Wanted: A Method of Destruction.

Some features of modern construction add new problems to the problem of building. This is particularly true of concrete construction and fireproofing. Ordinarily the life of a building, a business building for instance, is from twenty-five to thirty-five years. Buildings as constructed a score of years ago can be wrecked at little or no expense, sometimes, in fact frequently, yielding a small profit from the residual material over the cost of tearing down and hauling away. The other day it became necessary in the march of improvements in New York city to tear down a reinforced concrete building, and the actual cost of wrecking it was $22,300. Thus it will be seen an important factor enters into the consideration of this form of construction. In addition to the cost of construction, you must also figure the cost of demolition. It seems worthy of the thought and study of architects, if not of inventors, for it may require invention of a high order, to devise some satisfactory building scheme in the way of reinforced concrete which will not detract from the structure and will permit the wrecking of the building, when necessary, at a reduced cost, if not at a profit as with former construction. —Stic. Amen.

The Universality of Invention.

An experience extending over many years impresses the writer with the fact that invention is common to all classes and that it is accompanied invariably with great enthusiasm. Only a few days ago in a street car the writer sat opposite a man evidently in humble circumstances, who held in his hand the model of some contrivance and he looked at it with the eye of a lover. And so it is with them all. Whether millionaire copper king, patent medicine man rolling in wealth, negro porter, or a negro client the writer once had from the South, who looked like a descendant of one of the African kings and had a very ingenious improvement in compound engines, they are all characterized by an enthusiasm that endures. And this is one of the great charms of the pursuit, the creative character of invention operating to maintain the interest and absorb the attention of the inventor. Financial failure does not detract from the pleasure of invention, for the inventor often states that the pleasure he had experienced in producing an invention well repaid him for the effort, even though on completion it was found to have been anticipated by another. —Stic. Amen.

Keep Only the Best

The problem of selection is coming into prominence among high-class dairymen. They are keeping very accurate records of the products of their cows. They know a pound how much milk and butter fat each cow in the herd yields during the season. They weed out the poor or unprofitable cows. They use only the very best bulls of good milk and butter yield. They select only the best heifers from the best cows for breeding purposes, and sell the culls. It requires a good judge of cattle to be a good breeder; but one needs to be more than merely a good judge. He should understand the principles of breeding and how to feed also. How often one sees good animals get into a second-class farmer's or feeder's hands and go back in flesh, condition and performance. If a man tries to select only the best and keeps improving his stock by improving his feeding and care, he will learn how to get better and better results. The point is to have a high ideal and then work to it. Do not be discouraged if at first the progress is slow. When men have made up their minds as to the ideal they are going to attain, they make progress, and no power on earth can hold them back. Keep only the best. Feed only the best. Breed only the best. —Tor. Globe.

Diver Down at Wreck Of Bruce

Special to The Morning Chronicle, Louisburg, March 27.—The steam tug D. H. Thomas, on her arrival from the scene of the wreck of the steamer Bruce tonight, reports the sea calm and the condition of the wreck unchanged. The diver was sent down and all the mail sacks recovered, as well as all baggage and passengers' effects. A large quantity of the furniture and furnishings of the saloon and cabin were also recovered. The mail sacks recovered from time to time have been brought to the Post Office here, dried and assorted by the mail clerk in charge and forwarded to their destination. The mail sacks carrying the letters and registered matter have been very little damaged by their immersion; other sacks carrying papers, etc., were badly water-soaked, but have been dried out and also forwarded. The weather conditions prevailing since the time of the accident have been all that could be desired for salvaging purposes, and should the wind continue blowing off shore, everything of value can be saved. The steamer Glencoe leaves Port aux Basques at midnight tonight for Louisburg. A large quantity of freight and mail as well as a large number of passengers are awaiting her arrival at this port.

Remarkable Power of The Neptune's Fire

Speaking of the trials of H. M. S. Neptune, the London Standard says: The details of the many improvements in construction and in gunnery which the Neptune was deputized to test are naturally kept profoundly secret, but this much is known—that the vessel, fitted with a new system of fire control, has been able to achieve results in volley firing with her big guns hitherto undreamed of both as regards accuracy and rapidity of fire. In conjunction with the fire control a new aim-corrector system has been tested, and this also, to judge by the report from Gibraltar, has achieved all that was expected of it. One of the severest trials to which the Neptune was submitted was the firing of 36 rounds from her ten 12in. —Exchange.

Puss Loses Mouse but Finds $875

A cat at Fort Plain, N. Y., chased a mouse under a footstool in the home of Henry Karg. The cat squeezed under the stool, then thrust its paw up into a hole in the bottom of the stool. Presently down came the paw without the mouse, but with a $50 bill sticking to one of its claws. The members of the Karg family at once suspended household operations to explore the hole in the footstool.

In all $875 was found stowed away in the stool, which has been known around the house ever since the death of Granville Karg on Feb. 25 last. She was known to have been of a saving disposition, but she died so suddenly she had no chance to reveal where she had stored her hoard.

Part of the treasure trove is to be spent on a monument to Granville with a carved footstool on it.

Old "TEXAS" SUNK Goes to Bottom in Naval Test of Marksmanship.

The old battleship, Texas, with her name changed for sentiment's sake to San Marcos, was sunk by a veritable storm of shot and shell in Tangier Sound last Tuesday. The veteran of the United States navy sank under the spectacular marksmanship of her newer sister. Gaping holes in her port side and two jagged wounds in her forward armor, where shells passed completely through her, showed how she succumbed. Part of both her fighting masts were shot away and her stack was a cluster of debris.

The marksmanship test against a comparatively modern battleship was conducted with almost unvarying secrecy. No one was permitted to approach the San Marcos, the name under which the old Texas received the fire and except the observers and one or two naval officers and officials.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer, whose private yacht Dolphin was anchored near, made several trips to the shattered old ship during pauses in the firing. The broadsides delivered by the battleship New Hampshire at varying distances of from six to seven and one-half miles, were considered remarkable by ordnance officers. More than one-third of all the shots were said to have gone through, although nothing official was given out.

Mrs. Burton Campbell of Flume Ridge is visiting her mother Mrs. Wash Stuart.

Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy of Sorrel Ridge spent Sunday here the guest of Mrs. T. Stewart.

W. McC. and Wash Stewart spent Tuesday with Mrs. Wm. Stewart.

Geo. Hooper is very ill under the care of Dr. H. B. Lawson of Rolling Dam, but is some better at the time of writing.

Dr. H. B. Lawson and Harry Ashby of Rolling Dam passed through here one day last week on their way to Piskelagan.

Mrs. Jas. Stewart and children spent Wednesday with Mrs. T. Stewart.

A TALK ON LAW.

The final talk in the course announced for the Public Reading Room was given on Monday evening by Judge Owen, his subject being "Law Every Man Should Know."

Rev. W. B. Blair was called to the chair, and introduced the lecturer.

The Judge prefaced his remarks by saying that the old adage, where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise, did not apply in law. To plead ignorance of the law does not excuse one.

