"POSSESSED."
An interesting realistic novel, being the story of Penelope Wells, her waywardness, suffering and regeneration in which is presented the truth about women that nobody tells.
—American married life is laid bare in this powerful and absorbing novel. The story presents a keen analysis of the development of a woman's soul, and shows how Penelope's self-analysis saved her from perverted desires.
The author, "Cleveland, Mofatt", commands the entire attention of the reader from the first to the last page. Our special price $1.50 postpaid, on receipt of price.

COMMON SENSE
Good judgment, loyalty to the best interests of Newfoundland has characterized the 44 years' service of the Telegram. They showed the same qualities when they decided to erect the Telegram Building of Pelly's Brick. Time has proved the wisdom of their selection of building material, and the fierce storms that have swept up from the Arctic regions only prove the indestructibility of Pelly's No. 1 Hard Brick.

Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XV.

"If you please, ma'am, Mr. Winter-dick asked me to say that dinner is ready and that he is waiting."

Eva turned listlessly from the glass and looked at the smiling maid.

"Thank you—very well."

The door closed softly.

Eva glanced at her watch—a little absurdity in brilliants and platinum, which her father had given her amongst a host of other presents—nearly eight o'clock!

More than hours since they reached the hotel; two hours during which Philip had not once been near her; two hours during which she had sat almost without moving, trying to look ahead into the future and make some sort of plans.

For the moment she knew that she had succeeded in her desperate attempt to deceive the man she had married and save her own pride; but as yet only two hours of their lives had passed, and the remaining years of it lay before them both, dark and without hope. She had not shed another tear, and her heart felt like a stone.

She changed her frock mechanically and brushed her hair.

It did not seem to matter in the least how she looked. She remembered how she had longed for him to notice her frock that night at the Highway House, and how disappointed she had been because he had made no comment. She smiled faintly at her own reflection. She felt an impersonal sort of sympathy and sorrow with the white-faced girl there in the mirror.

She turned out the light and opened the door. Philip had taken a private sitting-room; she wished now that he had not; things would have been so much easier and more possible with other people all around them.

The room was just opposite her own, and its door stood ajar. She could see an edge of white tablecloth and a glow of pink light from a shaded lamp.

Just for a second her courage failed her; her feet seemed chained to the ground. Then she went on and pushed the door wider.

Philip was standing by the window, his hands clasped loosely behind his back, looking out into the busy street. He turned sharply as he heard the soft sound of her entrance, and for a moment their eyes met across the room; his, hard and unhappy—hers, very quiet, but cold—cold as a stone.

Backache

Backache is the outstanding symptom of kidney disease. Women often make the mistake of attributing other causes and overlooking the derangement and over-tiredness of the kidneys until serious developments have made it difficult to obtain permanent relief.

This letter points to a treatment which has been so thoroughly tried and proven so effective in the great majority of cases that you cannot afford to overlook it when cause arises for its use.

Mrs. Albert Brunet, R.R. No. 1, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the past two months, having been afflicted with kidney trouble. I used two doctors' medicine previous to this, without any good result. A friend told me to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the second box made me feel a good deal better. I have now used about six or eight boxes, and am completely relieved."

GERALD S. DOYLE.

"I hope I have not kept you waiting."

"Thank you—not at all."

There was a maid in the room—an interested maid who had been told that these two were on their honeymoon; but it must have been some other couple, she decided, as she served the dishes and quietly withdrew.

The light from the shaded lamp fell full on Eva's slim figure in its dainty frock; she looked so young—little more than a child—as she sat there trying to eat.

She still wore her wedding ring—Philip had noticed that directly she came into the room; somehow, he would not have been surprised if she had discarded it; he was conscious of a faint sense of relief. He made one or two desultory attempts at conversation, but it was uphill work; only when the maid brought coffee and liqueurs, and finally withdrew, he gave a great sigh of relief and pushed back his chair.

Eva spoke first:

"Don't you think if we are going to stay here that we might as well have our meals downstairs; it would be more interesting?"

"If you would prefer it," he almost laughed as he spoke.

They had been married—how long?—four hours at the most, and already she was trying to find something more interesting than his society.

He could not believe she was the same girl who had looked at him with such shy happiness in her eyes beneath her wedding veil only that morning; the girl whose face had flushed like a rose as they drove away from the church together, and he bent to kiss her hand with its very ring; what horrible spell had been cast over them both to bring about this change? He felt as if he were struggling helplessly to free himself from a net, in which he only got more entangled as he tried to escape.

"Do you mind if I smoke?" He knew she did not; but it was something to say.

She answered him at once.

"Please do."

Philip lit a cigarette and puffed at it once or twice elaborately, then he forgot it, and allowed it to go out.

The situation grew more impossible with every moment; he pushed back his chair and rose; he felt as if he were stifling; he walked over to the window and flung it wide.

Lamps had been lit in the street below, and there was a faint breeze springing up, fanning the face of the hot earth.

What to do! What in the wide world to do! His brain felt like a fiery wheel, going round and round in small circles, from the confines of which he could not escape to freer thought or action.

How long did she mean to keep him in this—hell! He knew that he deserved it all—knew that it was a just punishment, and yet he could not quite kill the hope in his mind that soon she would be sorry—that the sweet, gentle nature he had known and grown to love would rise uppermost again, and she would forgive him and be kind to him, and tell him they would forget it all and start afresh.

He had noticed the cold pallor of her face—the dark circles beneath her eyes, and his heart ached for her.

And yet, why be sorry if she really did not care? He forced himself to turn and look at her.

