UNIONVILLE FAIR. FRONT OF YONGE, Sept. 5th, 91 To The Editor.

Sir. - I met in various parts of the country, reports apparently industriously circulated to the effect that the business men of Brockville have this year subscribed large sums to other local fairs, with a view to creating dissensions in Unionville fair and so finally to demolish that useful institution. Also, that the managers of the Unionville fair had for the past two or three years, largely discounted the amount of premiums advertised to be paid to exhibitors. Are these reports true? Such statements are to me transparently absurd and the concentration of meanness and ignorance - a covert attempt to revive ill feeling that I had hoped had died out. I am in the dark respecting the reports and write with the hope of eliciting light.

A LOVER OF TRUTH. In reply to our correspondent, who is one who has always taken a deep interest in the success of the Unionville fair, we would say that the people of Brockville have always subscribed largely to the success of the Unionville fair. For over twenty years the editor of the Reporter has been one of those appointed to canvass for special prizes, and in all that time he has met with the kindest treatment and well wishes for the Unionville fair.

At the time of the revision of the prize list this year the question of obtaining special prizes came up, and the general feeling among the members of the board, was, not to make any extra effort to obtain a donation from the people of Brockville this year, and all the special prizes obtained that appear in our prize list were obtained in less than six days and were valued at $1,000. With the prizes put forth by other societies, and the means or arguments used to obtain special prizes, we have nothing to do.

Our reply to the second question is that we can give the report an emphatic denial. When the bad weather of 1889 left the society with a deficit of over $600, a large number of the members voluntarily offered to allow their prizes to be discounted one third, but at a meeting of the board, held a few days after the fair, it was unanimously decided to pay every dollar of premiums awarded, less the usual 10 per cent discount, and every dollar was paid except in one solitary instance, where an exhibitor from the vicinity of Lym absolutely refused to accept the money, and it was consequently placed among the assets.

The reputation of the Unionville fair for fair dealing with exhibitors or visitors is too well established to be injured by any such reports as the above except with those whose natural or pecuniary interests lead them to swallow the idle chaff blown off by mischief makers. It is a well known fact that the Unionville association prize list offers nearly twice the number of prizes and from one half to two-thirds larger prizes than any other fair in Central Canada, and after over twenty one years close study of the fair question we are firmly convinced that no inducement of 10 per cent will equal a large list and larger prizes.

Brockville Cheese Board. Special Reporter. ASHWORTH HALL, Sept. 8, 1891.

We had the usual large attendance of gentlemen interested in the sale of this important line of merchandise. The market to-day was not what the salesmen had hoped to have. They had been looking forward to a ten cent market for fine goods. When Mr. Thompson, of Prescott, secured the choice of all goods chalked on bulletin board for 9 1/2c, there was a decided manifestation of disappointment in the camp. The buyers had orders but on much lower prices than those paid on previous week. They did not try very hard to get the goods and would not budge from first price made. 9 1/2c was the high and low price for white or colored goods.

The offerings were 3,151 white, 2,280 colored, a total of 5,431. Of the sales made, Mr. Derbyshire secured 1,315, McDougall, 355, Thompson, 390.

The special Liverpool cable reported cheese at 46 shillings, representing a very steady market in the old country.

It was reported that nearly all the offerings of the board were sold out after the rooms were closed.

Beautiful weather for harvesting, and the farmer smelt with a wide smile as he chucks in the heavy sheaves of golden grain into his barn to await the thrasher.
