Prayer of a Modern.

O Lord of strength, I do not ask for power
To lead down others in the market place
I pray for power that I may hear by heart
Meet with my duty with a cheerful face.
O Lord of Grace! let not my aim be set
With life as a short fur that I have to do,
But grant me resolutions—those I live
With joy my hours of ease and labor too.
O Lord of Light, whatever I may learn
Of what men in their little knowledge teach,
Or wherever my poor mind may roam,
Keep reverent in my heart, I do beseech.
—H. W. Jukeway, in the June Canadian Magazine.

IN THE FOG.

BY RICHARD HARDING JAVIS
Continued.

"First we leave out names of things,"
Lyle answered, "is to my mind the strongest proof that he is telling the truth, that he left the house before the murder took place. He is not a fool, and had he stabbed his brother and this woman, he would have seen that by placing the knife near her he could help to make it appear as if she had killed Chetney and then committed suicide. Besides, Lord Arthur insisted that the evidence in his behalf would be our finding the knife here. He would not have urged that if he knew we would not find it, if he knew he himself had carried it away. This is no suicide. A suicide does not rise and hide the weapon with which he kills himself, and then lie down again. No, this has been a double murder, and we must look outside of the house for the murderer."
"While he was speaking Lyle and I had been searching every corner, studying the details of each room. I was so afraid that, without telling me, he would make some deductive judgment as to what I had done, that I was determined to see everything that he saw, and if possible, to prevent his interpreting it in the wrong way. He finally finished his examination, and we sat down together in the drawing room, and he took out his notebook and read aloud all that Mr. Sears had told him of the murder and what we had just learned from Arthur. We compared the two accounts word for word, and weighed statement with statement, but I could not determine from anything Lyle said which of the two versions he had decided to believe."
"We are trying to build a house of blocks," he exclaimed, "with half of the blocks missing. We have been considering two theories, 'he went on; 'one that Lord Arthur is responsible for both murders, and the other that the dead woman in there is responsible for one of them, and has committed suicide, but, until the Russian servant is ready to talk, I shall refuse to believe in the guilt of either."
"What can you prove by him?" I asked.
"He was drunk and asleep," he said.
"Lyle hesitated, and then, as though he had made up his mind to be quite frank with me, spoke freely.
"I do not know what the Russian drank or asleep," he answered, "Lientant Sears describes him as a sturdy boor. I am not satisfied that he is not a clever actor. What was his real duty here? Suppose it was not to guard this woman, but to watch her. Let us imagine that it was not the woman he served, but a master, and see where that leads us. For this house has a master, a mysterious absentee landlord, who lives in St. Petersburg, the unknown Russian who came between Chetney and Zichy, and because of whom Chetney left her. He is the man who bought this house for Madame Zichy, who sent these rugs and curtains from St. Petersburg to furnish it for her after his own tastes, and I believe, it was he also who placed the Russian servant here, ostensibly to serve the Princess, but in reality to spy upon her. At Scotland Yard we do not know who this gentleman is; the Russian police consider to equal ignorance concerning him. When Lord Chetney went to Africa, Madame Zichy lived in St. Petersburg; but there her receptions and dinners were so crowded with members of the nobility and of the army and diplomats, that among so many visitors the police could not learn which was the one for whom she most greatly cared."

"Lyle pointed at the modern French paintings and the heavy silk rugs which hung upon the walls."
"The unknown is a man of taste and of some fortune," he said, "not the sort of man to send a stupid peasant to guard the woman he loves. So I am not content to believe, with Mr. Sears, that the servant is a boor. I believe his instead to be a very clever ruffian. I believe him to be the protector of his master's honor, or let us say of his master's property, which would properly be silver plate or the woman his master loves. Last night he left Lord Arthur had gone away, the servant was left alone in this house with Lord Chetney and Madame Zichy. From where he sat in the hall he could hear Lord Chetney bidding her farewell; for, if my idea of him is correct, he understands English quite as well as you or I. Let us imagine he heard her entreating Chetney not to leave her, reminding him of his former wish to marry her, and let us suppose that he hears Chetney denounce her, and tell her that he will divorce her, and that he has learned of this Russian admirer—the servant's master. He hears the woman declare that she has no admirer but himself, that this unknown Russian was, and is, nothing to her, but that there is no man she loves but him, and that she cannot live, knowing that he is alive, without his love. Suppose Chetney believed her, and that in a moment of weakness he forgave her and took her in his arms. That is the moment the Russian master has feared. It is to guard against that that he has placed his watchdog over the Princess, and how do we know but that, when the moment came, the watchdog served his master, as he did in the drawing room, and he took out his notebook and read aloud all that Mr. Sears had told him of the murder and what we had just learned from Arthur. We compared the two accounts word for word, and weighed statement with statement, but I could not determine from anything Lyle said which of the two versions he had decided to believe."

