JOHN M'ARTHUR IS FREE MAN; JUDGE TOOK CASE FROM JURY

perts Responsible.

BLOWS DID NOT CAUSE DEATH

Wounds Found by Doctors Would Not Have Been Fatal Had Ninham Been Healthy.

Not since Walter Herbert answered "Guilty" to the charge of murder has a criminal case taken such a surprising turn as did the MoArthur case at the assizes this morning. At the conclusion of the case for the crown, Judge Lount took the case from the jury, and discharged the prisoner. The main reason for his action was that when the medical experts themselves were unable to decide wether death was due to blows, excitement. liquor or exertion, it was not a case upon which a jury could be called to decide. Judge Lount's action has a direct parallel in the course pursued in the Kavanagh merder case over two years ago, when Chief Justice Meredith stopped the progress of the case and took the matter from the hands of the jury. On that occasion Judge Lount was engaged as counsel for the defense. In the present case much credit is due the counsel for the prisoner, Mr. J. F. Faulds, for his able conduct of the defense. In cross-examination he brought out many important points, and even had the defense been obliged to put in evidence, and the case gone the jury, the prisoner's chances would have been considered as very favorable. Mr. Faulds was assisted in the case by his partner, Mr. R. M. C.

JUDGE'S ADDRESS TO THE JURY. It was a few minutes before 11 o'clock when Mr. Clute announced that the crown had no further evidence to offer. Mr. Faulds asked for five minutes' consultation with his partner, which was granted. On his return, Judge Lount turned to the jury and addressed them to the following effect: He said that it was the duty of the crown in a criminal trial to make out a case which would prove beyond doubt the guilt of the person charg-ed. The crown must prove that Mcdence had been carefully presented and | body. all the facts possible to be obtained had been laid before he court. Having had been laid before he court. Having considered the evidence of Drs. Neu and Waugh, said Judge Lount, he did not think the case one to be submitted to the jury for their finding. If the testimony of John Charles were true, a most brutal and cruel assault had been made upon the deceased Indian, but it was necessary to prove that that but it was necessary to prove that that assault caused the death of Ninham. The jury could not be allowed to speculate on the matter. The doctors had proved that Ninham suffered from a disease of the heart which might cause death at any moment. Judg Lount said he himself would not undertake, either as judge or jury, to conscientiously say that the blows in-flicted by the prisoner caused the death of Ninham. When even the medical experts could only conjecture the cause of death, the jury could not be expected to determine the fact. Hu-man life is too valuable to be taken on conjecture. For the reasons assigned, his lordship directed that the jury find a verdict of not guilty. The verdict was recorded as the judge had directed. THE PRISONER DISCHARGED. "Are there any other charges against this prisoner?" asked Judge Lount. "None, my lord," replied Mr. Clute. At the judge's command the prisoner stood up in the dock. In discharging him, Judge Lount said that he did not know whether of not Charles' story were true. Only the prisoner himself they were normal and in a healthy could know that. If the story were condition. correct, then the prisoner was in law | Cause of death - Stoppage of the Evidence of the Medical Ex- | guilty of a higher and graver crime than the one charged by the indictment. Owing, however, to the fact that the medical men were unable to say that death was due to the blows inflicted, Judge Lount had taken the view that it would not be proper to submit the case to the jury. In discharging the prisoner. Judge Lount warned him to avoid evil associations and wrong tendencies. If guilty, his conscience would be his punishment.

THE POST-MORTEM REPORT.

THE NEW BOXER INSURRECTION

Reported Killing of Converts | Fears That the Ex-Premier Is in Szechuan Is Confirmed-

Pekin, Sept. 19.-The French minister, through Wang Wen Shao, associate minister of foreign affairs and successor to Li Hung Chang as plenipotentiary, has sent word to the court at the summer palace that the French consul at Chengtu, Province of Szechuan, confirms the reports of the Boxer uprising at that place, the massacre of converts and the conflict between the Lantern Society and the Imperial troops. The foreign board disclaims all knowledge of the trouble. It is learned that the prefect and the Neihtai (provincial judge), who are the third and fourth highest provincial officials, are implicated in the disturbances. The Neihtai's son is the Boxer leader. The uprising was organized by an official who was blacklisted for the Boxer crimes of 1900 and exiled to Shansi. The throne has strongly commanded the officials of Szechuan to suppress the rebellion in that province. The Boxer attack on Cheng Tu Fu began Sept. 15. The attacking party was driven back and the gates of the city were closed and guarded by troops. Soldiers quelled the disorder within the city. Fourteen Boxer lead-from Bucharest, Roumania, dated Sunday, Sept. 14, a correspondent of the Daily Express says the emigration fever among the Jews of Roumania still continues, and that within the last three months 4,000 Jews have left the country. Tonight, the correspondent goes on, a party of 350 left for Canada and the United States, and small parties of Jews leave the larger towns of the country almost daily. Although the reason given by the emigrants for leaving is their inability to obtain work, the Jews steadily re-fuse to take up farm labor. Proof of this is found in the fact that within the last three years Roumania has paid for outside Bulgarian labor something like $3,000,000, which might have to the Jews if they would only turn their hands to the labor of harvesting. Bulgarian laborers, the correspondent concludes, are well housed and excellently fed while working on Roumanian farms.

