SHOT DEAD BY A WOMAN. Paris, May 12.-Abbe de Broglie, a brother of the Duke de Broglie, was shot dead yesterday by a woman named Melot, one of his parishioners, who had become insane. The deed was the result of belief on the part of the woman that the abbe had circulated calumnious reports regarding her. She called upon the priest and demanded that he sign a statement which she had prepared, retracting the reports which she alleged he had put in circulation. Upon his denial that he was responsible for any of the statements, and his refusal to sign the document, she drew a revolver and began firing. Four of the bullets lodged in the abbe's head, causing almost instant death. The woman, after emptying her revolver at the priest, went immediately to the Carmelite Church, where she confessed to

a priest and demanded absolution. ROYALTY IN LONDON.

London, May 12.-The Queen's visit to London was as brief as usual, and she returned to Windsor Castle on Thursday, the day following that of the drawing-room. On Tuesday, May 21. she will remove the court to Balmoral, where she will remain for a month. The Princess of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty, will hold the remaining two drawing-rooms of the season. The Princess is greatly changed and now looks quite an old woman. It is noticed that the Duke of Saxe-Cobourg-Gotha is attending many public functions, and that he seems specially anxious to win popular favor. This is in view of the continued growling of the Radicals and others over the pension which he receives from the British taxpayers, in spite of the fact that he is a reigning prince of Germany. But the efforts of the Duke to win popularity are far from successful, and in spite of his presence at public functions he is most unpopular. Under the head of "Arrogance of Royalty," a person signing "Play Goer" has written to a newspaper saying that the audience at the Criterion Theater on Wednesday last were kept waiting for an hour because some of the royalties were dining late. The letter continues: "It turned out to be the petty German princelet of Coburg. who takes £10,000 annually from our taxpayers.'

RUINOUS FROST.

Sad Havoc in the Niagara District—Gar den Stuff Cut Down.

Catharines, Ont., May 13.-The thermometer, which ranged between 85 and 90 degrees most of last week, took a sudden drop on Sunday night and Monday morning. Sad havoc was wrought in the Niagara district. Hundreds of acres of grapes just burstwrought ing into leaf were burned black. Peaches are also probably ruined. Gar-den stuff of all kinds was cut down everywhere, and the financial damage will be enormous. There is hope that many of the grapes may put out shoots again, but the worst is feared. Of course, it is early enough to duplicate garden stuff, but the blow to the fruitgrowing industry is a severe one. At 5 o'clock this morning the thermometer registered from 24 to 26 degrees, according to locality.

Lockport, N. Y., May 13.—The thermometer registered as low as 28 degrees last night. Fruit and vegetables suffered in Niagara, and the damage will reach thousands of dollars. Grape were stripped of their leaves Fruit trees were damaged, and it is feared the crops will be small. Cabbages, tomatoes and other garden plants will have to be set over again. Niagara, Ont., May 13.—The heavy frost of the last two nights has entirely destroyed the grape crop in this vicinity and also all the tomatoes that have been set out. Strawberries and peaches are very seriously damaged, as also are other small fruits. Grain and other crops are very little hurt if at all. Toronto, May 13.-Reports from the ountry around the city show that the cold of last night has done extensive damage to fruit. Grapes especially have suffered. Paris, Ont., May 13.-In this vicinity fruits such as plums, early apples and pears, as well as grapes, str and other small fruits whi ranced enough, will be severely injured. The thermometer registered as ow as 25. Grain has escaped. Beamsville, Ont., May 13.—It thought that aside from grapes being badly cut the frost of last night has not been very severe on either fruit or Amherstburg, Ont., May 13.-The frost of Saturday night did some slight damage in this vicinity, principally to fruit rees and corn. Windsor, Ont., May 13.-The frost has done no harm in the vicinity of Windsor as far as can be ascertained at present.

Mrs. Aylesworth Adheres to Her Story Throughout.

Mrs. Harry Hyams Placed in the Witness Box.

Futile Attempt to Exclude Her Dan= aging Evidence.

Sensational Close of the Day's Session Witness Attacked by a Fit of Hysterics.

Toronto, May 12 .- At the Hyams tral Saturday morning, Mrs. Mary Ann Aylssworth was put through a searching cross-examination by Wm. Lount, principal counsel for defense. Her evidence as given on Friday was reiterated and reasserted. On some points Mr. Lount pointed cut crcumstances between the witness' testimory given here and that given at the Police Court investigation, but when Mr. Osler legan his re-examination he brought out the fact that a short time previous to the Police Court inquiry—Mrs. Aylesworth was it a delicate state of health and she was not closely cross-examined in consequence which would account for much then left until and some inaccuracies.

To Mr. Lount Mrs. Aylesworth said that Harry Hyams had been paying attentions to Martha for about a year before they cane to Toronto to live but his attentions did mt amount to much. From 1889 to 1892 he had been writing letters to her, showing for her a sort of "little friendship." The money was loaned to the Hyams in February, 1892, and no request was made to have it back before she and her husbard came to Toronto. She could not remember the month when they did make the request to have it back. She could not swear whether it was before July or not. She had Heard her husband frequently ask Hany Hyams for the money. She had also heard her brother Willie ask him for his money back. From the time she came to Toronto Harry Hyams was a daily visitor at her house—excepting Sundays, when he had come once or twice. His visits were only interrupted once. That was after Willie's death and Martha and he had some quarrel over the money and she refused to see him. Martha went for a time to the Church school. Harry still continued to call at the house to see Martha, and if he did not come himself he sent Dallas. Dallas told the witness that if Martha did not make it up with Harry he was afraid Harry would go to the dogs. Witness told the same story of Harry's visit on the day of Willie's death and what he said. He had told her that Willie had his collarbone broken and was not dead. She repeated the statement she formerly made as to Dallas' story of finding Willie pinned to the ground by the weight She also repeated her story as to having heard Harry Hyams give Willie the mes-sage to Aylesworth and Willie on the Sunday before Willie's death.

John R. E. Winter, who conducts a mercantile agency in this city for supplying reports of judgments, etc., and other information to tradesmen, was examined and gave evidence regarding this kind of business, in which it would appear the prisoners were thinking of entering. In examining a list of reports made out in the handwriting of W. Wells, Mr. Winters made the somewhat startling statement that these reports could have been of no use at all at the time they were made out by Wells as they were copied from sheets eighteen months old. In cross-examination Mr. Lount asked the witness if they would not be useful as specimen sheets for what information subsequent issues would contain.

After the noon adjournment Mrs. Harry Hyams, wife of one of the prisoners and sister of the dead boy, was called to the witness stand. On two occasions Mr. Lount objected that she was not a competent witness, but his Lordship overruled the objections. In an almost inaudible voice she told the story of her acquaintance with the Hyams. The twins answered an advertisement offering furnished rooms, and then the two families began to live together, and the events leading up to the engagements were described.

Witness said she had several times neard the two Hyams discuss the insurance on her brother's life. On the Sunday before Wells' death, Harry Hyams was at the witness' home, and while there she asked him about the $1,000. She said that Wells had some feeling about it. She told Hyams if he had not the $1,000, to tell Willie, and to tell him the day he could pay it. Harry Hyams replied that he had the money on Saturday, but he could not get it out of the express office, and that Wells would receive it on Monday. Harry Hyams told witness to speak to her brother about getting down earlier on Monday morning. Wells left the house at 8:45 a.m. Monday, and Aylesworth a short time subsequently. After lunch the same day Harry Hyams came to the house. After he had been assisted to the bedroom by her brother-in-law. witness asked him if her brother was hurt, and he replied that he was hurt on the shoulder, but not to be frighten-ed, as he did not think he was hurt very badly. Some time after Ayles-worth came in and told witness that her brother was dead. She then asked Harry Hyams about it, and he said: "Mina, I assure you I was not there.
All I know about it is that when I returned from the barber shop and seeing no one, I found Dallas fainting across Fortunately Expressman Fox Willie. vas there.' Withess, continuing, explained that Harry Hyams said Expressman Fox came into the warehouse behind him and that they got a cab and sent Dallas home. Harry told the witness that the weight had fallen upon Willie, and that ne and Expressman Fox had lifted it off. Harry Hyams remained at witness' house all day. He said that he had hurt his back very much lifting the weight off. Two or three days after, the witness, who was then ill, and con-fined to bed, spoke to Dallas about the occurrence. He said that he went into the office of the warehouse to write a letter to his wife; he heard a terrible crash, and on going down the base-ment he saw Willie there, and it made him sick. That was all the explana-tion she got, although she had often asked for additional facts. Neither of the brothers would ever talk of the affair, however.

Going back to the

Harry Hyams when he first came into the house the day of the tragedy, witness said that Harry Hyams' right hand was bleeding and he was very much agitated. She noticed that his linen was spotted with blood. There were very fine spots of blood on the front of his shirt, and his cuffs were badly spotted. Witness told of the disposition made of the money she had received from the insurance companies, and proceeded to detail the circumstances of her engagement and subsequent marriage to Harry Hyams, when the court room was suddenly startled by a shriek and the expression, "Oh! Oh!" and the witness fell from her seat towards the floor. She had been attacked with a fit of hysterics. Mr. Murdock, counsel for defense, caught the woman as she was falling, and she was carried into the judge's room, where a doctor was summoned, and it was found that she was suffering very badly from the shock, and it would be impossible to go on with her evidence. It was accordingly decided to adjourn until Monday.