"I was only too willing to hear any theory which pointed to any one else as the criminal than Arthur, but Lyle's explanation was too utterly fantastic. I told him that he certainly showed imagination, but that he could not hang a man for what he had not done."
"No," Lyle answered, "but I can frighten him by telling him what I think he has done, and now when I again question the Russian servant I will make it quite clear to him that I believe he is the murderer. I think that will open his mouth. A man will at least talk to defend himself."
"Come," he said, "we must return at once to Scotland Yard, and see him. There is nothing more to do here."
"He arose, and I followed him into the hall, and in another minute we would have been on our way to Scotland Yard. But just as he opened the street door a postman halted at the gate of the garden, and began fumbling with the latch.
Lyle stopped with an exclamation of surprise.
"How stupid of me!" he exclaimed. "He turned quickly and pointed to a narrow slit cut in the brass plate of the front door. 'The house has a private letter-box,' he said, 'and I had not thought to look in it! If we had done so as we came in, by the window, I would never have seen it. The moment I entered the house I should have thought of securing the letters which came this morning. I have been so busy with the case, that I stepped back into the hall and pulled at the lid of the letter-box, which hung on the inside of the door, but it was tightly locked. At the same moment the postman came up the steps holding a letter. Without a word Lyle took it from his hand and began to examine it. It was addressed to the Princess Zichy, and on the back of the envelope was the name of a West End frequenter."
"This is of no use to me," Lyle said. "He took up his card and showed it to the postman. 'I am Inspector Lyle from Scotland Yard,' he said. 'The people in this house are under arrest. Everything it contains is now in my keeping. Did you deliver any other letters this morning?'"
"The man looked frightened, but answered promptly that he was now upon his third round. He had made one postal delivery at seven that morning and another at eleven."
"How many letters did you leave here?" Lyle asked.
"About six altogether," the man answered.
"Did you put them through the door into the letter-box?"
"The postman said, 'Yes, I always slip them into the box, and ring and go away. The servants collect them from the inside.'"
"Have you noticed if any of the letters you leave here bear a Russian postage stamp?" Lyle asked.
"The man answered, 'Oh, yes, sir, a great many.'"
"From the same person, would you say?"
"The writing seems to be the same,"

the man answered. 'They come regularly about once a week—one of those I delivered this morning had a Russian postmark.'"
"That will do," said Lyle eagerly. "Thank you, thank you very much." "He ran back into the hall, and pulling out his penknife, began to pick at the lock of the letter-box."
"I have been supremely careless," he said in great excitement. "Twice before when people I wanted had flown from a house I have been able to follow them by putting a guard over their mail-box. These letters, which arrive regularly every week from Russia in the same handwriting, they can come but from one person. At least, we shall not lose the name of the master of this house. Undoubtedly it is one of his letters that the man placed here this morning. We may make a most important discovery."

"As he was talking he was picking at the lock with his knife, but he was so impatient to reach the letters that he pressed too heavily on the blade and it broke in his hand. I took a step backward and drove my heel into the lock and burst it open. The lid flew back, and we pressed forward, and each ran his hand down into the letter-box. For a moment we were both too startled to move. The box was empty.
"I do not know how long we stood staring stupidly at each other, but it was Lyle who was the first to recover. He seized me by the arm and pointed excitedly into the empty box.
"Do you appreciate what that means?" he cried. "It means that some one has been here ahead of us. Some one has entered this house not three hours before we came, since eleven o'clock this morning."
"It was the Russian servant!" I exclaimed.
"The Russian servant has been under arrest at Scotland Yard," Lyle cried. "He could not have taken the letters. Lord Arthur has been in his cot at the hospital. That is his alibi. There is some one else, some one we do not suspect, and that some one is the murderer. He came back here either to obtain those letters because he knew they would convict him, or to remove something he had left here at the time of the murder, something incriminating—the weapon, perhaps, or some personal article; a cigarette case, a handkerchief with his name upon it, or a pair of gloves. Whatever it was he must have been disguised in evidence against him to have made him take so desperate a chance."

