THE UTTERANCE OF AN IRISH HEART.

What! give our land to you, England! What! give our land to you! Our ravaged land, whose every rood Our patriot's bones bestrew;

When she came to America it was not long ere she took an active part in Irish politics. Her brother's name and fame as the Land League champion were a kind of special permit to her and her mother to come forth from the tranquility of home and mount the stormy platform to do what they could for the amelioration of their country's distress.

THE MAYORALTY OF DUBLIN FOR 1883.

The "Treat" Agreement No Agreement at all—Re-election of a Nationalist.

(From the Dublin Freeman's Journal, July 8)

On Monday, at half-past one, a meeting of the Council of the city of Dublin was held in the City Hall for the purpose of electing a Lord Mayor for the year 1883.

At this period Alderman Meagher entered the room, and Alderman Tarpey vacated the chair, which was taken by Alderman Meagher.

Sir John Barrington, continuing his remarks in support of his motion, said Alderman Cochrane was most anxious to support everything for the progress of the city, but he was also a large shareholder in the company that had been constituted for the purpose of a National Exhibition of Irish Manufactures (hear, hear).

certain extent to one step which he thought necessary to take while in the chair when he gave a casting vote, and in doing so he did what he thought was his duty and his right. He had no apology to offer for that, nor was he aware that he ever offered an apology. He denied Mr. Shackleton's observations in toto. As well as he could recollect, what he (Alderman Moyers) had stated was that upon the day previous to the day in question he had stated in the Council that he would not come there, but that he had come here because men who had passed the chairman of different parties and of both parties, who understood the duties and obligations of a chairman, told him that he would not be doing right in staying away, and therefore, yielding to their better counsel, he came there. That was not stating that he came there at the dictation of a party or clique. He asserted that, to the best of his ability, he discharged his duty impartially and as well as he possibly could.

Alderman Cochrane said, at the meeting of the Conservative party that had been held to nominate a candidate from the minority. Sir George Owens, who was present, was very anxious that a past Lord Mayor should be put forward—he did not know whether Sir George Owens meant himself or not (laughter). He (Alderman Cochrane) was asked would he allow his name to go forward and he said yes, but he said he would not divide the house on the matter, and would not take the mayoralty with a divided house. He did not want to be Lord Mayor for 1883 or 1884, he would leave that with Sir George Owens.

Mr. D. Sullivan, who was loudly cheered, said: I strongly support the amendment, because I believe the present occupant of the civic chair has deserved well of the citizens of Dublin. He is a young man who gives his days and a great portion of his nights to the work of the country—to the work of his fellow-citizens (hear, hear). I hope he will leave office with a reputation not tarnished, but enhanced; with friends not diminished, but greatly increased, and I think that will be so, and in that hope and belief I express the feelings of the majority of the representatives of this city and of the majority of the people of Ireland (loud applause).

The amendment was then put and a division called for. Alderman Cochrane declining to vote, was called upon by Sir John Barrington to leave the house, which he did amid loud cheers from the galleries.

For Mr. Shackleton's amendment there voted—Alderman Kernan, Moore, Dolan, McGeary, Meagher; Connors, D. Burke, Callow, Birmingham, Rochford, Letch, Bolger, Doyle, Sullivan, Fanagan, Dennehy, Shackleton, Winstanley, Mayne, J. Mulligan, Lyons, Heslin, L. Mulligan, O'Reilly, O'Connor, Kelly, J. Burke, Gill G. O'Neill, Cummins, Kennedy, Keating, McDonald and Campbell—33.

Against—Alderman Sir James Mackey, Moyers, Tarpey, Draper, Furlon, Gregg; Connors Sir J. Barrington, Vereker, McEvoy, Sexton, Macneil, Sir George Owens, Brevelon, Dobson, and Johnston—16.

The resolution nominating Alderman Dawson as Lord Mayor for 1883 was agreed to with the same division as on the amendment.

McGeary's Illustrated Newspaper has, if we may say so, assumed a new shape and character in the hands of Mr. James Redpath, who is now editor and proprietor. It is entirely an original journal, and of such an originality as one might expect from such able hands. Its cuts and cartoons are also improved.

The Revised English—This little work, published by J. & K. Funk, 10 and 12 Dry Street, New York, is undoubtedly one of the most useful issued from the press for a number of years. It is composed of a series of letters from the pen of G. Washington Moore, F. B. S. L., which give a keen and witty the revised edition of the New Testament. None should read this work more attentively than those who—like the revisers—think they know grammar, but really do not, for Mr. Moore shows numerous mistakes in the revised edition in such a manner that will convince everyone he is right and the learned divines of Oxford wrong. Nor is it dry reading, as Mr. Moore is a wit as well as a grammarian. It can be had for 20 cents, and we would recommend all writers and speakers to buy it.