But there is neither east nor west, nor border nor breed, nor birth, When two strong men stand face to face, though they come from the ends of the earth." There were certainly none of these things visible when Fitzsimmons and Ninham got together. All that the bystanders saw was a confused tangle which looked like two windmills in a mixup, so great did the number of flying arms seem to be. When the smoke cleared away, Fitzsimmons' star had set, and he was compelled to bow in defeat before his dusky rival. With this bag in the back of their wagon the two Ninhams started for home, leaving St. Thomas by descending the hill at the west end of ralbot street. A short distance from the city there stood a tavern, and here the father and son stopped to refresh themselves, little thinking that the vengeful Fitzsimmons and his confederate Lipsey were lying in ambush near, having shrewdly suspected that the Ninhams would not pass the tavern without stopping. Fitzsimmons and Lipsey disappeared and the efforts of the officers of the law failed to find them. The tragedy soon passed from mind, as even the direct tragedies will. The appearance of the bystanders lent force to the spokesman's argument, and the workmen invariably accepted his advice. Finally the police were notified. Could the Parties Agree?

The notion of a coalition government in Ontario has an academic interest, if nothing else. There are some old issues which once divided the parties, but no longer stand in the way. For example, Mr. Whitney, now acquiesces in the territorial rights of this Province over a large portion of what is known as New Ontario. He also acquiesces in Ontario's right of property in timber and minerals, and in rivers and streams. To be sure, the party he leads would have surrendered thesa provincial rights at one time, but it is quite disposed now to forget the incident, and even anxious that the public should forget it as well. He could be quite excused, also, if he did not insist on the abolition of the separate schools, the Opposition having renounced that policy before the campaign of 1898, and turned the Protestant horse out to pasture. Without much reproach he might consent to allow the municipalities to keep the money they got at the surplus distribution. To come down to less important matters, his party opposed the erection of the Normal Schools at London, and Ottawa, and the Asylum at Brockville, but as these things are done, Mr. Whitney could reasonably allow them to stand. It would be too late, also, to tear up the Algoma Central Railway tracks and cancel that "colossal steal." | He might even tolerate, without moral misgivings, the good roads commissioner, the municipal auditor, and the clerk of forestry, whose usefulness he once questioned. All these old issues Mr. Whitney could now sweep out of the way without many twinges of conscience. Still, the average Ontario elector, with the echoes of the last campaign in his ears, will be excused for thinking that there are some points of contact between the two parties which could hardly be smoothed down by a coaliprinciple dividing them, but there are they distinctly differed. For instance:

restoring it to the municipalities?

taxes on corporations?

extent the provincial revenue? These are points, none of which the present Government could surrender. The policy of an Opposition is usually some gain to their common sense.

The British Preference.

The Conservative party has always ence so far as to jeopardize or destroy home industries-exactly what the Liberal preferential tariff is doing. manufacture as did not come into dito throw our markets open in a spirit of recklessness which has practically way of becoming profitable to the men who had invested their all in its establishment. We refer to the cotton industry, which a few years ago gave employment to thousands of people in Ouebec, but the mills are now silent, His election methods are catching on the operators idle or out of the coundriven out by the competition of the cheap labor of Manchester whose looms supply the Canadian market under the Liberal preferential tariff.— -Victoria, B.C., Colonist.

Some one has been stuffing the Colonist. The Canadian cotton industry at the present time is flourishing. The mills are turning out more goods than ever before and the business is on a money-making basis. The Dominion Cotton Company is pouring out a tale of woe because it paid no dividends last year, but before Mr. Tarte takes the statements of the company as gospel, he might inquire to what extent the stock is watered and whether the management was not responsible for loading up with too much raw cotton when the price was higher than at present. Against the Colonist may be quoted the Hamilon Spectator, a Conservative paper, which said the other

"Canada has become quite a cotton manufacturing country, and few persons realize that 550,000 cotton spindles are running. Three of the mills are lo cated in Hamilton, and the trade in all of Canada is very prosperous and the mill owners are making money."