Outdoor Sport and Zam-Buk.

Every athlete, every ball-player, every swimmer, every canoeist, every man or woman who loves outdoor life and exercise, should keep a box of Zam-Buk handy.
Zam-Buk is a purely herbal preparation, which, as soon as applied to cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, blisters, etc., sets up highly beneficial operations. First, its antiseptic properties render the wound free from all danger from blood poisoning. Next, its soothing properties relieve and ease the pain. Then the rich, herbal balsam penetrates the tissue, and sets up the wonderful process of healing. Barbed wire scratches, insect stings, skin diseases, such as eczema, heat rashes, ringworm, babies' heat sores, chafed places, sore feet—all come within Zam-Buk's power. It also eases and cures piles. All druggists and stores. Avoid imitation.

Some Good Old Rules.

To get a wrong thought out of the mind, put in a noble one. To dispel darkness let in the sunshine. To drive out bad temper, teach self-control. These are good old rules that many people never seem to reach or understand.
Scolding a child rarely helps along an inch. It belongs to the past decade and over with. Inspiring a child tells for miles ahead. It belongs to the present deed and the long future. It belongs, also, to the most deep and complete power of a mother over her child. The mother who has understood, who has inspired her boys and her girls, is never outgrown, never superseded by newer affections.
The thought of her remains the fundamental one, to the very end of life. This is the power that every mother longs for—the power that absents and ought to have it she is wise enough to hold earnestly to the best things for her child.

Apples in Boxes.

The Canadian Trade Commissioner at Leeds, Eng., reports that one of the important changes which the past season's trade in Canadian apples has brought to light is the greatly improved popularity of box-packed apples. Many merchants now declare themselves to be wholeheartedly in favor of this system of packing apples in bushel boxes. Not only are these boxes, they say, more conveniently stored on the ship, but they are easier to handle in their warehouses, and meet a long felt want in supplying the demands of small retailers who cannot dispose quickly of the larger amount of apples contained in the ordinary barrel. Although, of course, the retail price of the apples is slightly higher than that charged for fruit in barrels, yet the attractiveness of the packing and the selectness of the apples themselves is declared to be usually found sufficient to counterbalance any disadvantage in this respect.

Why Backs Ache.

The kidneys seldom to blame—the trouble due to blood impurities. There is more nonsense talked about backache than any other disease. Some people have been frightened into the belief that every backache means a deadly kidney trouble. That is utter rubbish. As a matter of scientific fact not one backache in twenty has anything to do with the kidneys. Most backaches come from sheer weakness and kidney drugs can't possibly cure that. You need something to brace you up and give you new strength and that is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do. Other backaches are really muscular rheumatism, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured the worst cases of rheumatism by driving the poisonous acid out of the blood. Other backaches are the symptoms of ordinary ailments such as influenza, indigestion, constipation and liver complaint. In women backaches often come from the troubles that follow so surely on any weakness or irregularity in the usual blood supply. The one way to cure these backaches is to strike at the root of the trouble with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood and bring strength to aching backs and weak nerves. Mr. Alex. Cockburn, Deloraine, Man., says: "About three years ago I suffered terribly from backache. I consulted a doctor and took his medicine, and wore a plaster, but did not get the least relief. Then I got a belt, but this was as useless as the other treatment, and my suffering still continued. Then one of my friends asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a box. Before they were all used there was some improvement in my condition and I got three boxes more. By the time I had taken these all the signs of the pain had gone, and as it has not returned I feel that the cure is permanent. My only regret is that I did not hear of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills sooner, for not only would I have got rid of the pain sooner, but I would also have saved some twenty-five dollars uselessly spent in other treatments."

Dull Homes.

