Local Affairs.

Mr. Will Earnsey, of Chesley, was visiting his parents here this week.
McLaughlin & Co. present a new advertisement to our readers in this issue.
Mr. J. A. Croll, of Clinton, is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Jas. W. Green in this village, at present.
Martin & Adair's sawmill is now running. The yard is well filled with logs and many more are being piled up there every day.
Council met in Fordwich yesterday (Wednesday) but as there was barely a quorum present the meeting was adjourned until Wednesday next when it will meet at the same place.
For the first time this winter trains on this branch of the C. P. R. were blocked so that the regular mails on Monday last had to be cancelled for the day. Snow plows were put on, however, and on Tuesday trains were running again as usual.
A novel concert is to be held in the town hall, Gorrie, next Thursday evening, Feb. 25th, being a two hours entertainment, the entire programme to be furnished by a phonograph placed on the platform. The audience will listen, from the ordinary seats in the hall, to Cappa's great Brass Band and some of the best speakers, singers, etc., on the continent. Posters will be out to-day announcing particulars.
Mr. A. Smith, a former Howick boy, but who has spent the last seven years in the Temperance Colony, N. W. Ter., is visiting among friends here this week. He is at present engaged in the mercantile business, being a partner in a general store at Saskatoon. He reports the colony to be in a hopeful condition, the railroad now running through that place. So far the farmers there have not attempted to raise grain for export but next season, he thinks, immense quantities will be shipped from there. Archie is the same genial genuine fellow he was always known to be when here, and it goes without saying that he is having a good time with his former associates here.

Miss Nellie Gregory is spending a week or so with relatives in Harrison.
Mr. Tuck, of Mount Forest, was visiting his son, Dr. Tuck, the early part of this week.
Last Friday evening the residence of Mr. H. Perkins was the scene of an enjoyable social gotten up by the ladies of St. Stephen's Church. The house was crowded and a pleasant time was spent.
The Pastor will (D.V.) preach in the Baptist Church, Gorrie, on Sunday evening next at 6:30 o'clock taking for his subject "Excuses." There will also be a Service of Song, on the evening of Feb. 24th.

A very pleasant social was held at the residence of Mr. T. H. McLaughlin on Wednesday evening of last week under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church. Notwithstanding the storm a large company gathered and a nice sum was realized.
Mr. Jas. Armstrong, V. S., last week removed a tumor from a fine young thoroughbred bull belonging to Mr. Hunter. The operation, though difficult, was successfully performed and the animal will in a few days be restored to perfect health.
Mr. T. P. Perry occupied the Methodist pulpit, morning and evening, last Sabbath, preaching brilliant and scholarly sermons on both occasions. Mr. Perry is a young school teacher near Newbridge and has, we feel sure, a bright future before him.

Mr. Charlton Foster, of the 12th con., Howick, met with quite a serious accident while cutting wood. By some mishap he brought the axe sharply down upon his great toe, splitting it right through the bone from end to end so that one-half hung only by a short piece of the skin. Dr. Tuck was sent for and stitched the parts together, and has hopes to have the wound healed without resorting to amputation.

As an outcome of the letters which have appeared in the GAZETTE concerning the advisability of organizing a local union Sabbath School Convention, a preliminary meeting will be held to-day (Thursday) at 2:30 p. m., in the Methodist Church, Gorrie. All the ministers in and on the borders of Howick, together with a layman from each Sunday School have been invited, and it is expected that an Association will be formed on a broad and substantial basis, and which will give a fresh impetus to Sabbath School work.

An extra work is required of the assessors, now about to begin their work, which should not be overlooked. Section No. 11 from the Compulsory School Attendance Act says: "The assessors of every municipality shall annually, when making their assessment, enter in a book to be provided by the clerk of the municipality, in the Form A, in the schedule of the Act, the name, age and residence of every child between the age of eight and fourteen years, resident in the municipality, and the name and residence of such child's parent or guardian, and return the said book to the clerk of the said municipality, with the assessment roll for the use of the truant officer."
On Monday last P. Lavin met with a bad accident which might easily have resulted fatal. He was out in Howick on business, called at S. Johnson's, tied his horse to a post and when ready to leave took the horse by the head to turn it around. As the rain had caused a crust upon the snow it was somewhat difficult to turn. From some reason the horse took fright, jumped against Mr. Lavin, knocked him down and must have trampled upon him and drew the cutter over him also. Mr. Johnson witnessed the accident and at once assisted him into the house and afterwards drove him home. Medical aid was soon called in when it was discovered that several ribs had been broken and his body and legs badly bruised. At last accounts he was doing well. The horse ran several miles and smashed the cutter before being captured.—Tribune.

