

NEW IMPETUS GIVEN TO THE UNIVERSAL BROTHERHOOD IDEA

Letter from Pope Pius, Addressed to the Governments and Peoples of the World, Received at Genoa Gives Admonition of Disasters Likely to Befall Mankind If Efforts for True Pacification Should Fail.

Genoa, April 30.—Pope Pius, through Cardinal Gasparri, has addressed to the governments and peoples of the world a letter, which is described as a new spur to universal brotherhood, and a new admonition of disasters likely to befall mankind if efforts for true pacification should fail. This act by the Holy See has created great interest and has seemed already to inspire all to renewed efforts to make the Genoa conference of lasting good to the world.

Lloyd George Pleased
Commenting today, Premier Lloyd George said: "I cannot say how pleased I am at this remarkable document, nor could I exaggerate the terms in which it is couched. The Pope speaks with first hand knowledge of conditions in Eastern Europe and I feel that no clearer definition of a unique position in the Holy See in favor of peace with Russia is a great encouragement to the Christian powers assembled at Genoa."

The ideals of the Pope are being preached here by Don Luigi Sturzo, leader of the Italian Catholic Party, who is attaining a unique position in an unofficial capacity at the Conference. There seems to be a remarkable identity of views concerning international co-operation and international brotherhood proclaimed by Sturzo with those of Lloyd George who has recently been giving to the public.

Conference Quiet
Officially the Economic Conference saw little activity today. The jurists, who are striving to compose the differing views of France and Great Britain on the question of the settlement of the Russia war debts, met this afternoon and made considerable progress. Their report will be submitted to the conference as well as the plan to dispose of the vast quantities of private property in Russia which has been confiscated by the Soviet Government and nationalized. France wants it returned, if it can be located, but Britain will be content with enjoying the use of it.

The jurists appear to have discovered some formula which according to the supporters of capitalism in other countries.

AVONDALE STORE WIPED OUT BY FIRE

Samuel Baxter Suffers Heavy Setback When Flames Destroy Building.

Special to The Standard.
Hartland, April 29.—Early this morning the store at Avondale, about six miles from here, owned by Samuel Baxter, was burnt to the ground. Mr. Baxter had put a fire on in a stove and then had gone out into a back store to wait on a customer and when he returned the ceiling was all ablaze. He made use of a fire extinguisher which he had in the store, and thought he had succeeded in putting the fire out, but it soon broke out within the walls and between the floors, and although plenty of help soon arrived, water could not be obtained in any quantity to be of any use, and as soon as the wind, which was blowing strong, got in through the doors and windows, all possible chance of saving the building was gone. The store was a large one, but only a small stock was destroyed. Nevertheless, it is a big loss to the owner, who is Mr. Baxter. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

"Headline Diplomacy" Does Not Always Produce Best Results, Says Lord Cecil

London, April 30.—(Canadian Press Cable)—A new phrase "headline diplomacy" was invented by Lord Robert Cecil addressing the League of Nations Union at Westminster yesterday. Discussing the crisis at Genoa he referred to the Premier Lloyd George's speech in which demand for Europe was suggested in one of the failures of the Genoa Conference, too serious, because apart from the over-riding importance of the Russian something must be allowed these days for new departures in diplomatic methods. What might be called "headline diplomacy" did not always produce the best results, said Lord Robert Cecil.

Board Ready To Hear Evidence In Miners' Fight

Organized to Conduct Investigation Into Dispute Between N. S. Coal Operators and Employees.

Ottawa, Ont., April 30.—(Canadian Press)—The full board has now been appointed under the Lemieux Act, to conduct the investigation into the dispute between the coal companies included in the British Empire Steel Corporation and their employees, and it is expected that a meeting of the Board will be held some time during the present week.

The appointment of this Board grows out of the demand by a delegation of Nova Scotia municipalities asking for the appointment of a Royal Commission to hold an investigation. The matter was the subject of discussion of the House of Commons, and the Government decided to reconvene the Gilles Board, which held an inquiry last January. However, it was found that the law did not contemplate this reconstitution of a Board for the purpose of re-hearing a dispute, and, consequently, a new Board was appointed by the Minister of Labor. The coal mines included in the inquiry are those owned by the Dominion Coal Company, the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company and the Acadia Coal Company.

