QUARANTINE IS UNJUST

Farmers in Tilbury Are Losing Money Through Government Action

CLEMENTS ON THE CASE

Mr. H. S. Clements' indefatigable energy and activity have been directed during the last few days towards an earnest effort to relieve the farmers of Tilbury East, West and North, from certain Government restrictions under which they are working with a handicap, and are losing money every day—money which they have a perfect right to receive, and which farmers of other districts are receiving.

Mr. Clements, in a previous effort, was able to secure an increased duty on hogs, and as a result, the farmers of this province never received better prices for their hogs. This is Mr. Clements' opinion that what will work well as regards hogs will work well with every article of farm produce, and in this he has a good argument,—one in the interests of every farmer in the Dominion. However, it is with the question of hogs that the capable young member is most interested at present.

Some time ago, as is well known to this farming community, the Government placed a quarantine on hogs, on account of the prevalence, at that time, of hog cholera. These three townships of Tilbury East, West and North, were the first to be quarantined, and all of the hogs in these townships were killed off. In order to meet these expenses, the farmers in many cases had to sell their cattle for what they could get for them.

Ever since that time the quarantine restrictions have never been lifted, and at the present time no shipper can send out of this district any hogs whatever, unless in full car lots. Owing to the scarcity of the hogs it is difficult for a shipper to secure a full carload of hogs, and as a result, he cannot buy any at all. If it were permissible to send out half a car of hogs and the other half cattle, the most of the hogs could be purchased and shipped out. This could very easily and safely be done, according to the shippers, there has not been a case of hog cholera in Tilbury for two years.

The way it affects the farmers is that they are unable to sell their hogs when they want to, and when the prices are high. Two months ago buyers were giving from $7.00 to $7.50 per cwt. for hogs. If these farmers could have sold them they would have been able to make some money. They were unable to do so on account of these Government restrictions. Now they cannot get more than $6.00 or $6.10 for their hogs. So it will be seen that the loss on account of this quarantine is a serious one to the farmers. There is no disease there and the quarantine should, by all that is fair and just, be raised. The Government should not keep high-priced officials here to the detriment of the farmers, and they should use a little judgment.

Mr. Clements has written the department on the matter, explaining it in every detail, and urging immediate action. This is not the first time that Mr. Clements has taken this matter up with the people at Ottawa, but he is determined to keep at them until they see fit to do something towards relieving the farmers. There is no excuse for inaction in the present case, as it has been shown that there is no cholera in the district. If Mr. Clements can get the Government to at least allow shippers to ship half a carload of hogs with half a carload of cattle the trouble would be greatly alleviated.

Correspondent who Started Discussion On Spelling "Armory" Hits Back

ANSWERS ADJT. COLTART

A short time ago "A Citizen" in a letter to this journal objected to the spelling of "armoury" on the new public building on Tecumseh Park, claiming the "u" should not be used in the spelling. Adjt. W. A. Coltart defended the spelling as it appears on the new building—"armoury"—saying it was the military style of spelling the word. Our correspondent who started the discussion comes back with the following letter:

Editor Planet: Replying to my remarks about the spelling of "armoury" Capt. W. A. Coltart means, no doubt, that it is spelled that way in the civil service. He could have saved this "information" as I did not require it, having a slight knowledge of what terms the military have lent to the English. Seath says language requires to be (1) Reputable, that is according to usage of writers and speakers of acknowledged standing, (2) National, that is spoken by the many, not the few, (3) Recent, that is of the present day, not obsolete terms, or archaic modes. Now as to this word, Mr. Coltart spells it "armoury" in his own composition, but accepts directly into fault I have named above in trying to elude and to show that I can't spell. In the Bible I find armour, in Mason's grammar I find it, in the High school literature and history I find it, but in Gage's spelling I do not find it even in his Latin roots. I so far have been unable to find "armoury" in any of these books. Now if Mr. C. wishes to give others any information, how would it be if he would search it out in some dictionary which is taken as a standard. Look at Worcester's Unabridged. It will repay you, not only for the study of that word but for many more. It will not hurt my feelings if he finds it as he thinks it should be, but I shall keep on spelling it without the "u" as the "Haw-Hags" of military men.

Yours truly, CITIZEN.

SOVEREIGN BANK

A Branch is Opened Up in Village of Tilbury—A Serious Fire

E. E. DADSON APPOINTED

Says the Amherstburg Echo:

An explanation is due the Public school ratepayers who had been led to believe that A. D. Norris, B. A. of Eppingham, would take charge Tuesday as principal. Mr. Norris' application was received with others, and he was the second choice for principal. E. E. Dadson, the present principal, being first.

The Board succeeded in landing Mr. Dadson, who took charge Tuesday. E. E. Dadson mentioned above is a former Union boy, son of John Dadson, of that place. He at one time was principal of the Wallaceburg Public school.

RECEPTION AT THE CENTRAL

Parents Visit The School And Are Delighted With The Entertainment

BUILDING IS IMPROVED

By all means the most satisfactory and successful function which has ever been held in the Central school building.—Principal J. W. Plewes.

Yesterday was reception day at the Central school, when the parents of the children paid a visit to the institution, and were shown through the various rooms which have been recently renovated and vastly improved in appearance. Such an occasion proves a source of great pleasure both to the parents and the children. It is a novelty and at the same time an encouragement for the children to see their fathers or mothers present, and the parents are just as delighted to be present with their children for a few hours.

Appropriate arrangements had been made for the event, and no detail that would add to its success was forgotten. Five hundred guide cards for the convenience of the visitors had been prepared, but the crowd proved so large that the cards gave out early in the afternoon.

When the visitors arrived, the pupils were at work in the various rooms. For instance: in one room they might be seen engaged in raffia work, in another clay work, in others cardboard and watercoloring work, and so on.

Lunch was served in the kindergarten on a new and unique plan, four being seated to each table.

As the visitors arrived at the school each group was taken in charge by a Model student or a kindergarten assistant, the whole eighty of whom were kept busy all afternoon. The visitors were taken through the various rooms, and the teachers of each of these explained the work the class was doing, and the scheme of decoration used in each particular room. The guests of the day were also taken through the basement, and shown the playrooms there, and the ventilating apparatus. Afterwards they gathered in the corridors, while school was dismissed, and after a short intermission school reassembled, exemplifying the rapid and orderly system in which the pupils of this school are dismissed and reassembled. The pupils later assembled in the lower hall, where they sang several songs and were addressed by Rev. Dr. J. R. Battisby, who with his usual ability delivered a discourse quite appropriate to the occasion.

Rev. Dr. Battisby, who for the past quarter of a century or over has been interested and taken an active part in the educational government of this city, expressed his most unbounded pleasure at being present on this occasion, and his appreciation and satisfaction with what he had seen during the afternoon. He was especially pleased with the improvements which he noted in the school, the cleanliness and the splendid system which prevailed.

Principal Plewes in a short address thanked the parents and others for their attendance at the event, after which school was dismissed. The teachers were roundly complimented and congratulated on the excellence of the day's program.

Excellent music was supplied during the afternoon by Dr. DeCowan's orchestra.

WALKED OFF MOVING TRAIN

Joseph Livingston Of Harwich Experiences Narrow Escape From Death

HE WAS SOUND ASLEEP

Joseph Livingston, a prominent and greatly respected farmer, of Harwich township, had an experience Thursday night coming from London, which he is not very anxious to have for some time again, and which nearly cost him his life.

Mr. Livingston visited the London Fair on Thursday, and coming home he was tired out after tramping around all day, and fell asleep on the train, which was one of the late ones on the C. P. R. The station he wished to get off at was either Vosburg or Northwood. Both were an equal distance from his farm. He asked the conductor which one he would get off at, and the conductor told him that he would stop at Vosburg for him. It was after midnight when the train got to Vosburg.