Dealing first with Banking Law, the speaker referred to "Notes." In order to hold the endorser liable, the note, if payable at a certain place, must be presented at that place at the proper time, or, if no place is mentioned, then it must be presented to the maker at his usual place of business. Should it not be paid, notice must be given on the day of presentation or the day following to each of the endorsers, notifying them of the presentation and non-payment of the note. It is rather a popular fallacy that before a note on demand can be sued, a demand for payment must be made, but this is not so. The first demand may be service of the writ, the costs of which the defendant would have to pay.

Touching upon the subject of Deeds, the lecturer then stated that in the event of the grantor being married his wife should be a party to the deed and should go before a Justice of the Peace, a Barrister or any other person authorized, and release her dower, otherwise, should she survive her husband, she would still have a right of dower in the property, which would amount to a life interest in one-third of it; excepting in timber lands, in which a widow has no right of dower.

Mr. Owen spoke on the necessity of having a mortgage properly released. To this end the mortgage should be released under seal, the release signed by the holder of the mortgage in the presence of a witness who must make affidavit that he saw the holder of the mortgage sign the release.

The only way to discharge a mortgage is by recording the release on the records. In some cases instead of a release, the mortgage and bond are given up to the maker of the mortgage be released upon the records it still stands.

There is no branch of the law more important to the average citizen, at least, than that which deals with Contracts. The law in this connection is comparatively simple, yet it is surprising how many people are totally ignorant of even the first principles. Any person who is twenty-one years of age, and who knows what he is doing, can make a valid contract. Infants can contract, and bind their parents for necessities.

Somewhat akin to the Law of Contracts is the Married Woman's Property Act. By this a woman, having obtained the consent of her husband in writing and having placed the same upon the books in the office of the Registrar of Deeds, can carry on a business in her own name. She can acquire and hold real and personal property in her own name, can sue and be sued and generally can do anything that she could have done had she remained unmarried.

Partnerships—The names of the partners, the object of the partnership, the amount each member has invested in the firm, should all be set forth in the articles of Association. If no object is mentioned a partner can bind the rest for anything he chooses to contract for; if it is mentioned he can only bind the firm or that which is necessary to the conduct of the business.

The lecturer's long experience in the office of Judge of Probate specially qualified him to speak of the matter of wills. He said the general public had many erroneous ideas of the laws relating to this important branch. The party making the will is called the testator; a person taking real estate under a will is called a devisee, and one taking personal property is called a legatee. An heir at law is one who inherits when there is no will.

Any person above the age of twenty-one years, who is of a sound disposing mind can make a will, the essentials of which are that the testator shall sign his name in the presence of at least two witnesses, who must both sign their names as witnesses in the presence of the testator and of each other. A witness must not be devisee or legatee under the will.

In most wills one or more persons are named with powers to settle and wind up the estate. These persons are called executors. Where no person is named, the next of kin or in some cases a creditor or is appointed by the Court of Probate to wind up the estate. Such person is called an administrator.

A married woman can make a will, but if she leaves to her husband more than he would have received had she died without a will, she must make a declaration before a notary at which time her husband must not be present to the effect that she made and executed her will as her free act and deed, without fear or compulsion from her husband. Many people are under the impression that a parent making a will must mention the names of all the children and leave each of them at least one dollar. This is not so. The only restriction is the widow's dower.

The matters of libel and slander were gone into into quite fully, and many interesting and valuable points were brought out during the course of the lecture, which it is impossible to quote length in the space at our disposal.

At the close remarks were made by P. C. Whitman, A. M. King, Dr. Macze and others, and a vote of thanks was tendered the learned lecturer.

Before adjournment the chairman took occasion to say a few words in praise of the course of talks, and he paid a well deserved tribute to Claude C. King, secretary of the Public Reading Room, for the thought and energy he had expended in organizing and carrying through the course. —Annapolis Spectator.

Alsace-Lorraine

The speech lately made by the German Chancellor upon the condition of affairs in Alsace-Lorraine is of interest, as it shows that country is not incorporated with Prussia, but is, of itself a state, representative in the Bundesrath, or national Council of the German Empire. Apparently Prussia does not like this, but would prefer to have Alsace-Lorraine incorporated into her territory. The Chancellor maintained that the development of her own autonomy by Alsace-Lorraine was necessary to the interest of both the empire and the provinces. The statement of the Chancellor and the objection of Prussia to the existing arrangement plainly reveals the fact that there are in the German empire two different sets of opinion as to how Alsace-Lorraine should be handled. Just what the opinion of the conquered provinces is does not clearly appear, but in all probability the desire to be restored to France is still strongly in the minds of the people. —Globe.

China Family Relief Committee

Below we publish a letter which fully places an important matter before our readers. This is a matter in which our town and district should give their mite, and in compliance with the suggestion the Greetings will accept any subscriptions handed in and promptly forward such.

Patron, His Excellency The Governor-General, Honorary Chairman. His Honor The Lieutenant Governor, Honorary Vice Chairman. Sir James Whitney of Ontario.

Chairman, Hon. M. A. Charlton, 18 Toronto St. Secretary, J. H. Gandy, 6 King Street West. Treasurer, S. J. Moore, 445 King Street West.

Toronto, March 30, 1911.

Dear Mr. Editor,

We are writing the Editors of our Dominion asking their co-operation in securing help for the famine-stricken Province of Anhui and Kiangsu in China where nearly three million people are destitute and perishing. The conditions there are appalling. The harvest was almost destroyed by the terrible flood, and so much can be had from the soil until June or later. Many villages were entirely swept away and the people left homeless and in distress. Multitudes gather together in great camps; those who are strong enough wander over the hills, pulling up roots of weeds for fuel in cooking the scanty of rice they may receive from the relief agencies. The suffering is terrible. Thousands of tottering babies, boys and girls clad in rags—clad at all—are about everywhere; old men and women huddle about teatime on sticks for support, or lie by the wayside, their eyes staring up in mute appeal. Many thousands have perished, and it is estimated that over a million will die unless help is immediately sent. The Chinese Consul-General at Ottawa writes that the distress is indescribable. The Honorary Secretary of the Distributing Committee in Shanghai, cables that the famine area is larger than at first believed. Bishop White, of Houston, cables an urgent appeal for help. The one hundred thousand dollars asked from Canada to help meet this awful situation should be easily and immediately secured. One dollar and fifty cents will save a human life. How many lives will your readers save? The Editors of our country can do more than any other class to assist in this work. We ask you to make a strong appeal through your paper, making use of this letter as you may think necessary, noting that His Excellency Earl Grey, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, J. M. Gibson, and the Hon. Sir James Whitney are giving their movement their hearty support. We suggest that in making the appeal you give your readers the alternative of sending contributions direct to the Treasurer of the Central Committee, Mr. S. J. Moore, 445 King Street West, Toronto, or sending to you, and that in the latter case you acknowledge all such contributions through your columns, and remit weekly to the Treasurer, Mr. Moore. Trusting that in response to this cry of suffering humanity you will do all you can and that we may receive a reply from you, and a copy of the paper containing your first appeal.

