FREE TRADE.

London, Nov. 2.-Lord Rosebery addressed a large meeting at Manchester, in connection with the centenary celebration of the chamber of commence. He reviewed the history of free trade, elaborately eulogizing what he des-cribed as its "advantages to England." Lord Rosebery contended that the condition of agriculture abroad, despite bounties and protection, was little better, and in some cases was worse, than in England. He quoted Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Dominion premier, as "a most illustrious authority, sustaining the view that it is free trade which has preserved and consolidated the British Empire." He fully agreed with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he declared, that any deviation from absolute political and would commercial freedom weaken the bonds holding the empire together, and that anything in the direction of an imperial zollverein would weaken the empire internally and excite the permanent hostility of the whole world, already seriously excited by British prosperity under free trade. He said he "would tread softly in the presence of the idea of a zollverein," for he believed it already dead. It behooved them to walk strongly and warily in the path of the

The World's Favorites for Dyeing Light, Medium and Heavy Goods.

Diamond Dyes do a range of work far beyond the possibilities of soap grease and crude package dyes. The common dyes on the market are deceptive in character and composition; they are made to sell, not to give guaranteed satisfaction. The majority of will hardly stain the hands. Diamond Dyes give colors to light, medium and heavy materials that are as fast as a rock, and last as long as the goods hold together. The heaviest tweeds and cloths can be dyed with Diamond Dyes. Soap grease and imitation package dyes dare not attempt such work, because the colors are not sufficiently penetrating and powerful. If you desire success in the dyeing operation, and wish to save money, use Diamond Dyes for home dyeing. All up-to-date dealers sell Diamond Dyes and strongly recommend them.

Brown Buttered Eggs.-In a small stew-pan put two stablespoonfuls of butter, and let it cook until very dark -almost black. Then drop in quickly two tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar, and let it cook for a moment longer; add one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, and set where it will keep warm. In a small buttered baking dish drop four eggs, sprinkle with a saltspoon of salt, and set in the oven to bake. When the whites are set remove from the oven, pour the sauce over the top and serve.

Whole Wheat Puffs-Put the yolk of an egg into a basin, and beat the white in a separate dish to a stiff froth. Add to the yolk one-half a cup of rather thin cream and one cupful of skim milk, and a naif-saltspoon of salt. Beat the egg, cream and milk together until perfectly mingled and foaming with air bubbles; then add gradually, beating well at the same time, one pint of wheat flour; continue the beating vigorously and without interruption for eight or ten minutes, then stir in lightly the white of the egg, and turn at once into heated, shallow irons, and bake for half-an hour in moderately quick oven. Sweet Gingerbread-One cupful of granulated sugar, one-third of a cupful of butter, two and one-half cupfuls of flour, one cupful of New Orleans molasses, one teaspoonful of ginger, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Stir thoroughly and add one cupful of boiling water in which has been dissolved one level teaspoonful of soda. Then add two eggs, well-beaten, and one-half cupful of seeded raisins and orange-peel chopped fine. Bake in a moderate oven.

Shoulder of Lamb a la Parisiennehave the butcher bone the meat nicely. Prepare a stuffing of four ounces of breadcrumbs, two ounces of raw veal, chopped fine, two tablespoonfuls of butter meited, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one teaspoonful of salt, and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper. Mix all together and stuff the meat with it. Roast in a quick oven. Into two tablespoonfuls of softened (not melted) butter, mix one tablespoonful each of chopped parsley shallots, lemon-juice and beef extract. Draw the meat when done from the oven, spread it with the prepared sauce and return it to the oven just long enough to melt it. Garnish with small, round, fried potatoes.

Orange Pudding—To one quart of cilk add one-half of a cupful of sugar. two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, mixed with a little cold water, the yolks of three eggs. Grate the rind and press cut the juice of three oranges. Scald the milk, add the cornstarch, then the sugar and eggs. Boil for three minutes. Beat the whites to a stiff froth, add four tablespoonfuls of sugar; spread over the pudding and brown slightly in the oven.

How Cuban Guns Mowed Down the Spaniards,

Who Had Been Sent to Capture a Hospital-A Starving Population.

