AN INSULT TO FRANCE

Such is the Interpretation of Turkey's Peculiar Attitude.

Duke of Montebello Snubs Sultan's Representative Before French Diplomats at St. Petersburg. St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—Russian diplomats privately predict an open rupture between France and Turkey on account of the trouble about the French Quay Co.

An incident significant of the strained relations between the two powers took place during the festivities in connection with the marriage of Grand Duchess Olga Alexandrovna and Grand Duke Peter Alexandrovich of Oldenburg, Aug. 9.

In the very presence of the diplomatic corps, the Turkish ambassador, approached the Duke of Montebello, the French ambassador, and said: "My dear count, I presume that the little unpleasantness between your government and my own will shortly be settled."

The marquis coolly replied: "Let us hope so. However, the Sultan's treatment of M. Constant, our ambassador, is an insult to France, and I consider what you term a 'little unpleasantness' a most deplorable incident." Saying which the French ambassador bowed profoundly and left the Turk confused and speechless in the midst of a group of courtiers and foreign ministers.

Paris, Aug. 17.—There has been a rumor of the recall of Mont Bey, Turkish ambassador to Paris, on the ground that he had not displayed energy enough in the dispute pending between France and Turkey. This is the port's chief method of action. It delays negotiations as much as possible, with the idea of fangling up its opponents in the thousand and one strings of oriental chicanery. The plan does not always succeed. Least of all will it prove successful with an ambassador like M. Constant, who could give points in finesse to a whole batch of Ottoman diplomats.

NASTY ACCIDENT

Chatham Lady has a Narrow Escape in Runaway Mix-up.

Wednesday evening, as Mr. and Mrs. Adam Taylor, Witherpoon street, were driving on the 6th concession, Raleigh, an accident befell Mrs. Taylor that might have cost her her life, and as it was inflicted in a moment, which she is but slowly recovering.

Mr. Taylor had purchased a cow from a Raleigh farmer and was driving the animal through the gate. Mrs. Taylor was holding the horse on the road, and in attempting to turn out in order to make room the lines became crossed and the horse, a spirited animal, backed into the deep ditch on the left.

Mrs. Taylor was thrown from the buggy and, becoming entangled in the wheels, was dragged for a considerable distance before the horse, which had taken fright, could be stopped by Mr. Taylor and others, who immediately came to her assistance. The rig was completely wrecked.

Another buggy was procured from Mr. Soutar and Mr. and Mrs. Taylor started at once for home.

PAUL AND WILLIAM MEET IN MUTUAL ADMIRATION SOCIETY

Kruger and Redmond Came Together in Holland and Condole Upon their Alleged Woes—Ex-President Says Boers are not Frightened.

London, Aug. 19.—The Freeman's Journal, of Dublin, publishes an interview between Mr. Kruger and William Redmond in Hilversum, Holland, in the course of which the former President of the South African Republic, expressing gratitude for Irish support, said he regarded the Irish as "brothers in oppression," and urged the Nationalist members of the British Parliament to continue their "efforts in the cause of justice and truth."

When asked concerning the effect of Lord Kitchener's recent proclamation and of Mr. Chamberlain's speeches, Mr. Kruger replied:—"My people are not to be frightened by such proclamations or speeches, which will only encourage them to continue fighting. The British have used armed natives against the burghers from the beginning, but we have not used armed Kaffirs. It is and has always been against our principles to use the black men against the white."

Mr. Kruger emphatically denied the existence of a Dutch conspiracy against British influence in South Africa, and repeated his former statements about the Genesis of the war. When asked regarding Great Britain's promises as to treatment of the Boers after surrender, he said:—"I know Great Britain's promises. You in Ireland ought to know them. The British promise to lead us money to put things right. Then if it were not repaid our land would be taken. They ask us to allow a rope to be put around our necks and to call that freedom. We should be slaves."

After expressing his firm conviction that God in good time would give the Boers deliverance, he remarked:—"Even now we could rebuild our country, but to do so we must have full independence. He emphasized the word 'full.' When asked about farm-burning and the concentration camps, he exclaimed:—"Why do they rob women and children? There are our own men to fight against. I do not believe the British people know what is being done in their name. If they did know, they would stop it."

Mr. Kruger said nothing had been definitely settled on the subject of a visit to the United States. According to Mr. Redmond, his appearance before the House of Commons on Friday was "made out of whole cloth."

ADDRESS OF KING EDWARD CLOSES BRITISH PARLIAMENT

Makes Reference to the Work in South Africa—Comments on Prorogation by the London Press—Strong Talk.

London, Aug. 17.—Parliament wound up its business to-day, and was prorogued. Black Rod (Gen. Sir Michael Biddulph) summoned the Commons at about 4 o'clock to the House of Lords to hear the King's speech. The royal commissioners on this occasion were the Lord Chancellor, Earl Salisbury; the Duke of Marlborough, Lord Ashbourne, the Earl of Kintore and Earl Walgrave. They were all at the arrival of the King's speech.

The King's speech at the prorogation of parliament to-day is the occasion of much comment. The Pall Mall Gazette refers to the results accomplished, with annotations on "The Decay of Parliamentary Government," and "the break-down of the constitutional system." However this may be, finance was the only big thing dealt with during the session. Even the Times Standard points out the decline of the authority of the ministers in the House of Commons. The closure has been used more frequently than ever before.

Mr. Baileys, the government leader, has delighted the cynics by his cool unconcern in walking into the House of Commons at eleven o'clock and breaking off debate by the closure.

The Statist says the government has bungled in the war and in finance. It defines Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, as a "politician absolutely ignorant of finance, and who knows as little about the money market as any other country gentleman." The paper contrasts the effects of the enormous sums borrowed by the United States in the civil war and by France in 1870 with the failure in consols resulting from the methods of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and attributes it to the government's financial policy.