On behalf of the Committee, we are, Yours sincerely,

W. A. Charlton, Chairman.

J. H. Gandy, Secretary.

Quick and Permanent Relief from Rheumatism

It is not exposure to cold or wet that is the real cause of rheumatism—it is bad kidneys. So long as the kidneys are doing their work properly, filtering from the blood all the Uric Acid formed there from the waste products of the body, rheumatism cannot exist. It is only when the kidneys fail, and the blood becomes loaded with this Uric Acid, that the slightest exposure stiffens up the joints or muscles and causes agony.

Rev. Father Morrissey

Father Morrissey's No. 7 Tablets

promptly relieve and permanently cure rheumatism by putting the kidneys into perfect shape for their work. Once the strengthened, invigorated kidneys get the Uric Acid cleared out of the blood the rheumatic pains disappear. If they ever show symptoms of returning a few No. 7 Tablets will tone the kidneys up again and keep you free from the dreaded rheumatism.

Father Morrissey's No. 7 Tablets have proved their value in hundreds of cases where other remedies have failed entirely.

Preparations are being made for an Easter ball to be given in the hall Easter Tuesday.

The Growing of Great Britain's Rulers.

London, March 25.—King George has decided that the Archbishop of Canterbury shall crown the Queen as well as him next June. This is in accordance with the precedent of the early times, practically the only exception being at the coronation of King Edward when Queen Alexandra was crowned by the Archbishop of York.

There was no sermon at the Coronation of King Edward, the service being specially shortened owing to the fact that the King had not recovered from a serious illness, but at the approaching coronation the sermon will be preached by the Archbishop of York.

King George is gaining in popularity daily by the determination he is showing to obtain an insight into the everyday life of his people.

Last evening the King, accompanied by the Queen and Princess Mary, paid a surprise visit to the new general post office and spent two hours in investigating its immense ramifications.

The King and Queen sent cordial greetings to the European capitals and witnessed with interest the replies coming over the wires. Globe.

THE NEWLY WED

Bride and Groom Should Share Their Friends and Relations

When a girl marries there is no reason why she should abandon the friends and interests that she has treasured in her earlier years. But how frequently it happens that one who had been the bright centre of a large family and of several friends suddenly changes when she becomes a wife.

The bride seems to be so wrapped up in her home and her husband that she has no interests outside them; while she utterly abandons her old pursuits, and so far as her friends are concerned, seems to have passed out of her youth at once.

Of a very different type is the girl who regards marriage simply as an excuse for unbounded freedom.

There is a remedy for these extremes. The idea because the young wife has the care of a home upon her shoulders she should devote herself to it entirely, is absolutely contrary to the rules of making happiness in the home, and should be banished from the mind.

There is nothing that tends so definitely to keep love fresh between young married people as a community of interests. If a man finds that the only topic a woman has any interest in is that of servant and bills, he will very soon fail to take an interest in what she says. Neither will he like the thought that her relatives and friends are being neglected by her. The young man took a pride in his fiancée's popularity before their marriage, and would still prefer to see her sought after by her friends and relatives.

Newly married folk should endeavor to share their social pleasures. The husband should never be allowed to feel that it is a matter of indifference to his wife whether he accompanies her or not to parties. Many a man who imagines that he is not wanted says nothing, but just quietly allows himself to drift out of his wife's social life, bitterly realizing in sad silence that he is to be regarded as the break-winner merely, and not as the companion and sharer of his wife's social successes.

The two should share their friends and relations, and make allowances for all they do not quite like in their mutual belongings.

Consideration to each other and selfishness to all should be shown by husband and wife, and they should determine to share their joys with the friends of other years, and their relatives, who have been so good to them in the past. Thus the old sympathies will be riveted more closely.—Ex.

MACES BAY

Robert Mawhinney has recently disposed of two good horses at St. John and while there he purchased a fine horse from Thos. Haves for $240.

We are sorry to report Henry Craft has recently been to St. John to get treatment at the private hospital but would not remain there as the doctors pronounced him incurable, he is very sick at home here, we all hope to hear of his speedy recovery if it be allowed.

Maxville Bassen has been here peddling goods.

David Mawhinney is employed at present doing some work on the Baptist church at Dipper Harbor East as he got through with the Catholic church at Dipper Harbor West.

Melvin Mawhinney has returned home from Beaver Harbor where he has been on a sick call with his mother-in-law Mrs. E. Barry.

Mrs. Wm. Corcadden is on the sick list.

Thos. Corcadden called on friends in Dipper Harbor West Sunday.

Johnny Thompson of Dipper Harbor West is on the sick list.

Wm. Lomax sr. of Little Lezeau is slowly improving.

Word was received here of the death of Jas. Moody of Masquash.

Mrs. Thos. Baker and Mrs. A. Craft returned by Stm. Connors Bros. from St. John Saturday where they have been spending a few days.

W. Mawhinney of this place has recently purchased a fine piano from Kilw Reynolds of Lepreau.

The congregation of Trinity church here had the pleasure of another visit from the Rev. Canon Smithers, missionary of the diocese assisted by Mr. Travers, lay reader. He conducted the services in Trinity church on Sunday morning last and delivered a most singular address. Both the above mentioned gentlemen were present the evening previous at a meeting of the Sons of Temperance and addressed the division along various lines but particularly that of the Temperance cause.

A Situation to Ponder Over

The advertisement in another part of this issue tells a tale more thoroughly than any word description. The proprietor of the Albert House has become disheartened at last when both jail and financial loss face him, and prefers to make a start elsewhere.

And why must he? Because under the workings out of the Scott Act, while dives and low drinking resorts may and do flourish, a hotel-proprietor may be jailed and put out of business, if some one will only go into court and swear he got liquor on the premises.

As every one knows Allan Mann was convicted on the evidence of Hugh Harris, who swore he got liquor in the hotel, but could not remember who it was that gave it to him. Under the law the magistrate was quite justified in the sentence imposed and no one will say that he was anything but lenient when he might have imposed four months.

But it is British justice? Listen to Mr. Mann and what he said only yesterday "Before God, and if I was drawing my last breath, I have received a sentence of two months for something I did not do. I did not sell Hugh Harris any liquor, nor did anyone, I feel certain, belonging to the hotel. I think it is a put-up job."

If that is true, and it was said in a way that convinced an auditor of the truth, then there is something wrong in the situation. It is not right that a man should be put in such a position.

If the law is to remain and be respected a change will have to be made in this regard.

Mr. Mann has been able to make ends meet by reason of his paintings, but now he cannot keep his source of income and expenses will be heavier while he is away, so he is virtually driven out of town by the law and the law should only be the means of driving bad citizens out of a community.—Chatham Gazette.

New Kind of Broiler.

