To The Game's End.

Let's play it out—this little game called Life. Where we are signed up for so brief a spell; Not just to win and the rule and strife; Or where we shall and pay ourselves well; Not just to conquer—where some one must lose.

Or reach the goal, whatever be the cost; For there are other—better ways to choose; 'Tis hush in the end the battle will be lost.

Let's play it out as if it were a sport; Wherein the game is better than the goal; And never mind the "detailed score's" report Of errors made, if each with doubtful soul, In a stick it cut until the day is done.

Not wasting fairness for success nor fame; So when the battle has been fought we'll say: They may at least say: "Well, he played the game."

Let's play it out—this little game called Work; Or Waste your hours on what you can't do; And play as one who aims to win or lose; For the "detailed" may never come again.

Let's play it out—this little game called Love; For the heart is the seat of our noblest life; And the soul is the seat of our noblest strife; For the heart is the seat of our noblest life.

God's Sorrow.

(By William H. Hasty)

There was a dozen or more of them, and they gathered, as they did once a week, at the home of Mrs. Walters, to visit and to sew. The mothers of Belltown were busy women, and had to take their pleasure as they worked.

They had talked brightly, disconnectedly, of housekeeping problems—as women always have and always will—and should. Then they talked of children; of clothes too soon worn out of habits and traits, of flashes of wit and outbreaks of temper,—and of the neighbor's bad children next door.

Some one mentioned an epidemic of scarlet fever in a neighboring town; and the talk grew serious, as it always does when mothers discuss diphtheria and fevers. And then, and then, they spoke of the children that were gone.

There was a broken sob in a corner of the room, and the talk instantly hushed, and the women looked at each other guiltily. It was so stupid not to have thought of her.

Mrs. Collins' sewing fell on the floor, her face was buried in her arms. It had been nearly a year since her youngest child had died; but, as all Belltown knew, she still grieved constantly. Any mention of death was like to send her into a paroxysm of grief; a touching passage in the sermon often made her flee the church; and at home she often wept for hours at a time.

When Mrs. Collins gained control and picked up her work, Mrs. Walters was the first to speak.

"I believe I will tell you a story," she said, daintily stitching a bit of fine needlework—destined, as was most of her work, to be given to someone.

"Do," urged the other women, breathily. Mrs. Walters talked little, but said much, and her unerring tact made her always say the right thing. She was the best loved woman in the community. Her hair was almost gray, but her eyes were bright; and to look into her face made one think of happy, generous things. Her husband was a judge; her oldest son an attorney general of the state; another son was winning renown as a surgeon; the youngest son was studying for the ministry, and Elsie, the unmarried daughter, the youngest of the family, was the pride of Belltown.

"I suppose not many of you know that I have a child that is dead?"

"They looked at her in great surprise—none of them knew. They had known Mrs. Walters fifteen years, but had never heard her mention a child that was dead."

"No," they said. And many of them laid down their sewing and rested their hands on their laps, while they looked steadily into the serene, smiling face.

"I'd have thought," a woman marked with care said half to herself, "you'd never had any trouble in your life."

"Yes," said Mrs. Walters, reflectively. "Mary would be twenty-two now; she was two years younger than Elsie. She was nearly four when she died."

They looked at her with a kind of awe. She was so calm, so serene, so smiling. They had never seen her so sad before. They had never seen her so thoughtful. They had never seen her so wise. They had never seen her so kind. They had never seen her so gentle. They had never seen her so strong. They had never seen her so brave. They had never seen her so true. They had never seen her so honest. They had never seen her so pure. They had never seen her so good. They had never seen her so beautiful. They had never seen her so noble. THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., FEB. 21, 1911.

A valued correspondent complains that items sent to THE ACADIAN are frequently republished in other country papers without due credit being given, and considers this sort of journalism very unfair both to the paper and correspondent. We think so too, and regret very much that such a state of affairs obtains, but know of no way to protect ourselves and so have to put up with it.

As the champions of the Western Nova Scotia Hockey League and winners of the Herald's Trophy, the Wolfville Hockey team is receiving well deserved congratulations. Ten successive victories is a record that has not often been equalled, and prove that Wolfville has one of the best amateur teams in the lower provinces. In all the games the Wolfville boys have acquitted themselves in a manner highly commendable, and have had many flattering references handed out to them by the press. THE ACADIAN is very glad to record their success.

