Two fake lady collectors have been going the rounds soliciting donations for the Red Cross Fund. At the Moravian Fair it is said the two strange damsels did a land office business selling badges for what they could get for them, and pocketing the proceeds, sought newer fields for easy marks. As Hallowe'en fell on Sunday this year the young people thought it necessary to hold two celebrations, one on Saturday night and one on Monday night. The little fellows had a good time in the usual way and telt very important with their false faces and wierd lanterns and their harnless tricks were overlooked by the older people who laughed off the temporary annoyance. Some damage was done on Monday night, but not by the little ones. A mean act of vandalism was perpetrated at the Methodist church sheds, when some unprinci-pled parties took away the new iron gate at the shed entrance. To accomplish this it was necessary to cut the heavy lock chain with a cold chisel or som other instrument. Suspicion rests on several persons for this dispicable and lawless act, and if sufficient evidence is obtained a warrant will be issued for their arrest.

A gang of crooks infested the recent Ridgetown fair and succeeded in doing up a number of farmers, according to reports received by High Constable Peters of Chatham. Among those touched were Byron Robinson, ex-warden of Kent county, and Treasurer Coatsworth of Romney, who were robbed of $45 by pickpockets, and three other farmers report similar losses. One farmer re-ports that he was "stung" for $7.50 by an alleged "corn" doctor who offered to extract his corns for 75 cents but when the job was completed demanded and received $7.50.

On Friday afternoon of last week, parents and friends in S.S. No. 4 assembled at the school house to have a social hour with the teacher, Miss Grace S. Luckham, who is retiring from the teaching profession for a time. The pupils entertained the audience very creditably with lesson recitations, songs, calis-thenics and pass-time exercises, after which all joined in singing "Tipperary."
The most interesting event of the afternoon was the presentation and address, when Mr. Charles Richardson, one of trustees, asked Miss Luckham to come forward. Master Fred Kenzie read the following address while Misses Mildred Brent and Frieda Luckham presented painted vase and a handsome leat bound snap album. The address: Birnam S.S. No. 4,

Dear Miss Luckham:— It was with deepest regret that we learned of your intended departure from our school. The years we have spent together have been profitable and pleasant indeed and we had hoped that circumstances would allow you to continue in your work here. Before we part we wish to express our appreciation of the assistance you have rendered us. You have never failed to hold high ideals before us and fired our ambition when we were tempted to Oct. 29th, 1915. hold high ideals before us and fired our ambition when we were tempted to neglect our duties. More than this, pleasure and study were so skilfully interwoven that we shall always look back upon these months as the brightest of our school days. Dutton Advance :- Many a good patriotic address is marred by the speaker's promiscuous use of the word "England" for "Britain." Were the incorrect term used by uneducated men they might possibly be excused, but when university graduates use the incorrect word it is more annoying and sounds more harshly. Dutton audiences frequently complain of this misconstruing of "The English navy," "the English army" are terms frequently heard, when everyone knows that the army and navy are composed of English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh. Strange that these educated speakers would thoughtlessly go so far as to hurt the sensibilities of many in the audience and thus lessen the effect of an otherwise admirable address. We would suggest that when the next speaker addresses a Dutton audience and is tempted to fall into the errors of others that he would give the Empire its correct name-Great Britain.

The Agricultural Instruction Act

There has been issued at Ottawa the first report of the work accomplished by the province under the provisions of the Agricultural Instruction Act. It is entitled "Report of Agricultural Instruction Act, 1913-14" and embodies a full statement of the scope and nature of the measure followed by a review, in nine sections, of the work done in each province. A section is also devoted to the veterinary colleges of Canada, towards which $20,000 a year is granted. Another section covers the subjects of "Agricultural Education in Manitoba", Agricultural Instruction in Belgium". "School Consolidation" and other matters including a list, briefly explained, of the United States federal appropriations for Agricultural instruction. The report shows, among other things, that one hundred and fifty-five permanent instructors and many assistants, professors, supervisors, directors, demonstrators and many instructors have been appointed by the various provinces and are being provided for through the Agricultural Instruction Act. In addition, a large number of magnificient buildings have been erected from the funds throughout Canada. The report embodies one in addition to sixteen pages illustrating the buildings constructed. The report shows that the work done by each province is varied according to local needs and conditions. Much of it, however, is common to all the provinces and varies only in the method by which it is carried out. It is being distributed to applicants by The Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