H. S. Clements, M. P., and George Maynell were returning home on the same train and were sitting in the next seat to Mr. Livingston. When the train was nearing the station of Vosburg, Mr. Livingston, who was still asleep, felt the cars slackening up, and he got up from his seat, and, walking to the back of the train, stepped off the car when the train was running at the rate of 25 miles an hour.

The train was stopped, an back-ed up to find Mr. Livingston. When he was found, he was lying down on the side of the track in a dazed condition, but fortunately he fell on a gravel pile, and did not receive any serious injuries. His face was bruised and his clothing torn, but otherwise he was not injured, and no bones were broken. He did not remember getting up or walking off the train. The first thing he knew after he went asleep was striking the gravel pile. Then he could not realize where he was or how he got there. He is in the habit of sometimes walking in his sleep.

He was brought on to Chatham and stayed with Mr. Clements all night, and was able to return home in the morning. It was one case in a thousand where a man could fall off a train and get off without being killed.

BETTER THAN I O. U.

J. C. Stewart's Merry Musical Farce, "The Two Johns," play the Brisco Opera House on Tuesday next, and seats go on sale Monday morning.

This is a show similar to Kolb & Dill, in I. O. U., which played Chatham last season, and those who have seen both productions claim the Two Johns the better show.

The theatre will be crowded, as next Tuesday's play is already the talk of the city.

"WHAT'S the matter, Charles?" asked Mrs. Raymond. "I am angry enough to break all the bones in my body," he replied. "I am disappointed."

"But why are you disappointed?" inquired his mother. "Oh, well, I don't know—only I had set my heart upon the appointment, and I had worked so hard for it."

"You say you do not know really why you are disappointed?" "Well, perhaps you really don't know because you never bother analyzing your emotions or feelings."

The New Petticoats and Slips

Rose Quillings Set on the Usual Circular Flounce

A NEW edition of the silk petticoat with a flange flounce has come out, as fascinating a bit of daintiness as ever could be imagined.

Up to now such petticoats have been in all-white, or perhaps a white flounce with a pale shade of a color. But these new ones are of pale blue or pink or lavender, with the flounce exactly the same tone, but made of the sheerest, most exquisite handkerchief linen, perhaps sewed to the foundation, more probably joined by running ribbon through strong (but dainty) beadings on the top of the flounce and the skirt itself.

They make the prettiest sort of slip petticoats, the soft flounce—its shape very full—making a pretty pile of fluff to hold the hem of the skirt out well. Of course, a flounce of the silk is under them, as in the case of those of white.

Princess petticoats are a natural outcome of princess slippers, and even Empires. They are cut high—some of them as high as a corset skirt—and fitted perfectly so that the gown to be worn over them, if princess, may fit without a wrinkle. If Empire, may fall in a beautiful, graceful drape that will not in no way, and that a badly fitted slip transforms into a hopeless affair. Even a close-fitting skirt fits better if it is worn over such a petticoat, instead of showing a break in the lines.

And princess slippers, to wear with one-piece summer dresses, are an absolute necessity. They are made with a sheer gown to show the line where petticoat and corset cover meet. But they must be very well made, and be good.

The princess petticoats and those of delicate color with a flange flounce to match are the newest things in petticoats. Everything else is simply changes rung upon the same well-known themes. The trick of setting rose quillings upon every other one of the tiny divisions which make up a circular flounce, for instance, results in a flounce that holds out the dress skirt a great deal better.

The craze for peacock colorings has its echo in one petticoat which is mysterious. It is made of three colors, and shades into the richest, most burnished blues and greens.

When our grandmothers went to bed, they packed their modest belongings in striped drawers, and for an extra long journey, stowed them away in a little leather trunk scarcely as big as a modern hat-box.

Not so their granddaughters, reared in the luxury-loving twentieth century. At the turn of the century, they had even more to pack, and they had to take them to a week-end party at a nearby country house, or to a distant city, or to a distant country.

Naturally, since the up-to-date young woman has grown so dependent upon externals, there has been a surprising evolution in trunk and bag. Today's trunk is a masterpiece of convenience, and the higher priced ones are a real boon to their adaptability to the needs of the modern traveler.

There is no excuse for these days for crumpled blouses, wrinkled skirts or faded hats at a journey's end. Blouses have their own special, shallow trays to do away with the treading to the bottom of a huge Saratoga for some pet waist.

Skirts can be strapped at full length in separate compartments. As for hats, there is a special division at one end, divided into three or four flannel-lined boxes, for shoes, while above there is a narrow box for gloves.

Handbags, also, are fitted out with all the necessities for a full toilet, from a toothbrush to a hairbrush. True, besides being expensive, these bags when filled are almost unbearable; but it is certainly delightful in theory to have a bag stocked and ready for the most unexpected emergency.

In addition to these regulation trunk and bag furnishings, there are innumerable little contrivances—many of them made-up by which every traveler can take to her comfort when on the road.

An Adjustable Liner Flounce on a Silk Petticoat

Rose quillings of Scotch plaid in exactly the same colorings are set on the flounce, and make the petticoat into a very unusual, yet very quiet, thing.

Of course, there are wonderful, gorgeous affairs, too rich or elaborate to wear with anything but a very sumptuous gown; and styles which look like a flange flounce, but are really a flange flounce, for instance, results in a flounce that holds out the dress skirt a great deal better.

A Carved Amethyst for the Centre Stone

NOT for years has the wearing of jewelry amounted to the positive fact that it is this year. Old-fashioned styles vie with new, exquisite bits, with new beauties and new uses for semi-precious stones discovered every little while.

Necklaces lead in popularity, every kind, from the many versions of "reef" necklaces, to barbaric-looking things of heavy beads of amber, and even of jet, being worn. Some, as quaint as can be, are made of garnets, the stones grouped to form flowers or stars and swung from fine little chains.

Silver collars, made to fit high about the throat, are moulded in oriental designs, and show curiously carved stones set in by way of decoration. And slim gold chains have pendants, delicately enameled, from which dangles a single jewel, shaped like a tear-drop—the sort of pendant that is called "the Valliere" after the beautiful woman who, during the time of Louis XIV, for a little while queened it over the gay French court.

Amber beads are the greatest innovation, in spite of the fact that Paris has been enthusing so heartily over amber all spring. The surprise is not so much in the use of amber as in the size of the beads—best liked, for they are as big as long white grapes, and besides the clear kind there are beads which are quite opaque, with milky streaks shot through.

An occasional necklace looks as though it might have been dug up from the ruins of old palaces, so perfectly has the old style been repeated, while in another the graceful, swirling lines of art nouveau may be apparent—a couple of mermaids clasping hands about a great pearl, for instance, or an orchid, enameled in a pale iridescence, with an opal which glows and deepens in the very heart of it.

Collar-like blouses have brought about certain necklace styles, as inevitably as short sleeves have accomplished a sweeping revival of bracelets. And many a woman for whom the collarless blouse is a little trying finds it possible to soften the hard little line at the base of the throat by a collar of silver or gold.

Bracelets are almost as popular as necklaces—more so, some people say. Bangles bracelets are oftenest worn, varying in width from wide, flat bands to delicate, finely finished, with that queer greenish tinge which is always so distinctive to some no thicker than a wedding ring. Copies of some old styles show horseshoes, the ends left open; or bars, apparently crude and unfinished, which have been bent to form a circle, but an incomplete one.

The old engagement bracelet has gone its way. Its successor being much more satisfactory, although it looks exactly like the other, older style. But the new ones can be taken off without having them filed off—a tiny hole near the clasp permits a pin to be inserted, which releases the spring again.

But the loveliest of all the new bracelets is one of two narrow gold bars, held together by tiny figures of gold, each inset with a diamond. Quaint silver bracelets are set with great carved stones—amethysts or chrysoprase or turquoise, or any one of the other popular stones—an occasional bracelet set with two, three or even four different stones.