News of the death of Joseph S. Shelburne, came as a shock to all who knew him. He was born in Pictou in 1853 and came first to Shelburne when a young man twenty-three years of age, as principal of the school. After teaching for a time he completed his studies and returned to practice his profession in 1883. Since that time he has been the leading physician of the town. He was a public spirited man and took a deep interest in educational affairs. To Dr. Morton more than to any man is Shelburne indebted for its fine Academy. In his death the Presbyterian church loses one of its best members and most staunch supporters. He leaves a widow, one son and one daughter. Dr. Morton, the veteran Presbyterian missionary of Trinidad, is the only surviving brother.

Baby's Own Tablets for all Babies.

Every mother of young children should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. No other medicine has relieved so many little ones of the ailments that afflict them as have Baby's Own Tablets—no other medicine can be given to baby with that absolute sureness of safety as can these Tablets. The mother has the guarantee of a Government analyst that they do not contain a particle of those harmful drugs that make those so called "soothing" stuffs so dangerous to the life of the little ones. The Tablets have never failed to be beneficial. Concerning them Mrs. Jno. A. Albert, Carquet, N. B. writes:—I am happy to state that I have used Baby's Own Tablets for constipation for my two children with great satisfaction. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Brown Tail Moth.

Since January 1st, as previously announced in our columns, two parties of inspectors have been visiting the areas of Nova Scotia supposed to be infested by the Brown Tail Moth. One of these parties commenced at Windsor and has gone over nearly all the country between Windsor and Berwick. The other party commenced at Yarmouth and is now working in the vicinity of Weymouth. The first party, working in the eastern part of the fruit valley, have up to date encountered a single Brown Tail Moth nest, but the second party, working in the western part of the province, have come across a most serious infestation of this insect. In Yarmouth county they found scattered nests in various parts and there must be quite a few more nests, which they could easily fall to see, that yet remain either to be destroyed or to serve as a source of further infestation. At Weymouth, in Digby county, this party last week destroyed something over 1400 nests of the Brown Tail Moth, which is equal to the total number of nests discovered by all parties during the season of 1910. It may be that the infestation is confined to the small area in the vicinity of Weymouth and Weymouth Bridge, but, if subsequent investigation shows the insect to have established itself in equally large numbers elsewhere in Digby county, the situation must be regarded as extremely alarming.

Citizens in Nova Scotia, and more especially those living in Yarmouth, Digby and Annapolis counties, are urged to make most careful search of their own properties, as well as of trees by the roadside, and to notify the Departments of Agriculture at Ottawa or Trent of any strange deposits of eggs, nests or other things which they might take for Brown Tail Moth nests. At the present time the Brown Tail Moth is in the caterpillar stage. The caterpillars are housed in a nest constructed usually by two leaves surrounded by a sort of web. This nest will generally be found on the new growth of the tree, no doubt being placed there owing to the instinct of the female moth to deposit her eggs where the young caterpillars can get at the choicest and tenderest growth on the tree.

A number of instances of sickness from the Brown Tail Moth rash are reported in the vicinity of Weymouth. This is one of the most serious phases of the Brown Tail Moth invasion, and it is hoped will lead to more strenuous efforts than ever on the part of both the citizens generally and the officials to carefully search for and destroy the progeny of the Brown Tail Moth.

OUR BIRTHRIGHT.
The existence of Canada depends upon the maintenance of our economic communion of east and west, and we cannot exist if we are to be four countries at the same time. If Nova Scotia is to be a baryard for Boston, if middle Canada is to be simply a part of Buffalo and Pittsburgh, if the Prairie Provinces are to be an extension of Minnesota, and British Columbia but the timber limit of Seattle—then it is all over with Canada.

We have spent $2,000,000,000 in building railroads in utmost defiance of geography. Instead of depositing our wheat at Chicago, we have our own center for our wheat. Our Lake shipping has developed. We spent our money upon Canada. We have built great elevators and wheat ports. Fort William and Port Arthur rose on the rock shore of Lake Superior. Behind the very barrier that the Americans raised forty-five years ago we have worked with industry on our own nation building plan.

We have established a manufacturing system, built with British and Canadian money, managed with Canadian brains. Sending goods east and west it has strengthened our lines of transportation.

