venue of about tensive but ill. are mites. The ny calcuiations as to the population, number of viliages, or revenue, arising from it. From personal observation, however, 1 can state that the part of Tipperah ciaimed as independent is not all hilly, but includes many ievel wellwatered vallies, admirably suited for agriculture ; but which are, in general, neglected and wholly unoccupied, owing to the unwillingness of the lowlanders to aubject themselves to the rapacity and tyranny of the Rajah and his officers ; a few spots, however, as at Anger Coilah and Killaisur, are under cultivation, and might, if assessed, yield a revenue to the state of about $$, 000$ rupees.

No. 4.-Nortimbn Cachar.-Under this designation I include the mountainous country recently held by Tooleram, the chicftnin whom I have found it necessary to arrest with a view to bring him to trial for the murder of two of the inhabitants of the country of Dhurumpore, now heid in attachment by a Sazawul deputed for that purpose by Mr. Scott. This region does not appear of sufficient importance in any point of view to merit particular notice. Its inhabitants, I understand, belong chiefly to the Cacharee and Marec tribes, and are not more hostile than, from their relative position, it is natural to expect. Licutenant Fisher is now engaged in forming an arrangement with them for the future government of this country, and this will, ere long, form the subject of a separate despatch.

Next to the states above detailed in the order of geographical progression, follows the confederation of petty chiefs by whom the Khoseat Mountains have hitherto been held.

These are said to be 30 in number; but it is unnecessary, with reference to the immediate object of this despatch, to euter into detail with regard to any but the following :-

No. 23 - Bootnn.-From Chnrdour, in Lower Assam, to the country of the Sikhem Puttec our fronticr, for an extent of about 200 miles , touches that of lootan. Along the line a tract of the low lands, originally acquired perhnps by suiferance, has gradually hecome the unquestioned right of this state; on it, indect, they appear to be entircly dependent for grain, as the population is described as being considernble, and far beyond what they cond raise food for in the narrow vallies of their own hills. This circumstance places it in our power, in case of a rupture, to reduce Bootan to our terms by merely shutting the doors or passes during the cold season, and preventing its subjects from coming to the plains or receiving any supplics therefrom. Should it prove further necessary to retain the tract of low land in our own possession, the consequent expense might be met by the estahlishment of hants or markets, on the principle of those in the Goulparagh district, which, on the Bootan frontier, would prove a most plentiful source of revenue.

Of the internal state of Bootan, little more is known now than may be gathered from Captain Turner's Narrative of his Embassy to Thilhet, in 1783. A more recent account of the country may probably liave been given to the world by Mr. Manning, who lived for a long time at Lassa; but this I have not the means of ascertaining.

I hope, while in Assam, to be able to collect much more information; but I can now add little to what is in print.

The envoys who recently visited me at Cherra were men of low rank and little intelligence. From what I could gather from them, it does not appear that the Chinese exercise a much greater influence than they did in Turner's time, either over the undying superior, the Dhurram Rajah or Sama, or his mortal vassal, the Deb Rajah or inmedinte ruler of Bootan.

The Booteas are notoriously an unwarlike race, and, from the little which I have seen of their demcanour towards us, I am inclined to think that they have less of the overweening arrogance of the demi-barbarian than might he expected from their political and moral situation. A rupture with this state will only be formidable as indicating that it has the countenance of another and grenter power behind it.

Note.-The independent chieftains of Buadlecund bave, during a long course of years, and at the periods when the British Government was engaged in protracted warfare with other states, invariably shewn their attachment to British supremacy. During the Malratta war of $1 \times 17-1 \times$, the protection of the numerous passes, or Ghants, into the province, was entrusted to them. During the lBurmese war, not mercly were offers to assist with their forces submitted, but the commissaliat department was materially aided by the voluntary assistance received.from them. During the siege of Bhurtpore, supplies of grain were forwarded from the states nearest the seene of action to the army; and when the Fort of Calpee was attached by a rebel subject of Salown, the Sumpthur troops, at the request of this office, immediately proceeded to the protection of Koonah, whilst the forces of Oprchah, Jhansi and Duttiah advanced, on the agent's application, to effect his reduction. In the fidelity of the Bondelah states, implicit confidence may he reposed; their attachment to British rule originates in self interest. Under no previous government did they at any time enjoy their possessions free from all demand, either of service or tribute. Their uuion for the attainment of a common object, is a chimera. Between the Boondelahs and Mabrattahs a deeply-rooted antiputhy has long existed, and time has not diminished it ; Jhansi would fall an easy prey to Oorehah and Duttiah, and Jaloun could not support its existence against the aggressions of the Juggut Raj branch of the Chuttersal's family. The several memhers against one of that family, bold each other in mutual distrust and aversion; and as the portion of the province held by the British Government is not claimed by the Boondelabs, as it formed the undisputed part of the ex-peshwa's possesssions, obtained by the adoption of his ancestor by Chuttersal, they would in nll probability conmit an aggressive act against it, but would turn their arms against each other, if any general fernent should exist in British India: for cach alleges a right to some prition of his neighbour's territory. 1.-General account of the state of Calcutta in 1717.

As the Court of Directors may prohably wish to have some general acemont of the state of the town of Calcutt:, the following (being extracted from my proposed statistien reports) may be aceppable. 'Ithe acconnts of several respectable natives (collected by my nssistnot, Mr. Blapuiere) correspoud in the following description of Calcutin, in the year 171\%, viz.:

1. That the present town was a village appertuhe. ing to the Zillah of Nudtere.
2 . The houses were scattered about in elusters of 10 or 12 in each, and the inhobitants chicfly lins. bandmen.
2. $\Lambda$ forest existed to the southward of the Chaundpanl Ghaut, which was afterwards removed by degrees.
3. Between Kiddepoor and the forest were two villages, whose luhabitants were invited to settle in Calcutta by the ancient family of the Seals, who were at that time merchants of great mote, and very instrumental in bringing Calcutta into the form of a town.
4. The new fort and esplanades are the sites where this forest and the two villages formerly stood.
5. The present old inhahitants of the town recol. leet a creek, whieh ran from Chaundpaul Glinut to Ballia Ghaut. They say that the drain before the government house is where it took its course; and there is a ditch to the south of a garden, it the Bytakiannah, which bears evident traces of the coll. tinuntion of this creek.
6. There was a small village, consisting of a few straggling houses, surrounded by filthy puddles of water and trees, where the elegant houses nt Chouringee now stand.
7. Calcutta may be said to have extended northward as far as the Chitpore Bridge, if uncultivated ground covered with wildernesses may be said to liave composed a part of it. There was no high road, and it was dangerous to travel at late hours from robbers infesting the paths.

In 1742, a ditch was dug round a considerable part of the present boundaries of Calcutta, to prevent the incursions of the Mahrattas, the expense of which was defrased by an assessment on the imhabitants of the town.

It appears by Major Orme's History of the War in Bengal, that at the time of the capture of Calcutta, in 1756 , there were about 70 houses belonging to the English.

What are now called the Esplanade, the site of the New Fort, the Comrse and Chowringee, were cien at that period (with all the territory more than 800 yds . to the castward) a complete jungle interspersed liore and there with a few huts, and small parcels of grazing and arable land.

Some tolerable iden may be formed of the state of the town of Calcutta in the beginning of 1795 , from the two following statements:-

N.-Surat Population.

Note.-The foregoing return is signed "Jnhn Rnmer, Magistrate;" I give it, as I do several nthers of population in this Appendix, for the purpose of stlmulating further inquiries into the important subject of the popuiation of British India. I am aware of the difticnltiea in the way of olitainitg corrcet censuses, owing to the jealousy of the natlves; but this difficulty may be frot over by prudence and kindness. We possess no eorrect eensus of any Distriet in British fadia exeept those given in this volume, and several of these are not to be relied on. 1 am strongly of opinion tinat in many parts there is a deereasing population ; and that although several distriets in Beugal are densely peopled, the greater patt of our territory la but thinly inhabited. It is intended to establish Portuguese llergis classes. There is a library and museum in connection with this useful finstitution, the founders of which deserve great credit.

K K.-Education in Bengal.-The district of Nattore has an area of ahout $\mathbf{3 5 0}$ square miles. It eontnins 485 villages, occupied by 30,028 families, of which 10,095 are Hindu, and 19,933 Mussulman. The total population is 195,296 , of whom 100,579 are males, and 94,717 are females; there are, therefore, on an average, 62 families, or 400 individuals, in a village.

Of the total population 34,939 or 179 per cent. are under 5 years of age.

The number of uative elementary schools in the district is 27 , of which 11 are Hindu and 16 Mussulman. They contain 262 boys. The number of native schools of learning is 38 , all of which are llindu. They contain 397 male students. In 1,588 families, of which 1,277 are Hindu, and 311 are Mussulman, the children are recelving occasional domestic instruction. On an average of one and a half child to each family, the number of children in this class will be 2,382. Thus the total number of males receiving instruction is 3,041 , of whom $2,6.14$ are between 5 and 14 , or $11 \cdot 6$ per cent. of the whole male population between those ages. Females receive no education whatever. Of the adult male population, amounting to 59,500 souls, only 6,121 , or 10.3 per cent., possesses even the most insignificant degree of instruction. If the non-adult population be added, it will appear that out of 100,579 males, only 8,765 , or $8 \cdot 7$ per cent., possesses or are aequiring any kind of instruction; and, if the female population be added, the proportion will be further reduced to $4: 5$ per cent.- [Omicial Report.]

L L.-Recent circumstances have directed public attention to the trade between British India and the Persian Gulf and coast of Arabia; this trade is of considerable value, if properly cultivated, and it would be very desirable to form commercial factories in the Persian Gulf and in the Red Sea, for the purpose of securing this increasing and lucrative traffic.

The merchandize imported into Calcutta for the years ending 1827, from the Persian Gulf and Arabia, amounted to S. R. $85,87,046$, and the treasure to S.R. $86,67,716$. The exports were S.R. 2,19,22,141, which trade was carried on in 50 English ships, with a tonnage of 20,000 , and 80 Arah sbips, comprising 35,000 tons. The trade of Madras was, of course, less. The average annual value of the trade between Calcutta and the Persian Gulf is S. R. $55,96,845$; between the Gulf and Madras, S. R. $5,49,819$; and between Bombay and the Gulf, S. R. 72,24,971.

Allowing only 160 rupees a candy，as the average value of cotton throughout the season，it may be cstimated as worth 232 lakhs of rupecs．

Opium．－The export of opium，which stands second on the list，was as follows ：－In 1829，3，120 chests； $1830,3,506$ ；1831， 4,472 ；1832，10，105 $\frac{1}{2}$ ；1833， 6,937 ；1834， 11,206 ；1835， 8,785 ；1836， $16,234 \frac{1}{2}$ ．
The great inerease displayed in 1832 was princi－ pally owing to the abolition of the Company＇s mono－ poly of the drug．Estimating the value of the exports last year at 1,050 rupees a chest，they would，in round numbers，be worth 170 lakhs of rupees．

3 B.-tamee of eathin coins.

[Prepared at the Assay Ollice, Calcutta Mint, in November, 1832, by H. II. Wilson, Esq, Assay Master.]

The following tables comprise the weight, staudard, pure contents, intrinsic value, and mint price of most of the gold and silver coins current in various parts of Ludia, and of a lew European coins imported into that country.

The weight and pure contents are expressed in troy grains. The standard of the gold is valued in carats, of the silver in pernyweights, and their respeetive subdivisions; a quarter of a carat grain and a halt pennwwight being the lowest limit of valuation. The relative standard, or the betterness and worseness, has reference to the standard of the Caleutta coins, which both gold and silver are composed of 11 parts fine, and 1 of alloy; or, in the terms of the tables, the gold of $2:!$ carats pure and 2 carats alloy, and the silver of 220 pemnyweights ( 11 oz .) fine, and 20 pennyweights ( 1 oz .) alloy.

The intrinsie value of the coins is the relative value of their pure metal, as compared with the value of the pure contents of the gold mohur and Calcutta rupee. The mint priee is what they would realize in the Calcutta mint, after paying any charges for refinage, should soch be necessary in consequence of inferiority of standard, and a deduction from the nett value of two per cent. as coinage duty.

The intrinsic value and mint price have heen calculated upon 100 pieces of each kind of corrency, as the most convenient mode of expressing their valuation. The sitver coius are valued in rupees; the gold in gold mohurs and decimal parts; to determine the value of these in rupecs, it is only necessary, for the regulation value, to multiply the mint price by 16 ; for the Bazar price, by the price of the day; thas, the tirst item of the gold table, or Ahmedy lagoda, may be valued:

The rates of rupee and pice may be expeeted to vary, but the following are now in tise- 12 small pice $=1$ large one, or kabean; 40 kabean $=1$ Madras rupee; 44 ditto $=$ I sicea rupee; $8 &$ ditto $=1$ Spanish dollar. These are the sume that are used throughout the Burmese Empire, which are made at Ara, and distributed to the provinces. They change their shapes upon the accession of a new king. The present weights are called To afle, or lion weights, as they represent that animal according to the Berman conception of it. Those of the last reign are termed Himst alle, being made in the shape of the Hansie, or goose. The weight of both kinds is the same. Merasures.-2 nechi teden $=1$ temelaum ; 100 tabisa $=1$ teiya or coyan. The tendaum is a basket, by which alone grain is measured. It is equal to 18 viss or 40 penang catties. The measure of lengtl is the cubit, of which there are two sorts- the tondan of about 18 inches, and the saundaum of 22 . The latter is termed the King's Cubit, being used in measuring crown lands.

Weigats and Measures. From the Appemdia' to the Itinerary of IVestern India of Captain John Clunes.Throughout India, and particularly the Decean, a very considerable diversity prevails not merely in every distriet, but in every village, in measures, whether of weight, length or capacity; nor are the sub-divisions to be found in a determimate proportion of each other. To whatever this may be owing, whether to the want of a common or universal standard in former times, the decay, or abrasion of the measure and weights, the knavery of the owners of them, or to the apathy or comivance of the mative district authorities, is probably immaterial, but the present ill defined system must be felt by all the class of buyers as a hardship, and they doubtless would be grateful for any beneficial amendment.

There are three kinds of weights in use in India: the first are for weighing drugs, gold, silver, &e.; the second for all bulky artieles; and the thind for pearls and precious stones.

Those of the first class seen to be founded on the weight of a tola throughout India, and the tola, under most goveruments, seems to form with the rupe, or principal current coin of accounts in towns. The weights generally are of iron or lead, sometimes in a determinate form, but oftener as a shapeless mass. In many villages, however, the shopkeepers have only basalt stones as weights, which are met with in beds of rivers. Indeed, when great weights are required, they are generally made of stones, and under any circumstance, cousiderable advantage would be derived by the people, were the use of stones as weights prohibited under severe enactments. The table of weghts amexed will shew the great variety of the first class, and the corresponding English weights, which exist thronghout Western and central India. Nor are the weights at the Presidency less multifarious than they are in the interior. In the following table of the varions weights by whieh goods are sold in Bombay, it will strike one as a singular incongruity, that, varying as those weights do, with almost every variety of goods, and that, serving as such they must clog commerce, this system should be submitted to when the fact is known, that actually every article is weighed by one weight, viz., the English avoirdupoise, afterwards reduced by calculation into the great variety of local weights, which are merely nominal.

How mueh would it facilitate commercial operations, were the English weights the only ones actually in use, substituted for those local ones that exist but in a name, and what an advantage would such afford the stranger, in readily comprehending nt once the value of goods, and simplifying his calculations. It is most difficult to overcome mative prejudice in favour of customs they have for generations been familiar with, yet might not firmness on the part of European mercantile community in Bombay effect a change?

The small weight, commonly called goldsmith's weight, is cither founded on the goonj or ruttee, or the mustarl seed. The goonj or ruttee is the small red seed, whether of the white or red speeies, of the abrus precatorias; these seeds are very uniform in size, and the plant producing them grows wild all over ludia. Two seeds, otherwise goonj, make one waal, a weight represented by a seed of the Cheelur. This weight is further sub-divided as tollows:-two harley corns-1 goonj and eight mustard seeds-one barley corn, under different governments of India the total is composed of different proportions of the goonj, or of the mossa. The Bengal tola being of 100 goonj, or $12 \frac{1}{2}$ massa; the Malwa tola of 96 goonj, or 120 massa. The Bombay tola of 92 goonj, or $11 \frac{1}{2}$ massa. Several districts in the Southern Coneon of 92 goonj, or $11 \frac{1}{3}$
 80 massa, so that from these we may hope to obtain something approaching to the common weight of the massa or goonj, the fundamental measures of weight.

The weight of the Bengal massa, in troy grains, is 15,353 , being 191,916 troy grains, the weight of a Calcutta sieca rupee, divided by 125 , the number of massa in one tola. The weight in troy grains of the tola in Malwa is 190 grains; whieh being divided by 12 , (the number of massa in 1 tola, gives 15,8333 troy grains for the wcight of the massa.

In ascertaining (says Major Sykes) the weight troy of a goonj with a hydrostatic balance, turning with the tenth of a grain, the result was as follows;-3: seeds or goonj, weighed 605 grains troy ; 16 seeds or goonj, weighed 305 grains; 8 weighed 15.1 ; and 66 seeds weighed 10.2 grains, which would give an average weight of 1,914 grains troy for each ssed; 96 of these would make the tola equal to 183,7536 grains troy. But as the seer weight of 80 rupees, 13,800 grains troy, is to consist of $7: 2$ tolns, the toln should weigh 191,f666 grains, instead of 183,7536 , affording sufticient evidence that the tola in use, like every other weight, is below the proper standard.

Measures of conneity. - Whether measures of capacity in India are derived from those of length, agreeable to the notions of many able theorists in Europe, and in which they are borne out by very ancient writings among the Hindoos, or whether they were invented originally merely to save trouble in weighing grains and liquits, is a subject of inquiry for the philosopher. I am much inclined to the latter opinion, as far as regards Western India, from observing that the same denominations refer to the measures of weight as to the measures of eapacity, and so relatively, to the sub-division. In this case it seens to me highly probable that the tonka or tukka, a small silver coin, eurrent during the period of the Mogal supremacy, and in which the revenue was collected and reckoned throughout the western provinces of their empire, and particularly in the NizamShahee's territories, was the foundation of the weights at present in practice throughout the Decean. Seventytwo of these tukkas go to tir seer, which makes it nearly similar to the tola, and the now, tank or nine tanks, is still a measure for aquids in very general use. The chetak, or six tanks, is the 17 th part of a seer or weight in the Decean; but my inquiries regard the weights that are in use, and not those that have heen. The most popular of the actual measures of eapacity are the nuotank, the seer, the puseeree and the Adholee.

Dry measure. The adholee.-The dry measure, called alholee, of two seers, which is the largest in use in the Deccan, is in towns and large villages made of wood, turned in a lathe and lackered. It is in form nearly similar to that of an hour glass, and a $\frac{1}{2}$ seer, $\frac{3}{4}$ seer, and 5 -xths seer resemble it in form and lackering. In the small villages where the dealers are puorer, these measures are made from large bamboos, sawed through at the joint.
The adholee in the Northern Konkan consists of $3 \frac{1}{2}$ and 4 kutcha seers, and the number of adholees to the kakuni maund varies in ditlerent towns in the Collectorate from 17 to 21 . Where the 4 seer atholee obtains there the maund contains 20 adholees; and where the adholece is $3 \frac{1}{2}$ seers, there the mand consists of 24 adholees; so that the adholce and not the maund differs; the 17 adholees measure is perhaps confined to Salsette. The Kokuni and Arabia candy are both in general use in this Collectorate ; the first consists of seven maunds, the other of eight maunds. The catti, or Jecean candy, is also in use, and is used for measuring salt.
In most countries south of the Nerbudda grains are sold by measures, but in selling the flour a measured seer of grain is put into one seale, and the flour weighed against it.
In countries north of the Nerbudda there seems to be 10 dry measure of eapacity, and every thing is therefore sold by weight. 'This appears also to be the case in most of that Nizan's districts adjoining those of Ahmednugger. The introduction of measures into the Decean appears to be of a late date, but on what ptinciple they were constructed it is diflicult to conjecture. The solid contents of a seer a capacity is widely different from a seer of weight throughout the Collcetorship of both Poona and Ahmednugger ; the first filled with the grain bajree, varies from 108 to 120 rupees, while the other weighs about 80 rupees or 73 tola and 4 massa.
The pusseree or punj-serre.-There is a measure as well as weight termed pusseree or punj-seree, both oceasionally met with in the Decean, but the former is in general use in the Nizam's country. It ought to contain five seer as the name imports, but it varies so much, arising either from ignorance or fraud in the construction, that it oceasions very general complaint.

In Guzerat the punj-serce is in finct but the representative of weight, but ita cubical contents are ascertained through the medium of a variable standard, that is, one species of grain rice in the rash which is liable to tluctuation according to the varying weight of the kind of corn in different soils and seasons.
The large dry measure in Bombay for salt is the para, containing $10 \frac{1}{2}$ adholee, whercof 100 make an anna; one ama is equal to $2 \frac{1}{2}$ tons, and 1,600 para, or 16 annas, mahe one rash, or 40 tons. The para measure when used is struck off even with the rim by a rod made for the purpose.

The small dry measure for grain is the seer, whereof four make one puheclee; 17 puheclees a para; and o para a candy. Butty or rice in the husk is reekoned by moora of 25 para.

The grain Khundee in the Poonah districts consists of 20 mun, each mun 12 puheclee, but aometimes of 16 puhcelce; and each puheclee of 2 adholec ; each adholee of two seers. The sub-divisons of the seer are $3-8 t h s, 2-3 r d s, 1-4 t h$. The pulla is a measure of eapacity, the contents of which weigh 120 sers of 80 Ankoosey rupees the seer; or rather it is the representative of the weight called pulla. The puheelee at Bheema, Shunkurs, Neelsee, and some other places borthering the Konkon, consists of 3 seer only, instead of four. The mun therefore of 12 puheelec at these places consists of 42 seer instead of 48 dry measure.

Iiquid mequmre.-The liquid measum is used in the Decean and Concan, by the oil tellers and spirit denler: ; the measures used are of bass or iron, commonly in the form of a truncated cone. Like the other measures, the aliguot parts will be found irregular, or varying from truth. Milk in our camps, and indeed in large towns, is sold by arbitrary mensures, but they should, properly, be regulated by the seer weight of 80 rupees.

Oil, milk, ghee and spirits are weighed in the Southern Konkan with a seer of 28 tolas. The vessel in which they are containcd being previously weighed, and the weight thereof deducted. The liguids arealso vended by weight throughout Guzerat, but the oil and spirit dealers' measures constructed on the prineiple of their solid contents, being equal to the weight they are intended to represent, hence measures must vary with the spectic gravity of the articles.