The last American Catholic Quarterly Review is of an unusually interesting nature and the articles it contains treat of highly important subjects. The first, and perhaps the most important, "What is the outlook of our colleges?" is written by the editor, and is well worthy of perusal by those in charge of Catholic education. The other articles are: "King James the First of England," by R. M. Johnson, and describes with graphic truth and force the weak and strong points in the character of that British Solomon. There is an essay on the poet and priest, Robert Southwell, who suffered martyrdom for the faith in the reign of Elizabeth, written by Joseph A. Nolan, P. D. "Garibaldi and the Revolution in Italy," is a splendid article from the pen of the well known Catholic writer John MacCarthy. The other contents are: "Protestant Churches and Church-goers," by John Gilmary Shea, L.L.D.; "Nearing the True Pole," by A. de G.; "The decline of painting as a fine art," by Arthur Waldon; "The Delictic Revelation of Spiritism," by the Rev. J. F. X. Heffer, S. J.; and Michael Davitt's scheme for a "Nationalizing the Land," by George D. Wolf. Badley & Co., publishers, Montreal.

O'Flaherty brothers, of London, Ont., who were arrested at Tralee, Ireland, on suspicion of implication in the Phoenix Park tragedy, have been released.

The production of anthracite coal for the week ended July 15, 1882, was 681,933 tons, against 685,532 tons same time last year—a decrease of 3,599 tons.

Alderman Moyers said he believed that a charge made against him limited itself to a

LABOR.

There's a never-dying chorus Breaking on the human ear, In the busy town before us, Voices loud, and deep, and clear, This is labor's endless dirge, This is toil's prophetic voice, Sounding through the town and city Bidding human hearts rejoice.

Sweeter than the poet's singing Is that anthem of the free; Bither the anvil's ringing Than the song of bird or bee, There's a glory in the rattle Of the wheels' mid factory gloom Richer than e'er snatched from battle, Or the trophies of the loom.

See the skillful mason rising Gracefully you towering pile; Round the forge and furnace blazing, Stant the noble men of toil, They are heroes of the people, Who the wealth of nations raise; Every dome and spire and steeple Rise their heads in Labor's praise.

Glorious men of truth and labor, Shepherds of the human fold, That shall lay the brand and snare With the barbarous things of old Priests and prophets of creation, Bloodless heroes in the light, Toilers for the world's salvation Messengers of peace and light

LONDON, July 19.—In the House of Commons the Arrears of Fleet bill was reported to the House by 182 to 33.

DUBLIN, July 19.—During the last three months 455 agrarian outrages have been committed, not including cases of sending threatening letters. Thirteen persons convicted.

Col. Brackenbury, director of the criminal investigation department, Ireland, has resigned on account of differences with the Lord Lieutenant, who did not agree with him in allowing the police to join secret societies in order to turn informers. Some new rules also promulgated by Col. Brackenbury (landed the resident magistrate, several of whom lately retired).

WATERSIDE, July 19.—A railway van, containing a large number of military rifles and a quantity of ammunition, was broken into here, and the rifles and cartridges stolen.

LONDON, July 20.—Trevelyan, in the House of Commons to-day, confirmed the statement that Colonel Brackenbury had resigned the directorship of the Irish Criminal Investigation Department. Mr. Trevelyan said he could not enter into explanation of the reasons for that step.

Mr. Gladstone stated that Viscount Monck would be the Fourth Land Commissioner under the Arrears Bill.

LONDON, July 20.—The crops in the north-west of Ireland are in a frightful condition. Hay is lying out in the fields surrounded by water, and potatoes are blighted.

LONDON, July 21.—In the House of Commons, Mr. Trevelyan's new clause to the Arrears bill passed the second reading by 335 to 20. It gives boards of guardians power to borrow money at 3 per cent to promote emigration, and empowers the Board of Works to make a free grant of £100,000 to impoverished unions of Belmullet, Clifden, Newport, Augherard and Swinford for the same purpose. The Government stated that care would be taken that emigrants do not be thrown adrift in great cities of the new country, but be forwarded to places where they could obtain work. The bill passed its third reading.

A meeting of a hundred Conservative peers decided to allow the Irish Arrears bill to pass the second reading in the House of Lords, but to introduce amendments in committee. The amendments will not touch the question of the loan or gift, but deal decisively with the other portions of the bill.

LONDON, July 22.—In the House of Lords the Arrears Bill was read for the first time.

LONDON, July 22.—At a meeting of the Conservative Peers yesterday the Marquis of Salisbury stated that in consequence of the gravity of foreign affairs he could not recommend the Peers to bring about a crisis on any domestic question by rejecting the Arrears Bill.

DUBLIN, July 23.—Dillon, speaking at Malwood, said if sixty honest members were returned to Parliament to support Parnell, they would render the Repression bill ineffective. For every man arrested under the bill, they would waste two days in the House of Commons. When they were enabled to understand the working of the land corporation they would organize machinery to defeat it.

The Fourth Ward Branch of the Irish National Land League of the city of Ordnance, N. Y., at its regular meeting, held July 18th, 1882, elected the following officers:—President, F. R. Houlahan; Vice-President, John Meagher; Financial Secretary, Timothy Mulligan; Recording Secretary, Charles McNally; Corresponding Secretary, William Quillinan; Treasurer, John McLean; Sergeant-at-Arms, Oliver Boward.

MISS FANNY PARNELL

We take the following obituary notice from Saturday's New York Herald:—

Miss Parnell, second sister of the Land League leader, Charles Stewart Parnell, died suddenly at two o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Old Ironsides mansion, her mother's home, near Bordentown, N. J. In the morning she had taken a carriage drive and seemed to be in her usual good health and spirits. Mrs. Stewart about one o'clock went into her room and found her lying on her bed unconscious and her heart faintly beating. Mrs. Parnell was called in and a physician summoned, but in vain. She sank rapidly and died evidently of paralysis of the heart. She was known to have heart disease, and sometimes she would be found lying apparently in a trance.

