As the language changes and grows, dictionaries must change and grow with it. Dictionaries made a few years ago, even with frequent revisions, fail to meet the needs of to-day. It requires rebuilding to give the proper balance between the words and definitions in use to-day and those of yesterday. Our modern Dictionary is not called "Webster's" because the dictionary can claim to be more useful at the present time than the death of Webster in the year 1843 to render the use of his name as author of it a misnomer.

IN THE TOILS;

But Happiness Comes at Last.

CHAPTER IX.
SISTERS BY ADOPTION.

"But you wondered all the same," says Katrine, "and why should you not?"

"What right have I to wonder or inquire!" says Olive, with tremulous eagerness. "It is you who have saved me, who have succored me, all unknown and friendless, that have the right to be curious. If—if I could tell you but—"

"But you cannot," Katrine Haldine interrupts her softly. "We do not want to know more than we know, and your face tells us, dear. We know what suffering means—there is a bond between us—a bond," she repeats, dreamily looking into the fire; "I felt it as I leaned over you while you lay unconscious on my bed upstairs. I don't think we had ever met before, had we?" she asks, with a smile.

Olive shakes her head.

"No," she replies; "I wish that we had."

"So do I, dear," responds Katrine warmly. "See, now, how fond of each other we have grown," she adds, rising and putting her arm round Olive's neck, with a smile. "We are like sweethearts, taking everything for granted, and content only to love and be loved."

Olive looks up and draws her white, shapely hand to her lips.

"I do love you," she says, "and you are the only one I have ever loved."

At this singular speech, Katrine looks slightly puzzled, then very grave, and then very pitiful.

"My poor child!" she says; "how hard your life must have been!"

"Hard and strange," murmurs Olive, and her face shadows over.

Katrine Haldine sees it instantly, and her tone changes.

"Don't think of it," she says, stroking her soft, silken hair. "It is all past; let us bury it. We have buried it," she says emphatically. "We have all our dead pasts to put under ground. I could take you to a mound that covers mine, dear. Let us bury yours. See what a change there is in you already, excepting when that gray grim shadow comes over your pretty face—well, it is pretty, and truth is truth. You are no more like the poor, little girl we found out in the cold than—I am like Bathsheba."

"Whom have I to thank?" murmurs Olive, looking up.

"Your good constitution and youth—glorious, magical youth!" replies Katrine, stooping and kissing her.

"Yes, my dear. I am no witch, but I predict a long life of happiness for yet, notwithstanding it has begun so gloomily."

"You, who have come to my help, must show me how to deserve it," Olive says earnestly. "I have been thinking of the future, dear Katrine. It is impossible that—I can trespass on your goodness—that I can drift into that awful thing, a helpless burden upon the good nature and charity of others, even if those others are such as you. There is a future before me, and I must win it. Tell me what I ought to do? I have no friend in the world excepting yourself."

"No tie," asks Katrine gently.

Olive crimson.

"No tie," she answers sadly, with averted eyes. "There is only one thing I can do: I can work—"

"At what?"

"With my needle," answers Olive. Katrine smiles sadly.

"My poor child!" she says sympathizingly.

Olive smiles bravely.

"Indeed I can," she says. "I used—"

She stops.

Katrine takes up one of the hands that were clasped together, and, working nervously, and looks at it; then she puts it, and keeps it within her own, pressing it encouragingly.

"Don't say anything more about the future to-night," she says gently; "let us enjoy the present. Here is the tea."

A servant entered with the tea tray, lit the lamp, and drew the curtains. The room looked more comfortable than ever.

"Sit where you are, my dear," says Katrine, taking her place at the table, "you look so pretty and comfortable that I won't have the picture spoiled. John will wait upon you, won't you, John?"

"Certainly, certainly!" says John, with his usual formula; and he drew a little table to Olive's side and brought her tea and toast.

And thus it had been for six weeks. Was it any wonder that the pink flush of health and happiness had crept into the pale cheeks, and that the sad heart of the weary girl should begin to beat with a new pulse of rest and of life worth living for?

In very truth the past did seem to her, as she sat listening to the low-voiced conversation of the strange brother and sister, fading away like an intangible dream. She had been ill, too, and who does not know how great a gulf an illness can dig between the past and the present? During the fortnight of low, delirious fever, a veil seemed to have been stretched before that gloomy past, with its recent terrible episodes, and life began in reality with that quiet haven into which she had so strangely floated.

It was all very strange—so strange that Olive could scarcely realize it. But the future? What was she to do? She could not live, as she had said, a burden upon these kind protectors. What was to be done?

She shuddered as she thought of the cold world outside this comfortable room; shrank invariably at the idea of leaving those two kindly hearts. It is filled with horror as the reflection flashed upon her that she might meet the man who had betrayed her so cruelly. She did not know that his cowardice was her safeguard against that misfortune. Stephen Rawdon had fled the country, pursued by his guilty fears, the very morning after Hastley Derrick's visit and Olive's flight.

But Olive did not know this as yet, and the thought that he might be searching for her filled her with terror and loathing.

As she sat looking at the fire, with her teal cup in her hand, Katrine Haldine sat watching her closely, unseen by Olive.

Presently the clock on the mantel-shelf struck the hour of six, and John looked up with a little nod.

"Yes, six o'clock, John," said Katrine; then she came and stood before the fire, with her hands stretched out to the blaze.

She was a handsome woman, handsome and graceful in a peculiar way; every attitude she fell into seemed to strike one and convey some meaning. Olive looked up at her with unconscious curiosity and admiration. Katrine, looking down, caught the glance, and smiled.

"How do you feel to-night, dear?" she said, as if she had motive for the question.

"Better—quite well," said Olive, and she put down her cup, and rose. Katrine took hold of her by the elbows and held her at a little distance.

"You look a bonnie girl, now—quite bounte; how tall you are? As tall as I am, and I am not short. And you feel quite well to-night? Well enough for a little change?"

Olive colored faintly.

"Change?" she said.

"Yes, that is, want for one," responded Katrine, nodding. "I must leave you, now, as you know, on my mysterious errand"—and she smiled.

"What will you do while I am away? Brood and fret? Don't deny it; I should do the same. Dear, I have done it," she added, with a quaint gravity. "Now, what do you say to going out this evening? You have tried your wings round the square once or twice; suppose we take a longer flight?"

"Where?" faltered Olive.

"Well, we want change and amusement," replied Katrine; "suppose we say—the theatre?"

Olive turned pale, and looked down, Katrine watching the meanwhile.

"Don't be afraid, dear," she said quietly; "you need not be seen. We will have a box, you can hide behind the curtain, if you feel scarcely strong enough to face the world. What do you say—yes?"

My Limbs Would Twitch

And Waken Me—Unable to Rest or Sleep, I Walked the Floor in Nervous State—When Specialists Failed I Found a Cure.

This is the kind of cure that has set Windsor people thinking and talking about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The action of this food cure is so radically different to the usual treatments for the nerves that everybody wants to try it. Gradually and certainly it nourished the starved nerves back to health and vigor and the benefits obtained are both thorough and lasting.

Mrs. M. Smithson, 37 Arthur Street, Windsor, Ont., writes: "I was suffering from nervous breakdown, which was caused by a shock when fire broke out in the adjoining house. My nerves were in such a state that, after going to bed I could not get my nerves quieted down sufficiently to go to sleep. I used to get up and walk around the room, or go downstairs. Even when I would be dropping off to sleep for quite a little while, I was always wakened me. I used to have cold, nervous, night sweats, sometimes would become unconscious and lie that way for quite a little while. I was always cold and it seemed impossible for me to get warm or keep warm. When on the street I would sweat or three objects at once, and did not want any person to speak to me or bother me. Any little noise irritated and annoyed me very much. I had consulted specialists and tried many remedies during this time, but could not gain relief. At last I tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before long could see that this treatment was proving of benefit. I am now feeling so much better that I can go out on the street without any difficulty, can go across the river and go about the same as usual. I sleep well at night, and am feeling more like myself every day. I am pleased to be able to write you to tell you how much good the Nerve Food has done me. It has strengthened and built up my whole system. I am recommending it to everybody I find suffering from nervousness of any kind."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be balked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

"Yes," said Olive; "that is, if you care to go; how kind and good you are to me! Are you sure you care to go yourself?"