She had taken up a magazine from a side table and was idly turning the pages. The little casual action turned his blood to fire. He strode across the room and, snatching it from her hand, flung it into a corner. He faced her panting, with blazing eyes.

"How long is this—to go on?" he demanded.

She looked at him disdainfully, not answering.

He broke out again stammering.

"For God's sake, what has changed you so? . . . Tell me the whole truth. I can bear that, whatever it is, but not this—this damnable coldness. . . . How long are you going to treat me like this?"

She moved back to her chair. She was trembling violently.

"I don't know what you mean," she said with an effort. "I have fulfilled my share of the bargain—compact whatever you like to call it. I have married you, and my father has paid over the money—as you arranged."

"It was not my arrangement. I swear on my word of honour. It was no arrangement of mine."

The grey eyes were raised steadily to his.

"You mean that you asked me to marry you because you loved me and for no other reason?"

"Yes . . . no . . ." He swung round with passionate gesture. "I don't know what I'm saying," he said shakily. He waited a moment, trying to control himself. Presently he came back. He stood looking down at her.

"I didn't love you when I asked you to marry me," he said then, with difficulty. "I'll be frank with you—I'll tell you the whole truth, so God help me. I didn't care for you when I asked you to marry me—"

She interrupted gently:

"I'm not asking for any confession, and I'm not going to make any to you. You wanted my money—and I wanted to call myself your wife. Well—I moved her white shoulders carelessly—"we have each got our wish—that is all; but you can't blame me if I want to go my own way. It's a pity really that we had to have a honeymoon—we were quite good friends up till to-day. You can still go your own way—I shall be exacting—and I can go mine. Lots of people arrange things like that, don't they? Lots of your blue-blooded friends, I mean," she added deliberately.

Twice he tried to find his voice and could not; then he broke out hoarsely:

"You are proposing, in fact, to make our marriage—a marriage at all."

He made a quick step forward; he stooped and covered her clasped hands with one of his holding them tightly. "My dear," he said, with broken gentleness, "you don't know what you are suggesting. You're such a child. I'm not trying to—preach or—influence you. I know I deserve all you can ever say to me, or make me suffer—but—at least I'm a man of the world, and I know—I know that these sort of things always spell disaster. You say you don't care for me—that you never did. Very well, I am willing to accept that for the moment. You say there is another man you prefer to me. If that is the truth, why didn't you marry him? You're not the sort of girl to throw a man over if you love him. For—the rubbishing advantage you can get from me. Eva—answer me."

He could feel how her hands shook beneath his grasp.

"He didn't care for me—that's why," she stammered at last. "I thought he did—but—he didn't, after all."

She forced her eyes to meet his. There was a sort of comfort in the knowledge that she was speaking the real truth now, whatever half-truths she had spoken before. She went on:

"That night—when I was wishing to the moon . . . when you came along the road—I was wishing then . . . that—that he might care . . ."

"But he didn't—he didn't—he never cared for me at all."

"And . . . when I asked you . . ."

She moved her head restlessly.

"Oh, what does it matter? Why need we go over it all? We're married. It's done with and finished for ever. I only want you to leave me alone—to let me go my way. I shan't do anything that will shock you or hurt your name . . ."

She laughed. "I quite realize you've done me an honour by marrying me, but in every other way we're quite Philip, you're hurting my hands."

He released her instantly.

"And this is all you've got to say to me?" he said dully.

"Yes." The word was just a whisper.

He began pacing up and down the room. A dozen times he passed the chair where she sat; a dozen more he almost went on his knees to, plead with her—to beg her not to ruin his life—to try to love him—but somehow he could not.

Nothing he could say now would make her believe in him, he knew. He had brought this disaster upon himself. It was his just punishment, and, besides—she did not care!

"That was the hardest cut of all." (To be continued.)

Current Business Conditions

By GEORGE E. ROBERTS.

(From the Monthly Letter Issued by The National City Bank of New York for January)

IN an industrial forecast for 1922 it is necessary to consider the causes of the depression, chief among which is the unbalanced relationship between the prices of farm and other primary products on the one hand, and the prices of manufactured goods, transportation service and various other products on the other hand.

The final estimates of the Department of Agriculture upon the 1921 crop give them a market value to the farmers $8,000,000 below the value of the crop of 1918 and $3,400,000,000 below the value of the crop of 1919.

In large part the situation is chargeable to the action of organized labor in clinging to the wartime wage rates.

Railroad Wages

The railroad companies are struggling with a difficult situation, and although their efforts are in the public interest they have little help from the public.

Agricultural Conditions

Conditions in the agricultural sections are far from inspiring, but in the cotton country the feeling is a little better.

The operation of railway repair shops always has been regarded as a matter of policy within the discretion of the management. If a company can save money by operating its own shops it should do so, and by the same reasoning if money can be saved by letting out the work, that should be done.

Letters From the Front

BANK OF COMMERCE ISSUES MEMORIAL VOLUME. The Management of the Canadian Bank of Commerce deserve to be congratulated on the manner in which they have perpetuated the memory of those members of their staff who served, and in many cases, fell in the Great War.

Successful Winter Aerial Flight.

Botwood to St. John's in Two Hours--Landing at Historic Quidi Vidi.

The Martinside aeroplanes, in which were Major F. S. Cotton and Capt. V. S. Bennett, landed safely on Quidi Vidi at 1.06 p.m., having taken two hours to fly from Botwood. Throughout the flight an average speed of 90 miles an hour was maintained.

LIKE A BIG BIRD.

The aeroplane was sighted, making gracefully towards the White Hills, at 1.05 p.m. Like a large bird, it circled around the hills and glided down towards the city, landing at the foot of the pond, opposite Rutledge's house.