Thronghout the Northern Khonkan every talook seems to have its own oil or liquid measure; it seems, however, to have been originally tramed to contain a portion of oil, whieh would weigh one Kutcha seer. When oil is borght for retail, 45 seers are reckoned to the mand.

The liquid seer measure used in Bombay for spirits, arrack and milk is equal in weight to 50 rupees, or 11b. 100z. 7 dwts. 12 gr . troy. The maund consists of 50 of these seers, and the seer is sub-divided into half seers, quarter seers ; nud the latter into two measures called nou-tanks, or nine tanks, tukka. The measure of oil corresponds with the maund of 281 h ., that is the contents weigh that, and the contents of the seer consequently weigh 11. oz. dwt.

Long Meiastre,-The measures of length are the Khathee, the Guz, and the cubit. The first is only used as a land measure, the other two are nore used by artificers, and sometimes in measuriug piece gocds, cloths, silk, \&e., are not sold by the piece. In most of the provinces under this Presidency, the Guz is divided ino 20 tussoo. In Guzerat it mensures 27.5 inches, making the cubit of 14 tussuo, equal to 19.25 inches. At Bombay and in Malabar it is 28 inches, and the eubit 19.6 inches. In the Decean, the Doonb, the Southern Konkan, and Surat, rad also in Cuteh, the Guz is divided into 24 tussoo, but of a greater varicty of length, and the cubit into 14 tussoo. The Peishwa's Guz, which is in use in the public departments at Poonah, is 33.86 inches. At seven of the prineipal towns in the Douab, the Guz varies from 31.75 inches to $3 \cdot 4.75$ inches, and broad cloth, velvet, chintz, and other articles of European manufacture are measured by it An average accuratcly taken at 12 of the chief towns in the Southern Konkan, makes the Gu\% $33.43 \times$ inches, and the cubit 1.508 inches.

In surat the Ciuz used hy tailors is $27 . N$, and by artificers 24 inches. In Cutch the Guz is divided into 24 tusson, and measures 20.5 inches. The length of the cuhit however, almost everywhere, is usually determined by the mean length of tive different men's arms measured from the elbow to the end of the midde finger: turbans, &e. are suld by this measure, but it is sehlom met with out of surat, as a measure, unless with tailors: purehasers usually by their own arm's length. The English yard is in common use at Bombay in measuring Europe manutactures, and indeed in many places in the interior.

Superficial and SofilMeasures.-Superficial measures for the measurement of land. Solid measures for ascertaining the quantity of timber, and many kind of artiticer's work are obtained from the same data as the measures of length.

Artificer's Work.-In superficial mensurement throughout Guzerat, Decean, Konkan, and at the Presidency, the reekoning is made by 100 in length, whether Guz or Cubit by one in breadth. This rule applies also to the manufacture of carpets, mats, &c.

Masonry is calculated by the brass, which is 25 cobits in length by one in breadth, and one in height. The cubits in use among masons in Bombay is 23 inches, (being 4 longer than the timber Guz) so that a brass of masonry contains, 115.74 cubic feet.

Timber is measured by the Guz, and the rule for determining the contents is, by the square of the quarter girt multiplied into the length. A sawyer's Guz is 32 inches in 2 . agth and 9 inches in breadth; 329 by= 288 square inehes, 2 square feet.

Bombay and Canara Measurement of Timber and Plank.-Timber; 20 visvassa make 1 vassa-20 vassa I covit or candy. Plank is necasured by the guz of 28 English inches, or 24 borels. 24 burels in length, 12 borels in breadth and 1 borel in thickness, make a guz. A borel is equal to 4,666 English inches.

Malabar Measurements.-Timber is measured by the candy or covit-16 moganies make 1 borel- 24 borels 1 koll; 24 kolls 1 covit or candy. Plank is measured by the gaz-thus 10 moganies make 1 borel- 92 borels in breadth, 24 borels in length, and 1 horel in thickness, constitute a guz.

English and Bombay Measurement in the Dock Yard.-Timber-12 cubical feet, and 1,216 inches make a covit or candy-3 covits and 183 vassa make 1 tom or 50 cubical fect. Plank- 26 cubical feet, and 206 inches -make 100 guz -(the quantity in which plank is bought and sold.)

Land Measure.

(Extracted from Captain Thomas Jerris's Report.)

The land Measures are as follow:-The standard rod of five cubits length used throughout Gujerat called n guntha, also a 'bans,' sometimes a moula,' and sometimes a 'wussa.'

Of five and a half eubits length in the Decean, called a cathee.
Of five cubits, nud five mooshtees (or palms breadth) in Malwa, also called cathec.
Of five cubits and five moshtees (or palms-hreadth) in the Konhan, also colled eathee.
The length of the several measures, obtained by Major Williams hereunder specified, led me to fix the length of the hustu, or cubit, at about 19.3 or 19.4 inches,- the districts in which the shorter measures are used being so small in comparison of the districts, in which the large measures are used.

The Cathee measures obtained from the different parts of the southern konkan, nre as follows -

In Goojerat the bheega, or veega it is sometimes pronounced, is equal to the square of 20 gunthas; the square of one guntha being termed a wuswassa. 22 wuswassa $=1$ wassa ; and 20 wassa $=1$ blieega.
It may be observed here, that the terms wassa and wuswassa, so generally used in all measures in Goojerat, are corruptions of beeswa and beeswansa, meaning the twentieth part and twenty-twenticth.
On the western side of India the bheega is equal to the superficial contents of a square of 20 eathees; the square of one cathce is colled a poluh. 20 poluh $=1$ pand; 20 pands $=1$ bheega; and 120 pands $=1$ chaoor.
It is customary in the Konkan to reckon 23 pand equal to one bheega, and the mhars, whose office it is to measure the land, do not lay cathce or measuring rod on the ground, but raise the one end up, and pass it quekly over to the supposed place of the other end, which gives a much less quantity than the true superfieial content-this last custom is also observed in Goojerat; but in the Decean, land is measured with a rope, which gives the true contents.

The following is by the late Byram Rowles, Esq. of the Bombay Civil Service, from whose abilities in Revenue Matters, we may infer it to be very correct.
1st.-Acbar Shah's bheega (on the authority of Mr. Colebooke) 3,025 square yards. 2d.-Sashtee or salsette bheega (on the authority of Mr. Duncan) 3,927 square yards. 3d.-The bheega of the Neriad Cusba, (by marks on the Chuklase Bhagul Dhurumsaja) 2,994 square yards 4 feet. 4 th.-Supposed extent of the large bheega throughout the Neriad villages, 2,500 square yards. 5 th. -Small bheega of Sulamee, land positu tenures, as well as the wuseefa, and other lands, not fully assessed, 1,600 square ynrds. 6th.- Bheega of the western division of Gujerat, comprising grassia tenures, 1,600 square yards. 7 th.-Turab of Mahoaucdan law, 1,600 square yards. 8th,-Kaira bheega, according to the patells rods, 3,404 square yards. 9 th.-The Bengal bleega, 1,600 square yards.

There are various modes of reckoning land in the becean, hut they are all fonmed on the bheega, mea. suring in superficial contents, 100 cathe of 5 cubits and 5 palms-brealth. In the Joona districts 10 bheega $=1$ Rooka; 48 bhecga = 1 tukia: a chandy containe from 20 to 3.5 bheegas; and a mun or mand of land is the twentieth part of a khandy. In lihandes and in many of the Almednuggur districts, 4 bheegas $=1$ purthon, and 80 bherga $=1$ dooree. In the lharwar Zillah, a koorge is as mach land as can he sown with a drilt plough in one day, consequently varying from 2 to $&$ bheega.

The Singalese have certain established uational laws or old eustoms, according to which most things are determined, where the will of the king does not interpose to make any alteration. The ehildren inherit the landed property, which does not deseend exclusively to the eldest son; but where the right of primogeniture is allowed, the individual is obliged to support the mother and children. No man may marry a woman who bas run awry from her husband until the hushand has married another woman. The ehildren of a freman by a mother who is a slave, are born slaves, but the children of a slave by a free woman are free. A thief who camot make a seventold restitution becomes a slave. Old people who ran in debt barter their childen for the amount, or puwn them as a scearity for the payment.

In a part of Valentyn's work, entitled " Extract uyt de Consideratien van de Heer van Rheede over Ceylon," dated in the year 1677, it is said that a ganima, or village, is composed of several hamlets; a patto, or distriet, of several villages; a corle, or county, of several pattus; and a dessaveny, or province, of several corles.-IIst. Ceylon, 32:3, n.

A cornill is the overseer or president of a corle or county, who has two, three or four attacoraals under him, according to the size of the corle and the number of pattus into which it is divided. He has moreover from six to eight lasearyns, pamideas, or messengers, subjeet to his orders. The attacoraals are to see that these orders are panctually executed.

APPENDIX V.-AUSTTRAL-ASIA.*

A.-Sexual Puoportion of the Free and Convict Population in New Soltil Wales aud Van Difmen's Lano.-[From the Report of the llouse of Commons Transportation Committee in 1838.]
Since the yenr $1793,74,200$ convicts have been transported to Now South Wules, of whom not more than 10,000 were Jemales; from 1825 to 1836 there have heen 45,029 immgrants into that colony; yet by the census of 1836 its population did not exceed 77,096 , not more, probably much less, than three-fifths of the number of persous that have landed at Port Jackson during the last half-eentury. The number of convicts transported to Van Diemen's Land since 1817 , have been 27,759 , of whom $2,97+$ were women. The population of the colony in 183.4 was 40,283 , of whom 11,182 were women. The disproportion of sexes is about the same in both penal colonies ; it exists ehictly amongst the conviets, and is most remarkable in the country districts.

In 1836 the free population of New South Wales amounted to $\mathbf{4 9 , 2 5 5}$, of whom about 17,000 had been convicts. In 1834 the free populntion of Van Diemen's Land did not exceed 23,315, of whom about 3,000 were expirees. In 1836 , Sydney covered an area of about 2,000 acres, and contained about 20,000 inhabitants; uf this number $\mathbf{3 , 5 0 0}$ were convicts, most of them in assigned service, and about 7,000 had probably been prisoners of the crown.

K.-CRIME IN NEW SOUTH WAALES.

(From the H. C. Select Committ'e on Transportation, in 1838.)
The committee have not been whe to obtain any returns of any importane rith regard to summary convictions in New South Wales. In 1 R:35, the nmber of convicts in that colony were about $2 \mathrm{~N}, 000$, and the summary convietions in the yenr were estimated to be about 22,000 . In one month in $18: 33$, as has alrealy been stated, 217 convicts were ftogred, nad 9,781 lashes inflicted, which w.ould make for the whole, 2,19 , thoggings, and above $10 x, 000$ tashes inflicted.
The following tables refer to the amount of grave crimes committed in the penal cosonies, and which are cognizable only before the Supreme Court and Quarter Sessions. It should be remarked, that no eonviets are prosecuted by the Attorney-general in Van Diemen's Land, except for crimes punishable with death; for all lesser crimes they are tried summarily before magistrates, so that generally offences committed by conviets do not appear in the returns of crime as published.

O.-TREATMENT OF CONVICTS IN NEW SOUTII WALES.

Copy of a Despatch from Governor Sir R. Bourke, K. C. B., to Lord Glenclg. datel Government Ilouse, Syduey, $4 t 1$ December, 1*37. (Separate.)
Wy lord, In reply to your lordship's despatch of the 30 th April, 1837 , I have the lonotir to transmit answers to the queries touching the treatmont of convicts in New South Winles, presented by the Prison Diseipline Society. In these answers I have contimed myself almost entirdy to statements of facts, reforrian oecasionally to published regulations, and to those despatches addressed by this govermment to the Colonial Ollice, which have been laid hefore the House of Commons, ant printed by its order. I have, however, in replying to the last query, alluded generally, and without giving numbers und dates, to despatehes which have not been printed, which your lordship can communieate or not as may seem proper.

> (Signed.) I have, &e. Richarid Bourke.

Enclosure to Sir R. Bourke's Despateh (marked separate), 4th December, 18:37, with an Appendix.

1. On landing in the colony, under whose care and superintendence are the convicts placed? Under that of the princjpal superintendent of convicts.
2. In what description of buiding are they lodged on their arrival? In Hyde Park Barracks, Sydney. The construction and arrangements of this building do not materinlly dinter from those of a military barrack.
3. Do they associate by day? There is no other restriction in thas respect than what arises from their several ocenpations. They are mostly hept to work in gangs in the streets of sydney, from their lauling matil assigned. Some hours of the day thuring this period are, when refuired, albotted to their receiving religious instructions from the chergy of their several communions, who attend at Hyde lark to impart it. To give longer time for this course of instruction, Dr. Polding, the Roman-catholic bishop, shortly after his arrival in New South Wales, requested that the period between the arrival and assigmment of the convict should be lengthened, which was done accorthagly. He has, as regards those of his communion, attended to it with great carnestness and regularity; nud there is reason to believe that the result has been heneficial to those who receive his admonitions, and to the public in general.
4. Are they separate at night? If mot, in what numbers are they confincd? -They sleep in hammocks in large rooms, the numbers in ench varying with the size of the roon.
5. What distinction is made in the treatment, disciplime, or assignment of convicts sentenced to 7, 14, 21 years, or for life. None in their assignment. There is a distinction between convicts sentenced to didlerent terms of transportation, in the length of probationary servitude required, before they can obtain tickets of leave. The statute 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. Gl, s. 2, enacts, that no conviet shall obtain any remission of servitude from the goveruor of the colony until he shall tirst have completed, of a senteuce of life, eight years; of a senteuce for 14 years, six years; of a sentence for seven years, four years. The nature of the servitude, while it lasts, is not in any way affected by the length of time for which it is imposed. In all cases the remission is delayed by misconduct; and if this be gross, or repeated, it will preclude the conviet from receiving any iadulgence whilst the term of his sentence eudures. (See Ticket-of-leave Regulation of 3:5th May 183\%.)
6. Is regard paid in those respects to their former station in society, or good conduct on their voyage, or previous guilty habits in England? With regard to former station in society, those convicts who are well educated, or have been engaged in mercuntlle pursuits, or in the profession of the law, are separated from the rest, by removal from Sydney immediately on arrival, to the distant settlement of lort Maciparie, to which place they are restricted until the expirntion of their sentence, or muth they receive a pardon. A few con. victs have likewtse been for mone yenrs past sent out, with express dircctions from the secretary of state for the Colonies, fonnded npon recommendations of the juiges hefore whon they were severally tried, cither for their removal to Norfolk Island, or their employment in hard labour on the roads or publie works within the colony, instend of assigmment lo private scrvice. lixcept in the cases above emmerated, no distinction in treatment, disciulime, or assignment is made on account of either station, good conduct on the voynge, or previon guity habits; of wheh last, inderd, little or mothing is known here by any eommunication thrungh an oflicial chamel. With rempert to masigmonet to privite service, it may be proper to ohserve, that it now governcd by a code of regnlations calculated to cusure a due distribution ob ablict babour, acrording to the power of the colonists to employ it, and the menns of supply ?...sessed by government, nith the strictest impartiality in the nasigument. "Jhe excreise of a diseretionary juwer in distributing conviets by a bonrd, as formerls practised, was fomblo be extremely linvidions, from its very extensive intlumer osir private interests. The whole mechanism of assignment is now in the bands of a single minsterial othirer sworn to ndminister the regulations without fovour. (see Rogulations, y May 1 wab.)
7. What means are taken, und how soon after the arrival of conviets, to procure situntions for those who are allowed to work as mechanies, 太ce, or to coter domestic service? "hey are assigned without delay, mechnnies as well as domestie: servants anml labomers, pursunat to the regulation nove reforred to.
8. On what terms nre mechnils or domestic servants usunlly employed; nud are they allowed any pro. portion of their carnings. The govermment sloes not recognise the practice of paying any wages whintever to convicts, nithough there is little dombt that miny, and especinlly mechanics amd domestic servints, du receive wages from their masters, whose interest it is to eneourage and conciliate them. Distinethons are nlso made by masters, from similar motives, in the netieles of fool and clothing. The trentment which is preseribed to the master in these rospeets, by the order of government, may be comsidered as a minimun which the servint is cutitled to densand as in right. Most masters supply ten, sugar, or milk, and sumetimes tobnceo, in small quantitios, in mdition to the ration reguired by regulation.
9. Do employers cuter inforny sceurity tu the govermuent for the proper manintenance and trentment of the eonviets?-'The power of the govermment to remove, not only the servant improperly dealt with, but all the other convirt servants of the oflinding onster, is the only security; but this is as ample as any other supposed security could be.
10. Ilns the government mby eontimod surveilimese over convicts who are nssigned to settlers, either as field-labourers or as domestic servants?- The survillance over convicts, exercised as through the sum. mary jurisdiction of magistmes, may be understood by perusal of the Act of Coumeil, 3 Wilh. d, No. at, Any complaint of the convide bimstimnj be heard before the same tribmal; and if the magistentes represelit misconduct on the part of the master, the gowernor excreises the power of removal referred to in the maswer to query 9.
11. Is a settlor required to make a report to the Giovernor from time to time relative to the conduct and treatment of it convict in his sevvice? if so, what is the nature of such report:-When the time requisel by law to render the convict sligible for indulgener has expired, the form of his mplication for a tichet of leave contans $n$ ecrtificate to be signed by his master. If the master decline signing it, the regulations nequaint him that the servant will be eonsidered blameless. The master may also be called on by the mas. gistrntes to give his reasons for omitting to insert the servant's character. (Nefe'licket of Leabe Regulations before referred to.) This is the uly report reguired from the master of the nature alluded to. If the servant behave ill, nad the master lexims to pminsh him, he npplies to the magistrates. Reports of the bearing of such complaints are transmitted monthly to the Govermment by the magistrates.
12. Are nay and what preenutions taken to prevent ronviets from nbsconding trom their employers?No coercion is used for this purpuse by the govermment, the servant being placed in the enstody of the master, who is nt liberty to watch him ins he thinks lit, or lock him up at night in his room, hut or barrark. The means ndopted for the apprehension of rumawas, and the punishment which on conviction thy incur, as stated in the next reply, may however be enosidered as the precantibus referred to in the gutry.
13. In the eare of nbsconding, what measures are adopted for the recapture of prisoners? If takion, what punishments are usunlly intlieted; nad what is the greatest punishment to whel they are liable:-1.a corps of mounted police nod a numerous constabulary are kept up, whose attention is directed to the apprehension of rmawny conviets, and their exertions stimulated by rewards for all such captures to a greater or less amount, according to circomstances. 2. The apprehension of these delinguents is much faciltated by an Act of Commeil, (last renewed and amended in the session of $18: 4$ ), which gives a power of apmone sion on bresuspicion. Nothing but the peculiar ease of the colony coulal renter such a law tolerable to Englishmen. 3. The punishment for nhseondong is 50 bashes, or 14 days' solitary continemut with bread and water, or one month's treadnill for the first ollence. If the convict is found illegally at large with tire-arms, he is liable on this nlone, without any proof of having actualy committed an outrage, to lic convicted of felony ( 3 Ghi. 4, No. :1, s. 12) ; nul n sccond nbseonding is of itself punishable with ayrar's labour in irona, (id. s. 12) , 4. A penalty of not less than $5 l$., or more than $10 l$, is imposed on any free person harbouring a runaway convict ( 3 (inl. 4, No. 3, sec. 25), recoveralile in a summary way before any two justices. This is in a case where the runawny has committed no other offence. If he he a robber ur houschreaker, the harbourer, knowing him to be such, is liable to capital pmishment as an aceessony, (hd. sec. 13). If the harbourer be a conviet, he is liable, in the first case, to whipping or one yoar to an ironed gang, (Id. sec. 25) ; and in the latter to the smme pumishment ns a free person.
14. Are any particular deseription of convicts distinguished by a dress, mark, or badge ?-The comvicts In ironed gnogs, and those employed on public works, by order of the Secretary of State, as before refened to, are distinguished by particoloured winter and branded summer elothing.

17. What number of hours per day are such prisomess cmployed, and at what decription of labour ?-Ten bours of labour pre day is the maximum. The primeipal work of peveroment gangs is on the strects, poads, and in the guarriea. A gang ix employed in the botandeng gardens at Syincy, and others with the roynl ellgineer, commissarint, nad other public departments. Mochanhes in thase gangs are smployed in their severui trades. 19. Is corporal punishment indicfed, and to what extent, and hy whose directions, nond umber whose superintendence? - Corporal punimharit is intheted under the provisions of the Cobonial Act referred to in the precelling mumber. The punishments witain then respective charges are supuriutended by the pollice magistrates, assintant enginerps, null superintembent of llyde lark larrachs. 20. Is solitary comilnement adopted us a pusishment? for what offores, nod to what extent?-The magistrates have by law, in nearly every ense, a discretionary power of substituting solitary confinement for corporal punishment. But in prurtice this diservtion is materially restricted by the want of a sullicient number of solitary cells. 'The slow grogrees of the reguired gaols now other public building (the conse of which has heen freguently reported to Iler Majesty's Gowermuent), has contributhd to this detideney, When the huidings now commenced or contemplated, are completed, it will be in the power of the magis-
 Sonth Wales any (even the most extravagant) expentiture could sut secure the means of such puninhment in the remoter distriets; and the diflienlty, expense, mat other mischiofs arising out of eseorts, if the offemider be ordered to a distant place of contmement, will always beal to the alternative of eorporal punishoment in many cases where solitnry conthement would have heon pretiored if the oweessary buildings were nt band.

24. 26. What checks exist agninst execssive punishnent?-The limitations prescribed by the colonial law before referred to.
27. How is the Sunday usunlly spent among conviets?-The only imperative rule which the Government has found it possible to apply is that which secures to the comvict fredom from all compulsory fabour on the Sunday. Some masters read prayers to such of their servants as are wibling to join in the form of worship used, llaces of publie worship are open to conviets; in some seats ure expecially appropriated for them; lout the varicty of ereeds mad dergrees of clacation, as weil in masters ns sersants, batt the remote habitations of the majority of settlers, rember it absolutely impssible, though otherwise dexirable, to introduce any more specitic regolation on this subject than the establishment of the right of the convict torest from his lahours, with the privilege of attending bivine worship if easily necessible in his neighbourhool. Enclosure to Sir Richard Bourke's Despatch, 4th December 1837. (Separate.) Colonial Secretary's office, Syduey, 25th May, 1835.
Tickets of Leure,-The ticket-of-leave regulations published in the summary dated lst Oetober IN30, having been partly superseded by act of parliament, and repuiring revision in other respects, his excelleney the governor has been pleased to direct, that the following be obscrved, with reference to that indulgence, from and after the 30th day of Jume next.