New York, Nov. 2.—A letter from John Lynn, a Florida man, operating the pneumatic gun with Gen. Castillo's army, is published in the Sun. He writes concerning the massacre of a Spanish solve the Misseague Solve. Spanish column in the hills near Selba, Havana province. The Spaniards had planned to capture a Cuban hospital, and Gen. Castillo prepared for them.

Mr. Lynn writes:
"We had everything all arranged for them, with the battery skillfully concealed behind some light bushes at the head of the path that led into the hills, while on each side of the defile troops were stationed with hand grenades and rocks to pour into the 'panish columns. The hills were almost like a horseshoe where we were, the open part being a roadway about 800 feet wide at first, and then contracting into a narrow road or path of not over 25 or 30 feet. On each side the cliffs were very high and steep, making it imposible for the Spanish troops to scale it, so that they had no chance to attack us in the rear. Our spies led the Spanish columns on, and they came, early one morning, under command of Gen. Morino, I am told, about 1,500 strong. They came on, with their cavalry in front straggling along the road. We waited until we could see the expressions on the men's faces, when I gave the order to fire. It seemed like hades broke loose.' My shell from the dynamite gun exploded in the column, and the air was filled with dismembered fragments of human bodies, while the horrible shouts of the soldiers still ring in my ears. Our rapid-fire guns opened at the same moment, and, to add to the horror, the men on each side of the ravine or road on the cliffs overhead threw down overhea filled with dismembered fragments of human bodies, while the horrible shouts rocks and hand grenades. The horses and men floundered together in one wild scramble. The shouts of the officers and shrieks of the wounded men, and the neighing of the frightened horses all produced a wild chaos of sounds that one can never forget. Again we opened on them, and gave them another volley. The Spaniards turned and scrambled for the outlet, the cavalry rushing through the infantry, tumbling men down by the score. It was such a slaughter that after the fourth shot from the dynamite gun I could not fire it again, as I felt like doing murder. The rapid-fire guns, under the Cubans in my command, kept up their deadly work, and they mowed down the fleeing men on all sides. Our men pursued them far out into the hills. We buried 300 dead, and aided 400 wounded, releasing some and leaving others where the Spaniar's could get them."

STARVATION AND VICE.

You may see in this city women and children dying in the streets of starvation. After some days you become action. After some days you become accustomed to the awful sight, just as people acquire the habit of living without apprehension among the dangers of an epidemic. Cardenas seems no longer a city, but a hell in which, among unendurable tortures and pangs the most satanic revelry is going on. Misery has brought all vices with it. Emaciated women march by the side of the Spanish officers, asking a piece of bread. The most unspeakable scenes occur in the very streets. Hunger has stifled shame in this place. But the soldiers themselves are starving in their barracks, and even the officers, in spite of their money, suffer from the hardships of the situation. Money, no matter how plentiful, cannot buy what does not and the poor alike.

The same situation exists all over the island. The reports from Puerto Principe and Santiago de Cuba are exactly the same. In Pinar del province hundreds die from starvation every day. The weekly returns show that the mortality augments by 40 per cent every seven days.

It is announced that first measure General Blanco will take will be to suppress the barbarous decrees of Weyler, obliging the country people to herd in the towns. The pacificos will have the right, it is said, to return to their huts and farms. But it must be remembered that Weyler's columns have laid waste the whole country.
The huts and farms of the pacificos are utterly destroyed. Nothing but ruins is to be found now in the rural districts in Cuba. Furthermore, the pacificos themselves will refuse to go. They have no confidence in the Span-They believe, with reason, that as soon as they get into the country hey will be butchered, as their fellowlaborers were not long ago by the columns of Weyler.

HENRY GEORGE'S ESTATE

Less Than $16,000-He Was a Generous

New York, Nov. 2.-Henry George's estate consisted merely of his house and grounds at Fore Hamilton, worth $12,000, with $1,500 in ready cash and about $2,000 life insurance. There are in addition copyrights on all his books. The sale of "Progress and Poverty" is said to have exceeded any other book except "Robinson Crusoe" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin." But much of its circulation has been in foreign countries, and from this Mr. George received no return, except $225 for one English edition.