Buckles are legion, some of them so laden with stones that very little of the setting is to be seen; but the more popular ones are those flat ones of silver or gold, left perfectly plain for the engraving of the wearer's initials, or engraved in a simple all-over design. Most of them are made to buckle, but a number are really no more than giant brooches in buckle shape.

In brooches, floral designs dominate the eye, and enamel shows new iridescent effects. But a thousand and one new pins have come out, in sets for blouses, plain or enameled, or set with stones (like the "eye" in a peacock's feathers), and the long pins which the young girl uses to fasten her ribbon bow, usually take the form of riding whips or crops, or a golf stick or two.

Earrings have gained in popularity a little, but only the screw earrings are popular ones are those flat ones of silver or gold, left perfectly plain for the engraving of the wearer's initials, or engraved in a simple all-over design. A Jewelled Pin-Buckle

NOT for years has the wearing of jewelry amounted to the positive fact that it is this year. Old-fashioned styles vie with new, exquisite bits, with new beauties and new uses for semi-precious stones discovered every little while.

Necklaces lead in popularity, every kind, from the many versions of "reef" necklaces, to barbaric-looking things of heavy beads of amber, and even of jet, being worn. Some, as quaint as can be, are made of garnets, the stones grouped to form flowers or stars and swung from fine little chains.

Silver collars, made to fit high about the throat, are moulded in oriental designs, and show curiously carved stones set in by way of decoration. And slim gold chains have pendants, delicately enameled, from which dangles a single jewel, shaped like a tear-drop—the sort of pendant that is called "the Valliere" after the beautiful woman who, during the time of Louis XIV, for a little while queened it over the gay French court.

Amber beads are the greatest innovation, in spite of the fact that Paris has been enthusing so heartily over amber all spring. The surprise is not so much in the use of amber as in the size of the beads—best liked, for they are as big as long white grapes, and besides the clear kind there are beads which are quite opaque, with milky streaks shot through.

An occasional necklace looks as though it might have been dug up from the ruins of old palaces, so perfectly has the old style been repeated, while in another the graceful, swirling lines of art nouveau may be apparent—a couple of mermaids clasping hands about a great pearl, for instance, or an orchid, enameled in a pale iridescence, with an opal which glows and deepens in the very heart of it.

Collar-like blouses have brought about certain necklace styles, as inevitably as short sleeves have accomplished a sweeping revival of bracelets. And many a woman for whom the collarless blouse is a little trying finds it possible to soften the hard little line at the base of the throat by a collar of silver or gold.

Bracelets are almost as popular as necklaces—more so, some people say. Bangles bracelets are oftenest worn, varying in width from wide, flat bands to delicate, finely finished, with that queer greenish tinge which is always so distinctive to some no thicker than a wedding ring. Copies of some old styles show horseshoes, the ends left open; or bars, apparently crude and unfinished, which have been bent to form a circle, but an incomplete one.

The old engagement bracelet has gone its way. Its successor being much more satisfactory, although it looks exactly like the other, older style. But the new ones can be taken off without having them filed off—a tiny hole near the clasp permits a pin to be inserted, which releases the spring again.

Effective Flower Decorations

JAPANESE dogwood, with its deep pink blossoms, makes the most effective sort of floral decoration. The branches should be rather large, to show off the curious bare branches, with the flowers scored out in the flat, effective way which appeals so strongly to the artistic sense.

Clover blossoms, a pretty, if somewhat subdued, luncheon flower, especially if you are entertaining in the country and have a touch of all outdoors to your table.

Wild roses—soon to be with us—almost literally droop old while you wait, which is a pity, for almost nothing else decorates with a certain wild grace which is at once redolent of the fields and yet expressive of highways even more than of lawns.

The wild flower season is, at best, short and it's well worth taking advantage of while you can, if only to give your table an air of difference from the more usual decoration of hot-house flowers.

Buttercups and daisies, great ox-eyed daisies, with their deep yellow petals, asters and goldenrod in the field, and after them the whole rare harvest of autumn-painted leaves and delicate vines—the seasons yield up a world of variety for the following, and choosing.

Covering Glasses

IN these days of microbes the careful woman never lets liquid stand uncovered for a moment, since it is well known that both milk and water quickly absorb impurities from the air.

When the liquid is in fairly large quantities in pitcher or water bottle, the covering presents few difficulties, but often it is necessary to leave a glass half full, or medicine must be kept over night, a butter plate is simply slipped, bottom down, into the top of the glass, resting on the edge.

The ordinary butter plate just fits exactly most glasses in common use, and keeps the contents perfectly airtight.

She keeps about a dozen or more of the butter dishes—the latest white variety—in convenient places, half in her medicine cupboard, the rest stowed away in different rooms. Thus, when any one is ill or a glass of milk is to be kept over night, a butter plate is simply slipped, bottom down, into the top of the glass, resting on the edge.

The ordinary butter plate just fits exactly most glasses in common use, and keeps the contents perfectly airtight.

Workbags of Flowered Ribbon

THE prettiest, daintiest workbags for summer pick-up work are made of the widest ribbons, with a half misty flower designed by way of decoration.

A yard and a quarter of six-inch wide ribbon is enough for a bag, and is cut into four strips of equal length. Both of the outer corners are finished with the least of heels. The four strips are then laid together, so that the heads of each come against the selvage side of another, and sewed. Then you have a shape that is something like a square, with a small triangle at the top.

That square forms the base, which, unlike the majority of bags, is left unstiffened. Then the strips are joined by oversewing, which leaves the four ends forming blunt points. A narrow ribbon is sewed inside for a casing, through which the draw ribbons are run.

And another kind, even more unusual, is made of three strips, each cut fourteen inches long, and sewed upon it, three-cornered. Ribbon-covered base. Each panel-like strip ends in a sort of loop, and the openings for the draw ribbons are made one at the joining point of two ribbons, the other directly in the middle of the panel opposite.

Convenient Closets

FOR the woman whose closet and drawer space is meagre, the little three-cornered cupboard, tucked away in odd corners, are a boon. Under the stairs one of these cupboards can be built in such a way as to seem but a continuation of the stair line, yet roomy and just the place for the children's rubbers and such wandering things.

A little cupboard put up in a corner of the bathroom keeps fresh towels conveniently at hand, and provides a place for the apparently endless array of little things which otherwise crowd shelf or deep window sill or washstand. Even the three-cornered cupboards can be built well enough to turn out a very creditable little cupboard, or painted and enameled, to match the rest of the woodwork.

These old-fashioned odd bookcases are sometimes set—sometimes just a shelf or two, joined by a graceful little curve of wood at the outer corners. These "columns" can be "turned" at almost any carpenter shop, the cost being trifling.

For a room with white woodwork these shelf bookcases are particularly attractive. One of these corner closets should be put in your wing room, and another in your big, roomy closet already in it. The little things the sewing machine drawers are made one at the joining point of two ribbons, the other directly in the middle of the panel opposite.

RECKLESS EXPENDITURE.

If Premier Laurier and his Government think that they are fooling the people with their mismanagement of affairs at Ottawa, they are badly mistaken, and the awakening time will surely come. This was plainly demonstrated at the annual meeting of the Western Conservative Association, held in London on Thursday.

At this meeting certain resolutions were passed which clearly indicate the attitude of all true Conservatives towards the extravagance of the Laurier Administration, as shown by their own reports. In justice to the fair-minded Liberals, it is only fair to say that they, too, are by no means in accord with the actions of Laurier and his parliamentary followers.

The convention at London was a most successful one, and it is safe to say that the Conservatives never had a brighter outlook before than now. They were ever better equipped for a political contest. If Mr. Clements is correct in surmising that an election will be brought on early, it will find the Conservative party willing and waiting. This feeling was predominant throughout the meeting.