Fanny Parnell was one of four daughters of John E. and Della L. S. Parnell, and was born at Avondale, the property which her brother now holds, in county Wicklow, Ireland, about the year 1848. She was carefully trained at home, and, though a Protestant, was sent, as many of her creed are, from Ireland to have her education finished at a convent in Paris. When she returned to a brightness which her early years had shown was found to have been augmented by her Parisian education and the brief sojourn she had made abroad. She proved that she was an observant girl and that phases of life, whether of man or woman, or indeed of life, did not escape her attention. This trait was subsequently seen in her heroic efforts. She was a lively girl, and like her sister, exhibited a good deal of febrile energy that no doubt was taken from the American side. In the roomy old house at Avondale Manor she passed some years. Here, in the midst of the wild and picturesque scenery of Wicklow and Wexford she found much to nurture, not only her poetic temperament, but those natural aspirations which have since distinguished the family. As romantic as any dreamy young maiden would wish was the site of her home on the edge of the deep vale in which the Avon rushed on to meet the Avoca, which Moor has immortalized. The house was surrounded by noble trees, and from the lawn was a fine view of Castle Howard. In this lovely home she was happier than her sister Anna, because in her visitation she had an extra outlet for that superabundant energy which to Anna was a little troublesome.

Shortly after the foundation of the Irish People in Dublin, the organ of the Fenian Brotherhood, Fanny Parnell became a contributor to its poetic columns. Here, under the signature of "Aleria," she gave vent to her patriotic feelings, and by the harmony of her verses, and the truth and feeling which often characterized her poetry, gained many an admirer. If it should be denied that she had a talent for poetry, it must be confessed that she had a taste for it. Certainly she had more than a taste for it, for a perusal of her published Land League songs and other pieces shows that she read many and various authors who have kept their names on the rolls of fame as having successfully soiled the Parnassian mount. She was not an imitator, like many an apprentice to the trade, but struck out new paths for herself, even though she trod them with the same gait as travellers on the beaten roads. It may be said, however, that her poetry will be long popular, as much on account of its own intrinsic work as because of the name of the writer. One of her pieces, published last year in the Boston Pilot, on

THE VISIT OF BISHOP CLEARY

A HEARTY WELCOME—HIS LORDSHIP MET BY A PROCESSION AND ESCORTED TO THE CHURCH—AN ADDRESS PRESENTED WHICH CALLED FORTH AN ELOQUENT AND INSTRUCTIVE REPLY.

On Thursday last Right Reverend Dr. Cleary, R. C. Bishop of Kingston, paid his first official visit to Napanee. The occasion has been looked forward to by the members of St. Patrick's Church with deep interest and arrangements were made for a right royal reception. The success which attended the efforts put forth must not only be gratifying to the promoters themselves but also to His Lordship to whom it afforded a striking indication of the loyalty that existed among his people here to his person and to their church. It was expected that his Lordship would arrive from the west by the noon train and a large concourse of people representing all creeds and classes of the community were at the station. His Lordship, however, did not come by the train but drove from Tyendinaga station arriving here almost simultaneously with the train. He was greeted on his arrival with hearty cheers which he acknowledged most graciously. After receiving the greeting of Rev. Father McDonough and the Reception Committee, composed of Messrs. P. Slaven Arch. McNeill, J. P. Hanley, Thos. Trimble and P. Whalen, a procession was formed headed by the Napanee band. The procession comprised about 75 carriages containing members of the congregation of St. Patrick's Church and leading citizens—making an imposing display. The band led off with the pretty Irish air, "Kilnaree," which was succeeded by other popular Irish melodies. The route was along Johnston to Dundas-st., thence to Robert-st. and from thence to the R. C. Presbytery, where it disbanded. At various points along the line of march His Lordship was heartily cheered.

AT THE CHURCH. In the meantime the church was crowded to the doors with an eager audience, waiting patiently the commencement of the services. Hundreds were unable to gain admission. The edifice was very tastefully decorated. The entrance was draped with evergreens and bore the motto, "Pastor Bonus Delectus Deo." The ceiling of the auditorium was draped with bunting of various hues making a very pleasing effect; and on the gallery was displayed the motto, "Benedictus qui Venit Nominis Domini." The altar was exquisitely decorated with Limerick lace intertwined with flowers. On the left, or gospel side of the altar, there was erected a handsome damask throne for his Lordship. The altar of the Blessed Virgin was canopied with lace, reality and embossed with a profusion of flowers. The entire work of decoration exhibited good taste and judgment and reflected the highest credit on the committee of ladies who had it in charge.

"I don't mean his health," returns little Leo, pointing. "I mean—I mean his looks. A paragon may have something the matter with him, and still his liver and lungs be all right."

If the sweet voice is low, it is always low; if it falters, it is a pathetic little falter; if it closes with something like a sob, the last chord of the accompaniment drowns that.

HONORING ALMA MATER. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE. The Proceedings Yesterday—The Convention of the Pupils of St. Mary's College, Montreal. The Holy Father sends his Apostolic Benediction to the old and present pupils, to the Moderators and Professors of St. Mary's College, Montreal.

