LONGING.

Ah, from out this valley's darkness,
Where the murky shadows press,
Could I find the path of egress—
Oh! what joy and happiness!
Had I but the eagle's pinions,
Where the hills in beauty lie,
Decked with ever blooming verdure,
There with swiftest wings, I'd fly.

Harmonies I hear resounding,
Heavenly notes of concord sweet,
Gentle breezes, softly sighing,
Me with balmy fragrance greet.
Golden fruits I see a-glowing
Through the foliage, beck'ning me,
And the flowers there a-blowing
Ne'er a winter's spot can be.

Ah! what happiness to dwell there,
In the sunlight over bright,
Drawing from the breath of heaven
Ever new and sweet delight.
Yet the thought of that dark river,
Passing death to reach the goal,
Brings with it a dread appalling
Terror to my slumbering soul.

A bark I see upon the stream—
Alas! the bargeman is not there.
Fate boldly I do not tremble,
Soul-inspired sails thee bear.
Faith must own thee—thou must venture,
Since the gods no pledge advance;
But a miracle can take thee
To thy longing's happy lands.

First Principles to Advertising.

BY ONE WHO HAS TRIED IT.

Twelve years ago I discovered an article (which has since been added to the materia medica) that seemed to me of great value in certain complaints. How to make the discovery known to the public was a difficulty which I could not solve. Advertising at that time was not, as to-day, understood by the general public; so for fully six months I revolved in my mind the various expedients of posters, circulars, hand-bills, agents, peddlers, street stands, etc., etc., until one day, by what inspiration I know not, it suddenly flashed upon me that newspaper advertising was my only resource. Men of to-day would, doubtless, think it preposterous not to have thought of this expedient before; but do you know that there are to-day thousands of men, of average intelligence, who do not know how to use advertising—who are unaware of its power and blind to its results. There are thousands who to-day could use it with the greatest effect, who do not know in what it consists, in how far it is a principle of business, a gigantic aid to fortune, a principal feature in the science of all trade. I say of all business advisedly; for what is calling from door to door and soliciting trade; what is handing your card to a customer; what is the telling of your acquaintance that you sell this or that; what is the dressing of your window, the sending of a steak to your alderman or a bottle of wine to your pastor, but advertising? Newspaper advertising is simply a cheaper, easier, more wide spread and effective way of doing it—that is all.

To resume, I sought the aid of a respectable agent and struck out vigorously. I did not dwindle away my money. I believed that an immediate and strong impression would pay best. I was not disappointed. My venture was successful almost from the start. I made what is now called "a small fortune" in advertising. It sufficed me, and I sold out. I have since spent much time in reading. Only the other day I came across your "Newspaper Reporter." I was at once interested in it as a bright, concise and wise exponent of the business. It carried me back to some old principles which I have always adhered to on the subject of advertising. Hence this communication.

Do not expect anything new or original. I start on one basis only, believing that people greatly deceive themselves in thinking advertising intricate or complicated—in supposing something that their minds could not solve, and upon which they must rely blindly and implicitly, hoping for a good result. I have arrived at the conclusion that what is wanted in the advertising business of to-day is a clear statement of the entire facts just as they are, and just as they have been for years; that these facts be iterated and reiterated until the many people who are anxious to advertise, and could do so with great advantage both to themselves and the public, are enabled to do so with their eyes wide open. When this is done we will have a larger proportion of honest advertising than now, and the swindlers will be greatly crowded.

And now to business.

WHAT IS ADVERTISING?

1. You have a good article. You wish to sell it. No one knows of it. It remains useless in your hands. Traveling agents are uncertain and expensive. If a medicine, druggists will not look at it, because there is no demand for it. Peddlers will not burden themselves with it, for it is not known. Agents want standard goods. Your personal efforts are limited to a locality. Posters prove it a humbug. Handbills are also local. Walking sign-boards are limited and suspicious. Clearly the newspaper is the cheapest and only effective resource. You advertise in one and inform a circle of readers. You want to sell more goods. You insert in more papers. In one month, if you desire it, you can inform six thousand circles, consisting of twenty millions of readers, that you have something that is of use to them. Your article will be sold in proportion to the number of appropriate papers you employ. Your article, once introduced and proved good, creates a demand. This is your business, and advertising has created it. You will continue to advertise, for it is more economical to keep an advertisement going than have to renew it. This is advertising—in the raw.