The attacks on the preferential tariff by the Conservative press are welcomed by Liberals as they dispose of two stock arguments-first, that the preference was designedly a sham; second, that the Liberals stole the tar-Iff policy of their predecessors. The Colonist keeps up the hypocritical pretense that the Conservative party in this country favor a genuine British preference. A tariff that shuts out all British goods which would compete with Canadian-made goods, is something that honesty could not call a preference. It would simply wipe out the bulk of British imports now enter-

Those who say that Mr. Ross is putting out a feeler on the coalition question do not know the man, Mr. Ross is a fighter and will fight the present battle to a finish. It will not be his finish, either.

It is quite possible that we could not improve upon the calibre of the men (teachers) employed by raising the salaries, and it is also probable that the amount of the salary does not in any way affect their performance of their duties .- St. Thomas Journal.

Has the scale of salaries in the public schools nothing to do with the teaching standard? There will be hardly a man left in the profession a change for the better, financially.

The exports of foodstuffs from the United States to Great Britain last year fell off greatly. Canadian exports of foodstuffs increased greatly. This merely shows that the United States market is consuming an increasing proportion of home-grown products. The day is hastening when Canada will be the chief food exporting country on this continent.

Australia repudiates the slur that she has been niggardly in providing for the representatives of royalty. Last year, the Governor-General and the Governors of the various states drew £137,676 in salaries. Additional expenses for their residences and their travel brought the total up to £156,476, or nearly $785,000. We fancy that is more than Canada would stand for.

Lieut. Morris, who was electrician on the United States battleship Maine, when it blew up in Havana harbor, has committed sucide. It is said that since that horror, something has preyed on his mind and he let it be understood that defective electric wiring was the real cause of the explosion. There was war but it is hardly right to say it was caused by a mine, as the American people were led to believe. The event precipitated the Spanish-American war but is hardly right to say it was the cause of the war, which the temper of both nations made inevitable. The incident of the Maine was the igniting

SOME UNEASINESS IN ZULULAND

Feeling Between Natives and Boers May Demand Intervention by Government.

Berlin, Sept. 19.—The Frankfort Gazette prints an interview with Mr. Reitz, the former Secretary of State of the Transvaal, who will not be allowed to return to South Africa because of a speech he made in Europe since the conclusion of peace. Mr. Reitz said: "My speech was misreported. I said I would never make friends with England while injustice endured. I have nothing against England and only condemn Secretary Chamberlain. Let the others return to our country. I will be friendly to England. The generals have chosen a policy of silence. I have been speaking out. We are friends, but I stand alone. How can Chamberlain make others responsible for my acts?' Mr. Reitz will sail for New York

Several European governments have caused it to be known in the most unmistakable manner they will tolerate no sort of anti-British demonstration. Brussels, Sept. 18.—The Boer reception committee here has received the following telegram from General Botha: "We shall be glad if you in-form the population of Brussels that we desire no anti-English demonstration to occur upon the occasion of our visit to Brussels, our mission non-political and purely charitable." Dr. Leyds, the Boer representative in Europe, has issued a denial of the report that the Boer generals, Botha, Dewet and Delarey, don their tour. He declares the generals to be in complete agreement with Complete Programme of Special Attractions Tonight - Stands Will Be Free.

The beautiful September weather which has marked the progress of the Western Fair, was broken yesterday afternoon by lowering clouds and showers of rain. It required some more formidable obstacle than threatening skies, however, to deter people from visiting the fair, and the attendance was entirely satisfactory. It was International Day, and thousands of out-of-town visitors inspected the

The special attractions in the afternoon and again in the evening attracted great crowds and were thoroughly enjoyed. There no longer exists any doubt in the minds of the board as to the success of this year's fair. The attendance figures compare very well with those of the best years on record.

Today is Everybody's Day, and despite the unfavorable weather, the particularly gratifying to them, is that attendance is again large. Tonight the complete programme of special attractions will be presented in front of the grand stand, admission to which will be free to everybody.

Despite the rain keen interest was manifested in the races yesterday afternoon. The results were as follows: | be the case, since the Carling Brewing

EXCELLENT EXHIBITS.

Carling's Elaborate Exhibit.