Nobody except Mr. George had any interest in his copyrights. He received a royalty on all books sold in this country. But while this royalty was duly credited to him on the account books of his publishers, it generally happened that Mr. George was in debt to them owing to the large number of his books which he had given away. The reason for this was that Mr. George's interest in the promulgation of his principles had led him to order his publishers to distribute to members of the labor unions a great many copies of his books, and these were, of course, charged to his account. This meant that Mr. George's income from his writings was very small. He had in addition, and with this he supported himself and his family largely, the income he derived from week to week from his work as a magazine and newspaper writer. The royalties now will not exceed a few hundred dollars a year. They might have been larger, but Mr. George always preferred to sacrifice a portion of his royalty rather than to have the book sold at a price which would pre-vent its wide circulation. It is for this reason that "Progress and Poverty" had a sale of 1,000,000 copies in England alone, a 6d edition

New York, Nov. 2.—The first mayor of Greater New York will be elected today. For bitterness, complex situations and uncertainty the campaign has never been excelled in national or municipal elections. The skies were dark and lowering this morning, and the falling rain presaged a long and disagreeable day for the workers at the polls, but the leaders early commenced the struggle for the control of the second greatest city of the world, for the privileges involved in the expenditure of perhaps 1990 1990 4990 days penditure of perhaps $300,000,000 during the next four years, for the patronage involved in the appointment of at least 35,000 men to place under the next municipal government.

There is a weather tradition attached to United States politics which is believed to hold good in this municipal struggle. Fair weather is called "Republican weather." and another political tradition says that the Democrat, especially the organization Demo-crat, will brave any freak of the ele-ments to deposit his verdict in the

A full vote will mean possibly 529,-000, and this estimate is arrived at by taking the total registration—568,-568 and deducting therefrom the usual 7 per cent allowance for defective ballots, stay-at-homes, and non-waters lots, stay-at-homes, and non-voters for other causes. It is generally conceded that the man who receives over 126,250 votes will be the first mayor of Greater New York.

Democratic estimates give Van Wyck a majority over all other candidates combined of 20,000, and plurality over Low, the next highest one, 13,000. Republican estimates give Tracy a plurality of 75,000. Havana advices to the Sun say: A slity of 75,000. Citizens' Union estimate give Low a plurality of 15,000. Cardenas:

> TREATY REGARDING SEALING. Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.-It is expected that a treaty between the United States, Russia and Japan will be formally signed and executed at the state department during the present week, carrying out the proposition before the Bering Sea conference, for a suspension of pelagic sealing. The attitude which Great Britain will assume toward the treaty is awaited with much interest. Thus far the British authorities have not been in-formed as to what the conference proposes doing. The British expert, Prof. D'Arcy Thompson, has had several long talks with Mr. Foster and Hamlin, and these have been of such a satisfactory nature that it believed an amicable understanding would be reached by all parties concerned if Canada showed a disposition to assent But Canada still stands in the way, and the continued absence of the Canadian expert, Mr. Macoun, is regarded in the light of a diplomatic discour street to rest and regain my breath.

I had bad smothering spells at night, and my nerves were much unstrung. Anything annoying or worrying me produced extreme weakness, and would set my heart beating so fast that I thought I was dying. Sometimes I would become so nervous as to tremble like a leaf.

I began taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills early last February, and have been getting better ever since. My nerves are much stronger. I can walk without difficulty, and the palpitation, fluttering of the heart, shortness of breath and

Why not put the United States lake navy in leading strings. The Yantic cannot be trusted around loose.

Talk about carrying coals to Newcastle! Two hundred tons of Nova Scotian granite are about to be conveyed to Aberdeen, Scotland. Canada's resources are many and profitable.

2 % The rain of the last two days does not add to the pleasures of pedestrianism or the comforts of travel on poorly kept roads, but it is of great value to the country, which has been suffering from lack of moisture. Nothing could be more acceptable, as a precursor to winter, than the steady fall of rain, refreshing the soil, filling up the wells and streams, and generally preparing us for the frost and snows of winter.

Gen. Miles, commander-in-chief of the United States 'army, punctures some popular ideas in regard to the use of bicycles of the present style in the army in the following cold and cruel words: "All the enemy would have to do to stop a forward move by the bicycle corps would be to scatter carpet tacks along the road and all would blow up." While the pneumatic tire holds its present place in bicycle construction, the wheel will never be of much value in actual warfare.