2. You desire to attract more attention than that given to those beside you. You use more space, a larger display, a cut, or some one of the many means of attracting attention. This is live advertising.

3. You should be aware that your advertisement in some papers will be of little use. If your article be maple sugar the Vermont papers will not pay you. Advertising costs in Newcastle seldom pays. Yet many such cases have occurred where the advertiser has sought to increase his business. This is but one safe plan. Go at once to the best advertising agent in your city. He will advise you as to the sections it will pay you to advertise in. It is his interest to have you succeed.

REALIZATION OF THE PRINCIPLE.

I have met many men who have looked upon advertising as a Patagonian would gaze at a spider on silk. I have seen men stare with superstitious awe at men who have made their fortunes by it. I have seen them stand with stupid yet wondering eyes, gazing at houses which have been gained by it. "Only think," they say, "all this done by advertising; man as poor as a church mouse when he commenced." "Wonderful!" they say, and pass on. The idea, by some strange intricacy of the human mind, never seems to come home to them that they, too might do and do likewise. Why is it? It is because the principles of the business have not been clearly, honestly and emphatically explained to them, or is it an organic lack of inventive power? Many successful advertisers that I have known were not, as a rule, men of large brain. But they were practical men, who could concentrate their minds steadily on one point until they saw it clearly—who realized a fact when they got hold of it, and pursued it perseveringly until they arrived at ultimate success.

Do you realize that you have a valuable article—that it must be made known to be made to pay—that advertising is the only way to make it known—that a respectable agent will do your business better than you or any one else—that large fortunes have been and are being made over and over again in the same way? If, indeed, you fully realize these things, your fortune is more than half made already; for no man ever yet came to a clear consciousness of a matter involving a fortune without putting it into immediate execution.

Protecting Roofs from Fire.

The Firemen's Journal, which ought to be good authority on such matters, says: "A wash composed of lime, salt and fine sand, or wood shavings put on the same way as whitewash, is said to render the roof fifty fold more safe against taking fire from falling cinders or otherwise in case of fire in the vicinity. It pays the expenses a hundredfold in its preserving influence against the effect of the weather; the older and more weather-beaten the shingles are, the more benefit derived. Such shingles are more or less warped, rough and cracked. The application of wash, by wetting the upper surface, restores them to their original or first form, thereby closing the spaces between the shingles; and the lime and sand, by filling up the cracks, prevents it warping."

Josh Billings says: "Most men will concede that it looks foolish to see a boy 'druggin' a heavy sled up 'hill for the flettin' plasure of ridin' down again. But it appears to me that the boy is a sage by the side of a young man who works hard all the week, and drinks up his wages on Saturday night."

They obtain their wisdom in solid chunks out in Missouri. A husband out there, his wife having applied for a divorce, wrote a protest to the judge, in which he said: "Don't you grant her, boss. In my opinion this durn thing call'd voice has parted many a man on his wife."

Interesting Tale.

DOOMED.

On a handsome lawn fronting an old ivy grown mansion in the State of Virginia, one pleasant afternoon not many years ago, a group of young people of both sexes were gathered. Standing in their midst was an old woman, bent down with age, looking as if she stood on the brink of the grave; but her dark, restless eyes showed that there was vigorous life in her mind, if not in her body.

She had been 'telling fortunes' for the young people gathered around her, and to all but one she had foretold a bright and happy future. The exception of this rule of blessedness through life was a handsome boy of nineteen, with a dark, passionate face, and an expression which indicated perfect fearlessness.

Five years before the opening of this story an old gentleman and his nephew had moved to Virginia, from some Northern State, and buying a farm, had made it their home. Mr. Mercer and his nephew Frank, were treated with kindness by the gentlemen of the neighborhood, and they received invitations to visit the plantations near them. Frank soon became acquainted with all in the country; but his uncle never left his farm, and seemed to shun society. For this many reasons were given; but the true one was that he had lost his whole family, and Frank's parents, having left him to Mr. Mercer's charge he determined to devote himself to the boy, and found sufficient enjoyment in his company and in cultivating his farm. Though reported very wealthy, and that he always kept a large sum of gold in the house, Mr. Mercer and Frank lived in a quiet way, and made no display.