You say your home is dull. Thousands of people say it every day. Don't run away from it because it is dreary. Stay there, and supply it with sunshine and cheerfulness. To make it a haven of happiness to which all will hurry with gladness in their hearts. When mothers and fathers complain that their children are gaited, never satisfied with a quiet house evening, you may be pretty sure there is not much that home stands for. Are the young folks' friends made welcome? Is it a friendly, lovable home, with plenty of innocent fun and laughter? Do mother and father sympathize with the girls and boys whose hearts are young and careless, just as they were long ago? Do they take an interest in all their sports and pleasures?
If home stands only for a paltry, gossipy shelter to which people come, take meals, go out, come in, and sleep, and get up again, where nothing higher is thought of than the material needs and cravings of the body, without doubt it would be a dull, dreary place to live in.
But if it stands for warmth, a living centre of love, kindness, happiness, usefulness sacrifice for others' good and a striving after better and higher things, such a home is a bit of Heaven come down to this world of ours. The memory of a home like this, and its influence on young people form the sure foundation of noble and beautiful lives. A home like this will go with one down all the long dark years of life, shedding its sweet memory and good example around one like an angel of peace to help us to bear our trials and burdens in a truly Christian spirit.
Are all of us making a home like this? If we are, then it cannot stand for dullness and dreariness. 'Love in repair by love.' And if we are not doing our part to build up and cement a home of this stamp, let us begin to-day, before it is too late, for remember, 'unkindness will be repaid in its own kind.'

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JUNE 10, 1910.

Honors for a Wolfville Young Lady.

At the closing exercises of Acadia Seminary, last week, Principal DeWolfe made an interesting announcement regarding Miss Evelyn Starr, who has been studying music in Germany since graduating from this school two years ago.

Miss Starr has had the honor of being selected by a jury of musical critics to represent Canada, and take an important part in the great "Festival of Empire," that was to have taken place this month in the "Crystal Palace," London, under the patronage of the late lamented King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra. Owing to the King's sudden death, however, the "Festival" has been postponed for one year when it is expected that Miss Starr will be required to take the part already assigned her, when, no doubt, she will win further honors for her Alma Mater, and maintain her enviable reputation as a violinist.

Andrew's Church.

During the past two weeks St. Andrew's church has been undergoing a thorough renovation. Mr. J. Elliot Smith has been the committee in charge of the work, and he has spared no pains in making it a satisfactory one. The interior of the auditorium has been thoroughly cleaned, the woodwork newly varnished, the floor repainted and aisles carpeted in blue and red to match the other furnishings. The halls and vestibules have been attractively painted, the floors covered with linoleum of a neat design. This week the school room is receiving attention and it is expected the work will be completed by Saturday. The effect will be a decided improvement both in appearance and comfort.

Last Sunday large congregations assembled to welcome a former pastor, Rev. F. M. Macdonald, of Toronto, who is attending the meeting of the General Assembly at Halifax. Many old friends from outside the congregation were present to welcome him. Before beginning the morning sermon he referred briefly to the pleasure he felt in being again in his old pulpit. Fourteen years ago on Monday he was ordained and inducted into this, his first pastorate. He fondly referred to those to whom, in the old days, he had looked for counsel and whose places were now vacant.

His sermons, both morning and evening, were practical and helpful and were much enjoyed by the congregations.

Snow Out West.

The other day the thermometer dropped to seven degrees below the freezing point in the Canadian prairie country, and this has been followed by a snow and sleet storm over Alberta, sufficient to block down the telegraph lines, seriously hamper train operations and cause the death of many cattle in the ranch country. This is an unseasonable weather and may have a serious effect upon the growing crops. The snow, of itself, will do little harm to growing crops, as our farmers here know very well, but the frost is likely to do serious damage.

The lure of the West has been for a good while very strong upon the people of the Eastern Provinces, says the Charlotetown Guardian, and many have been tempted to sell all that they possessed and hasten to the prairie country. It is worth while for those who contemplate a similar course to pause for a moment and contrast our delightful spring weather, our rapidly growing crops and other favorable conditions with what is now occurring in the Northwest. True the contrasts may not always be so favorable to the Island Province as they are at the present moment, but we have vastly less to fear from summer and fall frosts, and from desolating hail storms, cyclones and prairie fires than has the Northwest farmer. And we have good water here, fairly abundant fuel, easy access to churches, schools and post offices, not all of which are within the reach of the prairie settler, especially in the newer sections. All of which may be worth thinking over.

Sickly Babies Quickly Cured.

