.

The discussion was as to the most effective colors in ladies' footwear. My friend, the artist in color, said the white canvas boots were unbeautiful, and made the feet look large. The tan colors, in his view, were a little better, but not much. Nothing was so dainty, after all, nothing so much prevented the look of Chicago feet, as black footwear.

I have a friend who suffers periodically from rheumatism. He is much excited over a statement he read the other day regarding strawberries, of which he is very fond. It was said that no one addicted to rheumatic twinges should partake of this fruit, as the acid but added to the acid in the blood that is alleged to be the cause of rheumatism. Now, is this so? Will some medical man tell me?

Some time ago I heard an animated but frank conversation, pro. and con., on a curious question, namely, whether it was possible for the greatest local saint in our midst to go through the time between breakfast and supper without transgressing one or both of the following injunctions: 1. To say nothing disparaging of any other human being. 2. To speak nothing but the truth during the interval named. 3. To say nothing directly or by implication in praise of one's self. That a general conversation eddying here and there should strike such a topic is not odd. What struck me as odd was the frank unanimity with which all agreed that the commandments above mentioned were impossible of complete observance.

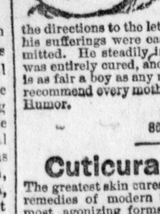
Talking of corporal punishment in schools reminds me of the whalings the boys used to get when I went to school. There were no limitations to the powers of the teacher in those days, and many an exemplary thrashing I have seen administered to recalcitrant pupils. One thing that strikes me at this day is the contradictory views entertained by the parents on the question of whipping at school. I heard of one mother recently who went to school and complained because the teacher did not keep her son in more thorough subjection. "He should be whipped every time he disobeys you," was her rejoinder to the teacher's explanation that the boy was scarcely as tractable as he ought to be. All parents do not hold alike, however. I know of a male teacher who whipped a very bad boy, who had been guilty of most irritating disregard of school rules, that had a visit from the father of the youth. The father castigated the teacher in return. The boy is now a ne'r-do-well. It is a difficult problem this rearing of children, and it is much easier to lay down rules for its proper solution than to carry them out under variable circumstances.

ON FIRE WITH ECZEMA

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby. Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.



My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face, and head, until he was nearly covered; his torturing agonies were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $3 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were eased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor.

In the thirteenth inning New York made a run, but the Reds tied them. Two more innings were played without a result, when New York scored again. But Cincinnati again drew alongside. The other innings were played without a run on either side, and the game was called on account of darkness. Attendance 2,000. Score:

THE TURF.

THE COWBOY RACE.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 27.—The first of the cowboys, John Berry on the chestnut Boison, reached the World's Fair entrance at 9:30 a.m. to-day. He made the last 150 miles of the race in 24 hours. Emmet Albright came in second, arriving at 11:05. Albright made the last 146 miles in 24 hours.

Albright, who finished second, will contest Berry's claim to the race. It is claimed that he used American horses instead of bronchos. The prizes are $1,000. W. F. Cody will present the prizes. Besides the prize of $1,000 Mr. Cody offers $500 to be divided into three purses. The Colt's Firearms Company will present to the winner a beautifully designed revolver; Collins & Moore, of Omaha, a valuable cowboy saddle; Montgomery, Ward & Co., a saddle, bridle and spurs. The distance from Chadron, Neb., where the start was made on June 13, is 911 miles. There were ten starters.

THE I. O. G. T. GRAND LODGE

Begins Its Fortieth Annual Session.

Two Hundred Delegates Present—Reports of the Chief Templar and Grand Secretary.

HAMILTON, June 27.—The 40th annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Canadian Independent Order of Good Templars opened this morning, with F. S. Spence in the chair and about 200 delegates representing every section of Ontario present.

REPORT OF CHIEF TEMPLAR.

The report of F. S. Spence, G. C. T., refers to the important work accomplished by the Good Templar Order during the 40 years of its existence. The Ontario plebiscite is referred to as one of the most notable steps in advance yet taken by the Ontario Legislature, and it is expected that it will be instrumental in creating a large revival of temperance sentiment between now and Jan. 1, when the vote will be taken. The royal commission had not received the indorsement of the Good Templar Order, yet it was the opinion of the grand chief templar that the forthcoming report would embody a great deal of valuable information. Reference is made to the action of the recent Liberal convention in declaring in favor of a plebiscite for the Dominion, which is taken to mean that if the Liberal party are returned to power and a vote favorable to prohibition were taken, then the party would be bound forthwith to enact a prohibitory law for the Dominion. Considerable missionary work had been done during the year, but the work had been hindered to a large extent for want of funds, consequent upon the reduction of the per capita tax from 12 cents to 8 cents. The grand chief strongly recommends the adoption of the district system as the best for the furtherance of mission work in the order.