"I don't think I can go with you, not for long," said Katrine, with a little smile; "but John is a capital escort, and he shall take you. You know I have my mysterious business to transact."

"Yes," said Olive.

"Confess you are curious?" smiled Katrine.

Olive shook her head.

"Well, perhaps some day I will tell you. But, come, let us go and get ready. John, will you send for the brougham? Olive will come with us—with you, that is, to-night."

John looked puzzled for a moment. Then he smiled seraphically, and used his inevitable formula: "Certainly, sister, certainly."

It will be remembered that when Olive had fled from St. John's Wood she had caught up a shawl, and this was the only outdoor apparel she possessed. Katrine Haldine had an object in measuring heights with her, and now Olive found that a part—and not the worst part—of her benefactor's wardrobe had been allotted to her.

With her arm round Olive's waist, Katrine showed her what she had put aside for her.

"It is fortunate that we are the same height," she said, with a faint laugh. "Come, child, don't pain me by hesitating," she added, as Olive shrank back from the proffered gift; and Olive, with tears in her eyes, allowed herself to be dressed.

"What a silly child you are!" expostulated Katrine, kissing her. "You are trembling as if I were going to beat you. What are a few paltry dresses and a bonnet—whichever, by the way, you will want to-night—between us? Did I not tell you the first day—the first moment you came to and could understand, that I had taken a fancy to you, that I had fallen in love with you, and that we were to be sisters?"

"Yes," said Olive, her eyes still full of tears; "but it is hard to realize such goodness. I can scarcely understand it yet. Oh, how shall I ever repay you—how can I?"

"By saying no more about it," said Katrine quickly. "I want no thanks, no gratitude, dear; all I ask is your love!"

Flight in 1928.

Beneath the light imaginings of the writer of this Article there lurks the Hint of Possibilities in the air. Within the Next Ten Years that are far from Fantastic.

(By W. McCartney.)

When peace begins, the aeroplane will at once show us what it can do. It has done wonderful things in war. That, at least, is our first thought. But though war has spread a fever of invention among the men who think in air, and though, consequently, we have faster aeroplanes, safer aeroplanes, and thousands more aeroplanes than we should have had without the goad of war, yet war has narrowed the activities of the aeroplane so severely that only the specialists could be expected to forecast what will happen when it is discharged from the armies and set free for the life, instead of the death, of man.

A Week-End Jaunt.

For example: on the day after the war, so to speak, a London newspaper might—probably will—send a correspondent by aeroplane to write of thanksgiving at the Holy City; and he might call at Rome on the way back and spend an hour or two in Paris, and telegraph news from both, and arrive at his Hampstead home refreshed by his short week-end holiday.

Or, we will say that a Birmingham firm wants to be first to push the sale of pocket flash-lamps in Bagdad. Its traveller will jump off by aeroplane, and when he lands in that romantic city he will be able to present the executives of Haroun-el-Raschid, if any survive, with a copy of the "Arabian Nights" bought in Corporation Street the day before.

When you talk of flying, it is difficult to be serious without being thought frivolous. I remember when Mr. Grahame-White was preparing for his London-Manchester flight, and I had to hire a fast motor-car to follow him, one of the most imaginative men in the motor business picked me out a road-racer, but said: "You won't need to take it more than three miles out of London. That's further than the aeroplane will go."

Looking Ahead.

To-day some of us are so deeply interested in wondering whether the next aeroplane we see will drop a bomb on our hats that we are possibly as sceptical about the future of flying as was that mistaken gentleman. But let every reader of Answers put on paper to-day a prophecy of what flying will be in 1928—when the war ought to be over—and he locks up that prophecy, to read it ten years hence, he will, no matter what the altitude of his imagination, blush for shame at his failure.

Any fool—I include myself—can see that the City of London mail of four p.m. will be delivered in Paris offices the same night. A man told me the other day, between his two lunch sandwiches, of another man who had bought land in a certain place by the East Coast, to be held as an aerodrome for the aeroplane service between the North of England and Petrograd; and, later, for the New York-Petrograd mail.

Ten years ago I should have said that the most intelligent thing he could do with the land would be to build a lunatic asylum on it and live in it.

The Question of Fares.

To tell the truth, I have not much faith in the Transatlantic aeroplane liner even now. But when I recall what Blériot did, what the gallant Latham just missed doing in crossing the Channel, and how there were people who said the "Daily Mail" ought to be asked why it encouraged suicide, because no such trip was possible, I think that in 1928, after all, it may be easy to see New York during a week's leave.

The fares, of course, would be heavy at first. But the European and American Governments will have to subsidize the flying liners liberally at the beginning, and probably they will, in the end, maintain cheap State passenger services, to supplement the freight-carrying aeroplane lines run by private commercial firms.

A few years ago I prevailed upon myself to spoil a short holiday by rushing through certain places in France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, the Austrian border, and Switzerland—a most ludicrous and onerous performance, in which the cost of luggage alone seemed to be about a million pounds sterling, or more. But when the aeroplane holiday is with us, a restless man might easily turn up at his office after three weeks and chat attractively about what he had seen at Copenhagen, the Orkneys, Marseilles, Cairo, Naples, Bordeaux, St. Ives, Galway, Newfoundland, Chicago, Panama, and—where he had a refreshing hot bath at the aerodrome hotel after the August heat of the homeward Atlantic trip—Croydon.

This makes the ordinary Continental hustle seem but as the wheelbarrow to the railway express. But when the aeroplane is established the railway express will be the wheelbarrow. (By way of illustration, when the "Daily Mail" prize for a seventy-two hour round-Britain sea-plane passage was offered, a newspaper writer was asked to do the journey from point to point on land, regardless of sleep or anything else short of his own complete and undoubted death.)

The wretched fellow—the present writer—after examining the railway and steamship time-tables, started on his trip, faithfully enough, from Plymouth, but had the presence of mind to telegraph from a wayside station that owing to the heavy rain he had caught a cold in the head and the booking-clerk could not understand the name of the place—Southampton—he wanted to go to next.

What Will Cooks Do?

Actually, that trip would have taken ten days or more and have shattered the traveller's nerves. To-day a seaplane could do it in a few hours. For the aeroplane for the first time permits man to travel "as the crow flies."

Is it not obvious that as soon as the war is over the tourist companies will run us round the coast in aeroplanes pretty much as they did through the Highlands or Devonshire in coaches?

The air-circular-trip will be, to begin with, no holiday for the poor man. But with the 250,000 aeroplanes in Europe, with pilots swarming into the industry, just as young men did into electrical engineering twenty-five years ago, and with the added fact that the new generation will take as naturally to travelling by air as the generation after "The Rocket" locomotive engine did to railway carriages, the problem of cost will solve itself.

Naturally, the two institutions that most depend on speed—the newspaper press and the mails—will be quickest to adopt the aeroplane as part of their daily systems. Reporters will regard a transcontinental aeroplane journey as unemotionally as they now do a taxicab ride to a station.

Nothing Impossible!

Some time ago certain Huns appeared over the City of London. When the bombs fell and "Dis yare nigger took to de woods," a man beside him temporarily cursed the daily paper I have previously mentioned for ever offering £10,000 prizes to encourage such a "beastly practice" as flying.

But flying was bound to come. And however grotesque your speculations about flying, they will limp after the actual achievements.