1. Qualificution.-1. The first and indispensable qualitication, is the completion of the probationary servitude required by the act of the Imperial parliament, 2 and 3 Will, 1, c. 62, s. 2, viz.-Four years of a sentence for 7 years, six years of a scotence for 14 years, cight years of a sentence for life, to be reekoned from the date of employment by the government, or of assigmment to private service in the colony.
2. Additional probation on account of changes of serrier'- - andition to the probation required by law, one year is added for every change of service of any male convict appearing to have been occasioncd by his miseoniluct.
3. Alditional lrodation on account of panishment.-1. One year is added for every punishment intlicted on a male conviet by colonial sentence, except that to an ironed-gang, or penal settlement, in which cases the prolnation recommeners from the expiration of the sentence.
4. As it has sometimes happened that a comvict has belaved so ill as to be pumished between the period of application for a ticket-of-leave and the decision thereon, nagistrates by whon such punishments are ordered, and masters by whom the complaints are made are to give immodiate and special notice, by letter to the principul superiutendent of convicts, of all such cases, in order that the reguired additional prohation may be entorcel.
IV. Disertion of the Muristrates. - Notwitstanding the forcgoing rules, magistrates entertnining an application for a ticket-of-leave, are not prechaded from recommending, at the instance of the master, a remission of the additional probation required, either for change of service or punishment, if they shall be of ef inion that the subsequent gond conduct of the applicant has merited the remission. This observation will eyually apply to an applieation made for the firsi time, and to that authorized by (VI. 6) of these rules.
V. Probation of Femme Comicts.-As the propricty of gronting tickets-ot-leave to female convicts mate. rially depends upon the comexions which it may enable them to form or mantain, it is not intended to lay down any striet rules with regard to them, in wdition to those imposed by the statute referred to in '."? graph 1. When the probation thereby required has been eompleted, the giving or withbolding of a tieket-of-lense will depend on the partienar circumstances of ench case. Magistrates will, however, contibute on receive and forward the applications of females as is now practised, being carefur in addition to inquire and represent, not only their edigibility from term of service and goot eonduct, but also the maner in which they propose to maintain themselves while holdigg the desired indukenee.

V1. Mode of Applitation, and of Inimin! and derision therom.-1. Applications for tiekets of leave are to be presented persomally by the applicant (in a torm to be supplied for that pmorese) to the petty sessious of the district in which he is employed, on such day or days in every month as the justices shall appoint and make known in their respective districts. If but one justice shoulil be present, such justice may receive and deal with the application in conformity to these regulations. If the applicant's place of employnent be not within any authorised distriet, he shall apply to the nearest court of puetty sessions. No application is to be received by the sessions which is not in the preseribed form, and signed by the master or overseer.
2. Blank forms of applications for tickets of leave will be delivered to masters, gratis, by the clerks of tie several benches, upon demand, and masters are required to be constantly provided with them for the use of the conviets in their service who have applientions to make.
3. Should the master of any servant aplying for a ticket, consider the applicant undeserving the indulgence, be is reguired to state his opinion in writing to the bench, with the grounds of it. In case he decline giving such written statement, the magistrates are bound to consider the applicant as deserving,
I. To allow tull time for the impuiries hereinatter directed, the application may be made three months before the term of probation reguired by law or regulation has expired, and the master of every servant matitled to apply moder this rule, is bound to furmish him with a printed form of application and pass to the appropriate court of petty sessions, and further to answer nll guestions of such court, relating to the conduct and claims of the applicant; attebling in person for such purpose, if required.
5. If the court shatl have reason to believe that any convict has knowingly presented an apalication for a ticket of leave, before the time bercin prescribed, or made any false entry of service in it, either with respect to dates, or by omitting to enter the several services in which he shall have been employed, the bench shall immediately report the ease through the principal superintendent of convicts, for the governor's information, and one year (or more if the caso shall seem to deserve a higher degree of punishment) of additioual servitude will the reguired of every such oflender.
6. It is to be understood that the master is required to give the form and pass before mentioned three months before the expiration of the permol of servitude to which the convict is hound by the statute 2 and 3 W. IV., chap. fig referred to in paragraph 1, But if, after submission to the proper anthorities, the al. plication of a tieket of lenve be refused, and an additional period of probation be required, the master will not consiber himself obliged to give another form and pass, for the purpose of a renewed application, until the expiration of the additional period. If, however, from the subsegnent good conduct of the servant, the master shall wish to obtnin a remission of the additional pobation, he may furnish the servint with the form, stating thercon his desire that the additional probation be remittec, and his reason for such recommendation.
7. The court entertaining the npplication, will enter on the form all such particulars relating to the conduct of the appliennt, as can be obtained from his present or former masters fif these be residing within the district), or from their own reconls; and will ndd such observations as the case may seem to reguire, and

Previonsly to transmission, the clerk of the beneh will transcribe the applications into a hook to be kept for the purpose, in which a column will be left to enter the decision when obtained, but the original application, with the magistrates' remarks thereon, attested by their signatures, are in all cases to be forwarded to the principal superintendent of convicts, for the governor's information.
8. The principal superintendent will, on recoipt of such application, examine the records of his office for such other facts as may be necessary to complece the evidence in favour of or against the claim, referring, where necessary, to the former masters, or to the magistrates of the several districts in which the applicants may have formerly served, or to other convenient sources of information. The prineipal superintendent will then forward the application, with the several statements and certificates, and his report upon the qualification of the appli int, to be submitted to the gevernor.
9. If the application be $r$ jected, additional probution being requirul, such rejection will be notified immediately by the principal suprintendent of convicts to the court of petty sessions through which the application was forwarded. The magistrates will take the earliest opportunity of informing the master, and will post a notice of the fact in some conspicuous place inside and ontside the court-house, and will mot receive any app' cation for a tic'iet of leave from the same party, until the additional period of probation shall have expired, unless at the instance of the master, as before-mentioned. (VI. 6.)
VII. Restorntion of Tichet cancelled.-Any convict whuse ticket of leave has been cancelled by the governor, may apply for its restoration, through the master to whom he has been assigned, and not otherwise. The master will, if he thinks the servant teserving of indulgence, apply for the restoration by letter, addressed to the appropriate court of petty sessions, who will forward it, with their remarks endorsed thereon, to the principal superintendent of convicte, to be laid, with that ofticer's report, hefore the governor. Unless in this manner, no application shall be made for the restoration of a ticket of leave, until the convict shatl have served a probation of four years from the date of his tieket being eanedled, when a regular npplication in the manner and form preseribed in paragraph VI. may be made for a new tichet.

Note.-When the convict affected by any of the forgoing regulations is in the service of government, the ofticer in charge of such convict is to be considered as the master within the meaning of the regulations.
VIII. Muster of Persons holding Tichets-of-leare.- (Males)-1. :1. If a ticket-of-leave holder shall quit his residence for another in the same parish, he shall within 24 hours report in writing to the wardsman the place to which he removes, or if the removal be from one parish to another, he shall report in like mamer his removal and actual residence, both to the wardsman whose parish he guits, and to the wardman within whose parish he takes up his new residence. 1. That the master shall pay at the rate of 18 . a day for the time his servant shall be in the hospital, to the extent of 30 days. Should the servant continue under treatment for noy longer period, the master will not be required to make any firther payment.
2. That the persons who send their servnnts into any of the hospitals shall appoint an agent on the spot to take them away as soon as they are recovered, and unless they be so taken away, they shall be consider'' as immediately nssignable to other parties, in order to prevent the hospital from being improperly burthened with men who do not reguire treatment.
3. That all persons to whom conviets shall be assigned shall send for them to Sydney, or so such other place as they shall be assembled at. For example, the men to he assigned from road parties will be collected at or wear the stations of the assistant surveyors of roads :-(1) At Parramatta. (2.) At Colletts', on the Bathurst road. (3) At the station of the nssistant-surveyor, on the Maitland road. (4.) At llong lBong.
4. Thant if the party to whom a prisnner is assigned shall fail to send for him, the prisoner will be assigned to sone other person; and in order to prevent a recurrence of the inconvenience which must be experienced in such cases, the master will mot be considered as an eligible candidate for servants in future.
5. That in order to avoid disappointment, it is suggested that persons residing at a distance applying for servants, who may be nssigned in Sydney, should appoint an agent, whose name and residence should be stated in the application, to receive at the time any mon who may be assigned to them
6. That as all convicts who are assigned immediately on their arrival from England and lreland, are supplied with a complete suit of new clothing, and as it is only reasonable that the person having the benefit of the convict's services should be at the expense of this chothing, the assignees of all such convicts will henceforth be repuired to pay 20.s. for the chothing so farmishod at the time of receiving the men.

The government has further been induced, as well with a virw of protecting those masters who act with liberality towards their servants from the complaints of the discontented and ill-fisposed, as to insure to all assigned survants a due proportion of food and chothing, to lay down the following regulations for the supply of thes necessaries:
7. Instructions for Assistant Engineers.-Military officers employed upon the roads and public works in New South Wales as assistant engincers and superintendents of ironed gangs, have three distinct duties to perforin: that which relates to the military command of the detachment under their orders; that which regards the safe custody and discipline of the convicts whom they have to keep at hard labour; and that which embraces the actual execution of the work, according to instructions received from the commanding royal engineer. Instructions are here given for the periormance of the two first of these duties, under heads marked respectively A and B. The instructions of the commanding royal engineer relating to the execution of the work, will be conveyed by him to the assistant engineers, as occasion requircs.

Instructions (A).-1. The officer will discharge his military duty in strict conformity to the rules of the service, and the standing orders of this command, and will accordingly make the reports, and send in the returns required of him by the major of brigade and the commanding officer of his regiment.
2. He will take such measures in the exercise of his military command, for the safe custody of the convicts over whom his guard is placed, as are contained in these instructions, or as he shall be required to do by the major of brigade or other staff officer, conveying the orders of the general officer in command, or as the practice of the service shall dictate. In the discharge of this most important duty, he will be held strictly respansible for any act or omission, by which the escape of a convict may be rendered practicable.
3. The officer will divide the men fit for duty in his detachment, as nearly as circumstances will permit, into three parties, of which one, under the command of a non-commissioned officer, is to procced with the convicts to work, and is to furnish all the sentries over them whilst at work, and going to and returning from it. This will be a day duty only, ceasing on the return of the convicts from work in the evening. A sccond party also, under the command of a non-commissioned officer, is to take all the duties of the stockade for 24 hours, furnishing the day and night sentrics that may be required. The third will be off duty, excepting cooks, men required to clean barracks, and other duties of the kind. This arrangement will give the men two nights in bed; but should it be required for the safe keeping of the convicts to augment the number of the sentries, the officer will put as many men or duty as he shall find necessary, reporting the case to the brigade major, at Sydney, in order that the detachment may be reinforeed.
4. When the convicts are brought in for meals, the stockade guard will furnish the sentries over them, to allow the working guard time for meals and rest.
5. If the stockade guard shall be of greater strength during the day than is required for the number of sentries it has to furnish, the officer may, at his discretion, allow the disposable men to form an inlying piquet, remaining in barracks, ready to be called out at a moment's warning, for patroles or any other duty.
6. The foregoing instructions apply to detachments which are not called to perform any other duty than to guard ironed gangs. Where other duty is required, additional instructions will be furnished by the brigade major.
7. The stockade guard will be relieved in the morning on working days, when the convicts are about to proceed to work, when both old and new guards will be under arms.
8. The guards will mount with loaded muskets and fixed bayonets, and each man is to have 10 rounds of Lall cartridge in his pouch. The convicts, at cach time of going out to work, will be counted over by the serjeant of the stockade to the non-commissioned officer commandnig the guard, before he quits the place, who will give a receipt for the number. They will be again counted on returning from work. If right, the receipt will be cancelled; if any be missing, steps will be immediately taken, as directed in paragraph 17 of these instructions.
9. The officer will see such sentries postel over the convicts when at work, and will give such orders to the non-commissioned officer respecting them, as shall render the escape of a convict impracticable, if due vigilance be observed. He will also take care tinat the convicts be sufficiently guarded, in proceeding to and returning from work; that they move on those occasions at a quick pace, and that none are allowed to loiter or remain behind, under any pretence whatsoever.
10. It will be the duty of the officer to regulate the distribution of the work, so as to avoid breaking up the gang into small detached parties, but where it may be unavoidable, such detached partics, if consisting of more than one convict (unless when two or more are fastened on a chain, as hereinafter mentioned), shall never be sent to work under the charge of one soldier only.
11. When convicts in irons are fastened to a chain, to be marched from one place to another, or if they can, under any circumstances, be worked when so fastened, one soldier will be considered a sufficient guard for a detached party of eight convicts; but in such case, the greatest care must be taken that their irons are perfect, and that they are securely fastened to the chain. If marching without being intended to work, the convicts are to be handcuffed when fastened to the chain.
12. When the convicts are within the stockade, the officers will direct sentries to be posted at the wooden houses, and to he so placed as to have every part of those buildings, at all times, in view of one or other of the sentries. The convicts will be ordered to keep silence, and the sentries will turn out the guard, and the non-commissioned officer report if any noise be made within the houses at any time of day or night. Upon such report, the officer or non-commissioned officer in charge, will take the most efficacious means to restore silence, and the officer will punish any convict found transgressing. It is essential to the safe custody of tho prisoners that this order be strictly attended to.
13. In like manner, wher the convicts are at meals, he will post sufficient sentries for securing them giving orders that the strictest silence be observed at those times; and on Saturdays, when the convicts an allowed to wash, great caution is necessary to prevent escape.
14. The officel will himself visit, and will direct the serjeant of the detachment to visit the guard an sentries both by day and night, and will order the non-commissioned officers commanding guards, to not and report for trial any convict who shall neglect his work, or be guilty of any disorderly or improper cons duct.

16. In case it shall be necessary to send convicts away under escort to a colonial hospital, or to prison under committal for any heavy offence, or on any other occasion, the officer will take care that their handcuffs are well sceured and attached to a marching chain before the convicts move off.
17. If a convict should escape (which, with due vigilance is hardly possible), phtroles are to he immedintely sent out in fll directions, information is to be given to any justice of the peace or settler, in the neighbourhood, that a hoe and cry may be raised, and reports are to be made by the first opportonity to the major of brigade and commanding royal engincer. The officer will further closely investigate the manner of escape, and all the circumstances counceted with it, either by himself or a court of inquiry, if such can be formed, reporting the proceedings to the mnjor of brigade. The consequence of an escape under suspicious circumstances will be made known to the detachment, by causing an abstract from general orders of 7th May, 1832, No. 106, to be read to them once a week on parade.
18. The ollicer in command of a guard over an ironed gang, will consider himself during the period of his charge, as always on duty, and will on no account absent himself from his post, nor suffer any one under his command so to do ; nor will he allow any stranger or unauthorized person to live at or loiter near his post under any pretence whatever.
19. The olkcer will report his detachment to the brigade major, at Sydney, on the 1 st and 15 th of every month, according to a form which will be furnished. All extraordinarics will be reported by the earliest opportunity.
20. The position of the woolen houses for convicts, and the officers' and soldiers' barracks, and the whole arrangement of the stockade being established, in conformity to the instructions of the general officer commanding, no alteration is to he made without applying for leave, through the commanding royal engineer. Any damage done to the buildings by officers or men, will be charged against them, according to the regulations of the service.
21. The officer will take special care that the non-commissioned officers under his orders are fully informed of cvery part of these instructions that relates to their duties.
22. The orders of the commanding royal engineer are to be strictly attended to hy the assistant enginecrs, not only when they relate to the work, but to any other particular of an officers' duty. All applications for leave of absence are to be made by these officers, through the commanding royal engincer.
Instructions (13).-1. The othicer appointed assistant engincer has, as superintendent of iron gangs, the legal custody of all convicts committed to his charge, and being duly authorized by a warrant from the governor under the provisions of the 3 d Will. 4 , No. 3, and 8 Will. 4, No. 1, he has the power of having convicts in ironed gangs or road parties brought before him to be immediately tried, and when convicted, to be punished by the infliction of not more than 50 lashes for drunkenness, disohedience of orders, neglect of work, absconding, abusive language to his overseer, or for other disorderly or dishonest conduct.
2. He will keep a record, according to a form to be furnished to him, of all summary trials had before him, in conformity to the foregoing paragraph.
3. If the officer holds a commission of the peace he will confine his jurisdiction to the ironed gangs or road parties he has in charge, unless upon urgent occasions, when the prompt interference of a magistrate is required for the public service, or unless when specially invited to give his assistance by a justice of the peace in the neighbourhood of his station, for some special public object.
4. When any crime of too great magnitude to be dealt with by the limited powers granted under the governor's warrant, be committed by a convict under the charge of an assistant engineer, he will have the offender taken before the nearest justice. But this course is to be avoided as much as possible, and by a strict exercise of the powers given to him, the officer will, by his own authority, be enabled to kecp, the gangs in proper order.
5. Convicts in irons will be divided into gangs of about 80 prisoners each, and this number will occupy four wooden houses, which, with the officers' and soldiers' barracks, guard-room, store, and convicts' mess shed, form what is called a stockade, these buildings having been formerly surrounded with a stake fence, but which has been discontinued, as it is found the convicts are more securely guarded by placing sentries at the angles of the wooden bouses, and leaving a spnce all around open to their fire.
6. With regard to the food, clothing, and extent of labour of the convicts sentenced to work in irons, the officer will strictly observe the regulations of the governor and council, 3d Will. 4, No. 3.
7. Escapes being most frequently effected by convicts first getting off their irons, the officer is frequently to inspect and carefully to examine the irons on each prisoner ; this must be done either by himself personally, or by a non-commissioned officer, every morning when the prisoners go out to work, before quitting the stockade, and again before they are locked into their huts at night. The officer either personally, or by a non.commissioned officer in his presence, will frequently search the prisoners, and will take from them anything made of iron or othcr metal, or any instrument which might he used in getting off their irons, any money he may find upon them, any article of food or clothing not appointed by regulation for ironed gangs, and anything whatever which he suspects they may have obtained dishonestly. He is also carefully to examine the strength and form of all irons either in use or sent to him to be used, and will reject all he shall find insufficient, reporting all such with the cause of their insufficiency to the commanding royal engineer.
8. If a convict has made an attempt to escape, or the officer perceives any disposition in a convict to attempt an escape, he will provide for his safe kecping by additional irons at night, or when at work, in such manner as may seem necessary.
9. The oflicer is to inspect the huts and stockade where the convicts are confined, once a day at least, and if he finds any damage which renders the confinement less secure, he will forthwith have it repaired; or if this cannot be immediately done, he will cause an additional sentry to be posted at the insecure part until the repair is complete.
10. The ofticer will frequently muster the conviets on Sundays and during wet weather when they eannot work. He will also occasionally, and at uncertain times, personally, or by a non-commissioned officer, muster them at night, and will make a note of the same in his journal.
11. The convicts will rise every morning during the suminia months at 5 o'clock, and during the winter months at day-break, when they will be regularly mostered by name. They will be required to keep themselves as clean as circumstances will ndmit, and to wash their faces, hands and fect every evening, before they are mustered into their berths, for which purpose water will be provided by the wardsmen in the tubs, which are to he carefully cleaned every day. Each man is to be shaved twee a were, and the hair is to be kept at all times ciosely cont, as the shortness of the hair will not only contribute to cleanliness, but to the discovery and consequent apprehension of runaways.
12. The officer will frequently visit the gangs while at labour, that he may be able to julge of the attention and nctivity of the overseers in earrying on the work, and of the genernl behaviour of the convicts.
13. The conviets on working days, when not at labour or meals, or employed in washing nu Saturdays, are to be kept locked up in their huts. On Sundays, Christmas lay, and (iood Friday, they are to be brought out under a sufficient guard to hear prayers read and for meals, and any well-behaved men, not excecding one-third of the whole gang at one time, may be allowed to take the air just outside the huts, for one hour, under a sufficient guard.
14. When a medical practitioner (being a convict) is appointed to the gang, the oflicer will take care that he attends duly on the siek. Should he appear negligent or disorderly, the oflicer will have him brought up for summary trial and punishment. If a free practitioner is uppointed to visit the gang, the ollicer will require him to be regular in his attendance, and if he fails, will report him to the conmanding royal eaginerr for the governor's information.
15. The officer will receive into his charge such convicts as shall be forwarded to him by the commanding royal engineer, or under the warrant of any two or more justices of the peace, as directed by the 3d Will. 4, No. 3. He will, immediately on receiving them, enter their names and descriptions, noticing all scars, marks, and hlue tatooing, in the registers with which he will be furnished, taking care that the columus of each book are kept regularly filled as required.
16. Every convict received at the stockade will, on his arrival, be stripped of the clothing he wenrs, which is to be fumigated and cleaned, tied up, labelled with his name and ship, and put into the store. He is to be put into the clothing appointed for men in ironed gangs, with which the offieer will be provided, either by requisition or by having old spare elothing in store, no part of which he is to take away on the expiration of his sentence; but the clothes he took with him are to be returned to him, or such other picces of commun slop clothing may be put upon him as the officer shall find it absolutely necessary to provide him with, from a small quantity which is to be obtained by requisition, and kept for the purpose. lu like manner, when a conviet is sent from an ironed gang stockade to hospital, he is to be deprived of the parti-coloured clothing of the gang, and put into his own old clothes, or provided with a few articles of common slop elothing, and the stockade elothing again issued to him on his return. His irons are not to be taken off on removal to hospital.
17. Upon the periodical issues of clothing, every article of the old is to be taken from the convict when the new is delivered. As soon as practicahle after delivery, the old clothing is to be examined, and any part found fit for further wear is to be repaired if requared, and taken into store for future use as wanted, and the whole of what is found unserviceable is to be immediately burnt. No article of the old clothing of any kind is, upon any account, to be left with the convict, or given away to any other person. The execution of this order, with the quantity of old clothing taken into store, is to be reported periodically to the commanding royal engineer.
18. When the sentence of a convict to labour in irons has expired, his irons are to be taken off, but the gang elothing is to be kept on him, and he is to work with the gang under preeisely the same regulations as the men in irons, until otherwise disposed of by regulation.
19. The officer will take care that no spirits or other liquors, or any other provisions than those supplied by government, are received by any convict under his charge, and no smoking is to be permitted within the stockade.
20. One wardsman will be allowed to every two wooden houses, containing each 40 conviets in irons, whose duty it will be to keep the houses, hoth without and within, and the utensils and bedding used therein, as clean as possible, and to air and shake the blankets dally ; to provide wood and water for the cooking, and water for the drinking of and washing of the convicts, and to be aiding and assisting at all times in the custody and management of the prisoners under the direction of the officer or non commissioned otticer in charge. One cook and one messman will be allowed to each stockade.
21. One scourger will be allowed to each stockade, whose duty it will be to inflict all corporal punishmeats directed by the oflicer. He will also (if required) perform the duty of wardsman, and be at all times aiding and assisting in the safe custody and control of convicts under the orders of the ollicer or non-eommissioned offiecr in charge.
22. Cooks, messmen, wardsmen, and scourgers, will not be appointed from the men under sentence to work in irons; they will be supplied by requisition. The scourger will be allowed a gratuity of $1 s .9 d$. per diem, in addition to the usual ration, to be raised to $2 s .9 d$. after a year's faithful service; and cach cook, mess man, and wardsman will receive yearly one blue jacket, two shirts, and two pair of shoes, in addition to the clothing provided by regulation, with an allowance of tea, sugar, and tobacco, and after onc year's approvel service, a gratuity of 18 . a week. Bullock drivers, and others specialiy employed, will receive the allowance of tea, sugar, and tobacco, but no extra clothing, unless shoes, when required by the nature of their employment, nor any gratuity. These convicts may, however, if well conducted, be assigncd to private service after a year's work with the gang, if recommended by the assistant engineer. Convict mechanics, when specially employed with the gang, will receive the same treatment as if in a bridge party.
23. All bedding, cooking utensils, and every article which may be denominated barrack furniture, used for or by the convicts, will be in charge nud custody of the othicer, who will be held responsible that every reasonable and practicable precaution is taken to preserve them from loss or injury.
24. Each stockade will be supllied with a large steclyard, and $n$ set of weights and sentes, of moderate size, to enable the non-commissioned oflicer to receive and issue the rations correctly. l'roof sieves will also be furnished to ench stocknde, for the purpose of determining the quality of the meal supplicd by the contrnctors. The oflicers will look carcfully to the quality of the provisions furnished by the contractor, adopting euch measures as the orders of the command preseribe for rejecting any of an unwholesome or inferior description, and replacing them by neticles of a proper quality.
25. No pigs are to be kept by any person belonging to the stockade nt or near the station, nor is any poultry to be allowed near the convicts' huts or soldiers' harracks. The whole space between those buildings, and hetween the huts and the gnard room, is to be kept at all times dry, level, and clean. Where good gravel is near at hand, this space should he kept covered nod neat.
26. The afternoon of each Saturday, from three orclock in the summer, and two in the winter, is to be appropriated by the convicts in washing their shirts and cleming their persons, to which purpose the ollicer will take care that the soap allowed by grovernment is strictly mppropriated.
27. One knife and fork, one pannikin, and one mess kid, will be allowed to every six convicts, and one spoon to each; these are to be issucd as required at meals, special care being tuken that each article is given back before the conviet quits the mess shed.
28. The officer will keep a journal in which he will enter daily the proceedings and conduct of the convicts under his charge, and any occurrence herein required to be recorded, or otherwise deserving of notice.
29. He will kecp all such other books, and address to the commanding royal engineer all such periodical or special reports and returns regarding the convicts in his charge, as that officer shall desire ; and the commanding royal engineer will cause those books to be kept which the principal superintendent of conviets shall state to be necessary, and will transmit to that functionary those reports and returns which are required for the business of that department. Alf such reports and returns are to be marked by the assistant enginecrs at the top by the word "Convict." He will pay particular attention to the regulations respecting the assignment and delivery of convicts whose sentences to irons have expired.
30. When the principal superintendent of convicts reguires nny special information respecting any convict at lahour on the roads or public works under charge of the commanding royal engincer, he is instructed to address that officer, stating the gang in which such convict is employed. The commanding royal engincer will make the necessary communication to the assistant engincer in whose immediate custody the convict has been placed. This channel of communication is preseribed in order to prevent any confusion that might arise by a direct correspondence between assistant engineers and the principal superintendent of convicts. The commanding royal engineer will take care that every necessary information is duly furnished to the principal superintendent of convicts, in whose office a complete history of every convict in the colony is expected to be found.
31. In addition to the foregoing instructions, relating chiefly to the snfe custody of the convict, and the exaction of a due portion of labour from him, the attention of the officer in charge of an iron gang is particularly called to the adoption of all such mensures as shall seem most likely to effect the criminal's reformation. To contribute to this important object, the oflicer should watch over the conduct of each individual ; the most ferocious are on no nccount to be permitted to tyrannize over those who are comparatively more obedient and well-disposed, whilst the latter are to be noticed and encouraged by commendation, and, when practicable, by rewnrd. All indecencics of manner and language are to be repressed as observed, and if repeated, to be punished. No noise or loud talking is to be permitted when at work, or in going to or returning from it. The convicts are required to be cleanly in their persons, as well as orderly in their conduct, whether at work or in their huts ; no gambling or trafficking in provisions or clothing is on any account to be permitted, whilst it will be the duty of the officer to sceure to the convicts the regular issue of both. Their complaints are to be listened to and investigated. Harsh and abusive language on the part of the overseers is to be interdicted, and "a kind anxiety is to be manifested to procure for the convicts as much comfort as is consistent with their condition under the regulations of government." They are, however, never to be allowed, with a view of improving their condition, or even as a reward for good conduct, to work under a private employer. Their labour is to be exclusively approprinted to the service of the crown. It is to be incessant during the bours appointed for work, but it is never to be assigned by task, however advantageous such an arrangement might seem to the assistant engineer.
32. The holy seriptures, books of prayer, and works of a moral and religious character, will be placed with the officer for distribution amongst the convicts, at such times as they have lusure to peruse them. These works will he chosen with the concurrence of the clergy of their respective communions, and will be distributed for perusal accordingly; the books are to be changed when required, and taken back into store when done with; the convicts being held responsible that they are not lost or defaced whilst in their posses. sion.
33. If a chaplain or catechist attend the stockade, the officer will afford him every countenance and assistance in the religious and moral instruction of the convicts. If neither attend on Sundays, the ollicer will cause the prayers of their respective communions to be read to the prisoners, at least once on that day, and will permit such religious instruction to be given as the pastors of those communions shall direct, to he imparted by one of their own persuasion.
34. For those convicts who are ignorant of letters, the estahlislıment of a Sunday.school, inder the superintendence of the officer, is strongly recommended. The payment of $23.6 \pi /$ a week to any capable non. commissioned officer or soldier employed on this dity, will be allowed, upon the report and recommentation of the officer in charge. Books, when required tor such schools, may be applied for, and will be allowed.
35. For the further improvement of the conviets, and as an inducement to good conduct whilst in the gang, it will be useful to introduce as perfect a system of classification as the establishinent of a stockade may admit of. This is to be attempted by dividing the gang into three classes; the first being considered the lowest, and in which all prisoners are to be placed on their first reaching the stockale.
36. If, upon the expiration of one-third of the period for which the convict is sentenced, the officer shall consider the conduct of the prisoner to have been so industrious and orderly as to merit attention, he will name him for the second class, and will allow him as much time for airing outside the huts on Sundays and days of broken lahour, as circumstances will permit, and any other similar indulgence, which shall not break in upon the order and regularity necessary to be observed in the stockade.
37. Upon a convict having passed a further portion of the period of his sentence, also equal to one-third of the whole, in the sccond class, he may be placed by the officer in the third class, and from thenee recommended to the governor, through the commanding royal engineer, for such remission of the remaining portion of his sentence as the oflicer shall consider him to deserve.
38. In order to distinguish the three classes, a piece of red cloth, cut into the shape of a heart, 6 inches long by 4 wide, will be sewed on the hack of the jacket of each convict of the second class of merit, and a similar distinction in yellow cloth is to be used for each conviet in the third class; the convicts of the first or lowest class being left withont any.
39. If a convict, whilst in the first class, be tried and found guilty of any offenee under the colonial law for convicts, he shall not be removed to the serond, until a period equal to one-third of his original sentence shall have expired from the date of such last-mentioned trial and conviction. If, whilst in the second class, a convict shall be so tried and convicted, he shall be returned to the first elass, there to await another period equal to one-third of his original sentence. If, whilst in the third class, a convict shall be so tried and convicted, he shall be returned to the first elass, there to serve out the residue of his original sentence.
40. All communication between convicts of the different classes is, as far as circumstances will permit, to be carefully prevented; this separation may easily the accomplished when at work or meals, and is to be ob. served in the distribution of the prisoners in the wooden houses as mach as possible.
41. The officer is to check any intimacy between convicts of bad character, and if it he necessary, in his opinion, to separate the parties, he will recommend to the commanding royal engineer the removal of such of them to another gang as may effiect this object.