STORY OF THE FLIGHT.

Capt. Bennett told the Telegram the story of the flight. The aviators "took off" at Botwood at 11 a.m., Capt. Bennett acting as pilot. The machine used was the Martinside and the undercarriage was the one which had been damaged last week, and had been repaired.

Abraham Lincoln in Story.

Abraham Lincoln in story was the subject of a most fascinating lecture delivered by Rev. R. J. Power M.A., M.P., at the Presbyterian Hall last night. Mr. J. S. Benedict, United States Consul presided.

FOLLOWED RAILWAY LINE.

The aeroplanes followed the railway line as far as Whitbourne and then made straight for St. John's. Near the city a cloud bank was encountered. All through the flight cross winds were met with.

GREAT TIME MADE.

The aeroplane was reported by the railway operators as follows: Left Botwood at 11.00 a.m., Norris Arm at 11.10 a.m., Glenwood at 11.20 a.m., Gambo at 11.35 a.m., Alexander Bay at 11.38 a.m., Port Blandford at 11.59 a.m., Clarenville at 12.07 p.m., Northern Bight at 12.14 p.m., Arnold's Cove at 12.23 p.m., Grantham at 12.30 p.m., Tickle Harbor at 12.33 p.m., Whitbourn at 12.50 p.m., Conception Hr. at 1.00 p.m., Manuels at 1.05 p.m., St. John's at 1.10 p.m.

The Humber Project.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir:—Your correspondent "Bondite" has criticized the proposed development without having understood the most elementary facts of the case. In the first place the case of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company has been cited. It is true that no guarantee was given to the A.N.D.Co.—but that very liberal concessions were given—but it is inaccurate that had the Government given any guarantee they would have been called upon to pay anything for the A.N.D.Co. have always paid the interest on their preference shares—

The Briton and the Dock Premises.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—I must take issue with the remarks of your reporter on the question of removing H.M.S. Briton from the Dock. The right of the Briton to the present berth is secured by the Reid Railway Contract, so that the Reids knew what they were up against when they signed the Contract.

A Lost Industry.

According to the Board of Trade returns the exports of pickled (Salt Bulk) fish for the month of December were two thousand, one hundred and twenty four quintals, whereas if we look up the records of the same month in other years not including December 1920, when only about one cargo was exported, it will be found that the salt bulk fish trade on the South and West Coast ran into thousands of quintals. At that period all the big fish manufacturing centres in the New England States were sending schooners to Newfoundland for the purpose of purchasing cargoes.

Twenty Years Ago To-Day.

(Evening Telegram, Jan. 14, 1902.) R.M.S. Buenos Ayres, Capt. Eastway, arrived from Glasgow to Liverpool after a stormy passage of 9 1/2 days. Sch. Imogene, Capt. Geo. Jackman, arrived at Barbados dismantled and in a battered condition.

Warning to Household.

SNEAK THIEVES AT LARGE. Sneak thieves are now prowling around, and during the past few weeks articles of clothing have been stolen from the half of various residences. Last night a man called at the house of a well known citizen and made off with a coat, when left alone in the hall. The coat, with papers which were in the pocket, was returned to-day.

Another Big Project Mooted.

St. George's Coal Fields Ltd. A report was current in the city that the coal areas at St. George's had been sold. In order to ascertain if there was any truth in the statement a reporter of the Telegram called at the St. George's Coal Fields Ltd. office yesterday afternoon.

Fun in Torbay.

A resident of Torbay was charged in the Police Court to-day with being drunk and disorderly and assaulting the local constable. The fun took place at a dance where the plaintiff claimed accused assaulted him, hitting him twice. The accused, on the other hand, said that plaintiff asked for a drink and because he did not get one, attempted to put him and his friends out. Hop beer was on sale at the hall and it was suggested by Mr. Ayre for the defence, that this was a bit stronger than the Act permits. After plaintiff had been examined, the prosecution asked for an adjournment. Mr. Ayre objected but the request was granted.

Instantly Killed.

Tragic Happening on Sch. Georgiana. A message was received yesterday Messrs. Kemp & Co., Placentia, in Captain J. Kemp of the schooner Georgiana, now at Gloucester, stating that John Molloy belonging to St. Lawrence had been instantly killed on board the vessel. The unfortunate man is married and a sad circumstance connected with his untimely end is the fact that his wife is now at the General Hospital undergoing treatment. Arrangements are being made to have the body sent home for interment.

Express Passengers.

The following passengers arrived at Port aux Basques at 8 p.m. yesterday from North Sydney and are now on the incoming express, due here early to-morrow morning:—H. Button, G. Bungay, A. Rowe, W. James, Miss C. M. Fitzgibbon, M. J. Duff and Rev. Fr. Cacciaola.

Seeking Work.

On the arrival of the S.S. Sabie L, a crowd of over 500 men assembled on Harvey's wharf seeking a job discharging the ship's cargo. Stevedore Bartlett had a trying time to distribute the tickets to the few men required. There are over 1600 members of the Longshoremen's Union now out of work.

The Aeroplane Hangar.

The hangar in which the Martinside aeroplanes will be housed is built on the C.L.E. East. House on the South Side of Quidi Vidi. It is not quite completed yet, but when finished will contain a couple of rooms besides the space which is occupied by the plane. This space is large enough to hold several aeroplanes of the size of the Martinside.

Seriously Ill.

SERIOUSLY ILL.—Mr. J. J. Tobin is now lying dangerously ill at the General Hospital, and fears are entertained for his recovery.

Rink Open.