Thus passed Frank's early youth from his fourteenth until his seventeenth year, when our story opens. A man of superior education, Mr. Mercer had been his nephew's teacher, and had imparted to him much knowledge of the world, of letters, and people, so that Frank, at nineteen, was as well informed as if he had possessed a cultivated education. There were those in the neighborhood who reported that the boy was wild and dissipated, and that he had been a runaway; so that Frank had some enemies as well as many friends.

Thus we find him; and the evening of the commencement of our story he had been invited to an entertainment given by a wealthy planter to his children.

Mr. Dewes, the planter, had three children, the youngest and loveliest of whom was Mary, a girl of twelve. Mary and Frank were the best of friends, and loved each other dearly; so when the fortune teller predicted a dark and stormy future for Frank, the tears arose to the child's eyes, and she said, "Do not listen to her, Frank!"

But the boy laughed, and turning on his heel, walked away. Two days afterwards, he left home for a week's hunting in the mountains; but the second night after his departure, the neighborhood was aroused by the startling news that old Mr. Mercer had been murdered by his nephew. One of the servants passing the house at night heard a cry, and seeing Frank's window open, he sprang in and walked across the hall to Mr. Mercer's chamber, from whence the cry came. Lying upon the floor was the old man, dead, while near him stood his nephew, with a bloody knife in his hand. In the fight, the negro rushed from the house and gave the alarm. Persons from the neighborhood were sent for, and Frank was seized against every protestation that he did not kill his uncle, and thrown into jail.

The feeling against the youth was intense, for the negro told the story of how he had found Frank; and a wayfarer pedlar, who had just ascended the front steps to ask to stay all night corroborated the man's statement.

The trial came off, and the charges were made known. Frank was accused of starting upon a hunting expedition as a blind, and then returning from the mountain by night, had entered the room, and attempting to remove a large bag of gold kept by his uncle, had aroused him, and upon being discovered had driven his hunting knife into the heart of Mr. Mercer; the gold was on the floor, its weight having torn through the bag when it was raised. The knife with which Mr. Mercer was killed was one he had given to Frank some days before, and was a large dirk knife encased in a silver scabbard.

Pale as death, but showing no sign of fear or guilt upon his handsome face, the prisoner sagely moved by his sentence, which was to die on the gallows. When asked if he had anything to say, Frank arose, and looking around the court-room, in a clear voice answered:

I have! Circumstantial evidence has condemned me! I admit it looks as if I did the deed, but I am guiltless of murder! Dropping my perspiring cap-bow in a mountain stream, I returned home for more; for without caps my gun was useless.

It was a lovely night, and I determined to enter the house by my room window, get the caps, and return without awakening my uncle. I tied my horse to the fence, sprang into the window, and then heard a loud crash, a call-out and a shriek in the direction of my uncle's room. I rushed thither—a dark form dashed by me in the uncertain light of the room—and I fell over something upon the floor. With fear in my heart I arose, lighted a candle, and saw my uncle's body covered with blood, gold scattered upon the floor and my own knife, which had done the deed, lying near. I picked up the knife; and thus was I found by the negro and seen by the pedlar. As God is my witness, I did not murder the good old man who has protected me throughout life, and whom I loved as though he was my own father! I am guiltless of the deed, but submit to my fate!

A silence fell upon all; there were, however, but few who believed the youth's statement; among the latter was Mr. Dewes and his family, who, through all, remained staunch friends.

Frank Mercer was to be hung, to die an ignominious death on the gallows, and hundreds flocked to the little town where the execution was to take place, to see him die. How were they disappointed to find that the night before he had escaped! How, no one knew, but he had left a note addressed to the jailer, thanking him for the kindness shown him while he was in his charge, and his regrets that his escape might cause him trouble, but saying he had an opportunity of escaping, and took advantage of it, for he had no idea of dying an ignominious death for an act he was not guilty of, merely to gratify the curiosity of a gaping crowd. Felipe was offered him, and he accepted it, and he hoped he would yet be able to prove his innocence.

This was about the subject of the letter, and when it was published in the local paper there were some who were glad that the boy had escaped the gallows. Mr. Mercer's property was, in his will, left to Frank, and it was found to be considerable. Trustees assumed charge of it, and he returned to the quiet country where he had settled down to his usual routine, and he and his wife were, in a short time, almost forgotten.

Ten years passed away, and no word of the fugitive had been heard, and people believed him dead. One exception was Mary Dewes, now grown to womanhood. She had never loved him, and through her life had treasured Frank's image in her inmost heart, the mystery that hung around him, but adding strength to her regard. Her sister had married, her mother was dead, and together with her father, they had lived at the old homestead.