Instructions (C).-1. The foregoing instructions, marked (A) and (B), have heen prepared for the service of ironed gangs. They are, however, to be applied, as far as may be practicable, and is not otherwise provided by regulation, to those convict gangs who labour for the public out of irons. These are,-1. Convicts sent out from England under instructions from the Secretary of State to be kept to labour for certain periods on the public works, and are called in the colony second class men. 2. Road parties. 3. Bridge parties. The two last are composed of convicts assigned to the commanding royal engineer. The former to work on such roads as require constant repair, chiefly in the neighbourhood of Sydney ; and the latter to construct and repair bridges.
2. The second class, conviets out of irons, are to wear parti-coloured clothing, and will be kept in a stockade or other convenient place under the charge of an assistant engineer, under treatment similar to that directed for ironed gang.. But the period of their public labocr is to be thus regulated: if under sentence for seven years, they are to work two ; if for 14 years, to work three; if for life, to work four. After which periods respectively, if their conduct has heen good, they are to be recommended by the assistant engineer for assignment. Whilst on public labour, they are to be subject to the same punishment for misconduct as convicts working in irons.
3. The period for which these convicts are to labour, being thus of considerahle duration, it will be convenient that the assistant engineer divide them into three classes, according to their conduct, upon the system detailed for the ironed gangs. To the well-conducted men in the third class, the reward of an earlier assignment to private service may be held out as an ohject of hope and encouragement.
4. When at work, the second class men are not to be placed under the guard of zentries, but military oversecrs will have charge of them and enforce their lahour. These overseers are to carry their side arms and pistols in a waist-belt, and are required to kcep a strict watch to prevent escape from the work, or going to or returning from it.
5. When returned to the stockade, this description of convict labourers will be kept either under military guard, as directed for ironed gangs, or will be locked up under military overseers, as detailed in the following paragraph, according as the order from head quarters may require.
6. The road and bridge partics will he kept to labour under military oversecrs, and will be locked up at night-fall in their huts or barrack, under charge of one of the overseers. They are to wear the ordinary slop clothing in which they come from Hyde Park barracks, and are not to be allowed to change it for any other kind. These parties will usually consist of from 20 to 40 convicts, and will be under the immediate charge of a non-commissioned officer and three military overseers, two of whom will be constantly out at work during the day with the gang, and one will be on duty every night to prevent escapes or disorder. They will carry the arms and use all the precautions directed in paragraph 4. These gangs will be visitel by an assistant enginecr, who will exercise the same control over them as over an ironed gang, punishing corporally, when required, the idle or refractory.

'The ineehanics in bridge parties are not to be assigned, but they are, if well conducted, to receive allowances of tea, sugar, and tobaceo, aceording to a fixed scale, to wear blue cloth jackets, and to be returned for a ticket of leave as soon as it becomes due.

Couks, messmen, and wardsmen for these parties, and for the second cla3s conviets out of irons, will be chosen by the oflicer in charge from their own body, and those persons will recelve the same allowances as the atockade servants of ironed gangs, but no extra clothing or gratuity. They will be assigned to private service when it comes to their turn, in the same manner as others of their chasa, If a scourger be attached to any of these parties, he will be paid at the smone rate as a seourger to an ironed gang. Bullock drivers and others, and attached to mechanics, will be treated in these parties as directed for iruned gangs,
3. The several parties will be supplied with books, receive religious instruction, and attend prayers as rerfuired in ironed gangs, and the same attention is to be paid to their conduct by those who have charge of them.
4. Though not escorted or guarded whilst at work by a regular guard, these parties are, nevertheless, under military charge, and the greatest vigilance is to be used by the several non-commissioned ollicers and privates who are over them, to prevent eseapes either whilst at work or in quarters. 'Jhe assistant engineer who has to visit these parties, will not fail to report any nom-commissioned oflicer or soldier who relaxes in the slightest degree from any particular of his duty over these parties, and he will take care that this instruction is made known to all concerned.

Pay atod Allowances of Assistant-Kingineers, and of Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers employed on Roads or Public Works - -1 . The oflicer appintid assistant-engineer, will receive the extra pay of $6 s$. per day whilst employed, and forage for one horse, upon the usual certiticate ol being kept und effective for the public service.
2. The officer will have a wooden house or hut constructed for his occupation at the stockade where he is stationed, but he is to provide his own furniture of every description.
3. On proceeding to the stockade, and in case of any subsequent movement, carriage will be provided for the officer's furniture, as well as his baggage, the latter being regilated by the orders of the command.
4. One non-commissioned officer will be employed as constable and turnkey at each stockade, with the extra pay of $1 s$. per day, abd oversecrs appointed by the commanding royal engineer will be allowed $1 s$, a day to each non-commissioned officer, and $6 d$. to a private. Steady, active, and intelligent men are to be selected for this duty, and no more employed than are absolutely nceessary for carrying on the work with efliciency.
5. The assistant-engineer will be allowed to employ a steady non commissioned otlicer or aoldier as clerk, with a pay of $6 \boldsymbol{l}$. . per day.

Instructions (D.) -Instructions for Delivery und Assignment of Convicts on the expiration of their Sentence to Labour.- $\Lambda$ ssistant engineers are required to transmit to the principal superintendent of convicts throngh the commanding royal engineer, one month at the least previous to the expiration of their sentence to irons, the names and ships of all convicts under their charge, eligible to assignment upon sueh expiration. In like manner they will transmit a list of the $2 d$ class conviets or labourers in road or bridge parties one month at the least previous to the period at whieh their labour on the public works will expire. These lists are to be made upon the 1 st and 15 th of every month, and despatched on the post day next ensuing, care being taken that at least one month's notice be thus given to the principal superintendent of conviets of the day at which any of these convicts become cligible for assignment.
2. In those cases where the warrant under which a convict in irons is detained, directs that he be returned to his master at the expiration of his sentence, one month's elear notice of the day of expiration is to be conveyed in a letter from the officer in charge and despatehed to the master by the post. Upun the expiration the convict is to lee d.livered to his master on demand, or to his order on its being presented; but if not claimed within 10 clear days from the expiration ot sentence, or before the first despatch of post for Sydney; after such 10 days, his nume is to be submitted in a list for assignment, stating the name of the master by whom he has not been claimed.
3. Convicts, whose names have been sulmitted in any list for assignment, are not upon any account to be discharged until the return lists, and then only to the assignees named in such lists, or to their order. If the convicts so assigned shall not be claimed within 14 days after the receipt of the list, or before the first despatch of the post for Sydney after such 14 days, their names are to be sulomitted again in a fresh list, in which the failure of the assignees to claim is to be notified, and the conviet kept in custody until the return of the list with a new assignment.
4. Though it shall be required to assign but one convict, his name is to be duly returned on a list, that his assignment may not be unnecessarily delayed.
5. Whenever it shall happen that the assistant-engineer desires to have as a stockade servant any conviet becoming or become assignable by the expiration of lis sentence or period of labour, he is not to note his desire on the list, but to make application by letter to the commanding royal engineer, who will lorward it to the principal superintendent of the convicts if he thinks it expedient. Memorandum.

Head Quarters, Sydney, 20 October 1837.

1. The lieutenant-general commanding, having reason to believe that the permission sometimes granted to convicts employed on public works, to prepare plaited straw and do other light works for their own benefit during the hours of rest from labour, has heen much abused, and that dishonest and disorderly practices have resulted, is pleased to direct that the commanding royal engineer give strict orders to the several assistantengineers and others under his command, in charge of convict gangs, to forbid, from the receipt of this memorandum, the use of any description of work by gangs or convicts attached to them, except that which is required of them for the public service. The assistant-engineers are to be desired to promulgate this order to the gangs, and to call before them and punish any convict who shall, after such notice, be found guilty of a breach of it, reporting every such case in their weckly return to the commanding royal engineer, for the lientemant-general's mformation.
2. If any vacmit time be at the disposal of convicts employed on public works, the assistant engincer will endeavour to obtain their attemdance at the school; be is nothorized by regulation to establish, or will direct their attention to, and put into their hands, the books with which it is ortered that every gang be provided.
3. Commanding royal engineer will further please to instruct the nssistant enginers to use their hest endeavonrs, nat to direct the non-commissioned onicers and military overseers to prevent any conviet in a gang or attrehed to it from being enployed for the service of private individunds in any way whatever. Upon the discovery of my such offence, they are to report, for the Lientemnt-generat's informantion, the mame of the person for whom or by whom the convict has been ensployed, that means may be taken for withdrawing from such persoll any convict assigned to him.
4. If uny mon commissioned oflicer, on thetachment over comviet gangs, or may military overseer, shall be found nbetting or conniving at the employment of any convict by a private person, every such non-commis. sioned officer and uversecer will be brought before n eourt martiat for disobedience of this order.
5. It being understood that non-commissioned oflecers and privates at several of the stuckades have supplied eonvicts with tea, sugar, tobneco, &e. eontrary to orders, the commanding royal engineer will instruct the assistant agineers to assembte their detachments, and enution them ngninst holding nay traflie whatever with convicts, giving them chearly to understand that, if detected, they will be brought before a court martial for disobedience of orders.

By command of his Excelleney,

Lieut.-general Sir Richard Bourke, к, с. в.
To the Commanding Royal Enginecr,
&c. &c. &c.
W. Hunter, Captain,

Aeting Major of 13rigade.
Memorannum on the subject of Employment of Convicts on the Ronds, Fortifications, &e., in New South Wnles, by Mnjor Barney, Commandang Royal Engincers, Nov. 2, 1837.
The imperfect state of the roads and bridges offer very important and extensive eprenings for the employment of conviets.
Of three great lines of rond already tmeed to the extent of nearly 1,000 miles, not one-tenth of that dis. tance can be said to be even formed; the bridges, with few exceptions, are of a temporary character, and several of large dimensions are urgently required. In wet sensons the roads are barely practichble. I am not aware of any important work upon which a large body of convicts could be more advartageously enployed than in the completion of the roads and bridges.

By the September return, the following number of prisoners were employed in the coloninl engineer's departnient, under my direction: Ronds and bridges, 1,207 ; Brakwater, 184; Liverpool Dam, 79; total, 1,470. In reference to this number, I consider it totally inadequate to the required work; for instance, on the northern road there are two stockndes, when complete, affording accommodation for 160 men in irons, the line embracing nearly 200 miles of traced road, and not 10 miles completed. This remark will nearly apply to the south and western roads. It is to be imagined that the public cannot for many years be expeetad to possess sufficient labour to cuter generally into contracts for making and repniring roads or constructing bridges. Taking the importance of the subject into consideration, 1 cannot too strongly recommend the employment of a large body of prisoners on these works. I am of opinion that 3,000 are necessary to eflective progress; with this number, the three principal roads would not be completed, to the extent now traced, in less than 10 years, within which period I do not anticipate much road-work will be done under contract by irec labour.

It is necessary to observe that 3,000 prisoners could not be securely worked with the existing strength of military force in this country.

Independent of the roals, there are other colonial works, such as the breakwater at Newcastle, the basin at Illawarra, the projected quany at Sydney, which are of nuch importance, and under the deficiency of free lnbour and capital, can only be accomplished by prisoners. As the const becomes oceupied this deseription of work will multiply; the nature of the coasts render such necessary; probably affording employment for 500 convicts for 10 years.

As regards the probable labour required upon engineer works, for which conviets would he available: the harbour of Sydney and defence of the town offer the means of empoying a considernble number. A series of batteries between Sydney Hends and the Cove are necessary to the defence of the channels; a work of defence on the site of fort Philip is also an important object, and it approved, should be carricd on with all possible despatch; 300 men may he employed on these works for four or five years.

Taking projected works into consideration, both government and colonial, I am satisfied that 4,000 coaviets may be most profitably employed for a period of 10 years, and that no more bencficial employment for the public can possibly be devised.

The above memorandun applies solely to the works of the Ordnance, Treasury, and Colonial Enginecr Department.

Regulntions for the assigmment of Male Convict Servants. Coloninl Secretary's Office, Sydney, 9 May 1835.-The Govermor is pleased to direct that the following regulations be strictly observed in the assignment of prisoners of the Crown to private service, from the date at which they come intu operation, from which time they will superscde all regulations now in force.

His excellency has endeavoured, by means of these rules, to introduce a fixed standard of qualification according to which convict labour is to be ohtained, and to render the colonists the principal instrunents in securing for thenselves a just distribution of that labour, by the publicity which will be given to all the arrangements relating to assimment. It wiil be open to the settlers in their several distriets to nttend the

Such information given with an honest intention, upon sure knowledge, will at all times be thankfully reccived by the magistrates, as ensbling them to prepare their rertificates with the greatest certainty of their being correct.
The Governor has only to add, that as much pains have been bestowed lin framing these regulations to meet the circumstances of all descriptions of Colonists, and to operate for their general henefit, no de. parture from their plain meaning will, in any instance, be permitted.
Justices of the peace will perceive that, after the introdnction of these regulations, assigned servants will no longer be returncal to Government, or sunt to road parties by thair order. The 29th Regulation polits out in what manner masters are to return their assigned servants whom they do not wish to retain in their service, and the duty of the justice in such eases. It is hardly necessary to observe that this regulation in no way linits the power of magistrates to punish assigned servants by imprisonment or otherwise, for offences of which they shall be convicted, upon the complaint of their masters. Nor, on the other hand, docs it impede the ndmission of complaints of servnots agalnst masters, nor the representation of the magistrate to Government on the subject, when it is thought right to recommend the removal of the servant in consequence of the neglect or ill.treatment of the master. But the actual removal, unless under legal sentence, to goal, is not to take place but by order of the Governor, communicated through the principal superintendent of convicts.
No further applications for convict servants of any description will be received by the Board of Assignment from the present date, except in conformity to these regulations.

Applications for convict lahourers and mechanics assignable in the coinntry are to be made at the special sessions, to be holden in September next, as directed in Rule 4. Newly arrived emigrants, bowever, becoming qualifled by the acifuisition of land, inay apply immediately to the petty sessions, or magistrate acting singly for the district in which their land is situated, in manner prescribed in Rule 13 ; but all such applications must be renewed in September next, and at the special petty sessions, to be holden in September in each year.

Applications for domestic servants, and for mechanics assignable to masters exercising the same trades, may be made at any time from this date, as directed in Rule 18 , to the petty sessions, or magistrate acting singly for the district in which the applicant shall reside.