Our manufactured products have grown from $20,000,000 to $300,000,000. We have more than a million square miles of forest. We have, at the lowest estimate, 25,000,000 horse power of water for development.

Why not use our own resources for ourselves? Why not go on just as we have been doing? We surely are in sight of success. We are not dependent upon Americans for anything; our own self reliance and national life is assured; and instead of Yankee-doodle lets stick to our Rule Britannia and our old flag.

The Yankees want our natural resources, they say. The ravenous maw of the American Trusts are wide open, their restless eyes are upon our fields. They want the big lumbering pine woods of British Columbia, they want the pulpwood forests of the eastern provinces. They want to get at the wheat grown in our western provinces, so as to pour it into the hopper of mills upon their side of the line. Anything we have they want. Our great natural heritage, that should be preserved for our children, is to be handed over to the Americans, because a couple of table old men left Ottawa and went over to the United States, and made a bargain to that effect. Some people will smile and chuckle because they themselves, can sell a bag of potatoes in the Boston market. The bargain is all made for the sale of our birthright.

The business men in the big cities of Canada are just beginning to wake up, and today the solid business sense of all Canada is opposed to the Tait-Fielding bargain. The Board of Trade of Montreal passed a most vigorous protest against the bill, and Toronto, through its Board of Trade, was equally outspoken; and a life long liberal, Sir Edmund Walker, probably the ablest banker in Canada, moved a resolution deprecating in the strongest language the proposal. This resolution was carried by a vote of 300 to 13, and a strong statement in protest has been published by eighteen of the leading liberals of Toronto, bankers, financiers, merchants and manufacturers. And when the big deputation of the business men of Canada, of all shades of employment and position, made known their wants and fears, Mr. Fielding was candid enough to tell them that he didn't think they knew what they were talking about. Imagine this man, a printer by trade, editor of a little paper in the city of Halifax, knowing more of the economic wants of the several and separate bodies of interests in Canada

FARMERS AND RECIPROCITY

The Canadian Century of Montreal believing that Reciprocity with the United States would imperil the future of Canada and that it would be specially disadvantageous to Canadian farmers, wishes to place its view of the question before the whole farming community and has arranged for a series of articles in newspapers of both political parties.

The first article follows and others will be published from week to week.

The Door Wide Open.

(From The Canadian Century, Feb. 18)
If the reciprocity compact merely opened the door of the Canadian food market to American farmers it would be very injurious to thousands of Canadian farmers. It costs no more to transport American farm products to Canadian towns and cities than it does to transport Canadian farm products to the cities of the United States, and the American farmers have the advantage of an earlier season. Moreover there are at least ten times as many farmers in the United States as there are in Canada, and so ten American farmers will get entrance to the markets of Canada for one Canadian farmer who gets entrance into the markets of the United States. That the American farmers will take advantage of the open door there can be no doubt. Even with a tariff wall against them they have succeeded in selling immense quantities of farm products in Canada, more so than Canadian farmers have been able to sell in the United States. With reciprocity in farm products the ten American farmers will crowd out the one Canadian farmer pretty close in his own market.

But this is not all that the Canadian farmer has to face under the reciprocity compact. Owing to favoured nation treaties, any tariff advantages granted by Canada to the United States must also apply to the following countries: Argentine Republic, Austria-Hungary, Bolivia, Columbia, Denmark, Japan, Norway, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Venezuela.

Then it is provided that the advantages granted to the United States shall extend to the United Kingdom and the several British colonies. This will bring about free entrance of farm products from those great food exporting colonies, Australia and New Zealand.

In fact Canadian farmers will have to compete in their own home market with farm products from all the great food producing countries of the world.

Adding To The Uncertainty.

There is always some uncertainty about farming. The farmer never knows when he puts seed in the ground what the weather conditions will be. There may be frost or hail or drought or too much rain.

Added to all these uncertainties due to Nature's variations there is the uncertainty regarding the prices which will prevail when the crop is harvested. How many acres should be devoted to one crop and how many to another depends upon a guess as to what demand there will be for the different agricultural products at the time of harvesting and what prices will prevail. What is true of farm crops is also true of live stock. It is comparatively easy for the farmer to study the conditions of the home market, but when he has to compete with those of foreign countries, it is much more difficult to determine what the future will be. It is now proposed to add to the uncertainty of Canadian farming, imported farm products from the United States, the Argentine Republic, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Australia, New Zealand and a number of other countries coming into Canada without payment of any duties well to a considerable extent displace Canadian farm products in the home market as a result of the reciprocity compact.