A new kind of broiler that can be used on any stove, but is intended primarily for use on a gas stove, has been invented by a Virginia man. Another feature, or rather, the feature of the utensil, is that all the savory juice that exudes from the meat and would otherwise drop into the fire, is saved. The broiler proper, the wire frame that holds the meat, is suspended from the apex of a casing that runs to a point at the top and has a front side that lets down on hinges. The broiler frame hangs down perpendicularly, and as the meat is cooked, the essence drips into a trough below and runs out of a little spout on the side and into a cup that is fixed to the side of the casing. This can be utilized as a blood gravy, as it is very rich in flavor, or it can be converted to brown gravy by adding a little flour.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Hobson on Jap War

"In case of a war with Japan, which I believe is very much of a possibility in the near future," said Cong. Richmond Pearson Hobson, in an interview with a Bangor Commercial reporter, "the oriental nation would have no difficulty in seizing the Philippines, the Hawaiian islands, Alaska and would doubtless succeed at least temporarily occupying the whole Pacific coast. The United States has a standing army of 80,000 men, Japan's is 500,000, and there is still another consideration in its favor. In addition to its standing army, Japan has a reserve of 1,000,000 men, which must be reckoned with as equal to the regular army in fighting value, making Nippon's army practically 1,500,000 men."

The captain was asked of the United States militia "The National guard of this country cannot compare in strength with the reserves of any other armed power. All other nations have reserves that are actually equal to their standing army in fighting efficiency."

"Our navy at present is in adequate and the condition of the Pacific coast is pitifully helpless as far as defenses are concerned. If there should be a war with Japan, the navy would be on the Atlantic coast, and there would be a small army to combat it."

"I believe that the present affair with Mexico will serve to bring out this and will in that way prove a boon. The policy of the government is now to make the Hawaiian islands a strong naval and military base, which is most praiseworthy."

Cong. Hobson stated that he thought most assuredly that there was a significance to the ruse of troops to the border and also of 2,000 regulars recently sent to Hawaii, that has a bearing on the possibilities of a war with Japan. But he does not wish to express publicly what he thinks the significance is, for he does not think it polite for himself to express his views of the matter now.

"Yes, the movements of the troops are more than manouvres," said Cong. Hobson. "It is a serious state of affairs and there is no knowing how the matter is going to wind up." He thought President Taft was thoroughly justified in sending the troops to the border. "The President is commander in chief of the army and navy, and may order any action in their part that he chooses, except to wage war, which must be done by vote of Congress. Doubtless he has reasons for sending the troops to the Mexican border, and I am inclined to think," said the hero of the Merrimac, "that they are very good reasons."

Asked whether he thought the Maine National guard, in common with the other state militia bodies, might be called out as a result of the Mexican imbroglio, Cong. Hobson said that he would not be surprised to see the Pine Tree state reserves sent out.

"Do you think that it is on account of the American interests in Mexico that the President has sent the soldiers to Texas?"

"That is one reason, but I think there are other and weightier ones."

"The United States would not add to the world's peace by disarming. China has been disarmed, and she has been the cause of wars. She has been the football of the armed powers. China was the cause of the war between Japan and Russia. Unless China accedes to Russia's demands in the present negotiations that are going on, there will be a war between them. The United States will add to the peace of the world by keeping fully armed, and able to act on the defensive or offensive."

"Idealists may argue in favor of universal disarmament, but the idea is thoroughly impracticable. Without the policemen in your city the churches and schools could not exist. The same principle applies on a larger scale in international affairs."

"Andrew Carnegie's Peace Foundation is an institution worthy of highest endorsement. I think that it will do much for peace in the way of facilitating arbitration and promoting diplomatic relations between the nations."

It was hard hitting, however, but not poor. I was still in the air, and hammer after the hammer it came down.

"A woman came out from the house. It was her line of business, I suppose. I hadn't been raised to be a woman. I'd been raised to be a man. I'd been raised to be a man who could take care of himself."

"I don't make any difference to you how I first saw her and how I began to forget that nothing else in the world was worth having but her. I'd lived in the woods all my life, and I'd been raised to be a man who could take care of himself."

For Health and Economy Eat more Bread

TEN cents will feed an ordinary family a day on first class bread. This does not mean ordinary bread. For there is an important difference between ordinary bread and first class bread.

It isn't a difference of looks or methods of making or baking. It is a difference of nutrition, food value, healthfulness. And this food value depends on the flour used. For there is a wide difference between flours.

If all flour were the best flour, then all bread, properly made, would be good bread. But all flour is not first class because all wheat is not first class. Wheat, you know, varies in quality almost as much as apples or potatoes; there are as many different grades of wheat as there are grades of butter—or wool.

And every difference in grade represents an actual difference in nourishing value, food elements, wholesomeness. Flour made from a low grade of wheat is by no means so healthful as flour made from high grade wheat. Now the wheat that goes into

Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour

is of the very highest grade. It contains the highest possible percentage of nutritive value. The makers of "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" maintain expensive laboratories and baking departments where skilled men scientifically analyze each day's milling. None but the very best Red Fife wheat—rich in nutrition and healthfulness—can pass. For this reason bread made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR contains the maximum of food value and furnishes the maximum of energy and strength. And for the same reason "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" makes the finest pies, cakes, biscuits, muffins, rolls, and pastry of all kinds. It is the one flour that a housewife should use in order to have her household baking strictly first class.

"Ogilvie's Book for a Cook" with 125 pages of Recipes that have been tried and tested will be sent free to your address if you mention the name of your dealer. 33

Guy White paid a visit to St. George one day last week.

It does not need a follow-up, of course, that because China accedes to Russia's demands she is right and Russia is wrong. It is well to be that Russia has been mindful in this matter of every moral obligation. But the statement remains true that China would have insisted upon a very different settlement if she had felt that she had power as well as right on her side. There was material here for an international lawsuit of the kind of friends of universal justice, equity and peace are hoping to see worked out as an object lesson to the world.—C. S. Monitor.

Negroes Coming to Canada's West.

Toronto, March 28.—A special from Guthrie, Okla., says: The final action of the Canadian government is admitting to that country negro families from Oklahoma whose members possess $5 each having the effect of furthering the colonization movement among the Oklahoma negroes, especially in Okfusgee, Muskogee and Grecco counties, where there is a large negro population. The first emigration to Canada during the past week was of ninety families, five hundred

England Hears Japan is Acting As if Preparing for a Man-Sized Fight

Official information has been received in London that Japan is purchasing vast quantities of rice. Similar supplies were laid in by Japan before the war with Russia.

It is also known that forces at the Japanese navy yards and arsenals are working night and day.

Alan H. Bergerine, M. P., a recognized naval authority and editor of the Navy League, said:

"The destiny of the Japanese, as often expressed to me by the Japanese themselves while I was in Japan, is the supreme command of the Pacific, and the furtherance of their national ideals will not permit, in their judgement, the establishment of any other naval power but themselves in eastern waters.

"The possession of the Philippines by the United States is a direct incitement to the Japanese with this destiny always before them, to question the right of the United States over those islands before the republic reaches her maximum naval strength.

"This popular feeling in Japan has strong official backing. Then the attacks along the Pacific coast by Americans upon the Japanese will inevitably induce our allies, probably sooner than later, to make their continuance an excuse for sharp diplomatic note.

"Knowing the temper of the Californians, from that note to actual war is not a great step.

"For persuasion of such a war the Japanese undoubtedly are most favorably placed. Having regard to their recent war with Russia and the excellent war training under Togo, the Japanese naval personnel today probably ranks in actual fighting power at least 50 per cent. more than the numerical strength of the fleet suggests.