Applications for convict labourers now registered by the Board will he complied with, as far as practicable, until the period at which the list under these regulations shall he prepared, when the registries will be cancelled; but applications for mechanics mentioned in Rule 3 , and assignable in the country, will, if renewed in September next, and annually at the special sessions, take precedence, as specified in article 12. All other applications now registered by the Board will be cancelled from the present date.
The particular attention of applicants is directed to that part of Article 4, which requires them to furnish & nominal return of the convicts in their service, with their ships and trade or calling, to the special ses. sions to be held in September. The Board of Assignment will not he authorized to entertnin any application which shall not contain all such particulars, or shall be otherwise incomplete or informal aceording to the terms of these regulations. Any omission in this respect will subject the applicant to the delay of a twelve-month, until the special seasions of the ensuing year shall cnable him fully to comply with the regulations.

Fxtracts of a Despatch from Governor Sir Richard Bourke, K. C. B., to Lord Glenelg, dated Government House, Sydney, 29th December, 1836.

" In several despatehes which I have had the honour to address to the Secretary $\mathbf{u}$. State for the Colonies, on the conaition and treatment of convicts in New South Wales, and more particularly in those named in the margin, I have represented the impertect organization and disereditable appearance and behaviour of the gangs out of irons which I found cstablished throughout the colony in great numbers as working parties on the roads. From want of legal power, and of adequate means to enforec that which the law permits, I was never able to bring these parties under such efficient superintendence as should at once control their lawless and vagrant disposition, and obtain for the colonists a fair proportion of useful labour. On this account I stated my desire to abolish those parties whenever I could make other arrangements for obtaining work on the roads.
"That arrangement I commenced, as reported in my despatch of 3 d November, 1832, No. 114, by the formation of iron gnngs, superintended by military officers (an employment of which General Lord Hill was pleased to approve) in all matters connceted with their custody and discipline. I3y the change in the colonial criminal law afecting convicts, which I introduced in 1832 , I contemplated a considerable accession of workmen to these gangs, hy checking the improvident transportation of labourers to penal settlements. This law, amongst other good wheh it has done, has effected that which l thus proposed; and whilst the penal station of Moreton Bay has been diminished by nearly three-fourths of its former numbers, the gangs working in irons within the colony, for the great bencfit of the scttlers, have been augmented in the same propurtion. There are now about 1,000 convicts in irons, divided into 16 gangs, working under the control of military officers, under sentences to labour varying from one to three years. Their labour is as cfficient as any forced lahour can ever be, and without tyrnany or cruclty their discipline, submission and safe custody are fully secured. Escapes are very rare, and eorporal punishment not so frequent as from the previous bad habits of these criminals might be supposed necessary. Such measures for their moral reformation aud mental improvement as cireumstances permit are not neglected. The Seriptures and uscful books are placed in their hands, and in some of the gangs schools have been established, and are superintended by the officers in charge. I liave great pleasure in recording the very meritorious conduct, in this and every other respeet, of many of the oficers whom I have employed or this duty.
"Such being the state of the ironed gangs, both as to diseipline and numbers, I have determined to reduce the rond parties from the first proximo, leaving $n o$ gangs on the roads but those under military superintendence. Hitherto the work, whether of gangs, in or out of irons, has been, nominally nt least, directed by overseers named by the surveyor gencral, and inspected by the offieers of that department. It has happened，however，that in many cases the voluntary attentions of the military superintendents of ironed gangs have done more for the speedy improvement of the roads than the paid aervices of the eivil overscers and surveyors；I have therefore thought it expedient at once to reduce，along with the road parties，the overseers and inspeetors to whom 1 allude，and to transfer the charge of constructing and repairing the roads and bridges from the surveyor－general to the commanding royal engineer．The military officers will thus become assistant engineers，and continue their very useful employment under that title without addi－ tional pay or allowance．They will receive their instructions from and report to the commanding royal engineer for my information，and thus a perfect unity of operation will be obtained，the want of which under the former zysten was occasionally，though not frequently，experienced．＂
＂The work required within the town of Sylney I propose to leave，as at present，under the immediate direction of the town surveyor，an aetive and very intelligent officer，who has given great and general satis－ faction．I propose that he shall report directly to the Governnent，until the time arrives at which the people of Sydney ean be induced to take the management of their municipal concerns into their own hands．＂

f.-IVOOL OF AUSTRAL-ASIA.

[As the wool trade of Anstral-Asia is a snhfect of mationd importanee, the following officiat documents shewing its commencement theserve being phaced on reardi.]

 wool brought from New sonth Wales lavine fyeitud the partientar attention of the merehants and principal binglsh manufactures, Captain Maearthur eonsiders it his duty repuenfinly torepresent to his Majesty's mintisters, that he has found, from an experience ol many years, the elimate of New south Whles pecutiarly adapted to the inercase of fine woolled sheep; and that, from the mulimited extast of loxoriant pasoures with which that eountry aboumds, millions of those valuable animals may be rabed in a few yars, with but little other expence than the hire of a few shepherds,

The specimens of woul lhat Captain Maeathur has with him have been intuedted by the best judges of wool hit this kingdon, and they nre of ophalon that it possesses a sotness snperior to mony of the wools of spain; and that it eertalnly is equal, in every valuable property, to the very best that is to be obtaibed from thence.

The sheep prodmeing this fine wool are of the Spanish kind, sent uriginally from Holland to the Cape of Good Hope, and taken from thence to Port Jackson.

Captain Maeurthur belng persualed that the propagation of those animals would be of the utmost eonsepuence to this country, procored, ju $1 / 97$, three rams and five ewes; and he has sitsee hatl the satinfaetion to see them rapldy Increase, their theees angnsent in wight, und the wool very visibly improve in quality. When Captain alacarthar lef Fort Jackson in 1 Bol, the heaviest thece that had then been shorn weighed only :llbs., hut he has received reports of 1802, from which he learns that the fleces of bis sheep were increased to 5 h b. each; (in the grease the average weight of the flecees of fine woolled sheep in New South Wales, when washed, is atbs.) and that the wool is finer aod softer than the wool of the preceling year. The flecee of one of the sheep originally imported from the Cape of Goot IIope has been valucd here at $45.6 \pi$. per 1 b ., and a flecee of the same kiud bred in New Sonth Wales, is estimated at $6 \times$ per 1 b . lteing once in the possession of this valuable breed, and laving nscerlained that they improved in that elimate, he became anxions toextend them ns much as bossible; he therefore crossed all the mixed bred ewes of which lils flocks were composed with spanish rams. Ihelambs prodned from this eross were much improved: but when they were again erossed the ehange far exeeded his most samgutne expectations. In four erosses, he is of opinion, no distinetion will be perceptible between the pure and the mixed breed. As a proot of the extrandinary and rapid improvennent of his flocks, Captain Macarthur has exhibited the lleefe of a eoarse woullel ewe, that has beet valued at 9 . per lb., nad the tlecee of her lamb, begotten by a Spamsh ram, which is allowed to be worth 3 s . per lb.

Captain Macarthir has now about toou sheep, amongst which there are no rams but of the suanish breed. IIe calculates they will, with proper care, double themselves every two years and a half; and that in ? years they wlll be so lacreased as to protuce as much fine wobl as is mow lmported from spain and other eonntries, at an nunnal expense of $t, 800,000$. sterling. To make the principle perfectly plain opon which Captain Macarthor founds this expectation, he begs to state that hall his flock las been rased from 30 ewes, jutehased in 1701 , ont of a ship from fadia, and from about cipht or ten Spanish and Irivh sheep, purchased since. The other hatf of his thock were obrathed in t80t by purchases from an oficer who had rabed them in the same time, ant from abont the same nimber of ewes that Capain Macaithmy emmenced with. This statement proves that the sheep have hitherto multiphed more rapidy than it is calenated they will do in future ; but this is attribued to the first cwes betur of a more polifie kind than the spanish shere are fonnd to be; for sinee Captain Macarthur has directed his attention to that breed, he has observed the ewes do not so often produce double lambs.

As a further confirmation of the principle of inerense that Captain Macarthor has endenvoured to establish, and whiel he is positive time will prove to be correct, he would reler to the general returns transmittod from New south Wales. In 1796 (since when not 100 sheep have been importud), $15 \% 1$ were retnrned as the publie dind private stuek of the colony. In tsot, 6757 were retumed : und although berween those periodi all the males have been killed, as soon as they beeame fit, yet there is a surplos over the calculation ot 6.33 .

Captaln Macarthur is so convluced of the practicability of supplying this eonntry with any quantity of fine wool it may require, that he is earnestly solicitons to prosecute this, as it appears to him, important objuet, and, on his retnra to New South Wales, to devote his whole attention to aceelerate its complete attainment. All the risk attendant on tho undertakinf he will eheerfally bear; he will repnire no pecuniary ail, and all the eneourngement he humbly solieits is, the protectlon of government, permission to ocenpy a suffieient tract of unoeenpied lands to feet his flaek, and the in dilgence of selecting from amongst the convicts such men for shepherds as may, from their previons ocenpatlons, know something of the binsiness.

London, 26 tin July, 1803.
(slgned) John Mfucarthutr.
To the right honourable the lords of the commmittee of his sajesty's most honourable privy council appointed for the consilleration of all matters relang to trate and foreign plant whons.
The memorial of Captain John Maearlhur most respertfily sutes, that, as sume dombts have been expresed of the practieability of inereasing the production of fine wool in New South Wates, to the extent that has been deseribed in the memorials whici have been presented to the sight hononrable the lurds commisaiuners at hls Majesty's treasnry, your lordslitps' memorialist feels it incumbent upon him respectfally to endeavour to remove thase doubts by a repetition of the pineipal facts contalned in the representation he has already hat the honour to make, and to aecompany it with sueh further explanations and with a refercnee to suct evilence as he humbly hopes may be eonsilered conchisive,

In the year 1797 , your memoriadint procured from the Cape of Good Hope three rans and flve ewes of the spanish breed of sheep, and beine persuaded that these nolmals might he of great eonsequance to the eolony of New sonth Wales, he pald very particular attention to preserve the hreed pure, Ife hat soon the satisfaction to see them inerease and the fleeces of their offispring Improve in finencss and angment in welght llaving necertatnedthose facts, nod being tesirons to extend the growth of fine wool as much as posslbie, lie eaingel duced from this cross were cinthed with wool infinitely superior to that of thelr mothers; but when the erosa wa repeated sgain, the improvement hecame grenter than hils most sanguine expectatlons liad Induced him tucalendite uron, Inasmieh that he is of opinion no distinction will be perecptible fin four erosses betwixt the pure and the mited oreed.

When your Iordshins' memorinllst left Port Jaekson in 1801, his flocks consiated of more than 2000 sheep, the whing of which had heen bred from about 50 cwes in litle more than seven years; and by the returns that hehns received of tego his flock were increased to 3000. Wre has not ret recelved any accounts of the year 1803, bit he eoneludes there must then have heen abont 4000 ; beynnd which he has no expeetation they have icercased, as the whole of the lands eontiuons to his farms have, since his tleparture from the coinny, been nppropriated for cultivation.

Your lord-hips' memorialist bronght with him to Eneland as snoples, flececs shorn from the sheep imported from the Cane of Good Hope, flefes shorn from their progewy brel in New Sonth Wales, and fecees shorn from sheep uf the mixed breed, whose dams bore nothing but hair or eoarse wool. When these samples were shown to the most eminent manufacturers and merchants eoncernct in the woollen trate, they all concorred in onlalon that the worst specimens of the mixed brecd would be rainable here, and that the specinens of the fineat kind bred in New Sonth Wales were mich superior to the wool of the original sheepimponted from the Cape of Good fope, and that they wese equal to the very hest we ever receive from Spaln, inded some of the mannfacturers deelared the wool to he superlor to Span'sh wonl in many respects, fand that if they eonld prncure a sufficient supply, it would enable them to surnassall other conntrle in the mannfacture of the hest woollen chotha, luat of the-e opinlons, perhaps, it wonld be supcrinous to say more, as the rinmerons memosials presented to the lords of the trensiry from the manofacturers and merchants, most contaln more decisive evillence than any other testimony that ean the affered upon the subject.

Your lordships' memoriallst is entlrely couvineed, from the number of sheep that have already been bred in New South Wales, and from the improvement which he lins witnessed in the quality of the wool, that milions of slicep may he raised in that conntry, and that in a few years the present stoek, by proper attention, mav be so inereased as to proince a greater quantity of fine wool than we are now oblised to purchase from Spain, and which he has pecertained, hy the proposals of snme eminent shipowners, may be brourbit lither from New south Wates at no greater frelcht than is pait for the freisht of cotton wool from the East Indics, namely 3 d . por 1 lb . In the tlme of wat, and $1 \frac{1}{3} d$. in peace,

It is impossible any one can feel more movety than your lorishlps memoriallat, not to advance a single assurtlon that he is not convinced to be correct, and hits nnxicty extends to a desire of removing every donbt, and of answering every abjection that can be nrged by a reference to the hest evidence the nathre of the case will admit. IIe declarey that all the sheep which have been hred in New South Wales have been reared in the woods upon the naturnl grasses, These grasees are, in all seasous, rich and abundant, and when they become ton rank they are burnt off, and are almost immediatcly succecded by $n$ yonng and swecter herbage, wileh the sheep greedily cat and keep bare, The tracts of land ndopted for pabture are so honndiess, that no asslgnable limitation enn be set to the number of flne woolled sheep winch may be raiced In that conntry, with bit little other expense than the hire and fond of the shepherds. The native Which may be raied In that comintry, with but little other expense than the hire and fond of the shepherds. The native woods, Instead of making the grass sonr, are penerally so nocn as not to deterinrate its quality; whilst they at the same woods, Instead of making the grass sonr, are generally so npen is not to deterinrate its quality; whilst they at the same time afford a salutary shelter from the scorching rnys of the sinn in smmoner, and trom the chillinge old of the wind in whinter. To thls the cxtraordinary softoess that the wool is fond to possess may be atirinuted, for perhaps nothing can mere contribute to presorve and improve the fimoness of wool, than the kooping sheep in a mild and equal temperature, and screcning thent as much as may be possible against the natural fuequalties of the seasons.

To prove these facts, your lordships' memorialist would iespectfolly entreat to sefer to Captain Hunter, the prede ecsaor of Governor King, and to Captain Waterhouse of the royal Davy, who was many years In New Sonth Wales. indeed, your memoriailst, solicitons to remove all suspicion of the correctness of his statements, wrote to the latter officer some time ago upon the subject, and he has now the honour to subjnin a copy of his letter, with a eopy of Cap. tain Watemonse's reply, he has ajso annexed the nomes and adilresses of several respectable offiecrs und gentlemen who have had opportunities to meke their own observations upon the pastures in New South Wales, and who have seca how well sheep thrive upon them.

With sueh a prospect of beeoming uscful to his country, ns the foregoing facts afford, your lordshlpg' memorialist has longentertalned an ardent desire to return to New South Whles, and to devote his whole attention to the inercase and improvement of his flocks. And having understuod that his Majesty's minliters were more disposed to approve of the undertaking being enrried on by $n$ company than by an Individual, he had the lionour to subnit a plan for the for mation of the company to the right honourable the lorils of the treasury. [This eompany was not formed; it is there fore unnceessary to give Mr. Mncarthur's plan.]

Your lordships' memorinlist respectfolly hopes that the statement he has now given, ard the evidenee he has referved to in corroboration of $1 t$, will remove every doubt; and he persuades himself that noder no possible circumstance an attempt to supply this enuntry with fine wool, the potuction of its own colony, enn appear to your lordshipg impolitie, or in any degree hazardous; for, as your memorialist requires no pecondary ail, the hazard would be all his own: and even for $n$ moment supposing him to be mistaken (which, however, he cannot in justire to himself ndmit to be possible, fombed as his opinions linve heen npon so many years' succersfol experience), yet the infant setilements of New senth Wales could not derive bat great advantage and secarity from such an abnudant sopp!y of anlmal food as must indlsputably be raised.

Your memorlalist will no lonser trespass upon your lordships' attention thon to say, that if your lordships shall he pleased to sametion him in the undertaking, on behalf *2 company, he will submit to your lordships' consideration the names of the many respectable persons who lave offered their assistance, ant declared their willinguces to furm a company.

But shonld your lordships mote npprove making the experiment on $n$ small seale, upon the individual account of yonr memoriallst, he wili most cheeriully commence it with an allotment of 10,000 aeres of land, and perninsion to elect 20 convicts for shephicrds.

Your lordshijs' memorialist would choose the land 10 miles from any of the settlements where there is caltivation; and he would engage, in return for the indulgence, to sululy the publie with all the sheep it might be proper to kill, nt a stipulated price; by whieh means your lordships' memorialist humbly presumes the expenses of government in that colony wonld be very mueh diminished in $n$ few years.

John Macarthur.
Proceedings before the privy conneil, July 1804. At the council chamber, Whitehall, the 6th of July 1 set.
Their lordships took into consideration a proposition from Captain Macarthur for encouraging the brecd of fine woolled sheep in New Sonth Wales, together with the several papers on the same subjeet.

Captain Macarthur attended and stated that he had resided in New Sonth Wales 11 years, and held lands there, a very small part only of whel lands were in cultivation, and that he pastured the rest with sheep and cattle.

The followiog questions were then put to Captain Macarthur :-
What is the nature and quality of the land in New South Wales - Rich and strong, so much so, that we are obliged to hurn off the long grass and fecd the sheep upn the young grass: there are different sorts of grass, some resembling the coneh grass in this country; another sort is a short grass of a succolent nature, proper for feeding sheep.

Suppose those lands on which sheep are nove fed were to be turned to the purposes nf eultivation, are there other lands further on proper for the feed of sheep?-1 think there are, and vetter calculated for the purpose, and nut unbounded extent.

Were there other of the seftlers who kept sheep besides yourself ? $-A$ considerable number 1 but I suppose my fock amonated to one-third of the whole.

Were the sheep belonging to the other settlers of the same quality as yours ? $-N o$; I know no other person in the colany who b:as baid anv attention to the improveinent of the wonl.

Of what kind are your sheep, ant what is the klall of the sheep of the country ? The sheep I first began to breel from were of the bengal rnee, weighing about flibs, per quarter: ilnproved these by rams ef a inrger breed, obtained fum a cioss between the Cape ewn not some rams of the Engllsh breed bearling wool. (The flecees of the Bengil and Cnuc sheep approach more nearly to hair than to wonl.) I cannot nacertain the partieular breed of the rams. Iafterwarits mbaninel a number of cwes of the Capebreed, nud these I continned to ernse with rams bearing wonl; by this means $t$ oldainelt, what I conceived to be, a fine bred of sheep. Io the year 1797 I procored three rams and five ewes of the suanish or Merinn race; I bred as may of this pure breed ag possible, and crossed all the other ewes bearing coarso wool, or being of the hairy sort, with rame of this Spanish breed. The sheep in the entony are mostly of the hairy and enarse woolled sort. I concelve that there exists a sort of prejulice in the cabiny In favour of tho sheep hearing inferior wank, fountel on an opinion that the eareasses of such sheep nre the moat profitable.

Whal do von ennceive to be the best male of eneouragenent to be held out to the settlera, with a view to promste the breed of fine whonfet sheep? - Ti feed the iohabitinta on muton rather thin on proviviony sent from thia country, and to erive a small additional price on the carcaves of sheep of the pure Spaoish breed, and grants of lands to those who are inelined to engage in the brec ling of tine woolted sheen.

Captain Macarthar stated that his sheep weizhed about 161bs. wer quarter, and that he thonzht each sheep required nn aere of land to keep it. IIe alko stated that no grants have hitherto been mule to any lidtuldaal of greater extent than 1200 acres; these grants are given in perpetnity. Cantain Macarthur poisesues abont 4000 acrea, part of which was purehased from a former proprietur ; he ls preparing shortly to return to Now South Wales in any event, as a civil settler lo the colony.

Being asked as to the number of settlera in the eolony, supposes them to amount to nonot 100 .
Are there nay nutmols in New suath Wales destractive to the sheppl-Vome, unless the native doz, which is an gnime qomewhat between a fox nnd $n$ wo'f; there are nnt many of them, and they nre sn timill in their nature that they will not approich the sheep by dy. Cantain Macarthur was in the hatit of housiur his sheepevery night by reason of the wetness of the climate at certain perioils of the year ; each of his thoeks have a yard and n shed.

Do the natives mix nin'h with the settlers - They come among the settlers familiarly, but havo no fixed abode, and live upon what they can find for themselves.

Captain Macarthur being askel, whether in enge it should be foumd objectionable to reenmmend the making a specific prant of lant to him, any othir measures eonld be taken for effectually enemraging the breed of fine wooleft sheep ?Iteplied, he is sn coarinced of the advantage which wonld rewult to the country, that he should mont cheerfully proceed in the business upon receiving a cooditional grant of land, until government shall be satisfied of the importance of the measure.

If the object shond not be fonnd to answer the expectations of government, such grant to be resumable ; but, in that event, Captain Mienrthor expressed a bope that he shmult be indemnified for the expenses he must unavoidably incur in feneing, &c., which he caleniated would not exceed the sum of 10801 .

Governor llunter attending, was called in, and examined; as follows :
You have heen governor of New Sonth Wales :-I have.
How bong is it since you returned! - About three years.
is there a considerahle quatity of grass reonud in Now South Wales, in eomm'on and unemployed ?-There is a very cansiderable quantity of pasture lud, hoth clear of wood and envered with grass fit tor eatle and for sheep. 'The quality of the grass nppears to be excellent, as the hay made of it is preferred by strange cattle to that of thelr native soil.

Is the grass of a coarse or fine pile ?-Some eoarse, but a great deal of tine pile; it grows very luxuriantly, and is snme times three feet high.

Is not the chmate favourable to arriculture and for the breed of cattle ? - The latitude is $34^{\circ}$, and it is $n$ very fine climate Is it not subject to great rains?-There are no periodical rains; the climate is variable, and the pasture is rood the whole year.

Did you pay attention to the nature of the sheep during your residence there, and partieularly to the wonl ?--The first stock was from Bengnl and fron the Cape of Good lhope, with a few English sherp; their wool was hairy, but the tlecees trom the cross breed soon lmproved and became very good: cloth was made of it, which was very fit for the clothing of the convicts.

Were there any Spanish sheep?-Two officers whom I sent to the Cape of Good IIope hail an opportunity of making there a purchase of some Spanishs sheep, which had belonged to Colonel Gordon, a Dutch officer well known; and since their introduction into New South Wales, the wool improved very much.

The convicts have been fed ly povernment hitherts on salt provisions and the grain of the country; but $n$ supply of provisions trom this or any foreign country will not long be necessary, as the colony will produce ennogh for its own support. The price of wheat was 10 s. per bushel, as established hy governor Philip, anil this price proenred $\cap$ good supply.

Do you know Captain Maearthur, who has been in that eonutry ?-1 do. He has the largest stnek of sheep in that country, and las been very industrions in improving hls thock and the breed of eattle; and with care and atteotion, Inm of puinion that a great quantity of fine wool may be prodaced. I have no doubt that any offer he may make will be worth attenting to.