It says there is a mistaken belief abroad that the resources of the country have been immensely exaggerated and that Great Britain is not so rich as imagined, and claims that the belief in the almost inexhaustible resources of Great Britain has been heretofore one of the great guarantees of peace.

CAMP CAPTURED

British Soldiers Again Surprised Boers—Rumor of Botha's Surrender.

Cape Town, August 17.—A small column of the Duke of Edinburgh's Second Volunteers and the Second Welsh Mounted Infantry made a forced march from Preka, Cape Colony, and surprised a Boer camp at Middle Drift. The Boers fled, dismounted in the darkness, and abandoned everything, including eighty-six horses and a large quantity of ammunition. Eight colonial rebels were captured. A portion of the Boer force, which occupied a neighboring kopje, opened fire on the British. The fire was returned, and the fighting lasted until dawn. Two British soldiers were wounded. The Boer casualties are unknown.

RUMOR OF BOTHA'S SURRENDER

London, Aug. 17.—The Sun to-day says it hears that the concentration of Gen. Botha's forces at Hlonweni on the borders of Zululand, announced in a dispatch from Durban last night, does not foreshadow a fight with Botha, but his surrender in pursuance with an understanding reached between Gen. Botha and Lord Kitchener. The Sun adds that the government is so satisfied that the war is virtually over that Lord Milner, now on his way back to South Africa, has in his pocket the draft of a complete constitution and plans for the future government of the annexed territories.

MORE MASSACRES

Further Atrocities Reported From Armenia—Other Cables.

Christiania, Norway, Aug. 17.—The expedition commanded by Stokken, sent in search of his son, the missing Norwegian machinist, and the other lost members of the Abruzzi expedition, arrived at Sandefjord this morning. No trace of the missing man was found. The members of the expedition—erected at Cape Flora—the memorial stone sent by the Duke of Abruzzi.

In addition to the report that Crown Prince of Germany is here to court one of the daughters of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, it is said that the betrothal of Princess Margaret of Connaught to the Czar's son, the Grand Duke Michael, brother of the Czar, will shortly be announced.

MORE BUTCHERIES

London, Aug. 17.—A despatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Constantinople says a body of 400 Kurds had been raiding the Lamiz district of Armenia, and destroyed twelve villages, leaving nothing but smoking ruins. Only the young girls were spared. They were carried off to the harems. All the males were ruthlessly butchered.

QUEEN SOPHIA ILL

DETECTIVE A. H. SKIRVING OF THE LAKE ERIE RAILWAY, CALLED AT THIS OFFICE TO-DAY TO STATE THAT THE STORY OF THE "MAIL-BAG ROBBERY," WHICH APPEARED IN THE HANOVER-NEWS ON FRIDAY WAS "MADE OUT OF WHOLE CLOTH."

Mr. Skirving says there was not the slightest foundation for the sensational yarn beyond the fact that the officials at the East noticed that the bag was worn through and pinned it together.

PASSENGERS MET DEATH

Steamer Islander Struck on an Iceberg and Went to the Bottom.

Vessel's Boilers Exploded as she Sank and Caused the end of Many—Survivors in Victoria.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 18.—The steamer Islander, the wrecked passenger steamer of the Alaskan Pacific Navigation Co. of this city, struck an iceberg off Douglas Island at 2 o'clock on the morning of Thursday last and went to the bottom, carrying down from 65 to 80 souls, including passengers and members of the crew. Some of the survivors arrived here this afternoon by steamer Queen.

They report that as the vessel went down her boilers exploded, causing the death of many who might have escaped.

Capt. Foote was on the bridge when the vessel struck and stayed there and went down with his steamer. There was $275,000 in gold on the steamer, $100,000 of which was carried by passengers. J. H. Hart, who has spent 46 years in the Klondike, lost $5,000 in dust. Some say that Capt. Foote reached a raft, but when he saw the extent of the disaster jumped overboard.

No accurate list of dead will be available until the arrival of the pursuer on the steamer Farallon tomorrow.

Geo. McL. Brown, executive agent of the Canadian Pacific railway, after interviewing the officers and passengers who returned, said:

"The pursuer is remaining in the north attempting to the forwarding of through passengers. It is impossible to give an exact list of those lost, but from the fact that 113 were saved the lost must be very much below the figures obtained."

The loss of life will not exceed 20, in his opinion.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 18.—A bulletin to the Post Intelligencer from Victoria gives the following additional names of the drowned on the Islander.

Hugh Porter, coal passer; M. Folk, saloon waiter; Mrs. J. W. Smith, Vancouver; J. L. Blethen, Vancouver; Mrs. J. L. Wilson, Seattle; A. Kendall, night saloonman. One coal passer, one waiter, names unknown.

The following bodies have been recovered: Dr. John Duncan, Victoria; P. Burke; H. E. Burke; H. Porter; Neil Folk; Doll and two children.

CLOUDBURSTS

Cattle Drowned by the Storm, Bridges Washed Away and Tracks Damaged.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 17.—Nicholson, Wyoming county, was to-day the centre of two cloudbursts—one this afternoon, and the other to-night. A territory twenty-miles and ten miles wide was affected. Tunkanook Creek and Martin's Creek were transformed to raging torrents, and the lowlands along their banks were immense lakes. Cattle were drowned by the storm, bridges were washed away. The Delawares, Lackawanna and Western Railroad tracks for several miles were washed away.

CHATHAM, AUGUST, 19.

A MOVING OBITUARY.