The Wingham Times of the 11th inst. says: "Wingham has now one of the best markets in the county, there being four buyers on the market." You may put four-teen buyers on, Bro. Elliot, but you won't have as good a grain market as Gorrie until you pay higher prices.
On the 11th, according to the Times fall wheat was bringing 88c. to 84c., while Gorrie was paying 84c. to 86c. for the same; Wingham on the same date was paying 82c. (highest) for spring wheat, while Gorrie gave 86c. for that grain.

The fact is Gorrie presents as good, (if not a better) market for produce as any of the neighboring towns, while we doubt if any place within driving distance of Howick can produce finer stocks, or at finer cut prices than can our Gorrie business men whose advertisements appear in this issue of the GAZETTE. It is not the size of a town that makes it the best market. Good, substantial business men, who can command the best cash advantages of the wholesale markets are the men who make a good home market, and the lively appearance of Gorrie is a good indication that our village contains that desirable class of merchants.

A committee appointed by the congregation of St. Jude's Church, Brantford, to confer with the Bishop of Huron regarding the appointment of a new Rector, have chosen the Rev. T. A. Wright, of our town, and we learn that the Bishop has been pleased to make the appointment. We understand that Mr. Wright has accepted. We regret his leaving very much. He has labored in our midst for three and a half years, during which time our parish has made rapid strides forward. The old church in Fordwich, which for thirty years has been used for public worship, has been replaced by a new handsome brick, at a cost of over $2,500, and is now free of debt. A bell 1000 lbs in weight was placed during the time in a new belfry upon the Gorrie Church, the parsonage freed from debt and the whole raised from a mission drawing largely from the funds of the Diocese to that of a self-supporting parish. Mr. Wright is a systematical parish worker, and an earnest, practical preacher. His removal from our midst will be much regretted. We anticipate no fear for his success in Brantford nor for the prosperous state of St. Jude's under his ministry. He takes charge on May 1st.

Miss Annie Wanless, of Parkdale, who has been visiting at Mr. Robert Miller's the past week or so, returned to her home on Tuesday last.
Mr. Wm. Wilson had his cutter somewhat broken while turning the rig around at the gate after some of the ladies in his family had returned from a drive, the other day.
Mr. A. Gofton is cutting ice on the dam this week. It is in splendid condition for cutting now.
Mr. Geo. Thompson, cooper, was able to be out on Tuesday, after quite a serious illness.
Mr. Jas. S. Paulin, who has been laid up with the grip for the past three weeks, was able to be down town again on Monday last.
Thos. Gibson, Esq., M.P.P., left for Toronto on Tuesday to attend the present session of the Ontario Legislature. He was unable to go on Monday on account of the snow blockade.
A meeting will be held in the Presbyterian church here next Saturday at 2 o'clock p. m., to hear the report of the collectors, after which they will decide whether to go on with the erection of the new church. No site for the proposed edifice has yet been selected.
Rev. Mr. Shaw has been invited back for another year by the Official Board of the Methodist church here.

The Postmaster is Wrong.

Editor Gazette.—The postmaster here will not let my letter of items for the GAZETTE go with a one-cent stamp on, so I have to put on the other two cents. He says anything that is written that goes out of this office must pay three cents, sealed or not. I would like to know concerning the matter as I do not pretend to be versed in the postal regulations. Yours
[We withhold the name of the post office for the present. The post office regulations distinctly say that unsealed letters containing newspaper manuscript goes at the rate of 1c. for each two ounces. We are surprised that there is a postmaster so ignorant in this section of the country. We hope it will not be necessary for us to request the P. O. Inspector to enlighten his benighted mind on the matter.—Ed.]

Gorrie Mechanics' Institute.