Flying was impossible. Flying a round mile was impossible. The value of flying to an army was questionable—remember that!

Let us each write down his forecast of "Flying in 1928," and in 1928 the facts will be so far in front of the forecast that one will have to say: "What an unimaginative idiot I was in 1918!"

"Cascarets" Best if Headachy, Bilious Sick, Constipated

Best for liver and bowels, had breath, had colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

Your Boys and Girls.

The furnishings for baby's bed can be made at home. The rubber sheet and quilted pad must be bought in most cases, but if time is no great consideration, the pad can be made at home on the machine, using soft, rather loosely woven muslin for the covering and sanitary cotton for the filling.

Thin, soft muslin will be much more comfortable for baby than sheets and pillow slips of linen. They should be simply made and trimmed with a little tortion lace edging and insertion. Baby blankets are very soft and light, but the home made blanket of white elderdown is fully as satisfactory as the boughten ones. The edges should be bound with ribbon in a dainty color, since white edges soil so easily. A spread is not really necessary on the bed of an infant, but a pretty cover of point de esprit, lined with a color, is extremely dainty.

It is well not to make anything too small for the coming baby. Sleeves may be taken up temporarily by running tiny tucks across them, and both

THURSDAY, Feb. 21st, 1918.

The Harlech Case.

In returning to this subject on Tuesday the Herald appears to us to exhibit something like an over-anxiety, as if it wished to, make doubly sure the judgment it has already pronounced in its own favour. It interprets our omission to reply to its extended argument of Saturday as an inability to do so. It is quite a mistaken notion: we were silent because the Herald had said nothing new and to answer it would have meant merely repeating what we had already said ourselves. It is a satisfaction, however, to our contemporary, we shall answer briefly the separate points it makes and in the same order.

The Herald first argues that our statement that the Advocate and itself prepared their explanation from exactly the same source is an "unfair contention." We will let our readers judge for themselves. Following are the principal sentences of both accounts in the order in which they appear. "Herald: 'Some weeks ago the Admiralty advised the Colonial Authorities that no sailing vessels should be sent east of Gibraltar.' Advocate: 'Some time ago the Admiralty advised the Colonial Authorities that no sailing vessels should be sent east of Gibraltar.' H.—'The Government submitted the matter to the Board of Trade, which approved of the recommendation with the exception that they be permitted to proceed to ports on the east coast of Spain. . . and that the four vessels then at Gibraltar—the Harlech, Waterwitch, Parker and Evelyn—should be permitted to proceed to their destinations in Italy.' A.—'The Government got in touch with the Board of Trade and that body approved of the course, with the proviso that the vessels be allowed to proceed to ports on the East Coast of Spain and that the four vessels then at Gibraltar—the Harlech, Waterwitch, Parker and Evelyn—should be allowed to proceed to Italy.' H.—'The Executive Government, on receipt of this decision, so advised the Admiralty, deciding, however, that it could not prohibit the despatch of vessels beyond Gibraltar if willing to go, because to do so might render the Colony liable for the value of the cargoes of fish in case such became spoiled as a result of prolonged detention.' A.—'The Government thereupon advised the Admiralty, deciding however, that it could not prohibit the despatch of vessels inside the Rock if they were disposed to go, because otherwise the Colony might become liable for the deterioration in the fish because of being kept there any length of time.' H.—'It is true that the Admiralty undertook to tranship a thousand tons of fish per month for Genoa. . . but would not undertake to carry it to Naples, but it is also true that for the past month Hon. Mr. Crosbie has been in touch with the Imperial authorities regarding the despatch of fish, but without avail.' A.—'The Admiralty undertook to tranship a thousand tons of fish per month for Genoa, but would not carry it to Naples, and during the past month the Minister of Shipping has been endeavouring to get a steamer to facilitate the despatch of fish, but without avail.' H.—'His own vessel, the Waterwitch, left at the same time, and was in company with the Harlech, but contrived to escape the submarine which shelled the other vessel.' A.—'Mr. Crosbie's own vessel, the Waterwitch, left at the same time with the Warren (11), but contrived to escape the submarine which 'got' the other vessel.' H.—'As for the general tone of the criticisms by the Daily News, it would be well for the public to remember that only a few weeks ago there were at one time no fewer than thirteen or fourteen Newfoundland vessels lying at Gibraltar with cargoes, and that but for the activities of Mr. Crosbie and his associates, much of this fish might have remained there until now and been spoiled, with a consequent serious loss to the Colony, as the price of our staple product would have declined in that case, but through good judgment, such an outcome was averted.' A.—'The News does not say that only a few weeks ago there were thirteen or fourteen Newfoundland vessels lying at Gibraltar, and that but for the energy of the Tonnage Committee much of this fish might have been there yet, and spoiled, and the probabilities are that as a consequence the price of fish would have fallen.' These two interesting narratives, the Herald tells us, were written quite independently. As it would be taxing belief too heavily to account for their striking similarities as mere coincidence, we think the matter should be laid before the Society for Psychic Research as the most astonishing case of thought transference on record, so faithfully, indeed, was the transmission effected, that synonyms were actually substituted for certain words in the process, "allowed" becoming "permitted," declined "fallen" and so on. Some expressions, however, would obviously lose by such changing and we find a striking phrase like "to facilitate the despatch of fish" left unaltered. Gentle readers, do you think the Herald and Advocate could possibly have done something to "facilitate" the task of explaining this history? The Herald's second argument is an attempt to shift the responsibility for the Harlech's loss from the Tonnage Committee to a body of exporters called "The Charterers Limited." If the latter in fact made the decision to send the ships forward, they should share any censure that belongs to it, but to make them responsible is the height of absurdity. Imagine the Parliamentary head of a British department excusing a mistake on the ground that a number of private citizens advised him to take it! What was this embodiment of perfect judgment, the Tonnage Committee, formed for if not to take exactly such responsibility as this? The stand the Government takes is quite characteristic. When things go well, it modestly claims no more than one hundred per cent. of the credit; when they go badly, the blame is thrown unto Water Street.

The third, and only serious, contention of the Herald is that no wrong was in fact done, and that the Harlech was in the same case as other vessels heretofore. It is quite false. This vessel cannot be compared to others crossing the Atlantic—that voyage is not in question, for everyone knows it has to be made. Nor can it be compared to those formerly crossing the Mediterranean. They had to do this as the only means of getting the cargoes to their destinations. This case is entirely different. The Admiralty issued a grave warning, and unless we are mistaken, indicated the only safe course to be followed, and this for the first time. This is admitted by the Herald. Why then was that course not followed? Why was an exception made in the case of the four vessels then at Gibraltar? Was the voyage less hazardous for them than for those following? Of course not, and the best proof is the fact that the Harlech and her cargo are now lying at the bottom of the sea, a fate the Waterwitch barely escaped. The only suggestion of a reason so far given for the decision is not a very creditable one—it is the fear that the fish might have gone bad before it could get to Italy by transshipment and the sales be accordingly lost. If that is so, it means simply that the cargo owners were willing to risk the ships and everything on them in preference to risking such loss, and that the Tonnage Committee were only too glad to act along the line of their decision. The result we know. An unjustifiable risk was taken for selfish and utterly inadequate reasons. We think the Herald could do better than pursue the matter further in attempting to defend what is altogether indefensible.