The New York Telegram, an old and steadfast friend of Kruger, and a mouthing mocker and maligner of Britain, has abandoned its ancient hero in this louching obituary:

"Of all the characters that have come to light in the emuets in South Africa, this stout-faced old Boer with the white fringes about his chin is the least adapted to glorification. For Cronje, now Napoleon to St. Helena, one may feel something of sympathy; for De Wet, the ghostly guerrilla chief who flits to and fro across the vast wastes of South Africa like a flying Dutchman of the land, striking and getting away with the skill of a lightweight champion prize fighter, it is possible to feel intense admiration; but for the president who fled from his country in his hour of danger and travail, alleged to have been laden with bags of gold, there can be no strongly developed feeling of approval."

"Kruger, indulging in the luxury of insomnia in Halversun, enriched beyond his needs and enjoying all the creature comforts, must yield himself to odious comparisons whenever he cries aloud for our tear-gone for a few kind words. He really isn't the right sort and in these later days the 'Lion of the Transvaal' as he was at times foolishly called, becomes but a many, crop-tailed, tame lion, unfit for anything more dignified than exhibition in a dime museum."

WON BY AMATEURS.

Perhaps the most gratifying feature of the extremely gratifying triumph of the Invader is the fact that the contest was by amateurs, says the Toronto Globe. The skippers and the bulk of the crews of the two yachts are men to whom sailing is a pastime and not a business, and the series of contests on Lake Michigan is proof of our possession of a fine body of men of wholesome tastes and keen energy. Yachting is expensive enough as a sport to insure the presence among the yachtsmen of a class of a number of men of considerable means; and their presence indicates a love of the sport and a willingness to participate in its labors which is in every respect to be commended. It must be confessed that we find a pleasure in the spectacle of scores of the young men of a city spending their leisure for years upon the water, acquiring such skill as was shown this week, and then contending for trophies in their own persons, and not by hired seamen; our pleasure in this spectacle is greater than in seeing a man of great wealth suddenly turn to the sport and by carte blanche orders and lavish expenditure send hired captains and hired crews to contend against other captains and other crews, also hired. It is to be regretted, in our view, that the America Cup races are not Corinthian contests; were they such, the contest would be far finer upon the ethical side, and the splendid example of Mr. Amelius Jarvis goes to show that the seamanship displayed need not be inferior.

Humors

They take possession of the body, and are Lords of Misrule. They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching letter, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not. They cause more suffering than anything else.

TO SAVE THE GREAT CROPS.

Almost every man is able to do some work in the fields, be he professional or manual laborer, points out the Ottawa Citizen. Every man, and some women, should be animated by a sufficiently strong patriotic spirit to turn out into the fields to save Canada's great wheat crop. This has been done in Manitoba and yet there is a cry for laborers. How many men there are in the average eastern villages and agricultural districts who could turn out and help to harvest the comparatively small crop of Eastern Canada, thus releasing some hundreds, perhaps thousands, who could go to Manitoba where the crop is of so much greater value and extent. This we know is being done in some of the eastern villages; why not make it general? A moderate dose of hard work once a year is an invaluable tonic. If our idle men would go at it in the right spirit there is labor enough in Canada to save to the uttermost everything that a bountiful Providence has blessed us with this year.

HELP CANADIAN INDUSTRIES.

During his recent trip to England, Sir Louis Davies, Minister of Marine, visited Paisley, Scotland, and completed the arrangements for the building of the two steamers to replace the Canadian Government revenue cruisers, Newfield and Druid, says the Brockville Times. The contracts for both vessels were signed. A year ago proposals were made to Sir Louis by responsible parties to have those new steamers built in Nova Scotia; but he did not even answer the letter. Some of our Canadian Ministers have a curious fashion of encouraging home industries. Hon. John Dwyer goes to Dakota to ranch in preference to seeking a place in the matchless prairies of the Canadian west; Hon. Mr. Blair goes to the U. S. to buy locomotives for the Government railway; and Sir Louis Davies has ships built in Scotland, when they could have been built at home just as well. Canadian Ministers ought to know that in assisting home industries they will have the mass of Canadian opinion to support them. (There may be a little temporary bigoted opposition which they can afford to ignore, but the general sentiment will be a feeling of approval.)

After a terrific and unaccountable explosion, a British transport lying in the harbor of New Orleans was found to have a dent in her side. SENSE OF THE CENSUS.

St. Catharines Times.
The Grit papers are announcing that the Conservatives padded and cooked the last census returns. This is to explain away the small increase in population in Canada, which is said to be 5,400,000, only 600,000 more than ten years ago. It is a feeble excuse to make. In any case the census has been so grossly bungled that no one believes it to be correct. Canadians will place little dependence upon the census of 1901.

Good-humoredly hilarious, he boarded a Market street car and hung limply to a strap, looking at everybody and smiling foolishly. When the car had gone about ten blocks he suddenly cried:

"We are at Fourteenth street," said the rope jerk.

"Where do you want to get off?"

"At the next saloon," said the genial man, and even the women laughed.

Australia's population may be small, but the legislators of the Commonwealth are determined that it shall be select. The Australian law empowers officers of the Commonwealth to exclude newcomers who cannot read and write 50 selected words in the English language, and permits aliens who may have been smuggled in to be deported at any time within two years after their arrival in Australia.

IRRELIGIOUS RECREATION

Young Preacher Says it Goes on
at Chatham's Summer Resort.

Also Condemns the use of Tobacco and Liquor, Now on the Increase
Among Young Men.

Rev. Chas. J. Wilson, an energetic young Methodist minister, a little above the medium height and possessed of a rather striking personality, has somewhat decided views concerning the spending of the summer vacation.

He occupied the pulpit of the Park St. Methodist Church last evening and preached on the subject of Restrain-ing Influences, with a text chosen from Matthew xxvii, 5.