Carling's ales, porter and lager are shown at the great exhibition in style befitting this well-known and longestablished firm. Their display is one of the distinctive features of the main building. Carling's is a firm which regards no expense when it is a ques tion of presenting their famous goods to the public, and their admirable dis-play in the main building is one which reflects the utmost credit upon them and besides, is drawing the attention of thousands of visitors, to brews which have gained a widespread popularity. The trade of the Carling Company is daily increasing, until at the present time the full producing capacity of their immense brewery is taxed to its limit in the attempt to keep up with their orders. Their products are not simply holding their own in the intense competition of the present day, but are forging ahead at a rate which must be gratifying to the enterprising members of the Carling Company. One fact in connection with this which is the great care which is exercised in their brews has resulted in them gaining enviable reputations as household beverages, their porter especially having gained a high place in the esteem of physicians, who now invariably recommend it instead of the imported article. It is but natural that this should and Malting Company have a plant

On Feb. 6, 1900, the city council passed a bylaw providing fo the election of the council by general vote instead of by wards. On April 15, 1901, an amendment was made by 1. Edw VII., ch. 26, sec. 9, by adding to sec. 158 of the municipal act the following section: "158a. HE fact that so many lawyers, writers, preachers and thinkers are devoted to coffee has caused it to be called "the intellectual beverage." Coffee of high grade is unquestionably a great stimulant to brain-workers, and Chase & Sanborn's Coffee is especially valuable. If you would be a brilliant thinker, drink it. A pound of such coffee is worth two pounds of ordinary coffee! Why not give it a trial the next time you buy coffee?

Audrey Waldemar had always supposed herself to be independently rich. Not a thought or care had ever disturbed her regarding her future in a pecuniary way. Sherhad never known a need or wish that could not be gratified, and had always been as free and generous with her money as if her purse had deen income—her man of business had taken care of that—but she had never thought of being at all saving of it, since sike knew that each quarter would bring its gecustomed supply.

But of informed her that beyond a few hundred dollars she was penniless.

After remaining in New York three or four years, Audrey had resolved to sell her large estate in the country. She had tried going back there to spend a couple of summers, but somehow she felterly globay and lonely in the big house, and preferred to travel or visit some quiet mountain retreat during the warm weather. It semed all folly to keep the place and leave it shut up the year round, while, of course, it was a continual expense; so it had been sold and the proceeds invested in stocks.

All this was astounding news to her; she could not comprehend it, and was so disturbed that she could not decide upon what course to pursue.

"I suppose my railroad stock possesses little marketable value now," she said to Mr. Hosmer, her lawyer.

"Even if it could be sold, it would net but a very small sum just now."

"If I should dispose of it for what I could get, and take ten cents on the dollar for my bank stock, how much would all net me?" Audrey asked.

"Very little—so little that I hesitate to name the probable sum; less than you have been accustomed to spend in a year." he answered, reluctantly.

"And if I should let matters rest as they are, is it at all probable that they will better themselves in the future?"

"Barely possible. Indeed, I should say it is extremely doubtful. However, I feel somewhat sensitive, since I have been acting for you, and I will allow you five per cent more than their market value on your railroad stocks, and trust to luck in getting my money back."

"Well, I am not in a condition today to decide the matter," Audrey said, after thinking it over for a few moments."

When Rich came home she told him of the lawyer and let your doubtful shares rest and see if they will come to somely; so you can let your doubtful shares as a see if they will come to somely; so you can let your doubtful shares and see if they will come to sunding the put forth her arms around her boy's neck, dropped her graceful head upon his shoulder, and sobbed with all her minght.

Rich's arms crept about her wast and the two sat there speechless for the space of ten minutes.

"There!" Miss Waldemar at last said, raising her head, wiping her tears away and smilling, though it was a rather true to find out what there is in you."

"I am afraid you over-estimate my worth." Rich answered: "and just remember, please, that if there is anything really good in me. I owe it all to you. I believe if I could sell myself to give you back your fortune, I should be tempted to do it."

"Less than five hundred dollars Rich."
Miss Waldemar answered, sadly, and heaving a deep sigh as she realized how yerv little it was.

She had spent more than half that amount often upon a single costume.

"Why, Aunt Audrey! that is only half what you allowed me a year for spendment of furniture, found a young sirl ment of furniture, found a young sirl She had spent more than half that amount often upon a single costume.

"Why. Aunt Audrey! that is only half what you allowed me a year for spending money while I was in college," the young man exclaimed, a quick flush meunting to his brow.