RINK OPEN.—The Prince's Rink is open for general skating this afternoon and night. If the present frosts hold all the hockey teams will probably get through their practices next week.

Assaulted Constable.

A man was charged before Mr. McCarthy, J.P. with being drunk and disorderly and assaulting Constable Samson in the discharge of his duty. A constable gave evidence of the drunkenness. Constable Samson said he found accused in the company of several other drunks who were trying to get him home. Witness advised accused to go home, and the latter hit him in the face. Witness obtained the name of the accused, and allowed him to go home. Later accused was arrested. Mr. McCarthy laid stress on the seriousness of assaulting the police, and fined accused $25 or two months.

MEN'S SHAVING CREAM

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE "I CAN'T HELP IT" EXPRESSION.

"I know I eat too fast but I can't help it." I heard a woman say the other day.

That woman has indigestion. It causes her much pain. It reduces her efficiency to a large degree. It will eventually shorten her life. There is little doubt that her rapid eating is at least a contributing factor.

And yet she says, "I can't help it." Could anything be more absurd? Why can't she help it?

Are her jaws run by a mechanism that is set at a certain tempo which cannot be changed?

It is absolutely imperative for her to save the five minutes a meal which she usually spends sitting at the table waiting for the rest to finish?

There are conditions which might justify the use of the phrase "I can't help it," but otherwise what meaning has it? Except the meaning which it has 99 times out of 100 when it falls from our lips—"I don't want to help it"—or, more often still—"I don't care enough about helping it to make the effort and sacrifice involved."

Good gracious! this letter can't be for me?

Oh yes it is!

WHAT DID BETTY BUY?

COPY OF BETTY'S LETTER

Dear Mr. Simpson
You know I'm Green, don't you? WELL SHE WANTED TO BE A NURSE. SHE WAS SIMPLY TRYING TO BE A SISTER OF MINE. However she left for Toronto taking her maid Topsy to carry her luggage. When she got to the station the train was pulling out. THEY RAN SO FAST TOSPY RUPTURED A BLOOD VESSEL IN HER LEG. How ever Clara got on the train alright. Then what do you think happened? SHE TUMBLED AND FELL PELL-MEL ON HER HAUGGAGE. Isn't that funny? I BET SHE WANTED TO BAN A NASTY ENGINNER FOR TALKING THE TRAINS TO. SHE SOON EN BEGAN TO GET REACHED HER seat as usual. SHE TOOK OUT A BOOK BY CHARLES LAMM READ A PAGE AND FELT ASLEEP. On arriving in Toronto she was with a state and hurried off. Her baggage was heavy and looked a burden. A NICE CHAP PLEADED TO HELP HER. She refused to let him. She was a stranger. But after walking two blocks she was tired out. THEN SHE THOUGHT HERSELF A SIMPLE MONSTER FOR REFUSING HIS HELP. She finally reached the Training School and registered. But she didn't like it a bit. She felt very blue. IN FACT AT HER DINNER SHE ATE A VERY LITTLE. She fought with her room mate IN A FIT OF JEALOUSY OR ANGER SHE LEFT. However before going home she bought a new dress with elaborate furbies and ornaments. Remember, there are no trade mark names or products of any particular manufacturer in many cases. The first underlined sentence, the single name as "Bear" and not the plural "Bears" is used. Be very careful, therefore, if you find the names to spell them exactly as they appear in the sentence.

PUZZLE

FIND ABOVE THE NAMES OF 12 ARTICLES SOLD IN A GROCERY STORE

John Simpson was amazed when he read the above letter, which Betty had handed him. "Our first aim," he said, "is to find out what Betty bought. I've been in each of the underlined sentences. I'll tell you the quantities, but you must find the names of the articles in my store, that is mentioned in the underlined sentences. Betty has done in each underlined sentence exactly what she did in the letter. The letters are not jumbled and all you have to do is to find the names to start on. For instance, if you start on the letter 'B' in the first word of the first sentence, you will quickly see B-E-A-N. That's the name of one of the things I want. There are twelve things altogether. I want the name of each one hidden in one of the underlined sentences. So you must find the names and you get the order."

A Timely Story.

What They're All Doing "Back Home"

(From New York paper)

Some—Steps of the Old Inn is most any town or city.

Characters—Former resident back for visit to the old town. Old resident who has all the "news."

What's become of Lem Wilkins—you remember Lem—the fellow who used to have the agency for Blodgett's lawn sprinklers.

Oh, you mean Lem, who lived over on the "hill" and ran for town clerk once. Nice fellow, Lem.

Yes, what's he doing now?

He's bootlegging.

Bootlegging!

Yep, Lem made quite a bit with the lawn sprinklers, but he allus was smart and he got into the bootlegging game and is worth a half million now. Ever see Mike Farroway, who used to own the flying horses down to the point?

Yes, he drops in every now and then. Lookin' good, too.

Still run the flying horses?

Nope. He's cleared up a pile the last two years.

What line?

Bootlegging. Has built a new home and has two ortermobiles.

Whatever became of Doc Gollup, the cigar salesman? He was quite a fellow. Used to handle the Racebrook Stogie. Is he still in the cigar game?

I saw him last week. He's been out the cigar business for about eight months. Doing great now. Travels around in a Pierce-Arrow 'nd everything.

What's he doing?

What's he doing? (Business of puffing hard on cigars for a few minutes.)

Remember Spike Smathers, the minister's son, who got into that mix-up down at Bergen's Bay?

Yep. He's still around.

Spike wasn't a bad sort, but he was kind of wild and never seemed to be able to make a go at anything.