Serving Dinner.
With the help of this suggestion women who do their own work and have a good deal of company can arrange things so that with the aid of their tea wagons they can serve four course dinners without getting up from the table or leaving the room. The cold dessert has presented many a problem, as well as the hot main course. One way to keep things hot after they are ready for the table is to put the serving dishes into a homemade "fireless" fixed up for the purpose. Line a large candy box with asbestos and paint it Tightly covered, things keep hot in it for fifteen or twenty minutes, giving time to get the first course out of the way. When you do not need this box to keep the main course hot use it to keep the dessert cold. It delays the melting of ice cream, for in-

Golf is enjoying a tremendous vogue this year, and the correct golf costume occupies an important position in the wardrobe of the outdoor girl.

The sartorial season has been dominated by stripes. Striped materials have been used for blouses, afternoon and even evening dresses, though for these they are often veiled in tulle. They have invaded the domain of millinery, and they appear on parasols and even shoes, cushions and wall paperings. As the season advances the tendency seems for stripes to grow wider, and certainly some of these widely barred muslins—in blue and white, for instance—have a very smart effect for shirt waists.

Some of the finer kinds of striped voile now being worn are perfectly charming. And what infinite care has been spent in the designing of them! One was in pale gray, with a broad white stripe, the skirt several yards wide and finished with wide tucks. In front it had an apron effect on fine white fillet lace, which, carried up above the belt, formed a vest for the bodice, the fronts of which were crossed lightly over it. It was finished by a flaring collar and cuffs of embroidered white muslin and a folded waist belt of black moire ribbon, with long

Mrs. Galt's Telephone

Announcement is made from Washington that Mrs. Galt, whom President Wilson is to marry, has had to disconnect her telephone. Friends, reporters, the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, all are busy at it. Poor Mrs. Galt! Poor humanity! To curiosity the telephone is the devil's own weapon, while as to business it prevents any home being sacred. One can't get away from the telephone except by cutting it out, and if you cut it out you can't get at anybody else.

Couldn't we all resolve to be more reticent in the use of it? Lots of us call up others at their homes on business matters. We shouldn't do it. Most of us when we telephone talk too long, particularly when we are ladies. A good many of us telephone when we don't really have to. Some of us sometimes use stronger language than we would do face to face. All of us are impatient with the hello girl, and some of us swear when we hadn't ought to.

NUTE AND COMMENT

Germany objects to Britain and France employing colored troops in the war. But these are gentlemen compared to the men who ravaged Belgium and who are murdering the Armenians.

As an evidence of the great part being played by Great Britain in financing the war, it is stated that before the present financial year expires on March 31st of next year, advances to the British allies and Dominion will probably exceed four and one-half million dollars.

On the shooting of Miss Cavell in Belgium the United States Leg-"A German reply referred the Legation to Attorney Kirschen, who had been assigned for the defence. Attorney Kirschen stated Miss Cavell was being prosecuted for helping soldiers cross the frontiers and that lawyers defending prisoners before a German military court were not allowed to see their clients before trial." If anybody tells you that we are not fighting for freedom show him this statement.-Cornwall Stand-Stratford Beacon-If the purpose of the German authorities was to carry fear to the hearts of the British people by the execution of Miss Cavell they could not have made a greater mistake. She has helped the British cause more by her death than she could have done by her life. More than ten thousand British have enlisted to register their indigmation at this foul crime.

There are shirkers in every walk of life, and while the large majority, we are glad to say, give willingly and generously to every patriotic fund there are other small-souled selfish individuals who give nothing, or as little as possible. It would seem as if; in order to shoulder the burden evenly a government tax would have to be instituted, assessed by government officials with authority to examine bank accounts, business books, etc., of everyone.— Thamesville Herald.