To make up for losses in the home market the Canadian farmer will have to export to the United States, and to do so he must have a market for his surplus. In growing seed, raising stock, in growing vegetables and fruit he will always have to consider what is most likely to satisfy American demands. And after he has made his arrangements, while his crops are still unharvested and the livestock, which he is raising specially to suit the American market, is still growing, the United States Congress may suddenly decide to shut out Canadian farm products of all kinds. Remember the Reciprocity Compact is not a treaty. It may be ended at will by the United States Congress or the Canadian Parliament. It is well that we are not tied down to a permanent arrangement. Even the Free Trade Farmers' Convention in Ottawa on December 15 and 16, 1910, recommended that a permanent treaty should not be made, but that any understanding arrived at should be put into effect by current legislation. All classes of the community were of the same opinion in this regard and the Government could not have defied the unanimous sentiment of the community. So when we point out that either the United States Congress or the Canadian Parliament is at liberty to end the arrangement at short notice we are not blaming the Government in general, including both farmers and city people, who find the arrangement so unsatisfactory that they will be thankful Parliament has the power to terminate it, but if this forecast should prove wrong there will always overhang the cloud of uncertainty regarding the attitude of the United States Congress.

Tiger will always be strong influence of work in the United States that many cause Congress to alter the tariff. American farmers may be dissatisfied or American manufacturers may think they are not getting enough out of the agreement and demand better terms. Mr. Tait has made no secret of his expectations that the United States is to get greater concessions later on. If the United States Congress reduces the duties under such conditions with what feelings of uncertainty will the Canadian farmer plan his work for a year ahead.

Premier of Ontario, Hugh Hain, a director of the Globe newspaper and a large wholesale merchant of Toronto, and hundreds of other business men of the country, are out publicly against the agreement made by Fielding and Tait. Sir Edmund Walker says that the most deadly thing that ever could have been invented to interfere with the assimilation of the different new peoples that are coming into Canada, is the proposed reciprocity agreement.

It is now conceded that the Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, is the only force that can prevent the going through of this lamentable blunder, and there are many Canadians that are hoping, even at the eleventh hour, that he will save the country from Tait and Fielding.

Wolfville Wins Trophy.

In the presence of over one thousand spectators, the Swastikas of Windsor met their Waterloo on Tuesday night, being defeated by Wolfville by the score of 9-3. This makes Wolfville the undefeated champions of the Western Nova Scotia Hockey League for 1911. The game was a good exhibition of hockey, but was rather slow towards the end. J. Smith and Saxton played the best game for Windsor. It would be hard to pick the best player in the home team, as they all played an excellent game, especially in combination.

Referee Daniels started the game at five minutes past nine. From the face-off the play went into Windsor's territory. Soon, however, the visitors broke away and Wolfville's goal was bombarded for some time. Windsor scored the first goal in five minutes. After this the play was mostly in Wolfville's territory and Windsor scored again. The home boys then woke up and carried the puck into the visitors' territory. It was not destined to stay there long, however, and it went to the other end of the ice. Wolfville got away on a combination rush and Spicer scored No. 1 for the home team. From the puck off Eagles passed back to Spicer who carried it up the ice, passed to Eaton and he in turn passed to Spicer and the score stood 2-2. Spicer and L. Smith got into a dispute and were given two minutes each. Soon after this Eaton was given one minute. Play remained in centre ice and Spicer, coming on again, placed the rubber behind Ward. Eagles added another to the score and things looked more hopeful for Wolfville. Play was carried into Wolfville's territory and Curry was given a rest. Eagles again carried the net. The half ended with the score 5-2 in favor of the home team.

In the second half the puck was carried into the visitors' territory and Eagles scored in three minutes. L. Smith was sent to the 'cooler.' Eaton rushed up the ice and scored, but the whistle had blown. Play went to Wolfville's end for a short time, but was carried back and Spicer found the net. J. Smith was given a rest. Play was in Windsor's territory till J. Smith coming back relieved it. After this play lagged for a few minutes. The puck was carried into Wolfville's territory and J. Smith scored the visitors' last goal. Play stayed in Wolfville's end. Christie rushed and passed to Eaton who fooled Ward and the score stood 3-3. In a few minutes Spicer scored again. After this long shots were indulged in, neither side scoring, and the game ended 9-3.