A largely attended meeting of the newly organized Mechanics' Institute was held in the town hall last Monday evening.
On motion Mr. Wm. Doig was called to the chair, and explained the object of the meeting to be to formally organize the Institute, and elect provisional officers and directors and place the society in working order.
Mr. Fennell, the Secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were adopted.
The chairman read the new Act respecting Mechanics' Institutes and also a letter from the Minister of Education explaining the matter more fully.
After an earnest discussion of the question it was unanimously decided, on motion, to go on with the election of officers so as to place the Society in a position to receive the government grant this spring.
The election of officers resulted as follows:
President—Rev. T. A. Wright.
Vice-Pres.—J. R. Williams.
Sec. Treas.—Wm. Doig.
Directors—Messrs. R. Blow, N. McLaughlin, W. H. Clegg, J. M. Kaine, W. J. Perkins, John B. Campbell, Dr. Tuck, Jas. Armstrong, V. S., W. J. Greer.
It was then decided to leave the matter of arranging the membership fee, dues, appointing collectors, etc., in the hands of the Directors and the meeting adjourned.
There is a strong feeling in favor of the Society in this village and neighborhood, and it is likely that a large membership will be secured.

Mr. Dicks' new mill is now about ready for work. Large quantities of logs are being hauled in.
An interesting debate was held at the last meeting of the R. T. of T. This Council is making its meetings quite enjoyable of late.
Council met here on Wednesday but several members being absent no business was done.
Mr. Geo. Brown is able to attend to his hotel business again after his late serious illness.
A phonograph concert is to be held in the Forester's Hall here on the evening of Wednesday next, 24th inst. The novelty of hearing some of the best professionals on the continent perform by proxy should bring out a full house.
Mr. Hepinstall was in attendance upon the Dominion Grange meeting held in London last week.

HOUSEHOLD.

God Bless Her.

She never burned with passion's fires, She never craved a man's kiss...

Her maidens were never strong on woe, But sunshine followed where she came.

Her eyes in school were circumpunct, And made her seem a trifle prim...

Although she never disclaimed life's joys, She never forgot religion's claims...

In church she ne'er seemed sanctified, An only fit for angel sphere...

She married poorly, in the sense That life's great goal is glittering gold...

And further on in life there came A group of children to her home...

Of age came on, and children brought Grand children to the sacred place...

Then "earth to earth, and dust to dust," Was said at last in solemn tone...

God bless the homes such women make! God bless the world where such are rare!

In an Arab Cemetery. The soft, pleading eyes of our Arab sisters looking at us over the ugly, disfiguring...

"Go to the Arab cemetery on Friday afternoon, and you can see plenty of unvisited graves," said a friend familiar with Algiers.

CHASED BY MOUNTAIN LIONS. An Exciting Adventure in the Valley of Tongue River. In the summer of 1870 two young men, brothers, by the name of Bruning, Louis and Rudolf, resolved upon spending the winter trapping in the valley of Tongue River, on the frontier of Wyoming and Montana.

The Care of Children.

There are few ways in which many otherwise sensible people show so little judgment as in romping and general play with little children. It is not an uncommon thing for a strong man to toss a helpless little infant in the air till it tremble with excitement.

Very little children should be allowed to sleep as much as possible, and older children should lead quiet, even, monotonous lives as possible. For this reason a nurse girl of an amiable, even slightly phlegmatic temperament is preferred to a nervous and more energetic person.

NOT SO GREEN AS HE APPEARED.

How a Boy Outwitted the Famous Irish Highwayman. Redmond O'Hanlon, the most noted of the Irish brigands, after distinguishing himself through the most daring deeds, met his vanisher at last in a shop-keeper's apprentice.

This youth's master, having to receive a good round sum of money in Newry, was afraid to risk an encounter with Redmond or some of his gang on his return to Dundee, his native town.

The youth, in the words of Mr. Cosgrove, author of the "Irish Rogues and Rapparees," went to the field and brought home an old vicious screw (much of the same humor with Sir Teague O'Reagan's war horse, of which he rode out to meet Duke Schomberg, after the surrender of Charlemont).

"I wonder," said his fellow-traveler, "are you so free in your communications with strangers? how can you tell but that I may be Redmond O'Hanlon or one of his gang?"

"Well, at all events, I advise you to be more discreet. Redmond is famous at disfigure, and will pin you if he gets wind of your business. Here's a crown for you to drink my health, but keep a bridle on your tongue."

"How are you carrying it?" "In two ends of this thick wallet." "Dear me! I would like to feel the weight of it out of curiosity, and he approached but the horse lashed out, and he was obliged to keep his distance.