Business calling Mr. Dewes to Havana, he took Mary with him, and they set sail from Charleston in a fine ship running south—there had been some days at sea, when in the dead of night the fearful cry of "Fire" was heard, which aroused all from slumber. In vain were efforts made to quench the flames. The sea men in fright rushed into the only boat, the boat, and it sank with them, and left them struggling in the ocean, borne away by the wind and waves, while Mr. Dewes and Mary, the captain of the ship, and a few others were huddled away upon the main, awaiting the fearful doom that to all appearance awaited them.

Still he lived! The young cry came from the captain, who had been struggling his eyes over the ocean, in hopes of seeing some vessel coming to save them. Swiftly flying towards them came a low rakish, three-masted schooner, which ever and anon sent up a light, to prove to those on board the burning ship that success was near.

Hark! the deep boom of a gun is heard, and as the captain listens he exclaims, Miss Dewes, we are all right now; cheer up for there comes a vessel of war to our aid.

Ship ahoy! came in ringing tones from the schooner, as she came near the burning ship which was being driven rapidly along by the wind.

Ahoy! answered the captain. Throw a long line from your ship, and I will send you a boat, came in the same clear tone.

The line was thrown, the boat attached, and after a little difficulty, the people from the ship were transferred to the schooner, and Mary was soon in the comfortable cabin, rejoicing over their escape from a horrible death.

At breakfast the next morning the young captain of the war schooner descended to join his guests at the table, and, as he entered, Mary sprang towards him.

Frank Mercer! Oh! it is you—is it not? One glance at the beautiful girl, and though years had passed, Frank Mercer, for it was no other, recognized the playmate whom he had loved so well, and whom he had never ceased to think of.

Mr. Dewes came forward, and what a joyful meeting was there; but seeing a cloud, as it were, in Mr. Mercer's face, he came over the young captain's face, Mr. Dewes said, First, let me relieve your mind of one thing. Your innocence in Virginia has been thoroughly established.

lished; for a negro runaway, hung the other day for killing a woman, confessed before his death that he had murdered your uncle, and your arriving when you did prevented him from getting the gold, but made him escape from the house. He knew you were bringing a large amount of money, and you bring away, as he thought, he procured your knife, and with it committed the fatal deed!

Frank listened to Mr. Dewes, almost breathless, and then, when he had concluded, he bowed his face in his hands and wept like a child.

But come in said Mr. Dewes, at length, we are hungry and need breakfast; and are anxious to know how you became a captain in the Mexican navy.

My story is easily told my dear friends, for after escaping from prison through your kindness, I went to Mexico, entered the navy, and having rendered some service, rose to my present command, which has been the means of saving your lives.

Little more can be added. Frank resigned his commission and returned home, when he was lionized by the whole community. If he came in possession of his estates, which were greatly increased in value; and, six months afterwards, in the very town where he was to have had the hangman's halter placed around his neck for death, he had the noise of matrimony thrown around him for life, and the bride was Mary Dewes. Thus his life had been both dark and bright in a remarkable degree.

Mark Twain tells the following funny incident: "Why, captain, you appear to have a bad cold." "Yes, madam," said the captain, who is fond of working in the garden early in the morning in his shirt-sleeves. "I suppose I deserve it. I caught it while breaking the seventh commandment last Sunday." The party, male and female, started and looked blank and the lady who brought out the remark said, as well as a choking fit would let her: "Well, upon my word, captain, considering the unusual circumstances of the case, and your present surroundings, it was hardly necessary for you to enter into such full particulars." When the innocent captain got home he found to his amazement that the seventh commandment does not say, "Thou shalt remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." But that the Fourth does.

How to ENJOY LIFE.—It is wonderful to what extent it is possible to believe happiness depends on not being obliged to labor. Honest, hearty, contented labor is the only source of happiness, as well as the only guarantee of life. The gloom of anti-anxiety is not only a great destroyer of happiness we might have, but it tends to destroy life itself. Idleness and luxury induces a premature decay much faster than many trades regarded as the most exhaustive and fatal to longevity. Labor in general, is a sort of shortening term of life actually increases it. It is the lack of occupation that annually destroys so many of the wealthy, who, having nothing to do, play the part of drones, and, like them, make a speedy exit, while the busy bee fills out its day in usefulness and honor.