Invidious Distinction

In the welter of events and in the every day discussions of matters relating to the war, we are more or less prone to forget a class of men, to whom, in a measure, we owe our freedom from a German occupation of this Dominion. We have championed the cause of the soldier, and have held him up as a paragon, and we have been insisting that he be treated and cared for and his dependents looked after, while he is absent from home, and we have, as a community, moved in every possible way to show our high appreciation of his valour and qualities. And rightly so. Newfoundland's fighting boys deserve all and more than we have done for them, and we do not intend to become weary in well doing. Newfoundland has put her hand to the plough and will not turn back. But in our desire to do all and everything for our soldiers, it would be grossly unfair to forget our sailors and apparently that is just what has been done. These other boys of ours, the Naval Reservists, are equally part and parcel of our gifts to the Empire, and we will be derelict in our duty if we fall them and those dependent upon them. Yet can we say that we have done as much for the R. N. R. as we have for the Regiment? The plaint comes from the wives of those daring sons of the sea, that the separation allowance added to the regular pay is not sufficient to keep the wolf from the door, and we know that it is not. Whose then is the fault? Some time ago a great flourish of Government trumpets proclaimed that the pay of the R. N. R. would be brought up to the regimental standard, and in addition to that, all R. N. R. men would receive back pay at that rate from the first day of service to the time when the order went into effect. Why has it not been done? At whose door can we lay the charge of negligence in this respect, and may we ask why the invidious distinction? If there is anything in the Admiralty regulations to prevent the pay of our "jackies" being higher than the English ratings, surely there is no reason why their wives and other dependents whom they may have left behind, should not receive a sum from our own Government sufficient to place them beyond the reach of want. None of these people want charity, but they do want to be placed in the same category as their next door neighbours, whose husbands and sons are doing military duty. Volumes could be written around this subject. We have but directed attention to it to-day, with the hope that it will not be necessary to go further into the matter. Something must be done and done quickly. Must we have our naval men say that we sent their children to the poor house while their daddies hammered Bill? It is to be hoped not. When the naval history of the present war is written we will find that the only thing that stood between Newfoundland and German occupation, was the British Navy, and in that Navy are Newfoundland's sons, enduring, sleepless, seaworn but grim and determined, waiting for the hour when the enemy ships come forth to join battle. They stand between us and autonomy. Their wives and families and starvation?

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Mails from the outside world and the West Coast, at last.

The Harbor Grace Standard editorially states that the word "Slackers" was used.

Isn't it about time that the—ahem—National Government fulfilled its promise to raise the Naval Reserve boys pay?

Seeing that a certain brand of tobacco, of local manufacture, has been advanced to a thirty-two cents per pound increase, since last fall, we are impelled to ask—is this another instance of profiteering, or not?

"We should indeed prove ourselves unworthy of our place in the world if we allowed the sacrifice of so much of our best blood to have no result in ensuring for the world higher ideals and a greater prospect of peace and brotherhood among men."—Bishop of Birmingham.

"There is no need to lose our faith, which is a quality we must each of us do our utmost to strengthen. We may appear to have marked time, but in reality we have not done so. Another black year lies behind us, and we are so much nearer, thank God, to the dawn that must come."

Dr. Grieve's Lecture on Monday Night.

Dr. John Grieve who is lecturing in the Methodist College Hall next Monday evening has spent eight winters on the Labrador in the service of the International Grenfell Association, and has an intimate knowledge of conditions there. He has travelled from Esquimaux Point in the Gulf of St. Lawrence up to Okak (about a hundred miles north of Nain) and altogether during his stay there has travelled over fourteen thousand miles with dog and sledges. On Monday night lantern slides will be shown illustrating the dog sledging, social conditions, and the scenery. The lecturer has had the honour of showing many of these at his lectures before geographical societies in Great Britain and elsewhere. Among his collection of slides are several beautiful views of Hamilton River and the famous 'Grand Falls, which will no doubt possess a unique interest for a St. John's audience.

Methodist Institute.

Tuesday evening's institute in Gover Street Church, was one of great spiritual benefit to all those who were privileged to attend. The subject under consideration was "the place of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in Christian Worship." Rev. T. B. Darcy conducted the devotions and Rev. D. B. Hemmison and Mr. Arthur Mews delivered very fine addresses on the subject. Owing to inclement weather the Sunday School Institute which was to have taken place last evening had to be postponed. It will be held some evening next week, notice of which will be given from the pulpit and in the press. This evening the subject for consideration is, "The Quarterly Official Board as a Spiritual Agency." The address will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Bond and followed by a round table discussion. Every body is welcome. The members of Quarterly Official Boards are asked to make a special effort to be present this evening.

Had to Be Abandoned.

The Deputy Minister of Customs received the following message from Marytown: "Ethie arrived here yesterday morning having on board 6 of crew of disabled ship 'Acadia,' line having parted 4 miles S.E. Tide's Point. After towing 1 1/2 miles in storm now raging had to abandon her. She may have drifted in vicinity of Flat Island. Could not get aboard Ethie yesterday for earlier report, owing to storm." (Sgd.) Sub-Collector."

Died Suddenly.

The Deputy Minister of Justice has received the following message from Conception Harbor: "Patk. F. Hickey, aged 63 coming from the woods, yesterday, dropped dead from heart failure." (Sgd.) M. F. O'TOOLE.

The number of candidates again reached high water mark, and the standard of work was well up to that of previous years.

Obituary.

The death of Captain James Vigas, of Burin, which occurred a few days ago removes one who was well known and highly esteemed, both at home and abroad. He was a devoted member of the Methodist Church, and ever held a position of prominence and influence in its councils. As a citizen he was highly esteemed by his fellow townsmen, as well as by all those who had the honour of knowing him outside his home town. To his bereaved widow and relatives we offer our heartfelt sympathy.

To-Day's Messages.

NEW SHIPPING REGULATION.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The Shipping Board to-night directed that after Feb. 20th, no American steamer of less than 2,500 deadweight tons would be permitted to clear for a trans-atlantic voyage or engage in other long trip trades. This regulation has been adopted as a measure of conservation, and economy in tonnage, since in the Board's judgment ships of small tonnage are not economical and safe in the trade. Steamers so excluded will be employed in the coastwise West Indies and other approved service.

GREAT EXCITEMENT.

LONDON, To-day. News that Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevik Foreign Minister sent a wireless message to the German Imperial Chancellor Von Hertling accepting peace terms of the Central Powers, has caused great excitement in Berlin. According to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Amsterdam, Chancellor Von Hertling is expected to make a statement in the Reichstag to-morrow, bearing on Germany's reply.

WANTS A FREE OCEAN?

AMSTERDAM, To-day. During a short session of the Reichstag yesterday, according to Berlin despatches, Dr. Hartmann Pasche, the Vice-President discussed the Ukrainian peace and Germany's intention in the East, and concluded by declaring, however much we desire peace, we are firmly resolved to hold out until with the Germans' loyalty, until a peace is attained which guarantees us a free country washed by a free ocean. The certainty of healthy development, the Ukrainian peace, Dr. Pasche said, showed that the Central Powers were in earnest agreement with the declaration that they were waging no war of conquest, as that peace was made without indemnity, or cessions of territory, and was a peace really advantageous. Blame for resumption of war with Russia, couldn't be placed upon the Central Powers, he asserted that Bolsheviki, when they found Germany couldn't be enticed to destroy the foundation of civilization, broke off negotiations. We now shudder at the contemplations of the cruelties of lawless bands which support present so-called Government of Russia, he continued, and we hope that energetic action on our part will help the race which severed themselves from old Russia, according to principles of right or force, to determination, to return to peaceful freedom, freed from the terrible scourge of Bolsheviki Border hordes. Earnest desire for peace expressed by Chancellor Von Hertling, continued Dr. Pasche, had been rejected by these enemies of Central Powers. German people, however, had shown them by their strength was unbroken and unoperable. Our enemies were unable to assist to carry on the war upon German people, Dr. Pasche added, and had gained by trickery or force the new Allies recently in America. The Vice-President concluded with a declaration of Germany's intention to hold out. After he had spoken the Reichstag adjourned until Wednesday.

NON-COMMITTAL.

LONDON, To-day. Replying to a question in the Commons to-day, Bonar Law, Government spokesman, said it was much too soon to assume that the Irish Convention would have no result.