GRAND SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The report of Mr. Thos. Lawless, grand secretary, shows lodges on the roll, June 1, 1892, to have been 243; lodges now on the roll, 210; membership, 8,616. Total receipts for the year have been $3,408 97, which, with the balance on hand of $870 11, makes the total cash receipts for the year $4,279 08. The disbursements have been $4,067 60, leaving balance in treasury, June 1, 1893, $211 48. The Grand Lodge has been registered in the Insurance Department of Ontario as a fraternal benefit society, and is now authorized to undertake fraternal insurance through the benefit association. The Good Templars' course of study is urged upon the members for their adoption, and the necessity of sowing the country knee-deep with temperance literature is pressed upon the members.

The superintendent of the Juvenile Templars also presented a report.

The morning session was devoted principally to report of credential committee and the initiating to Grand Lodge degree of nearly 100 new members. Addresses were delivered by Messrs. Joseph Malins, John Sutherland and Dr. Mann.

With moderate receipts of wheat and oats and a steady demand, there was little or no change in the value of these staples. The highest price paid for white wheat during the week was $1 13 and the lowest $1 09. The close was $1 10 for red—$1 10 the highest, $1 06 the lowest—and $1 08 the closing figures.

Oats touched $1 14 early in the week for choice black; closed at $1 10 to $1 12 for all kinds, the lowest point being $1 10 for short white; supply fair; demand strong.

There were no receipts of any other kind of grain except two small lots of peas. The price paid for them was 95c.

Eggs fluctuated between 11c and 13c for fresh in baskets and store lots. To-day values were 12c to 13c for baskets and 11c to 12c for store lots; supply steady; demand good.

Butter firm and active at 14c to 18c, according to quality and quantity. Pound rolls were scarce and in extra good demand.

Nothing new occurred in the meat market; both the supply and demand were steady and value unchanged.

Wool was active, all samples of fine selling at 18c to 18½c; coarse mostly at 18c; some sales of ordinary at 18c without culling; demand good, and competition keen.

Hides, skins and tallow steady.

Strawberries on Tuesday and Wednesday on the market sold at 5c by the load and 6c by the quart.

[illegible]ourse case against James James, [illegible] of the Western Hotel, charged [illegible]ch [illegible] the liquor bylaw, was con[illegible]he Police Court this morning. A [illegible]pa[illegible]med frosted glass, which [illegible]n removed from the bar-[illegible]dow after the alleged offence [illegible]en committed, and before [illegible]ledge of the information having [illegible]d by the constables could have [illegible] the defendant—these facts being [illegible]by evidence—was produced. The [illegible]hen could readily, Mr. Frank Love [illegible], have seen the interior of the apart[illegible]through plain portions of the glass [illegible]sing their flash lights. Mr. James [illegible] his son and the hotel porter [illegible]swore that on every night since the [illegible]w came into force the blind was left [illegible] Charles James, the bartender, said [illegible]had such not been unexceptionally the [illegible]he would have remembered the day on [illegible]ch the constable swore to the contrary [illegible]having to raise the obstruction. He [illegible] not had to do this for two [illegible]tha. Mr. Love pointed out that the [illegible]ence amply vindicated the accused. [illegible]magistrate, however, held a contrary [illegible]. Mr. James was fined $20. City [illegible]ineer Graydon had H. E. Boomer and [illegible]liam Bowman up for alleged infraction [illegible]the fire-limits by-law. The cases were [illegible]journed. Harriett Ashworth charged [illegible]nna Leapost, who used to board with [illegible]er, with the larceny of a watch. Mr. [illegible]cKillop stated that, with his knowledge [illegible]f the case, he would not be able to demand [illegible] conviction. No evidence was offered, and the magistrate discharged the prisoner.

HIS REPENTANCE.

"Well, you know best. I only say if it should be Is it this that has kept him from the house?"