"Japan would be fighting from her own base in waters she understands intimately. Her sailors have a natural aptitude for torpedo work.

"It is my firm conviction that, unless the United States makes a profound effort immediately, it is laying itself open to a disaster of which it is impossible to see the end.

"The Japanese would start in such a war with the sympathy of most of the world on their side, but they are sufficiently shrewd to place the onus and blame upon other shoulders.

"The genesis of the trouble is to be found in the lack of control by the central government of the United States over the state governments. It is well recognized here by those who have studied that the present attitude of constant hostility to peaceable Japanese in the United States is working slowly but surely to most disastrous consequences.

"The Japanese methods are amply exemplified in the gradual, but sure manner in which they are absorbing many islands of the Pacific at present under the flag in the United States. It is a fact in certain United States islands the Japanese preponderate over the whites and it cannot be doubted that there is little of these islands unknown by the Japanese for future use when their fleets move.

"Indeed, all outlying United States islands may be regarded as naval bases from which the Japanese fleet can work most admirably against any force sent by America across the Pacific.

"It is a remarkable fact the people of the United States themselves seem most blind to the danger which without exaggeration, is patent to many who study international subjects here.--Exchange.

By DUNCAN

NOTHING there to the ends of his own thought of getting the name of being tough.

When kings and nobles as they seldom have to look at a free lunch counter.

We would be truly grateful if the person who does us a favor would have the grace to forget it.

There are those who would rather be outbought than outbid under an obligation.

The devil finds out the moment in looking over the shoulder of the man which we mortals are blind to.

It doesn't take a very bright man to be square when the time is looking.

It takes so long to get the time coming along slow, it would be in the other hand, that we haven't time to get our own acts.

Most of us find it mighty hard to get our money.

The man who makes a few pennies gross where other men grow a fortune is more useful than he who wins a cup race.

Some folks are so slow that they drop behind and get out of sight of old Father Time himself.

Failed.
Don Pedro was a pirate
Who sailed the Spanish main
With cut-throat and no care and fight
For what he could bring him gain
If followed by a sailing man
He plowed the sailing wave
When down he ran a merchantman,
Oh, how he did behave!

His voice resembled thunder.
His grin was like a fiend,
And there was some acquaintance over
His bright and yellow skin.
And dimpled cheeks trembled
When he was at the best
And handed over their money store
Without a faint protest.

One day when out for plunder
He met a son of a duke,
Who heard his cry and more reply:
"My goodness, you are rude!
You cannot have my money.
And, sir, if you resist
I'll have to ship aboard your ship
And stow you on the west."

The haughty pirate trembled
As he recalled the matter, "Failed!"
And slowly sailed away.
The moral of this story
Is here and plain enough:
When pirates brash demand your cash
Just simply call the bluff.

He Felt It.
"In a former incarnation," exclaimed the proud beauty ordering a couple of dollars' worth more of food, "I feel that I was Cleopatra."

"Indeed!" said the man who was paying for the dinner and rapidly losing interest in the conversation.
"Yes, I know it. And who were you?"
"I guess I was a gont."

Took No Chances.
"Where you going, Bill, with such deliberation?"
"Looking for work, ye might know."
"Ain't yer taking awful chances?"
"Now, I got a list of places that didn't want no one before starting out."

Of Course.
"There are women who would really rather be married than not."
"Are there?"
"Yes."
"What do they do about it?"
"They marry."

From Experience.
"Tell me the way to go to Wall street."
"The only safe way is to go there broke."

Which Kind?
"I know a beautiful girl."
"Homest?"
"Homest!"
"Is she really pretty or just got a rich father?"

Overseasoned.
"Do you believe in flirting?"
"It is the salt of life."
"But can't it be overdone?"
"Sure. You can get anything too salty."

Unappreciated.
I try to read the ancient poets.
Who tore off stanzas by the yard;
But, truth confessed, I turn for rest
To modern and more flippant verse.

Explained.
"When is a fellow no good?"
"When?"
"Yes."
"When he is nothing but a good fellow."

Wise Youth.
"It is a good thing to laugh."
"Maybe, but don't let the boss catch you when he thinks he's furnishing either the time or the material."

What you may do for

Your Town

Rev. J. W. MacMillan, D. D., in Home Study Quarterly.

A town is just a big house, with the bellows an extended system of rooms, and all the people brothers and sisters, parents and children, who share a common life and should cherish a common love.

Let me group the thoughts I want to endorse, about three words.—Self and Sample and Task.

Self.—A town is just made up of the people who live in it. If every person were what he ought to be, the town would be what it ought to be. You can make at least one good citizen of your town. And that is no small thing.

Example.—Never think that you are too unimportant to count. When a herd of deer are grazing, if one shy one lifts its head and listens for a moment the whole herd is instantly on the alert. If one wolf in a pack should howl, the others prick their ears. You are at least a member of the community. What you do, tells upon others in ways that are beyond your discerning. You cannot be a good citizen without elevating the tone of citizenship through the entire town. And you cannot be a bad or careless citizen without lowering the tone of citizenship through the entire town.

Task.—Now, what is your task? Perhaps, if you keep your eyes open, you can find something to do better than I, who do not live in your town, can suggest. Nevertheless, I am going to make some suggestions.

Do you go to school? Well, the social side of school life is an important feature of your town's character. School does vastly more than teach what can be found in books. More of what actually counts, in adult life, may be derived from the games of the playground, than from the recitations of the classrooms. There are girls and boys away from home attending your school. Would it not be kind in you, with your comfortable homes, to be nice to these, who are perhaps feeling strange and lonely?

Are you working somewhere? Just imagine your wages, looking at the clock going to get free to enjoy yourself, are you? Let me assure you that your career will break down unless you find out how to get pleasure out of your work. Make it a hobby or store as happy as you can. Take an interest in the business. Sometimes you are going to own it in twenty years. Perhaps you will. Anyhow, you own enough of it now to find a fertile field for the investment of good and gracious influences.

Take care of your town's reputation. When you go away to play horse, or football, or to a concert, or carnival, you are not known by your own name, but as one of the bunch from No. 104-lookers will judge X—by you. I remember, in the lacrosse circuit in which I was brought up, that every town was judged by the conduct of the boys who came out of it to play lacrosse. And the judgments thus made were not far wrong. Now I have started you thinking, I

You can puzzle the rest of it out for yourselves.
Hales, N. S.

The City and the Citizens

St. John may be said to be undergoing a revival of civic consciousness. At such a time there may be uncommon interest in studies of what other cities of the world are doing, and such a study is presented by a series of articles just written by Frederic C. Howe, an experienced American observer of civic progress and problems. At the present time he is seeking to impress upon Americans the advantages to be gained by studying what the German cities have done; for curiously enough, when he seeks to find civic freedom he goes beyond the United States and Great Britain and finds what he wants in bureaucratic Germany.