A TYRO'S ERROR.—The anguish of editors will never cease until typesetters are wiped off the face of earth. There, for instance, is the editor of the "Boston Argus." He alluded to one of the most eminent citizens of his village as "a noble old burglar, proudly loving his native State." But was it not a serious cause for dissatisfaction when he saw in the paper next morning that the remorseless fiend had made him speak of the eminent citizen as "a nobly old burglar prowling around in a naked state?"

THE SCHOOLHOUSE A SIGN.—There is no surer sign of a lack of intelligence and refinement in a neighborhood than a dilapidated and shabby schoolhouse, its benches backed with knives and stained with ink, its doors unhung, its floor covered with dirt, its windows open to sun and rain. On the other hand, if you see a schoolhouse neat in design, freshly painted, in good repair, with a well-kept yard filled with shade-trees, you are likely to infer that the families of the neighborhood are enterprising and intelligent. If the schoolhouse is what it ought to be, you are likely to find in it a competent teacher and well-behaved scholars. In such a neighborhood, moreover, you will be likely to find the farms well taken care of, the fences trim, the houses and barns in good repair. The town which neglects its schools is on the high road to ruin.

It is remarkable that in all those places in the West which were overrun by the potato bug last summer, and every thing in the shape of a potato eaten up, the crops were never known to be so large as they are this season.

It is hardly credible that but little over twenty years ago San Francisco was a barren waste, and to day has 170,000 inhabitants yet both are facts.

The Montreal Gazette complains that the Banks in Montreal, with one or two exceptions charge a quarter per cent, and in some instances a larger discount upon their own notes simply because these notes are issued by a branch of the Bank instead of by its head office. The same is done, we believe, in all the cities of the U. P. Provinces at all the branches of all the Banks. It is but another way of "sluicing" their customers in which they are skilful, and it is said, that it is quite common to issue in Montreal notes payable at Toronto, and at Toronto notes payable at Montreal or Quebec—and so throughout the country—with the very purpose of charging discount on them when presented for cash or in payment of a note or purchase of a Bill of Exchange. The Gazette adds:—
"While it is hard that a note issued by a chartered bank should not represent 100 cents to the dollar in any part of the country in which that bank is authorized by such charter to do business; it is worse to have a discount upon notes issued by the Government of the country; and yet this state of things actually exists amongst us without as far as we are aware—Boards of Trade, or the Press, seeking to remedy a grievance by which a Dominion note (called a legal tender) is simply because it is issued—or supposed to be—from St. John, N. B., is subjected to a discount of five cents on the dollar. That this course tends to help Confederation we cannot believe."

We did try to remedy or rather to prevent this state of affairs when the Bill to establish a Dominion currency was introduced by Sir John Rose. We demanded then that any note issued by the Dominion should be redeemable at any office of redemption established by the Government; but the banking interest in Parliament was too strong, and the public were too indifferent and the Press was too negligent, and so the Bill passed in its present shape—Freeborn.

A heavy earthquake occurred at Iquique and the Interior of Peru on the 24th of October. There was considerable damage done to the buildings in Iquique and a great panic among the people. The effects were more disastrous in the interior where towns of Pica and Matilla were destroyed. A fire succeeded the earthquake at Pica. At Tarapaca the church, Pantheon, 18 houses and the dam of the river were destroyed. The towns of Umagama, Gansquina and Puchico also suffered severely. Very few lives were lost. The steamer Panama felt the earthquake at sea and Arquipa had shocks on the 4th and 10th, but no buildings were damaged.

Our gold fields are seldom brought prominently under notice. Their yield however goes steadily on paying industry a fair percentage. It is not often that their produce visits our town in other guise than the stereotyped productions of the mint. It was therefore with considerable interest we saw and handled two very handsome bricks brought to our office by M. Damas Touquay, the Proprietor and worker of the Cariboo mine, Upper Musquodobiit, en route to Halifax on Saturday. This gentleman who owns some ten acres of goldfield in the above locality exhibited to us these two bars as the product, roughly speaking, of 700 days work. In size they averaged 5 1/2 inches long 1 5/8 width and 1 1/4 depth, weighing 100 ozs. 6 penny weights, and 96 ozs. 1 pennyweight respectively, the gross value, at $19.20 per oz, would amount to 3,770 dollars. We have called these bricks handsome, for apart from the dazzling glitter of gold, they had artistic merit peculiarly their own, being homogeneous throughout, and beautifully regular, the exterior free from the roughness and flaws so frequently observed in the usually seen—This regularity of substance, and exterior was owing to the careful way in which smelting was performed, to the flux used, which by the way was Mr. D. Trouquay's own discovery, and to the good moulding; the edges were beautifully even and sharp. Mr. Trouquay employs about 10 hands. He is at present working leads of quartz near the surface.—Sun, Toronto.