Oh, he's changed now. He is one of the leading citizens. Owns one of the show places on the "hill."

Oh, yes. He's settled down and has just bought a shore house. Married and has a big family. Got all kinds of money. Is that so? Glad to hear it. What's he doing?

Bootleggin'.

(More puffing on cigars.)

Well, you look pretty well, Cy. You're still postmaster, I suppose.

No, I gave it up. Wasn't nuttin' in it.

What are you doing now?

Oh, I've cleaned up a bit. Made $50,000 the last year like rolling off a log.

What business?

Come over to the house and I'll show you. (He whistles) I'll show you the finest lot of liquor you ever get eyes on. Got it off a ship the other night. You don't mean to say that you're—

Yep, Bootlegger! Why the surprise? It don't leggit. It seems strange to come back and find all the folks this way.

Well, you ain't said nothing about yourself! What line are you in down in New York?

Who, me?

Yes, you look prosperous. What're you doin'?

Why, er-er I'm doing a little bootlegging. (Curtain.)

DANDERINE

Stops Hair Coming Out; Thickens, Beautifies.

35-cents buys a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug store. After one application you can not find a particle of dandruff or a falling hair. Besides, every hair shows new life, vigor, brightness, more color and abundance.

Three Pretty Phrases.

When a man and his wife do not live happily, we say they are living "a cat and dog life." Seldom will a cat and a dog live together peacefully—hence the phrase.

Again, we have a saying, "raining cats and dogs." Witches were once supposed to ride on the storms in the shape of cats, while Odin, the storm-god, would be in attendance upon a dog.

Years ago the people of Cheshire used to mould their famous cheeses to represent grinning cats. Next time you say so-and-so was "grinning like a Cheshire Cat," you'll know where the expression came from.

The practice of tying up cats in sacks, and then selling them in markets for pigs was once a common one. Unfortunately, however, it sometimes happened that when a buyer opened a sack before making a purchase, pussy would escape. The swindler had "let the cat out of the bag."

"Going to the dogs" is a phrase used times out of number.

It comes to us from the East. The dog there is a scavenger of the streets, and, being left to this filthy life, the animal soon becomes unfit to touch.

Men With Tails.

Do men with tails exist in unexplored parts of the world?

A celebrated scientist, Dr. Lumholtz, returned recently from Borneo, where he found several members of savage tribes with stumps of tails.

"These people," he said, "are evidently the outcome of marriage with a completely tailed race."

The professor believes that tailed men are to be found in New Guinea, and he is to lead an expedition in search of them. This journey will be one of extraordinary danger, and scientists are awaiting its results with interest.

According to reports, these tailed men do not belong to any of the known human races. They are described as having tails from twelve to eighteen inches long, while their bodies are covered with fur. They live in the thickest parts of the jungle and are good potters and weavers; they are also masters of the art of making deadly poisons for use in war.

Noted Painter Kicked Over Europe.

During the German advance in France the Douai Art Galleries committee caused several of their best pictures to be concealed in private houses. One of these was a painting by Correggio representing the Madonna. Some German soldiers took the picture with them and hung it up in a railway coach. For a long time the Correggio travelled backward and forward between France and Germany without any one knowing its value. A German officer eventually had the painting removed and hung up in a home for old soldiers. During the revolution a soldier took the painting with him to Hamburg and sold it for a few marks to a cafe proprietor. A visitor to the cafe recognized the painting as an old master and made inquiries about its origin. The international commission took the matter in hand and had the painting sent to Douai.—London Times.

MOTHER!

Your Child's Bowels Need "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry Mother! A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will thoroughly clean the little bowels and in a few hours your little will play happily again. Even a cross, feverish, constipated child loves its "fruity" taste, and mothers can rest assured because it never fails to work all the sour bile and poisons right out of the stomach and bowels without griping or upsetting the child.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

An attractive way to serve creamed asparagus is to take off the tops of hot rolls, fill them with the asparagus, replace the tops and serve hot.

Baldheaded Pessimism.

A STRANGE NEW YEAR MESSAGE.

New London, Conn., Dec. 26.—Members of the Baldheaded Club of America, Inc., residing in Connecticut, today received the following greetings from their vice-president, Walter Wakeham of Philadelphia:—

"Twenty years ago eggs were 10 cents a dozen; milk 5 cents a quart, the butcher gave away liver, the hired girl received a dollar week and did the washing, women did not powder and paint in public, play 'pat and take' or shindy; men then wore whiskers and boots, chewed tobacco, spit on sidewalks, cursed, laborers worked ten hours a day and never went on strike; no tips were given to waiters and the hat check grafter was unknown.

"Now every one rides in automobiles, or Fords, strains his neck looking at airplanes, plays the piano with his feet, goes to see movies, listens to gramophone records, has discarded wools, undergarments, complains about not having liberty to put his foot on the rail any more, swears at his income tax, smokes cigarettes, drinks hair tonic and cologne, blames high cost of living on politicians, never goes to bed the same day he gets up and thinks he is having a hell of a time. These are the days of suffering, profiteering and prohibition, and if you think life worth livin' we wish you a Happy New Year."

FREEZONE

Corns Lift Off with Fingers

Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. It doesn't hurt a bit.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without a particle of pain.

OH, HAPPY DAY.