The American city, he says in Scribner's, is in chains. It has great power for evil but limited power for good. American cities are not permitted to become great if they can, from the fear that they may make mistakes in so doing. "The German city, on the other hand, has almost complete autonomy. It can own, operate, lease, or regulate the franchise corporations which occupy its streets. And it very generally owns them. It can enter upon trade and industry. It may even invest public funds in private ventures which lie close to the life of the community. It builds tenements and cottages, and regulates the private owner so that his structures will not be a menace to the city. It owns great blocks of land within its limits as well as magnificent woods and forests in the surrounding country. It almost always has a monopoly of the slaughter houses; it carries on restaurants and bathhouses; it builds and operates opera houses, theatres, concert halls, palm gardens and milk depots. It even speculates on a large scale in real estate in order to keep down the price of land and enjoy a portion of the unearned increment which the growth of the city creates."

Mr. Howe goes on to point out that the great cities of the world have been free cities. It was so in Greece, and the splendid cities of medieval Italy were republics. The English city is timid, chess-playing, and far less thoughtful of the poor than even the American city.

He reminds us that Lloyd George borrowed his land tax from Germany. In 1904 Frankfurt began to levy a special tax on the unearned increment. That city now collects one-fifth of all its taxes from the speculative value which the growth of the city creates. In the last five years the Frankfurt experiment has swept over Germany; it has penetrated Switzerland and parts of Prussia also. "It inspired the Liberal party in England, and promises to create an issue which will tax the political power of the landed classes in every country in Europe"—the accepted principle being that the speculative value of the land created by the growth of a community belongs in reality to the city rather than to the individual who appropriates it. Mr. Howe points out that if New York were to adopt this system it could pay dividends to its citizens in addition to freeing itself wholly from other local taxes. For, as he says, the increase in speculative value of land in New York is enormous and continuous, the reports of the tax commissioners showing that for every baby born and for every immigrant who lands in the city, the land advances nearly $1,000 in value.

But, says Mr. Howe, I have not yet touched on the thing that the German city apart and distinguishes it from all other cities in the world. The German official thinks in a different milieu than does the British or the American official. He starts with the presumption that the city should do anything it sees fit to do provided it will improve the city, reduce the tax rate, or make it a more comfortable, healthful, or better place in which to live. The Anglo-Saxon, on the other hand, starts with an ingrained conviction that the city should do just as little as possible, and that any concession from this principle is

A Story of Prosperity

Hon. Finance Minister Fielding's fifteenth annual statement shows a surplus of thirty and one half million dollars he also claims that, nearly all amounts usually charged to capital account incurred during the year was paid out of revenue.

For the fiscal year 1909-10 the surplus was a little over $22,000,000, which paid all the charges on capital account for railways and canals for public works, for railway subsidies, for militia, for bounties and also $7,600,000 was deposited in the National Transcontinental Railway. The actual revenue for that year was $101,803,710, which was $16,000,000 in excess of that of the previous year and $8,800,000 in excess of the record year of 1907.

For the year just closed the total revenue $117,500,000, an increase of $16,000,000 over last year's high record.

The expenditure on so-called land fund account would be about $87,000,000, an increase of about $7,800,000. And in this increase there was included the expenditure for Dominion land surveys and for militia, totalling $2,800,000, which would have formerly been charged to capital account, and also $1,280,000 spent on the naval service both of which amounts were this year paid out of revenue.

Little Addition to Public Debt. On capital expenditure for the past year there has been spent $55,800,000, of which $24,000,000 was for the National Transcontinental Railway. But despite this there would be added to the net debt only $5,900,000.

The per capita debt on an estimated present population of 7,785,000, is now $45.69, as compared with $50 per capita in the closing years of the Tory regime. The total annual trade was now exceeding the $800,000,000 mark and during the first eleven months of the past fiscal year had increased by $76,798,000.

Since 1900 imports from Great Britain had increased from $44,279,983 to $101,068,534, while exports to Great Britain had increased from $96,500,000 to $145,000,000.

All these results had been brought without the imposition of any new burdens on the people, but on the other hand customs duties were substantially lower than they were under the old administration.

Starvation of Cattle on Ranges

For one year I lived by the corner of a "fenced range." This great pasture covering an area of many square miles, was "school land" mainly, which means that the school of the state derive a part of their support from its rental. Part of the pasture belonged to the cattleman who "ran" his cattle there. The "fence-riders" were supposed to make a circuit of this fence every few days, on horseback, to see if any of the wires were down, so that the cattle could escape. Besides this their d-dies were the same as those of the cowboys on the open range.

The night before Thanksgiving there was a terrible blizzard, a storm of ice and sleet. A cutting wind, driving the thermometer to zero, compelled us to keep the stove in our little "shack" at the red-hot point. All that night I was unable to sleep, because of the cries of the "fence-riders" on the range, and the shouts of the cowboys, sounding above the howl and hiss of the storm. The cattle had crowded into a horseshoe-shaped "break" or canyon, with high rock walls rising sheer a hundred feet on three sides, about a mile from our house. Here they crowded and trampled each other, while the cowboys, on the range above, wherever they could gain a foothold, shouted and fought them back, hour after hour until, just before daylight, a fall in the storm calmed the crazy cattle and allowed them to rest.

In a day or two the storm cleared, and I went to the place which I found literally beset by the bodies of slain cattle. One poor cow was lying among the heap with crushed ribs and a broken leg, yet still alive. Just then, the "fence-riener" came by, and I asked him how he carried two revolvers, as a favor to shoot the poor animal. His reply was—"Oh, she'll live in a day or two, anyway." And she did. But what do you think of the spirit prompting his reply? TORTURE OF COWS. LEFT UNMILKED. When a crowd of "veal" was shipped East, a horror came. The calves were taken by handful from the mothers leaving them in full milk, to suffer unattended. For the suffering thus caused I have no words of description. I will leave it to the imagination of any human mother who has experienced similar agony. I asked the cowboy why this was allowed, since many cows died and others were seriously injured by this fearful means. He laughed. "Do you think we keep a cow-hospital? How'd we get time to milk half a thousand cows?" I saw his point. Indeed, how could they? I asked him and several other cowboys in turn, if they would swear to the knowledge of the truth of these statements. They refused, one and all. "Why, lady," said one, "I'd lose my job, and there's not another cattleman would hire me." Others said they were afraid of libel suits, in which the cattlemen would have men hired to "prove that black is white." I have been urged to keep this story silent, for the same reason. Of the terrors of the "round-up" and the long, thirsty ride in the crowded cattle cars, others have written and have not been able to picture the scenes adequately. The most powerful imagination could not conceive of a title of what I saw in one short year. The dreadful thing about this scourged traffic is the people grow so hardened that they cease

TYPE-WRITTEN WILLS

May be Established in Court, But Handwriting is Preferred

While typewritten wills may be established in court, yet should they be attacked, greater difficulty might arise in establishing their genuineness than if written with pen and ink. For this reason careful lawyers prefer that wills be drafted by the latter means. If, however, a will be typewritten, and of sufficient length, both sides of the paper should be used. It is thought that this prevents the danger of forgery, as should one or more vacant pages intervene, fraudulent provisions might be surreptitiously inserted upon the typewriter.