Politely Told That World Can Get Along Very Well Without Her.

Genoa, April 30.—The preamble of the proposed Russian economic conference after setting forth the situation in Russia, carefully points out that the world, the most persistent condition imposed by the fact that Russia no longer exports commodities and raw materials, can very well go on without her because this deficiency will be filled from other sources, and "because commerce, like water, always finds new channels when the old ones are obstructed."

The preamble insists upon the necessity of foreign producers and traders to re-enter Russia, but says this is attainable only by insuring for foreigners, who possessed properties in Russia, their safety and by acknowledging Russia's debts. MOVE FOR REFORM OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS ON THE WANE

Its War-Time Rise in Popular Esteem Silenced Most Critics of British Upper House.

London, April 27.—(Special Correspondence.)—One of the odd things about the present political situation in Great Britain is the attempt of the "die hards," the little group of reactionaries, to force public re-estimation of the House of Lords.

It is a striking indication that the times have changed, for it was not so long ago the cry for House of Lords reform came from Liberals and progressive unionists, to exact public re-estimation of the House of Lords.

But all that sort of things died away with the passing of the Parliament Act of 1911, which cut the claws of the peers, and put an end to their old power of delaying indefinitely legislation of which they did not approve.

Today the House of Lords stands higher in the public estimation than ever before in modern times. In part this is due to the opportunity it was given during the war.

But a larger reason for the growth of the Upper House in the public estimation is the fact that it has become greatly altered in character and personnel.

Things Done Differently Then. A century or so ago, it would have been looked upon as something of a constitutional outrage to have conferred a peerage on a man who, like Lord Riddell, was a business man.

But other than business men have found their way into what was, of old, "the preserve of birth." The "taint of honor" is not so pure a stream as one could desire.

It used to be said of a certain club in London—not the Athenaeum—that if you joined its dinner table any evening, you would be sure to rub shoulders with someone who was an expert in his particular line.

But if the House has thus risen in estimation, why, it will be asked, do Conservatives, of all people, want to reform it? "Why not leave it alone?"

RUSSIANS ACT LIKE LIZARDS; MOVE LIKE ANTS, SAY ALLIES

British See Them Crawling Into Holes and Popping Out Unexpectedly—Italians Say, "Like Ants They Wander in Different Directions, But Get There."

Genoa, April 28.—"Oriental bargaining" is the way the British delegation describes the tactics of the Russian experts.

"The Russians are like so many lizards," say the British. "They crawl into their holes, then come out in unexpected places. It isn't the written proposals which are so remarkable, but the amazing explanations and interpretations of these."

"Russian tactics when discussing any subject may be compared to the movement of an ant," said the Italian spokesman today. "The ant goes slowly, wanders in different directions, but finally gets there. The Russians do likewise; they are the opposite of the businesslike, straightforward Anglo-Saxons."

GERMANS SEE WAR IN SPEECH OF POINCARE

Believe France Will Not Hesitate to Carry Out Military Programme.

Berlin, April 28.—The Germans have weighed every word of Premier Poincare's speech, particularly that part dealing with possible sanctions (penalties) should Germany not fulfill the conditions of the last note of the Reparations Commission.

The Tag asserts that "France stands isolated before the world. The time has come for England and the Powers to use vigorous measures against this disturber of the peace of the world."

The Socialist press sees Caesarian megalomania in Paris. The New York Herald correspondent interviewed a number of prominent Germans today and found the characteristic attitude toward the French was one of passive resistance.

They look for outside political events to turn in their favor. Also, there is a growing passive resistance toward the catastrophic policy which the French would impose.

TORIES USE GENOA TO HIT LLOYD GEORGE

Die-Hards Hope to Use Discard as Base for Attacking Premier.

London, April 28.—The reconvening of the House of Commons today will be the signal for the reopening of the fight on Premier Lloyd George by the scattered Tory "die hards," using the troubles at Genoa as a new club against the Government.