* * The Toronto News, which is a supporter of the Opposition leader, says that the prospect of a winter campaign in Ontario makes some of the politicians shiver. No doubt that is the effect on Mr. Whitney and his associates, who till recently were hoping that the Provincial elections would be rushed on before another session of the Legislature was held, and governed their speeches accordingly. Now they first time in nine years to any applisee that they were mistaken in their apprehensions, and will have to face their reckless assertions in the Legislature. No wonder they shiver. They know what awaits them in the Assembly and at the polls.

Our Riches in the Northland. Explorations of Canada's far northern territory, made this summer by three distinct exploring parties, show the vastness and variety of the yet uneveloped resources of this great country. Dr. Bell, the distinguished officer of the Geological Survey, who accompanied the Diana expedition, sent to explore the navigability of Hudson Strait, reports on his investigation of Baffinland, a country many hundreds of miles north of any point in our civilization, yet undoubtedly a portion of the Dominion. It is proved by Dr. Bell to be the third largest island in the world-only Australia and Greenland exceeding it in extent-while it is settled beyond dispute that it is a land of big lakes and great rivers. Vast herds of reindeer or barren ground caribou, roam its plains and mountain passes. One lake is 150 miles long, and nearly as wide. The waters of all the lakes is transparent and colorless. Dr. Bell did not see a foot of really good soil on any part of the vast territory of 1,100 miles long, by from 200 to 500 miles broad. It is a bleak land; grasses and sedges are its tallest plants, and its trees are chiefly creeping willows, which cling to the earth, hardly ever rising more than an inch above its surface. Salmon and seals of several varieties haunt its waters in abundance, and whales and polar bears are often met with. The island may yet prove valuable for mineral deposits, otherwise its attractions to the man of commercial instincts must prove comparatively small. In any case, it was a very proper thing for the Canadian officers on the Diana to hoist the British flag on the territory, and once more formally lay claim to its ownership.

If the explorations in Baffinland are at present of comparatively small practical interest to the people of Ontario, not so are the investigations made by explorers in the territories bordering on James' Bay, and controlled respectively by the Governments of Ontario and Quebec. Mr. W. A. Charlton, M.P.P., has just returned to Norfolk from his trip to Hudson's Bay, as the Government representative on an expedition organized by a combination of capitalists who propose to open a railway with water route connections from the C. P. R. at Messanable to the Klondike; by railway to Moose Factory, 250 miles; steamer to the head of Chesterfield Inlet, 1,300 miles; railway from Chesterfield Inlet to Great Slave Lake, 200 miles; steamer through Great Slave Lake and down Slave and Mackenzie Rivers, 1,400 miles; and railway 50 miles to the navigable waters of the Porcupine, a tributary of the Yukon. Mr. Charlton's duties in connection with the expedition were to make an independent report to the Government as to the character of the country and the route, from Messanable to the mouth of Moose River. This river runs into James' Bay, and is situated in the territory which the Ontario Government successfully maintained was a part of this Province at a time when the late Government at Ottawa attempted to filch it from the control of Ontario. Mr. Charlton's experience in the lumber business constituted him an excellent judge of the woods in the country. He says that the timber resources of the Moose River Valley are extensive. At the height of land and London were brought into Toronto the timber was scraggy and small, but on a special. as the party proceeded northward it increased in size, and on the lower two and a half feet in diameter, tall and thrifty; poplar, of good size and height, large enough for lumber, and Balm of Gilead of large size. This country presents a grand opening for the wood pulp industry.

While Mr. Charlton was exploring the territory along the Moose, Mr. Henry O'Sullivan, of Quebec, was examining the territory belonging to the sister Province, adjoining Ontario. As in far Northern Ontario, so in the Quebec lands adjoining the great branch of Hudson's Bay, it is found that there is much wealth in timber and arable land. Of the latter Mr. O'Sullivan says there are millions of acres along the Nottaway River and the lower basin of the Rupert, while as regards climate he claims to have seen excellent wheat grown at Waswampi, and to have bathed in the water of James' Bay on Oct. 3, finding it warmer than at Tadousac in midsummer. There are also very rich and extensive spruce forests from a distance of fifteen or twenty miles on the other side of the height of land all the way to James' Bay, some of the trees being two to two and a half feet in diameter, while the supply of pulpwood is inexhaust-

These resources loom up larger and richer the more they are investigated. Our lumber industries will be enormously increased in the near future.