A special committee reported the following two resolutions, which were adopted unanimously. The wording of the resolutions is indicative of the high stand taken in public affairs by the Conservative party:

Moved by Mr. E. W. Wilson, of Ridgeway, and seconded by Mr. Wm. Campbell, of Goderich, that this association desires to express its confidence in the Ontario Government and congratulate Mr. Whitney and his colleagues on their able and fearless legislation during their short term of office, and trust that they will continue to legislate in the interest of the people of Ontario.

Moved by Dr. Steel, of Tavistock, seconded by Mr. J. M. Clark, of Tillsonburg:

"Owing to the bountiful harvests and the great demand and high prices of farm produce for the past five years Canada has had an unprecedented period of prosperity, but judging the future by the past periods of inflation which have been followed by periods of depression.

1. "Therefore we, as the Western Conservative Association of Ontario, cannot fail to view with alarm the rapid increase of the public debt, also the enormous increase of the annual expenditure from $40,000,000 in 1896 to $90,000,000 in 1906, or an increase of over 100 per cent. in nine years, while the population of the Dominion has only increased 20 per cent. during the same period.

2. "That we also deplore the gross and unprecedented corruption of the present Dominion Government in the management of our public affairs, whereby immense tracts of public lands have been granted to their personal followers, as private individuals and corporations, who have become rich by reason of those concessions, which should have been conserved to the public benefit.

3. "We also deplore the gross corruption in the expenditure of public moneys of the Dominion Government as was revealed by the different parliamentary committees during the last session, which has brought disgrace on the fair name of Canada, not only in Canada, but in foreign countries.

4. "That this association re-affirm our confidence in Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative party in the Dominion and promise him our loyal and undivided support in his campaign for clean elections, economy of expenditure and progressive legislation, which will be in the interests of the people of the Dominion."

Mr. Marshall, the Conservative candidate in East Egin, is a splendid Canadian, a fine business man, and a friend of everybody in the riding. The Liberal machine, instead of opposing him on public grounds, has opened up a rancorous personal campaign. It has attacked him unfairly in his business, and has tried to make out that he is a species of rascal. So disgusted has the form of assault become that strong protests have been entertained against it. The Aylmer Sun, Independent, says that the attempt to steal the good name of a citizen simply because he has entered politics is intolerable, and cannot be endured. It seems clear that if the personal attack be kept up Mr. Marshall's majority will be enormous.

Why should not every school have a swimming bath like the Sarsfield school? The length of our winter and the great cost of land are given as the reasons why our schools have no playgrounds—a very regrettable fact. Neither of these objections applies to the present proposal, as every school has space under it that might be so used, and there is no more wholesome or more useful bodily exercise than swimming. It would, of course, require unceasing supervision, but is that not true of all school sports. With a good master's presence, sympathy and guidance, the playground might furnish a very valuable—perhaps the most valuable—part of education.—Montreal Witness.

The watchword of the Conservative party should be clean elections and merciless punishment of the briber and ballot forger. It is not enough to cry "clean elections." There are two other essentials, viz., to run clean elections and to punish corruption or fraud by every means known to the law, and that law must be made simpler and easier of enforcement. Opportunities for delay and petty technicalities, which accompany and surround the present law, must be abolished. It is idle that there should be any question about the service of a petition upon any person who has been returned as a member of Parliament. The filing of such a petition in the court and a short public advertisement as notice to the constituency should be sufficient.—Mr. R. L. Borden, at Truro.

NOT LIKE GOOD OLD DAYS.
Mail and Empire.
"Pull is dead" in Ontario, and the day when the grafter could make off with a water power without conditions is gone forever. This is the secret of the screams of the Toronto Globe at the people.

A REGULAR HAPPY HOOLIGAN.
Montreal Gazette.
It is announced that the appointment of Mr. W. T. R. Preston as commercial agent to Japan and China has been formally sanctioned. Mr. Preston's pull in the Laurier Government is something immense. He has never been in any place but he has done something to discredit it, and he has never got out of one place but to go to a better one.

THE REAL LINCOLN
He was Not Homely, and He Was Not Slovenly in Dress.
For many years it has been the fashion to call Mr. Lincoln homely. He was very tall and very thin. His eyes were deep sunken, his skin of a yellow pallor, his hair coarse, black and unruly. Yet he was neither unattractive nor awkward nor ugly. His large features fitted his large frame, and his large hands and feet were but right on a body that measured six feet four inches. He was a sad and thoughtful face, and from boyhood he had carried a load of care. It is small wonder that when alone or absorbed in thought the face should take on deep lines, the eyes appear as if seeing something beyond the vision of other men and the shoulders stoop as though they, too, were bearing a weight. But in a moment all would be changed. The deep eyes would flash or twinkle merrily with humor or look out from under overhanging brows as they did upon the Five Points children in kindliest gentleness. So, too, in public speaking, when his tall body rose to its full height, with head thrown back and his face transfigured with the fire and earnestness of his thought, he would answer Douglas in the high, clear tenor that came to him in the heat of debate, carrying his ideas so far out over listening crowds. And later, during the years of war, when he pronounced with noble gravity the words of his famous address, not one in the throngs that heard him could truly say that he was other than a handsome man.

It has been the fashion, too, to say that he was slovenly and careless in his dress. This also is a mistake. His clothes could not fit smoothly on his gaunt and bony frame. He was no tailor's figure of a man, but from the first he clothed himself as well as his means allowed and in the fashion of the time and place.

In reading the grotesque stories of his boyhood, of the tall strapping whose trousers left exposed a length of shin, it must be remembered not only how poor he was, but that he lived on the frontier, where other boys, less poor, were scarcely better clad. In Vandalia the blue jeans he wore were the dress of his companions as well, and later, from Springfield days on, clear through his presidency, his costume was the usual suit of black broadcloth, carefully made and scrupulously neat. He cared nothing for style. It did not matter to him whether the man with whom he talked wore a coat of the latest cut or owned no coat at all. It was the man inside the coat that interested him.—Helen Nicolay in St. Nicholas.

Hot Weather HEADACHES

Tablets, powders, drugs, of any kind will NOT cure headaches. Simply because they never reach the CAUSE of the headache.

What causes headaches? Poisoned blood, always.

How a Firm of Architects Got Its Name on a Building.

Close observation on the part of a newspaper man in Boston several years ago revealed a striking device employed by the firm of McKim, Mead & White, the noted New York architects, of which Stanford White, who was murdered by Harry K. Thaw in New York recently, was a member.

The device, says the Bostonian, was a name in the form of a building. As may be observed, the arrangement of letters in the name was a double battle, somewhat like the battle of Waterloo, and the name was placed on the Boston Public Library. As may be observed, the arrangement of letters in the name was a double battle, somewhat like the battle of Waterloo, and the name was placed on the Boston Public Library.

These names, through their initials, formed the first part of the acronym, spelling plainly "McKim." A slight space appeared before the next list of names, which was:

McKim, Mead & White.

The initials of these names brought out the second name of the firm, "Mead." Another slight space, and the following names appeared:

McKim, Mead & White.

Here was the name "White" also engraved, the whole device bringing out the firm name of "McKim, Mead & White" in connection with the world-famed men. It was in 1890, just before the building was completed, that the discovery was made and published. The list of names was changed.

AULD LANG SYNE

FROM PLANET FILES OF HALF A CENTURY AGO

From The Planet Files from July 13, 1865, to July 20, 1865.

A reception and complimentary supper was given by the Corporation of the Town of Chatham to the returned Chatham volunteers, who, during the previous two months or more, had been doing active frontier service at Sherbrooke, Que. Immediately upon the arrival of the Volunteers, the ladies of Chatham presented Captain Smith with a very beautiful flag, accompanied by an address, which was read, in the absence of Miss Tinsman, by Miss Forsyth.

The colored people of the city were making preparations for the celebration of Emancipation Day at Sandwich.