It will be splendid when wars are ended and peace has come to stay, when swords are busied and cannon rusted, and no one yearns to slay. Through all the ages, in futile races, the sons of men have fought, in war found pleasure, and none can measure the evil they have wrought. The soil we tread on was scrapped and bled on by nuts of bygone days the early savage was wont to ravage, and kill off other jays. Are we so dotty, so vain and naughty, that we can't quit old tricks? Must we forever attempt to lever the domes of other hicks? Is all our yearning for higher learning a wish for some disguise to cloak our longing for armies thronging and death for countless guys? Oh, donner-wetter, are we no better than men who lived in caves, whose daily labors were killing neighbors, and digging early graves? Let's make it plain that we are saner than those ancestral boobs, and scrap our cruizers and can the bruisers who kill off harmless rubes. Let's make wheelbarrows and gunpowder and harrows of swords and guns and spears, and do our knitting with Peace a-fitting through all our golden years.

Origin of Wedding Ring.

According to the Latin legend, Jupiter sent to Prometheus in honor of his deliverance by Hercules a ring in which was set a piece of the stone to which Prometheus had formerly been bound in chains. In Northern mythology the ring symbolizes the bridge from this world to the next, or, according to another idea, the rainbow symbol of eternity. Hence it is plain that from most ancient times the ring was the symbol of remembrance and eternal recollection. Since the earliest days of Christianity the ring has been a precious pledge of faithfulness, the talisman of two souls forming a sacred life-union. The custom of wearing the wedding ring on the fourth finger of the left hand goes back for its origin to the Egyptians, from whom the Greeks borrowed the custom, and handed it on to the Romans. The fourth finger was dedicated to Apollo the sun god, and gold was an additional symbol of the sun. Besides, it was believed that Apollo's finger was connected by nerve directly with the heart, and it was most appropriate that the sign of loving union should rest on this finger. Another theory is that the ring was the sign of slavery, and was, therefore, worn on the left, the weaker hand. In Germany the engagement ring often serves for the wedding ring also, being worn on the right hand until marriage, when it is transferred to the left. In Spain the engagement ring is most ornate, and is invariably worn on the fourth finger of the right hand.

January Jottings.

January gets its name from the god Janus. His particular function was to preside over the birth of each new year and the beginning of each new year. In the old days, no new venture in love, war, or business was embarked on without the aid of Janus being invoked.

January's precious stone is the garnet, symbolising faithfulness and constancy in love, marriage, and friendship.

Those born in January are good-tempered, but a trifle given to malcholy. A man who marries a January maid will be blessed with a prudent and thrifty wife. She will be a good mother, but somewhat severe with her children.

An ancient calendar records the old belief that if the first day of January opens in the morning with dusky, red clouds it denotes "strife and debates among great ones, and many robberies to happen that year."

January Jottings.

January opens with a Bank Holiday in Scotland, but not in England.

Finally, old belief has it that January's unlucky days are the 3rd, and the day on which the January moon is three days old. These days are "fule perilous for many things." A 16th century chronicle, however, says that January 1st, 2nd, 4th, 5th, 10th, 15th, 17th, and 29th are unlucky! But on this point authorities agree to differ very considerably. The 7th, however, being St. Distauff's day, is the day of all days for a maid to own as her birthday.

SOMETHING-FOR-NOTHING SHOPS

Like the London National Investment Corporation, Limited, whose apparently philanthropic programme I discussed last week, the British Investors' Association importunes all and sundry to accept something for nothing. The Association modestly affirms that it is "the financial house which provides the widest service to investors." It might be supposed that this claim would vex the Investment Registry, the old origin something-for-nothing shop, but no doubt the two concerns, though seemingly rivals in the courtship of the investor, are on quite good terms with one another. Is not Lord Morris chairman both to the Registry and the Association, and does not Mr. Arthur G. Cousins, managing director of the Registry, act also as a joint managing director of the Association? With the same generosity as the Registry, the Association gives away fascinating little treatises on financial topics, and supplies—again gratuitously—detailed critical reports or any list of securities which an investor cares to forward. It likewise gives away a weekly circular entitled "Market Notes." To assist the investor in these ways the Association, it is stated, maintains an expert staff which makes a special study of all factors affecting investment values. Being a dubious about these lavish offers, a correspondent inquired whether there was no subscription for the weekly notes. The secretary of the Association replied that there was not, and went on to explain the reason why. "We are constantly re-modelling our services," he wrote, "in order to give the maximum of satisfaction." If, therefore, they made a change for the weekly circular they might be in an "awkward predicament," because those who had subscribed for copies would naturally expect it to be continued on the existing lines, whereas "we might desire to alter their whole character." The letter added:—

We think you will readily appreciate the position, and we have explained the matter in some detail because we find that investors unacquainted with our name have appeared to be suspicious of any service offered free of charge. A moment's reflection, however, will show that our method is really far more satisfactory, as free services do not involve any obligation and we rely on the soundness of the work we do to bring us custom.

To the suspicious-minded that "awkward predicament" theory will look rather thin, but lawyers may think perhaps that the words I have italicized are not without significance. There is, I fancy sometimes, the possibility of a really awkward predicament arising if parties who take payment for advance in regard to investments deal as the principals—not as brokers or agents—with those whom they advise. Common sense ought of course, to tell the investor that the heavy expenditure which these free services must entail is not incurred without a hope of profit. He should know, too, that the profit cannot come out of its custom of his in so far as it is restricted to instructions for the buying and selling of securities on the London Stock Exchange. The Registry, the Association, and the rest of the outside concerns can only get transactions carried out on the Exchange by employing inside brokers and paying their commissions, just as an individual investor has to do. As I explained last week in the case of the London National Investment Corporation, every such concern must accordingly make its profits out of particular securities, which it acquires for issue to the public. One of the things the investor should always ask is: Or what terms did the "issuing houses" buy or underwrite the debentures or shares which it offers to the public? This information is almost invariably furnished by "issuing houses" whose prospectuses are advertised and exposed to the criticism of the Press. Almost invariably, however, it is absent from the particulars circulated among potential customers by the Investment Registry and other institutions doing business on similar lines. Yet the terms upon which an industrial or other trading company raises new debenture or share capital are obviously of importance as a practical indication of its position, and when that information is withheld by those who invite applications for the debentures or shares, the cautious investor will draw his own conclusion—especially if the offer comes from a "house" which out of its profits on occasional offers of this kind has to defray all the running expenses of an elaborate "free service" organization. By the way, the British Investors' Association asserts that "underwriting is one of the simplest and soundest of business transactions." Without disrespect to Lord Morris and Mr. Cousins, I venture to characterize that statement as nonsense. Inasmuch as it is coupled with a promise to give large and small investors alike "facilities to participate in the highest class of underwriting business," I believe that the majority of independent and competent financial authorities will agree with me that it is pernicious nonsense.—Truth.