"Don't imagine Rich, that I begrudge one penny of what has been expended upon you." Audrey returned, thinking he was making himself uncomfortable in yiew of what it had cost to educate him. "It is a great trial." she added, "and it will upset all our plans. I regret it most on your account, for I very much wanted you to have a year of travel

Again that crimson flush suffused Rich's face, but he made no reply and in a few moments he got up and left the house. in a few moments he got up and left the house.

He did not refer to the subject again for a day or two, though he noticed that Audrey often scanned his face questioningly, while she looked worn and anxious. The third day however, after receiving their ill tidings, he came into her presence with sparkling eyes and an animated countenance.

"I am ready to talk to you now Aunt Audrey, about our future," he said fondly and half playfully "and I shall want you to pay strict attention for I have constituted myself your man of business from this time on."

Audrev laid down her work, smiled at his eager manner, but did not make any reply, and he continued:

"I have had a long talk with Mr. Remington: I took the liberty to state our troubles plainly to him, and I find that he is also a loser by these same corporations, although not to such an extent. He advises you to wait—let everything rest just as it is, and he hopes that matters will right thomselves, at least in a measure, soon. That is what he is going to do."

"Yes: but. Rich, he doubtless has other resources; he can afford to wait; but it is what he is going to do."

"Not quite. Aunt Audrey." Rich said, eagerly. "You know." he went on, his face reddening, while he appeared considerably embarrassed "that you allowed me a thousand dollars a year while I was in college; but—forgive me for referring to it again—I could not forget that I was really only a poor, penniless waif, who, but for your bounty, would have had hard work to make his own way in the world. I knew that my other expenses were very heavy, and—my conscience wouldn't allow me to spend what you gave me. I saved all that I could without appearing mean, or compromising my Aunt Audrey's character for generosity. I invested it in a ank, and, dear Aunt Audrey, there a more than two thousand dollars to m credit there today. Of course, it is all yours, you dear, blessed woman," he went on gathering her with almost worshipful

THE LOUISVILLE INJUNCTION. Louisville, Ky., Sept. 18.-The injunction suit to prevent the prize fight between McGovern and Young Corbett here, Sept. 22, was argued before Judge Emmet Field today. The de-fendants presented an answer to the petition, in which they refuted all the allegations made by the attorney-general. Attorneys for each side were heard, and depositions taken yester-day were filed as evidence. GANS DEFEATS GARDNER.

Baltimore, Sept. 18 .- Joe Gans, the light-weight champion, knocked out Gus Gardner, of Philadelphia, last night before the Eureka Athletic Club in the fifth round of their 20round bout. The men weighed in at 138 pounds, out of light-weight class, according to agreement. During the according to agreement. During the first three rounds Gardner avoided the colored boy. In the fourth round Gans got to his man and landed a heavy left to the solar plexus, quickly crossing his right to the jaw. Gardner went down, took the count, and came up groggy. The gong saved him. In the groggy. The gong saved him. In the fifth round Gans landed three hard ones on the ribs, each time sending Gardner to the floor. After counting him out, Referee Charlie White assisted the Philadelphian to his feet, and at once solved all difficulties by proposing to rent a suite of rooms in some quiet, respectable locality and set up housekeeping on their own account.

This proposition was eagerly adopted by both Audrey and Rich, and, after a diligent search for a few days, they at last secured a suite of six rooms just adapted to their needs.

Audrey had reserved a good many things both weeful and ornermental when the and sent him to his corner.

THE TURF.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—In the Emulation steeplechase handicap over the short course at Hawthorne today, two of the four starters fell at the first jump and one of the other two, Crest, so far outclassed Falella that she finished ten lengths ahead. BRANTFORD FIRMS ARE BURNED OUT

Worst Fire the City Has Had for Years.

THREE FIREMEN WERE INJURED

Fire Blazing at 1 O'Clock This Morning-One Firm's Loss Placed at $70.000.

Brantford, Ont., Sept. 18.-Tonight Brantford experienced one of the worst fires it has had for many years. At 9:30 fire was discovered coming out of the third story windows in the brick building of the Snowdrift Company on Dalhousie street. The firemen responded promptly and put eight streams of water on, but the fire had too great headway before it was noticed. They no sooner sub-dued one place than it burst out in another, sometimes in the cellar and again in the third story. They could make no headway with it and an hour's hard fighting it burst through the roof.

Soon after this smoke was seen com-ing through the roof of the adjoining brick building of George Watts & Sons' wholesale store, corner of Dalhousie and King streets. It was not many minutes before there was a crash from the top of George Watts & Sons store, the roof fell in and the front of the third story fell out across the street, causing a stampede among the spectators.