After alluding to the advantages of good homes and Christian friendships
he pointed out that there was a good deal of loose morality during the summer season. "Summer resorts," he declared, "are often places where the young, removed from the restraint of home influence, become contaminated with evil. Dancing is the favorite diversion at Chatham's summer resort. It often opens the door for more pronounced evils, i. e., gambling and drunkenness. That these resorts may prove a blessing instead of a curse
they should be well managed."

Continuing, the reverend gentleman severely condemned the use of tobacco and the growing habit of cigarette smoking by boys, and enlarged upon the impossibility of getting moral giant-ants from physical and intellectual pigmies. He stated that drinking was also on the increase and that the saloon was luring the flower and manhood of our land to destruction.

"Is the sentiment sufficiently strong," he queried, "when many professed temperance people remained at home during the last Dominion plebiscite, comforting their consciences by such sickly, superficial arguments as that the country is not strong enough to enforce the measure?" Was not the vote taken to ascertain what the sentiment was, and how is it to be ascertained
if each man records where he individually stands? The question for each is not is the country ready, but am I ready.

"The influence of the saloon is never elevating. The home should be made so attractive that the children will not seek society in other quarters."

HARVESTERS MAD

Luck of Work the Cause of an Angry Demonstration.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 18.—An unfortunate condition of affairs obtains here to-night in consequence of a large body of harvesters at the present moment not having procured work. About a thousand of them are now sleeping in the small halls and buildings near the C. P. R. station, awaiting developments to-morrow. The first intimation of trouble occurred yesterday, when a body of men who had returned from Brandon and other points along the main line without having obtained work at their own price, made a hostile demonstration at the C. P. R. station. They had arrived here expecting big pay, and though they were certainly ahead of time for starting immediately to take off the big crop, there are all kinds of work for them
on the unriveted branch lines, though perhaps at a lower wage than they expected, the current prices being from $30 to $40 per month and board.

The city and Canadian Pacific Railway referred them to the provincial government, but eventually the Dominion immigration officials took the matter in hand and provided for them as places to lodge and mull for the time being, of the guarantee of the city and provincial government. The men still clamor for cars to be sent back. A car was kicked up again at the C. P. R. station last night, when another train load of harvesters appeared, and added to the confusion, and to-night a tremendous uproar
was made when 800 men from Ottawa fled to the city, called in a man named Mitchell from the Maritime Provinces was haranguing about five or six hundred men on the platform when the newcomers arrived, who appeared greatly disgruntled with what they mingled with their brethren. The millions demand forthwith transportation to the east, and if they do not get it they say they will take possession of the company's cars. The company refuse to take a man back unless he produces a certificate that he has done a month's work, or is seriously ill, because they argue that the men are plenty of them for all and that by the middle of the week every man will be working.

The company states that many harvesters who were unable to obtain work at Brandon, have gone to work on the track.
Similar riotous scenes were enacted by angry harvesters at Brandon, at which point Mayor Frazer, of that city, gave them an order for food.

WELCOME WET

Yesterday's Rain Storm did Much Good
to the Local Bean Crop.

A long wished for rain came yesterday, when 107 tons of water fell to the acre. The rain has filled a long want with the farmers throughout Kent. It was thought that the bean crop would be an entire failure, but this rain has reversed the order of things. It is now thought that the beans in some places will be a fair crop.

Robert Smith, down the river, one of Kent's model farmers, has a number of acres of beans which will, by their present appearance, give a good yield. A few weeks ago the ground became very dry just when the beans were blossoming nicely. The blossoms all fell off, and many of the farmers, thinking that the crop was a failure, turned their cattle into their bean fields. Those who left theirs, however, were surprised to see them blossom again, and now the rain has helped them along wonderfully. Quite a number of years ago, on the 15th of August, Mr. Smith had a patch of beans which were in blossom but had a single pod. He let them grow and as a result reaped a harvest of 15 bushels to the acre. It is thought by many that this same state of affairs will happen again this year. After the beans get nicely started they will ripen in three weeks' time.

W. F. Montgomery, of Raleigh, was in the city to-day. In conversation with a Planet reporter he said that the late heavy rain was a good crop
as a result of the rain yesterday.
They, however, will be a poor sample as some of them will be ripe when others in the same patch are green.

Joe King, of Dover, was also in the city this morning. He said that he had 400 acres of beans in fairly good condition. The Early Yorks are not a very good crop, but the pea beans will be all right.

"It is a very foolish thing for farmers to turn their cattle into their bean fields," said John Holmes, of the Kent Mills this morning, "for beans are very uncertain crop. Even if they were an utter failure the straw is better ripe for feeding purposes than it is when it is green."

A new canning factory is to be established at Hamilton.
The bodies of Jas. H. Whitner, Chas. White and Ezra Lane, who were drowned in Galop Rapids on Monday, were interred together at Prescott.

Peter Stevens, fireman of the Intercolonial train which collided with a freight at Assametsquashan, is dead, making the second death as a result of the wreck.

LIFE'S SUNSET

Death of an Aged and Esteemed Pioneer of Harwich Township.

Yesterday afternoon there passed away at the old homestead, up the creek, Harwich, Agnes, relict of the late John McCormick, at the advanced age of 88 years. The deceased lady was one of the oldest pioneers of this district having settled in the township 56 years ago. She was universally esteemed and was an earnest Christian character.

Mrs. McCormick was a native of New Galloway, Scotland, where she was married in 1844. The following year, with her husband, she came to this country and settled on the farm in Harwich. Twenty-seven years ago the husband passed to the Great Beyond.