The Convention in the St. Mary's College of former pupils opened last Wednesday. The secretary was just about to read his report, when the following cablegram was handed to the president by a page:—"ROME, July 16th. M. G. C. DE LORIMIER, President of the Convention of the Pupils of St. Mary's College, Montreal.—The Holy Father sends his Apostolic Benediction to the old and present pupils, to the Moderators and Professors of St. Mary's College, Montreal."

The island and amused themselves in various ways. The day was extremely fine, and many availed themselves of the opportunity of rowing on the river. A programme of sports and games prepared for the occasion was gone through and attracted large numbers of spectators. A sumptuous repast a la carte was served by Victor. A thoroughly enjoyable time was spent. The excursionists returned to the city at about 4 o'clock.

The most excited yearnings and the best—shines Gnatrude, whose fond voice now recalls the halcyon days spent within those walls, where our untutored minds to build a thought by firm and lofty gifts, sons were nurtured in the dawn of our nation's infancy. The debt we owe (by never we forget) to those who led us to our goal divine, where faith is no o'er-shoulder of learning's shrine.

And she does it bravely too, to the end.

AND NOW THE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT IS ANGRY at the action of several members of the Victoria (Australia) Parliament for passing strong resolutions in favor of Irish autonomy.

THE LORDS HAVE CONCLUDED IT IS NOT QUITE safe to kick the Arrears bill clean out of their illustrious house, but they will emasculate it as they did the Compensation bill of 1870 and the Land bill of last year, until it becomes utterly worthless.

A certain Colonel Brackenbury was brought from India, after the assassination of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke, to organize an efficient detective system for the prevention and detection of crime in Ireland.

CONTRARY to all the predictions hazarded by the quid nuncs, the Peers will not oppose the Arrears bill. Lord Salisbury has advised them, and they have accepted his advice.

THE "IRISH CATHOLIC" VOTE. Mr. Matthew Ryan, late Stipendiary Magistrate in the Northwest, has written a letter to the Winnipeg Times, which will be found in another column of to-day's Post.

NOW THAT THE PROCEEDINGS connected with the re-union of the Jesuit students are over, we beg to congratulate those interested in its success. It was an idea gracefully conceived and carried out in that executive manner which always characterizes any enterprise taken in hand by the Jesuits.

IT WOULD APPEAR THAT THE CONDUCT of Admiral Nicholson in Alexandria does not meet the approval of the American Government, no matter how much it was endorsed by the English press, or perhaps, for the reason, it was so endorsed. The Admiral had certainly no right to enter into alliances which might have the effect of drawing the United States into a war with Egypt or Turkey, but then it must be admitted it was hard to ride at anchor and see his fellow Christians murdered by the Egyptians without rendering assistance. We presume it is going round each ship of the British fleet separately and cheering them that has caused the anger of the American authorities, just as much as placing American marines under the command of even Lord Charles Berosford.

WHEN THE GREAT EXODUS from Ireland commenced thirty-four years ago, the London Times and the small fry of journals who follow in its wake expressed themselves delighted at seeing the standing Irish difficulty about to be removed, and, later on, when the famine drove hundreds of thousands to the Irish and English ports, the Times cried "the Celts are gone—gone with a vengeance."

WHEN THE EXODUS began England was arbitress of Europe, and she was in a fair way towards universal dominion. Nothing could withstand her arms by land or by sea, and never a year had elapsed since Waterloo that she did not gain in prestige or in territory.

WHEN THE EXODUS began England was arbitress of Europe, and she was in a fair way towards universal dominion. Nothing could withstand her arms by land or by sea, and never a year had elapsed since Waterloo that she did not gain in prestige or in territory. The effect of Irish immigration was not felt on her foreign policy until the younger generation of Irishmen abroad attained to manhood and became educated. Then the powerful element on this continent reacted upon Ireland, which began to talk of taking up arms.

THE "IRISH CATHOLIC" VOTE. Mr. Matthew Ryan, late Stipendiary Magistrate in the Northwest, has written a letter to the Winnipeg Times, which will be found in another column of to-day's Post.

NOW THAT THE PROCEEDINGS connected with the re-union of the Jesuit students are over, we beg to congratulate those interested in its success. It was an idea gracefully conceived and carried out in that executive manner which always characterizes any enterprise taken in hand by the Jesuits. The number of distinguished men who attended the re-union must be gratifying to all concerned, but to none more than the fathers who had seen them grow under their eyes and watched their post-collegiate career with interest.

The Admiral had certainly no right to enter into alliances which might have the effect of drawing the United States into a war with Egypt or Turkey, but then it must be admitted it we reiterate Irish Catholic journals are not to blame. We believe it belongs to the past, and that both the Globe and the ancient Tories—who were Tories indeed—are responsible for it. When a cry like this is started it argues inferiority on the part of the subject of it, and, undoubtedly, as Mr. Ryan states in quoting Lord Durham, the Irish of forty years ago had no political status in the country. They had votes, but that was all, and politicians counted them during election times though absolutely refusing to allow them a share in the Government.

WE DO NOT altogether agree with Mr. Ryan when he implies the "Liberal" party of the present day is really liberal. If so, it has changed for the better, and changed radically since 1873, when the Rev. Mr. Dewart, editor of the Christian Guardian, was boycotted for voting for the Hon. John O'Donohoe, from which we must infer there is also a Scotch Presbyterian vote, though nothing is said about it.