A Dutch publicist calls attention to the fact that while Great Britain's expenditure of twenty million dollars a day is only half of the British nation's income, the German expenditure of twenty-five millions a day is nine-tenths of her yearly income. He shows the effect of this contrast by pointing out that Germany has only fifteen dollars per head to sustain seventy million people, while Great Britain has a hundred and fifty dollars a head for forty-five millions On the strength of these statistics he predicts that "Germany will be beaten economically and financially in the not distant future."

Montreal, Nov. 1,
Dear——, While in London recently I came in touch with a little cently I came in touch with a little incident, which I think will please you. I attended, one day, at noon, a recruiting meeting in front of the Mansion House. A great crowd of men and women listened to the recruiting sergeants, all of whom had "done their bit" at the front.

A lady, with a magnificent voice, sang patriotic songs, which, perhaps were more effective than the speeches of the recruiting sergeants. At the close of the meeting it was announced that after "The Women's National Anthem."
Then in splendid voice she sang:

'God save our splendid men Send them safe home again God save our men. Keep them victorious, Patient and chivalrous, They are so dear to us.

God save our men."

As she sang, every man stood, uncovered and with bowed head, and there were not many dry eyes.

I think it would be a good thing if the women of Canada would learn this as "The British Women's National Anthen" for surely it is the prayer of every loyal British woman.

After the meeting I went up to the After the meeting I went up to the singer, fianded her my card, and asked her for the words she had just sung. When she saw that I was from Montreal she said "Oh, I sang in Montreal, and I will be glad to send the words to the women of Canada."

Distribution of Seed Grain and Potatoes

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a free distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples will consist of spring wheat (about 5 lbs.) white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs.) and field peas (about 5 lbs.) These will be sent out from Ottawa.

A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lbs.)

will be sent out from Ottawa.

A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lbs. samples) will be carried on from several of the Experimental Farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

The destruction by fire of the cereal building at Ottawa, which contained grain-cleaning machinery and a large stock of seed grain for distribution, may make it necessary to curtail the distribution to a certain extent. We shall fill as many as possible of the applications which conform to the rules; but requests received after the end of December will probably be too late. Samples cannot be sent in response to applications (no matter when received) which fail to state clearly the needs of the applicant, his experience in crop-raising, and the character of the soil on which he intends to sow the seed.

Three weeks ago Fred Brooker, of North Ridge, was seriously injured by a kick from a horse, rendering him unconscious, and fracturing several bones of his face from which, it is expected, he will not recover for some months to come. One day last week his Masonic and Oddfellow brethern of Essex, to the number of seventy, showed a splendid brotherly feeling by husking, picking up and drawing in ten acres of corn for Mr. Brooker.

THE HAUNTED PORTRAIT

How the Ghost Was Unearthed

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The Baker homestead stood on a hill and alone. It was a bleak looking place in winter and after David Baker's death was suffered to fall into semidecay. David Baker's nephew. Edward. went there occasionally in the autumn to use the place for a hunting box. One autumn he persuaded his friend James Laidlaw to go there with him. There was a portrait of Nicholas Baker hanging on the wall, and during an evening, after a hunt, the following conversation occurred between the two men while they smoked:

"Do you really mean that you wish to sell your uncle's portrait?" asked Laidlaw incredulously.

"Yes," returned Baker shortly. "One doesn't usually sell family porraits," hinted his friend.

Baker lighted another cigar and pushed the box toward Laidlaw. "Of course I would not dream of such a thing," he apologized, "but"-

He glanced quickly at the great oil painting over the mantelpiece "But?" prompted Laidlaw. "The confounded thing has got on my nerves!"

"It watches me."

"All portraits appear to do that." "I know what you mean, Jim, but this is different. The eyes not only watch me continually, but they change expression. Sometimes they positively glare at me murderously." He shiv-

"Better close the place and go away." "I did last spring, but I haven't been able to keep even a caretaker here, and then, you know, came that series of robberies in the neighborhood, and so I'm rather sticking around to keep an eye on my own property."