PETERED OUT.

The Aldermanic Cases End in a Dismal Fizzle,

And "Relators" Have Some Costs to Pay-The Case Against Ald. Brener to be Dropped,

The talk of municipal circles just now is the manner in which the efforts made to unseat the Liberal aldermen have collapsed and "petered" out. The Conservatives made a vigorous effort to annihilate the Liberal majority on the council, but failed so disastrously that it is like re-opening a rankling wound to refer to the matter at all. Ald. McCallum, Ald. Brener, Ald. O'Meara, Ald. J. W. Jones, Ald. John Heaman, and Ald. Parnell, were singled out for attack. In only one case-Ald. McCallum—were they successful in gaining their point. In his case the assessment at the time the roll was compiled was not held to be sufficient to qualify on. However, Mr. McCallum will be well able to qualify next year should he wish to run.

The vacancy on the board caused by Ald. McCallum's withdrawal will be balanced by the unseating of Ald. Powell. New elections will be required in wards 2 and 6.

This is the net result after several months of costly litigation. The largest portion of the costs in the unsuccessful suits will recoil on the shoulders of those who brought them, although in the cases of Ald. Jones and Heaman, these gentlemen, on the advice of their solicitors, have consented to pay the own. The case against Ald. Brener will not be proceeded with, however, and nothing more will likely be heard of it. Ald. Parnell resolutely refused to pay his costs. "I stuck them last year when they tried to unseat me," said he, "and I stuck them again this year."

MADE A RAID.

Another Alleged Disorderly House Visited by the Police-Mrs. Barnes Furnishes Bail.

On Saturday night about 11 o'clock the house of Mrs. Esther Barnes, on Rectory street, was visited by the police, and Mrs. Barnes and her husband were brought to the police station. An information was sworn out during the day by Sergt. Crawford, charging Mrs. Barnes with keeping a disorderly house. A warrant was issued, and Sergts. Jenkins and Crawford, P. C.s Walter Smith, Egleton and Macdonald were dispatched to execute it. They were after the proprietor of the house in particular, and were vested with authority to "pull" others found in the place and charge them with being inmates. Some of the bluecoats were ordered to watch doors and windows, and prevent any escapes, while the balance went inside. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes and a girl of the house were the only parties found, but the latter was allowed to remain, as she complained of illness. Barnes spent Sunday in jail, while his wife furnished bail.

The pair were in the Police Court this morning, Barnes as an inmate and his wife as the keeper of the house. Owing to the absence of Deputy Crown Attorney McKillop and several witnesses for the prosecution, the cases were enlarged for a week. Barnes was bailed by his brother, who keeps a hotel at Pottersburg.

Martin Murphy, charged with vagrancy, was discharged. So were two drunks.

No need to tell you that you want a new carpet. Housecleaning time is when it becomes a self-evident fact. No need to tell you if you are going into a new house that carpets are half the furnishing. It's where you can buy one to the best advantage for the least money that you are interested in.

There is such a thing in the carpet trade as buying inferior goods, to sell at a price as a "leader." But the value of a carpet is in its wearing quality, and we've never yet felt we could afford to sell any other than the best, the kind we could recommend, the kind that sent our customers here time and again. At any rate our policy has built up the largest carpet trade and built the only exclusive carpet warehouse in Western Ontario. We are thus compelled to carry more kinds and more of all good kinds. FRANCES WILLARD MAY WED.

The Famous Temperance Leader May

Be Led to the Altar. Chicago, May 12 .- A story is floating around in women's temperance circles to the effect that Miss Frances Willard, the famous temperance leader, may be led to the altar before autumn. The gentleman in the case is alluded to without name as "an Englishman of wealth and position and of prominence in reform work across the Miss Willard's most intimate friends, however, point to the fact that she is just entering upon her 56th year and any that she has not hinted at any prospective change in her domestic relations in any of her recent communications. One of her closest friends said today: "Miss Willard has always regarded the temperance movement as her spouse and we could hardly imagine her wedded to any other. At the same time I will confess that stranger things have happened. Let us wait and see. Miss Willard has for some time been the guest of Lady Somerset at Reigate, England. She will pay a flying visit to this country in October and then return abroad.

MUSIC IN THE FAR EAST.

A New York boy who has recently spent some time in China and Japan says the most curious thing he saw during his travels was the band maintained by the town of Hakadate for the amusement of its citizens, and which played every evening in the public square and won the applause of large enthusiastic throngs. In the band were just five performers. Two of them pounded bass drums, one clashed with vigor a resonant pair of cymbals, and the other two brass instruments of the French horn variety. They knew only one tune, "Marching Through Georgia,' and that they repeated innumerable times every night, and night after night. Neither the musicians nor their auditors seemed to tire of this stirring melody, and everybody manifested a proud confidence in the thoroughness of their "new civilization."

Shanghai musicians stuck resolutely to Oriental methods. In a tea house there the traveler listened to a concert of the most poignant Orientalism. Half a dozen men played mysterious instruments that squeaked and shricked without regard to either time or tune. Afterward as many gorgeously dressed girls broke forth in song. One of them would take an incredibly high, thin note, and hold it until she became quite purple in the face. Then another would do the same thing, and the one of them who held out longest and became most purple won most applause from the assembled connoisseurs.

To Make PureBlood

There is no medicine before the people equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is the standard spring medicine and blood purifier and it possesses peopliar merit which others try in vain to reach. It really makes the weak strong. Do not neglect to purify your blood this spring. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla now.

Hood's Pills become the favorite cathartic with everyone who tries them. 25c. f The natives of Sumatra have a visiting card consisting of a piece of wood about a

The following clauses will be considered:

1. The treasurer's report and auditors' statement. 2. (a) The annual winter show; (b) where held; (c) at what date; (d) revision, if necessary, of rules and prize list for said show; (e) selection of judges for sheep and swine divisions at same.

3. The appointment of an executive committee for each association, whose duty it shall be to carry into effect the resolutions passed by the directors or members; also to act as a programme committee, and as such to assist the secretary in preparing a programme for the next annual meeting. 4. The appointment of an experimental committee for each association. 5. The consideration of the following clauses of the secretary's address: "Our constitution, rules and bylaws should be revised. I am often asked for a copy, but cannot supply it. They were never published in pamphlet form, and are only to be found in one of our early annual reports. Since they were published a great many bylaws have been added; these are scattered through the reports of the various years. A committee should be appointed to gather all together, revise them and report at Only 25c Each next meeting of the association.

EXPERIMENTAL WORK. Several years ago Prof. Brown, then an officer of the O. A. C., Guelph, conducted experiments in feeding sheep of several breeds for the purpose of establishing a record of the feeding qualities of each sort. This experiment is frequently quoted. It is claimed by some that the conclusions arrived at were not what they would have been had the animals been more carefully selected. It has also been suggested that the authorities be asked to repeat the experiment during the season of That members appointed by the executive of the Sheep Breeders' Association be allowed to select the animals, and that said committee be consulted by the officers having charge of the experiment. That the animals bought be of good and uniform breeding. That, le wethers and owes o breed be fed. That at the proper time the animals be killed and the carcasses cut up and valued. That photographs be taken of the various cuts, thus put-ting on record the appearance of the flesh; and that the quality of flesh be reported on by competent persons, to be hereafter chosen.

The question, "What sort of a pig should I breed?" is uppermost in the minds of many. It is a recognized fact that there is a greater difference between animals of the different types of the same breed than between animals of similar type of different breeds. The pork packer wants a certain type. Many farmers claim that sort is hard to feed and therefore not as profitable. The pork packer replies that he must have that sort or he cannot put on the market prime goods. He claims that he must have long lean sides and narrow backs in order to hold the European markets. Would it not be wise to ask the authorities to have pigs of the various types fed? Say, three of the Suffolk type, three broad-back, fleshy, thick-jowled Yorkshires, three medium Yorkshires, three narrow-back Yorkshires, and that three Berkshires of each type be also fed. That the cost of feeding each type of each breed be ascertained; that the pigs be killed at the proper time; that photographs be taken of the various cuts, showing the appearance of the meat. That the quality of the flesh be reported on by competent persons to be hereafter chosen. That persons appointed by the executive of the Swine Breeders' Association be allowed to select the animals, and this committee be consulted by the officers having charge of the experiment.

7. The consideration of the following reports by the committees appointed to draft model rules and prize lists. First committee, James Tolton and Henry Arkell, representing the Sheep Breeders' Association, report as fol-

AT OTTAWA-2000 A. D.

This is the spectacle at Ottawa in this year 2000 A. D. Not alone are all the legislators women, but women only are allowed to vote for legislators.

Surely it is unfair thus to disfranchise the men, who constitute one-half of the human family.

It is true they are not the better half. But is the injustice of ostracism likely to raise their standard?