FIREMEN HURT. With this wall falling out three firemen were more or less severely in-

Brantford, Sept. 19 .- At 1 a.m. the fire is still raging, but under control. R. M. Fullerton, proprietor of the Snowdrift Company, owns the building. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $30,000. He carries an insurance of $10,000 on the building and $5,-000 on the stock, which is a complete loss.

Geo. Watts & Sons, wholesale grocers, own their place. The loss or in-surance are not known. Roughly estimated it will be about $70,000. The building and stock are a complete loss. When the walls fell it took telephone and electric light wires down, and the city is in darkness, the power being

The fire started in the housekeeper's apartments on the ground floor, and within two hours the walls of the building had fallen. Mr. Rockfeller was not there. It is said that he is in Iowa. The explosion of an oil lamp is said to have started the fire. The house was situated on a hill about 500 feet high, and the fire department was practically powerless, as owing to the altitude, it was impossible to get any adequate water pressure.

Mr. Rockfeller bought the house about six years ago from Judge Wentworth, of New York. The house was plainly furnished. No one here tonight is able to give an estimate of the damage. The building itself was worth about $20,000.

William E. Devery, ex-chief of police of New York, who has won the contest for Democratic leadership in the ninth assembly district of that city, and incidentally sent into temporary oblivion John C.Sheehan, has been for several weeks the most talked-about man in the Empire State. This notoriety has been the result of the "food and drink campaign" made by the discredited and disgraced policeman, who has several times taken thousands of his constituents on summer outings and gorged them with beef and beer. His victory was gained by the loyalty of certain well-known elements in his district, and both Frank J. Goodwin, the present Tammany leader, whom he now displaces, and Sheehan, declare that "rank fraud" was responsible for their downfall. It is believed that if Devery seeks to represent his district in the coming Democratic state convention he will be thrown out. This prospect, however, is not worrying him. He declares that his ambition is satisfied. "I done the trick," he says. "I sent the soreheads back to the icedecks, where they belong.

On Joshua Nicholas being called to the stand, Washington Doxstator was sworn in as interpreter. Mr. Faulds said he objected to the employment of Washington Doxstator as an interpreter, as he believed Doxs-tator had been looking up evidence on the crown's behalf. Mr. Clute said that he had been informed by Crown Attorney Magee that Doxstator had not been employed in any capacity by the crown. Mr. Faulds asked that Mrs. Antone, one of the witnesses for the defense, knew what the truth was, and he would be called in to act as a check on Doxstator's interpretation. She had acted as interpreter for the crown at both witnesses, but he could not describe the inquest and the preliminary examinetion

Mr. Clute objected that Mrs. Antone had been employed by the defense in serving witnesses and looking up evidence.
Judge Lount considered that Doxstator was a competent interpreter, while he also held that Mrs. Antone, as a witness, could not be admitted to the room. Nicholas testified to being at Springbank with several other Indian boys on the night of June 21. They all went to Sharkey's hotel, where one of the men on the veranda got a bottle of whisky for an Indian in the party. A man, whom witness identified as the prisoner, came and took witness's bicycle, rode away on it and then came back. He gave witness the bicycle and then told him to get out and go home. A TRUE SAYING

'Most Men Dig Their Graves With Their Teath."

The wrong kind of food fills more graves than any other cause. It is easy to retain good health by the use of proper food, and it is pleasant, too. The Rev. G. M. Lodge, of Iowa City, Iowa, made a successful experiment.

"I am 65 years of age and a preacher. Last winter I went to Kansas and had charge of two churches. A little use of Grape-Nuts Food made me believe it to be a true brain and nerve builder: I wanted to experiment further with it, so I used Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper for more than three months, with the best results. I not only never had better health in my life, but the effect on my brain was wonderful. I had become forgetful of names and persons and things, was often unable to recall even the names of old friends. "After using Grape-Nuts for two weeks forgotten names came to me and as days and weeks passed my memory was wonderfully quickened as to names and dates, and mental ability in general. I could preach without manuscript or notes as never before, and in a month or less I said to myself. 'Grape-Nuts is a brain food, and I now recommend it.

also gives health and blood, nerve and muscle. Cheerfully and earnestly I advise students, clergymen, teachers and all mental workers to use Grape-Nuts steadily and systematicaly if you wish to excel in mental and literary work, renew your age and feel well. It is the best nerve and brain food I have ever known."