A disaster occurred, destroying the double tenement, two storey building, owned by Mr. P. Brady and occupied by himself and Mr. T. Draper, miller for Mr. Robt. Lowe, of the Kent Mills. The fire was thought to have been the work of an incendiary. The total loss was estimated to be in the neighborhood of $2,000.

A Planet representative visited the fruit orchard of Mr. John Baxter, Gael St., and was shown a record crop of gooseberries grown by that gentleman.

Mention was made of a railway accident between Falk Line and London, Eng. Charles Dickens, the author, was among those on the ill-fated train. He lost his hat, but otherwise escaped injury. The Planet made the prophecy that Mr. Dickens would write something prophetic about it. The prophecy proved true, as an account of this very wreck, culled from Dickens' diary, appeared in a recent issue of one of the current magazines.

An advertisement appeared stating that the Sunday Magazine was for sale at P. C. Allan's Postoffice Bookstore and Robert Cooper's Telegraph Bookstore.

"Fire—Last Wednesday evening, at about nine o'clock, a fire was discovered issuing from near the cupola of Hyslop & Ronald's machine shop. The fire bells were at once sounded, and the Chatham Fire Department quickly mastered on the spot, and the flames were quenched before any great damage was done."

An oil well had been sunk at the village of Thamesville to a depth of 420 feet, but had been at a standstill for 10 days, waiting for a supply of tubing, which was daily expected. The indications of oil were still reported to be good, and the report proceeds, "the villagers are sanguine that once they strike oil they will go ahead of Bothwell."

Fall wheat was reported to be a good crop, but the spring crop was reported to be quite the reverse. The general tone of news seemed to indicate that times were not so very good at the date at which this issue was printed. Speculators and brokers were hoping daily for a rise in prices.

An interview appeared from Mr. J. R. Berthelet, of Chatham, who had just returned from a trip to Quebec, and who was intending to leave shortly for Manitoulin.

An emigrant ship was burned on the banks of Newfoundland. Four hundred lives were lost.

IT IMPARTS STRENGTH.

Just think of the enormous strengthening power Ferrozene possesses—consider what it did for H. V. Potter, well known in Kingston. "I was subject to spells of dizziness. For eight months I had intense pain in my right side between the shoulders. I was almost insensible when I awoke and lack of vigor. Often I scarcely ate any breakfast and felt miserable all day. Nervous, easily excited, troubled with heart weakness, I was in bad shape. Ferrozene restored and nourished me back to health in a short order." Whatever your weakness may be Ferrozene will cure. IT CREEPS LIKE A SERPENT.
Steals through the system like a thief in the night. That's how catarrh acts. Don't trifle with such a scourge. Don't experiment with a doubtful treatment. Time and experience prove that Catarrhazone does cure. It gives quick relief and so thoroughly destroys the disease, that it dies forever. Get Catarrhazone in the first place and your cure is assured. In 25c. and $1.00 sizes at all dealers and guaranteed in every case.

Manners.
Manners are of more importance than laws. Upon them, in a great measure, the laws depend. The law touches them but here and there, now and then, Manners are what vex or soothe, corrupt or purify, exalt or debase, barbarize or refine us, by a constant, steady, uniform, insensible operation like that of the air we breathe in. They give their whole form and color to our lives. According to their quality, they aid morals, they supply them or they totally destroy them.—Burke.

CATARRH CANNOT BE CURED.
With local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease, Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

GAVE HIM
AN ADDRESS

Dr. Thornton Honored By Members of West Kent
Conservative Association.

A VALUABLE MAN GONE

A large and representative gathering of Conservatives assembled in Herbers Clements' rooms in the Victoria Block last evening, and honored the President of the West Kent Conservative Association, Dr. A. W. Thornton, by presenting him with an address and gold-headed cane, suitably engraved. As is generally known, the doctor has already taken up his residence in Toronto, and he is at present moving his family there.

Among those who were present were, Ald. Potter, who acted as chairman, Mayor Marshall, Ald. Austin and Sculford, and many other representative Chathamites. Every one expressed regret at the doctor's removal, and realized that the local association has lost one of its most valuable orators and workers. Mr. Clements made the presentation, and S. B. Arnold read the address, which was as follows:

To A. W. Thornton, President W. K. L. C. Association:

The members of the West Kent Liberal Conservative Association desire on this occasion of your departure from this city and county, to enter upon a larger field where more honors may be won in your chosen profession, to convey to you our expressions of appreciation of the work you have done in the political arena of this county whilst you have held the position of President of the Association, and before we feel that your work has been done fearlessly, honestly and unselfishly, and we appreciate the sacrifices you have made in the interest of the cause of the party.

As a token of this respect and appreciation we present you with this cane and umbrella. We all hope you will be prosperous and successful in the future, and that you will continue to exercise the same power for good and influence for clean methods in politics in the future as you have in the past.

A VERY FINE CUP

Football Boys Will Have Valuable
Trophy To Play For—Gift Of H.
S. Clements M. P.

There will be a keen competition for football supremacy in the County of Kent this fall, by all indications, and some interesting games may be looked forward to during a series of games which will be arranged for as soon as possible.

To add to the zest and enthusiasm, Mr. Herbert S. Clements has presented a handsome trophy to be contested for in this county in the shape of a large silver cup. The cup is gold-lined, is about a foot and a half high, and stands on an ebony base. It is one of the finest ever offered for a contest of this kind in the county, and is engraved with the words, "Clements Trophy. Presented by Herbert Clements, to be contested for by the football teams of Kent Co."

This fine trophy is at present on exhibition in the window of Mr. E. J. MacIntyre's jewelry store.

STARTED HIS

The Provincial Inspector of Schools Visits The Best
Institutions First

ON CONTINUATION WORK

M. R. H. Cowley, M. A., of Ottawa, the newly appointed Provincial Inspector of Continuation Classes, returned to the east yesterday afternoon, after having spent the whole week with Inspector Coles, among his schools. The purpose of the Government in appointing such an official is that a uniform standard may be secured in all Continuation schools, which the Minister of Education is anxious to have supported as being the schools of the majority of our people, and also to bring these schools more directly in touch with the Education Department.

Inspector Cowley stated that he began his tour of inspection at a great distance from his headquarters because of the high reputation which the schools of Kent County have attained. He inspected the Continuation Classes in Bothwell, Blenheim, Guidre, No. 13-12 Harwich, No. 4 Harwich, Dresden, Wallaceburg, Highgate, Palmyra and Thamesville, and after his inspection he stated that he does not expect to find as good Continuation Classes in any other Inspectorate in the Province.

Inspector Cowley expressed himself as greatly pleased with the substantial character of our school buildings, and he considers the Chas. Gerow school at Raglan the best rural school building that he has seen and a great credit to the architects, J. L. Wilson & Son.

At Wallaceburg the trustees procured carriages and showed the inspectors the town and its chief industries, and entertained them at a banquet in the new Empire Hotel, at which were present Chairman McDougall and the other members of the School Board, Mayor Stonehouse, T. B. Dundas, Esq., Commissioner Somers, Principal Dickenson, H. McPherson, Esq., and many other prominent citizens. Excellent addresses were made by Chairman McDougall, Mayor Stonehouse, Commissioner Somers, Principal Dickenson and the inspectors.

Inspector Cowley is an eloquent speaker and shows a thorough knowledge of educational affairs. He made a very happy hit at Wallaceburg when he said, "I have been very much interested in your fine industries, especially your sugar factory and your glass factory. Matthew Arnold says that sweetness and light are the characteristics of a cultured mind, and this is well borne out by your zeal for education and the excellent manner in which your schools are being conducted." Wallaceburg may henceforth be known as the City of Sweetness and Light.

It must be highly gratifying to the trustees of our Continuation schools as it is highly creditable to our County Council and to the inspectors, that the schools of East Kent should be chosen at headquarters as the standard for the Continuation schools of the Province.