The deceased lady was afflicted with a paralytic stroke some three months ago and never rallied. She leaves seven children to mourn her loss, viz., Mrs. Wm. Thackeray, Harvey, Montague, Archibald, on the farm; Mrs. Wm. Clements, city; Mrs.
John Drury, Raleigh; Mrs. S. A. Mc-Cormack, city; Mrs. John Rouse, Blen-

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from the home to Ma-

Self-expanding.

Your foot spreads when you stand upon it.

Therefore a new shoe which fits it neatly when lifted, must pinch when you bear upon it.

Your foot narrows again, at the ball, when lifted.

Therefore when wear has stretched the leather across the ball of the foot, so that it is comfortable to stand on—the shoe is then too loose when lifted.

This is why it wrinkles, and over runs on the sides.

Now the Resilia Soled Slater Shoe expands when your foot does, and contracts when lifted, making it easy as an old shoe, the first time you wear it.

Peter McAuley's Wagon Makers from Chatham, certainly did the Waterloo business here last Monday when they trimmed the local baseball club by a score of 38 to 7, with an inning to spare.

They struck into the game at a killing pace and hammered out 21 runs in the first two innings. This was enough to make the hearts out of anybody, and our boys made the best of a bad start and contented themselves with the fact that things could get no worse.

That razzie dazzle attack came over the Tilburyites at different

THE UNDOING OF A DOUBT

BY HUGO ST. FINISTERRE, M.D.
AUTHOR OF "WHO'S WHO" ETC., ETC.

COPYRIGHT, 1898 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

The negro turned like a flash. Even in the obscurity I could understand the expression of mortal fear on the ebullient countenance as he held the paddle suspended as if unable to stir or speak.

Stepping out from the shadows so that he might see me, I added:

"Come inshore. I don't mean to hurt you."

My assurance partly removed his panic, and, dipping his paddle into the water, he sheered the dugout up to where I was standing. I perceived that he was wearing large horn spectacles and I took him to be fully three-score and ten years old.

"What's your name?" I asked, trying to throw a note of kindness in my voice.

"Pete," was the reply in the accent of his race. I noted that he was attentively studying my countenance, as if trying to solve my identity. I expected some moment to hear him address me as Hank Beyer and was surprised that he did not do so. Finally he asked in a quaking voice:

"Who am yo'?"

"Don't you know me, Pete?" I asked, shifting my pose so as to permit the star gleam to fall on my features. The spectacles moved first on one side and then on another as he peered into my countenance. Curious to learn his reason, I asked:

"Don't you know Hank Beyer, Pete?"

"I hab knowed him ober since he was a pickaninny. Yo' look a good deal like him, but yo' ain't him; dat's sartin."

I was astonished. Under the glare of the lamps and when the sun was shining every white man whom I encountered was unshakably convinced that I was Hank Beyer, the criminal. And now in the dim obscurity of a Mississippi swamp an old negro wearing horn spectacles read the truth. With my virtual declaration that I was Beyer he declared such not to be the fact.

"Well, Pete, you are right," I said. "I am not Hank Beyer. I am from the north, and until a short time ago had never set foot in Mississippi. Every one whom I have met with the exception of you believes I am Hank Beyer."

"Cause dey am a set ob blasted fools," was his contemptuous reply. "Yo' voice don't sound like his. Dat is not much, dough it's a little, and—somehow or order yo' don't seem like Hank, and yo' ain't him."

That was probably the best way of expressing it.

It looked as if Pete might be made the valuable ally of which I stood in need.

"I have been taken for Hank Beyer," I added, "as I told you, by every one but you. Hank stole a horse and then slipped away, and the mob made me a prisoner. They would have hanged me if I hadn't escaped last night, but they are hunting through the swamp for me."

"Was dat yo' gun dat I heerd go off awhile ago?"

"It was my pistol. I shot the bloodhound that sprang at me. Tomorrow there will be 20 men hunting through this swamp for me with lots of dogs. Pete, were you ever a slave?"

"Reckon I war," he chuckled. "Renned away befo' de war and hid in dis wery swamp, and I helped oders to hide. I staid beah for more dan a year, and den wouldn't hab come out if I hadn't wanted to."

"You are the man I am looking for. Will you give me a hiding place till I am able to get out of this infernal neighborhood?"

I expected an instant compliance with my request, but the African, holding the prow of his dugout against the bank, remained silent. I didn't understand it.

"I will pay you a good sum of money, more than you ever made in a year's work."

"It ain't dat, boss. I don't want no money, but yo' see I may as well tole de truth—whenever anyting goes wrong in dese parts dey lays it to ole Pete. De fust t'ing dem folks will do tomorrow will be to come to me and ax wheder I hab seen yo'. Ob course, is will gib me great pleasure, boss, to ho like de devil, but I'm afraid it won't help yo'."

"I have no wish to involve you in trouble, but you can give me directions or tell me where I can hide until there is a show for getting out of the swamp. After that I'll take my chances."

"I guess dat kin be done, but it's somethin' dat yo' ober t'ing an laid on to ole Pete. Why, if some folks seen dat bag a-layin dere in de dugout with de end tied up, dey would be mean 'nough to 'sinocate dat Pete had been wistin some ob de benewests ob de white folks—Sbet up!"

Just then there was a flutter inside

Eureka Harness Oil

A good looking horse and poor looking harness is the worst kind of a combination.

not only makes the harness and the horse look better, but makes the harness soft and pliable, puts it in condition to last twice as long as it ordinarily would. And everyone is well-satisfied.

Give Your Horse a Chance!

continued to sway the paddle and propel the dugout until we must have passed fully a half mile from where I had joined him. It was clear that all this time he was penetrating deeper into Black Man's swamp. I gained some idea of the fastnesses of that marshy timber and could well understand how it became a favorite refuge for runaways in the olden slavery days. With the help of the abundant water the bloodhounds could be thrown off the trail, while the slaves of the adjoining plantations would be eager to contribute stealthily to the fugitives when they stole out at night in quest of food.