"Throw over that wallet," he said, rather sternly for such a nice-looking gentleman. "O, sir, honey, sure you wouldn't rob me! What would the master say?"

"I don't know, but this is what I say: If you don't surrender it at once I will send a bullet through you, and another through your garran."

"I promised my master not to let myself be robbed till I was in danger of my life. Here is the money; but you must take the trouble of crossing the ditch for it."

So saying, he heaved the bag across the slough that bordered the road and the hedge beyond it into the next field. This annoyed the highwayman, but, judging the prize worth the trouble, he dismounted, and laid hands on the bag.

Hearing a clatter he raised his head and looking over the fence, saw the innocent youth making the road to Dundalk short on his own (Redmond's) good steed, and the vicious beast prancing about on the road and longing for some one to let fly at.

God is not hard to please when we set about doing it in earnest.

beasts gained on him, although they could not turn in the sharp bend of the river like the skates. Nevertheless they gained time, and Louis was constrained to drop a mart on the ice, hoping thereby to gain time. It did indeed assist, as the brutes did their best to stop. The momentum had carried them so far beyond the game that instead of going back they continued the pursuit.

They at once set about getting ready for the winter's business. The dwelling which they constructed was partly dugout and partly cabin—that is, a portion of the front was logs. It was against the side of a perpendicular bluff on the north side of the creek and close to the river.

During the months of November and December they had remarkable success in trapping otter and beaver. They were congratulating themselves upon a season that should surpass anything in their father's experience. But on Christmas eve a cold came that was terrible severity.

On the morning of the first of the year Big John, who lives down the river from Lachine, came up to the village to see if any one had come up from Montreal to accompany him. He found no young men, after strangers to him and to each other.

Through such scenes, incessantly repeated, the imperial pleasure party rode, until a high mountain arose before them, which was opened to their view through a broad avenue cut in the forest.

Again the horses were pushed on, and before the spectators had recovered from the surprise the train suddenly entered a Chinese village, which had been reared for the occasion upon the exact model of one of the most picturesque of Chinese towns, and inhabited by crowds of men, women and children in the garb and engaged in the traffic and sports of the Chinese on a festive day.

The train passed slowly through the street, and they found that it was only the majestic portal to the imperial palace of Tzarosko. As the sledges drove to the door, they were speedily emptied of their contents, and the whole courtly throng of over 4,000 was snatching in those saloons which were amply spacious to entertain them all.

Suddenly a magnificent display of fireworks blazed up, extending in front of all the windows of the palace. As the display faded out, there was another report of cannon, and, as by magic, the candles blazed anew, and a sumptuous entertainment was served.

This is undoubtedly the most brilliant sleighride on record. It is said to have cost $5,000,000. To enable kings and nobles to indulge in such voluptuousness, the millions of Russia were enslaved, doomed to mud hovels, ignorance, black bread and joylessness from the cradle to the grave.

It is not slang to remark "shute the toboggan." Persian advices, report the existence of much anti-foreign feeling in Persia. One to the belief that the English are responsible for the tobacco monopoly.

A Puzzling Question. Brown to his disappointed young friend (Jones)—You must let up on your tods, my young fellow. You could get right along on half of what you are drinking.

Young Jones—Yes, but [his] who'n thunder's goin' to drink the other half?

A $5,000,000 SLEIGHRIDE. A GRAND WHISPERING GALLERY. Words Heard Across a Rocky Mountain Valley Twelve Miles Wide.

Winter has its joys, unsurpassed by any which summer can afford. Who can forget the merry sleighrides of youthful days; the moonlight, the fringe of the forest, the vast expanse of snow, the jingle of the bells, the shouts of laughter, perchance the overturn into the feathery drift, the country tavern with its blazing, crackling fire of wood, the stamping of the young men beating the snow from their boots, the table spread with all luxuries, the music and games, the return long after midnight!

There was a sleigh-ride in Russia, more than a century ago, of such magnitude and splendor as to have been deemed worthy of historic commemoration. Russia's immortal historian Karamsin has devoted to its record several pages.

It was the month of December, 1769. The celebrated empress Catherine II. was upon the throne. Frederick of Prussia and Catherine were conspiring together for an attack upon Poland, that they might divide that kingdom between them. Frederick sent his brother Henry to St. Petersburg, ostensibly for a friendly visit, but in reality to mature plans for the treacherous invasion.