The sickly baby is quickly cured by Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets are a never failing cure for the troubles arising from a disordered condition of the stomach and bowels. Being sold under a guarantee to contain no harmful drug they can be given to the youngest child with perfect safety. Mrs. Francis McMillan, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for four or five days at a time. I found the Tablets to be of great benefit and would recommend them to other mothers." They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Among those who attended the meetings of the Masonic Grand Lodge here this week was the veteran journeyman, Mr. W. B. Alley, an essay writer, the publisher and proprietor of the "Advertiser" here, at Truro, N.S. Mr. Alley is now out of business, having issued the paper to the present proprietors. He is a very active member of the Masonic fraternity and seldom misses the meetings of the Grand Lodge.

Apples as Cure for Intemperance.

The forbidden fruit of the Garden of Eden which brought sin into the world is now looked on as the means of driving sin out of the world. No less an august body than the Iowa State Horticultural Society is standing sponsor for the movement to remove the stigma from the apple.

When Eve, sorely tempted, partook of the luscious fruit which she had been forbidden to touch, she unwittingly cast a blight on the apple which centuries of cultivation and two national shows at Spokane have been unable to remove. It has remained for an apple loving country doctor to discover that not only can the world be fed until it has secured the necessary calories of energy, but that the craving for liquor—concededly to be the greatest cause of misery and crime—can be eradicated from the human body by the apple. As if this were not miracle enough, it is contended that General Grant might have won the siege of Vicksburg and the battle of Appomattox by munching on a Ben Davis, a Spitzenberg or a Jonathan, just as well as by puffing on a fat black cigar.

The Second Transcontinental.

Mr. Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern, hopes to have the Transcontinental line completed from Montreal to the Pacific in four years. In addition this company has a great many branches under the same control, and two railways and a coal mine in Nova Scotia. Mackenzie and Mann have also bought the whole of the Dunsmuir coal mine interests in British Columbia. They have land and mines in the northwest, and are now preparing a fleet of steamships. These two builders are easily beating the Grand Trunk Pacific enterprise. They own the whole common stock of their system. Yet when their Transcontinental system shall be completed the fixed charge will not be much more than half as much per mile as that of the Grand Trunk Pacific.—St. John Standard.

The Advantages of Outdoor Sleeping.

A good many people are discovering that it pays to sleep out of doors and the pity of it is that so many have waited until they have no lungs to speak of before making the discovery. But now is the time, almost hundred and ten, there is what I came near calling a wave of interest in outdoor sleeping, but perhaps it may be only a wavelet. In certain communities this wavelet has rolled up into a sort of fad, and it is spreading out and rolling higher mountains by month, so that in the course of time it will doubtless become a strong, husky breaker that shall sweep away our indoor maladies. For where outdoor sleeping has once become a habit it soon becomes a fixed habit. No one who has thoroughly enjoyed his bed in the open, night after night and summer and winter, ever willingly relinquishes it and is generally eager to get back to it. And here are some of the reasons:

The sweet feeling of naturalness and bodily well being.

Freedom from insomnia, for which outdoor sleeping is an absolute specific.

The wonderfully recuperative and vitalizing processes of which one quickly reaps the benefit, even though at first badly run down in physique.

The consciousness of escape from conditions that hamper if they do not actually threaten human life.

Immunity from colds and the diseases they engender.—June Busy Man's.

Historic Pictures.

The June number of the "Canadian Pictorial" will be entirely devoted to the history making events of the past month—the death of King Edward and the accession of King George. There will be splendid photographs, worth framing, of King Edward, King George and Queen Mary. There will be, too, many pictures of the late King at various periods including one taken during his visit to Canada in 1860. The editor has received crowds around Buckingham Palace, from which floats the Royal Standard at half-mast silently telling its story, the proclamation of the new King with its quaint ceremonial; the quiet dignity with which George the Fifth drove out to receive the allegiance of his privy councillors; the sad scenes which surrounded the funeral services as all these are depicted in such form as they may best be preserved in memory of a King whose best epithet is that he was "a peace-maker."

Order a copy of the June "Pictorial" now from Hester P. Davison. Only ten cents a copy.

King Edward's Funeral.

King Edward's funeral, with its attendant expenses, cost $1,500,000, which expense will be defrayed from the public purse. King George was crowned when he heard of the king's death, and is having the accounts investigated and vouched for, as has never before been known. There is great joy at Windsor since the new King and Queen let it be known that they will make Windsor Castle their chief residence. Already the private apartments are being made over for them.