Do you apprehend that there would he any great objection to the making grants of lands to persons tisposed to attend to and increase their Hocks of sheep and cattle ?-There is so mueh land that 1 camot conceive there can be any objection to such grants. I mate some grants larger than usual upon applications of that nature, and for that purpose are the ralns so vlolent as to infure the sheep ?-1 have known it rain vinlently for a week. We always housed our sheep. Captain Macarthur made an experiment of keeping his sheep out, but lost a good many by it.

The 14th July, 1804.

The Lords of the committee having resumed the consideration of the several papers relative to the breed of fine woolled sheep, Ke. In New Somth Wales, nitl of the examination thereon of Captain Maearthur, John Hunter, Esfo., formerty gosernor of New South Wales, and Jolm Prinsep, Exi, a merehant of the city of London, from whom a proposition was some time since receved, and has undergone some consideration, relative to opening a regular tratle with Port Jackson, their lorlships were pleased to order that a copy of the memorial presented by Captain Macarthur, and of a proposal subinitted by him to the lords commissioners of his Majesty's treasury for extablisbing a company to cacourage the increase of fine woolled sheep in New South Wales, be transmitted to Etwaril Cooke, Esif, for the iuformation of Lord Canden, with a letter stating that their lordships are of opinion, from the evilence in the papers relating to Captain Maearthur's petition, from the oplnion of the mannfacturers of cloth, statel in their memorials, and from the exnmination of the gentlemen befrom the opimion of the mamufacturers of cloth, stated in that it is probable wool of very fine quality, suited to the manufacture of fine cloth, may be produced in fore mentioned, that it is probable wool of very fine quality, suited to the manufacture of tne cloth, may be produce

That their lordships also conccive, that without more knowledge than they now possess of the nature and state of the colony, and without full communication with the governor of the settlement, inconvenience might arise from reconmendIng an unconditional grant of lands to Mr. Macarthnr, or to a joint company, ${ }^{\text {g }}$ to any individuni, as such grant might re. tard or prevent the other inhnbitants of New South Wales from turning their atteation to the growth and improvement of fine wool, or perhaps, in other repects, connteract the improvement of the colony.

That the lorts of the committee, linwever, are of opinion that encouragement ought to he held ont to the inhabitants of New Sonth Wales to keep a breed of sheep with fine wool, and to improve its guality as much as possible.

That the Committee are inclned to recominend that Mr. Macarthur's plan should be referred to the governor of New South Waies, with instructions to give every encouragement to the growth of tine wool, and to report his opinion on the petition of Mr. Macarthur, and on the plan of $n$ joint company ; nnd that he mould he furtier difected to state alon in what of that article ean be ationded from New south Wales, nad to what extent such supply is likely to be obtalned, and within tlme.
That the lords of the commltee think it right to obsurve that a conditlonal grant of iands of a rasonable extent may be, perhaps, with safety granted to Mr. Nacarthur for the pasturise of slieep only, or to other persons, proviled a penas be reserved in such grant to resumo the same at any future period, on quing uther land fiurther divant from the contivated would not cramp, the cultivation of the colony, or be nttended with bad effects in any manner at present apparent to the loris of the comimittee.

That in additson to these encouragements, it necors to their lordships that the governor shond be directe ito provide mitton for the food of the conviets rathor than to feed thom on mated provishons; and that it might efgally temp to and eonrage the breed of sheep with fine wool, if it were recommended tos the governor to purchase only that descriptinn af sheep for that purpose, or at lenst to give a preference to sheep of that deserpoton over any orher kind, and to mone and vanced price for the sheep with fine won, That many other ways maty, however, ocebr to the goveroor, from hla lueai knowleage, of promoting an object so dmportant to this country ; and that he should be directed to state the same to larl Camden.

That from the information obtaned from the theeses bronght from the settlement in efuestion, and from the description given of the climate of the colony, the puds of the eominitee are led to immite and entertain hopes that wool of a stan quality may he profuced th this colony ; and that as wod of such fine quality la much wanted fund denired hy the manumen turers of cloth in Ensfand, it belne mostly drawn at this tho trom a country inthenced, if not dependent on France, their lordships entertain no donibt that it is well deserving the attention of his Majesty's government to eneourage the produee of fine wool in the colony of New South Wrales.

Z.-STATE PAPERS.

 Fibrutary, 1\%90.
[The following extracts from State Papers will convey a knowledge of the early condition of the now flourishing settle. ment in Anstralia.]

I hat the honour of informiny your lordwhy, that a settlement was intended to he made at a place I maned Hose-fill. At the head of this harbour there is a creek, which at halt thood has water for large boats to for three miles up: and one mite higher the water is fresh and the suil good, -a very indistrious man, whom 1 brought from England, is employed there at present, and has nuder his direction a homdred eomvicts who work in elearmg and endivathg the gromm. A barm, granary, and other necessary builthogs are crected, fund $2 \pi$ acres in eorn promlse a good crop. The soil is good, and the country for 20 miles to the westward, which is as far as I have examined, hes wedf for cultivation; bit even there the tabour of elearing the ground is very preat, and thave seen mone that can be cultivnted withont cutting down the tinher, except some fow particular spots, which from their situaton, lying at a distance from cither of the harhours) ean the of no advan. tage to us at present ; and I presume, the meadows mentioned in Caphain Cook's voynge were seen from the high arounds aliove Botany Bay, and from whence they appear well to the eyc, but when examined, are found to be marshes, the drain. anove Botany bay, and from whence they apprar well to the eyc, but when examin ing of which would be n work of time, and not to be attempted by the first vettlers.

The captain's guarl, whleh mintil lately did duty at Hose-hill, is now rednced to a lientenant and twelve privates, sund in tended merely as a guard to the store which contains the provisions, and whieh is in the redoubt ; for I am now sensible there is nothing to he approhended from the natives, and the little attention whith hat been desired of the officers, more than what was immediately garrison duty, when at Rose-hill, is now no longer reftired.

At Sydney Cove all the officers are in good huts, and the men in harracks, and although many unforeseen difficuties have been met with, I believe there is not an intividual, from the povernor to the private soldier, whose sttuation is not more eligible at this time than he hat any reason to expect it conld be in the course of three years station; mud it is the same with the convicts, and those who have been any ways industrious, have vegetables in plenty. The buildings now carrying on are of brick and stome. The honse intended for myself was to consist of only three roons, but having a puod foundation has been enlarget, eomtains six rooms, and is so weli built, that I presume it will stand for a great number ct years.

The stores have been lately over-run with rats, and they are equally mumerous in the gardens, where they do considerable damage: and as the loss in the stores cond only be known by rcmoving atl the provislons, that work was ortered tis he done, and many casks of flower and rice wore fumd to be dameged, or totally destroyed. The loss in these two artieley by the rats, shece landing, has been more than twelve thousand weloht,

Vegetables and provisions hnving hem frefuently stolen in the njeht from the eonvicts and others, twelve conviets were chosen as a night wateh, and they have actually answored the end proposed, no roblery hating been eownitted or several months, and the convicts ingenernl have behaved hetter than I ever expected. Only two comvicts have suitered death in the last year. Four were executed the first year.

As near two years have now passed since we first landed in this conntry, some fudgment may he formed of the elimate, and I believe a finer or more healthy one is not to be fonnd in any part of the workl. Of pojn people who were landel, many of whom wore worm ont hy old age, the scnryy and various disorders; only 27 have died in 21 months, and hy the surgeon's returns it appears, that 26 of those died from disorders of long standing, and which, it is more than proljahe, would have carricd them off wuch sooner In Eughand. Fifty-nine children have been born in the above time.

In l)eember, thecorn at Rose-hill was got in ; the enou was exceedimply god ; about guo bushels of whent, and about fio of barloy, with in small guantity of flax, lndian corn, and oats; all of which is preserved for seed. Ifere I beg loave to oh. sorve to your lordship, that if setthers are sent out, and the convicts diviled amongst them, this eettlement wilh very shortly maintain itvelf, but withont which, this country cannot be enitivated to any atwantage. At present, I have only one ber. son (who has about a hundrod convicts nuder his direction) who is employed in cultivating the ground for the public beneft, and he has returned the quantity of corn above mentloned into the public store ; the officers bave not raised sufficient to support the little stock they have. Some ground I have had In cinltivation will return 40 bushels of wheat into store; so that the produce of the lebour of the conviets cmployed fin cultivation has been short of what might have been expeeted; asd which I take the liberty of pointing out to your lordshin, in this place, to show as fully as possible, the stete of this eolay, and the necessity of convicts belng employed by them who have in interest in thelr labour. The giving eonvlets to the oftiects has been bitherto necessary, but it is attended with many inconveniences, for which the advantages anding to the oificers do not make amends ; it will theretore be discontinued atter this detachment is relieved unless particularly directed. The numbers employed in coltivation will, of course, he inereased, as the necessary buildings are finished.

In November, the Supply salled tor Norfolk island with some convlets, and returned after being absent six weeks; nll the people in that island were well, and thelr crops, after all they hat suffered from rats, birls, and a worm, which had done then considerable damage, so grool, that they had grain suficient for six month's bread for cvery one upon the island, reservitg sutticient for their next year's crops.

Early in January, 1790 , the Sinply arain sailed for Norfolk island with more convicts, and in her passage left asmald party on Lord fowe island to hunt for tirthe; but in fifteth days three only were taken. No great advantages wil at present acerne from thence. The inland has fresh water, but no anchoring ground.

Since the deaths mentioned in a former part of this letter; one woman has suffered for robbery, five chididen have died, and twenty-cight children been born.

Extrant of "Lefter from Governor lhitips to the Right Iton. Lord Sydiney, tated Botany Bry, Iath Frbruttry, I\%go.
In order to get $n$ knowledge of the country round the settlement, frefuent excursions have been mate shen the ships aaited tin November, 178H, soon after whill I wont to botany llay, nat the tive days spent in that harbour eontirmed me in the opiblon I had first formed of it ; that it aftorted bo eligise sifuation for fixing the settlement, and was a bad harime not affor'lhig gool seeurity for ships agalast the easterly wints, wheli frequently how very hard fin the whiter, and whith has heen further proved by Captain llunter ant the first lientenant of the Sirius, who went there to survey the liay,

After having been neveral thmes with the boats to llroken llay, in order to exnmine the different branehes ln that harbonr, a river was fount, but the want of provislons obliged 11 to return without belng able to trace it to its souree, whleh has slice been done; nut in the 16 days we were then ont, all those branches whieh hat any tepth of water were traved as fias as the boats conkl proceed.

The breadth of this river, named the Ilawkeshury, is from 300 to 800 feet, and it appears from the soindinge we hand, to be navigable for the largest merchant shlps to the foot of Riehmond-hill; but as the water near the hearl of the river sometimes rises after very henvy rains at feet above its common level, it would not be safe for whips to go so far nip; but is or go miles below Rhehmonl-hilt they woult lle hin tresh water, and perfectly safe. 1 speak of Kichmo dihill, as behng the heal of the rlver, It there growing very shallow and illviling linto two branebes

The high roeky conntry whleh forms liroken llay, is lost as you proceed np the Ilawkesbury, and the banks of the river are there eovered with timber, the soll a rieh light monli, and, judging from the little we saw of the country, I should supose it good land to a very eonsjderable extent; the other branches of fresh water are shona, but probably run many miles further into the country than we condit trace them in our boats. On these rivers we paw great oumbers of wilt ducks and some black fwans; nud on the hanks of the llawkeshury, several teeoys were set by the natives to eatelithails.

Riehmond-hill (near the foot of whleh a fall of water prevented our proceeding further with the boats) is the southeris extremity of a range of hills, whin ruming to the northward, most probaby join the monntans which lie nearly paralled from the hill was yery extenbive from the sonthward and castward, not the eninity appearing from the heirht at which we were, a evel covered withtimber. There is a that of six or seven miles between Rlehmond-hin and a break in the monntalus, wheh separates Lanstown and Carmarthen-hilts, and lit this tat I suppose the llawkeshmry continues its course, but whinh eoult not he sun for the timber, that with very few exeeptons covers the country wherever the soit is rood. The great alvantages of so moble a river when a settlement can he made on its banks will be obvious to your fordshlp.

The settlement malle at Port Jickson, near the head of the harbour (Kose-hill), very filly answers my expeetations the soll is exceeding good, lies well for caltivation, amd is well watered. Six miles to the sonthward there bs a small fresh fiver, and twenty to the southwnd there is a more consblerable river, the somree of whieh I suppose to be at the foot of the mountain. The banks of thls rlver, which most probably empties itseff dnto the lowkeabury, are linds, the soil a pood hight monll, and covered with trees; the wood of some of the trees is very light, they are alout the size of large wnlmat trues, which they resemble; they shed their leaves and bear a small trult, which is sail to be very wholesome. Thls river likewisp ises 30 feet above its common level ; it is, as far as $J$ have seen it, from 300 to 100 feet in lireailth, I named it the Nepean, and its sonree will be tracid in the course of the winter. lirom lis banks i hope to reach the mountains, whieh has been attempted by n party who crossed the river, but after the ist clay's journey they met with sueh a eonstant suceession of deep ravines, the siles to which were frequently ingecessible, that they returned, not having been able to jrobed above 15 miles in five ulays; when they turned baek they supposed themselves to be 12 miles from the foot of the monntains.

As the land for several miles to the southward, and 20 miles to the vestward of Rose-hil, that is, to the hanks of the Nepean, is as fine land for tillage as most in England (some few particular spots excepted, the soil of which is poor, and bears a very sinall proportion to the pood land), I propose that tract of lant for those setthers who may be sent out, and though they will be placed at some distance from each other for the eonvenience of water, from one to three or four milis , will have nothing to apprehent from the natives, who avoid those parts we most freguent, and always retire at the sight of two or three peoplo who are armed.

As the labour of elearing the ground of timber will be great, I thlnk each settler shond not have less than twenty men on his own farm, which 1 suppose to be from 500 to 1000 acres. It will be necessary to give that minber of eonviets to those settlers who eome ont, and to support then for two years from the public stores; in that time, if they are at all industrious, they will be in a situation to support themselves, and 1 do not think they would be able to tho it in less thane. At the expiration of the two years, they may return half the conviets they liave been allowed, and want no further assistance from Government.

It may bo neeessary to grant land to ofticers and soldiers, who, beeominti settlers, will of eourse be enfitled to every adngence; but few of the oftieers now here have reaped any foot advantage from being allowed convicts, and it j attended with unavoidable inconvenience from the conviets being left so much to themselves, ant froni their mixing with the soldiers. It may be found more to the advantage of the Crown, and the ofticers likewise, if officers on duty in this settlement were allowed a certain fuantity on grain to support their live stock until they have a market to go to; nud 1 make no toubt but that in the thirt year from the time settiers arrive, there wifl be a market, weli supplet with grain poultry, hogs, and poats, of all which there has ben a great increase, bot killed rom wanting corn to bupport them; and he natives se frequently setting fire to the country, which they do to catch the opossum, thying squirrel, and other animals, has prevented swine from being turned out, as was intended.

If this plan of distributing among the setilers those eonvicts who are not immediately necessary for carrying on the mblic works is approved of, and which I suppose will, as appearing to me most likely to render this settlement independent for the necessaries of life in the shortest time possible, there are many regulations which will of course take place

D.-ABSTRACT OF THE VAN DIEMEN'S LAND COMPANY'S CHARTER.

The Van Diemen's Land Company's charter, bearing dated the lst September, 1825, is founded on the Act of the 6 Geo. 4, c. 39 .
The charter, after setting forth the objects contemplated in the act, goes on to declare and define the scope of the operations of the company. It empowers the company to expend their capital in the improvements of their lands and the construetion of works thereon, and in carrying out emigrants. It conveys the power of " working and raising mines and minerals," subject to such conditions as might be imposed by the government.

The company may make loans on the security of "lands and hereditaments" situnted within the colony, to the amount of $50,000 l$. in the whole; a record of each loan to be entered in the supreme court within one month.

They may also make loans to the amount of 20,000 l on any " bonds or judgments" (such lonns to be subject to the further regulation of the government), provided they do not enter into any banking operations. Loans may be made without restriction to persons settling on their lands for the purpose of improving them.

They may contract for public works to the extent of $50,000 l$. This licence to continue for 10 years only, and be then subject to renewal or otherwise.
They may advance money to the government to the extent of $100,000 l$. on security of any tolls or taxes. This licence also to continue for 10 years only, subject to renewal.

They may advance money on whale or seal fisheries to the amount of 20,000 .
They may lay out capital to the extent of $20,000 l$. in the nequirement of "houses, wharfs, and buildings," and capital to the amount of $10,000 l$. in the acquisition of any other description of real property, "lands or hereditaments." Such last-mentioned description of property (not being a house, wharf, or other building) to be only through a license from the goverior. The secretary of state may authorize the company to increase such loans and investments of capital, if it shall appear to be for the benefit of the colony to do so. Provision is then made for regulating the tenure of their grant.

1. The grants to be made under the seal of the colony, in pursuance of warrants under the Royal Sign Manual.
2. A quit-rent to be hargeable of $1 \frac{1}{3}$ per cent. on the lands.
3. No quit-rent to be due or payable for five years from the date of the grant.
4. May redeem the quit-rent by payment of 20 times its amount.
5. They shall employ a number of convicts equal to the number of their free labourers, provided the governor should be able and willing to supply sueh a number.
6. The company to employ one free overseer to every 50 convicts.
7. None of the company's land to be alienated for five years from the date of the grant, under penalty of a forfeiture to the crown.
8. The company have the power of alienating any portion of their land (after such period of five yenrs) not exceeding 12,500 acres, after having proved to the local government an expenditure of 2,5001 ; and so on in like proportion, and on the same conditions, to the extent of one-half their grant. They may also lease for any period not exceeding 21 years any portions of thelr land, to the extent of one-half their grant.
$9,10, & 11$. The quit-rent chargeable on the company's land shall be paid at intervals of five years; the first payment to be made after the expiration of 10 years from the date of the grant. It is also provided, that the quit-rent may he redeemed by the employment and maintenance of 150 convicts during the greater part of the second period of five years from the date of the grant, of 250 convicts during the third period, and of 350 during the fourth period.
9. The lands shall be free from quit-rent if, within 20 years from the date of the grant, the company shall make it appear that they have relieved the local treasury from a charge equal to $25,000 \%$. hy the maintenance of convicts, to he calculated at the rate of $16 /$. for each convict supported during the year.
The capital of the company is fixed at $1,000,000$. sterling, to be ralsed in shares of 1001 . cach.
Then follow various provisions relative to the appointment of the governor, deputy-governar, and the directors; their mectings, &c. &c. &e. ## E.-Copy of a Letter from Earl Bathurst to Mr. F.dward Curr, Secretary to the proposed Van Diemen's Land Company.

Sir,
Downing-street, 15th April, 1825.
Having had under my consideration the letter which on the $22 d$ ultimo you addressed to me on hehalf of the merchants and others who have associated thenselves together as a company for the cultivation and improvement of waste lands in His Majesty's island of Van Diemen's Land, I have thought it right in transmitting my answer to your proposals to avail myself of the opportunity this correspondenee affords, of stnting to you explicitly the terms upon which I am prepared to advise Uis Majesty to sanction the formation of the projected company.
2. It would he superfluous to state in this place the reasons which have indaced me to consider the establishment of a company for the cultivation and improvement of waste lands in more than one of lis Majesty's colonles as an undertaking deserving the support of His Majesty's goveriment. It is sullicient to express the conviction of His Majesty's government, that the introduction of capital, judiciously applied, cannot fail to produce the most beneficial results. It must therefore form the essential basis of every such plan, that adequate security should be given that the nominal capital of any company of this description will be really raised and expended in carrying the avowed designs of the subscribers into effect.
3. I must therefore stipulate, on the behalf of His Majesty's government, that before any bill is brought into Parliament for investing the Van Diemen's Land company with the necessary powers, four-fifths, at least, of the capital should be actually subscribed; and I slall expect to receive, on the personal credit of the very respectable gentlemen whose names are placed at the head of the proposed company, an assurance that the subscribers are in general persons of capital and substance adequate to the payment of their subscriptions.
4. I shall further require as a necessary preliminary to the granting of the charter, that tiee subscribers shall actually jay up and deposit in the hands of the dircetors five per cent. upon the amount of the eapital subscribed, and an additional five per cent. on that amount before the lands to be granted by the Crowa are actually delivered into the possession of the company. If, in addition to these securities, it were possible to render the shares of the capital stock of the company inalienable for a few years, I should be much disposed to iusist on such a condition. But being, upon full consideration of the subject, persuaded that the number of exceptions to such a rule which must be admitted, combined with the various contrivances whieh might be devised for eluding its operation, would deprive the rule itself of all practical efficacy, I have decided not to insist upon such a condition. As a substitute for it, however, I slall expect the company to agree to the following regulaton : The capital originally subscribed will be divided into shares of 50l. cach, and the certificates to be delivered to sharcholders will be expressed accordingly. But as, in the progress of the undertaking, it may be necessary that additional capital should be raised, it will be provided, that His Majesty's goverument may authorize the creation of an additional capital, equal in amount to that originally subscribed.

This additional capital will also be divided into shares of 500 . each, and the original subseribers will be required to agree, for themselves and their representatives, that each person will accept a number of the second set of shares equal to the number which, at the time of such increase of capital, he may hold in the original shares.
5. Although the sanction of His Majesty's government will thus precede the increase of capitnl, it is, on the other hand, to be understood that this sanction will not be given unless it shall be applied for in a jectition adopted at a general meeting of the subscribers, and unless His Majesty's governnent shall receive satisfactory proof that a considerable proportion of the original capital has been bona fide applied and expended in the prosecution of the undertaking.
6. The capital to be originally subscribed will be $500,000 l$. sterling, and will be divided into ten thousand shares. Each director and auditor of the sompany will be required to hold fifty shares, as the necessary qualification for his admission and continuance in those offices.
7. It is necessary that the mamner in which it shall be lawful for the company to employ this capital should be defined with as much precision as the nature of the subject will admit; for it must be clearly understond that every intentional deviation from the mode of employment authorized by the terms of the charter, accoriling to their fair and equitable construction, will be deemed a violation of the terins upon which such charter was grantel.

- As sonn as the proposed charter of incorporation shall be obtained, and the necessary surveys completed, I shall be ready to advise llis Majesty to make to the company a grant of two hundred and fifty thousand acres of land in the island of Van Diemen's Land; and one of the primary objects in which the company will be authorized to expend their capital, will he the elearing, improvement and cultivation of this tract of land. The words "improvement and cultivation" will be mederstoon in a large and liberal sense, us inclating the formation of roads, drains and bridges; the erection of honses, mills, and other works and machinery necersury or convenient for the occupation or prollable cultivation of the suil; the depasturing of sheep or cattle, and generally such operations of agrleulture or pasturage as the exigencies and peculiar situation of settlers in a new country may require.