The sleigh which conveyed Catherine and the Prussian prince was a beautiful parlor, capacious, and furnished with every luxury of the time. It was covered and inclosed by double glass in large plates, so that every object without could be distinctly seen.

The night was calm and clear, not a breath of air was stirring, and the full moon rode brilliantly through the star-spangled skies. The road, upon which thousands of laborers had been employed to remove every obstruction, wound all through valleys and forests and with military precision, the brilliant streets of St. Petersburg.

Every mile of the drive was thus marked by some grand structure, which with its blaze of light outshone the splendor of the moon; and in the ingenuity of its devices, with flames of every hue, extended incessant exclamations of wonder and delight.

Early in the evening, and with military precision, the brilliant streets of St. Petersburg. When two miles from the city, the train passed through a triumphal arch, blazing with variegated light.

Through such scenes, incessantly repeated, the imperial pleasure party rode, until a high mountain arose before them, which was opened to their view through a broad avenue cut in the forest.

The national airs were sung or performed by the best trained bands, and all sorts of gymnastic feats, such as vaulting, tumbling and performances on the tight and slack-rope, were exhibited.

Again the horses were pushed on, and before the spectators had recovered from the surprise the train suddenly entered a Chinese village, which had been reared for the occasion upon the exact model of one of the most picturesque of Chinese towns, and inhabited by crowds of men, women and children in the garb and engaged in the traffic and sports of the Chinese on a festive day.

The train passed slowly through the street, and they found that it was only the majestic portal to the imperial palace of Tzarosko. As the sledges drove to the door, they were speedily emptied of their contents, and the whole courtly throng of over 4,000 was snatching in those saloons which were amply spacious to entertain them all.

Suddenly a magnificent display of fireworks blazed up, extending in front of all the windows of the palace. As the display faded out, there was another report of cannon, and, as by magic, the candles blazed anew, and a sumptuous entertainment was served.

This is undoubtedly the most brilliant sleighride on record. It is said to have cost $5,000,000. To enable kings and nobles to indulge in such voluptuousness, the millions of Russia were enslaved, doomed to mud hovels, ignorance, black bread and joylessness from the cradle to the grave.

It is not slang to remark "shute the toboggan." Persian advices, report the existence of much anti-foreign feeling in Persia. One to the belief that the English are responsible for the tobacco monopoly.

Some weeks ago a party of tourists decided to make the ascent. They divided into two parties, one for each peak, taking with them heliographs for the purpose of signaling to each other across the valley. The ascent was made, and so the story goes, while the members of one party were preparing to signal to those of the other, one of the party of the north mountain was surprised to hear voices which apparently came out of the air. He moved his position and the sound was no longer heard. By changing his position several times he discovered that at a certain spot of the mountain he could hear the voices, and it was not long before he discovered that they proceeded from the party on the other mountain.

He called the attention of the others to the phenomenon, and when the attention of the opposite party had been attracted it was found that an ordinary conversation in an ordinary tone of voice was plainly heard from one mountain-top to the other. There was only one place on the mountain where it could be heard, and this appeared to form a natural telephone. No shouting was necessary, and the words were perfectly distinct. Assuming this story to be true, an explanation may be sought in the peculiarities of the mountains, which might serve as elliptical reflectors of sound, (the speakers placing themselves in the foci at each end of the ellipse) and in the low density of the atmosphere at the altitude at which the phenomenon was observed.

SHAKESPEARE'S DEATH.

Did the Illustrious Bard Die of Pneumonia?—A Plausible Theory. Americans and English alike are entranced with Shakespeare. They love the man and all belonging to him, and now they are discussing the question, "Of what did Shakespeare die?"

The writer supplements his arguments by referring to the casts from the mask of the face taken after death, from which the sculptor has copied the face of the great man. The mode of death leaves something of the character of the fatal disease on the dead face.

"Sudden, violent death arrests the muscles in their last contraction. From the soldier's half-parted lips the death rattle cry seems just to have passed. The brakeman, gone to immediate death in a crash, bears upon his face the imprint of his last thought—of duty, of home, or what? The expression of lingering or wasting disease touches the physiognomy differently; death stands near so long that the body becomes accustomed to its presence, and he is not unwellcome. At the end his hand is often gentle, and the features of the dead simply broken placid rest."