CAMPABELLO "Board of Trade" Decides in Favor of Reciprocity

(Eastport Citizen)
The Campobello Board of Trade held a session extraordinary at the house of Hon. Alexander Johns in Welchpool on Friday night. The Hon. A. Johns is the United States Ambassador to Campobello. The subject that came up for discussion was "Shall we have Reciprocity or Not?" The Campobello Board of Trade decided, after a warm discussion, that we are to have it, so President Taft, Sir William Laurier and everybody else can stop worrying.

Among those present at the meeting were the Hon. Byron D. Bates, late of Tammany Hall, Sir Jas. Dunn of Calder's Beach, representing the opposition; Rear Admiral John Pollock, H. M. S. "Pup," the Marquis de la Carte and Aubrey Simpson, the well-known poet and author.

The Hon. Alexander Johns presided but refused to take any active part in the discussion.

"Representing, as I do, the great and glorious United States," said he, "I should hate to seem even the least interested in the discussion. For tonight I gave the blessed bird—the American eagle. Not a squaw will it give. Besides I've got a cold in my head and don't care to whop whether we have reciprocity or not. If you say reciprocity, then I'll see you get it. I'll fire the Eastport Customs officers and compel the Eastport Citizen to build a public landing. To reciprocity or not to reciprocity. That, gentlemen, is the question."

"Excuse me, gentlemen," said Aubrey Simpson the poet, "but do three beat a flush?"

"Sssh!" hissed the Board of Trade. Sir James Dunn, of Calder's Beach arose to speak.

"In this argument," said he, "I'm short of chips but I've got a good hand, and, barring rogues, I can take the pot. This here reciprocity is hard on our poor people. This here reciprocity is a bluff put up by the capitalists, who want to get their stuff over the line without paying duty.

"Now why do we pretend they've got a royal straight when they hold a bob-tailed flush like that. Why don't capital come right out and say: Here we're tired of paying exorbitant duties. To blazes with reciprocity. Let's fire the customs and call it square!"

"The money that goes to pay the customs officials comes out of the pocket of the poor man, the honest tax payer and the down-trodden. I never had any use for customs officers, as a class, and I can't see no sense in keeping them as a menace and an obstacle to international free trade. What I say is: 'Down with the Customs!'"

The Hon. Byron D. Bates, of Tammany Hall, arose, pulled down his vest, ran his hand over his chin and spoke.

"Fellow Citizens!" he cried, "we, the free and enlightened vox populi, are assembled here tonight pro bono publico (loud applause). After the able intelligent and eloquent speeches you have heard tonight, for me to orate to any extent would be to gild the lily and pour sweetness on the rose. (Wild applause) Let me merely say, in the words of the illustrious Paganoras, 'Give us reciprocity or death!' I call upon every man who has the interests of the Anglo-Saxon race at stake, to join me in this war cry."

"From the sun-kissed waters of Passamaquoddy Bay in the Southern Cross of

Grand Manan, let he watchword of our party be—Reciprocity! Reciprocity!

The Hon. Byron D. Bates sat down amid thunderous applause. When it subsided he was heard plaintively asking who stole his chips!

Rear Admiral Sir John Pollock then arose and asked to be excused from saying anything.

"Last time I uttered my views on the probable effect of reciprocity upon the smoked scalpin industry, my remarks were extensively plagiarized in the New York and Boston papers. His majesty immediately called me, 'Keep off smoked fish, John. It's dangerous. Anglo-Saxon brotherhood is the safe dope for the occasion.' Therefore gentlemen, I will merely say with my friend George, 'Smoked fish is dangerous. Anglo-Saxon brotherhood is dope. Let us have reciprocity without smoked fish!'"

Aubrey Simpson, the poet, said he was no speechmaker but he would take pleasure in reading them a little poem on the subject of reciprocity.

For some time there was danger of the meeting becoming disorderly. The poem was finally talked as read, and the vote was taken. As the chairman did not vote, and there were five members present the vote resulted in a split of two to two with the casting vote in the hands of Sir James Dunn, of Calder's Beach, who was perched on the fence. The pros begged him to vote for reciprocity, the cons said, "Vote against Jimmy. Vote against!"

He finally voted for reciprocity on the promise of the United States Ambassador that the entire Customs system would be abolished.

Therefore, the Campobello Board of Trade stands for reciprocity. So there will be no need for that special session at Washington next week.

A good position can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8 hour law became effective, and since the wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great storage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R. It does not promote loyalty to force men to pay inflated prices to their fellow citizens.

Polling will only take place in the event of more than one candidate being duly nominated for Mayor, and more than eight candidates for Aldermen.

JOHN C. O'BRIEN
Polling Officer.
Dated at St. George, N. B. this 28th day of March, A. D. 1911.

The Robin.

In the tall elm tree sat the robin bright,
Through the rainy April day;
And he caroled clear with a pure delight,
In the face of the sky so gray.
And the silver rain through the blossoms dropped,
And fell on the robin's coat
And his brave red breast, he never stopped
Flving his cheerful note.

For oh, the field's were green and glad,
And the blissful life that stirred
In the earth's wide breast was full of a warm
In the heart of the little bird.
The rain-cloud lifted, the sunset bright,
And the warm south wind was still.
Then loud and clear called the happy bird,
And rapturously he sang,
Till wood and meadow and river side
With jubilant echoes rang.
But the sun dropped down in the quiet west,
The tall trees length'ning shadows cast;
All nature softly sank to rest,
And the jubilant day had passed.

LOCALS

Mrs. Ellsworth of Seelye's Cove died very suddenly on Wednesday. Funeral will take place to day.

Stmr. Connors Bros. made her first trip of the season to the town wharf on Tuesday landing a very large quantity of freight for the different merchants all of whom are no doubt glad to have her arriving regularly each week for the rest of the season.

The Charlotte County Board of Trade seem to be quite alive this season and are making efforts to place the County before prospective settlers and induce a movement of them this way. They have prepared and printed a list of farms that are for sale in the County and ask for particulars of any farms to be forwarded to C. N. Vroom, St. Stephen, Sec'y. Use power to their elbow and may they be successful in attracting many new settlers to our attractive and healthy county.

There is very much dissatisfaction at the management or mismanagement of the Steamer Viking during the past two weeks among the people of the islands who claim that the company are not making proper efforts to maintain anything like a proper service on the route. The Steamer Brunswick has also been taken off the Grand Manan route and we understand no boat put in her place as yet. The result among it is expected, will be ready to go on the route in about three weeks.

The weather man during the past week has given some samples to swear by as one's pers. may incline to say (Thursday) the weather is something delightful with walking in places in town almost knee deep in slush. Friday of last week we went to bed with nice fair mild weather but woke up with the glass well down to the cyphar, with the three toll in days about the same and a cold drizzle snow storm for Tuesday. As the rooms of many cool-bins have come up through the coal, this kind of weather in April is somewhat apt to make our well-kept-up and smile for in stance

We devote considerable space this week to Japanese war talk taken from Am. loan exchanges, the Hobson or as usual is an advertisement for Hobson, but he gives some plain talk and some that the American people can take to heart, and that the Pacific states particularly should consider.