THE CONVALESCENT HOME.

Annual Meeting of the Board - A Record of Good Work Done.

The annual meeting of the Convales-Mrs. Boomer presiding. Others present were: Mesdames Hopkins, De la Meredith, Miss Hamilton, Messrs. P. E. Bucke and W. C. L. Gill.

Mrs. Boomer's report was very comprehensive. The finances, she said, were not in as good shape as might be desired. Some of the inmates were too poor to pay anything towards their keep, and in consequence only $20 26 passed into the treasury, as against $42 25 last year. It would be regretted if the home had to be closed for the cant, merely because he or she was too poor to pay for the hospitality of the home. There is still a floating debt of $600 on the home. Visits had been made during the year to the home by friends, from a number of the city doctors, as well as clergymen, all of which was appreciated by the inmates. Thanks were expressed to the executive of the Dalton trust for renewing their gift of $60; to anonymous friends who have held the home in kindly remembrance; to the city press for its courtesy and liberality, and to the gentlemen comprising the advisory board. Reference was made to the bequest of $100 by the will of the late

During the year there have been held 10 monthly board meetings. There have been 27 admissions in addition to those at present in the home, makng a total of 30, 23 being gratis patients. Of these 9 were male, 21 female, 24 Protestants, 6 Roman Catholics, 6 Canadians, 11 English, 4 Irish, Scotch, 3 from the United States, 29 from the city of London, many of them from the city hospital.

The cash valuation of gifts in fruit, vegetables, groceries, etc., was $37. The treasurer's report stated that the balance on hand at the beginning of the year was $210 22, the receipts were $531 77, a total of $720 99. The disbursements were as follows: Housekeeping, $175 29; fuel, water and light, $345; payment on building, $150; interest, $43 50; total disbursements, $712 20, leaving a balance on hand of $29 79. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Lady Patroness-Mrs. John Labatt. President-Mrs. H. A. Boomer. Vice-presidents-Mesdames Reid, Edge, Bremner, De la Hooke.

Secretary-Miss Hamilton. Treasurer-Miss Ada Meredith. Board of Trustees-Mesdames P. E. Bucke, Andrew Thomson, Becher, Lashbrook, McLean, Hopkins, Strong, B. A. Mitchell, Parfitt, Puddicombe Bullen, Blinn, E. W. Hyman and Miss S. Labatt.

"If I ventured away from home the change of air would bring on such bad attacks that I was afraid I would suffocate at times. A short time ago I found it necessary to go to Paris, Ontario, on business. On the way my old enemy attacked me with great severity. As soon as I got to Paris, I went to Armitage's drug store and bought a bottle. It relieved my Asthma, and although I have been away from home several times since, I experienced no more trouble. I regard my quarter as well spent, and intend to send some more after it."

Sir William Van Horne Says They Will Be Less Than Those of Any Other Railroad Across the Rockies.

Montreal, Nov. 1. - Sir Wm. Van Horne, who was interviewed, said that the maximum gradients on the Crow's Nest Pass road from the main line at Dunmore to Robson, on the Columbia River, crossing both the Rocky and Selkirk ranges, would not be one foot in a hundred. In other words, the maximum gradients of the Crow's Nest are only about half of those of the other mountain lines in the United States and Canada. As for the rumored building of a smelter in Rossland or Robson, Sir Wm. Van Horne said: "We intend to do all that is necessary to protect the interests of the country and the company in this regard." He also declared that the C.P.R. were about to build a line of their own from Robson to Rossland, a distance of

Perhaps your grocer has sold you Rolled Oats and called them "Pan Dried." And when you're eating them you say "Those Tillson folks don't tell the truth. Here's a hull—a black speck, and where's that nutty flavor they tell about?"

You didn't ask for "Tilison's" brand, and you didn't get it if you did. Some grocers sell inferior brands under the guise of "Pan Dried."

The original Tillson's Pan Dried Rolled Oats are just as we advertise them, but because they meet with popular favor the words "Pan Dried" are used indiscriminately. "Tillson's" is the original; "Pan Dried" is their original registered trade mark. No one but Tillson can lawfully use the words

John Philip Sousa is said to be so good-natured that he cannot refuse anyone any favor asked. Consequently, he had to hire a man last season to go about with him to keep him from giving away his money and from hiring musicians he did not need. A DINNER PILL.-Many persons suffer excruciating agony after par-taking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment, it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and convey the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medi-cine to take if troubled with indigestion or dyspepsia.