Look at the arguments by which tyrannous woman in this beginning of the year 2000 seeks to keep man from even having a voice as to who is to represent him and govern the country. Will these arguments stand examina-

1. It is argued that it would destroy the home to allow men to vote-as men and women would quarrel about how the voting should be undertaken. Let people learn to tolerate difference of opinion.

2. It is also argued that it would take man out of his sphere, which, properly understood, is to stand behind the counter, be in his office or workshop, rather than waste a full half hour every four years in voting. Time taken for neces-

3. It is argued that men are ignorant of political questions, and would be controlled by their emotions. This latter tendency is shown by men at political conventions, when they jump on chairs, and playfully smash hats over the heads of equally enthusiastic comrades; or at baseball matches, where, if their champion does well, their demeanor is of anything but that judicial sort without which no man should be permitted to exercise the franchise. We do not see that it would be just to exclude men from voting because some of them are emotional.

4. It is argued that men would be controlled by religious sentiment, rather than by political views. The danger in this direction does not seem to us to be very immediate.

5. It is argued further that the canvassing of men by ward politicians would demoralize the household. Abolish canvassing, then.

6. It is argued that woman represents man, anyway, and man would be injured were he to express an opinion by ballot for himself. Better and fairer to let man represent himself at the ballot box.

7. Besides, it is argued he would be jostled by women electors at the polls. This might have been an argument in the year 1895, but in this year of grace, 2000 A.D., when to vote you have simply to press an electric button here or there, there is no need for the poor, fragile creature, man, to be jostled at all.

8. And anyhow, it is finally argued, only the worst men would vote; though how it is known that such would be the case is not stated.

As editorial umpire, to whom this question has been referred for advice, monopolize not only all legislative positions, but even the right to vote for legislators, that they would be perfectly safe, in these democratic days, in extending the right to sit in Parliament. and the right to vote for members of Parliament, to men. They should remember that every extension of electoral and educational fair play has in the past been naturally heralded by dire forebodings of those by whom privilege was already monopolized, and that these dire heraldings have been always used to keep men in ignorance and inequality.

Our advice, then, to the women who at present monopolize the chairs to the right and left of the Speaker, and who alone are allowed to have a voice in the choice of the country's rulers, is that they should extend all electoral privileges to man on conditions of complete equality with women.

Taxation without representation is high tax policy on independent indus-tyranny. Therefore let the men vote

Do justice, though the heavens fallthough no fear that the heavens will be weakened by the doing of justice; therefore, let the men vote also.

It is unfair that full-grown men should be classed with criminals, lunatics and minors in being excluded from the franchise-therefore let the men vote also.

THE FATE OF A PIONEER AGRI-CULTURAL IMPLEMENT

FACTORY.

To very many Canadians the report that the Watson Manufacturing Company, of Ayr, Ont., have "concluded to go into liquidation under direction of the court," will be read with regret. John Watson, the founder of the firm, was one of the pioneers in the agricultural implement manufacturing industry of Canada. In the days of a revenue tariff, with fron taxed to a very limited extent, with coal and other necessary raw material free or nearly so, John Watson started business in the village of Ayr, as dozens of other manufacturers began in other places, on small capital in money, but large resources of brain and will

When examined before a committee of the House of Commons in 1876, nearly three years before the now thoroughly discredited high tax policy was put in force, Mr. Watson deposed that he had then been 28 years a manufacturer of agricultural implements, that he had invested in plant and machinery from $45,000 to $50,000, gave employment to an average of from 60 to 70 hands, and turned out from $75,000 to $100,000 worth of manufactured products annually. Mr. Watson said his manufactures were sold chiefly in Canada, but that he could sell in the United States markets if the duty he had to meet at the border were reduced one-half what it then was. The firm had up till then never tried to build up a foreign trade, as it always had enough to do supplying the home market demand. Mr. Watson said he began business with two men. and that every dollar he had invested he made in the business. He expressed his ability to increase his business if there were reciprocity with the United States. But he emphatically stated that he was well satisfied with his business progress, which was typical of manuway station (Paris), and his expenses were increased by the cost of cartage. All that Mr. Watson asked for in 1876, in order to make his business boom, was the construction of the Credit Valley Railway through Ayr. The line was built. It has been for years run in an unexceptionally able manner as a part of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and yet we find this fine business compelled to suspend operations. Let us consider for a moment the cause of this collapse, which is typical of other manufactories established, run at a profit and employing hundreds of cheap raw material and fair play for the farming community.

The evidence of Mr. Watson, Mr. Massey and other manufacturers before the House of Commons committee in 1876. was prophetic of what has taken place. Mr. Massey stated that in that year his firm was doing a good home trade, increasing its output 20 per cent, and had opened up a good market in Germany. "The existing tariff is satisfactory to us," said Mr. Massey, "and is sufficient protection; perhaps even a

Mr. Watson's testimony was even more decidedly in favor of keeping the tariff at a revenue basis, to secure the welfare of the manufacturer and his customers. "You do not want any ad-'protective' tariff) asked the chairman. "No," replied Mr. Watson, "we are thoroughly satisfied with that we have got." Then Mr. Platt, a high tax M. P., tried to scare Mr. Watson by suggesting that if a "protective" tariff was not established, the United States would insist on selling cheap goods in Canada. Said this typical independent manufacturer in reply:

"I think it is better to do that than to increase the tariff, because the foundation of this country is agriculture, and if you increase the tariff for the benefit of manufacturers, of course, it must be disadvantageous to the farmers. I have noticed that in a season when the farmers were prosperous, I was prosperous; the better position they were in, the better position I was in. I feel that anything that would tend to place our farmers in a better position than they are in at present will be attended by general good to the coun-

And again, Mr. Watson was asked: "Do you think you could manufacture more cheaply if there was a higher tax placed, say on pig iron and steel, in order to protect the manufacturers?"

His reply was emphatic:

"Most decidedly not." We have seen how this typical Canadian manufacturing industry progress. years we have experienced the blight inauguration of which such men as Mr. Watson, Mr. Massey and Mr. Cossith protested in vain. We have seen the combines dictate the imposition of high taxes on raw material and compel the Finance Minister to hold their brief and obey their mandates. We have seen the Elliott factory in London, the Watson factory in Ayr, and many other factories which prospered in the days of a revenue tariff, blotted out and a huge monopoly established under Government patronage. Was John Watson not right when he dreaded the effects of the pernicious tries like the one of which he was so proud to be the head?

Is it not time that the country got back to right principles—to free, or low, taxed raw material, and a tariff for revenue only?

The experience has been a costly one for all save the combines and their political allies, and we cannot too soon have a change.

C. P. R. FREIGHT RATES.

The reports of Messrs. Archibald, Allison and Schaeffer, the commissioners appointed to investigate certain complaints against the C. P. R. of excessive freight rates in Manitoba and the Northwest, has been laid on the table of Parliament. It states that the complaints are not well founded, and it' is entirely favorable to the company. The commissioners say that some of the heaviest shippers in Winnipeg had no complaint to make, and there was an entire absence of complaints from the heavy freight handlers. All shippers are on the same footing, they find, and no discrimination exists. They add: "A comparison of schedules does not bear out the charges that the rates in Manitoba and the Northwest are either exorbitant or excessive." On the contrary, they are exceedingly favorable as compared with the rates of American roads and little in excess of the average rates charged on corresponding traffic in the eastern Provinces, when it is considered that the great bulk of the traffic in grain, live stock and coal in the west entails the hauling of about 75 per cent of the cars empty one way. They consider the rate on coal, 87-100ths of one cent per mile, very low. The commissioners observe that in view of the fact that the C. P. R. own 18,000,000 acres of unsold lands and 3,000 miles of road in Manitoba and the Territories, their interests and those of the settler are identical, and add: "Any policy other than favorable to the settlers would be simply suicidal."

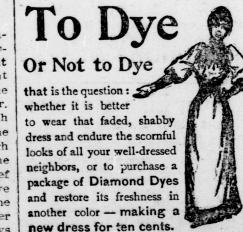

With the May issue of Table Talk, that valuable magazine devoted to the culinary art and household interests, adds much to its former reputation, both in looks and text. Dr. H. H. Hawxhurst, the well-known authority on diet, gives the first of several articles on that subject, and Mrs. Burton Kingsland has the leading article on "A Little Dinner." The regular departments, "Housekeepers' Inquiries,"
"The New Bill of Fare," and "Fashionable Luncheon and Tea Toilets," are full of all the home-maker most enjoys, and during the year articles will appear by others of the leading writers -among them Octave Thanet, Mrs. Burton Kingsland, Mrs. John Sherwood, Miss Marion Talbot, Dean of the Chicago University, Miss Lucy Elliot, and so on. A sample copy will be sent any reader who addresses Table Talk Publishing Company, Philadelphia tobiography, which by such remarkable books as "Black Beauty" and "Beautiful Joe" has come to have an importance far beyond the mere number of its class of books, is to be augmented very soon by what is said to be a clever thing from the pen of a Toronto lady, already known to the world of letters, Mrs. Annie G. Savigny, author of "A Romance of Toronto," "Three Wedding "Lion: the Story of 8 Rings," etc. Mastiff," is the book in question, which is now running through the press of William Briggs, and will be issued about the first of June. An ingenious and clever chapter in the book is the report of a convention of animals held in a romantic glen in the vicinity of Scarboro Heights. The book will, as a story, be greatly emjoyed by the young, and its lessons cannot fail of good. The committee of the Toronto Humane Society appointed to read the MS. of "Lion" very justly reported it as "an exceedingly useful and valuable book, and a good companion to "Black Beauty."