FANNY PARNELL.

MISS FANNY PARNELL, one of Erin's fairest, brightest and most loving daughters, has gone to her last resting place. Her death is a national loss, and, as such, will be mourned by the Irish race, for which she and hers have done so much.

THEY ARE BUT THE FEW who realize what women have done for the cause of mankind. Looking over the pages of history we find that there is no epoch without its heroines, and, most assuredly, the name of Fanny Parnell and that of her equally patriotic sister, Anna, will find an honored place in the future story of Ireland's struggle for emancipation, as they have now in Irish hearts the world over.

KNAVES MAY scoff and cynics may sneer when a woman steps out of what they term her proper sphere, but then they cannot have read history, sacred or profane, or if they have they must forget the services of a Judith, a Jean of Arc, a Madame Roland. And it is the spirit which moved them that actuated Fanny Parnell. She was, if necessary, prepared for heroic deeds, and she certainly made heroic sacrifices.

SHE WAS BORN in the aristocracy of the land. All that wealth and social standing could give were at her command. But hers was not the spirit which contents itself with the life of a butterfly while her country is in bondage, while its children are debarr'd from their inheritance.

AND MISS FANNY PARNELL did her share in the great work of regeneration now going on. The pity of it is that she did not live long enough to see that work crowned with the success which is advancing upon it; she died on the road to victory, but there are other Parnells left with patriotism and enthusiasm, as strong and as hopeful as filled the soul of the dead poetess.

turned aside from their holy purpose by the shafts of ridicule. Let the men of Ireland mourn for Fanny Parnell, for when some of them faltered, despairing that the dawn of the morning would ever come, the hand of the gifted lady—now cold in its shroud at Borden-town—pointed to the glimmering of the light beyond, and cheered them on to the struggle for right and freedom.

AN EAST-GOING CONFERENCE.

THE EUROPEAN CONFERENCE is not doing much towards the pacification of Egypt. It sits every day and talks, but what it says is a mystery, if indeed it says anything at all. It is suspected the ambassadors while away the time playing whist. When any new proposition is started, an adjournment takes place and each plenipotentiary telegraphs to his Government for fresh instructions, after which they play lawn tennis on the grounds in front of Lord Dufferin's house.

MISS FANNY PARNELL, one of Erin's fairest, brightest and most loving daughters, has gone to her last resting place. Her death is a national loss, and, as such, will be mourned by the Irish race, for which she and hers have done so much. Her soul was strong, her heart was brave, but her body was weak, and was prematurely consumed by the fires burning within. The sword was too bright and keen for the scabbard.

A CABLEGRAM says Mr. John Parnell called upon the Orangemen to gather in his crops for him, and that those gentlemen consented. Considering that Mr. John Parnell's crops are in Georgia, and that the land agitation has not yet spread to that favored region, it will be as well to wait for confirmation of this story.

MCGEE'S Illustrated Weekly is now in the hands of the clever and enterprising James Redpath, and, such being so, it is hardly necessary to say that it will soon be one of the leading papers on the Continent. We wish it all the success it will surely obtain under such editorial management.

CORRESPONDENCE.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL PENITENTIARY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TRUE WITNESS: DEAR SIR,—Allow me to inform your contemporary that all that has been said by "Ex-Convict" in connection with the St. Vincent de Paul shooting affair and the working of the Institution is perfectly absurd.

Secondly,—That as regards there being too much familiarity between the officers and the prisoners, this was not to be wondered at during the times that Mr. McKay ruled, as reports made by officers against convicts for infringing the rules of the penitentiary were put in the waste paper basket, or otherwise stood as offences against the officers who made them, on a plausible story being told by the convicts to the said McKay, and at times when the officers would know nothing of it, the system then being that the convicts under McKay ruled the Institution.

P. H. R.

St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TRUE WITNESS: SIR,—The question has been often asked, why the Protestant officials of the Penitentiary are favored more than the Roman Catholics. Liberal Protestants, as well as Roman Catholics, remark that the treatment meted by the latter at the hands of the chief officers of the Penitentiary, Warden Creighton, savours of intense hostility.

ON THE WATER AS WELL AS ON THE LAND.

HOW IS IT possible to prevent a good thing from being known, is the question now agitating some few individuals in the Dominion. Therefore larger numbers although not sufferers from rheumatic troubles, are of the opinion of Capt Barry, of Kingston, owner of several lake vessels, and himself sailing master of one, who says: "I, too, have been cured of the rheumatism by St. Jacobs Oil, the Great German Remedy; and I know of several others beside myself who have been cured of that dreadful ailment in the same manner; it is known upon the water, just as well as on the land, and is considered an invaluable remedy everywhere."

THE IRISH CATHOLICS.

(To the Editor of the Winnipeg Times.)

SIR,—It must be far from pleasing to Irish Catholics, who have long regarded themselves as of the body politic of our Dominion, to read, day by day, of the kindness of one portion of their fellow-subjects towards them, and of the neglect of another; of their being, in fact, a kind of pariah class, having neither rights nor claims; and what is worse, of having neither intelligence nor will as to when or where a man of their body should be selected for political preferment or distinction.