SAINT ANDREWS, NOV. 22, 1871.

AN EDUCATIONAL MEETING was held on Friday last, to prepare information to be laid before the School Meeting which will be held on the 11th of January next. Messrs. D. B. Whyte, J. F. Mulligan and J. Magher, teachers, and the Female teachers of the various schools in town, were present as were also Messrs. Bradford and Glenn, School Trustees, the Hon. B. R. Stevenson, Sur. Gen., and member of the Board of Education, Sheriff Paul, and Messrs. J. S. Magee and S. H. Whitlock. After some discussion, Resolutions were passed recommending the grading of the Schools, and that they be divided into three classes—Primary, Intermediate, and High Schools. We trust that the people who have to pay the tax (about $2000) will attend and exercise a voice in a matter which so deeply interests them. The selection of Trustees is a matter of interest, and the best qualified men should be elected.

There is more evidence to prove Cundurango a humbug. The Wilmington Commercial learns of the recent death at Conception, Chile, of Mrs. Thomas R. Lee, formerly of Baltimore. Her husband is one of the leading business men of Chile, where he has been settled for a number of years, engaged in mining and milling, acquiring great wealth and an enviable reputation. Mrs. Lee had been afflicted for perhaps two years with cancer, and soon after the appearance of the terrible disease commenced treating it with the plant, recently introduced here, and known as "Cundurango." It had to be brought from Ecuador, where it is mainly found. At first, for about a fortnight, the treatment seemed to have effect, but afterwards it appeared only to aggravate the disease, and she died from it, as already stated.

What Railway Dust is Composed Of.
Mr. Joseph Tidestrom has made a microscopic examination of dust blown into a railway carriage near Birmingham. He says: "I spread a paper on the seat of the carriage, near the open window, and collected the dust that fell upon it. A rough examination of this, with a two third power, showed a large portion of fragments of iron, and on applying a soft iron needle, I found that many of them were highly magnetic. They were mostly long, thin, and straight, the largest being about 1-150th of an inch, and under the power used, had the appearance of a quantity of old nails. Then, with a magnet, separated the iron from the other particles."

The weight, altogether, of the dust collected was 57 grains, and the proportion of those particles composed wholly, or in part, of iron was 29 grains or more than one half. The iron thus separated consisted chiefly of small particles of dross or burned iron, like "clinkers," many were more or less spherical, like those, brought to our notice by Mr. Dancier, from the flue of a furnace, but none so smooth; they were all more or less covered with spikes and excrescences, some having long tails, like the old "Prince Rupert's drops"; there were also many small, angular particles like cast iron, having crystalline structure.

The other portion of the dust consisted largely of cinders, some very bright angular fragments of glass or quartz, a few bits of yellow metal, opaque, white, and spherical bodies, grains of sand, a few bits of coal, etc.

After the examination of this dust, I could easily understand why it had produced such irritation; the number of angular, pointed, and spiked pieces of iron, and the "clinkers," or clinkers, being quite sufficient to account for the unpleasant effect.

"I think it probable that the magnetic strips of iron are laminæ from the rails and ties of the wheels, and the other iron particles, portions of fused metal, either from the coal or from the furnace bars. The large proportion of iron found in the dust is probably owing to the metal being heavier than the ordinary dust, and accumulating in cuttings such as those between the two stations named."

"If I had to travel much by railway through that district, I should like to wear magnetic railway spectacles, and a magnetic respirator in dry weather."—[Scientific American.

Death of D. J. McLaughlin, Esq.