POLES HAD NO SAY.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. During the debate in the Reichstag yesterday, one of the Central Powers leaders, said the appointment of Chalmers to Ukraine would never have been decided upon if Poland had been admitted to the negotiations at Brest-Litovsk. Herr Seydler, Polish Deputy protested that lack of respect for right of self-determination had been shown by the exclusion of the Poles from negotiations, respecting Ukraine. He declared Chalmers must not be given from time immemorial, must not be assigned to Lithuania.

WEEKLY SINKINGS.

LONDON, To-day. British merchant ships sunk, mine or submarine the past week numbered 18. According to an admiralty report to-night, of these were 1600 tons or more, three were under that tonnage. One fishing craft was also sunk. Arrivals at ports of the United Kingdom for the week were 2,322 sailings 2,383. Eight ships were unsuccessfully attacked. Slight diminution from the previous week, when 19 merchantmen were sunk; thirteen over 1600 tons and one under that tonnage.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

- (1) No person or firm shall sell molasses wholesale without a license from the Food Control Board empowering him or them so to do, which license shall be issued free. ### Making Herself Fit.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A letter friend of mine, a young girl, asks me for some advice in regard to an experience she is about to pass through. She has been invited to make her home for the next few months in a place where she will meet many new people.

"Most of them," she says, with a frankness, better breeding than I. I do not mean to cast any reflections on my own family. I have the best father and mother in the world, but they are very plain people, and these people are cosmopolitan folks who have lived in an atmosphere of education and quiet wealth all their lives. Now what I want is some general advice on how to conduct myself so that I shall not be out of place."

I think there are a great many people who are sometimes placed in a position such as this girl describes, and for their sake I am going to make what answer I can through my column.

Learn The Rules of the Game.
In the first place buy an up-to-date book of etiquette and read it through. The observation of the rules of etiquette does not constitute good manners, but it is a foundation for them. There may be times when it is perfectly good manners to disregard a rule of etiquette, but it is one thing to disregard a rule because you see some good reason for doing so and quite another to disregard it because you simply do not know it exists.

Listen to your voice and try to modulate it. Place it low, shun nasal tones as the plague, and don't speak too loud.

Three Rules, Listen, Listen, Listen.
Don't talk too much. Listen, listen, listen. That is the way to learn, the way to keep from making blunders while you are learning, and the way to please others.

Talk very, very little about yourself, that is, of your own accord. Don't go to the other extreme and be excessively reticent when people are really displaying a kindly interest. Have a dictionary and look up any word of whose pronunciation you are not absolutely certain.

Read To Know.
Read much. Read a first-class newspaper, a good weekly or monthly review, and some of the best books. But read to know, not to show off.

Be especially courteous to old folks. Be courteous, also, to those who serve you in any capacity. It is only imitation breeding which is discourteous to servants, strangers or inferiors.

Be absolutely punctilious about all matters of bathing and grooming.

And last, but not least, appreciate and imitate all the good qualities that you see in these new people, but do not fail to respect yourself.

Fairville, Sept. 30, 1902.
Minard's Liniment Co. Limited.
Dear Sirs,—We wish to inform you that we consider your MINARD'S LINIMENT a very superior article, and we use it as a sure relief for sore throat and chest. When I tell you I would not be without it if the price was one dollar a bottle, I mean it.

Yours truly,
CHAS. F. TILTON.

THE SUCKER.
The sucker buys no Liberty Bond—the kind our Uncle's selling, to win the scrap across the pond and send the Teuton yelling. The sucker is not safe and sane, and sound investments peeve him, and four per cent gives him a pain—such proposals grieve him. The sucker's out to get rich quick, to cut across the corner, to get his plum, and do the trick like little Johnnie Horner. The sucker buys the taker's mine, that's packed with gold or rubies, and soon we see him shedding brine among the easy-boobies. The sucker's always on the make, he is no doubting Thomas; he'll buy up any dizzy take that holds out lying promise. The sucker backs the wrestling match, and bets pleasant man, with loose domestic ties and the unrefined tastes of the America coyote. A reward has been put upon his head, and there is a keen, bloodthirsty, desire in this country to see him removed from the haunts of man with the aid of a hemp rope. The murder of one plain American citizen cannot be avenged by the prompt and squealing demise of a thousand Mexican cut-throats in a state of hopeless inebrity, and while we are not a vindictive people it would seem for the best interests of society that Villa be put where he will not murder anybody else unless he throws him into the furnace.

The life of Villa teaches us what ambition will lead a man to when he is maddened by drink and too many wives.

Household Notes.

Cocktail sauce is made with tomato catsup, horseradish, Worcestershire sauce, mushroom catsup, lemon juice, tabasco sauce, onion juice and salt.

A warm quilt for winter is made of a pair of bordered cotton blankets with cotton put in as for any other quilt. The with wool the same color as the border.

After washing quilts and comfortable, and while they are still on the line, but nearly dry, beat them with a carpet beater, and they will be wonderfully light.

If a baking dish has been scorched or burned, fill it with cold water to which a pinch of soda has been added. Allow it to boil and the dish can be easily cleaned.

A very delicate icing is made for cake by mixing one cup of confectioner's sugar with three tablespoonful of cream, to this add the juice and rind of half an orange.

To dry a woolen sweater so it will not lose its proportions, shape it while it is wet and lay it flat on a folded Turkish towel. A vest should be hung on a coat hanger.

When one buys a child's dress, otherwise good but with poor machine scallops on it, one can regard the scallops as padding and work over them with excellent effect.

One-dish dinners promise to become popular—and one suggestion is a fish chowder with a variation of rabbit, fowl or meat. Another is dried peas with rice and tomatoes.

To remove perspiration stains from waists, sponge the place with a clean rag, wet in clear, cold water. Then cover with powdered chalk and brush off carefully with soft brush.

To make a cement which will be found handy in the kitchen, add a teaspoonful of glycerine to a gill of glue. This is particularly good for fastening paper, leather or wood to metal.

A simple way to prevent meat from drying when it is roasted in a gas stove is to place a stone jar half full of water in a corner of the oven. The steam will keep the air in the oven moist.

FRENCH ENTER GERMAN LINES AND CAPTURE PRISONERS.
PARIS, Feb. 20.
French detachments made a heavy attack on the Germans in Lorraine to-day, entering the German lines over a large front and capturing more than 400 prisoners, according to the war office announcement, which reads: In Lorraine we repulsed an attack at Four de Paris and inflicted appreciable losses on the enemy. In Lorraine, north of Bures and east of Moncel, northeast of Nancy, our detachments penetrated German lines on a large front. This was brilliantly carried out and enabled us to bring in prisoners, the number of which is known to exceed four hundred. In the Vosges there was quite marked artillery fighting in the region of La Fave.

HUNS MOVING IN EAST RUSSIA.
BERLIN, Feb. 20. (Official.)
The forward movement continues into East Russia. Our troops have entered Esthonia, and Werder has been passed through in an easterly direction. The town of Werder in Esthonia is situated on the coast of Dol Sound. It is probable that the forces landed there came from Moon or Oesel islands, which lie off the Esthonia coast and which for a long time have been occupied by the Germans. Werder is about 45 miles southwest of the important Gulf of Finland.

AUSTRIAN TERRITORY EVACUATED.
VIENNA, Feb. 20.
The Russian evacuation of occupied Austro-Hungarian territory has been completed. The following official announcement was issued to-day: In conformity with the peace treaty with Ukraine, the provision regarding the restoration of frontiers as they existed before the outbreak of the war between Austria-Hungary and the Russian empire, have been fully carried out. Our troops have occupied without incident the region extending to the original Austro-Hungarian frontier.