Some Extraordinary Cases Re corded in the Medical Books.

Several Instances of People on Their Deathbed Whose Hilarity Saved Them.

[European Edition, New York Herald.] Assuredly, it seems a singular idea to assign mirth an important part in the cure of diseases. If I undertake the task of showing what this particular state of mind is capable of in the healing line, it is not that I wish to recommend its exclusive adoption which would often present considerable difficulties, but to demonstrate that if, on the one hand, the passions may in certain cases prove noxious, they are on the other hand, susceptible of exercising in some others a highly fav

Rochard, of Paris, which makes this truthful remark: "Everyone knows the influence exercised on the appetite and working of the digestive functions of any person by mirthful ideas, agreeable surroundings or the fact of eating in company instead of

The air, in this case, not being able to escape from the lungs except in short, spasmodic efforts, set up by the peculiar action of laughter, in consequence of the convulsive tightening of the throat, seeks an issue toward the terminal extremities of the bronchial tubes, and this forces the air cells gradually to distend.

FOR BRONCHIAL CATARRH. Dr. Denis Prudent-Roy reckoned a great deal on mirth for the cure of bronchial catarrh. HOW DO YOU WEAR YOUR HAT?

You can generally tell a man's character from the way he wears his hat," a physiognomist remarked the other day. "Indeed, this is one of the rost reliable guides for the amateur character-reader that I know of. "Take the man who blusters. He stands with his feet apart, wears his clothes at least a couple of sizes too large for him; and his hat stands bolt upright on his head, firm and precise, in a way that reminds you of a gen-

-Major Alexander Macbeth, brother of Col. John Macbeth, of this city, died at Port Talbot on Sunday, aged 65 years. The deceased had been a familiar figure about Port Talbot for years past, and was also well known in Wallacetown and throughout other parts of the country. He was born at Selkirk, Manitoba, and was a son of the late John Macbeth, a prominent official in the employ of the Hudson's Bay Company. Another brother resides in the southern states. Mrs. White and Miss Macbeth, Wallacetown, are sisters of the deceased. The major had seen active service as a volunteer, and merited the rank of major.

THE LATE JOHN LOUGHNANE. After an illness of about nine weeks, Mr. John Loughnane, of 441 King street, died yesterday in his 60th year. Mr. Loughnane had been employed on the Grand Trunk Railway here for a quarter of a century past, and was widely known and respected: Seventeen years ago he met with an accident on the road whereby he lost a leg, and since that time was watchman at Burwell street crossing. Born in Ireland, he came to London 25 years ago, and had lived here ever since. Mrs. Loughnane survives, and also four sons-John and Michael, of this city; Patrick, of Peoria, Ill., and Barney, of Oshkosh, Ill.; and two daughters, Mrs. James Burns, of this city, and Miss Katie Loughnane, living at home. Mrs. A. Eagan, the only sister of the deceased, lives at Winnipeg, Man. The bereaved family will have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence

WOMAN AND GAME

A Michigan Lady Who Looks After the Poachers.

Grand Traverse county, Mich., has wears trousers. Not bloomers, underalthough made somewhat loose and flowing. There is nobody in Grand Traverse county who questions Mrs. Neal's capacity as a game warden. She handles a rifle like an expert, and although she cannot split a builet on Master Hubert Traher, assisted by a knife-blade at a hundred yards, she can bring down almost any sort of game that may cross her path. Think of that, ye women of high heels and embroidery. The Michigan Diana knows every inch of the territory she has to patrol. It is densely wooded, and there are many lakes which she will be obliged to traverse and guard against violaters of the game and fish

Just think of being in the height of a wrestle with a refractory trout 40 miles from the nearest railroad, and having a woman in trousers come up and arrest you for cruelty to fish. Mrs. Neal makes a trip over the entire county once a week. She rides over the country on horseback. She starts out in the orthodox way with both feet on the port side of the horse. There rumors, however, that when once beyond the municipal jurisdiction she adopts the clothes-pin style of navigation, as being better suited to a long, hard jaunt. On many of the lakes there are boats belonging to Mrs. Neal, which she keeps hidden in the underbrush until wanted. During May the Michigan game and fish wardens' department prosecuted 109 alleged violators of the law, and convicted 96, growing out of 149 complaints. It will be seen, therefore, that Mrs. Neal's position is no sinecure. Most of these cases were for violation of the fish laws, and a majority of them were accused by Mrs. Neal.—New York World.