BUT THE POINT which you and other writers seem most desirous of making at present is, that an alliance with, or rather dependence upon, the Tory party is the only legitimate or safe course for Irish Catholics as a body. This I, for one, most emphatically deny. It is true that since, by the force of Reform example and Reform political power, Toryism has been reduced to what a member of the House of Commons said it has become in England, "a mild and gentle alternative," Catholics have not been seriously injured by it; but the man who says that when Canadian Tories really had power, uncontrolled and unweaved by Reform strength and organization, they did not use it injuriously and most offensively towards Catholics, and that they would not resume that course could they resume their former bad status, is either ignorant of Canadian history, or unwilling to tell the whole truth.

THE BEST AUTHORITY as to how Catholics were regarded by the old Tory compact of Upper Canada is Lord Durham's report. His Lordship came to Canada as High Commissioner in 1838, with plenary power to enquire into the various grievances of the then two Provinces, and his report, a most able and truthful document, tells, in vivo, that when he arrived there was not a Catholic in office in all Upper Canada; and that their apparently systematic exclusion contrasted badly with the fact that their fidelity and loyalty and mainly contributed to save the colony. He then refers to letters which had been addressed to him on this subject by the then Catholic Bishop of Kingston, and by a merchant of that city, Mr. Manahan. Both letters are in the appendix. Lord Durham's report shattered Toryism to pieces—Lyon Mackenzie's rebellion had given it a shock and the early advent into power of Lafontaine and Baldwin opened wide the doors of the constitution to every loyal man. Since then Irish Catholics have been steadily advancing to their place and position—before they were, as their fathers were in Ireland, a proscribed people, owing, in each case, to cruel and unreasoning Toryism. It may be said, it has been said, that Sir John A. Macdonald has never been of the Tory spirit, par et simple, and that, in fact, he adopted the Baldwin policy. He has, however, told a different story himself. On a public banquet he said he entered public life as a "Tory of Tories," and that "the old Compact party never liked him." Although he was elected to Parliament in the first instance as a supporter of Sir William Draper, and fought side by side with that able and unscrupulous Tory chieftain against Baldwin, I am still unwilling to believe that he was a Tory of the worst type. He was probably more of the "adventurer," and as such was already to come to terms with the Catholic or Orangeman, or both, with the Tory or the Reformer, to serve the purposes of the hour. Of such was Palmerston, of whom Cobden said, "He was the worst Minister that ever ruled England," of such was Beaconsfield, Sir John's best beloved.

YOU WILL PROBABLY judge from the above that I am not too favorable to Irish Catholics becoming supporters of the present Dominion Government. I certainly do not approve of such a course; but what I specially dislike is the talk to which I have referred, implying, as it does, that they are moved as machinery, hither or thither, at the will of one or other of our political parties, and I am not pleased with their own ostentatious avowals, or pronouncements, sometimes, that they have taken the field more as Irish Catholics than Canadian citizens. By all means, let the Irish Catholic join Sir John on the N. P. policy, or even "the Gerryandering Bill," but for deaconry's sake let him not tell us that because of his race and religion he is identifying himself with a party that for such a length of time, at home and abroad, was remarkable for nothing so much as for their hatred and scorn of that race and religion.

Yours, &c., MATTHEW RYAN.

WHILE THE POPE was taking his usual drive in the Vatican gardens, the report of a gun was heard close at hand. The concourse took flight, whirled his horse, cried out "Help! Assassins!" and drove full speed into the courtyard of the Papal palace, causing great consternation among the guards, who ran for their arms and barred the gates. The guards went in quest of the supposed assassins, and soon returned to the palace with a dead cat, which the keeper of a neighboring yard had shot.

A CURIOUS PIECE of artillery has arrived at Windsor Castle. The weapon, which is believed to have come from some Eastern country, has seven barrels, the bore of which is rather larger than those of ordinary rifles; laid horizontally upon a wooden carriage the central one being longer than the rest. At the breach is a groove for a train of powder to the touchholes, so that all the barrels can be discharged simultaneously.

LITTLE ARTHUR SMITH

Found on a Doorstep!

THE MYSTERY OF A DAY

The effect of the abduction on female nerves—The kidnappers let the child loose—An ill-timed and silly practical joke—Mr. H. J. Shaw carries the news of the child's recovery to its parents—Their outbursts of joy—Arthur's new suit—Discovery by the servant girl—The Detectives—A Happy Sequel.

The daring abduction of little Arthur Smith, accomplished under such singular circumstances and which has been fully depicted in the public press, has happily remained the mystery of only one day; but during those twenty-four hours it created as startling a sensation as any one event could possibly do.

All credit is due to Mr. Melvin Smith for the prompt manner in which he communicated the occurrence to the authorities, notwithstanding the absurd, but outrageous, threats which were made in the letter if he attempted to make the kidnapping public.

A letter carrier by name of Hermidas Cousineau, residing in Barri street, rushed into the store of Mr. J. B. Giguere on St. Joseph street, and with words uttered at intervals for want of breath (and under the circumstances it would not have been much harm if he could not get any) said that he knew where little Arthur was, and that he wanted the use of the telephone to get in communication with Police Headquarters.

While the proprietor of the store rang the bell for the connection, Cousineau started out, saying he was going up to Mr. Smith's to inform them of his lucky discovery.

Mr. Smith, Mr. Shaw and Detective Arcand then drove in haste to Mr. Shaw's residence, on the corner of Peel street and Burnside Place.