The time seems to have about arrived for the States, England and the other nations to alter their policies, in reference to their relations in the far east. Japan has now come to the full stature of nation 1 manhood and China seems to be awakening and following in her footsteps. Japan is now capable of handling her own affairs and of being the preeminent influence in that part of the world. The west in nations should be able to read the signs of the times and gracefully step down and out, before others of them receive another such lesson as Russia got in the late war, and who seemingly has not been able to learn by experience, as in a very few years or as soon as she is able China will have a long account to settle up with her.

The Japs are a proud people and while desiring peace to perfect their domestic affairs will as they are able to do resist any unfair treatment of their people as insults placed on them and while so desiring and anxious for peace, they may be forced to resort to war with some of the other nations as they were with Russia to maintain their rights and resent such insults, many of which been put on her people by the Pacific States. And should the time come it will not serve the U. S. to hide behind the excuse of the individual State laws conflicting with the Federal laws.

MRS. CHARLES O'NEILL
By the death of Mrs. Charles O'Neill, which occurred on Sunday morning last after a week's illness, of pneumonia, another home in the community has been made desolate. The deceased was stricken with pneumonia, on the Sunday previous to that she had returned home from early morning service. Previous to that she had been in her customary good state of health. She was a woman of noble presence and of nobility of character quite as marked—kind hearted, considerate, generous, charitable—devoted to her church and to her family, an ideal mother in an ideal home. She was a native of St. Andrews and was in her 72nd year. She is survived by three sons—Dr. Francis O'Neill, of New York; Alphonsus R. O'Neill, merchant, and Dr. A. P. O'Neill, St. Andrews—and four daughters, Misses Annie, Alice, Kathleen and Julia, also one sister and three brothers. The latter are Rev. Francis Bradley, of Florenceville; Capt. Richard Bradley, of San Francisco, and ex-congressman William Bradley, of Dakota—Beacon.

Current Comment

Gallant little Wales sent a train load of two hundred immigrants, who passed through Toronto Monday with $200,000 to invest in western lands. Canada is getting the very reason of British migration. We have an overwhelmingly Liberal and aristocratic less welcome on that account.

THE MIKADO SAYS All This War Talk is Wicked, And He Ought to Know!

President Taft was deeply gratified Sunday to receive from the Emperor of Japan a message warmly reciprocating the President's expressions of good will and friendship towards Japan made to the Japanese ambassador, Baron Uchida, several days ago. Baron Uchida called at the White House this afternoon and delivered in person the Emperor's message.

President Taft has been extremely anxious to set at rest the various reports of differences between this country and Japan, especially with reference to the mobilization of troops in Texas.

He declared the other day that he was not a loss to understand the motive and such "malicious and baseless stories." He sent for Baron Uchida to express this sentiment to him and ask that he convey the message to the Emperor.

The Emperor's message in full is as follows:

"To the President of the United States of America:

"I was greatly pleased to receive your very kind message conveyed to me through my ambassador in Washington, and I thank you for it. I was already well convinced that you had given no credence to the false and wicked reports regarding Japan, but it was especially a source of profound satisfaction to me to receive from you the assurance that the relations of amity and good understanding between our two countries were never better or more cordial than at this time. I am most happy to be able entirely to reciprocate that message.

Mammoth New Hotel

What will be the largest hotel in England, and one of the largest in Europe, is to be built near Piccadilly Circus, London, Eng., by the Strand Hotel Company. The hotel will have twelve or thirteen hundred bedrooms and will occupy a piece of ground with an area of 44,000 square feet, bounded by Air Street, Glasshouse Street, Sherwood Street, and Brewer Street. The principal entrance will be a few yards from Piccadilly Circus, near the Monico.

The land is now chiefly taken up by shops, all the leases for which expire in 1912.

Renewing Ireland.

If the British Parliament had accomplished nothing else during recent years than to pass the land act which makes it possible for every Irishman to become a homesteader, the measure that is now restoring happiness to a people long restless in the face of a parliament which has been passing resolutions of no value to the United Kingdom. Winston Churchill's speech in the House of Commons, when he made comparisons between the Ireland of today and the Ireland of 1885, when Gladstone made his first great argument for home rule, has called attention to the intellectual, social and industrial progress that has taken place in the Emerald Isle. But there are those who make the announcement that even the best Ireland is unable as yet to weigh the full importance of that which is now working the transformation. Irish reconstructionists may, of course, be overestimating the promises that their evergreen stretches hold out to those who might be desirous of settling in new homes. It may be too much to expect that immigration to that part of Great Britain will be better than seeking new opportunities across the ocean. But there is no doubt that emigration has been checked on the strength of the better state of affairs. There is little doubt that the stay at home will be rewarded by becoming factors in the upbuilding of this nation within the nation.

It may seem that what is now bringing contentment to the Irish nation could have been brought about long ago. Still, the people themselves admit that all the blame for retarding progress did not lie without. It is the slow advance that often makes the firmest foundation; and, having strengthened themselves by an educational process that at best cannot be hurried, the dwellers on the Emerald Isle have apparently found the national co-operation which is complete unity can never be accomplished. The real home rule must be the rule of self, and Great Britain seems willing that this shall be the motto for the whole nation.—C. S. Monitor.

To the "Church of England" People of the United Parishes of St. George and Penfield.

Dear Friends,

You have recently elected me as Rector of your united Parishes, and I have expressed my acceptance to the Lord Bishop and to your parish Wardens. I hope to come to you on April the 10th so that the services during "Passion Week," or at least on Good Friday can be held. The Easter services will be held at St. George Holy Communion at 8 a.m. Easter service and Holy Communion at 10.30 or the usual hour for morning service. Penfield at 2.30 p.m. when I want to see all the children for a few minutes before the service. Evening service at St. George. The Easter Communion for Penfield will be on the 1st Sunday after Easter. Do all of you make it your business, as well as your privilege, to attend the Easter services. The annual parish meeting will be held at the usual time on Easter Monday at which I hope to meet all the male members of the church; and I shall be glad to see as many others as can arrange to be there. May I ask your prayers for both Rector and Parishioners that the work of the Church may be much blessed and the great Master glorified by a God-fearing, Christ-loving people.

I am, Yours Faithfully,
J. Spencer.

The wolf has been extinct in Scotland for about 160 years; the last one (according to tradition) was killed by one Macqueen, a deerstalker, who lived near the source of the Findhorn. The wolf had killed two children who were crossing the hills, and so the laird of Mackintosh summoned his retainers to hunt it. All appeared at the appointed time except this Macqueen. At length he leisurely put in an appearance. He was soundly rated by his chief for his laziness, but at length he asked, "What was the hurry? The angry laird impatiently replied, whereupon Macqueen lifted his plaid and drew forth the gory head of the wolf. "There it is for you," he replied casting the head into the midst of the astonished circle.

Synopsis of Canadian North-West Land Regulations.

Any person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months residence and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section along side his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres, erect a house worth $300.00.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior

Sealed tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Public Building, Fairville, N. B." will be received at this office until 4.00 P. M., on Monday, April 10, 1911, for the erection of a Public Building at Fairville, N. B.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department, on application to Mr. D. H. Waterbury, Supt. of Public Buildings, Public Works Department, St. John, N. B., and at the Post Office at Fairville, N. B.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honorable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p. c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