On the other hand, the course of death in pneumonia "is laborious." "Toward the end the expression of the face becomes like that of one who is toiling under a burden, breathlessly and without rest. The close of life is the first pause from the weariness and exhaustion," and "the characteristic pneumatic expression remains after death."

On comparing the Shakespeare death mask with the face of the dead of his time of life from pneumonia the identity, the author thinks, can scarcely be mistaken. "That which Mr. Carpenter has described as the look of ineffable sadness is the true pneumatic physiognomy—the look of one who has been tired—painfully tired unto death."

Women and Their Duty. Dr. Arabella Kenely, a London physician, of wide experience, has this to say in regard to women and professions: "Women should not attempt to carry on a profession after marriage. I mean the women of the upper and middle classes who go into the professions. It is not necessary that they should devote upon the bread-winner; that duty should devolve upon the husband, and I am confident that the rising generation would be healthier and stronger in every way if the mothers would exert themselves less. I look anxiously at every baby that comes under my notice in the hope that I shall find some improvement in the type, some increase in stamina, compared with the generation that has preceded it, but instead of this there is only deterioration, particularly noticeable among the children of very active mothers. The cleverest and most highly educated women, the women who take the most active part in public affairs, have the most weakly and puny children. Another thing, women are going into too active forms of exercise. We young married women tell me that she is Captain of a cricket eleven or a football team I can only say I am perfectly agnostic. Women must place before themselves the alternative, to earn their living, to exercise their faculties, and to gratify their ambitions in a professional career, or to become good wives and mothers, and if they choose the domestic life they must recognize that they must sacrifice their personal happiness and ambition in the happiness and success of their children."

HUNTING THE MOOSE.

Experience of a Noble Viscount and his Tutor in Ottawa Woods.

A moose-deer when wounded is a dangerous enemy. This conclusion was arrived at by Viscount Kilfoyle, after a brief but very exciting interview with these lordly animals who roam the Canadian forest.

The young Lord Kilfoyle made up his mind to see as much of the world as he could and as early as possible. With this object in view he engaged a tutor to look after him—a Oxford graduate, the Rev. William White.

It was midwinter in the year 1887 when he reached Ottawa. The terrible cold of a Canadian winter was quite a new thing to his Lordship; but he developed an idea of going into the wilderness and killing some wild animal or animals, and Ottawa was a good place for obtaining the necessary information as to how he should set about it.

Philanthropic persons suggested to the lordly fledgling that a guide—one experienced in woodcraft—should be engaged to prevent a calamity, but my lord of Kilfoyle wanted all the honor to himself of killing a moose.

The moose, as those well acquainted with the animal know, herd together during the severe weather of winter and pick out for themselves a piece of very green woods. This piece of green woods may be twenty miles in circumference, or it may be only five, according to the number herding together.

It was a bright and crisp morning in the month of February that the Viscount and his tutor Mr. White, arrived at one of these "yards." The inhabitant, Jean Baptiste Cay, who drove them in his "jumper" sleigh gave the young men some useful hints. He told them to stick together and be very careful to keep the marks they went along the "paths" so they would be able to return.

As they went forward over one of the paths the tutor would occasionally break down a twig as a means of future guidance. But after an hour's tramping, with no game in sight or hearing, a halt was called, and the Viscount and his companion agreed to divide, but to pursue parallel paths.

The Viscount and Mr. White walked along on different paths, but the tutor was exactly parallel with that of his companion. The paths, however, although seeming parallel, diverged at each step, so that after an hour's steady walking, while each thought he was within hail of the other, the fact was that nearly a mile of territory divided them.

When the bullet struck, the moose sprang into the air with a roar of pain, and then gazing around to see whence came the missile he saw the Englishman. The pain of the wound threw him into a frenzy, he came bounding through the snow. The Viscount, rather taken by surprise by this action of the moose, he was taught to suppose that when a deer was shot at he either should drop or else run away. This animal did neither. He was coming at his enemy with a fierce snarl and his eyes, the foamy flying from rolling smoke.

The sight of the animal, lashed to fury by the agony of the wound was appalling, but the young Englishman was nervous, and he had confidence in his aim and in his rifle. With rapid speed the deer advanced. When within twenty yards the Viscount, raised his rifle again, and, taking careful aim for a spot between the eyes, the rifle cracked.