Having paddled the distance named, during which Pete slowly puffed his pipe, he reached a spot where the creek broadened to three or four times its former width. The banks were overhung with bushes and undergrowth, but when he ran the prow of the dugout against the shore I perceived a well marked path leading deeper into the wood. I stepped out, and he followed, pulling the end of the rope boat far enough up the bank to prevent its being washed away by the sluggish current. He had knocked the ashes from his pipe, and he now slung the bag over his shoulder preparatory to moving away.

As he did so there was a vigorous clucking and struggling inside, but I caused him no embarrassment. He knew I understood matters, and there was no need of affecting ignorance or discussing the subject.

"We's purty neah home," he remarked as he strode off with me on his heels. He had but a short distance to go when he descended into a clearing similar to that where I turned at daybreak and shot the bloodhound. It was of about the same extent, and the fertile ground gave evidence of being well tilled. He continued straight forward over the path to the little cabin of logs which stood in the center. Just in front of the door he swung the bag off his shoulder, untied the top, and lifting it by the chord end, shook out about a dozen rabbits and hens. At first they were dazed, but soon ran behind the cabin to join a number of others that were roosting among the bushes. Then Pete led the way into his home.

"Do you live alone?" I asked, waiting on the threshold until he struck a light.

"Yess, eber since my daddy died, eight years ago," he replied as he disappeared into the gloom. A minute later he struck a match, and as he applied it to a tallow candle called me to enter.

The structure was similar to many that may be found today in the south and southwest, consisting of two small rooms below and a sort of loft above, which was reached by means of a sliding ladder at one corner. Furniture was crude and scarce, consisting of a few stools, a stand, some pictures cut from newspapers and the simplest articles for cooking. In that latitude a fire is rarely needed except for cooking, which was done in the rough fireplace. The candle that was thrust into the neck of a bottle rested on the stand at the side of the room. The door had been opened by means of the old fashioned latchstring, which was now drawn in, thus "locking" the building against intruders. The door and two small windows, the latter without panes, were all that that furnished light and ventilation to this primitive home.

Pete had taken but a few minutes to light the candle, but in that brief interval his grizzled wig and his bending form had vanished, and he stood before me the young, magnificent brute that he was.

CHAPTER XIV.
Reflection convinced me that I ought not to feel any misgiving over the discovery that Pete, the supposed aged African, was really a young man. It was easy to understand why, in making his midnight raids, he should take every precaution against his identity being suspected. So long as his property of the thief hunting away showed him to be an aged dumpy Pete might hope to escape suspicion, while if driven to the wall his enormous strength could not fail to serve him well.

With such a natural explanation of the negro's course it would seem I

CHAPTER XV.
Yes, the cabin was deserted of every one except myself. I pronounced the name of Pete several times, but there was no response. The door was closed and everything below appeared to be as when I climbed the ladder in the early hours of the morning, except that the latchstring hung outside, so as to admit any one who chose to pull it.

I was hungry, but there was not a particle of food in sight, nor any odor to denote that my man had cooked a mouthful for himself. A pail of fresh water sat on a small bench in the corner and I dipped a gourd into it and took a refreshing draft. Then I made use of it to lave my face and hands, drying them upon my handkerchief. My toilet articles were at the inn of Tom Bulfinch in the hamlet of Aldine.

Then, with a deliberation that surprised myself, I examined my revolver. The three charges were in place, and I grimly wondered how soon I should have to appeal to them.

SOME MILITARY PENSIONS.
It is a singular fact that the British Government is liberal with pensions to its civil employees, but nigardly to its soldiers, except in special cases. Successful generals are handsomely treated. When Lord Roberts returned from his campaign in Afghanistan in 1881 he received a baronetcy, was voted a lump sum of $75,000 and a pension of $500 a year for life. Sir Donald Stewart received a similar gift. After the Ashanti campaign Lord Wolseley received $100,000 cash and after the Egyptian campaign $150,000 cash. During the reign of Queen Victoria large annuities for special military services were granted as follows:

A year. Lord Hardinge $25,000 Lord Seaton, for 3 lives..... 10,000 Lord Keen, for 3 lives..... 10,000 Lord Gough, for 3 lives..... 15,000 Lord Raglan, for 3 lives..... 10,000 Lord Clyde 10,000 Sir W. F. Williams 5,000 Sir H. M. Havelock 5,000 Lord Napier, for 2 lives 10,000 Sir W. Nott 5,000 Sir G. Pollock 5,000 Sir A. Wilson 5,000 Sir J. Outram, 2 lives 5,000

There have been innumerable other grants of lesser sums from $200 a year up to $5,000, but those named are the largest.

Stomach Catarrh

Thos. Howarde, of Montreal, cured of a severe case of fifteen years' standing.

Thos. Howarde, of Montreal, suffered from stomach catarrh and dyspepsia for fifteen years. He had tried so many remedies without being benefited that he believed he would never be well. Below we give the result after taking Powley's Liquefied Ozone. His way of telling it is best:

THE OZONE CO., LIMITED.

Gentlemen.—Having suffered from catarrh of the stomach and acute dyspepsia for fifteen years and tried many remedies with very little benefit, I decided to try Ozone, and for three days after using it I found little or no benefit, but the fourth day I felt decidedly better, and after using one bottle I can honestly say that I feel more comfortable than I have felt for many years. I am satisfied from the benefit already received that it will cure me entirely.

(Signed) THOS. HOWARDE, 705 Dorchester St., Montreal, P.Q.