The teams lined up as follows: Windsor: Goal Wolfville; Point W. Spicer; Cover Point C. Webster; Rover H. Fraser; Centre R. Spicer; Left Wing B. Eagles; Right Wing G. Christie; L. Eaton (Capt.). At the close of the game Mayor Harvey presented the cup to the Wolfville team on the ice, after which he led the spectators in three cheers for the Wolfville boys.

Rev. R. F. Dixon Lectures at Windsor.

A most interesting lecture was given before Quacilian Society on Monday evening, Feb. 20th, by Rev. R. F. Dixon, rector of Horton, on 'Some English Poets.' The President of the Society, S. Jeffery, Esq., B. A., presided, and a large audience filled Commons' Hall.

In introducing the speaker, Mr. Jeffery said that it was the hope of the Society to have a course of public lectures during the winter, and that Mr. Dixon's well known literary attainments had marked him out in no prominent a manner, that in securing him to deliver the first lecture Quacilian was outlining to the general public the standard of excellence that was to mark the Course. He touched on the fact that Mr. Dixon had recently lectured before Acadia University.

Mr. Dixon's treatment of his subject was masterly, showing breadth of thought, originality of idea, and closeness of study. He was listened to with rapt attention as he delivered his learned and highly entertaining lecture. He began by saying that England was remarkably rich in poets, and that, without doubt, the one fact was in a certain degree responsible for the fact. That considering the generally supposed characteristics of the English people as a race, the fact that they had produced at all times and in all ages so many great poets was peculiar. This fact could no doubt be taken as indicative of the moral parity of the nation. Coming to the main portion of his address, Mr. Dixon said that English poetry was characterized by five distinct marks—1st, Pure Morality; and, Love of Nature; 2nd, Sensuous; 3rd, Straightforwardness; 4th, Diversity.

A poet in the true sense was both an artist and a teacher. Art occupies a high place in the poet's equipment, but a poet is first and foremost a prophet, and second a teacher. In short, a poet is a man with the hand of an artist and the soul of a prophet, Milton, the greatest of modern English poets, was wonderful for the sustained grandeur of his lines; Wordsworth, the poet of nature, was less of an artist than either Milton or Lord Tennyson. Tennyson, possessing as he did the true artist's capacity for wonderful harmony, 'did everything he tried to do surpassingly well.'

Shelley, Mr. Dixon described as the 'poet's poet,' but thought his poetry too fragile to ever appeal to the vast mass of English humanity. Edgar Allan Poe he characterized as the most original genius America had ever produced. 'Kipling,' said Mr. Dixon, 'is our greatest living poet.' It is in his poems that the great diversity, which was one of the five marks of English poetry, is the most exemplified. His place in literature is assured.

The Old and New Testament.

Urbetina, of Casala, said: 'There is one miracle God can't do—make two contradictory things, both true.'

Now I understand from the preaching I bear that we are to believe that the book called the 'Bible' is ALL the 'word of God,' and ALIKE to be believed and followed and obeyed, 'from Genesis to Revelation.'

This, to me, is an impossibility, because, as I read it, it is flatly contradictory. I do not now allude to 'sectarian contradictions.' I pay little attention to them. I allude to the contradictions between the Old and New Testaments, or Moses and Jesus Christ.

I will specify some of these contradictions. The O. T. teaches a 'union of church and state.' Jesus says, 'My kingdom is not of this world,' and gives a reason for keeping it separate, that his servants may not fight—'use the sword.'

The O. T. supports 'slavery'—the 'buying and selling of our fellows.' Jesus does not and Christendom has decided against it, except Protestants who were divided until recently.

The O. T. teaches the persecution of heretics, and that unto death. Jesus does not in the N. T., though professed Christians did so until recently.

The O. T. permits unlimited 'sins of the tongue.' Jesus in the N. T. prohibits it, though many Protestants justify it even yet.

The O. T. allows polygamy. The N. T. and Christendom prohibit it, even those who allow divorce.

The O. T. teaches to use the 'sword' to destroy and conquer our neighbors, and that in a barbarous and brutal manner. The N. T. nowhere sanctions its use. Jesus said, 'he who uses it shall perish with it.'