"You say you can't keep any servants? You mean they believe the place

"That's the idea. Men and maids declare they hear footsteps and hissing whispers and all that rot." "You haven't seen or heard anything out of the ordinary?" asked Laidlaw. "Nothing except the eyes." Laidlaw glanced up at the portrait of Nicholas Baker. It represented the head and shoulders of a mild eyed old gentleman dressed correctly in black. In the dimming light of the library the snowy shirt front and collar and the abundant white hair and whiskers stood out sharply.

The gray eyes gazed benignly upon the two men.
"I can't imagine your mild uncle, Nicholas, looking fierce," smiled Laidlaw, looking at Ned Baker. Baker was staring fixedly at the portrait. "Look now!" he muttered be-tween clinched teeth.

Laidlaw looked. "Good heavens!" he gasped in astonishment. Nicholas Baker's face still wore that expression of benevolent pity, but the eyes were no longer gray and mild.

They were fiercely rolling in their sockets-black, black as night. Baker switched on the electric lamp, but the eyes remained the same, flashing angrily from one man to another.

"What do you make of that?" denanded Baker, poking the fire into a Laidlaw studied the glowing end of his cigar. His hand shook a little, and he was angry with himself for feeling that thrill of borror.

He looked up at the portrait, intending to stare it out of countenance, but what he saw was a pair of kindly gray eyes regarding him fixedly,

"The deuce!" he exploded, leaping to his feet. "What ails the thing?" Baker smiled wearily. "It's got you, too, eh?"

Laidlaw sank back in his chair and stared at the fire. "You thought of selling the portrait,"

he said at last. "Would you feel bad if anything happened to it?" "Something will happen to it, and soon!" growled Baker. "I've an idea," murmured Laidlaw.

Baker laughed harshly. "You needn't whisper," he gibed. "It isn't likely his ears are on duty as well as his eyes."
Laidlaw smiled quietly. "We are dining out, I believe," he said, with a quick change of topic.

"Yes, and, Jove, it's time to dress!" Ned Baker jumped up and rang a bell. After a long while a woman poked her head in the door. She wore a hat and cloak.

"Where is Ames, Nora?" asked Baker in a displeased tone.

"Please, sir, he's left, and Hannah and Mary and I'm going this minute. We're sorry, Mr. Baker, but it's the ghosts. We can't stand it no longer!" She vanished, and in the distance an outer door closed noisily.

Baker laughed. "I paid them today.

> til the month was up. Well, Jim, I guess we'll have to close up the house and go back to town." "I hate to lose that quail shooting,"

They managed to calm their fears unsaid Laidlaw, yawning.

A clock in the hall struck 6. "We must dress," said Baker, "but first I'm going around to lock up. "I'll go with you," volunteered the dryly. As they left the front hall to enter the motorcar which Baker had brought around to the dior Laidlaw switched off the lights from the whole house. "What"- began Baker, when Laidlaw's grip on his arm stilled him. "Go on out and say nothing," whis pered Laidlaw, and the mystified host meekly obeyed. As soon as they had left the gates of the estate Laidlaw spoke: "Put out your lights, run the machine into the field yonder, in the shadow of the trees, then beat it back to the house by the shortest cut. You'll see something." "And the dinner engagement?" was

"Can go hang." Five minutes later they stole through the grape arbor and reached the kitch-

Baker's only objection.

"It's open," whispered Baker, "though I locked it myself before we left!" "I unlocked it so we could enter quietly," confessed Laidlaw. "Come now to the library, and I think we can lay Uncle Nicholas' ghost. Have you got a gun?"

"In the drawer of my desk. Evidently you consider the ghost a material one," hazarded Baker. "Just a guess on my part."

They tiptoed through the utter darkness of the house, Baker leading the way, until they were within the velvet blackness of the library. Laidlaw locked the door and slipped the key in his pocket. Baker had found his revolver, and the two friends groped toward each other until they met in front of the smoldering fire. Laidlaw leaned over and smothered the embers with ashes.