"A thorough coward?" Royden asked, when she so abruptly paused.
"Oh, Mr. Keith," laughed Theodora, pleasantly, "you know what I mean. At least, you do not know, of course. Why should you be expected to know anything about old Myddelton's fam-But this is how it is. Old Mr. Myddelton, you must understand, had one brother and one sister, both a good leal younger than himself. The brother married a Miss Craven—quite a por-tionless girl—and the sister married very well. She did not agree with her brother as a young girl, and went out with a friend to India, where she married Sir Hervey Lawrence, a very rich old baronet of an excellent family. This marriage pleased her brother immense-

"Had neither brother nor sister any children?" "The only child of old Mr. Myddelton's brother," put in Mrs. Trent, considering, perhaps, that her daughter's genealogical powers had been taxed to the utmost, "was the miserable and abandoned Gabriel, of whom, of course, you have heard and read; we will put him out of the conversation at once, if you please. There was no other child, and Lady Lawrence had none at all so the remaining relations, or, rather, connections, are only the children of Sir Hervey Lawrence's brother and sister, and Miss Craven's brother and tion upon herself again. "Now see how plainly I will describe them to you. Sir Hervey's sister had two sons-my father and Hervey's father-and his brother had one daughter, Mrs. Haughton, of the Larches, near here. She and her husband died years ago, but the son, Mr. Haughton, is a solicitor in Kinbury, and Miss Haughton keeps his house. Well, then, on the other side"— Miss Trent illustrated her narrative by the action of her jeweled fingers, and Mr. Keith seemed ready to follow her "Miss Craven's brother and sister had each an only daughter. The brother's daughter is to be here tonight, and the sister's daughter is Phoebe Owen, a silly girl, who tries one's patience

"Yes, all orphans; but how funny it is," laughed Theodora, "to speak of Mr. and Miss Haughton as orphans! Why, he is almost a middle-aged man, and she is older. He is the guardian of Honore and Phoebe, who have lived at the Larches ever since they left

"Mr. Haughton is a very clever lawyer," interposed Mrs. Trent, languidly; but we do not visit, save just occasionally, to keep up appearances. They move in a different circle from ours.' "I don't believe they move at all, mamma," smiled Theodora; "they stagnate. I think, and Jane Haughton looks like a curiosity when she goes out any-

"After all that rigmarole, Mr. Keith," remarked Capt. Hervey, from his position on the rug, "do you feel ambitious of being one of the group to be photo-graphed in front of Abbotsmoor for Lady Lawrence's benefit? For the picture is to be sent to her ladyship as a delicate attention from her heirs.

"A rather incongruous addition to the family group," smiled Mr. Keith. "But I am bent upon having you among us," insisted Miss Trent. And, when she appealed to her mother, Mrs. Trent smiled assentingly, though even she could see how silly and inconsiderdrawing-room door was opened to ad-mit the girl who had been so long sauntering from the Larches to Deer-Theodora rose to meet her cousin but with such a very slow grace that the girl had come among them all before her hand was taken. Royden looked up to see this "child" whom Capt. Hervey was graciously instructing, and rose, prepared for his introduction. From that moment until he took his place opposite her at the dinner-table, he did not think of sitting

For the few minutes before the butler announced dinner, she chatted with no appearance of even seeing how her two cousins held themselves aloof from her, and with no mauvaise honte in the frank occasional glance she gave to Royden Keith. In vain he looked for the gaucherie; in vain he looked for a glimpse of the anxiety for Capt. Hervey's instruction; he only saw a young and beautiful girl, whose manners had a free and natural grace which was as far removed from Theodora's languid elegance as is the fight of a swallow in the air from the gliding of a swan upon the water. With curious intentness he watched her through these waiting minutes, and the study seemed a fresh one to this man who traveled over half the world, and studied the beauty of so many races: and who, though a little more than 30 years of age, had lived a wider, larger life than most of the gray-haired men he met.