We are sorry to have to record the death of D. J. McLaughlin, Esq., one of our most respected citizens, which occurred yesterday morning. Mr. McLaughlin has long been known as an honorable and successful merchant and Bank Director. He was once and again President of the Commercial Bank, and is believed to have been considerably affected by the reverses of an institution in which he took so deep an interest. Mr. McLaughlin was frugal in his mode of life, but liberal in his Christian charities, one of which, the Benevolent Hall, on Waterloo street, has been the means of much good to the children of the neighborhood, especially the poorer classes. It is to be hoped that the enterprise will not be allowed to flag on account of the death of this generous patron. Mr. McLaughlin had been failing in health for some time, though able to ride out on Thursday. It was not until Saturday that he was reported as being dangerously ill. He retained his consciousness to his last moments and died in the full enjoyment of the consolations of the Gospel. The deceased gentleman was in the 64th year of his age.—[Telegraph, 21st.

Only a few days before the great fire, the President of one of the largest of the English insurance companies (the Imperial, of London) was in Chicago, with a view of establishing an agency there; but he was so impressed with the precariousness of the situation that he declined to yield to the temptation. "I cannot do it," said he; "you have some fine buildings, but you have them surrounded by very bad ones. The first time circumstances combine against you, your whole city will burn up." This experienced underwriter had hardly time to get out of the country before his prediction was terribly verified.

We regret to state that N. K. Clements, Esq., had one of his legs broken in two places, below the knee, on Tuesday, whilst superintending the preparations for launching the steamer Linda, near Cranberry Head. He was conveyed yesterday to his residence.—[Yarmouth Herald.

A WONDER OF THE 19th CENTURY.—There lives on Cape Sable Island, Shelburne Co., a lady aged 76 years, who has woven 95 yards of cloth, and spun 120 skeins of yarn since May. She has helped rake 20 tons of hay, raised 4 calves, 17 turkeys, and 1 hog. After doing an ordinary quantity of housework, she walks to Clark's Harbour and back, a distance of 18 miles.—Ibid.

SUMMARY.
—Miss Parkinson, at one time a patient in a San Francisco hospital, has sued Dr. Scott for damages in publishing a history of her disease and its treatment in a medical magazine, and has lost her case.

—The uncertainty of a man's position when it is based on fraud is well illustrated in the case of Tweed, who has lost all his support in the New York elections, and, probably, now must leave the country.

—Henry Ward Beecher in a recent sermon said there was more danger now from monied corporations than there was from slavery.

Well informed persons attribute the spread of the small pox in Philadelphia and other cities to the sale of buffalo robes taken from the Blackfeet and Piegan camps where the disease prevailed two years ago.

—A Justice in Iowa has made a new departure in "hitching up" folks. He will not in future marry for a fee, but will hereafter marry by weight, charging four cents per pound for the happy man and two cents for the bride.

—It is thought that ten millions of acres of woodland are swept off every year in this country. Before long this must be stopped. The American Agriculturist says that the country for its highest productiveness needs one fifth of its whole surface covered with forest.

—A good instance of "sharp practice" is that of a man in Ohio, who was acquitted of murder on plea of insanity. He had secured his lawyers by giving them a mortgage on the ground that he was insane when he made it, according to the showing of these same lawyers.

The London Times approves of the action of President Grant regarding the stand he has taken on the Mormon question.

—Nearly thirtyfour million feet more lumber was surveyed in Bangor during the ten months ending October 31st, than in the same months of last year, and about thirtyseven million feet more than in the corresponding months in 1869.

—Hon. David Wark has been appointed Treasurer of the Associated Contractors who have engaged to build the Riviere du Loup Railroad.

—Year by year there appears to be a greater dislike to enforcing the death penalty in England. And last year, although there were one hundred and one persons convicted of murder in England, only six were hanged. As the halter goes out of fashion the lash seems to be growing in popularity, for no less than 659 persons were flogged for various offences last year.

If figures would convince, the statistics of the liquor traffic would have converted the world before this time to total abstinence. The Chief of the Statistics for the year ending June 30th, 1871, estimates that the amount spent in the United States for intoxicating liquors was $600,000,000—sufficient in four years to pay off the national debt and complete every projected public work in the country.

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE for December is one of our brightest and clearest assistants for the month. Crowded with all the riches of a Christmas Dinner, it makes one think of its appropriateness as a Christmas present for the little ones, as well as for the older members of the household. "Mrs. Santa Claus' Adventure" is alone richly worth the price of the Magazine a year. We notice that its publishers have recently purchased the following Magazines which have been consolidated with the Household, viz: "Our Magazine," published by Maj. General Kilpatrick and Wm. H. Matison, at Newton, N. J., and "The Felecity," published at Cincinnati by Dr. J. M. Scudder. Send for the D. C. number, which will be mailed free. Address S. S. Wood & Co., Newburgh, N. Y.