"Where is the light switch?" he whis-

"Right here, almost under my hand." "Switch on the light when I tell you and have your gun ready." "This is pure melodrama," groaned room, came the creak of a board as if under a cautious tread. Something moved behind the panel-Even the skeptical host knew that it was not the sound of scurrying mice. The sounds continued until they became distinct footfalls.

Baker. "Hark! What was that?" Laidlaw's hand gripped him into silence.

"Ready!" warned Laidlaw, crouching forward and facing the left end of the Baker's finger hovered over the but-

There was a creak as of an opened door and a gust of cedar perfumed air. And there was the indefinable feeling that they were not alone in the room. There was another presence in the library. "Now!" breathed Laidlaw, and instantly the room was flooded with light, Baker's amazed eyes saw his friend crouched forward, a revolver in each hand. The blue noses of these weap-ons were covering two men, who stared in absurd dismay while they reluctant-ly put up their hands at arms' length ve their heads.

They were shifty eyed, evil faced fellows, with lithe, slender forms and small hands and feet.

They cursed bitterly as Baker searched them and deprived them of their weapons as well as two complete sets of burglars' tools.

The black eyed man rolled his eyes fiercely as Baker neatly tied his wrists and ankles with curtain cords. When the same thing had been done for his companion Laidlaw lowered his guns and moved to the telephone. "I'll just call up the nearest police station-that will be New Lorimerand tell them to come over and get this precious pair. I guess it's the end of these neighborhood robberies." It was almost dawn when they returned to the house and faced each other across the library table.

"And now for your uncle's ghost," laughed Laidlaw, opening the narrow door in the chimney end. It was a small cupboard, with a bookshelf in the back.

They searched and found the spring mentioned by Beebe, the burglar, and Gin Pills are acknowledged to have the largest sale of any proprietary medicine in Canada—an achievement solely due to their remarkable virtue as a Kidney and Bladder remedy.

But users of Gin Pills have discovered that this invaluable remedy. also acts as a mild cathartic. The evidence of hundreds of letters we have received establishes the very logical fact that in compounding a medicine to heal and time up the Kidneys and Bladder certain of the ingredients have a stimulating effect upon the other organs, especially the bowels. It is important to know, in the case of constipated patients, that Gin Pills do not act harshly on the bowels; there is no griping, but a gradual and gentle restoration of the function. Try Gin Pills for constipation. In thus relieving the bowels, you safeguard yourself against possible Kidney trouble.

when the bookcase had opened and disclosed a narrow staircase winding up they mounted the stairs until they were directly behind Mr. Nicholas Dane's portrait.

A sliding panel revealed the canvas of the portrait, and an ingenious little contrivance, of which the clever Beebe sullenly admitted himself the inventor, enabled one to pull a string, where upon the partially cut out eyebalis the picture flapped inside and enabled Mr. Jim Beebe to roll his wild black eyes at Ned Baker or any other intruder in the library.

It appeared that Beebe had an accomplice in the house in the person of Ames, Baker's butler. It was Ame who had discovered the secret stairway which led to an unsuspected room in the middle of the attic. This room had served as a hiding place for the burglars, and its existence was not even known to Baker himself.

In the course of time Ames was captured and, with his confederates, is serving a term in the penitentiary. Ned Baker has no trouble in keeping

SHIP CANALS.

Each Has Troubles of Its Own That Require Constant Care.