We believe, and we know that you would too, if you had the evidence every day as we do, that there is no other preparation extant that can approach Ozone in curing stomach and summer disorder. It rectifies the membranous lining of the stomach, makes digestion complete and heals the inflammation of the intestinal tract. In bowel disorders Ozone stops the weakening drains quickly; absolutely essential in such ailments.

Consult our physician about your case. Write full details and you will get a specialist's advice free. Your letters are absolutely confidential. Address The Consulting Department, The Liquefied Ozone Co., 229 Kinzie St., Chicago, U.S.A.

IN CANADA'S FAIR CAPITAL

J. W. Young Writes The Planet Giving his Impressions There.

Its People are Great Excursionists—Old Chathamites who Live There.

The residents of Ottawa are great on Parks. Down the river they have a beautiful park called Rockcliffe and up the river the trolley company have fitted up a splendid park called Britannia. Just across the river in Quebec is the little town of Aylmer, and another fine park. The Victoria Yacht Club and the water toboggan are situated here. The water toboggan is a unique sport for the enjoyment of which you are mulcted to the extent of 10 cents. Having contributed this to the toboggan, you get in a large boat that holds four or five persons. The boat is pulled up one side of an inclined plane and then allowed to rush rapidly down a steep descent to the water. Sometimes the boat riders get a shower bath and sometimes they don't. It depends upon the skill of the steersman. I would have liked this innocent 10 cent amusement. The reason that I didn't was, the toboggans only run six days a week.

From Aylmer, we decided to cross the Ottawa River to Britannia, on the Beatrice B., a diminutive tug just a little larger than Capt. Crow's Una.

We reached the dock just two minutes too late. Something went wrong with the steering gear of the boat and she drifted down stream.

We watched her drift and listened with some degree of interest to the people on the dock as they predicted that the boat would drift down to the rapids and be wrecked. Just our luck. We missed a four hour ride on a drifting boat because a holiday trip had been started on Friday. Take warning, ye superstitious ones, by this, and don't start a trip on Friday. Something will happen.

Lumbering is the great industry in the Capital City, and the mills along the banks of the Ottawa River have in their time handled an enormous number of logs. The sawdust from the mills is dumped into the river and allowed to float down stream till it sinks. I was told that when the piers of the inter-provincial bridge was built over 40 feet of sawdust was found on the bottom of this river.

The "Lovers' Walk" around the side of Parliament Hill is a beautiful place for a saunter, even to one not an amorous swain, as I and the other boys discovered. The two new statues of the Canadian sculptor Hebert are completed and ready for unveiling by the Duke of York. The figure of the late Queen, done in bronze, is splendid. At the feet of the statue crouches a large lion. On one of the steps is seated Miss Canada. The monument to the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie is also excellently wrought. The life sized figure of the Hon. Alex. in bronze surmounts the stone built foundation, and sitting at his feet is a young man with square, level and compass in his hands. This represents the late Alexander Mackenzie's geometrical accomplishments. He, it was, who drew the plans and superintended the construction of the beautiful library annex to the parliament buildings. The boy is represented drawing a circle, which signifies that labor has no end. On the shield is this tribute to this once leader of the government, "Duty was his law and conscience his rule."

The statue of Sir John A. Macdonald occupies a prominent position east of the parliament buildings, and is the Mecca visited by nearly every person who has occasion to be in Ottawa. It is a splendid work, a fitting monument to so great a man.

The Ottawa canoe club have a delightful club house at Rockcliffe Park. They raise from and lower their canoes to the water by an electric motor. There are 300 members in the club and as many canoes. There were some peculiarities that struck me about Ottawa. In this city millions of matches are made and lucifers are being made all the time, yet I never found an Ottawa boy with a match. There are about 2,000 clerks in the civil service department. During July the customs revenue from Ontario was $800,000, and from the city of Montreal a like sum. Montreal is of course an import city and this makes the difference. The revenue for Ontario averages about a million dollars a month, and Montreal generally manages to keep even with our Province. There are some amusing features about Ottawa. Spelling, it is according to pronunciation keeps the Hotel Cecil. Rather an appropriate name for the proprietor of a booze emporium, isn't it. Sam Hop keeps a laundry instead of a dancing academy or brewery. Bate & Sons are wholesale grocers instead of fish dealers. At home they are fishermen. There were many other like inconsistencies but I forget them. Whoo! visits Ottawa should see the geological museum on the corner of Sussex and George streets. It is wonderful. Admittance is free and there is in the building samples of all the minerals and woods of the Dominion. Stuffed specimens of all the birds and animals are also to be found here. Bones of extinct monsters and Indian relics from all over the whole Dominion. During the time of my visit a good part of the specimens were away at Buffalo at the exposition, yet you could not notice their absence. I went in the building when it opened at 10 o'clock and before I noticed the flight of time was moon, and yet I had scarcely seen the exhibit. One could spend days here with profit.

RELIGION ON RACE TRACK

Presence of Minister Breaks up Sunday Ball Game and "Crap" Struggle.

Fair-Sized Crowd Listen to Windsor Minister's Words of Advice.

Windsor, Aug. 19.—There was no matinee scramble for seats at the Windsor race track yesterday afternoon when Rev. James Livingstone arrived on the grounds and announced his intention to give a religious address. In fact, it was hard work to secure very many to play the part of the audience, as the stable boys were as shy as ailly when they were invited to take a seat in the grand stand and listen to the minister's words. Many of them slunk away to the stables, and those who remained acted like a horse that was facing the barrier for the first time. However, the sermon was very brief and the minister was voted a "jolly good fellow" by the boys.

The stable boys were ignorant of the fact that they were to receive a visit from Rev. Mr. Livingstone and therefore they had made their engagements for the afternoon and felt honor bound to carry out the arrangements entered into before the minister's arrival. And these engagements were many and varied: Baseball, chicken dinners, crap games, poker and other pastimes claimed the undivided attention of the army of boys and men now congregated at the track.