The May Century has a wide range of interest. In the Napolean Life Prof. Sloane narrates the conclusion of Napoleon's superb campaign in Northern Italy, including the battle of Rivoli, the capitulation of Mantua, the humiliation of the Papacy and of Venice, and the peace of Leoben. A new novelette, "The Princess Sonia," by Julia Magruder, begins in this number, and is llustrated with a dozen pictures by Charles Dana Gibson, the well-known Alexander McArthur, wellknown in musical circles contributes a paper on "Rubenstein," the great pianst. Mr. E. J. Glave, who was with Stanley in his last expedition in Africa, has been engaged for many months in making an investigation for the Century of the slave trade in Central Africa, and the forerunner of his articles appears in the shape of three photographs of the inscribed tree under which is buried the heart of Dr. Livingstone, the identification having been made by Mr. Glave after the failure of others to find the tree. Mr. Noah Brooks contributes the last of his papers on Washington in Lincoln's time. Mr. Marion Craw-ford's "Cassa Braccio" contains some striking scenes which in intensity of action probably surpass anything that Mr. Crawford has heretofore done. Other fiction, in various keys, is contributed by Langdon E. Mitchell, Richard M. Johnston and Kate Chopin. There are other contributions of science, fiction and poetry from able pens. The May number is one of unusual excel-

Revival services Begun in the Princess Rink.

Evangelist Yatm n Addresses Large and Interested Audiences.

Knights of Pythias Listen to a Good Sermon at Memorial Church.

The series of union revival services under the combined auspices of all the Methodist churches of the city were in augurated yesterday afternoon in the Princess Rink by Rev. Mr. Yatman, a New York evangelist. Great preparations have been made by the local Methdoist body, and they expect far-reaching and lasting results. Not one of the 1,500 or more persons who attended the initial service, and listended to the eloquent words and felt the magnetic influence of the evangelist have any doubt but that the hoped-for results will be obtained.

Mr. Yatman concluded a successful series of meetings in Rochester, N. Y., on Friday night, and came direct to London. He is an energete man, and spent yesterday afternoon in touring among the various Methodist Sunday schools in company with Mr. Thomas McCormick, whose guest he is. The afternoon service was practically dedicatory; dedicatory on the part of the preacher, and on the part of the people. Mr. Yatman preached at the Grand in the evening, and in order to give the people a chance to attend the meeting at the rink at 8:15 the services in the various Methodist churches began at 6:20 instead of 7 o'clock.

The rink where the meetings are being held has undergone a marvelous change during the past month. The roof has been reshingled entirely and rendered impervious to the onslaught of the elements. Inside the transformation is most complete. The splendid sheet of ice on which the young people of London were wont to skate and play nockey has entirely disappeared. The cement floor acts as a preventive of noise, and there is a noted absence of feet scraping. The auditorium has been made up facing the south, and seats have been arranged, covering about three-quarters of the immense floor area - enough to accommodate about people. If the crowds increase many hundred more seats can be put in at the south end of the rink, and extending clear across it is the speaker's platform. At the west side is the plano, and rising in six rows from the platform, and bringing up against the brick wall in the rear are the seats for the accommodation of the singers. The bare appearance of this structure is relieved by a tasteful and bountiful draping of light blue and a rather washed-out red. A railing extends across the front of the staging, and steps in the center lead up to the pulpit. Scattered plentifully among the many hundred chairs were Sankey hymn books, and it was by means of a liberal application of these hymns that the revival was set in motion. The choir gallery, which will hold 200, was about half filled, and the singers were gathered from the different church choirs. A generous corps of ushers escorted the large crowds to their seats, where the majority drew their overcoats more closely around them and a few turned up their coat collars. There was no disguising the fact that it was cold in the rink, and even Mr. Yatman and Prof. J. M. Whyte retained their overcoats. It was not at all reassuring to see one's breath curl upwards in wreaths of white while singing "The Old, Old Story," but, as Mr. Yatman explained, the committee in charge had hardly been prepared for snow storms in May. However, he assured everybody that proper heating arrangements would be made at once, so that none need stay away on account of the weather.

The singing is under the direction of Prof. Whyte. Mr. Whyte is widely known as a sweet singer of sacred He has a clear tenor voice. and what it lacks in volume it makes up in clearness and sweetness. Mr. Whyte accompanies himself at times on a

When Mr. Yatman opens his mouth to speak his face becomes wreathed in smiles. His deep voice can be clearly heard in any part of the rink. In personal apearance there is a striking facial resemblance to the late premier Sir John Thompson, although he is clean shaven and more active. He is still a young man, and, to use a stock phrase, "is the picture of health." In speaking he is prolific in the use of gestures, and has a way of telling a touch ing story which appeals directly to the heart of the hearer. His eyes are jet black and his head is covered with glossy hair of the same color. On the street Mr. Yatman would be taken for a prosperous busines man rather than a clergyman. In the pulpit there can be Mr. Thos. McCormick, Fred. Daly and that the usual Scripture reading would be dispensed with. "Instead of that," said he, "we will have a portion of God's Word from memory's tablet." Fifteen persons—men, women and boys—then arose one after another in different parts of the rink, and each repeated a verse from memory. The recitation was divided in the center by the singing of the chorus of "Wonderful Words of

At the conclusion of the tablets from memory Mr. Yatman himself repeated a verse. He continued: 'Let us expect a mighty Saviour to bring a mighty salvation at this time to London. Amen to that. Now, I want to give you a little hymn, and I am not sure but what you will sing it at every meeting. In hymnology, to my mind

there is nothing sweeter: A charge to keep I have,

A God to glorify;
A never-dying soul to save,
And fit it for the sky.

Just then the afternoon sun burst through the windows, flooding the dark rink with its golden light and causing the flickerng gas jets to pale like mere candles. The light seemed like inspiration to the singers, and a mellow, hearty chorus rolled upwards to where the roof rested on cantilevers fifty feet above. "Help me to watch and pray, And on Thyself rely; As surely I my trust betray,

I shall forever die." After a "sermon set to music" in the shape of a solo by Prof. Whyte, Mr. Yatman asked, "Who is there that is in deep earnestness for some loved one. and would say 'Pray for him today?' " About a score of people arose and remained standing.

"It may be that there are Christians here who feel that they have grown cold and need to renew their coven-ant with God. Will you rise and say 'Pray for me,' and stand with the others?"

There were several answering standers and as many "God bless you, sirs," from the minister.

"Lastly, there may be an unsaved one in the house this early in the meetings who will say, 'Mr. Yatman, pray for me. I would like to be a Christian and have God as mine.' If there is one like that, you stand up, too." After a vain wait for several minutes he whole congregation arose, and Mr. Yatman prayed, first for the dedication of the building, then for the loved ones as represented by those who stood up first, and then for those who needed a renewing of God's grace. The offering, more singing, individual prayer, a solo by Mr. Whyte and the announcements followed. Mr. Yatman gave some reasons why as a union those present should give their strength, their hearts and all that they possessed to the work of Christ, that the lost might be saved. "For the wages of sin is death." said he, "and the wages have never saved. been cut down. And the need of telling men to flee the wrath to come and lay hold upon Jesus-the only one who can save them—is as imperative now as it ever has been in the days gone by. And what we do, let us do quickly. They said to me in Rochester when closed on Friday night, and they said to me also on the Pacific coast after five months of excessively hard work there: 'Mr. Yatman, why not rest a bit?' I never stop to tell them why. But when I am conscious as I am of people living in sin, and every day being counted off one less in life, and when I remember that we have a trend toward the fixtures of influence; that character fixes itself in this world and the dramas of destiny, sow a thought and reap an act, sow an act and reap a habit, sow a habit and reap a character, sow a character and reap a destiny-I said let us work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work. And what we do let us do quickly, and do well and do for God.