Whether the bullet went wide of the mark, or whether it struck the frontal bone and glanced off, the Viscount never knew. But this he did know, that before he could fire again the animal was upon him.

As the moose bore down upon the Englishman the latter sprang behind a tree and escaped a blow from the head of the animal that had power enough in it to kill the whole House of Lords. As the Englishman sprang aside from the descending horns and let the tree stand the shock, he unfortunately dropped his rifle, which at once sank out of sight in the deep snow.

Then began a series of dodging movements which developed an amount of agility that surprised the young fellow himself. The wounded moose would charge at his enemy in a way that meant instant death, and the latter would avoid the beast by dodging behind the immense pine which served him for a barricade.

With that hope in his heart he felt equal to the emergency. The moose, after each successive charge would retire ten or fifteen feet, pause for a second or two, and then bear down upon the branches which then served him for a second or two, and then bear down upon the branches which then served him for a second or two.

The sudden turn of affairs bewildered the animal. He shook his head in fury and rage, but the coat still clung to the prongs, partially blinding him. Again and again he endeavored to shake the garment off, but with no avail. Each shake entangled it the more.

With the disappearance of the moose the tutor thought the safest thing to do under the circumstances, was to make for civilization, and as civilization could not possibly be in the same line that the moose had taken he went the opposite way.

The canal is an ancient institution. It co-exists with the remotest periods of human history, since the primitive man discovered the value of an artificial waterway across a peninsula, or from one remote stream to the navigable waters of another.

In the year 1289 the Chinese completed an imperial canal that traversed a distance of 1,000 miles, a forty days sail for the Mongolian junk.

In 181 the famous Languedoc Canal was completed. This gave France an artificial waterway 148 miles in length, with a summit level of 600 feet above the sea, and including upward of 100 locks and fifty aqueducts.

In Great Britain Roman spades dug the first canal, one or more of which are holding water to-day. The canals of the United Kingdom now exceed 47,000 miles in length, and are amongst the best of their kind in the world.

There is a deficit in the Russan treasury of 74,000,000 roubles.

A peculiar condition of affairs exists in the Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota. The wheat crop was so large that farmers were not able to cut and thresh it and do their fall plowing. Threshing machines have been running all winter and much grain is still in the shock and stack. The plowing will have to be done this spring, and unless help can be secured to do it there will be a decreased acreage in 1902. Hundreds of men can get employment there this spring, plowing and seeding.

Wingham.

Rip Van Winkle was presented to a crowded house, by the Wingham Dramatic company, under the leadership of Mr. Harry Hart, on Thursday Jan. 28th. The company acquitted themselves in such a manner that they have been offered a good sum of money and expenses to produce the same on the stage at Kincardine. They will always have a good house at Wingham.

On Wednesday morning, Feb. 10, Miss Maggie Morrison succumbed to consumption. She had been wrestling for about three months with that monster, but had very little pain any more than an increasing weakness, and on the above date death came to her relief.

Mr. Wm. Nesterfield, Jr., had the misfortune to have his fingers severely cut by a saw in Mr. Button's mill last week.

Great crowds of people attended the Sunday School convention held on Wednesday and Thursday of last week.

A Good Story Well Told.

They tell us a story of Mr. Dickson, of Goderich, son of jailor Dickson, that is worth putting in print. The young man was residing in Toronto on one occasion, and with a number of others, was invited to spend an evening at the house of a prominent clergyman. Not arriving as soon as the others did, some of them asked the reason for his being late, when, with a solemn face he replied:

"I went down to the station to see my father, who was on his way to Kingston penitentiary."

Blank amazement quickly settled on the faces of his questioners, and one of them said, "Why, I'm sorry, I wasn't aware he was that kind of a man."

"Oh, yes," replied Dickson, without betraying any feeling, "as a matter of fact he's been in Goderich jail for a considerable length of time."

His companions looked as if they did not appreciate his company any too well, and before many minutes the matter had reached the ears of the host, who with considerable feeling, approached Dickson and asked if the story was true.

"Why certainly," he guilelessly replied, "he's been the jailor at Goderich for a good many years."

The joke quickly dawned upon the clerical mind, and with a look of mingled sternness and amusement he said:—"See here, young man, when you tell a story—tell it all!"—Clinton New Era.