When the minister arrived at 4 o'clock the first thing which greeted his eyes was a game of baseball on the green in front of the grand stand. He was accompanied by some members of his congregation and he sent them abroad to gather in the congregation, but this was easier said than done. When the captains of the two teams were approached by one of the minister's deacons and asked to stop the game and come to the grand stand they simply turned away in disgust.

RANG THE JUDGE'S BELL.

A happy thought struck one of the colored boys, who was sitting in the judge's stand, and he commenced ringing the bell on the top of the stand. He tugged away with a will at the rope and the clarion notes of the bell sounded all over the track and in the stable yards. This had the effect of calling out a number of sleepy looking individuals, who came running to find out the cause of the noise. They were greeted by the strains of "Nearer My God To Thee" and, after gazing in open-mouthed amazement for some time, they finally walked up the stairs and took seats in a part of

Our Strong Point

In calling your attention this way lies in that one word "VALUE". Where's the store that takes as much pains as we to deserve your trade? And who is as ready as we to refund money if goods aren't exactly as represented?

It's pretty well understood by this time that we make Clothing fine and sell it cheap in competition with the leading tailors and clothiers of Canada. We maintain that Chatham is equal to any of the larger cities as regards style, and that our facilities are not to be discounted by any store the country over.

As a matter of fact, we're doing a splendid business. As a matter of course, there must be reasons for it all, and those who study them will fare better than those who don't.

Gang of Ruffians Attack a Policeman and Break his Leg.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Police Constable George Campbell, of No. 2 division, had his right leg broken above the ankle and sustained other injuries to-night while attempting to arrest a gang of ruffians who had gathered and were drinking and carousing in the rear of the hotel at Chestnut and Elm street. The policeman was called by the hotelkeeper, who objected to their presence there. When the officer seized hold of a couple of the men, the others attacked him, and compelled him to release his prisoners. One of the ruffians, it is stated, kicked at the officer brutally, fracturing his leg. He fell helpless on the ground, and the gang scattered. Policemen Townsend and Egan, while going to the assistance of their comrade, caught George Williamson running away from the scene of the encounter. He was taken into custody and is detained at the station on a charge of being drunk. Policeman Campbell was removed to the general hospital, where the fracture was reduced.

LANGUID AND DEPRESSED BY WITHERING SUMMER WEATHER

In these hot summer months, when weary muscles and shattered nerves make you feel so tired, depressed, and worn out that you can hardly put one foot before the other, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will lift you from that horrid overpowering weakness and ever present languor worse than pain. It will make you feel well because it creates the new, vigorous tissue that quickens you into enjoyable life.

SUMMER SUFFERINGS THE BROKEN HEALTH OF WOMEN OF BUSY MEN

It requires an enormous amount of vitality to withstand the weakening and trying effects of the withering summer weather, to overcome the languid, worn-out feelings and fight off the fever and dreadful fatal diseases which are especially prevalent in the summer time and ever ready to attack those in a low state of health.

There is nothing so trying on the system as the hot summer weather, and none who suffer more from the heat than the woman with the cares of a family on her hands, requiring work in the hot kitchen and over the stove. Many a worn-out, despondent woman who could scarcely drag herself about the kitchen has been restored to health and strength by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food (pills), the great blood builder and nerve restorative.

Mrs. M. A. McCreas, Tory Hill, Ont., writes: "My system was all run down when I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was weak and very nervous, and felt so tired and worn-out that I could scarcely drag myself about the house. It seemed impossible for me to get rest or sleep at night, and I felt that I was gradually growing weaker and more nervous and irritable. Since beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I feel altogether different. It has gradually strengthened my nerves and built up my system wonderfully. I sleep well now and am being thoroughly restored to health and strength. I believe it is the best medicine to be had for nerves."

Mrs. S. Dempsey, Albury, Ont., writes: "My little grand-daughter, nine years old, was pale and weak, she had no appetite and seemed to be gradually growing weaker. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proved invaluable in her case, restoring health and color and making her strong and well."

Instead of holidaying in the wilds of Muskoka or on the shores of the great lakes, many a man finds it necessary to plod on day after day and week after week at his desk, in the workshop, or in the factory, and the strain of the toil and worry combined with the enervating and debilitating effects of the summer heat, is usually almost more than he can bear.

What wonder that so many suffer from nervous headaches, nervous dyspepsia and brain fog, and find it difficult to remember and to concentrate their thoughts? The regular use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food entirely overcomes these symptoms of a breaking down, nervous system and revitalizes the body and mind. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food contains in condensed form the most effective tonics of nature. It builds up the system and wards off disease.

Mr. A. S. Fawcett, the well-known editor and proprietor of the Leader and Recorder, Toronto Junction, writes: "It is very seldom that I need medicine of any description, but this spring I got so badly run down and out of sorts generally that I became somewhat alarmed. Changing to read a testimonial about the results derived from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, from a gentleman whose case seemed identical with my own, I purchased a box and commenced using it."

"The result was simply marvelous. I was benefited from the first and soon restored to my usual good health. I never felt better in my life than I do now. To tell the simple truth, I did not have very great faith in any medicine until I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, but now I have no hesitation in strongly recommending this great Remedy to others as a valuable and effective remedy."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food

when the blood is kept pure and rich and the nerves strong by using this great restorative. For chafing, heat rash and itching skin, Dr. Chase's Ointment

As a summer medicine to revitalize the brain, the spinal cord, the nerves, and through them the entire human body, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is unrivalled and unapproached. It increases the number of red corpuscles in the blood, creates new nerve force, and entirely overcomes the wretched languid and worn-out feelings of summer. Disease can find no foothold.