THE COMING OFFENSIVE.
LONDON, Feb. 19. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)
A despatch from British headquarters says that the evidence shows the coming offensive will be conducted upon the principles of surprise. The winter training in the enemy divisions has been based upon the idea of regaining the tactics which succeeded in Galicia and Riga and Isonzo. The enemy's training exercises are being based upon the principle of the infantry breaking through without artillery preparation. This confirms the idea that the Germans will employ tanks and it is probable that existing tank units will be increased in numbers and the experience will be on our side. The enemy, moreover, expect great results from the new poison gas, and we know that they intend using gas shells freely.

WILL TRUST TO NUMBERS.
LONDON, Feb. 18. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)
A Reuter despatch from British headquarters says that the political and domestic situation in Germany is now creating internal excitement and anxiety causing pressure upon the militarists who have been forced to endeavor to pacify the people. The following instance typifies the present situation: Hindenburg recently interviewed by a number of newspaper editors said in reply to a question that there would not be any food in Germany by next May. "I shall be in Paris by the first of April." There is no longer any doubt that the enemy attempt to break through may come at any moment, and while the French will doubtless have to withstand the shock of many and heavy

Thousands of families are benefited by this remedy. It is easy to make and saves about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains remarkable effects in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose. Pine cough syrup is a combination of pine cough syrup and cough syrup. Nothing better, but why buy? You can easily make it yourself in five minutes that money can buy, with 2 1/2 ounces of pine. This gives you 16 ounces of syrup. It is pure, good and very pleasant. You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the pine and syrup combination—and this usually in 24 hours or less. Sore throats, or any ordinary throat ailment, pine is a highly concentrated tonic. There is no longer any doubt that the enemy attempt to break through may come at any moment, and while the French will doubtless have to withstand the shock of many and heavy attacks...

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy. Thousands of families suffer by the prompt relief, and saves about $2. You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains powerful elements that have a noticeable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is nothing but granulated sugar syrup, which you can buy in five minutes. To make the best pine cough remedy there can be, put 2 1/2 ounces of sugar and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces--more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant--children take it eagerly. You can feel this take hold of a cough as cold in a way that means business. It may be persistently loose from the membranes of the lungs. The cause is the pine and granulated sugar--and this mixture in 24 hours or less. Slices of pine or ordinary throat ailments are a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous in the world for its prompt results. It is a substitute. Ask your druggist for the "Pine" with directions and do not buy anything else. It is the only remedy that gives absolute satisfaction to every sufferer who tried it. numbers, a grand attack will be hurled against the British somewhere between Arras and St. Quentin. Another interesting fact has been revealed, viz., whereas the new method of the enemy attack has the entire confidence of the German officers, the men regard it with dismay, declaring that local successes only will be purchased at a frightful cost. It is manifest in the forthcoming gambles that the German high commands intend to be absolutely reckless as regards the wastage.

ON THE ROAD TO JERICHO. LONDON, Feb. 20. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.) Reuter's learns that after a period of quiet owing to the rain, General Allenby yesterday again advanced towards Jericho. He now occupies the last ridge overlooking the Jordan Valley.

COMMEMORATING ACHIEVEMENT. LONDON, Feb. 20. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.) A despatch from British headquarters says that an impressive commemorative service was held on the morning of Feb. 17th when the South African contingent re-entered Devils Wood. The men bivouacked on the ground of their historic battle and recounted narratives of the famous fighting. Afterwards the contingent lined up and participated in a memorial service to their comrades who had fallen here. At the conclusion of the service a letter from General Haig was read which was full of praise for the splendid service the South Africans had rendered by their magnificent clinging to Devils Wood.

BAITING SPANISH ANARCHISTS. PARIS, Feb. 20. The close relations between the German Embassy at Madrid and the most notorious anarchists in Spain, have been brought to light, according to the Matia. The paper, El Sol, has published documents to prove that Dr. Von Stohrer, second secretary of the German Embassy at Madrid, sent money to anarchist agitators and committed the imprudence of writing them. The propaganda thus financed, adds this paper, was aimed not only against public order, but even against the person of the King. The revelations have had a deep effect in Madrid.

HAIG'S REPORT. LONDON, Feb. 20. The report from Field Marshal Haig's headquarters to-night says: A few prisoners were brought in by our patrols on the southern portion of the front. A raid was attempted by the enemy early this morning east of Armentieres, but was repulsed. Hostile artillery has shown some activity during the day in the neighborhood of St. Quentin and south of LaBassée.

GERMAN TOWN BOMBED. AMSTERDAM, Feb. 20. A raid by an Entente aviator on Treus in East Prussia, is reported in a despatch from that city to the Cologne Gazette. It says bombs were dropped in various parts of Treus, causing damage to property. No military establishments were injured.

GENERAL KALEDINES SUICIDES. PETROGRAD, Feb. 19. General Kaledines, Hetman of the Don Cossacks, committed suicide at Neve Tcherkass, headquarters of the Don Cossacks, during a session of Neve Tcherkass movement which he attended. The Government decided to resign and transfer the power to the Council of Workmen and Soldiers. After this decision General Kaledines went to an adjoining room and shot himself. General Macgrath, who succeeded General Kaledines as leader of Don Cossack, ordered an immediate mobilization and the arming of all Cossacks to fight the Bolshevik troops advancing towards Neve Tcherkass.

Two of ours are missing. Our night flying squadron after dark again attacked Treves and Thionville from a low height with good results. In a second raid on Thionville a large fire was started. One of our machines failed to return. On Tuesday another raid was made in broad daylight, making the third within 38 hours, carried out against Treves; over a ton of bombs were dropped on the objectives. Three good fires were started. One of our machines is so far unaccounted for.

RUSSIA FORCED TO SIGN PEACE. LONDON, Feb. 19. Russia is now forced to sign peace upon the conditions proposed by Germany, says an official Russian statement received here to-day.

SUCCESSFUL AIR RAIDS. LONDON, Feb. 19. (Official.) On Saturday night our naval aircraft dropped several tons of explosives on Zebrugge mole and docks. The bombs fell alongside a submarine shelter and near the dock gates and quays. Yesterday several direct hits were obtained on hangars at Vassepaere airdrome. Three enemy planes were destroyed during this offensive by our patrols, all of which returned.

LLOYD GEORGE SPEAKS. LONDON, Feb. 19. Premier Lloyd George said in the House to-day it was essential that a decision should be taken instantly. At the Versailles meeting, separately the delegates of the respective Allies explained and considered their own plan, which in each case was identical. This plan was passed without a dissenting vote and accepted by all the military representatives. The Premier stated that being under the impression that all the difficulties had been overcome, the Government offered General Robertson a position on the Versailles Council, but he was unwilling to acquiesce in the system, objecting to it on military grounds.

NAVAL AIRCRAFT BUST. LONDON, Feb. 20. (Official.) An Admiralty announcement reads: Naval aircraft dropped many tons of explosives Monday night on St. Denis Westren and the docks at Bruges and drove down an enemy machine. Large quantities of explosives were dropped Tuesday on the airdrome at Aertrycke and the dump at Engli with good results. An enemy seaplane was brought down at sea, another was downed within the British lines and a third was sent down out of control.