The O. T. exalts wealth and possessions, the N. T. teaches the exact contrary, makes the possession of wealth an evil and danger, if not a barrier to the Kingdom of God.

The O. T. teaches not only to hate our enemies and the 'wicked,' but to pray that their children and their posterity may be vegetables in this world, and eternally damned in the next. The N. T. teaches to love and pray for the salvation of all men, especially the wicked. Several Protestant and Christian churches use these prayers every Sabbath day now!

These are some of the, to me, incomparabilities and irreconcilable things between the Old and New Testaments. And yet we are told to make no distinction, but follow both and obey the Word of the Lord. I confess my inability to obey such, as a superficial and contradictory teaching.

Why, if I follow 'Moses' I will go out every second and schism of Christianity, and find myself in the penitentiary—as in polygamy, slavery, etc. These must be something wrong somewhere! Will some one please enlighten us, for I am not alone in this state of contradictions. And all so tell us where and how we got the Bible? I have never heard it explained. Where was it before the Protestant Reformation? How do we know it is the 'Word of God?'

Women Have Backache. Many women have kidney disease and do not know it, because they attribute backache to other causes. The use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills makes short work of backache and prevents serious trouble from deranged kidneys.

When a fellow removes the cigars from his vest pocket before embracing her she may be justified in her suspicions that she isn't the only girl he has ever loved.

Pale, Anaemic Girls.

The blood, and the vitality, are the two things that make a girl so lovely. Pale, anaemic girls, however, are the result of using Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills.

Thin-haired Man—What! A shilling for cutting my hair? That's outrageous.

Barber—But, my dear sir, the hairs on your head are so far apart that I have to cut each one by itself.

'Why do you weep over the sorrows of people in whom you have no interest when you go to the theater?' asked the man.

'I don't know,' replied the woman.

There is a small town in Western Florida which is very dry. In it lives a man noted for his assistance at revivals in bringing forward the mourners. One day he anxiously inquired at the express office for a box of books and seemed greatly disappointed when told it had not arrived.

The Relative View of Cows.

If a cow giving 175 pounds of butter in a year is worth $60, how much is a cow worth that gives 350 pounds of butter a year? Suppose that butter will average 25 cents the year round, and that the feed is worth $40 for the year. The first cow would give a return of $43.75, less $40 for feed, leaving a profit of $3.75 counting that the milk, calf and manure pays for the labor. The second cow would give a return of $87.50 for butter and would give at least 4,000 lbs. more of milk, which at 20 cents per hundred pounds, and it is worth more, but let that go. The return would be $95.50 less $50 for feed or a profit of $45.50 on the same basis as the other cow makes a profit of $3.75. It would take practically 15 1/2 pound cows to make as much profit as the one 350 pound cow. $3.75 is 6.2 percent of $60, and $45.50 is 76.2 percent of $60. On the basis of percentage income, when the 175-pound cow is worth $60, the 350-pound cow is worth $95.50. The keeping of cows should be looked at from the business standpoint. The poor cow is dear at any price but the good cow is usually not cited at her real value.

The only effective means of finding out which cows are giving a profit is to have the milk weighed and tested.

Reason Enthroned.

Because meats are so tasty they are consumed in great excess. This leads to stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation. Revise your diet, let reason and not a pampered appetite control. Then take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be well again. Try it. For sale at Rand's Drug Store. Samples free.

The King's Horses.

A story is told of a purse-prond nobleman who was travelling through Sweden. In that country the people do not have quite as much respect for the titled aristocracy as in some other localities.

One day the nobleman came rolling up to the country tavern, and as he stopped his carriage he called out in an imperious tone: 'Horses, land-lord! horses at once!'

'I am very much pained to inform you that you will have to wait over an hour before fresh horses can be brought up,' replied the landlord calmly.

'How!' violently exclaimed the nobleman. 'This to me! My man, I demand horses immediately!'

Then observing the fresh, sleek-looking ones which were being led up to another carriage, he continued: 'For whom are those horses?'

'They were ordered for this gentleman,' replied the landlord, pointing to a tall, slim gentleman a few paces distant.

'I say, my man,' called out the nobleman, 'you will let me have those horses, if I pay you a liberal bonus!'

'No,' answered the slim man, 'I intend to use them myself.'

'Perhaps you are not aware who I am,' roared the now thoroughly agitated nobleman. 'I am, sir, Field Marshal Baron George Sparré, the last and only one of my race.'