IN THE EVENING. The large rink was almost packed. standing room only being available in the small space at the rear of the chairs The meeting was characterized by the great attentiveness and interest shown the speaker and the perfect quietness that prevailed during the course of his remarks. "I just want to ask you one question tonight," said Mr. Yatman, "a question that more than once has shaken the speaker like an aspen leaf. A question that meets one everywhere whether in the hurry of an express train or in the quiet moments of one's life. 'Is it well with thy soul?' Not with your body, your business, your money, your friends or your bank account, but with your soul. I would say, get all that is good in life, take all the pleasure that is in life, but do not let the obtaining of it stand between you and your God. You may look the preacher in the face and say whether you like him or not, but what shall that count when God's almighty question shall face you have you loved aright? Mr. Yatman spoke of a man whom he had known—a great philanthropist and one who would have said "It is well with my soul," but who had been proven to be rotten at the core-and now that man is in jail for a sixteen-year We often get so busy that we term. canot find one minute to ask ourselves this question. It is between yourself and your Maker. I would not stand between any man and his God. I would not sleep, for sleep is the half-brother of death, without having this question settled. There was a time when it was not well with my soul, and I had to face death in a very sudden form. For all the money in the world you could not get me to face Gd and eternity with sin on my conscience." Mr. Yatman then asked all who could answer this question with him, "It is well with my soul," to rise, and those who wish they could say so. the whole assemblage rose to their feet. On account of its being Sunday evening Mr. Yatman then dismissed the audience without any after-meeting. Mr. Whyte sung 'Tolling Bell' during the

Mr. Robert Ironsides, who officiated as marshal, was next; then the Wolseley Barracks members of the society, and the five lodges in this order: Columbian, No. 37; Lendon, No. 33; Prospect No. 10; Mizpah, No. 22; Myrtle, No. 2. The procession included about 350 members, and as it passed up Dundas street to William, and thence to the church, it was witnessed by large crowds of citizens. The sermon was preached by the rec or, Rev. Canon Richardson, and was very appropriate. The text chosen was St. John, xv., 13: 'Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." In opening, the preacher said as he understood it, the text expressed the main principle and aim of the order of the Knights of can supply your wants Pythias. After singing several hymns, Mr. Yatman announced that the usual Scripture reading would should be so of God to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be so of God to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be so of God to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be so of God to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be so of God to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be so of God to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be so of God to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be so of God to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be sactorial to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be sactorial to the sactorial that the usual Scripture reading would should be sactorial to the sactorial that the usual t rifice, which he made for the sake of the world, and which moved Pythians in their endeavors to do good to others. It was the spirit which had goved mary a minister of Christ to spend and le spent for others, and as far as possible to imitate the spirit of Hira who came not to be ministered unto, but to min ister. The preacher believed that such an organization as the K. of P. had been raised for a noble purpose to emphasize and give expression to the pure charity as taught by the Saviour. The knights were living in a time when very grave charges were made against all kinds of associations. It had been urged that the lodge was in conflict with the church; but the speaker did not make such charges for a moment. In fact, he had no sympathy with them, for his associations as a minister with the K. of P. and other orders had led him to a very different conclusion. He asked the brethren to prove to the community, to prove to the Christian world generally, that adverse criticism was unjust. He asked them to do this by coming together to the first principles, and by proving that the aims and objects if Pythians were of the purest and noblest kind. Concluding, the speaker said he found in looking over the records, that the work of the society was one of which any order could well be proud. During the comparatively few year of its existence, it was seen that all over the American continent the order had been

The Commission Expects to More Than

Double the Work of Last Year. Washington, May 13.-The fish commission this year expects to almost double the work of last year. In 1894 about 400,000,000 fish were distributed. This year the division of fish culture hopes to exceed that figure by at least 200,000,000, and probably 300,000,000. The work of the spring distribution is now at its height. From the Ohio and Michlgan stations the commission has already taken about 120,000,000 whitefish and about 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 lake trout will be taken in the next ten days. In the nighborhood of 400,000 brook trout will be taken from the Colorado station. These fish will be planted in the great lakes and the surrounding inland lakes. The Put-in-Bay station has just reported the collection of some 200,000,000 pike and perch eggs from Lake Erie. These will be distributed in the lakes and also the public waters of Kentucky. The work of distribution will be begun at Duluth in ten days.

A Brilliant Social Season—Many of the Royalty in Town-Rosebery Wished to Resign, But Victoria Dissuaded Him-Archdeacon Farrar's Deserved Promotion-Salisbury's Radical Daughter-The Duke of Cambridge in London, May 13.-Lord Rosebery's | Orphan Asylum, and the Duke of York momentary break-down while speaking in the Liberal Club last Wednesday night has revived the report of his intended resignation. The London newspapers have all publicly admitted the facts, cabled to America weeks before its publication here, that the Prime Minister did intend resigning just after his severe attack of influenza last February. That intention does not exist now. The statement of the precise situation has been given to me by a near connection by marriage of Lord Rosebery, and is confirmed by two members of the Cabinet. It is as follows:

The Prime Minister's health undoubtedly is improving slowly. Were he not still suffering from short spells of insomnia he woud be as strong as ever. His temporary loss of memory at the club reception was not accompanied by any appearance of faintness or dizziness such as would indicate physical failure. Its real cause was that two sentlemen immediately behind him were engaged in a whispered conversation-a species of annoyance that always interferes with a speaker's flow of thought. The little speech was more earnest and spirited in tone and manner after the brief pause than before. As to the possibility of resigning the facts are these: Lord Rosebery was strongly disposed to resign immediately after his attack of influenza while the mental and physical depression which follows that complaint were upon him. He would have resigned then, but the Queen prevailed upon him to reconsider his determination until she had her holiday abroad. He has not abandoned the idea of retiring.

LONDON BRILLIANT. The beautiful, healthy spring weather continues. London, as a result, is crowded, and the gayest possible season is in full swing. Seldom has London been graced by the presence in town of so many members of the royal family. Royal personages, male and female, young and old, are to be seen in carriages and on foot at every turn in the fashionable thoroughfares. Some of the royal families are to be found nightly at the theaters, a fact which tends to increase the pulling power of the atractions presented. Of social events there is such a large list that even the society papers only find space for the most prominent. Among the latter is the grand dinner given on Thursday last by Mr. and Mrs. Naylor-Leyland in honor of the Prince of Wales. Mr. Naylor-Leyland, who reently resigned his seat in the House of commons, where he represented Colchester, married Miss Jennie Chamber lain, the famous beauty, daughter of H. S. Chamberlain, of Cleveland, Ohio, The partiality of the Prince of Wales for the society of Miss Chamberlain was much commented new by the society

RECEIVED BY THE QUEEN.

Of course, the Queen's drawing-room of Wednesday was the great event of the season. The weather was delightful. a cool breeze was blowing, and the result was the most brilliant royal display seen for a long time. There was a triple file of carriages along the mall long before the hour fixed for the drawing-room, waiting to take their occupants to Buckingham Palace, and the vicinity of the Queen's London residence was thronged with people anxious to get a glimpse of the dazzling show. It was noticeable that black was the prevailing color, and black now seems to be the fashion everywhere. The gathering of royalty at the drawingroom was such as has not often been seen in London and included the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York, the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Princess Christian, Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, the Duke and Duchess of Fife, the Princess Henry of Battenberg, the Marquis and Marchioness of Lorne, the Duchess of Albany, the Duke of Cambridge and the Duke of Saxe-Weimar. Princess Alexandria, the third daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, made her debut in the royal circle. The Queen Regent of Holland, and her daughter. Queen Wilhelmina, went to the palace by special invitation of Queen Victoria. who sent one of her carriages to Brown's Hotel to enable the young Queen to see her Majesty in her robes of state previous to the opening of the ceremonies. The two Queens of Holland dined with Queen Victoria the same night at Buckingham Palace, and had lunch with her Majesty on Thursday morning, after which they started for ROSEBERY'S WISE SELECTIONS. Even the enemies of Lord Rosebery admit the uniform felicity of his choice of men upon whom to confer the nonpartisan patronage of the crown. His appointments, whether judicial, ecclesiastical or academic, have thus far been singularly happy. And the last is voted on all sides to be the best-the nomination of Archdeacon W. Farrar to the deanery of Canterbury. The London public has long been accustomed to regard the distinguished divine as the most eloquent preacher in the Anglican communion, as the silver-tongued Chrysostom of the established church. More than this, he is universally beloved by churchmen and nonconformists alike for his beautiful modesty and almost saint-like urbanity of temper. The announcement of a sermon by Dr. Farrar at Westminster Abbey is sufficient to crowd that historic edifice; and some of the most liberal and inspiring discourse ever delivered there have been from his lips. Of late, however, his health has suffered, and his friends have feared that the burdens of the frehionable parish of St. Margaret's were proving too heavy for his advancing years. At Canterbury he will have rest and the leisure he needs for his literary labors. Dr. Farrar has several volumes in hand. Moreover, in the deanery he will be in the line of further promotion. Few of his predecessors there have lacked advancement. Most of them have been made bishops. None was more deserving of the dignity and emoluments of episcopacy than this diligent, honest-minded, fearless and highly-accomplished divine.

The Pope will be able to spend the summer more comfortably than in past years owing to the completion of his new villa in the famous Vatican gardens. The new building is in the form of a castle, and has been built near the historic villa of Leo IV. Heretofore, during his summer vacation, the Pope has had to return every night to the Vatican palace to sleep, the old villa being so inconvenient, small, but in future this will not be necessary. The health of his Holiness remains marvelength and considering his great ously good considering his great age, the immense amount of mental work he gets through in the course of 24 hours, and the little sleep which he allows himself.