THE CENSUS.—The following is a comparative statement of the census returns for 1871, tabulated from the special despatch to the Daily News, showing the population and increase during the last ten years:

THE manner of using the Spice is by sprinking a tea-spoonful or a table-spoonful (according to the size or class of animal) over or into the common food, such as hay, straw, roots crushed corn, etc. (see directions on packet labels).
The cost is not more than is incurred by using pepper and salt in soup, or with other food for ourselves. The effect is much the same, viz.—It gives an agreeable relish to coarse food, it warms
and nourishes the stomach, assists digestion, creates healthy, gives a strong constitution, rapid growth and vigor to the frame, and vastly increases the size, weight, and quality of the animals,
thus giving stamina and condition to horses, rapid growth to calves, lambs, and young pigs, and great
results in weight of carcass, in fattening animals,

Simpson's Cattle Spice.
CHAPTER IV.
THE manner of using the Spice is by sprink-
ing a tea-spoonful or a table-spoonful (according to the size or class of animal) over or into
the common food, such as hay, straw, roots crushed corn, etc. (see directions on packet labels).
The cost is not more than is incurred by using pepper and salt in soup, or with other food for ourselves. The effect is much the same, viz.—It gives an agreeable relish to coarse food, it warms
and nourishes the stomach, assists digestion,
creates healthy, gives a strong constitution, rapid
growth and vigor to the frame, and vastly increases the size, weight, and quality of the animals,
thus giving stamina and condition to horses, rapid growth to calves, lambs, and young pigs, and great
results in weight of carcass, in fattening animals, and large yield of rich Milk and Butter from Cows, &c.
The reader is kindly invited to procure a small quantity and fairly test the merits on some of his own Horses, Cattle, Sheep or Pigs, when he will be delighted to find himself in possession of a cheap and ready method for producing almost magical results on his animals, and he will be pleased to recommend to his neighbors and friends.
A full supply of this valuable Spice just received and for sale wholesale and retail by

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION,
and acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years; and when resorted to in season, seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Bleeding at the Lungs, Liver Complaint, &c.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of
PULMONARY COMPLAINTS
has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise its use in the most severe cases of Consumption. We have space only for the names of a few of these:—

ALAN, M.D. A. A. GIBBS, M.D.
E. HODGKIN, M.D. W. H. WARD, M.D.

NATHAN TRACY, M.D. S. H. FORD, M.D.

Such testimony
CANNOT BE DISCREDITED.
From the mass of evidence in our possession we select the following:—
From L. J. RAINE, Esq.,
of Le Mans, Montreal. "Having experienced the most gratifying results from the use of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, I am bold to express the great confidence which I have in its efficacy. For nine months I am most distressingly afflicted with a severe and obstinate cough, accompanied with acute pain in the chest, which did not allow me to sleep or to eat. I had used every remedy, and to no purpose. I then resorted to Wistar's Balsam, from which I found immediate relief, and in a few days I was enabled to resume my usual avocations. I have used the Balsam in my family, and administered to my children, and the balsam has proved to be a most valuable remedy. I am sure that such testimonials as the above will speak for the Balsam. It is a preparation which has only to be tried to be acknowledged as the remedy for Consumption."

A CURE FOR WHOOPING COUGH.
ST. HELENS, N. Y., Aug. 11, 1864.
Messrs. W. F. FOWLE & SON.
Gentlemen—Several months since a little daughter of mine, ten years of age, was taken with Whooping Cough in a very aggravated form, and nothing would do but her removal to my way to have her cured. I was then directed to try a bottle of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. In three days after she had commenced using it, she was greatly relieved, and in a few days she was entirely cured, and is now well. I have since recommended the Balsam to many of my neighbors, who have used it, and in no case have I known it fail of affording a speedy cure. You are at liberty to make any use of the above written testimonial, and I shall induce anybody to use your Balsam if it should be able, for I have great confidence in it. Yours,
F. GUTHRIE,
Proprietor of the Courier de St. Helens.

Clergymen, Lawyers, Singers, and all those whose occupation requires an unusual exertion of the vocal organs, will find this Balsam of Wild Cherry which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties. This remedy, unlike most others, is extremely PLEASANT TO TASTE.
A small quantity allowed to pass over the irritated part at once removes the irritation.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS AND IMITATIONS.