HE IS A HUSTLER

Mr. W. H. Ball, successor to Mr. J. U. Thibodeau in the well-known King street dress goods house, has just returned from Toronto, where he spent a few days purchasing new and up-to-date fall stock. Mr. Ball is a new comer to Chatham, but has already become acquainted with a large portion of the former patrons of the store. He is a brisk, up-to-date and hustling business man, who through his many years' connection with the big Simpson store of Toronto, has every detail of his business at his finger-ends.

In a short chat with a Planet reporter this morning, Mr. Ball expressed himself as delighted with the liberal patronage which he has already received. He thinks Chatham is an up-to-the minute city, with a great future before her, and he intends to keep his store, and the line of goods he carries strictly up to the times in every particular.

"Honesty in every sale and in every bargain is what we intend to make the keynote of all our business transactions," said he. "We believe in being very careful not to exaggerate in the least in our advertisements, nor in making sales. Every piece of goods must be described exactly for what it is, and our clerks have strict instructions to live up to this in all their dealings with customers."

This is a principle which will be admired and appreciated by all, and to judge by the v.m which Mr. Ball is putting into the business, the store is destined to be a greater success than it has ever been before.

TO ADVERTISERS—All changes of advertisements, to insure insertion must be handed in to this office the day before intended for publication.

Small offences frequently repeated grow into great blunders.

AN ERROR

In last evening's Planet, in reference to the Convention at London, the following appeared:

"Following this Mr. Clements, M.P., moved a resolution condemning Premier Balfour for his action in ordering that every school house shall fly the national flag. Mr. Frank Glass, who seconded a recommendation to the Ontario Government to enact a similar law, which was accepted and the motion was carried unanimously."

In the above the word "condemning" should have been "commending."

OLD LONDON FOR A YEAR

STUPENDOUS FACTS CONNECTED WITH THE METROPOLIS.

Some Amazing Figures About Life in London—Greater London Has Over 7,000,000 Population—11,341 Motor Cars Are Registered—Gigantic Post Bag Is a Remarkable Feature—Passengers on Railways.

It requires a closely printed volume of more than 500 pages to tell the fascinating life of London in figures. This volume was compiled by Mr. Edwin Harper, statistical officer of the London County Council.

It tells everything that can be told in statistics of the administrative County of London, and the public service carried on therein during the past year.

The County of London embraces an area of 75,442 acres; it has a population of more than 4-1/2 millions; its Parliamentary electors number 621,180, and its borough electors 715,751. Greater London has a population of 7,113,560.

The vital statistics for the county gives the following yearly return of marriages, births, and deaths:

Marriages, 39,586; rate per 1,000, 17. Births, 129,335; rate per 1,000, 27.9. Deaths, 74,990; rate per 1,000, 16.9.

Infant mortality is responsible for a considerable part of the death rate, the deaths under one year of age in the course of a single year being 18,600.

Millions of Passengers.

In regard to the passenger traffic in Greater London the figures are stupendous. The following table shows the statistics for 1904:

Mode of Conveyance.	Carried.
Railway	298,638,750
Tramway	433,731,880
Omnibus	288,965,214
Total	1,021,335,844

But even these figures are incomplete, as the omnibus returns include those of only two principal companies, while the railway figures are also incomplete. The number of journeys per head of the population is probably more than 200.

London's post bag is thus described in figures:

	Number.	Tonnage.
Letters	727,200,000
Postcards	66,600,000
Book packets and circulars	63,200,000
Newspapers	33,700,000
Letters registered	8,472,000
Parcels	17,391,000
Parcels registered	291,215
Express delivery services	916,744
Telegrams handed in	28,364,000

The figures in the first five lines apply to deliveries only.

People Employed.

The total number of persons employed in the London postal service is 46,216, of whom 38,659 are males and 7,557 females.

The number and tonnage of vessels entered at, and cleared from, the port of London during 1904 were as follows:

	Number.	Tonnage.
Entered	27,098	17,073,852
Cleared	27,471	16,251,474
Exports	1,750,490
Imports	17,362,613

The exports showed a decrease of £1,827,303 on the previous year, and the imports an increase of £5,258.

Facts in Brief.

Telephone public call offices number 3,135.

11,341 motor-cars were registered in 1904-5.

The yearly population of London is 59,449.

The length of sub-ways under streets for the reception of pipes is 11,945 yards.

Road improvements during the year cost the London County Council £5,408,972.

More than 52,000 articles were left in public carriages by forgetful passengers.

There are 2,158 miles of streets in the county, and they are maintained at a net cost of £2,109,240.

The names of 167 streets were abolished, sixty-five streets were named, and ninety-three streets renamed.

The net annual cost of the London police is £1,535,558. The total cost for England and Wales is £4,221,132.

The council spends £1,635,262 every year in maintaining its parks and open spaces, which are 4,945 acres in extent.

Inquests to the number of 7,391 were held. The expenditure on them was £30,111—an average of about £4 per inquest.

The widest street in London is Piccadilly, which at one point is 136 feet wide, at which the roadway takes up 106 feet.

The number of public carriages licensed by the Metropolitan Police is 16,379. The drivers and conductors number 31,912.

There are 6,684 public houses in the metropolitan area. The number of apprehensions for drunkenness during the year was 60,899.

The authorized area of supply of the Metropolitan Water Board is 537 square miles. The total volume supplied during the year was 80,261,619 thousand gallons.

The British Museum has more visitors than any other museum, the total for the year being 954,551. The Victoria and Albert Museum is next in popularity, the yearly number of visitors being 848,583.

Only Way to Get Out.

Mr. Chamberlain was once delivering a rousing speech in Birmingham to an audience so tightly packed together that no one could possibly get in or out. Suddenly in the middle of the hall arose a scowling man. "What did Mr. Gladstone say in 1872?" he roared. "Turn him out!" shouted the audience. Three men hurried the interrupter a few yards, and others hustled him into the street. A friend who had been at the meeting came to him later in the day. "What did Mr. Gladstone say in 1872?" asked the friend. "I don't know," said the man. "I haven't a notion. Only I'd got a terrible toothache and couldn't get my way through the crowd, so the only thing to do was to get thrown out."—London Globe.

Watch Records.

"That man's watch holds the record for his town," a jeweler said. "It has run for twenty-two years without stopping. Aside from a little regulating, oiling and cleaning, it has never needed a repair. I know lots of men who try to establish records for their watches. I know five men in this little town whose watches have run day and night for ten years. Give a good watch to a man and he takes a pride in it. He never forgets to wind it. Soon he is trying to make a record for it. The record for continuous running is held, I believe, by a Swiss watch in Geneva that has run for twenty-eight years."

Gin Pills Cure Sick Kidneys

OR YOUR MONEY BACK.

"I have been troubled with rheumatism, bladder trouble, and pain and weakness in my back for several years. I sent for a sample of Gin Pills. The rheumatism left me at once. I now send for a full box, and if they prove as you say you will hear from me again."

P. C. SMITH, South Orington, Me.

And we did hear from Mr. Smith again:

"Nov. 7th, 1904.
"Enclosed I send P.O. order for $2.50 for 6 boxes of Gin Pills."
"Yours truly, P. C. SMITH."

Wheat On the Move.

Winnipeg, Sept. 12.—The grain receipts along the C. P. R. were very heavy yesterday, the total quantities marketed being 429,000 bushels of wheat and 18,000 of other grains.

An Infatigable Sign.

A student in one of the colleges was writing on a paper in medical jurisprudence in which he was asked to enumerate the signs of death by drowning. After some more or less futile guesses he added, "But the surest sign of all is crape on the door!"

But for some sorrow and trouble we would never know half the good there is about us.—Dickens.

Billiards at Sea.