"CRISIS" OVER. LONDON, Feb. 20. Premier Lloyd George and his Government have surmounted another "crisis" and the Parliamentary waters round Westminster appear to run smoothly once more, after a week's turmoil stirred up by the retirement of Robertson. A majority of the morning papers accept the statement made in the Commons by Lloyd George as satisfactory and entirely approve of the Versailles agreement and consider the whole incident straightened out. A few newspapers continue to be unconvinced and reiterate their sharp criticisms but seem resolved to accept the situation. They express the opinion that no Government crisis is likely to arise at the present although they believe the Government has been weakened by recent events. Some papers which accept readily enough the Premier's statement and comment on it nevertheless endorse the regret expressed by Asquith that the Premier had not spoken with equal clearness a week ago. Several support the appeal of Austen Chamberlain that the Government sever its connection with the press.

agreed, said Lloyd George, that the permanent military adviser at Versailles should be a member of the Army Council. It was part of this arrangement that the Chief of the Imperial Staff was to remain the supreme military adviser to the Government. The Premier said the country was faced with terrible realities. He begged the House to have done with all controversy, adding that the Government was entitled to know tonight whether the House and country wished it to proceed with the policy deliberately arrived at. The Premier asserted that the conclusion reached at Versailles were the result of very powerful representations by delegates of other Governments, notably the American Government. General Robertson, said the Premier, suggested a modification of the proposal by making the representative at Versailles a Deputy Chief of Staff. The Government felt bound to reject this suggestion, as it involved putting a subordinate in a position of first magnitude which might impose upon him the necessity of taking a vital decision under conditions which he did not read the full facts were known. The Premier announced that Sir Henry Seymour Rawlinson had been appointed to represent Britain on the Supreme War Council at Versailles. I hesitated some time, said the Premier, in referring to American representations, whether I shouldn't read in the House of Commons the very cogent documents submitted by the American delegation. The proposal is one of the ablest documents ever submitted to a military conference. The only reason why I didn't read it to the House is it would interfere with the plan of operations. Immediately after the Premier finished his speech, former Premier Asquith arose and expressed regret that the Premier's speech had not been made a week ago.

GERMANY'S PLANS. ROTTERDAM, Feb. 19. There is no official confirmation of Thursday's message relative to Germany's intention to resume military activity against Russia. It is possible to add that the basis of the future policy in the east includes the occupation of the remainder of the Baltic Provinces, with a view to their subsequent incorporation into the German Empire and the further dismemberment of Poland by the annexation of certain districts by means of what are called frontier negotiations for the purposes of military security. The German Government's aim is, in effect, the greatest possible extension of its hierarchy toward the east, with the seizure of the frontier district of Poland as a sort of buffer between itself, and the remainder of what will then be left of the so-called Polish Kingdom, which is thus further dismembered by Germany and Ukraine, will be left to its own fate.

OFFICIAL. LONDON, Feb. 20. (Official.) After a heavy preliminary bombardment the enemy attempted to raid our line east of Arleux-en-Gohelle. The attacking party was completely repulsed by our troops with the loss of a number of Germans killed or taken prisoners. A successful local enterprise was carried out early last night northeast of Wyschaete; several prisoners were captured by us. Except for some patrol activity northwest of St. Quentin nothing further of special interest occurred.

NAVY CARE OF THE HAIR. If the hair is in an impoverished condition, abnormally greasy or dry, showing a tendency to become brittle and break off short, if it loses its color and bulk, it will be no good to begin any hair treatment without first attending to the general state of the health. One should take sufficient exercise and rest, and correct any indigestion in diet. Where an anemic condition exists, a tonic often does wonders, so will a course of cod liver oil, while raw eggs and unboiled milk, are articles of diet which directly beautify the hair. As to the general care of the hair, it should be washed as often as it requires cleansing. Once a week is not too often for a very oily type of hair and about once in four weeks is a good average for ordinary hair. If it is washed at home, liquid soap is the best thing to use. The hair should be thoroughly wet with warm water, then a handful of the liquid rubbed in. If it does not lather at once use a little more water and a little more liquid until the whole head is in a perfect foam. Then rinse out the lather very thoroughly, taking the most of the moisture off with a hot towel. The daily care of the hair is most important. It should be well brushed every night, the scalp being first treated with a rather hard brushing to stimulate the circulation, and the long hair, afterward, brushed with a long, sweeping stroke, two brushes with rather long, stiff bristles being used. This is to keep the hair clean and give it a natural gloss.

Shipwrecked Mariners Return

Capt. J. Rogers, Mate Murray, Bosun P. Walsh (Wiltless Bay), Cook H. Pike, seamen R. Whiteway and Made (Ferryland), of schooner Lottie Silver, which was lost on January 29th, reached home on Tuesday. This vessel left here on January 21st for the other side with a cargo of coal loaded by Mr. G. M. Barr. Meeting with a succession of gales, which lasted for six days, trouble commenced on the 27th, vessel then being "hove to" under jumbo and storm trysail. At 3 p.m. a huge wave came on board carrying away trysail, and a d washing away seaman Whiteway, who was standing on the cabin near the main boom. All thought he had gone to his doom but when they had time to look about he was climbing aboard over the lee rail. Though somewhat injured from striking rail as he went over he recovered in a few days. After trysail had gone, jumbo was hauled down and schooner lay hull to and before a chance offered to run her off, another sea struck, throwing her on beam ends. The water flooded both cabin and forecastle, but the staunch craft righted again, enough to let crew get aboard, though she did not come to even keel. A crowbar having been secured cabin floor was pried up allowing water to get to pumps which were at once manned. Orders were then given to cut away spars and after a few chops, mainmast went by the board breaking off about five feet from deck. The foremast went from keelson and broke in two across rail. During this time it was blowing a regular hurricane from the North West and the dismasted vessel now drove before it, the huge waves sweeping her fore and aft. Capt. Rogers was swept from the wheel twice in less than thirty minutes, but fortunately escaped injury. The work of pumping, chopping and jettisoning cargo was constant all the time. All the cabin stores were ruined by the inrush of water, and, all the master's clothing, charts, nautical instruments and ship's papers destroyed. For two days the men lived on hard tack and raw bacon, cooking being out of the question. Early on the morning of 29th January a steamer's masthead light was sighted, being about two miles off, but this went out so soon as a "flare up" was shown and steamer continued her course without apparently having seen the distress signal. During the day weather moderated a little, but on Tuesday the storm renewed. About 11 in the morning the American transport San Jacinto, of the Mallory Line, bound west, hove in sight and bore down on the stricken hull, with which she narrowly escaped colliding. With good seamanship, however, she was eventually brought alongside and with the aid of lines took off all the crew. During the transfer many narrow escapes occurred, the Captain and P. Walsh having a close call each. After rescuing crew the San Jacinto, put four shots into the Silver, which went down shortly afterwards. Captain Avery, officers and crew of the transport treated Capt. Rogers and his men in a splendid manner, doing everything possible for their comfort. They were landed at New York on Feb. 6th. A week later they took passage for home. At New York the British Vice Consul only supplied them with boots, socks and underwear, but friends furnished them with other articles necessary for the trip. This is Cook Pike's third time being shipwrecked.

Events Postponed

The storm of yesterday entirely upset the sporting arrangements programme. The Curlers were obliged to abandon their game shortly after noon, notwithstanding that the participants had arrived on time, and a large number of spectators had gathered at the rink. With the arrival of H. E. the Governor at 11 o'clock the game opened. His Excellency delivering the first shot and playing a good stone which was applauded by the curlers. At dinner time the Committee in charge decided to abandon the game, and put off the programme till next Wednesday, 27th. In view of the great interest in the event and the importance of the object—W. P. A. Red Cross Fund—the Curlers are hoping that the Importers Association will be good enough to arrange another whole holiday next Wednesday. If such can be arranged, and we think it can, the Knights of the Stone and Broom promise to do their part, and a handsome donation will be made up for the W. P. A. funds which Miss Harris intimated a short time ago are badly in need of assistance. The Bell Island Curlers wired they could not venture over. The Curlers, as well as their friends, were naturally disappointed at the upsetting of their plans, but they are not downhearted and look forward with confidence to a more successful time next week.

Tuesday's Curling Results

Nellie Haddon

Star Hockeyist in Vancouver. The following clipping is taken from a Vancouver paper: "How dare they!" was the exclamation which spouted from the lips of the secretary of the Vancouver Ladies' Hockey team yesterday morning, when she opened her mail and found a challenge for the team to come and get defeated at hockey by the Amazon Girls' Club. The letter suggested Thursday evening at 5.15 as the hour. The Amazon Girls' Club is really a school organization and the idea of the big husky Vancouver ladies receiving such a challenge at first stung, but later, after taking the matter up with her executive, it was decided to accept the challenge and defend their goal at the Arena on Thursday.