SALISBURY'S RADICAL DAUGH-

TER. The Radicals are vastly amused over the announcement that the author of "The Curse of Intellect" is Lady Gwendolin Cecil, Lord Salisbury's daughter, and the favorite cousin of Mr. A. J. Balfour, the two chief Tories of the kingdom, and the heads of a family whose predominant faculty is intellect. This is a strange book to come from that quarter. The democracy is wondering what the haughty autocrat, Salisbury, thinks of his daughter's theory that a civilized monkey is superior to the human race, and of her bland suggestion that if an immensely rich monkey were to appear in town all Mayfair would flock to him.

A ROYAL NUISANCE.

It is quite on the cards that the obstinate old Duke of Cambridge, rather than appear to submit to the popular clamor, for which he has always shown a fine royal contempt, will abandon his intention to retire, but that will not that he will never forget until he foravert the storm. The Radicals are de-termined to bring the matter to an issue on the army estimates, and they will wreck the Government rather than allow the old duke to remain or the young duke to become commander-in-chief.

The Duke of Cambridge does not believe in new-fangled military reforms. Several royal commissions have recommended sweeping reforms in army administration, calculated to bring it into accord with modern methods, but the duke will have none of them, and nothng can be done as long as he is in chief command. If the Queen should, contrary to her usual caution in such matters, insist upon the appointment of her son, there is bound to be a Ministerial crisis, for Minister of War Campbell-Bannerman, at any rate, has good Radical backbone and he will not swallow his own opinions for all the court, aristocratic influence that may be brought to bear upon him.

The cry, "Down with court management of the army!" would sweep the constituencies, and send this Government back into power with a big majority. FASHIONABLE RESORTS. London has taken to early hours. The parks are crowded during the early morning and deserted before noon. In Hyde Park simplicity in dress characterizes the riders of both sexes who frequent Rotten Row, a contrast to the former startling styles which prevailed. The women mostly wear simple, white straw sailor hats, and plain overcoats over the plainest of riding habits. Strange to say, the plebeian Battersea Park now shares with aristocrate Hyde Park in fashionable favor, and many well known people are to be seen daily enjoying bicycle rides in that park which not long ago, was looked upon as being a fit resort only for the class of people compelled by economy to reside on the Surrey side of the Thames. But if Battersea is not a fashionable locality, Battersea Park, at least, is rapidly working its way into popularity. CURZON'S WELCOME HOME. Hon, George W. Curzon, member of prices. Parliament for the Southport division of Lancashire, reappeared in the House of Commons on Thursday for the first time since his return from America with his bride, and met with a hearty recepton. Mr. Curzon was congratulated on all sides, and Mrs. Curzon, formerly Miss Mary Leiter, of Washington, D. C., promises to be the most feted woman of the season. They were the center of an aristocratic coterie at the sale at Christie's on Thursday of the cele brated collection of pictures, porcelain, decorated furniture and objects d'art of the late Mrs. Lyne Stephens, better known as Pauline Duvernay, the talented stage dancer, who retired from the stage when she married Lyne Stephens, and who did so much in the cause of charity. On the first day of the sale 145 lots realized $100,000.

gets everything. For the first time in London's streets was raised the cry. "lynch him." The feeling against this wretch is more bitter than against Wilde, just as hate is more pungent than contempt. Wilde may escape the penalty his offense deserves, for the English law is proverbially unreliable in dealing with crimes not agains property. But the nation of shopkeepers never endures financial criminality, but punishes with rigor and impartiality thieves of all degrees of respectability. Balfour will receive a heavy sentence; Wilde may get his pardon. There is little doubt that eminent personages are deeply interested in preventing another trial of the fallen angel of aesthet-

A MYSTERIOUS MALADY,

A queer disease, which seems to be peculiar to the military system of the continent, is just now giving trouble to French and German medical men. tI is usually called barrack tetanus or lockjaw. It appeared with serious mortality some time ago at Munich, and was only eradicated by sending the troops to camp out. It has been violent in the last few days at Vitry and several barracks in Alsace-Lorraine. It is due to some form of cerebro spinal inflammation. There is first stiffness at the nape of the neck, then stiffening of the legs and arms, and usually an agonizing death within 24 hours. Seventeen soldiers in one regiment died at Vitry this week. Some physicians think it is a peculiar form of hydrophobia, perhaps due to a microbe which haunts clay soils.

TIRED OF PREDICTING DEFEAT. The defeat of the Government in the House of Commons is not considered likely. The rank and file of both parties do not wish to interrupt with the turmoil of an election the return of industrial prosperity, which is apparent everywhere. The Economist publishes reports from the provinces showing an increase in the booking of orders and an upward movement in Temple, from Kennett, Hopkins Company. CHICAGO, May 11.—The talent has been worsted again. It is nothing new, for they have been selling on breaks and buying on bulges ever since the advance began. It is a little singular that anyone should see anything bearish in a Government report that does not indicate more than 255,000,000 bu winter wheat. The talent sold a great deal of wheat this morning and if the predicted frests materialize tonight there will probably be a wild scramble Monday to cover shorts. Primary receipts continue to fall off, being but 160,000 bu today, while the exports were over 400,000 bu. The export trade is picking up and the demand from millers is getting more active. Looks like higher prices next week. Corn and oats have been weak in spite of the anticipated frosts. Too many big traders are on top of corn just now, but they may get off very suddenly before long. Can see nothing to encourage selling at present

OGDENSBURG, N. Y.
CGDENSBURG, N. Y., May 11.—Five hundred and forty-three boxes of cheese were offered here today; 479 so d at 6½c.

LONDON'S CHEESE MARKET OPENED London, Saturday, May 11.—The London cheese board opened for the season of 1895 in the City Hall on Saturday afternoon, with a very large atendance of factorymen, buyers and others, including Messrs. J. W. Wheaton, secretary of the Dairymen's Association for Western Ontario; John S. Pearce, president of the cheese board; John A. Nelles, secretary; R. Robertson, T. Ballantyne (Stratford), Robert Boston, M.P., James Slater, J. Thomas (Ingersoll), Hodgson Brothers, A. McMartin (Evelyn), F. Patterson (Thamesford), F. D. Norton (Westminster), E. S. Hunt (Scottsville), Gideon Decker (Lambeth), M. R. Brown (Appin), James McMillan (Glanworth), W. Hayes (Devizes), W. Fitzpatrick (Belmont), W. Lee (Thorndale), W. Elgie (Belton), Wm. Caspell (Oliver), Wm. McLaren (St. Marys), H. G. Gourlay (Medina), George Fitzgerald (Ballymote), J. B. James (Komoka), C. Wakeling (The Grove), John Gilmour (Nilestown), W. Watcher (Gladstone), D. Mcmillan (Evelyn), J. W. Crinklaw (White Oak,) George Haggerty (Muncey), John W. Cook (Ingersoll), John A. Leitch (Glencoe), L. R. Richardson (Strathroy), John Geary (London township). The meeting was called to order at :30 o'clock by President Pearce, who announced the first business as the organization of the board for 1895 and the election of officers. Before retiring from the presidency Mr. Pearce thanked the members for the generous spirit with which they had assisted him in conducting the work last year. It was a very satisfactory season; very little friction had been occasioned, and only one case had necessitated the appointment of arbitrators. It was a difference between Mr. James Slater, city, and Mr. Nagle, proprietor of the Muncey road factory. Mr. Pearce retired from the chair and called for presidential nominations. Before nominations were made, Mr.

Slater arose and spoke of the arbitration. He understood that the expenses of the arbitrators, which fell to the loser in the dispute, had not been paid by Mr. Nagle. No report, he understood, had been presented, and if business was to be conducted in that way he would

Mr. Pearce (to Mr. Slater)-Mr. Nagle agreed to pay any expenses, and as far as I am concerned I got what I asked for. If Mr. Brown, the other arbitrator, did not get his costs, it was because he did not ask for them. The report was made at this board in favor of you, too. Secretary Nelles corroborated the latter statement. The report was made on Nov. 17.

OFFICERS CHOSEN.

The elections were then proceeded with. Mr. J. S. Pearce, F. S. Norton and Wm. Lee were named for the presidency, but Mr. Norton declined on account of ill-health, and Mr. Lee with-drew owing to inability to attend the meetings regularly. The elections re-

President—John S. Pearce. Vice-President—M. R. Brown, Appin.

Arbitration matters were again revived, this time by Mr. Lee, who wanted a change made whereby arbitrators could name their own costs and by whem they should be paid. Mr. John Geary, London township, considered a change unnecessary, as ample provision was made for such cases under the present rules.

Reference was again made by Mr. Pearce to last year's case, and stated that the cause of the Slater-Nagle dispute was a refusal by Mr. Slater to take some cheese which he had purchased from Nagle at a board meeting. Mr. Slater-Was the report read from the board? Mr. Pearce-I reported verbally while the board was in full session. Did you nothear of it? Mr. Slater-Only through a private source. Turning to the members Mr. Slater asked: "Did any person else hear it? If there are five present who heard the report I will back down and pay Mr. Brown's expenses myself."

There was very little said further and the matter was allowed to drop without any change being made in the rule. BRANDING CHEESE.