It is expected that they will proclaim that the Prime Minister already has failed at Genoa and that it is useless to go on when he is only leading Europe deeper and deeper into the mire.

The tremendous home interest in the budget programme, it is regarded, will soon quiet complaints about the trend of the Genoa conference.

According to the Coalition programme, if Mr. Lloyd George is successful at Genoa a general election will be delayed until conditions are made favorable.

Auto-Suggestion Failed to Work

Blind Man Pleads With Lecturer on Subject to Make Him See.

London, April 30.—In the course of a lecture which Mr. Coues, the advocate of the theory of auto-suggestion, was giving here recently a blinded officer seated in the front row of the audience rose and exclaimed: "I am blind. Make me able to see. I have tried to make myself believe that I can see but I can't. Now you try."

Mr. Coues endeavored to explain that there were limitations to auto-suggestion, but the blind officer was not to be appeased. He insisted that his eyes were still there and that therefore Mr. Coues ought to be able to work the miracle and he sat down obviously sceptical of this new faith.

Timing It

Freddy had been given a new watch, and was very proud of its time-keeping qualities. Just after eight o'clock one evening, watch in hand, he rushed into doors.

"What time does the moon rise to-night?" he asked his father.

"About a quarter past eight," answered the parent.

"Well," replied Freddy, consulting his watch, "if it doesn't buck up it will be late."

BIG PRESBYTERIAN PARLIAMENT TO MEET WEDNESDAY

Meeting of General Assembly at Winnipeg Will be Forty-Eighth in History of the Church, Dating from Union of Its Different Wings in 1875 — This Year's Gathering Promises to be One of Most Important in Years.

Toronto, April 28.—(By Canadian Press.)—The annual meeting of the big Presbyterian Parliament of Canada, known by the official and dignified title of the General Assembly, will meet in Winnipeg on Wednesday, June 7, for a week or ten days' session. This important denominational gathering will be the 48th in the history of this Church, dating from the union of its different wings in 1875. The half-century anniversary of the united denomination is, therefore, rapidly approaching.

This will be the fourth time the assembly has met in Winnipeg, the first was in 1887, when it was a very small and crude town in the immensity of the prairies. Its term came again in 1897, 1908 and 1916. Two of the moderators of the Winnipeg meetings still survive in Rev. David D. D., and Rev. A. B. Baird, D. D., who are still citizens of a city which has grown to cosmopolitan proportions, with a population nearing 200,000.

Every Assembly is important, based on its programme, and this will be no exception to the rule. A church with a programme is a church that is alive. A church with a programme is a church that is growing. A church with a programme is a church that is contributing to the world's progress.

N. S. SPILED INTO CONFEDERATION "WITH A PERK"

Irony of Fate That Hance Logan Becomes Protagonist of Maritime Discontent.

(By Colin McKay.) Halifax, N. S., April 30.—That Hance J. Logan, M.P. for Cumberland County, N. S., should have become the principal protagonist of the disunion of the Maritime Provinces with their position in the Confederation is not without irony, for it was the "War Horse of Cumberland," Charles Tupper, who dragged Nova Scotia into Confederation by the scruff of the neck. And Nova Scotia did not like the process. In the Dominion Elections immediately following the consummation of Confederation, Dr. Tupper, himself was the only Confederates elected in the eighteen Nova Scotia seats; while in the Provincial elections, held about the same time, the Maritime members to the House of Assembly, only two Confederates survived the storm.

In his presentation of the claims and grievances of the Maritimes in the House of Commons, recently, Mr. Logan showed a moderation that rather surprised Maritime friends. As President of the Maritime Board of Trade, Mr. Logan has made many speeches in this Province during the past few years, and more than once he has expressed the fear that the apparent indifference of the Dominion authorities to Maritime claims and grievances would result in a secession movement in the Atlantic provinces. And such expressions were made at a time and under circumstances that do not admit of the suggestion that he was playing party politics. After one of Mr. Logan's speeches before the St. John Board of Trade, long before there was a Dominion election in sight, Hon. W. E. Foster, Premier of New Brunswick, arose and said there was undoubtedly a real danger of a secession movement if the outstanding claims of the Maritimes and their interests did not receive the greater consideration from Ottawa than they had received in the past. Mr. Foster deprecated the idea of secession, but declared that it would be unwise to ignore the possibilities inherent in the present dissatisfaction of Maritime people with their status in the Canadian Confederation. And to this no dissent was made by a representative gathering of the business men of the chief city of New Brunswick.