Amazon—Goal, V. Hampton; cover point, B. Smiker; point, M. White; centre, N. Griffin; rover, C. Johnston; left wing, G. Griffin; right wing, G. Maddison.

Miss Nellie Haddon, point for the Vancouver Ladies' Hockey team, is a daughter of Mr. John Haddon, who formerly lived on Monkstown Road, this city. The Haddon girls and boys were splendid skaters, and Nellie the "baby" of the family has just recently stepped in to the place of the V.I. H. team formerly occupied by her sister, Marjorie, who has retired from the game. When asked where she learned to skate, Nellie just says, Newfoundland.

Smallpox on Board Ship

On arrival of a big steamer from abroad on Tuesday afternoon it was found that one of the ship's company, a cook, named Vergo, was suffering from smallpox. Drs. Campbell and Macpherson boarded the ship while she lay in the stream and ordered the sufferer to be taken to the Fever Hospital. The doctors then examined the passengers, and those who had been vaccinated within the past seven years were allowed to go. Those detained were six first-class passengers, five second, Capt. Tucker, mate; Miss McCarthy, stewardess, and seven of the crew, all of whom have been confined to their homes under quarantine. While none of those detained show any symptoms of the disease, precautionary measures have to be taken.

King's College Hockeyists Here

FIRST GAME TO-NIGHT

By the S. S. Sagona which arrived at 1 a.m. yesterday the following members of the King's College Hockey team arrived: Messrs. T. Winter, A. E. Gabriel, H. N. Spence, H. M. Black, L. Nesbitt, G. H. Shupe, O. B. Smith, T. Jones, R. V. Millett and F. Poole. They were met at the ship's side by President W. J. Higgins and Secretary J. Tobin, of the Hockey League, Lieut. R. Herder, of the City team and Messrs. Jim and Nix Vincombe, of the Old Guard. The visitors, with the exception of Capt. Winter, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Herder, were taken to the Crosbie where they will stay while here. Yesterday afternoon and night they were provided with box seats at the Casino Theatre and greatly enjoyed the performance. At the close of the entertainment the visitors shouted their college yell. Everything will be done for their comfort by the citizens of St. John's who cannot forget the kindness extended our soldiers (known as the Windsor draft) who spent such a pleasant time at Windsor last year. It will be remembered the King's College authorities placed one of their buildings at the Regiment's disposal for use as a hospital, while the Windsorites in general did everything possible for their comfort. Since the outbreak of hostilities King's College, which is the oldest University in the Dominion of Canada, has given to the Empire over 85 per cent. of her undergraduates. Of the team now here every man has been rejected for active service because of under age or physical unfitness. All are registered under the Military Service Act of Canada and may be called up for special work at any time. "Tommy" Winter has been turned down three times. The first game will be played to-night and will be under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor. The visitors are a fast bunch of skaters and have already shown up well in this season's games defeating Acadia by 17 goals to 1.

The City team, however, have a slight advantage in weight which is shown by the following table: Gabriel, 130 lbs.; Smith, 130; Spence, 170; Poole, 130; Nesbitt, 130; Winter, 145; and Millett, 140. Total, 1,025. Stick, 175 lbs.; White, 135; Power, 160; G. Herder, 175; R. Herder, 145; Dr. Power, 160; Munn, 165. Total, 1,105. The line up to-night will be: KING'S. Gabriel, goal; Dr. Power, point; G. Herder, cover; Munn, rover; Poole, right; Nesbitt, left; White, centre; R. Herder, Power.

Black, Shupe and Jones are spares for the visitors and Jerrett and Trapnell for the city. The visitors will have a practice during the day, and having recovered their sea legs are in excellent condition for to-night's game.

Wedding Bells

On Saturday, Feb. 16th, the marriage took place in London, England, of Miss Cecil Marguerite Windeler, daughter of Mr. H. D. Windeler, Supt. of the Commercial Cable Co., of this city, and Mrs. Windeler. The wedding was held at "Rutherford" the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Green, cousins of the bride. Major Eric Windeler, C.A.M.C., gave his sister away while Major H. S. Windeler (Ntd. Regiment) acted as best man. The bridegroom, Dr. Moffat, who has been on active service in France for over two years, is the only son of Mr. Wm. Moffat, Asst. General Manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, Toronto, and Mrs. Moffat. Miss Windeler went to England in November, 1915, as one of the V.A.D.'s from Newfoundland, and in December of the same year took up work at Beiton Park Military Hospital, Lincolnshire, where she has worked ever since.

There are none on sale in the city, but we can supply an extra good substitute. We have Bright Metal Runners which can be attached to your baby carriage without any trouble.

All you have to do is to remove the wheels from the axle and put the Runners right in their places, this can be done by means of little clutches that go with the runners.

You will then have a most comfortable sleigh with hood and springs, which all will admit is much more cosy than the ordinary sleigh, which has neither hood nor springs.

"Red" and "Dun" Fish.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I have read with keen interest the notes that have appeared in your paper emanating from meetings held by the Board of Trade in reference to the reddening of codfish. Great credit is due those gentlemen for bringing such an important matter before the public. One can tell by their remarks that they are very much in earnest and desirous to have the problem solved. But, sir, does it not seem strange that we should have to send outside of this Dominion for an expert to show us how to perform a work that we have spent a lifetime at? We sometimes boast of being the greatest fish producing country in the world, and for centuries have been catching and curing codfish by the thousands of quintals every year. It would speak badly for us (fishermen) if we are incapable of explaining the causes of "red" and "dun" fish. I venture to assert that there are hundreds of fishermen in this country who could give the Board of Trade the desired information. Why not give them a chance? If two practical fishermen from each electoral district were invited to St. John's to confer with the Board of Trade on matters in connection with our staple industry, much good would result. Come, gentlemen, give us a chance to have a say in the matter before importing an expert. I do believe that we need a scientist to educate us about the nature and habits of fish, but not about the causes that lead to the reddening of fish.

Thanking you in anticipation for space in your popular paper, I am,
Very sincerely yours,
FISHERMAN.
Heart's Delight, Feb. 19, 1918.

Hr. Grace Notes.

An accident happened at the Shipbuilding Co's premises by which Mr. Mark Barrett, one of the employees, will probably lose his arm. The man was engaged in operating a circular saw, and for some reason put his hand in under the saw with the result that the right arm was nearly severed just above the wrist. He was hurried off to St. John's by the evening train. Another proof of the necessity of an hospital in Hr. Grace.

We regret we were misinformed in our reference to the fatal fire at Riverhead on Sunday. Mrs. Kehoe did not throw the oil stove over the stairs, but on fearing an explosion she took it up to bring it to the ground floor, and on reaching the second step the handle came off and the oil stove fell to the bottom of the stairs, with the result as stated.

A very enjoyable time was held at Bannerman Lake on Sunday last by some of the Norwegians in town and a number of their friends. The ice on parts of the pond was thin and our informant says that the pleasure of the evening was considerably marred by one of our prominent citizens falling through, and considerable trouble was experienced in rescuing him. We are glad to hear he is nothing the worse for his experience.

To-day, owing to the general holiday at St. John's, our post office is closed from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

A horse and slide, with a load of boxes from the Shipbuilding premises, was capsized by the force of wind near Noad Street this morning. The wind just played a little joke and put horse, slide, boxes, &c., all in a pile on the street. No other damage was done.

The first episode of the new serial, "The Shielding Shadow," was shown at the Nickel Theatre last night and was admired by all present. Mr. Forsy, the manager, has made a good business that is steadily on the increase. The pictures are certainly good and Mr. Forsy is to be complimented on his success in the movie line.