'I am very glad to hear that,' said the slim man, stepping into his carriage. 'It would be a terrible thing to think that there might be more of you.'

The slim man was the King of Sweden.

A few minutes' delay in treating some cases of rheum, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor, often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. For sale by Rand's Drug Store.

Raisin Cheese.

To every pound of raisins allow half a pound of loaf sugar, and pounded cinnamon and cloves to taste. Stone the raisins and put them into a stewpan with the sugar, cinnamon and cloves, and let them boil for one and a half hours, stirring all the time. Then let it cool and pour into glass jars. This will keep for some time if kept in a dry place.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which, to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by Rand's Drug Store.

'I tell you I must have some money!' roared the King of Maritans, who was in sore financial straits. Somebody will have to cough up.'

Children's Scalp Sores are Healed by Zam-Buk.

Mothers are well aware how frequently children contract scalp sores, ringworm, etc. at school. Some little sufferer is sent to school with a sore of this nature. At play—the children change caps, and right there the infection is spread—the damage done.

Some children are particularly liable to scalp sores, etc., and often these break out with annoying frequency. Such a case was that of the daughter of Mrs. Albert Gadwick, of 485 Amherst St., Montreal. Mrs. Gadwick says: 'My little three year old daughter suffered frequently from scalp disease, and try as we would, we could not rid the little one of this. We tried everything we could think of, but failed to effect a cure, until we were advised to try Zam-Buk. This balm seemed entirely different to anything we had ever tried before, and from first applying it there was a marked improvement. The sores became less inflamed and less irritable. After a few days, they ceased to trouble the child, and in less than a fortnight from first commencing with Zam-Buk they were completely healed. In view of these facts I feel it my duty to let mothers know how beneficial Zam-Buk is.'

There is no doubt that for scalp sores, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, cold cracks, chapped hands, frost bite and similar sores, Zam-Buk is absolutely without equal. It is just as good for piles, varicose sores, poison ed wounds, cuts, burns and scalds. Rubbed well in over the affected part, it cures rheumatism, neuralgia, etc., etc. and rubbed into the chest it relieves the tightness and feeling of a marked due to contracting a bad cold. All druggists and stores sell at 5c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse imitations.

Minor is a luxury to a millionaire, but a cold necessity to a poor man.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Camifton, Ont.—'I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was niggers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die. I wrote to you, and you advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life.—Mrs. LUCY H. HARR, Camifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pain, backache, bearing-down feeling, dizziness, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

An Old-Told Tale.

It was a dark night in winter. The rain fell thick and fast—the cold was intense. A young girl fled along one of the wet streets of the dreary city. She had only a thin shawl round her head and shoulders to protect her from the cold. She was very pale and frightened looking, and, no wonder, for she had just come from one of the 'palaces' which here and there shed their glare on the dismal town. She never once stopped in her rapid flight till she reached the next palace; this she entered also, but was out again in a moment. On she went through three or four, emerging at last from one more brilliant and noisy than the rest, half dragging, half supporting a young man, a year or two older than herself, who seemed quite unable to guide his own steps.

'Oh, try and walk, George,' she cried through her tears. 'You must come home. Father has fallen off the top of the new houses, and is sore hurt and mangled in a terrible state. Half covered with this information, she had just left, giving no hope of his ever again awaking to conscious life. His poor wife bent over the form of her husband, her tears falling fast on his cold head.

Twenty five years before, Martha Taylor had been a young good looking girl. She had married against the wishes of all her friends, for even then she knew her husband's fatal habit. For some years after their marriage her influence kept him right, but gradually old companions and old habits had resumed their sway, and all her efforts had only enabled her to keep a house over their heads.

To add to her sorrow, her boy—her only son—the child of many prayers—for she was a good woman—had lately become his father's companion in the evenings, and was, alas, very often in the sad state in which his wife found him that night. He was quite himself now, and much shocked by the father's fearful fate.

The night passed slowly and sorrowfully to the three watchers in that wretched home—it was a night none of them ever forgot.

By the side of his dying father, George made a solemn vow never again to touch or taste what had been the cause of all their grief and trouble, but as far as he could do to his mother's stay and comfort, a vow which he kept to the end of his life.

The grey morning broke over the city and found the widow and orphan kneeling by the side of their dead—'Good Templar's Watchword.'