9. Another mode of employing the capital of the company will consist in the defraying the expenses incident to the emigration of persons proposing to settle upon any part of the company's estates; in which is of course included all charges of freight, onttit, and other expenses incident to the removal of emigrants, and to the settling them on their arrival.
10. With respeet to the operations of mining, it may be necessary to remark that the Crown has always reserved to itself, upon the grant of waste lands in the colonies, all mines and minrals beneath the surface. A similar reservation will be male in the grant which may be issmed in favour of the proposed company. lermission, however, will he given to the company to aceept leases or grants of mines from llis Majesty within the island of Van Diemen's Land, and to employ their capital in rasing minemb, and in all other expense's ordinarily incident to that operation. It will, however, be elearly understool that the eompany is not to engage in any mining concerns, except upon such lands as may be expressly demised or granted to them hy the Crown for that purpose; and that such grants or leases will preseribe sueh conditions as may from time to time appear necessary to Ilis Majesty, for preventing the caputnl of the company being engageil in these modertakings to an moreasonable extent, or in an improvident mamer. It is scarcely neecssary to add, that it will altogether be optional with the Crown to make or to withhold sueh grants or leases, and that without an express grant or lease the company will not be at liberty to engage in mining operations, even npon thelr own lands. The ordinary operations of quarrying, or raising lime, elay, or other materials for buildings, do not fall within the meaning of this prohibitory rule.
11. The employment of the capital of the company in making loans to settlers will he permitted, but this power must not be exercised, except under such restrietions as have appeared to me necessary for preventing the abusca to which such a power, if unrestricted, might obviously lead. First, then, it will be required that all loans of this nature should be matter of public record, and that the whole amount of the money for wheh the company may at any one time be in advance to settlers shall not exceed $50,000 l$, sterling. Further, the company will be permitted to lend money on mortgage to persons not settled on their own estates, but in such manner as only will give them, in default of payment, the right, not of foreclosure, but of sale; and in every loan made on mortgnge, a provision slall he introduced for the repayment of the money borrowed hy instalments. In the event of the company bringing the estate of their dehtor to a judicial sale, they will not he peraitted to become the purchusers of it from the sheriff, for any price greater than the sum which the company may have vested on the mortgage of such estate.
12. The preceding regulations respecting the lending of money on mortgage will not extend to the case of persons effecting settlements on the company's estates. I do not deem it necessary to limit the amount of capital which may be advanced to this class of settlers, or to restrain the company from entering into such contracts with them, as, upon general principles of law, may be made by way of mortgage between any private capitalist and the owners of land.
13. With respect to the employment of the capital of the company on loans to private individuals upon mere personal sccurity, it is reguisite to lay down explieitly the distinetion which it will be necessary to observe. It cannot be too plainly stated, that transactions in the nature of banking operations cannot be permitted. The company will therefore not be at liberty to lend money at interest to any private person by way of discount upon bills of exchange, promissory notes, or other negotiable sceurities, which by the ens. tom of trade are transferable by delivery, or by a simple indorsement: still less can they be allowed to open a running account with any private person in the nature of an ordinary banker's account. But they will he permitted so advance money to any private person resident in the island on the security of honds or judgments, provided that the whole amount of such loans shall not at any one time execed $20,000 \mathrm{l}$. and subject to such regulations as may from time to time be laid down for the prevention of abuses.
14. The employment of a portion of the capital of the company in the accomplishment of public works, will be expressly sanctioned: but here also the permission must be qualified by such limitations as have appeared to be necessary to obviate its possible abuse. In the first place, the company will not be permitted, at any one time, to embark more than $50,000 l$. in the whole, in any unlertaking of this nature. At the expiration of ten years from the date of their charter, the power of employing any part of their capital in the execution of puhlic works, will cease, unless his Majesty's government shall, at that period, see fit to continue that power for a further period. And finally, the company will not consider themselves as having any claim to be preferred above private persons in contracts of this nature, unless their proposals should, by the local government, he deemed more advantageous than those of any other candidates.
15. If the governor and legislative council of the colony should, at any time, pass any act for borrowing money for the public service, on the sccurity of tolls, or other public taxes, the company will be permitted, in the event of such acts being confirmed by his Majesty, to become competitors for any such loans, provided that they are never in advance, on that accoont, in a greater sum than $100,000 l$, at any one time. This power of making loans will, however, expire in ten years from the date of the charter, unless it should be then renewed for a limited period, by the express sanction of his Majesty's government.
16. Whaling and sealing are mentioned in ynur letter as affording a mode in which the capital of the com. pany might be invested with alvantage to the colony. The conduct of a whale fishery, upon an extensive scale, requires so much attention, and so large an expenditure, and involves so much risk, that I cannot deem it right to sanction the diversion of the capital of the company, or the time of its agents, into such a channel. llut so far as whaling and sealing, undertaken on the account and risk of others, can he promoted hy loans of money to be made by the company, according to the preceding conditions, there will be no objection to that employment of it, to an extent not exceeding $20,000 l$.
17 Having thus defined in general the purposes for which the capital of the company may be employel, 1 proceed to state the general rule, that it is not to be engnged in any ajpecies of trade. Without undertak. ing to furnish a precise defliltion of the gencral term, 1 would be understood to mean by trade, auy trans. netion in the nature of barter anil sale, which might not be fairly and bond fide undertaken for the purpose of converting into eash, or remitting to other porta, in the most convenient and economical manner, the produce of the company's lanils.
17. The investment of the capital of the company in the purchase of lanils in the colony, will not be per. mittell except in special cases, in whiels they shall firat ohtain the licence of the governor, it being understood, that even with his licence, they can never at any one time have linvested in the purchase of land more than 10,0001 .
18. In reference to your request that the company may he at liberty to invest aome portion of its capital in the purchase of houses and wharfs in the different townships, I am to apprize you that to the extent of $20,000 \%$. such investments will be permitted, and that for that purpose the licence of the local government will not be necessary.
19. As the preceling linitations, with regard to the amount of the capital which the company may embark In the aeveral particular operations above enumerated, may in process of time require revision, a power will be reserved to the crown to authorize by a licence through the secretary of state, any augmentation of such advances which experience may show to be necessary or desirahle.
20. With respect to the grant and selection of the lands to be conceded to the company, the following rules will be observed:-
The company will receive their grant in the north. west district of the island, that listrict being for the present purpose, considered as hounded on the north by Bass's Streights; on the west by the ocean ; and on the cast and south by lincs drawn from either shore, so as to afford the necessary depth of country. Within that district they will be at liberty to select any ungranted lands at their own discretion. Those lands must however lie in one continuous nnd unbroken tract, approximating to the form of a sifuare, as nearly as may he, compatible with preserving a clear and well-defined natural boundary. The whole qunntity of uscful land, that is of land capable of being used in pasturage or tillage, to be contained in this square, is two hundred and fifty thousand acres. Whatever useless and unprofitable land may be unavoidably included in order to complete the square figure, will be granted to the company gratuitously.
21. The survey and valuation of the land thus to be granted to the company, will be carried into cffect by five cornmissioners, of whom two will be appointed by the crown, and two by the company. The fifth commissioner will be elected by the four thus apppointed. If the majority cannot concur in the election within fourteen days after their own appointment, then at the expiration of that period the governor or officer administering the government of Van Diemen's Land, will, on his Majesty's behalf, nominate a fifth commissioner.
22. In the event of the death, resignation or absence from the colony of any one of the five commissioners hefore the survey is completed, a successor will be appointed by the surviving or continuing commissioners; and if they cannot concur in electing a successor withinfourteen days after the vacancy has occurred, the nomination will be made by the officer administering the government of the island.
23. The remuncration of the commissioncrs appointed by his Majesty will be provided for and paid by his Majesty; that of the commissioners appointed by the company, will be provided or and paid by them. The remuneration of the fifth commissioner, and the other expenses incident to the commission, will be provided and paid for equally between his Majesty and the company, those expenses being first taxed and allowed by the officer administering the government of the island.
24. The commissioners will make a report in writing to the governor or lieutennat-governor of the result of their survey and valuation, and a report of the majority of their number must be taken as the report of the whole body. In that report, they will state with all possible precision, the exact limits of the grant to be made to the company, especially distinguishing all the natural boundaries; and they will also state the average valuc per acre of that part of the land which is capable of being employed in pasturage or tillage.
25. So soon as the limits of the intended grant shall be thus ascertained, the officcr administering the government of the island will be anthorized to issue a grant of it to the company, to be held by them and their successors in free and common soccage. In this grant a quit rent will be charged upon the land, amounting to 30 s. per annum, upon every hundred pounds of the ascertained value of the land to be comprised in the grant. The quit rent will not become payable until the expiration of tive ycars from the date of the grant. Upon giving six months notice in writing to the local government, the company will be at liberty to redeem the quit rent, or any part of it, by paying into the colonial treasury a sum equal to twenty times the amount of the rent proposed to be extinguished. If the local government should be able and willing to supply the company with a number of convict labourers, not exceeding the number of free labourers employed by them in their grant, the company will accept such convicts and employ and maintain them at their own expense. If within fifteen years from the date of the grant, it shall be made to appear that the company have saved to His Majesty's government, by the maintenance of convicts, the sum of 25,000 . sterling, then all the lands contained in such grant will be for ever exonerated from all future quit rents. It will be cstimated that His Majesty's government has anved $16 l$. sterling by each convict wholly kept and maintained by the company for one year.

Article 1. Whereas the due support of a religious establishment is essentially connected with the maintenanee of morality, good order, and the happlness of the people; and whereas nothing more inaterially tends to cherish sud support such establishment, than the maintenance of a due number of dignified pastors of the same; and whereas the divided state of these dominions neeessarily "emands great attention on this head; and whercas there is reason to believe that, in ancient times, some of these lshands had the benefit of having blahops attached to their relifious establish. ments, and which have since been abolished.-it is declared to be expedlent, that in addition to the recognised arch. bishop or bishop for the lslands of Corfu, Cephalonia, Santa Maura, and Cerigo, there shall be an archbishop or bishop for the bland of Zante, a blshop, for the lishand of Ithaca, and a bishop for the island of Paxo; and it is further declared, that the time and mode of applying to the sacred heat of the fireek orthotox religion at Constantinople, on this subject, shall be reserved to his Majesty the protecting sovereign; provided always, that the nomination of such dignitaries of the church does not entail any additional expenilture, of any kind, on the revennes of these states,
2. Whereas due reference is made in the foregoing astiche relative to the necessary establishment of the orthodox and domioant religion of these states, it is liereby declarel, that it is highly luexpedient, and impoisithe, with every egard to the due suphort, as far as it may be indispenzable, of the oecessary pastors that inay be retuisite for any sys. tem of Christian religion, that these states can snpport the expense or can maintain the priociple that thero shall be supported and paid hy them, or ont of any finds that they in their wisdom may choose to appropriate to other uses, prelates and dignitarice of any rellpion, but those of the dominant rellgion of these States : save and exeept always such prelates and dignitaries of such charches as are now actually resident in, and executing thel functions within these states, and for the term only of their natural lives.
3. Whereas it is most expedient thas there slould be a metropolitan of the dominant religion of the Greek orthodox chorch in these states, nossessing, by eonsent of the huly father of the Greck ehureh, the patriarch of Constantinople, a genetal spiritual power and supremacy over the whole of the pastors of the dominant eharch in these States; it is deelared, that it would be expedient, it aueh measire be not contiary to the cunon rules aud regulations of the ksid cbureh, that the sald metropolitan shonld be the arehbshop or bishop that may be regnlarly ordained by the holy father, being the patriarch at Constantibuple, for the four great islands of these States, sfriulim, that is to say, that the arehbi, shop or bishops duly appointed and regularly consecrated slionld in torns, subject to thls constitutional chart, be held each and sll of them as metropolitans for the term of one parliament. But should it appear that this arnangenent his discordant in the smaliest degree with the canons of the dominant clurch, it is further declared, that the arehbishop, or bishop of Corfu, of Cephalonla, of Zante, and of Santa Manra, shall, seriutim, be the metropolitan of the dominant Greek church; and that such metropolitan, (not belug the archblshop or bishop of Corfu) shall, if not contrary to the canons of the dominant chureh, be held to be present at the seat ot government during all the sessions of parliament, provided alwaya, that such archbishopric or bishopric for the island of Zuste be established.
4. Whereas the ultimate arrangement that must take place ouany change, If such ehange should happen in consequence of the first declaratory clause of this section, cannot be established till the period when the pleasire of the protecting soverelgn and of the holy father of the dominant church is known, it is deelared, that the parliament of these states reserves to itseif all and every power, with the eousent of his excellency the lord high commissioner of the protecting sovereign, to make auch alterations, modifications, aod arrangements, relative, either to the mode of election of the dignitaries of the domitant elurel, or to any branch connected with the dominant religion, that may not militate with the spiritual power of the head of the dominant religion, the most holy the patriarch of Constantinople, and the regular lawa laid down by the holy synod of the Greek church.

*Sir R. Bourke, the governor, remarks on this return, that "although confinell to Sydney, it may be eonsidered applicable to the whole colony, servants of all kinds being engaged by the settlers in sydney, and taken from thence to their property in the interior, while provisions of all descriptions, varying as they may in price in different districts, may reasonahly be taken at the avernge of the Sydney market."

+ In respect to coppers, it is mentioned in some evidence hy Dr I.ang, whose publications on New Somth:

G.-The rate of wages per day for labourers and mechanics throughout the eastern townships of Lower Canada, are as under :-

Carpenters for framing buildings, brilges, and for general rough work, are paid abont 5s. Joiners and superior workmen, 5s.to 6 s .3 d . Blacksmiths meet witb, plenty of employment at ahout the same wages for orlinary country workmen nod shorrs, but smiths who understand mill work, earn 5s. to 7x. fit. Masons and stone-cutters are employed in the districts where stone is used for building, and are paid from 48. to 5 s. fir. Bricklayers meet with great encouragensent, as brick is muie generally used than stone; a brieklayer, if a good worhmen, is paid 5s. to 6x. 34 . Plasterers the same. Sawyers to not fiud employment, mills being made to do all their work. Millwrights who understand their business are amply encouraged, their wases being as high in some cases, as 15 w . per day; they commonly receive 7 z . fil. to 10 s. Cabinet makers fiad employment to a certain extent, bot there is not a great demand for the finer kinds of fornitore, ordinary workmen are primeipally employed, and receive from ts. to fs. $3 l$. Shoemakers are not commonly paid by the day, but receive very good prices for thrir work. Tailors the same. Farm servants, or ordinary labourers, receive according to their capatility of performing the general work of the comntry, from 20l. to $35 \%$, for the year, and board, when engaged for that period, otherwise, 2s. fiel. But good ploughnen, and men who have acquired the art of using the axe, waggoners, &e., receive higher wages, and in harvest time, every man may find employment at from 48 . to $5 s$ s. 64 .

Prices of Grain and Provisions.

Wheat is at :resent (18.37) selling at about 5s. to 5 sm .3 h . per bushel; the crop has been very gool the past season, and the quality excellent. Barley is not cultivated to a considerable extent ; the price is alout 2 s. Gul. per bushel. Oats are sold at is. 2if. to 1s. Fit. per bushel. Peas 3s. per bushel. Hay is produced in great quantities both in natural and artificial meadows and uplands. It is usually applied to the wintering and fattening of cattle, which are pastured doring the summer, and its price varies from 20s. to 30s. and 40 s , per ton, according to situntion. Flax seed is cultivated in small quantities, and sells for about 5 s . to 6 s . per bushel. Clover seed is also partially raised, and iz worth from 70s, to 84 s . per ewt., as well as limothy and Hird's grass seed, which are worth from 6s, to 98 . per bushel. Turnips are sometimes sewn hat not generally, the principul root crop heing potatoes, which yield large returns; their price varies from 10.d. to 2 s . per bushel. Beef and mutton 3id., pork tid, per Ib. Geese, turkics, anyl fowls ulundant. Tea 2s. Gid. and sugar 4d. per lb . Implements of husbandry and tonls, such as axes, chains, &e, are to be had in lower Canads, oll better terins than those of English manufacture, and are more suitable for the country's use.

H.-Emigration to Van Diemen's Lant, proposals to farmers and other emigrants, possessed of small capitals, as tenants.

1. The directors of the Van Diemen's land Company having lately received very favourahle accounts from their chicf agent ; the whole of the live stock of sheep, cattle, and horses,-imnroved by the very best breeds which which could be procored in Europe,-contisuing to yield a satisfactory increase and return; and the company's grants of land haviug been surveyed; the directors are now enabled to hold out encouragement to emigrants and others to settle as tenants upon the company's lands, and for this purpose a porton of the extensive location from Emu Bay to the interior of the island, comprising 128,000 acres, or 200 square miles, has been reserved.
2. The Surrey and Hampshire Hills are situated in the north part of Van Diemen's Land, about twenty miles inland south of Emu Bay, and about forty miles south-west of Circular Head, and are nearly surrounded, on the east, south, and west sides, by high moontains.
3. The seil of the Surrey and Hampshire Hills is of excellent quality; it consists of a hazel loam, with a tendeney to clay, upon a bottom of nixed stone and clay, or írm clajey gravel. The face of the conntry

is very uneven, being intersected in every possible direction by innumerable streams of waler, upon which saw and flour mills can be erected l.o advantage; a tract of 100 acres can seareely be fomind without its run of water. In regard to timber, it is very irregularly covered; there are open plains of considerable extent, 300 to 1,500 aeres.
4. The herbage of the district, though too coarse for Merino and fine wool sheep, is, when burnt, very good pasture for more hardy sheep; the Cheviot, Cotswold, and Leieester breeds, &e., are found to thrive well upon it. After hurning in spring, it grows rapidly to a considerable height. Some of the marshes produce a fine blady grass in great profusion, and of excellent quality.
5. The stringy lark and gum trees are in most parts plentiful, and are adapted either for the carpenter or for splitting for fences. The qualities of the myrtle have not yet been ascertained, but it is beheved it will make a good furgiture wood, and lor the inside work of houses.
6. Lime-stone has been found at the Surrey and Hampshire Hills. Stone of a rough nature, fit for common buildings, is plentiful, and of a very durable kind. Clay is also every where plentiful and good.
7. The climate of the Surrey and Hampshire Hills is humid, nearly as much so as the wettest parts of the north of England or Scotland. High winds prevail at most seasous of the year, but their force is a good deal mitigated by the height of thic trees. Snow falls in winter to the depth of a font or more. It never lies long; the heavy rains soon carry it off. Summer frosts are frequent, and often destructive to potatoes and other tender plants. Still the summer is generally sunny and hot; quite sulliciently so to ripen and and to allow time to gather the harvest. Fogs are almost unknown, and the elimate is perfectly salubrions, ss is proved by the fact of the company's surveyors mod their men laving been exposed to it for a whole year or more without any bad effects, with nothing better than tents to cower them.
8. The soil of the Surrey and Hampshire Hials is rich enough to produce grain ercpis of any kind in ordinary seasons, but oats, from the prevalence of summer frosts, will be sometimes a preca.ions crop.
9. Turnips, beans, peas, and cabbages, with good cultivation, it is conceived, may tis relied uponas certain crops.
10. Cattle do well at the Surrey and Hampshire Hills, on the native pastures; and there can be no doubt that when managed on the English system, they will do still better. The young stock there at present is of a very good kind, the original cows having been selected from the best in the colony, and the bulls used hnve been, with the exception of oue of the Ayrshire breed, pure Durham short-hormed only.
11. The hardy breeds of sheep, or a ross hetween them and the Merino, kept within enclosures, and obtaining in the winter scason some portion of improved grass or turnips, succeed well, and their wool always finds a ready sale.
12. Blood horses and the Cleveland hreed succeed well in the district.
13. Kangaroos are abundant, and form a very usetell and palatable article of food, and their skins are worth about $9:$. each. Emu, quail, snipes, and wild ducks are all met with, but in no great plenty.
14. Working bullocks are fust going out of use in Hobart Town and Lanneeston, their places being taken by horses. Hence the increasing demand for oats in both places, which will afford an extensive and sure market, and would be prineipally beneficial to the Surrey and llampshire Hills districts, becanse if a really good article could he produced there, it would erender the light and inferior pros'י"tion of other districts uasaleable, and would compel settlers to devote their lands to whent, for which thic. vell adapted.
15. The old districts of Van bimen's Land pre particulatiy adapted for the re... . of fine wool sheep. Hence, sheep are rapidly increasing, whilst eattle are, in consequence, diminishing there; the natural pastures being not very mitritive, and the sheep, keeping them close fed, entle have little chanee to get fot, and old settlers are in consequence anxious to get rid of them. While mutton therefore is plentifil, beef is scarce, and becoming more so every ason. These eircumstances produce the singular anomaly of settlers destroying their young calves to prev it increase, at the very time that beef is bearing a highly remunerating price. Stall-fed beef is always in demand in Van Diemen's Land, being retailed out by the butehers at from Gil. to $8 . d$. per 1 bb ., a price which cannot certainily be expeeted to stand against mutton and grass. fed beef int
 Hills, with respect to beef there is ahundant room for prices to fall, before the setter could be mprehensive of wanting a good market for his procluce.
16. Van Diemen's Land being the maly extensive region in the south-easterin part of the globe which powsesses a really temperate climate, there is great reason to expect that pork and beef could be readily cured on the company's estate, and it is well known that salt provisions may be always sold to adrantage in the colony. If this be the case in Van Diemen's Land generally, it may be fairly antieipated that at the Surrey and Hampshire Itills, with cultivnted lands and careful feeding salt provisions may be produced which witt be fully equal to those now sent thither from Ireland.
17. The same obscrvations may be made with regard to dairy produce, which bears a very high priee in Van Diemen's Land, and will entinue to do so, lecanse the old districts are generally ill adapted to dairy purposes, and will he still less productive in that wny ns they become more closely stocked with shetp.