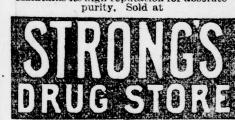

Mr. R. Boston brought the attention of the cheese men to a bill recently introduced in the House of Commons, which provides "that no person shall sell, offer, expose or have in possession for sale, any cheese or butter produced in Canada or the United States unless the name of the country in which the product is made and the month and year of manufacture is stamped on the outside of the box or package." Boston wanted the opinion of the London board on the bill.

Messrs. Pearce, Geary and Wheaton spoke in favor of the bill, which, they thought, would accomplish its object -the prevention of fraud. Cheese in England had been sold as September or other good makes when it was not.

THE OFFERINGS. The total offerings were 1,259 boxes of colored cheese, of the last half of April and the first half of May make. As is usual in the early part of the season, buyers were not anxious to invest, and no sales were made. Bids were offered on one or two factories, but they were YOUNG LIBERAL FLEET. The officers of the above organization have been actively drilling for the past two weeks under the command of Capt. Somerville preparatory to the opening of the summer drill for the entire Fleet on Friday evening next. Last season the Fleet consisted of seven companies, but so many applications have been made to the Admiralty Board from young men anxious to join that it has been decided to organize another company under the command of Capt. Macleod, assisted by Lieuts. Sullivan and Ranahan. Great as the success of the Fleet has been in the past, it will be cellipsed this year, if enthusiasm of the officers and men counts for anything.

JACK FROST DOES DAMAGE. Jack Frost came in a wintry mood last night and nipped a great deal in the line of fruit trees, vines and vegetables. It was a very severe nip, and now the farmers and market gardeners from one end of the county to the other are moaning over their losses. The exceedingly warm weather of the last week caused a very rapid growth of fruit. Apple trees principally were nearly all in full bloom, and a heavy yield was expected, but the frost of last night was too much for many of them, and the loss will be heavy. Grape vines were in excellent condition, too, and prospects for a good crop were bright. The vines which were uncovered suffered to a great extent, and the yield will be much decreased. Nothing but withered stalks remained of any tomatoes and beans which were exposed. The loss to farmers throughout Middlesex alone is great. BIG BLAZE IN PORT HURON. Port Huron, Mich., May 13.-McMorran & Co.'s grain elevator, and Davidson & McMorran's flour mills have been destroyed by fire. Loss, $175,000 to $200,-000; partly covered by insurance. The elevator contained 300,000 bushels of grain.

A Lost Gem

"The world," said Hannington, pulling at his mustache and looking down, is generally lenient to a-a-romantic

"Where there is love on both sides," Baid Lady Val, quickly, "the world is lenient. But it will soon find out that you married Molly for her money, and it will revile you when it finds out that "You are cynical," said Hannington, whose face had grown ominously dark, "and not particularly lucid. How will the world find out that I am not desperately in love with Molly, since I have eloped with her?"

"Are you so sure that you can dis guise your real feelings? "Not at all. But I know the world better than you, and I think that the world will not care very much.'

Lady Val shook her head. Evidently she did not care to argue the matter, but she was not convinced.

"You don't think so?" Hannington continued, quietly. "Very well. I'll grant your point. The world will despise me, the world will drop me as unworthy of its notice. I am ruined. Good. I have lost my character, my fortune, my ambitions, my love-everything that makes life worth li 'ng-that is what you mean to imply?" "Yes," said Lady Val, steadily. "That is what I mean to imply." "And you are content to leave me in the abyss?

'What do you say, Jack?" "I ask if you are content to leave me to my fate-to leave me to go under,

as you prophesy?" "Certainly not content."

"Won't you give me a helping hand out of it, Valencia?" "I don't see what I can do, Jack," said she, simply and earnestly, "but what I can do I will. I made a great fool of myself just now, I know, and the best thing for us will be to forget all about what I said. I shall not break my heart because you have refused me, you know." "But I shall, Valencia-if you refuse

He caught her hand as he spoke, and tried to draw her towards him, but she pulled it away with a look of cold in her eyes.

'Don't talk nonsense, Jack." 'I am speaking in sober earnest. You acknowledge that I can hardly hurt myself worse than by what I have done already. What I propose will make matters no worse for me than they are at present. You are not a woman to be bound by conventional scruples. Val. I know you better than you know yourself, and I am sure that you would glory in breaking the trammels that we both despise. Break them for me and with me, if you want to make me

'You think yourself the only person to be considered in the matter," said Lady Val, with wonderful composure, although she had changed color more than once during Hannington's speech. 'May I ask whether you are also considering your wife's welfare-and considering yours-because I am sure that I could make you happyhappier with me than with anybody

"As I cannot remain more than about five minutes longer with you," she said, with some flippancy of tone, "I don't see that we need discuss the proposi-

"Val-Val-be serious. Do think of what I mean." "I am serious, sir," she said, suddenly drawing up her head and facing him haughtily: "and being serious, I am ut-terly unable to even imagine what you mean. Is that answer not enough?" It would have been enough for any ordinary man. But John Hannington was bolder than most men, and not in an ordinary mood. With his face blanched by emotion and his dark eyes on fire, he caught her by the wrists, and looked undauntedly into her defiant face. "You shall listen to me,' he said. "We have fooled each other long enough. There shall be no want of plain speaking now. You must understand what I mean, and I must have a positive answer-yes or no." "No, then, without further parley, Mr. Hannington.'

"That is folly. I will speak and you must listen." "Let my hands go. Yes, I will listen for two minutes. Then you may go for ever. You were always a bully, Jack, and you will always be; but you have no power over me now. Drop my hands at once, please."

He released her wrists immediately. There was something about her which he found it difficult to disobey. The scornful nonchalance of the air which she assumed when she gave him permission to speak almost robbed him of utterance. He admired her more passionately than ever when she disdained and derided him. "I want you to come with me, Val," he said, in a voice so hoarse and so unlike his own that it was quite unrecognizable. "Leave Glasgow with me tonight, and let the whole world go by. We could lead a very happy life on the Mediterranean coast, or in some Greek Island where Englishmen and Scotchmen are never seen. Why should we not make the best of our youth? Life is passing swiftly by; neither of us can be said to have yet tasted the fullness of its joy. I love, you, Val, and you love me; can we not be happy together

"May I ask," said Lady Valencia, what you intend to do with Mrs. Hannington under those circumstances?" She was utterly unmoved by the fervor of his pleading. Her eye was cool, her mouth steady. Hannington re-strained himself with difficulty from utering an angry imprecation on poor Molly Moncrieff.

"We were married this morning," he said, after a moment's pause. "Legally I should do her a wrong, no doubt; but the law would soon dissolve the verbal oond between us. She would go back to her father, be forgiven, and in due time marry the man that he chose for There would be no barrier between you and me, then, Valencia."

"And what would she feel about it?" "She is a chit of a school girl. She has no heart to break as you have, "And yet she has given up home and friends for you-cast herself on your mercy entirely--and you say she has 'What do you think of her Why not all, sorry for your wife."

He growled something of which she could not distinguish the syllables; but the tone told her its tenor well enough. "You need not curse her for that," she said, dryly. "You asked her to marry you, remember; you beguiled her from her home. Nothing you can do for her will ever be too much, considering the injury that you have done her already. You have alienated her from all her friends; you will have to make up for the loss. Now listen to me, John Hannigton," she went on, drawing her hand away and looking frankly into his face. "If the world knew all I know, it would call you a scoundrel; you know that? If I do not call you so, it is only because I have a regard for my old playfellow, and a hope that I shall one day be able again to call myself his friend. At present, we had better be as strangers to one another." "You will join the world in hunting me down, you mean?"

GOOD ROADS.

Editor Pattullo Discusses an Interesting Subject-How to Make Better Highways.

Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

There are some good points n a letter from Mr. T. C. Patteson which appeared in these columns the other day (but which we had not space to comment on at the time). We agree that a good deal of the discussion or agitation in favor of better roads has not produced practical results up to date. But, still, all this discussion has been absolutely necessary-and much more will be necessary-before we can procure such practical results as Mr. Patteson and others hope for. While many of the farmers are thoroughly satisfied that bad roads are a loss to them and that good roads would pay, there are a good many of them of whom this cannot be said. The war of argument and discussion must go on if they are to be soon convinced. No improvement can be hoped for in the present system of making roads, much less can a new system be instituted, until the Canadian farmer-who controls our municipal machinery-is made to realize that better roads would put money into his pocket. Even a prospective addition to his comfort and the pleasures of life will not make him a road reformer until he is convinced directly through his pocket. There is still an enormous amount of work to be done before this happy time is reached. Men who refuse to admit the necessity for better roads can scarcely be induced to make them. But, as a matter of fact, the Good Roads Association long ago got down to practical work in the direction suggested by Mr. Patteson. Indeed, it aims at practical work alone and by, we believe, common sense methods. During the past two years it has had bulletins sent out through the Department of Agriculture giving instructions on road making. It has arranged to have these bulletins sent out more frequently and regularly this year. It hopes n this way to influence and aid the pathmasters, in spite of the fact that they are working under a very ineffi-cient system. If it had supfficient means it would place competent, practical men in every county of the Province to teach people how to build and repair roads. If we had a hundred speakers, for instance, like A. W. Campbell, C.E., of St. Thomas, in the field for one year, we would see a revolution of methods and results in a short time. The result of what has been done at the farmers' institutes is already being seen in many districts. One would suppose that the elementary principles of road making and road repairing would be self-evident to all men of common sense. But, unhappily, our pathmasters are not all chosen from this class. Mr. Patteson protests against black mold being thrown up on the middle of the roadway. Rational men have been protesting against this for a generation past. Still, the stupid work goes on; and the new road-making machines are in some cases being put into incompetent hands actually to increase the evil. Grading machines are very useful in some places, and in the hands of those who know how to use them. But the work done by them in any event is only the beginning of a good road. On many roads in the Oxford district they are scarcely needed. The grades are already very fair. What roadbed. In some soils the side ditches will afford sufficient drainage, but most roads require to be drained along the roadbed to good outlets. When this is done, road metal is next required and a roller to bind it. Stone crushers and neavy rollers are vastly more needed today in Oxford than graders-which will work on prairie soil better than on the ordinary roads in these parts. As to oose stones, it should be made a punishable offense to leave them on the roadways. There is no more excuse for them than there is for obstructing traffic by falling timber across the highway. But neither drainage, machinery, metal nor improved methods, properly utilized, will ever make our roads what they could easily be made, until we cease attempting to do all our road work in one week of summer. The work of road-making and road repairing must go on throughout, say, twothirds of the year. The necessity for this is more apparent just now than per-haps at any other season. Now and for the next six weeks is the best time to do road work. It is easiest done in the spring. If the repairs were properly made now, the roadways would remain good throughout the summer, and would be in a very fair condition to stand the wet weather of the fall season. It is easier now than in midsummer to improve the grades and drainage. If the ruts and holes were filled with screened gravel and broken stone, and the roadways rolled, the traveling public would be surprised at the results. But nothing of the kind will be done. For some weeks past traffic has been converting the roadway into mud, which it will soon convert into equally disagreeable dust, and making ruts and holes which we will have to drive through -or around-for the next two months, Then the holes will be converted into hillocks of unspread gravel and large round stones. Good grades will be torn up by the amateur road-making fiend. and black mold dumped over old grave roadbeds. And the country roads will remain the despair of horsemen until the wet fall season-when no one drives into the country who can possibly avoid

Mr. Patteson should join the Good Roads Association and take the stump at farmers' meetings throughout the country. He would then realize, per-haps even more painfully than he does now, the difficulties which confront those who have been agitating for better roads.

NICARACUA.

A Country of Small Population and Size, but Rich in Resources.

The total population of the republic of Nicaragua is put by the best authorities at 310,000, or about one sixth as large as that of New York, according to the census just taken. Of the inhabitants of the country, one-tenth belong to uncivilized aboriginal tribes, while the main body are classified as 'Indians," Zambos or mulattoes, negroes, mixed races, and Europeans, the latter being but few in number.

The area of the republic is only about 49,-500 English square miles. There are few towns, and all of them, with two exceptions, are small and rude. The population of Managua, the capital, 25,000. The town of Corinto is the principal port on the Pacific, and the ladino element (a mixture of white and Indians) predominates there. The most important industry of the inhabitants of Nicaragua is the raising of cattle, the hides of which are exported; and among the other exports are coffee, bananas, sugar, indigo, cocoanuts, cacao, Brazil wood, and cedar. The head of cattle number over 400,-000. The greater part of the imports are from England, and the w part of the exports are to the Unit There are over 100 mines worked by American companies, in nearly all of which gold is found mixed with silver, and in a few silver mixed with copper. A good deal of American capital has been sunk in them. Nicaragua is especially rich in valuable woods, the mahogany, rosewood, granadillo, and ronron, also medicinal trees, besides other commercial trees, including the castilloa elastica, from which india rubber is made; the gutta percha tree, and several trees which produce gums. Wild animals, monkeys, alligators, lizards, and snakes abound, besides tropical birds to the number of 150 species. Mosquitoes swarm in all damp places, and there are fierce wasps. The foraging ants move in large armies. The seas, rivers, and lagoons are alive with every variety of tropi-

There are numerous volcanic peaks, a few of which are still active, but most of them have long been extinct. The last great eruption was that of 1835, when Coseguina scattered its hot ashes over a circle 1,500 miles in diameter. Near some of the extinct craters are vast beds of lava and coriae and numerous vents called infernillos, which emit smoke and sulphurous vapors. On the pacific coast the soil is very rich, and the climate is essentially that of the central zone; but the amount of cultivated land is small in proportion to the arable area of the country. Maize, the principal food of the natives, is very prolific, and fine fruits and vegetables grow in abundance.

The form of government is constitutional and republican. There is a Congress of two branches, the Senate and the House of Representatives, the members of both of which number only thirty-nine, who are elected under the Nicaraguan system of universal suffrage. The President now in power, Gen. Santos Zelaya, was elected, in the Nicaraguan way, last year and holds office for four years. He has a council of four Ministers, who have charge of that number of departments of the government.

The active army of Nicaragua consists of 2,000 men, with a reserve of 10,000, besides a nominal militia force of 5,000. The active is wanted is not black mold thrown troops are poorly equipped and apparelled into the center of the roadway from the and the reserves are unfit for any service in sides, but thorough drainage of the the field as against a European force. The academy was profusely decorated with palms, ferns and lilies, and the costumes of the little girls were quite elaborate. Miss Susie McGill, a little lady of 7 years, received well-merited applause for the graceful manner in which she danced an Irish jig. The sprcious academp was crowded with the parents and friends of the little ones, who highly complimented Messrs. Dayton & Mc-Cormick for the splendid showing made by the children. This entertainment closed the academy for the season, which has been very successful.

THE COLD WAVE. From light waists and light dresses in the morning on the part of the ladies, and from neglige shirts, straw hats and blazers, on the part of the gentlemen, to furs, flannels and overcoats in the evening was the experience of Londoners on Saturday. Old Probs was right for once, and now the small boy is beginning to wonder whether after all he really did go swimming last week or was it all a dream? There was a rush to cover delicate flowers that had been transferred from pots to the open air beds, and a scurrying to find covers for grape vines and other frail plants that had sprouted so vigorously during the week of somewhat premature summer weather that the people of Western Ontario had been permitted to enjoy. However Saturday night was cloudy and wintry and although the weather was ancomfortably cold there were no visible signs of frost. Fruit trees will suffer sadly in this section if frost does come. Furnaces umped quickly into demand again and those who had moved their cook stoves into the summer kitchen are rather sorry.

DID HE LIE?

Startling Statement Regarding Minister Foster's Utterances in the House.

St. Johns, Nfld., May 12.—There was a startling development in the confederation question last night. Hon. Robt. Bond, Colonial Secretary, who was one of the delegates to Canada, sailed unexpectedly, bound for Ottawa, to continue the negotia-

The members of the council and the executive deny flatly that they have re-ceived any answer from Canada as stated by the Dominion Finance Minister, Mr. Foster, in the House of Commons. They explain that terms may have been mailed, but not telegraphed.

Many members of the party say that this "evasion" was decided upon in order to obviate the necessity of giving any information to the supporters of confederation. The suddenness of last night's move upset every-body's calculation. No person can explain its true significance.

MIDDLESEX.

A pleasant event took place Wednesday afternoon, May 1, at the residence of Mr. Thomas Dyer, Governor's road, West Nissouri, it being the marriage of his eldest daughter, Ada, to Mr. Allan McConnel, of the London asylum staff, late of Lucknow. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. A. Cook, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends. After the ceremony the company sat down to a bounteous repast, after which Mr. and Mrs. McConnel departed for their new home. The bride was charmingly attired in fawn and brown, and wore cream roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Dyer, of London township, was also dressed in fawn and brown, and wore pink roses. Mr. John Dyer, city, supported the groom.

Chief of Police Skirving, of Ingersoll, is in Chatham on a hunt for Mary Mc-Lean, a young woman, an accomplice of two notorious burglars, Jack Mc-Lean and Husky Henderson, who are now safely lodged in Woodstock jail. Mary knows where the plunder is hidden, and the officer is anxious to secure her and recover the stolen property.

GUELPH WITHOUT WATER. Guelph, May 12.—The city is without a water supply and without fire protection. The waterworks system has only one main and it burst Friday night at a point on Neave street in the east ward, entirely cutting off the water from all parts of the city. The factories were all compelled to shut down in consequence.

SPIRITS RISE AGAIN. Chicago, May 11 .- Receiver McNulta of the whisky trust has advanced the price of spirits two cents a gallon. This is the second advance of two cents this week. This second raise is due partly to the advance in the price of corn. Gen. Mc-Nulta said, "and besides we have been selling too many goods. Buyers have been sending in orders too fast."

Hamilton May 13.-A very large increase has lately taken place in the sale of the specific remedy for complaints of the liver, and Dodd's Kidney Pills are in great demand. There are no complaints either from druggists or the public. The druggists being so near Toronto, the headquarters for distributing, are never in any danger of running out of the medicine for long no matter how large the demand may be, and the public has long been thoroughly satisfied as to the valuable qualities of the pills and the manner in which they invariably effect a cure.