Leave any ship canal alone for even a year and it would no longer be fit for navigation. Within five years a small boat would be unable to go through it. The United States has anxieties over the Culebra cut in the Panama, but not more so than the Germans over their waterway, the Kiel canal, for the ground through which the latter is cut is in most places nothing but peatrotten black stuff which keeps on breaking up and falling back into the

Also the bottom continually "bumps up," thus lowering the depth of the passage. The craft that use the Kiel canal have to crawl along. They say that if a cruiser were to make a dash through at top speed it would take a year and several millions of money to remedy the damage done by her stern

Each canal has its own special trou bles. That of the Panama is landslides. Many have taken place during its construction. Many more will have to be dealt with in coming years. It is estimated that if the dredging work on the Suez were abandoned within less than ten years the Turks or any one else could cross it dryshod. On both sides of the canal stretch miles of dry desert, from which every wind that blows lifts the sand in edging spirals and carries it in great clouds. A single storm may drop a thousand tons of sand into one mile of the canal.

Of late years a great quantity of trees have been planted along the banks in order to prevent the sand from drifting into the water, yet even so great steam dredgers are always at work scooping from the bottom the blown in sand and dumping it along the shore. Another trouble of those in charge of the Suez canal is caused by fresh water springs, which burst up in its deep bed and pile the sand in ridges. GET READY THE SILO.

It will save time if the silo and machinery are all ready before they have to be used. All siles should be cleaned thoroughly and any leaks or weak places repaired. A thin cement wash can be applied to stone, brick, or concrete walls. Wood silos may be painted with boiled linseed oil or ot creosote. One gallon of the latter will cover 200 square feet of surface, two coats. The creosote should be heated to just under the boiling point, but care must be taken to prevent its boiling over into the fire. A large kettle like those used in making soft soan is suitable for heating and the creosote may be applied with a brush the same as in painting, allowing the first to dry

August and September Rains Often Make Autumn Plowing Advisable

The average yields of spring crops, such as wheat, oats and corn, in the great plains area from spring and from fall plowing show that the blind following of a rule prescribing any particular time of plowing might cause a reduction as often as it does an increase in the yields. The great variation in the time and amount of precipitation in this region must be constantly kept in mind when considering the time of plowing. No dependence can be placed on a heavy precipitation in August and September, yet it frequently occurs. As moisture is considered the most important factor in crop production in the great plains area, its conservation is the primary object in cultivation.

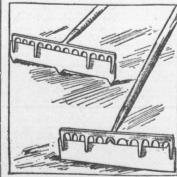

Stubble, weeds and uneven ground and holding a large part of the winter precipitation. In deciding when a field should be plowed, the question of whether a greater amount of moisture will be accumulated by holding the snow that falls than will be dissipated by the growth of weeds is paramount. It must be decided by the man on the ground. In answering this question several factors must be considerednamely, the amount of moisture already in the soil that may be lost through weed growth, the probable time before the weeds will be killed by frost, the possibility of increasing the water in storage in the soil by holding the snow that may come, the danger of soil blowing if the stubble and weeds are removed and the distribu-

In deciding the time to plow the advantages and disadvantages of both spring plowing and fall "lowing must rains in August indicate that fall plowing should be done, as the gain of moisture during the winter by the stubble land probably would not equal the loss of moisture taken by the weeds in the fall. If only light rains occur, however, the moisture in the soil produced by these rains probably would be more than offset by the greater quantity of snow held by the stubble during the winter and the reduction of the weeds in the crop. Spring plowing would then be better. The availability of labor in the fall will influence the amount of plowing done, but a greater effort should be made to do the plowing if there is heavy precipitation than if the rainfall is light. The only advantage in late fall plowing is that the amount of spring labor in preparing the seed bed is reduced.

Seed Row Drills.

A good way to make drills or seed rows of uniform width and depth is to have an attachment for the garden rake as shown in the sketch, writes Bert W. Verne of San Diego, Cal., in Popular Mechanics. The device consists of a piece of tin or sheet metal edge of the width of the rows. The other edge of the metal is inserted between the teeth on the rake. Thus it can be easily drawn over the garden-bed to mark the rows. After the seed-has been planted reverse the tin and use it as a hoe for filling the row.