"Can you imagine playing billiards in a heavy gale?" said the captain. "Do you wonder that our great liners, with their elevators and telephones and gymnasiums, don't have billiard tables as well? One ship once had a billiard table, the Great Eastern. The wonderful Great Eastern had a billiard table on a swinging deck. This deck was supposed to counteract the ship's motion and to keep the table steady, but it failed to do so, and very remarkable were some of the shots made on the Great Eastern's table in rough weather. Nevertheless the table was kept for years and was a popular institution aboard the big boat, but no other boat before or since has ever bothered to introduce billiards."

FOUND MURDERED.

Body of Scotsman in Railway Yards With Throat Cut.

Winnipeg, Sept. 14.—Archie Ferguson, a young Scotsman from Snowflake, Man., was found dead in the C. P. R. yards by a train crew early yesterday morning with his throat slashed open evidently by a razor, and with a horrible gash wound on his forehead.

There is nothing to show how he came by death.

Humberts Released.

Paris, Sept. 14.—Madame Therese Humbert was liberated yesterday from the prison at Rennes, and Frederic Humbert was liberated from the jail at Thouars. The Humberts were sentenced in 1902 to five years' solitary confinement for a swindle which involved nearly $12,000,000.

Manitoba Elections.

Winnipeg, Sept. 14.—Premier Roblin has announced that the Manitoba provincial elections will be held after next session.

A MINUTE'S DELAY.

May Have Been Responsible For D. of 14 People and the Injury of 75 More.

Toronto, Sept. 14.—James F. Kennedy, a farmer, and his daughter Eva residing near Lindsay, reached the city last night. They were among the excursionists bound for the Northwest who were in the train wreck, and although seven coaches back from the collision, which was hit, received a bad shaking up.

Mr. Kennedy made a statement which may have an important bearing on the causes of the wreck. It is stated that had there been one minute's more time at the switch the accident would not have occurred.

Mr. Kennedy says that a man and his son, who had ridden near him and talked with him, had intended to get off at Suburb, but somehow missed the train at that depot. When a couple miles or so beyond the place, the man appealed to the conductor to let them off. The train was stopped, and it seemed that it had hardly gotten up full speed again when the crash came.

The arrival here last night of a number of passengers on the special gave information to show that a drizzling rain, which caused slipping rails, was partly responsible for the inability of the engine on the eastbound train to check its speed sufficiently to avert dreadful consequences, while the official statement of the railway sets forth that but for a defect in the air-brake valve there would have been no collision independent of the condition of the rails.

One more death was added to the list yesterday—Samuel Kingston of Frankfort.

The last of the unknown victims has been tentatively identified as E. May of Winfield, Ont.

FIVE YOUNG PEOPLE BROWN.

Berry Pickers Upset From Old Boat and Only One Is Saved.

White Head, N.S., Sept. 14.—A drowning accident occurred at Port Pelly yesterday, by which five young people lost their lives—Minnie, aged 15; John, aged 11; and Maggie, aged 9, children of Frank Fougere, postmaster of Port Pelly. Accompanied by their three cousins Clara, aged 18; Maggie, aged 14; and Martin, aged 12, children of Joseph King, Port Pelly, they left their homes yesterday morning to pick blueberries, and about six miles back of Port Pelly the boat attempted to cross a lake in an old, leaky, flat-bottomed boat.

They succeeded in reaching a small island in the lake by going two at a time in the boat, but on returning the six got in, and when about two-thirds of the way across the boat filled and turned bottom up.

Minnie Fougere caught the boat and managed to paddle ashore, and was the only survivor of the party of six.

CANADA GROWING SOME.

Prairie Provinces Have Population of Nearly a Million Now.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—The census taking of the prairie provinces in the three prairie provinces shows that Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta together represent a population of about 900,000, almost double the census showing of five years ago.

Manitoba returns are not quite complete, but will show something over 300,000 as compared with 265,211 in 1901, and 152,506 in 1891.

Saskatchewan and Alberta both show more rapid gain. The former contains a population of about 260,000, and the latter of 185,000.

Five years ago the census of the same district, portions of what were then the Northwest Territories, gave a population of 165,551.

In 1891 this same region had a population of 66,799.

NO. 10. MASTER MINDS ON MUSIC

Being the 10th of a series of ten talks introducing sayings of great men, applicable to the Nordheimer Piano, the symbol to perfect music.

The man that has no music in himself, Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds, Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils.—Shakespeare

In this last of our series of what the master writers have said about music we have quoted the familiar words of the greatest English poet. Many times Shakespeare has credited music with being the greatest of arts, and in his day music had not reached the summit of its magnificence that it has today with such instruments as

THE NORDHEIMER PIANO

The "concord of sweet sounds" is but another name for the NORDHEIMER TONE, only the concord is is more perfect than can be realized in any other instrument, for the Nordheimer is now accepted by the Canadian people almost as a whole as the leader. Certainly it is the favorite among the most refined music lovers. If you are a music lover we would like to have you visit our ware-room and see the magnificent display.

THE STAR CHAMBER.

CONDENSED HISTORY OF A FAMOUS SCHEME OF OPPRESSION.

At First Its Objects Were Laudable, but It Subsequently Became a Cruel and Unjust Power—Some of Its Outrageous Penalties.

When the Earl of Richmond had defeated Richard III. at Bosworth and had been crowned king as Henry VII., he found the times in so troubled a state that men whose rights were infringed upon or denied them dared not apply for justice to the ordinary courts. The unblushing manner in which bribes and threats were resorted to by those that had influence over the proceedings of these courts denied to them the security of a juror's oath.

To reach a mischief that had grown so intolerable Henry, feeling himself strong enough with his second parliament, created a court made up of the highest officers of the kingdom, embracing, theoretically, the king himself, who was considered the author of all justice, to which were confided unlimited power and discretion over a large, undefined class of offenses, many of which were of a political character, without the restraint of a jury and subject to no revision by appeal.

This was afterward known as the court of the star chamber, so called because the ceiling of the room in which it met was studded with stars or because in this apartment prior to the time of Edward I. the contracts of the Jews, called stars, were deposited in boxes or chests.

This scheme had good results at first. Wealthy landowners who had oppressed their neighbors with impunity were brought before this court, where neither fear nor favor could avail, and tried for their offenses. The greatest merit of the court was that it was not dependent on a jury, for juries were unable or unwilling to render a verdict in keeping with their consciences.

One said, "A court thus constituted, with power so broad and a discretion unlimited by prescribed rules, though called into existence for wise and salutary purposes, was in the end like invoking the spirit of mischief without a corresponding power in reserve to lay it or check its excesses if inclined to abuse its authority."

Instead of losing power as the necessity for its existence passed away it drew to itself new elements of strength and enlarged the extent of its jurisdiction. It became, after successive administrations under the hands of ambitious leaders such as furnished in the time of Henry VIII., Elizabeth and the two Stuarts, a most potent engine of despotism, rule and intolerance. Torture, intimidation and other devices were used to compel the accused to incriminate himself.

Charles I., through the star chamber, filled his coffers. During his reign such enormous fines were imposed for trivial offenses that the audience gathered about the courtroom at 3 o'clock in the morning to secure seats to hear the proceedings. The discretionary power of the court in the way of punishment made it a means of cruel instances of the hands of bad men. History of its administration during the reigns of James I. and Charles I.

One of the most remarkable cases was that of Bishop Williams, who had been lord keeper of the seal, a popular prelate and a man of learning and spirit and at one time a special favorite of James. While enjoying his patronage he exerted his influence in behalf of Laud, afterward archbishop, who owed his first promotion to his good offices. Some disagreement arose between them. Nothing would satisfy Laud but the ruin of the man who had befriended him.