Everyone likes pictures. You like the Canadian Pictorial, so would your friends. Make them happy. Annual subscription $1.00. H. P. Davison, 25 Summer St., Agent.

DOCTOR THE CAUSE

NOT THE EFFECT

If you are afflicted with boils, pimples, scurf, salt rheum, eczema, or any other indication of impure blood, don't waste time and money in external remedies for the treatment of these symptoms.

YOU CAN AVOID ALL THESE THINGS BY TAKING NYAL'S BLOOD PURIFIER

Sometimes there are no outward symptoms of impure blood, but instead there is a feeling of languor, a run-down listless condition, loss of appetite, showing that the organs and tissues of the body are not being nourished as they should be.

The use of Nyal's Blood Purifier is followed by the most pleasing results. The boils heal up and disappear; the skin becomes soft and smooth again, instead of harsh and scaly, or pimply. The liver is stimulated, the blood enriched, and soon the whole system feels the beneficial effect of this excellent remedy.

Pure blood means health and strength. Nyal's Blood Purifier makes pure blood.

While excavating for the foundation of the Longfellow monument at Memorial Park, Grand Pre, on Monday an interesting find was made.

They are of the same pattern as those excavated a number of years ago.

Obituary.

The news of the sudden death of Rev. G. R. White, until lately pastor of the Baptist church, Charlottetown, which occurred in that city on Monday evening while preparing to retire, came as a great shock to his many Wolfville friends.

He was one of the anniversary visitors last week and appeared to be then in his usual health.

During his stay in Wolfville he was a frequent visitor to THE ACADIAN, the editor of which has known and respected him for many years.

Rev. Mr. White was a graduate of Acadia college and has officiated in many of the Baptist churches of the Maritime Provinces. He was a preacher of marked ability, and his work was emphasized with a strong fervor that plainly evidenced a true Christian spirit. He leaves to mourn their great loss a wife and two children.

A copy of the catalogue of the Slicker Car Works, of Halifax, has been received by THE ACADIAN. It is handsomely gotten up and contains a fund of information of this progressive establishment, one of Nova Scotia's latest and most extensive industrial institutions.

A Rich Heritage.

A citizen of Canada is a citizen of the world wide British Empire. As such he possesses the most splendid heritage, and is heir to the most glorious traditions. Surely such a citizenship should be safeguarded, treasured and developed by every feasible and legitimate means.

The Empire's disintegration would pack back the world a progress a century or more. It is the privilege of every Canadian to help avert such a disaster by straining every effort towards the further consideration of all the self-governing British States.

Supreme Court.

The June session supreme court convened here on Tuesday with Judge F. A. Lawrence presiding.

The first case was that of John Kelly of Grand Pre indicted last October for an assault on Albert Mitchell of same place. Kelly pleaded guilty, sentence not yet pronounced.

The grand jury found true bills against Leonard Gould and Burton Hawkins for perjury, that of Hawkins being in connection with certain Scott Act trial against H. M. Arnold, proprietor of Porter House last autumn. In the case of Mary Borden against Benjamin Jackson the jury awarded damages of one dollar.—Western Chronicle.

Tecumseh helped to save Canada to the British Empire in 1812. Through his efforts Hull surrendered at Detroit. Through the work of his brave Western Canada the West of that day—was saved from the ravages of war. On the battlefield of Moraview the great Indian fell, and his remains were secretly buried by his comrades. There has been doubt as to the whereabouts of his grave; but tradition has located it on St. Anne's Island, and there the bones of an Indian of unusual height have been exhumed. It is probable that the remains found are those of the friend of Britain. If so, they should be honorably re-interred, and a memorial, worthy of the man, should be erected over them.

The annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Halifax Presbytery met in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on Wednesday, the 15th inst. There will be three sessions; 10:30 a. m., 2 p. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Among the prominent speakers who will take part in the meetings will be Miss Herdman, missionary to India, Miss Cunningham, returned missionary from the Methodist Mission in Japan, Miss Carmichael, of New Glasgow, and Rev. Robert Johnston, of Halifax. The public are cordially invited to be present at the afternoon and evening sessions.