"Yes. Oh, papa, when you were blaming him for taking foolish and unjust offense against Lady Oswald's will, I wished you could have known what a mistake it was."

"And, Sara, I have urged on Caroline, as you heard me, that the money should be secured to herself. I have spoken to your aunt; I have written of it to Mr. Oswald Cray—for that is the purport of my note to him. My dear, do you reiterate the same to them by word of mouth; and say that I urged it again with my dying breath. I don't know why the necessity for this should cling to my mind so strong," he continued in a dreamy tone. "Unless it is because I dreamt a night or two ago that Mark had run through all his means and Caroline was lying in some strange place, ill, and in grievous poverty. It was a vivid dream; and it is as present to me now as when I dreamt it."

Sara pressed her hands upon her face. The effort to sustain her calmness was getting beyond her strength.

"Say that I urged it again with my dying breath! And give my love to the two little boys, Sara. Tell them that Uncle Richard would have sent for them to take a last farewell had death not come upon him so suddenly. But there's no time; and tell them we shall meet again in that far-off land, when their toils and mine shall alike be over. Charge them to be ever working on for it."

She could not contain herself longer. Her very heart was breaking. And she turned with choking sobs and hid her face upon his breast.

"Don't, my darling! Don't grieve hopelessly. It is God's will to take me, and therefore we should not sorrow as those without hope. I have tried of late to live very near him, to resign myself to him in all things. My life had become one long, weary trouble, Sara—perhaps he is taking me from it in love."

"O papa! But I shall be left!"

"Ah, child, but you are young; life for you is only in its morning, and though clouds have gathered overhead, they may clear away again, leaving only brightness behind them. Think what it has been for me! To wake from troubled sleep in the night of pain, to the dread that ere the day closed the name of my only remaining son should be in the mouths of men—a felon! Child, no wonder that I am dying."

Sara could not speak. She lifted her arm and let it fall across him. Dr. Davenal laid his hand lovingly on the bowed head.

"Yes, I am resigned to die. I would have lived on longer if I could; but that is denied me, and God has reconciled me to the decree. When you shall come to be as old as I am, Sara, you will learn how full of mercy are the darkest troubles, if we but open our eyes to look for it."

Sara Davenal, in her keen distress, could not see where the mercy lay for her. To her her father seemed to be the very consummation of all earthly misery. How many more of us have so felt when stern death was taking one whom we loved better than life!

"I am so glad I gave that money of Lady Oswald's back to the rightful owners!" he resumed, after a pause. "It has brought its comfort to me now. I am glad, too, that I have lived to see them in possession of it; that no vexatious delays were made to interfere. Had it not been settled before I died, there's no knowing what might have arisen. Sara, remember that our past acts find us out on our dying bed. Whether they have been good or evil, they come home to us then."

"Papa, you have ever been good," she said, amidst her raining tears. "None but good acts can come home to you."

"Child, what are you saying! What are we all in the sight of God? We can but cling to him, and plead our Saviour's sacrifice."

His voice had grown so faint that it was more by guessing than by hearing that she understood the words. Presently she looked up and saw that his eyes were closed; but his lips were in motion, and she thought he was praying. She began to wish he would get into bed, but when she attempted to move, his hand tightened around her.

"No; stay where you are. God bless you! God bless you always, my child!"

She remained on as before, her cheek resting on the dressing-gown. Presently Miss Bettina came in.

"It is the most wrong thing for you to sit like this, Richard," she was beginning, when she caught sight of his closed eyes. "Is he asleep, Sara? How could you let him go to sleep in this chair? He ought to— What's the matter?"

Miss Bettina—calm, cold and impassive Miss Bettina—broke off with a shriek as she spoke the last words. She went closer to him and touched his forehead.

Sara rose; a bewildering look of hopeless terror took possession of her own face as she saw that white one lying there. Richard Davenal had passed to his rest.

CHAPTER XXIX.

SORROW.

To describe the sorrow, the consternation that fell on all Hallingham by the death of Dr. Davenal, would be a fruitless task. People could not believe that he was really dead. It had been asserted that the danger was past, and he was getting better rapidly. They looked at each other in a bewildered sort of way, and asked what he had died of? A neglected cold, was the answer of those who know best, or supposed they knew—the medical body of Hallingham. And indeed there was little doubt that they were correct, the immediate malady which had deprived the town of that valuble life, was a very simple thing—a cold, neglected at the beginning.