Honore Craven rose when the servant announced the dinner, for which Capt. Trent had been anxiously waiting; and for the few moments that she stood there in the daylight, Royden's eyes were fixed upon her. She was a girl of apparently 18 or 19 years of age, slight and tall, with a figure rounded to the perfection of womanhood, yet possessing the supple grace and freedom of a child. Her dimpled arms and neck shone with a smooth and silky whiteness through her transparent dress. hair-rich, soft hair, of bright chestnut brown-was twisted into a coil high upon her head, and though no one could see how, the ends fell naturally into loose, rich curls-as they do when Honore lets it down at night-still, everyone could see the soft, natural wave, where it lay across her forehead, and was brushed from her smooth white temples. Her cy's were gray, long and beautifully shaped, ready in a instant to brighten to a sunny smile, and ready in an instant, too, to darken to a grave and tender sympathy. Her nose was small and straight; and her beauty to any smile without the flash brilliant eyes. All this he saw, yet he could not even have attempted a description of Honore Craven's face, because its rare and matchless beauty was a beauty not of form and tint alone.

and the sight brought a smile of satisfaction to her lips, and a thought which was compassionately pleasant.
"Poor child, she always feels de trop with Hervey and Theodora." Mr. Keith, too, had been watching the three figures in front; and, though no smile stirred his lips, there was a glance of keen amusement in his eyes, for Honore had refused Capt. Trent's arm, and was walking in her own way to the dining-room, with a pretty, quiet nonchalance which she did not attempt to hide or disguise. There were two feet at least of space between Capt.

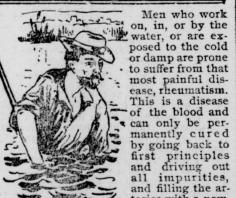

Hervey's unoccupied arm and the small, gloved hand of the girl; and the watcher behind would fain have seen whether Capt. Trent comprehended this behavior in the pupil who was so eager to be initiated by him into the mys-teries of "good form," and who knew nothing of "society" save what he kind-ly exhibited before her; but the back of Capt. Trent's fair head alone was visible, and that, at all events, was unruffied.

"My nephew offered you his arm, Honore," remarked Mrs. Trent, as she motioned the girl to the solitary seat on her left hand; "you should have taken it, my dear."

"Should I?" questioned Honore. "You will be tired presently of telling me what I should do or leave undone, won't you Mrs. Trent?"

won't you, Mrs. Trent?"
"Not if you try to learn," was the benignant reply. "Theodora and I will be patient with you to the end, and Capt. Hervey is really anxious to see you study appearances. His eye, of course, is offended by awkwardness, but otherwise he is, I'm sure, pleased to see you always." "Hervey," the girl said, turning her eyes fully upon her cousin, as he took his seat at the foot of the table, "when shall I cease to offend your eyes, so that that delightful time may come when you will be pleased to see me always?" by going back to first principles by going back to first principles and driving out all impurities, and filling the arteries with a new rich, red, healthy life-stream. This is the rea son why Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is an unfailing cure for that disease. It is the greatest of all blood medicines. It creates a keen and hearty appetite. It cures all disorders of the digestion and makes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food perfect. It invigorates the liver and tones the nerves. It is the greatest of all known blood-makers and blood-purifiers. It builds firm, healthy flesh, but does not make corpulent people more corpulent. Unlike cod liver oil, it does not make flabby flesh, but tears down the unhealthy tissues that constitute corpulency, carries off and excretes them, and replaces them with the solid, muscular tissues of health. It drives all impurities, disease germs and acids from the blood. In Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser many sufferers from rheumatism, whose cases were considered hopeless, tell the story of their recovery under this wonderful medicine. Their names, addresses and photographs are given by their own request, and anyone who wishes to do so may write them. Good druggists sell the "Golden Medical Discovery."

the assessment fixed for the year at $80,000. Engineer Graydon estimated the cost of construction of the road at $6,292 a mile, with $13,000 for bridges, exclusive of $3,000 half-cost of Kensington bridge at present in the county, making a total of $145,130. Mr. Ivey said the bridge estimate was not far out. It was finally decided to fix the assessment at $80,000, with $50,000 for cars, the understanding being that there should not be an appeal taken to a higher court except on the question of principle. The agreement reached means a reduction in the original assessment of $100,600.