"NO ONE BUT A WOMAN" said Mrs. Smith, could have dressed the child so well. His hair still remained braided. His eyes were fatigued looking, as if he had been crying, which was stopped by the use of candy, for his little hands were sticky as well as the front of his dress.

The detectives called our attention to the unfair manner in which they had been dealt with by an evening contemporary accusing them of APATHY AND INDIFFERENCE in connection with the crime.

In connection with the crime. They say that there were no grounds for such criticism, and Chief Detective Cullen expressed himself in the following terms to a reporter:—"We purposely did not let the public know what we were doing in the case to effect the capture of the abductors, as this would simply have been informing the offenders themselves who are always on the look out for what appears in the papers.

We took full precautions in the matter and at once sent telegrams to all parts of the country, answers to which have been coming in all day, but nothing was furnished for us to work upon.

MR. O'CONNOR'S LETTER.

A Sensational Debate in the House of Commons Reported by a Member.

LONDON, July 8.—We have had really exciting times within the last seven or eight days, and the whole business has ended in a startling and portentous way.

The secret history of the action of Dr. Lyon Playfair, Chairman of committees, is late threw this gentleman into the place for which by disposition and training he was the least fitted.

passionate, strong man, who was at once a nobleman and a radical, who made Canada and ruined himself, and who finally fretted out his heart and his life in baffled hopes and ambition.

When he stood up yesterday there was a general enquiry all around the House as to who he was. A small, dapper young fellow, dressed in a short and jaunty coat, he looked a mere schoolboy, and everybody expected that we would have had one of those stammering, stumbling, and dreadfully nervous little speeches, such as we are accustomed to hear from the shambling young creatures that represent noble houses in Parliament.

Meanwhile, scenes of equally intense excitement had been going forward in other parts of the Parliamentary building. The Ministerialists were driven almost frantic with excitement and alarm, and were trying all sorts of methods to avert the coming defeat.

that a Whig administration rarely recovers fairly from the shock of one great defeat. It struggles on for one session, or perhaps two; but the life is out of it, and everybody is glad when it has ceased to exist.

Finally, there is a moral in this whole business for the Irish people. The strong position taken up by some determined and able Irish members made one of the greatest Administrations and most powerful Ministers bite the dust.

THE WAR IN EGYPT.

Horrible Cruelities by the Soldiers—Arabi Strengthening His Position—The British Moving Forward Their Heavy Guns—The Queen's Message Calling Out the Reserve—The Question to be Discussed in Parliament To-morrow.

ALEXANDRIA, July 25.—The Monitor Egyptian has re-appeared here with the leading, "Official Journal of the Government of the Khedive." It contains the proclamation dismissing Arabi from the Ministry.

The Inspector of the Cadastre at Tantah says: "I saw women there carrying and tied to bludgeons the dismembered arms and legs of the massacred Europeans. Soldiers and the rabble fought for the loot. A Bedouin Sheikh with 20 Bedouins saved the inhabitants of the Jewish quarter and took them to his village. Another sheikh saved myself and party. The mob from Alexandria murdered three employees of the Cadastre and their families and burnt the bodies in petroleum. The mob killed twelve monks; they tied the vicars of one of the vicarates to the tail of a dog and covered him with petroleum, which was fired amid cries of joy by women and children. The mob was repulsed eight times. Finally, two sheikhs departed it."

The Khedive has dispatched a vessel to Port Said to bring Cheri Pacha here. ALEXANDRIA, July 25.—The military authorities are of opinion that Arabi will not attack the British. He is, however, strengthening his position hourly. At daybreak this morning his men, many without uniforms, were driven like slaves while working on the entrenchments. The British experience great difficulty in moving their guns, without which it is impossible to assume the offensive to Ramleh. Directly a sufficient number of heavy guns are placed in position an attempt will be made to dislodge Arabi without exposing the troops. Guns and guns from the fleet are going to the front.

LONDON, July 25.—In the House of Commons the Speaker received a message from the Queen announcing the calling out of the reserves in consequence of the troubles in Egypt. Mr. Gladstone moved that the message be considered to-morrow. A number of men of the reserve left London this morning to join regiments ordered to Egypt.

When the German Empress travels in summer the roof of her railroad carriage is covered with a layer of turf, which is watered frequently during the day as a device to keep her cool.

IRISH SECRET SOCIETIES

The extraordinary condition of affairs in Ireland has given rise to endless inquiry as to what are the causes and forces that have helped to produce and precipitate upon us the lamentable insecurity of property and life which now prevails there.

The information has been supplied by a prominent leader in the Fenian movement who has also been more or less identified with the extreme policy of the party, usually known as the Ribbonmen.

The existence of Irish Secret Societies is solely due to the fact, that Ireland is dominated by a foreign people.

The Fenian organization is the outcome of the Phoenix Society, which was suppressed in 1857, for complicity in which O'Donovan Rossa and a number of others were tried, but eventually liberated.

The entire control is in the hands of two or three men. From 1868, the Fenians or I. R. B. movement, for a time fell off, and its leaders discovered that the men whom they could induce to join the organization were not of the same social stamp as those who had previously allied themselves with the movement.

THE SUEZ CANAL PROJECT.

Where it can be defended and where assaulted—The Fresh Water Canal in Arab's power.