The Laying of the Foundation Stone of the New Hall for the Star of the Sea Association in 1874.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

Now that the Star of the Sea Association, with commendable energy and enterprise, have once more raised their building from its ashes, perhaps it will be of interest to the younger members of the Society to know how their ancestors managed affairs during its formation half a century ago. If we take up the history of the Star of the Sea Society, and go back to the early days, we find that the ground upon which the new and the previous Star of the Sea Halls have been erected is the most sacred and historic in connection with the Catholic Church in Newfoundland. It was there that the old Chapel was erected and it was there that the first Bishop of Newfoundland, Rt. Rev. Dr. O'Donnell, first celebrated the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. We cannot write the history of the Church in Newfoundland without special and extended reference to the sacred ground upon which is erected the Star of the Sea Hall, and which has been so fully and beautifully described by our late illustrious prelate Archbishop Howley in his invaluable Ecclesiastical History. As I said above, I am certain that the younger members of the Society will peruse with deep interest an account of the laying of the Foundation Stone of the first Star of the Sea Hall in this city, and it will also refresh the memories of the few remaining veterans who took part in the proceedings on that memorable occasion in the days past and gone. It is for the younger members to uphold and maintain the good work begun by their ancestors and handed down the glorious object and the traditions of the Society by perpetuating the efforts of the founders from generation to generation.

STELLA MARIS.

Shortly after two o'clock on Sunday, May 24th, 1874, on the Feast of Pentecost the Society of the Star of the Sea, to the number of about one thousand men, formed into line in front of the Drill Shed, Military Road, and marched in procession to the right of the Old Chapel ground—the Band of the Society, as also Bennett's Band—were present. Shortly after three o'clock His Lordship the Most Rev. Dr. Power arrived accompanied by the Very Rev. Dean Cleary and nearly all the clergy. His Lordship immediately proceeded to lay the foundation stone, the Band meanwhile playing the "Pope's March." The stone having been well and truly laid His Lordship, accompanied by the clergy, returned to the Grand Stand erected for the purpose—the Band playing the air of the Hymn "Star of the Sea." Having arrived at the Grand Stand, it was proposed by Captain William Jackson, President of the Society, and seconded by the Very Rev. Dean Cleary, that the Bishop take the chair. The Most Rev. Dr. Power then spoke as follows:—"Mr. President and Gentlemen: I congratulate the Star of the Sea Association upon this most auspicious occasion. I regret that the wind is so high that it is almost impossible for an ordinary voice to be heard. However, this day is very auspicious. It is the anniversary of the establishment of the Catholic Church—commonly called Pentecost Sunday, and it is a day sacred in a special manner to the immaculate Virgin Mary—Star of the Sea—for it is also the Feast of the Help of Christians. On the 24th May, in the first quarter of this century, another Pope, Pius VII, having received especial aid through the intercession of the Star of the Sea, set aside this day in honor of the Help of Christians. As for myself it was on this day, 24th May, 4 years ago that I left Ireland for the Eternal City in order to be consecrated Bishop of St.

John's, Newfoundland (cheers). Upon this day, Pentecost Sunday, twenty years ago, as a young ordained Minister of the Gospel, I walked through the vine-yards of the Irish College in Rome, with Dr. Moran, now Bishop of Ossary, and Father O'Donnell of Dublin. The ground upon which we stand now is holy. It is now ninety years ago since Bishop O'Donnell raised the first Chapel in this city upon this very ground (cheers), and I may take the opportunity to refer to our Ven. Dean Cleary, who has been for fifty years associated with the history of that memorable pile. He will tell you that in the year 1825 he witnessed the raising up of the Bell on this very ground, which is now at St. Peter's Church, Queen's Street."

SACRED GROUND.

Rev. Father Ryan, the Spiritual Director, then spoke. He said: "There is another circumstance which ought to encourage and inspire you in the work, and that is—Your Hall is to be erected upon the ground sacred to every member of the Association—where the first Catholic Chapel was erected in Newfoundland. Owing to the prudent management of your Building Committee matters have been so arranged that the Foundation Stone, laid on this day by His Lordship, has been placed upon the very spot over which the Altar and the Tabernacle of the Old Chapel stood (cheers)."

FAMOUS SEAL KILLER SPEAKS.