On some slight pretext the bishop was brought before the star chamber and fined £10,000, committed to the Tower during the king's pleasure and suspended from office. His furniture and books were levied upon to pay the fine. Among some refuse papers were found some letters from Obaldiston, a schoolmaster, directed to the bishop. In these letters the writer spoke of a "little great man" and in one place of a "little urchin." As Laud was small of stature, it was conjectured that these terms referred to him. They were both tried, one for receiving such scandalous letters and the other for writing them. Williams paid a fine of £8,000 and Obaldiston £5,000, and he had his ears nailed to the pillory. Pryne, a barrister at law, of Lincoln's Inn, a Puritan of the strictest sect, published his famous "Histrio Mastix," a huge volume of 1,000 quarto pages, aimed at stage plays, music dancing, public festivals, Christmas sports, bonfires and maypoles. For this alleged libelous volume he was arraigned before the star chamber.

Mr. Pryne, in his general sweep for his historical illustration of the mischief of frequenting plays, referred to Nero and spoke of Plavius and others who conspired against him for his bad example upon the magistrates and the people. The chief justice from this inferred that the author intended to incite the people to murder the king, and Pryne was deprived of his right of practice as a barrister, condemned to stand in the pillory at Westminster and Chesham, to lose his ears, one at each of these places, to pay a fine of £5,000 and to be imprisoned for life.

There was hardly a man in the realm who had not personal experience of the harshness and greediness of the star chamber. It became odious, and not without reason. It was abolished in 1641 as one of the acts of concession made by Charles I. to the demands of an indignant nation. Pryne and his fellow martyrs were recalled from prison. They entered London in triumph amid the shouts of the multitude, who threw laurels in their path.

TERRIBLE ITCHING SCALP HUMOUR

Badly Affected With Sores and Crusts—Extended Down Behind the Ears—Some Years Later Painful and Itching Pustules Broke Out on Lower Part of Body—Son Also Affected.

A TRIPLE CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"About ten years ago my scalp became badly affected with sore and itching humors, crusts, etc., and extending down behind the ears. My hair came out in places also. I was greatly troubled; understood it was eczema. Tried various remedies, so called, without effect. Saw your Cuticura advertisement, and got them at once. Applied them as to directions, etc., and after two weeks, I think of use, was clear as a whistle."

"I have to state also that late last fall, October and November, 1904, I was suddenly afflicted with a bad eruption, painful and itching pustules over the lower part of the body. I suffered dreadfully. In two months, under the skillful treatment of my doctor, combined with Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I found myself cured."

"Six years ago my son was laid up with a severe cold, a hard cough, and finally painful eruption all over the body. I procured the Cuticura Remedies as soon as possible, and after his faithful use of same was as well as ever in two weeks, as well as I can recall. He has never had a return of the illness, as far as I know."

"I have always been pleased to commend the Cuticura Remedies, and testify to their efficacy. I am a veteran of the late Civil War, '61-'65, between seventy and eighty years of age. Truly, H. M. F. Vesey, Rosemont, Christian Co., Ill., Aug. 31, 1905."

Money and Marbles.
Once there was a man who thought Russell Sage ought to starve. He spoke to him about it. "Why get together any more money, Mr. Sage? You can't eat it; you can't drink it. What good will it do you?"

"Ever play marbles?" Uncle Russell asked.

"Yes, when I was a boy."

"Couldn't drink 'em, could you? Couldn't drink 'em, could you? No use to you, were they? What did you play marbles for?"

Hamilton, Sept. 14.—Wednesday night Mrs. Lindberg strung herself up to a rafter in an out-building at the cemetery. She used a very slender cord. Yesterday morning her dead body was discovered. Face Sashes Very Smart—Cheap Panama Skirts—Nail Head Dog Collars.
Gowns of linen, batiste or lawn made with simple tucks and plaits, lace yokes and fitted sleeves, receive an added touch of beauty if girdled with a lace sash. These sashes are really very ultra affairs and are easily made by the ingenious girl. The girle portion is bound and shaped to the figure.

while the sash ends, narrow at the top and beaver shaped at the bottom, are lined with white mull and corded. Good, well cut Panama cloth skirts are selling for $4.50 and $5. This material wears like iron and the skirts are therefore good investments.

Dog collars made of nail heads in various colors—purple, pink or red—are very much worn. These nail heads are artistically combined with tiny gold beads.

The narrow cluny insertions, some of them looking very much like heavy hand crocheted work, joining seams and used in place of veining, are particularly favored. Such narrow cluny lines set together all the seams of many blouses that have cluny trimmings.

A smart little traveling hat is seen in the cut of tan chip. It is simply trimmed with a band of chestnut brown velvet and decorated at one side with two American Beauty roses and some velvet knots.

HERE AND THERE.
A Touch of Green on the Costume Is Smart—Purses Match Gowns.

Apple green, salad green, cabbage green—call it what you will, but if you wear it in the swim have a touch of it on your hat, belt or parasol.

The latest decree of fashion in the matter of bags and purses is that they shall match the costume. This means, of course, that a new one must be purchased with each suit. There are, however, a good many modish women who find it possible to exist with two or three in quiet tones.

Polka dotted flannel is the latest craze of the sporting girl. An effective teens gown is made of white flannel with huge black dots. It has a short circular skirt and a simple round waist turned in at the neck, which is finished with a low turned down collar. The short sleeves have rolling cuffs. Beneath the collar is worn a scarlet silk scarf with flowing ends. Miss Marjorie Gould, the daughter of the railroad king, has a costume of this description.

Long black silk gloves are so scarce that when the merchants have any for sale they hang out a sign, "Long Black Silk Gloves For Sale Today," as if they were advertising sausages or special brands of pens. On account of this dearth of black gloves gowns of tan are substituted. They are far more serviceable than white and can be worn with almost any colored dress.

A good looking duck outing hat is trimmed with two white braids, one on each side, with a knot of soft white silk between.

The blouse illustrated is of pale blue tulle. Almost the entire front is composed of cluny lace outlined with bands of silk. For edging the high collar, forming a crossed tie and making the pompadour bows Peking silk is effectively used.

Singular and Plural.

It is a question of taste and fancy whether one should make two bites of a cherry, but we all really make two bites of the word "cherry" when we use it in the singular. The original English version of "cerise" was "cheris" or "cheris," which was mistaken for a plural, so that "cheri" or "chiri" was soon manufactured as a singular. Exactly so has "pea" come into being as a false singular obtained from the supposed plural and true singular "pease." "Sherry" for "sherries" is another case, and "shay" from "chaise," "Chines" from "Chinese" and "corp" from "corpse" are others in vulgar speech. Similarly "riches" is really a singular, of which "richnesses" was the old plural.—London Graphic.

ASTONISHED THE DOCTOR

Mrs. Eaton Recovering, Although Her Physician Said She Might Drop Dead at Any Time.

"The Doctor told me I had heart disease and was liable to drop on the street at any time," says Mrs. Robt. Eaton of Dufferin, Ont.

"My trouble began four years ago with a weak heart. I was often afraid to draw my breath, I pained myself with nervousness, shortness of breath, dizziness, loss of appetite, smothering and sinking spells, and I could not sleep."

"Sometimes a great weakness would seize me and I would have to lie down to keep from falling. My hands and feet would seem to go to sleep and a sort of numbness would come all over me and perhaps immediately after the blood would rush to my head and a series of hot flashes would envelop me."

"I took all kinds of medicines, but kept gradually growing worse until about eight weeks ago, when I began using Dr. Leonard's Anti-Pill. From the start I improved until now my appetite has returned, I can sleep well, and have no nervousness, dizziness, palpitation, faintness or any of my other troubles. They have all entirely disappeared. I feel much stronger, look better, and altogether Anti-Pill has made a new woman of me."

"I am entirely cured and cannot say too much for this wonderful remedy. I would most heartily recommend Anti-Pill to anyone suffering as I did."

The editor will say, "You bet." After giving him the news you will be obliged to retire with a receipt for the obligation properly discharged.