Wireless Telephony

Sir Oliver Lodge in a recent inter view expressed the opinion that wireless telephony was the one useful invention which had been developed to a practictl stage under the stimulus of war. The remarkable success achieved by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company in sending a wireless telephone message from Arlington, Va., to the Eiffel Tower, Paris, a distance of 3,800 miles, is a tremendous advance in the practical experiments that have been carried on in various countries during the past few years. Until the recent triumph between Arlington and Paris, the longest distance at which conversations were plainly heard was between California and Virginia, two thousand miles apart. Before that the record was held by the Telefunken Company which established wireless telephone communication between Berlin and Vienna, a distance of 375 miles. The Germans have made considerable progress in wireless telephony, although the utmost secrecy now prevails regarding its use in war. It is stated that their submarines are fitted with a wireless telephone apparatus. It is known that conversations have been carried on between the German coast and a cruiser on the high seas with a wireless instrument invented by Count

Arco. Several wireless telephone systems are now in operation. Mr. Marconi has been experimenting for some time, and may be expected soon to report progress. In 1909 two French naval officers. Lieutenants Colin and Jeance, invented an apparatus which can be used for telephonic as well as telegraphic purposes, and last year were able to carry on a conversation over a distance of sixty miles. Last year also a Yorkshire mining firm installed a system in use in German collieries. Portable instruments, weighing about twenty pounds each, enable the miner to communicate

Letter From Pte. Thomas Lamb

Thos. Lamb of Watford, who joined the 28th Batt. at Winnipeg, and is now at the front, writes to his father, Mr. Wm. Lamb, as follows:—

Belgium, Oct. 14th 1915.

Belgium, Oct. 14th 1915.

DEAR FATHER—Just a few lines to let you know I am well, hoping this finds you all the same.

The British have made a few small advances to the south of here. We have some of the largest guns in France be-hind us. Have been in the trenches eleven days altogether and ten days in reserves. We go back to the firing line on Monday night, about a mile from here. We go for a bath to-day. It is about eight miles return to the bathing place. How would you like to go that far for a bath?

The crop of 1914 is still standing around here although it is rather thin, caused by wind and troops passing through.

On Oct. 8th the Germans gave us quite a bombardment and blew up a large mine. We had quite a few casualties. Our artillery came back at them the following night and gave then hell. An aerial observer reports that the Huns were carrying out their dead and wounded all day Sunday. Graves are very numerous around the trenches. Snipers are also very numerous. I heard of a clever piece of business last night. A German sniper was sniping behind the German sniper was sniping behind the British lines. He was dressed in the uniform of a Highlander and was lying stiff on the ground, One of a British bunch went out to find him. He waited

PAIN IN THE BACK

Usually Comes from Muscular Rheumatism 1

Do not worry about a pain in the back. The worry will do you more harm than the pains. The cause of most backaches is muscular rheumatism, which is painful enough, but not fatal. Lumbago is a form of muscular rheumatism, so is a stiff neck. Sufferers from any form of rheumatism should keep their general health up to the highest standard by the use of a blood building tonic like Dr. Williams Pink Pills, while taking good, nourishing food, without taking good, nourishing food, without too much meat. Proper nutrition and pure blood are the best means of fighting rheumatism. Rheumatism comes from rheumatism. Rheumatism comes from an acid in the blood, build it up-strengthen the system, and drive out the poisonous acid that causes rheumatism. In this way sufferers have found comnths way sufferers have found complete recovery as is shown by the following case: Mrs. Samuel Childerhouse, Orillia, Ont., says:—"About three years ago I was greatly afflicted with a severe pain in the back, which I thought at first was due to kidney trouble. I tried a number of remedies but they did not help me any in fact the pain was greatly and the pain was greatly as the same any in fact the pain was greatly and the pain was greatly as the pain was gre number of remedies but they did not help me any, in fact the pain was growing worse, and got so bad that I was quite unable to do my housework. I could not even sweep a floor. I was advised to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills, and I am glad I acted upon the advice, for before I had been taking the Pills long the pain began to subside, and under the the pain began to subside, and under the continued use disappeared entirely, and I have not since been bothered with it in any way. My husband was also cured of a severe attack of indigestion by this

You can get Dr. Williams Pink Pills-from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