Recent events have rather conspired to change the objective of the Maritime group from Ottawa to Toronto. An important official of the Nova Scotia government, not so long ago, asserted that the principal issue in the last Federal elections was Toronto. "Not that Toronto is not a city of very good people, enterprising and ambitious," he added, "but Toronto is too fond of referring to the rights of Quebec as dangerous bogies of various sorts, and seeing in the inclusion of the Maritimes upon the rights under Confederation, impudent demands for political patronage and special privileges." A similar feeling found expression when a Halifax business man, long time manager of an important Maritime Bank, declared that Ontario had exercised an undue influence in shaping the fiscal and commercial policies of Confederation and that the consequent subordination of the interests of the Maritimes had prevented them from the promise of their pre-Confederation development.

The fact of the matter, however, is that the political effects of Confederation offer a rather inadequate explanation of the relative retardation of the industrial and commercial progress of the Maritimes, as compared with other provinces. The major factor in the unsatisfactory conditions here within the domain of economics, and are interwoven with the developments in the technique of civilization which has stamped the whole industrial and commercial complexion of the modern world.

The appearance of the iron steamer and railway would have effected a revolution in the industry and commerce of the Maritime Provinces, if they had never entered Confederation. America, with great wealth, vast resources and a large population, was unable to hold her own as a mercantile marine power when the iron and steel steamer began to seriously bid for the carrying trade of the world, although her wooden ships had attained a tonnage nearly equal to Britain's and had surpassed Britain's mercantile fleet in efficiency and earning power. And much less than the United States did the Maritimes developed either coal or iron production to the point necessary to enable them to build iron ships; nor had they the capital, technical knowledge or skill necessary for the creation of iron and steel ships. With the rapid development of the tramp steamer and the opening of the Suez Canal it was inevitable that the Maritime Provinces, should soon lose the distinction of owning more shipping in proportion to population than any other part of the world. Their fleets of white winged ships that lived in the boisterous life of the winds ceased to glean fortunes from the sea. Wooden shipbuilding declined in the Maritimes as elsewhere, and this affected another great industry of the Maritimes, lumbering.

If the Maritimes had formed a political union of their own, as they were talking of doing at Charlottetown when Sir John A. Macdonald, appeared on the scene with a proposal for Confederation, the world not have been in a much better position to rapidly adapt themselves to the changing conditions of the world. They might possibly have maintained closer commercial relations with the United States, but by no means would have followed as a matter of course. Developments within the United States itself have been the main factor in shaping United States commercial policy, not developments in Canada. Nova Scotia coal was driven out of the New England market by the development of Virginia and Pennsylvania, and by the development of cheap coastwise transportation facilities. The Inspector put his hand on the golden head of the tiniest girl in the class, and smiled kindly. "What is your name, little girl?" he asked. "My name's Iona," she piped nervously. "And what is your surname?" asked the great man. "Please, sir," she replied, "I would rather not tell."

"Come, come," said the inspector. "You needn't be afraid of telling me your surname." "You won't laugh?" said the little maid anxiously. "Of course not, my dear," was the reply. "Well, sir, my surname is Ford," was the answer. And he had to laugh, after all.

Tommy: "Pa, a man's wife is his better half, isn't she?" Pa: "So we are told, my son." Tommy: "Then if a man marries twice there isn't anything left of him, is there?"

United States put a tariff on fish when its fishing industry had attained a stage of development able to attract the best fishermen of Nova Scotia to its service. And inside or outside of Confederation, Nova Scotia could have developed greater fish markets in the West Indies, for the growth of the best root sugar industry in Europe was affecting the progress of the islands and putting a limit on their purchasing power. Nor could the Maritimes have developed manufacturing industries in competition with the larger industries of the United States any better than they have done in competition with the larger organizations of Quebec or Ontario.