The points of danger on the canal are those where the banks are high—that is, at El Guise, Serapeum and Oualouf. Attack by water is simply out of the question, as the Egyptians of course could do nothing on the Mediterranean side, where the fleets of Europe are assembled in force, and in all probability nothing on the Red Sea side, where, if the Egyptians should be able to produce anything that looked like a ship to make an attack, the canal company could make a very good defence.

If the crabbled old bachelor who uttered this sentiment could but witness the intense thought, deep study and thorough investigation of women in determining the best medicine to keep their families well...

PLEASANT TO THE TASTE

Children and persons with weak constitutions have always found great difficulty in taking Cod Liver Oil, and from this fact it has not been universally used.

The pair returned to the bridegroom's parent for forgiveness and got it.

A doubtful friend is worse than a certain enemy.

It is infinitely better than a doubtful enemy. Thus Kidney-Wort is an incomparably better friend to the human race than whole catalogues full of doubtful nostrums.

SCOTCH NEWS. (From the Glasgow Herald of July 25th.)

We understand that Mr. Duncan, manager of the Glasgow Trawling Company, sold on Wednesday to Lieut-Col. Powell, representing Her Majesty's Government, twenty mules, for war purposes.

In connection with the out-door midwifery department of the Western Infirmary, Dr. M. Cameron, with Mr. David W. Torrance, medical student, attended, on Saturday, a poor woman in Madams Lane, who was safely delivered of triplets. The mother and three daughters are all doing well.

Prince Krapotkin, the distinguished Russian exile, whose article on the revolutionary movement in Russia in the current number of the Fortnightly Review has excited so much notice, is, we learn, at present in Glasgow, and will address a public meeting, under the auspices of the Red Cross Society, in the City Hall, on Tuesday evening first.

At a meeting of the Dundee Liberal Association on Tuesday, a resolution was passed supporting the ruling of the Chairman of Committee in regard to the Irish obstructions. Resolutions were also adopted urging the Government to press on the lines of the Commons their procedure regarding Ireland.

A waterspout broke above Arrochar on Friday week, between four and five o'clock P. M., doing great damage. The hillsides were deluged, and the masses of rocks and boulders swept towards Lochlong. The scene is described as terrific, as the mass of water swept with tremendous force shorewards, carrying away everything in its course.

Amongst the passengers by the Royal Mail steamer Minho, which arrived at Southampton on Saturday, are Captain Hall, his wife and child; five of the crew of the British barque Roseneath, which foundered at sea on the 12th May. The Roseneath belonged to Glasgow.

UNREPARABLE TORTURES are experienced by the neuralgic, and these beset them upon the slightest occasion, particularly when they catch a trifling cold. Until the attack passes off they are racked with pain and rendered helpless and miserable.

Mr. P. S. Murphy, who has always taken a great interest in this school, said, among other things, that he thought the good and devoted Sisters should have a library for the use of the pupils, and that to encourage the formation of one, he now begged to present them with 15 volumes as a beginning, and he had no doubt that many kind friends would contribute to this good work.

Among the volumes presented by Mr. Murphy we noticed: Life of Pope Pius IX. Sermons of Father Burke, Irish Works of Thomas Moore, and also of our Irish Canadian poets, the gifted Mrs. Leprohon.

I mentioned the other day, says a London correspondent, that the visit of M. de Lesseps to England was connected with another gigantic engineering enterprise. I am now in a position to announce that Sir E. Watkin and M. de Lesseps have had a conversation together on the practicability of constructing a submarine tunnel to connect Scotland with Ireland.

The money market was quiet and unchanged at 5 to 6 per cent. for call and time loans.

The stock market was active again this morning, but prices were downwards rather than upwards. Bank of Montreal fell 1/4 to 21 1/2 bid; Ontario 1/4 to 12 1/2; Merchants 1/4 to 12 1/2; Toronto 1/4 to 12 1/2; Commerce 1/4 to 12 1/2; and Dominion 1/4 to 12 1/2.

Under the auspices of the Glasgow Conservative Association, Professor Webb, Q. C., LL. D., and public orator, Dublin University, assisted by Mr. Dunbar Plunket Barton, a young barrister, described as nephew of the right Hon. David Plunket, M. P., addressed a meeting in the City Hall on Saturday afternoon.

Professor Webb said he was profoundly convinced that in the present crisis Conservative principles were not only the true principles for the salvation of the country, but that the Conservative party was the last refuge of everything in the shape of Liberalism.

WEEKLY REVIEW—WHOLESALE PRICES. The wholesale markets with one or two exceptions have shown no improvement during the past week, but we may shortly expect a much brisker movement in trade circles.

The Western grain markets during the past week have been subject to violent fluctuations and in consequence of the splendid harvest weather in both the Western States and Canada, prices of wheat have at last dropped into the nineties, thus reaching something like a satisfactory shipping point.

At 2.30 p.m. in Liverpool cheese was at 57s 6d, but breadstuffs were easier. Red winter wheat was at 9s 6d to 10s; white at 9s 9d to 9s 11d and club at 9s 11d to 10s 4d. Weather cloudy.

In sympathy with the West the local breadstuffs market is very unsettled. In Chicago last night, August wheat was 2 1/2c lower at 99c and September 2 1/2c lower at 98c. Corn was 1/2c weaker at 75 1/2c August, 75 1/2c September.