18. Pork, either salt or fresh, and hacon and hams always "ommand realy sale at good prices; the present prices of fresh pork vary from sil. to $9 . l$. per lb ., bacon and hams $1\left(\begin{array}{l} \\ l\end{array}\right.$. to ls . fd . per Ib , and even ligher. They are always in demand.
19. Working horses of a good growth and well broken in are always saleable. It seens the general apinion, that when they can be obtained at $50 l$. to $60 l$. a pair, they will not only supersede the use of bullocks in the towns, but in the country also, aml then they will command a good sate.
20. The establishment of breweries at the Surrey and Haupshire Hills would be extremely bencficial to the teoant, in forming him a market for his produce near bume.
21. Emigrants going out to the colony as tenants to the company, will have the alvantage of arrivire in a country which has been surveyed, and is well known throughout, pad which would greatly facilitate the purchasing of land on the borders of the company's property, If they at any future period should feel so disposed.
22. The lands will he let in locations of one square mile, or 6.40 acres, accoriling to the capital and means of the tenant; it is not, however, necessary that the farms should be arranged in square blocks of a mile each, but that they should be adnpted in shape to the natural boundaries of the conntry.
23. The rent to be 64l, per annum for the $6 \mathbf{6 0}$ acres. The first year nud a half's rent to be expended by the tennat in fencing; half of the next half year's rent, or 161 , also to be expended in perinnuent improvements, and the balance, or 1 fl ., to he paid in cash; half the third year's rent, or $32 l$., to be expended in like manuer, and the halance puid is cash. The fourth and future years' rent to be paid wholly in ensh.
24. Leases will be granted for twent y one years to the first twenty families going out, nfter which no leases will he granted for a louger period than fourieen years.
25. Cottages in Van Diemen's Land are in general erected at very little expense, though it would he most desirable to take out a small portable cottage from England, which enn be had at a tritling cost.
26. Assistance and ndvice as to the sale of produce at the best markets will at all times be given, and the compnuy's chief agent will be ready to make such arrangements for the general body in this respect as may be heneficinl to the whole.
27. Tenants mny be supplied with stores by the company on moderate terms.
28. Seed corn will be lent to tenants, to he repaid out of their tirst crop.

39 . Clover and grass seeds will be supplied to tenants engaging to lay down lands to grass on the company's estates.
30. Timber enrriages, to nssist in clenring away trees, will be lent grntis by the company to tenants of forest lands.
31. So soon as the population is sufficiently increased, sehools will be established upon very moderate terms.
32. The services also of the company's medical officers may always be ohtained upon very reasonable terins.
33. Tenants will have the advantage of knowing when they leave England, that they will be received on landing in the colony by persons interested in protecting them, an incaleulable advantage to settlers with small capitals.
34. Mechanies engaged in England, or elsewhere, will be established throughout the settlements.
3.. Live stock of every kiod, and the most approved breeds, will be supplied at reasomathe prices, one half to be paid in cash, nud the balauce nt such credit as may be arranged by the eompany's chief agent.
36. The gradual rate at which the company's lands can be settled, enables then to offer the first ennigrants in rotation $n$ preference in the selection of their farms.
37. These advantages will place $n$ tenant under the company on $n$ better footing than if he obtnined lauds elsewhere; this will be more npparent, when it is considered that the price fixed by the commissioners for colonizing South Australin is 20s. per acre, and which will no doubt be shortly inereased.
38. The company will reserve the right of making roads, bridges, &e., through any lands, or wherever they may consider it necessnry for the good of the general body of tenantry.
39. The expense of passage from England to Van Diemen's Land depends upon the accommodation and comforts which emigrnnts require, and varies from 166 . to $25 /$. each for steerage adult passengers; children in proportion. The voynge is usually performed in four or five months at farthest.
40. To enable a tenant to judge of the capital which he will require for a farm, the prices by the last despatches, and nt which he inay expect to obtain his supplies in the colony with cash, are here enumernted:

Eight bullocks at 6l. each, $48 l$. ; I cart or dray, 15l.; 2 ploughs, $7 l$. ; 2 pair of harrows, $3 l .10 s$. ; bullocks' chains, bows, and yokes, 31.10 s . various small implements, $10 l$; total, $87 l$.

Meat, $4 l$. per lh. ; flour, $2 d$. to $2 \frac{1}{2} l$. ditto; sugar, $2 \frac{1}{2} l$. to $4 l$. ditto; ten, $2 s$. to $3 s$. ; somp, $7 l$. to $8 l$.
44. From these data, a tenant will be able to calculate, according to the number of his family, what his maintennnce will cost, duriug the period which will probably elapse before be can expect to receive any returns from his own cultivation. In the mean time, if he wishes any convict servants, he will be bound by the government regulations to supply them as follows: $10 \frac{1}{2} \mathrm{ll} \mathrm{ss}$, bread or flour, 7 lhs , fresh meat, 7 oz. of sugar and 7 oz . of roasted wheat for collee, or 14 pints of milk, or 14 pints of table beer, $3 \frac{1}{2}$ oz. of soap, a oz. of aalt, per week.

The convict's clothing would cost the tennut about 6, a year in the colony. On these terms convict labour is found very advantageous to the settler, and the men in general, under proper management, conduct themeelves tolembly well. But those tenants who have sons and daughters will find their services extremely valtuble.
42. Upon the whole, an industrious and respectuble person, who arrives in the colony possessed of a sum of from $300 l$. to $500 l$., may undertake a fatm with confidence of ultimute success, for it is but fiair and reasonable to suppose that each tenant will be able to maintnin himself in comfort from his own phaduce at the end of the second year.
43. It is clearly for the interest of the Van Diemen's Lanil company, that settlers upon their lands shoule prosper, and they hope the advantages lield ont will give encouragement to industry nud the investment o capital.
44. The artisans, &c, who would meet with employment at good and steady wages, so soon as the settle mont advances, are, -ploughmen, farm-labourers, blacksmiths, earpenters, coopers, sawyers, shoemakers boat-builders, millers, tnuners, brewers, malsters, wheelwrights, bricklayers, masons, shipwrights, brickmukers horse breakers, nud sadders.

K.-Regulations for the disposal of Lands belonging to the Crown in the British North American proviaces, Colonial Office, 7 th March, 1 &31.
The lands are no longer to be given away by free grants, but are to be sold.
The commissioners of crown lands will, at least once in every year, submit to the governor a report of the land which it may be expedient to offer for sale within the next ensuing year, and the upset price per acre at which he would recommend it to be oflered; the land so offered having been previously surveyed and valued in one or more coutiguous tracts of those which are nost adapted for settlement, according to the local peculiarities of the province, and in proportion to the number of deputy-surveyors who can be employed.

The lands to be laid out in lots of 100 acres each, and plans of such parts as are surveyed ure to be prepared for public inspection, which plans may be inspected in the ollice of the surveyor-general, or in that of his deputies, in each district, on payment of the fee of $2_{s .}$ Gid.

The comissioner of crown lands will proceed to the sale in the following manner :
He will give public notice in the official gazette, and in such other newspapers as may be circulated in the province, as well as in any other manner that circumstances will admit, of the time and plate appointed for the sale of lands in each district, and of the upset price at which the lands are proposed to be offered; he will give notice that the lots will be sold to the highest bidder, and if no offer should be made at the upset price, that the lands will be reserved for futare sale in a similar manner by anction.

The purchase-money will be required to be paid down at the time of sale, or by four instalments with interest; the first instalment at the time of the sale, and the second, thitd and fourth instalments at intervals of half a year.

If the instalments are not regularly paid, the deposit money will be forfeited, and the land again referred to sale.

Puhlic notice will be given in cach district in every yenr, stating the names of the persons in each district who may he in arrears for the instalments of their purchases, and aunouncing that if the arrears are not paid uplefore the commencement of the sales in that distriet for the following years, the lands in respect of which the instalments may be due will be the first lot to be exposed to anction at the ensuing sales; and if my surplus of the produce of the sale of cach lot should remain after satisfying the crown of the sum due, the same will be paid to the origimal purehasers of the laud who made detault in payment.

The patent for the land will not be issued, nor any transfer of the property allowed until the whele of the instalments are paid. The lands sold under this regalation are wot to be chargeable with quit rents, or any further payment begond the purehase money and the expense of the payment.

Persons desirous of buging land, in situations not included in the tracts already surveged, must previonsly pay for the expense of survey, and the price must of course depend upon the guality of the land and its local situation.

The crown will reserve to itself the right of making and consfrueting such roads and bridges as may he necessary for publie purposes, in all lauds purchasel as above; and also to such indigenous timber, stone and other waterials, the produce of the land, as may be required for making and keeping the said roads and bridges in repair, and for any other public works.

The crown further reserves to itself all mines of precious metals.
The regulations lor granting heences to cut timber wiil be leamed by application to the survegor-general's office, in the respuctive colonies.

L.- - luformation for the use of military and naval oflicers, proposing to settle in the British Colonies.

Colonial Office, 15 August 183\%.
Ist. Auncxed (sce nhove) is a statement of the regulations according to which, with such modifications as local circumstances may render necessary, lands belouging to the crown are disposed of in the several Britislı colonies in North America.
2. Under these regulations militury aul maval oblicers cannot receive free grants of land, but in buying land they are allowed a remission of the purchase money according to the undermentioned scate.

upwaris, in the whole, 2501 ; fiell officers of 15 or less years' service, in the whole $200 l$. ; captaina of 30 years' service and upwaris, in the whole 200l.; captains of 16 years' acrvice or less, io the whole, $150 l$.; subalterns of 20 years service and upwurds, in the whole, $150 l$. ; subalterns of seven years' service or less, in the whole, $100 l$.

Regimental staff officers and medieal officers of the army and navy will be deemed to come within the benefit of this rule.
3. Officers of the army and navy who propose to proced to the colonies in order to take advantage of this indulgence, shonld provide themselves witl certificates from the office of the genernl commanding-inchief, or of the lords commissioners of the admiralty, showing that their emigrution has been sanctioned, and stating exactly their rank and length of service. No document from the oflce of the secretary of state is necessary.
4. Officers on half pay, residing in the colony, when they propose to settle, may be almitted to the privileges of military and naval acttlers without referring to this country for testimonials, provided they ean sutisfy the governor that there is no objection to their heing nllowed the Indulgence, and thint their return of their rank and length of service is nccurate, and provided, if they belong to the navy, that they produce their letter of leave of nissence from the almiralty.
5. Military chaplains, commissariat officers, ind ollieers of any of the civil departments connected with the army, camot be nllowed any privileges on this sobject of land. l'ursers, chnplains, midshipmen, war. rant ollicers of every deseription, and officers of any of the civil departments connected with the navy, must also be considered as not qualified for those privileges. Although members of these cinsses may have been admitted formerly, and under a different state of circumstances, they must now be exeluded.
G. Gentlemen who have censed to belong to His Majesty's service cannot be allowed the advantages to which they were entitied while in the army and mavy. It is mot, however, proposed to affect by this rule ollicers who desire to quit the service for the express purpose of settling in the colonies; it is only required that when they resign their commissions they shonld apply for $n$ certificate from the general commanding-inchief, or from the lords commissioners of the Almiralty, that they do so with a view of emigrnting; and such certifleate, if proluced to the governor of any colony within one year from its date, but not otherwise, will be a sufficient warrant for allowing the bearer the same advantages as ollicers of llis Majesty's service.

Ollicers who have sold out within the last 12 months preceding the date of this memorandum will be allowed the usual privileges, notwithstanding their want of the certificate required by these regulations, if they present themsilves to the governor of the colony within a yenr from the present date. And all oll. cers who have alrendy been recommended by the gencral commanding in-chief, will he entitled to their privileges withont regnrd to any obstruction which might otherwise be offered by the regulations now established.
7. Officers cannot be allowed advantages in the acquisition of land in any colony, unless it be their intention to fix their residence in that colony. In order to insure the obsurvance of this rule, it has been determined that the itles to lands ohtnined by oflicers who take advantage of the peeuliar regulations exist. ing in their favour, shall be witholden for a perion sufficient to prove that they have not repaired to the colony for the mere purpose of gaining possession of a portion of land and then departing. Two years is the priod for which it has been decided that the tithes shall be kept back; this delay will be sufficient for the salutary object in view, and will not constitute any serions inconvenience to the bund file settler.
8. Dy $t$ a annexed regulations for the disposal of Crown lands, it will be observed that the general sales will take place periodically. But in order to prevent ineonvenience to the ollicers who may arrive in the intervals between those sales, and be desirons at once to obtain an allotinent, the governors of the colonies are authorized to allow officers to acpuire at any time, on payment of the upset price, lands which have been previously offered for sale, at some general sale, and not been bought.

Offieers will thas be relieved from delay at the time of establishing themselves in the colony. They will also be emabled by this arrangement, which will permit them to obtain their land at a fixed price, to choose such a quantity us shall be exactly equivnlent to the amonnt of the remission to which they are entitled, instead of being liable to be called upon to pay a balance, which must be the case if they bid for lands at a sale by anction.
9. There being little or no Crown land available in Prin'e Edward's island, offieers cannot be offerel any privileges in the aequisition of land in that colony. In Cape Breton, an island in whicl, the natural inducements for the settlement of officers are not very considerable, it is necessary, from local circumstances, that there should not be a remission of purchase-moncy as in other colonies; to such officers na may wish to settle in this island, allotments of land will be granted on the same scale and conditions as before the general introduction of the system of selling the Crown linals; viz.-To a lieutenant-colonel, 1,200 acres; to a major, 1,000 acres; to a captain, 800 ; to a subaltern, 500 .

The following calculation exhibits the political value of directing, for the next twenty years, to British America, 30,000 annually, of those who would otherwise go to the United States :-

This shows a clear balance in our favour of $20,000,000 \mathrm{l}$. in twenty years, without even estinating the descendants of those emigrants during the twenty years. It is a fuet well worth consideration to acttlers, that the taxation in Upper or Lower Canaila, on the necessarics or comforts of life, is not one-fith of that of the United States.

U.-CHILDREN'S FRIEND SOCIETY.

This excellent Institution, known also by the name of its benevolent founder-as the " Brenton Juvenile Asylum" - was founded by Captain Brenton R,N, in 1830-for the wise and good purpose of preventing crime, by taking children off the streets and from the haunts of misery and crime before they become tainted by the moral pestilence of our goals, or branded with the stamp of convicted felons. Depending solely on individual assistance, and under the patronage of the Queen and Duchess of Kent, the founders and managers of this truly Christian Society have already effected much good; the extent of their operations being alone circumscribed by their means. The children are received into two asylums while in England; that for the boys is situate at Hackney Wick, ( 3 miles N. of London) ; the girls asylum is at Chiswick on the banks of the Thames. The plan of these Asyluma and the mode in which the children are provided for in the Colonies will be best seen by the following transcript from the books of the Society.
"At 'The Brenton Juvenile Asylum,' Hackney-Wick, boys, under an ahle and vigilant superintendent, receive the advantages of religious and moral instruction, combined with a system of agricultural labour and manual employment, calculated to form habits of general usefulness and industry.
" The establishment of the society for the reception of girls, at Chiswick, called, by permission, the 'Royal Victoria Asylum,' is under the separate management of a committee of ladies. The girls remain in the asylum until good and respectable habits have been so far acquired, that hope may be reasonably entertained of their becoming generally useful.
"After this preparatory discipline, the children, unless removed by their friends, or discharged in consequence of a refusal, on their part or that of their parents or guardians, to emigrate, are apprenticed, as farm or domestic servants, to respectable individuals in our colonies.
"Committees of ladies, in the respective colonies, take care of the girls upon their arrival, and keep a watchful authority over them during their time of apprenticeship.
"Committees of influcutial gentlemen at Cape Town, King George's Sound, Perth, Albany, Graham's Town, Toronto in Upper Canada, and Huntingdon in Lower Canada, have already enabled the society to provide for a considerable number of destitute children, who would otherwise probably have perished from want or disease, or have been driven by misery to crime. These local committees have the power of cancelling any indenture in case of ill usage.
"The plan of training and education pursued in the asylums of this society differs essentially from that in common use. Under a plan of dicipline applied to the heart and affections, rendering corporal punishment almost unnecessary, children are sufficiently susceptible of training to render them valuable apprentices, with the prospect of becoming useful and respectable members of society: the system, though turning principally on farm, out-door, and in-door labour, combines also that of the artisan.
" Character and conduct meet with due appreciation, and book learning ls considered more in the light of relaxation than in that of labour: yet it will be found that the pupils make certain and rapid progress in necessary acquirensents.
"The objects of this charity are: orphans; children exposed to crime from the vice or poverty of the parents; children of parents who are in a state of great destitution, but whom a noble feeling prevents from applying to the parish ; and children who are actually inmates of the workhouse: and it should be understood that it is for such objects only that the charity is designed. It is unnecessary to enlarge upon the advantages which must follow from removing that host of young and wretched beings with which the streets of the metropolis are frequented, and rescuing these poor children from certain wretchedness and temptation to crime, while they are still at an age when it is practicable, by a judicious and well-considered system of religious and moral discipline, to reform these habits, and to render them happy in themselves, and contributors to the general welfare."

The following are the regulations under which the society is supported and managed :-
A donation of $5 l$. or upwards constitutes the donor a member for life.
A subscription of 5 s . or more, yeariy, an annual member, and by inereasing the subscription to $5 l$. within the year, the subscriber becomes a life member.

Alt members have a right to vote upon every question propounded, and every election held, at any general meeting of the society.

A legacy of $10 l$. and upwards bequeathed to the society constitutes the first named acting executor a member for life.

Every annual subscription is considered as made on the lst of June, or on the 1st of December next preceding the first payment.
All contributors receive, upon demand at the time of payment, ticketa to the amount of their respective donations or subscriptions.

Subject $t$ o the following regulations, and to the approval of the general committee, any child shall be cligible to the benefits of the institution.

Any person contributing the sum of $15 l$., or producing tickets to that amount, is entitled to place a child, between the ages of elcven and fourteen, upon the male or female establishment, as the case may be.

The general cominittee of management have power, in special cases, to admit any child under the age of eleven, and between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, if in the latter case the child be of good moral character. When, however, the child to be admitted is under the age of eleven, a sum varying from $4 s$. to $5 s$. per week (not in tickets) must he paid, over and above the entrance-money, until it shall attain that age.

Children are received from public institutions or parishes on payment of a weckly sum of $4 s$. , and also of 10l. when embarked.

A limited number of young children between the ages of four and seven are received into the female establishment at Chiswick, from public institutions or parishes, on payment of $4 x, 3 \ell$. per week, and without entrance-money, to be educated in the infant-school system; their continuance in the institution must, however, depend upon the discretion of the general committee of management.

No child is received by the society until it shall have been examined hy a medical man, and certified to be in a sound state of health.

When the child has not been baptized as a member of the Established Church, or otherwise formally admitted into any other religious community, measures arc taken to supply the deficiency, according to the wishes of its parents or guardians ; and, in the case where no parents or natural guardians caul be found, the child is considered a member of the Established Church. The period of apprenticeship for which the child is to be bound in the colonics, is determined by the age declared on admission.

Upon admission, the boys are placed in the asylum at Hackney. Wick, and the girls in the asylum at Chiswiek, and retained there respectively till considered by the general committee fit for service or other employment in the colonies.

No child is sent from Eugland without the previous sanction of the general committee of management, nor without its own free consent, and the consent of its parents or guardians.

On the withdrawal of a child from the institution, all claim to the money paid with it is forfeited, and a refusal to go abroad is considered cquivalent to a withdrawal.
N.B. The general committce of management mects every Wednesday; all applications for almission must be made on that day, between the hours of eleven and one, at No. 9, Throgmorton-street, where letters to the secretary must also be directed.

A personal examination of the boys' and girls' school, and an attention to the working of the institution, for several years, enables me to bear my personal testimony to the great benefit which England and the colonies derive from this excellent establishment. It is impossible to witness the condition and treatment of the boys at Hackney, under the mild, firm, and judicious management of Mr. Wright, without experiencing a great delight, and being convinced how important to the character of a nation is the carly physical and moral discipline, as well as mental education of its youth. There is no appcarance of a cold charity among the boys; a sturdy, frank, checrful, and manly demeanour is inmediately observant in their conduct. They farm their own ground, mend and wash their own clothes, work in the carpenter and blacksmith's shop, repair their shoes, print their tracts, draw maps of the colonies to which they are proceeding, learn to swim, climb a mast, "rig a yard," go through military exercises-in short, they are fitted for any occupation which may enable them to obtain an honest livelihood. There is no personal chastisement (which brutalizes either child or man) ; a constant round of useful occupations leaves no leisure for vice; every ten boys are in charge of a monitor, chosen from among themselves; they go into school, two hours in the morning and two hours in the evening, and, according as they rise in the scale of good conduct, they are permitted to make choice of the colony to which they may prefer procceding. Their emigration, thereforc, is a reward for their good conduct; and the excellent reports wiich have come home from the colonies, is the best proof of the soundness of the system which Captain Brenton, Mr. Maubert, and others, so bencficently see carried into effect.

The following is a General Embarkation Return to December in each year except 1838.

The plan of emigration was commenced in the year . 833, when all the children then in the asylums were sent to the Cape of Good Hope. The total number of children received from November 1830, to December 31, 1837, was 1,538 ; the total expenditure during that period was 21,880 . The number provided for in the colonies to October 31, 1838, is as above, 1,070; provided for by friends, &c., 570 ; died, 4 ; now in the asylums, 157 ; total number admitted aince the first establishment of the institution, 1,801 . It were much to be wished that Her Majesty's Government would extend the benefits of this institution by a parliamentary annual grant and by allotting a portion of land in Canada and other agricultural colonies for the formation of branch asylums. Into those branch asylums the children would be received on landing; they would be instructed in colonial farming, in the management of a dairy, and in every pursuit advantageous to a settler in a new colony. On proof of long-continued good conduct, the adult should receive ten acres of land, a horse, cow, und some farming implements; and, on the marriage of one of the girls of the institution; her dower should be five acres of land, a cow, &c. The advantages of such an institution, both to the colonies and the mother country, would be incalcuable. The former would have a constant influx of a young bealthy population morally and usefully trained for the good of society; the latter would be checking crime in the bud. Our prisons in 1838 are filled with the neglected children of 1828 and 1818. It is seldom that a man hecomes a criminal; the seeds of vice are sown in youth, and produce, in dense and civilized communities, like England, a fatally abundant crop of the elements of general misery and national decay.

A socicty like the one now in existence, managed by a highly respectable committee, would be better adapted for carrying this plan into effect than Goverrment. Zcal seldom or ever pervadeg the officers paid and appointed by Governments (such as they are now constituted), and, although integrity may be secured, apathy predominates. Moreover, if Government were to carry the plan into effect, the cliidren might be considered as "transported," and the good effects arising from their feeling that they were earning their own livelihood would be lost. I would earnestly urge on those who look to the welfare of the rising generation as essential to the future happlness and prosperity of England, to consider this subject, and, instead of building penitentiaries for male and female infant criminals, to take them out of crime unstained by the contamination of a prison, and without affixing an indelible atamp of infamy, which clings like a curse through life to the unfortunate being whom parental neglect has subjected to temptations, ere their sinfulness was apparent, before there was moral strength to resist them, and long prior to the mental consciousness of the misery which inevitably ensues from a downward course of guilt. When, alas 1 will Governments act on Christian principles, and endeavour to prevent crime, instead of punishing it when committed.