Captain William Jackson, President of the Society, then addressed the Society. He said: "My Lord, Rev. gentlemen and gentlemen: "I feel it a great honor to be the President of the Star of the Sea Association. I only wish that I was qualified to give full expression to my feelings towards the Society. Every Society, gentlemen, requires a President. As I understand it, the President should be the servant of the Society. He is, it is true, the master in some ways. He presides at the meetings of the Society and is their organ and representative upon every official occasion. I did not join for office. When I saw a lot of men banding together, forming themselves into a Society for the purpose of mutual aid and support, and recognizing the praiseworthy object they had in view, and sanctioned and encouraged by the voice of the Church, I felt proud to form one in its ranks. They were pleased to confer the distinguished honour of President on me, and for that honour I feel indebted. There are many amongst us who may be blessed with means at present times, who in a short time may not be worth a shilling. The Star of the Sea Society provides for a contingency such as that, for in this respect it is a Benefit Society. If one of its members should unfortunately die in poverty, it will be a labor of love to the Society to see that he be respectably buried. We want to assist each other."

Isle of Death.

A good sized island in Puget Sound is apparently dying of old age. It was recently observed, says a correspondent, that every fir and cedar tree on the island was dead. About the water's edge vegetation appeared withered, and a thin vapour hung over the island during the day. Never inhabited, and about 100 acres in extent, the island has for years been noted for its growth of wonderful trees. Fir trees three feet in diameter grew so thickly as to make travel through them almost impossible. Both cedar and alder flourished. The ownership of this tract has been in litigation for some years, and the timber could not be logged. Now there is not a living thing on the island. Death stalks grimly over the trails worn by former denizens of this forest empire. Not a crow rests on the dead tops, and as boats pass an occasional crash tells of the falling of a great tree. Scientists who recently visited the island believe the land soiled. The growth of the trees and vegetation has been so rapid and dense as to exhaust the humus in the soil. Another theory is that the soil rests on a rock base, and the rootlets of the plants have come into contact with the brine of Puget Sound to such an extent that the salt has burned out the plant life. The vapour is caused by decaying vegetation. Birds keep away, as insects are few in dead timber.

Obituary.

MRS. LEVI SIMMONS.

Early Tuesday morning, 10th inst., there entered into rest Zilpah, relict of the late Levi Simmons. She had been residing with her son, Mr. Ernest Simmons, and was enjoying good health all along, despite the fact that she had reached beyond the three score years and ten—being in her 77th year. Shortly after tea hour on Monday last she complained of being ill, and when her condition did not change, later in the night Dr. Cron was called, who prescribed for her, and again at 5 a.m. the doctor was sent for a second time, but the end was very near, and came quite peacefully shortly after. Her passing, coming as it does so sudden and unexpectedly, is a great shock and surprise to her family and friends. Outside the family circle she will be missed, for, remembering the words of the Master, "Inasmuch as ye do it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye do it unto me," she was ever ready to cheer the sick and suffering and to extend a helping hand to the poor and needy. The funeral took place yesterday (Thursday) afternoon and was attended by a large concourse of people. Service was held at the Methodist Church, the pastor, Rev. W. H. Browning, officiating; and "in sure and certain hope of the resurrection" he remains were laid to rest in the Methodist Cemetery.

Beside her son, Mr. E. Simmons—one of our business men—there are left to mourn two daughters—Mrs. E. J. Cole of St. John's (who with her husband is now in town); Mrs. A. Pelley of Lisbon Falls; two brothers, Mr. Mark Pike of British Columbia and Mr. William Pike, and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Peddie, both of Bristol's Hope; also a large number of grandchildren and friends, to all of whom our sympathy is extended.—Com. Retail Grocers' Association.

Editor Evening Telegram, Dear Sir:—During the past few days the question has been put to me several times "What happened to the Association?" To the interested inquiries I might say that it is in the making, and must be made well. Associations that come to stay are not made overnight; finances and perfect organization machinery are necessary for their success and these essentials must be visible at the outset. One person even ventured to say "Somebody is falling asleep on the job;" but I have yet to see the same person assist the Association in any way. He hasn't even attended a meeting. The Association's executive are not falling asleep by any means. The office is now being put in readiness in Cowan & Co's Building. A large blackboard will be erected there, and will at all times contain barrels of information of direct interest to retailers; much of this will be generously supplied by wholesalers, manufacturers and brokers. Legislation will be applied for, co-operation will be sought after, and many social advantages will accrue. It is just a matter of a little time and a little patience. "Rome wasn't built in a day," so the "sanitary man" says. Sincerely yours, SECRETARY. Jan. 13, 1922.

Spider as Weather Prophet.

The spider is an excellent weather prophet Henri Fabre, the wonderful old man who found out so many of the secrets of insects and their kin, learned that the threads of the spider's web used for catching its prey are made useless by too much dampness. These threads, so tiny as to be almost invisible, are really hollow tubes filled with a sticky fluid which oozes through the walls and holds whatever touches the thread. This fluid readily absorbs the moisture from the air and would soon lose its sticky nature in the rain or ice. So the wise spider, loath to waste precious material, waits until the wet weather is virtually over before weaving the ensnaring threads. How it knows what the weather is to be is still one of the mysteries.

Fads and Fashions.

The necks of the latest frocks are finished in boat shapes or square. Odd circular draperies are used for side effects on the new gowns. A charming peasant dress consists of a red-and-white eyelid blouse worn with a candy-striped outer slip. Many suits coats are loose and baggy through the shoulders and center portion, but are tight around the hips.

A Rabbit's Foot.

Here we get the idea of darkness and the graveyard. The Egyptians were a very dark people, and sometimes statues and pictures of their gods were painted almost black. Hence the idea of a negro. The rabbit-headed god, besides his job in the underworld, was powerful for good among the Egyptians. The connection between this deity and the idea of a rabbit's foot being a bringer of luck and an amulet against evil is obvious. Eat MRS. STEWART'S Home Made Bread.—oct18.6mo