Sara Davenal was stunned; stunned with the weight of the calamity, with the grief it brought. And yet it probably fell upon her with less startling intensity than it would have done had she been in the full suntide of prosperity. She had been recently living in nothing but sorrow. The grief and terror brought to her by that night's unhappy secret (which you know was connected with her brother) had been succeeded by the withdrawal of the friendship—to call it by a light name—of Oswald Cray. She had believed that the world could bring no other calamity that could add to her misery; she had not thought of that most grievious one —a father's death.

In all pain there must be a reaction. The very violence of the first grief induces it; and it came sooner to Sara Davenal than it comes to most sufferers. Or, it may be, that the real nature of the grief brought its own effects. Had it been simple mourning alone, the natural sorrow for the loss of a good and loving father, she might have gone on weeping for months; but there was behind that heritage of terror on her brother's account, there was the consciousness that with her the heavy secret was left, and also the com[...]tion of its purchase. If Edward died abroad, then that was also to be burnt.

A Wonderful Cure—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little affect. But since using three bottles of the VEGETABLE DISCOVERY the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know." 3

THE RIGHT TO BE CHILDREN.

[From Wives and Daughters for June.]

If there is any right of children to be more sacredly respected than any other it is their right to be young. The people who have only within the last ten or twenty years come into the world ought to be kept as free as possible from the follies and futilities of older life. The child oppressed with gauds and trinkets, or the one made miserable by the consciousness that another child is more braceletted or necklaced, be-flounced or be-curled than itself, is as much more piteous than the small starveling at the baker's window as moral deformity is worse than physical need. The sooner innocent children are turned into hollow little worldlings, the sooner vanishes the hour "of splendor in the grass, of glory in the flower," which is the divine inheritance of childhood. Putting toddlers into long dresses that trip them up and obstruct their free motion for no other reason than that they look "cute" in them, sending them when a year or two older to children's parties where elaboration in dresses and dinners is expected, [wa]rping their tender bodies into imitations [of] fashionable middle-aged idiocy, forcing [thei]r minds through a wilderness of [...]es, from which they emerge bruised, [...]sted, but infinitely thankful that they [are] "through"—these are some of the [...] that make the dew of youth so [...]us and so scarce.

AFTER THE COOKING LECTURE.

She measured out the butter with a very solemn air,
The milk and sugar also; and she took the greatest care
To count the eggs correctly, and to add a little bit
Of baking powder, which, you know, beginners oft omit;
Then she stirred the lot together and she baked it for an hour;
But she never quite forgave herself for leaving out the flour.

MISS BORDEN NOT AT CHURCH.

In Receipt of Numerous Written Offers of Marriage.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 26.—Miss Lizzie Andrew Borden did not go to church Sunday, nor did her sister Emma leave the house. Many curious persons stood about the Borden home and the church only to be disappointed. The church was well filled, but the Rev. Mr. Jubb made no reference to the Borden case in his sermon.

Miss Borden's letters continue to accumulate. She has received many offers of marriage and many suggestions as to how she may best pursue the murderer of her parents. She has begun to answer the congratulatory letters sent her by the members of the church society to which she belonged, and is already wearied of much of her correspondence. She has not formulated definite plans for the future, and is willing to receive only her most intimate friends.

SCIENCE HAS SOLVED THE PROBLEM!

The Little One Safe!

For many years our best physicians have looked for infant food that would contain all the nutritive properties sufficient to develop the child's bone, muscle and fat, and which would be digestible from the time of birth until the milk set of teeth were completed. Science has given such a food to the profession for the benefit of infants. Lactated Food combines all the wished-for properties to the highest extent. It has also the very valuable quality of overcoming irritability of the stomach and bowels, and overcoming constipation. It surpasses every other known food in these important points. Lactated Food fully meets every requirement of the young and tender infant, and very often is the agent that preserves life. The mother that neglects to use Lactated Food for her young babe, runs a fearful risk of losing it during the heated term. Thousands of little ones are now being consigned to the grave, owing to ignorance and carelessness in feeding. The best doctors are now urging mothers to use Lactated Food, as they are fully aware of its wonderful life-saving properties.

The storm that struck the strawberry town Sunday evening was heavier than any in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The hailstones came down in a fast and furious manner and completely depleted the trees of their store of young fruit, while the strawberries suffered seriously.