Canon Farrar On Woman.

If it be true that the "corner-stone of the Commonwealth is the hearthstone," how important is the work of every woman, even in that sphere of family life which many are tempted to despise as too narrow for their energies. Every woman should, indeed, aim at doing good in wider regions of life, and should endeavor by the irresistible force of sweet and silent influence, if in no other way, to raise the whole tone of national thought and conduct. But even if a woman, whether married or unmarried, be "never heard of half a mile from home," the purity and loftiness of her ideal, the devoted unselfishness of her life, may tell with immense and continuous power upon every member of her family. The bright invisible air produces effects more stupendous when no more whisper of a breeze is heard than all the fury of a passing hurricane; and the influence, conscious and unconscious, of thousands of women entirely unknown to fame, may go to the ennoblement of the moral being of generations yet unborn. Men are, and ever will be, what their wives and sisters, and above all their mothers, tend to make them, by influence which begins with the cradle and ends only with the grave.—Canon Farrar in the January Ladies' Home Journal.

County Items.

A horse belonging to Mr. G. McTavish of Wingham, made things lively in that town on Saturday afternoon last. The horse became unmanageable and ran away. While turning a corner the occupants of the cutter were thrown out, and Mr. McTavish's mother had her shoulder dislocated by the fall. After running a considerable distance the horse was stopped without doing further damage.

The annual meeting of Melville Presbyterian church, Brussels, was held on the 1st inst. In the congregation there are 115 families; 40 members were added to the church during the year and 17 removed, making a net gain of 28, the present membership being 246. When Mr. Ross, the present pastor, assumed charge of the congregation 12 years ago there was but 116 members. The total amount raised during the year by the congregation for all purposes was $1,967.06, of which $428.62 was for missionary and benevolent work. After paying all expenses and wiping out the debt on the basement there is still a balance of $92 in the treasury.

There died in Turnberry on Friday, the 29th ult., Mrs. Walter Carruthers, aged 78 years. Deceased was born in the year 1819, in the town of Langholm, Dumfrireshire, Scotland, and emigrated to this country about 50 years ago with her husband and settled in the township of Dumfries, county of Waterloo, where they resided for about 32 years, when they removed to the 9th concession of Turnberry, where they had lived ever since. She leaves her aged husband, five sons and one daughter to mourn the loss of a loving wife and kind mother. The daughter and three sons are married. Two sons, Walter and Robert, reside in Dumfries, whilst all the others are still in this vicinity.

There is talk, with a good deal of truth in it, it is said, that the Canadian Pacific Railway is going to have another salt well in Wingham.

The farm which Richard Harvey recently purchased of Mrs. Simon Jory, Thames road, Usborne, contained 150 acres, and the price paid was $10,000. The farm is one of the best in Huron county and has first-class buildings on it.

Miss Elizabeth Chesney, of Ruscoe farm, Tuckersmith, was called away to her better home on the morning of the 27th ult., after an illness of three weeks, which she bore with great patience and Christian fortitude.

Long John Anderson, as he is called, who went to Manitoba about two years ago, is at home in Wingham on a visit. John has done well there. This year he threshed 9,000 bushels of wheat, and 1,500 of oats. He has three boys of his own and they do nearly all the work themselves.

Mr. J. J. Diment has purchased the whey from the Bluevale Cheese Co., for $13 per ton.

The death of Thomas Leggett, ex-treasurer of Logan, on Jan. 29 has caused profound regret among his wide acquaintance. The illness that caused his death started with a slight cold. He was a man of fine character and one of the oldest residents. Over a hundred teams were in the procession. Some few years ago he lost a son who was nearing his manhood, and two years ago his eldest boy lost his life in the St. George railway accident. These sad calamities preyed heavily upon his mind, and he never fully recovered the blow. His sore afflicted wife and family receive the general sympathy of the community.

The Harrison High School has now an attendance of one hundred and eighty pupils and there is still room for twenty-five or thirty more.

On Wednesday, Jan. 27th, Catherine, beloved wife of Jas. Boyd, and daughter of John Devenport, Maryboro' died quite unexpected. On Feb. 5th John Devenport, the father, died and on the 6th Mary, eldest daughter succumbed to the same complaint, la grippe, thus taking three persons from one family within a week of each other, all of whom had had been in good health up to a few days of their death. On Sunday last the funeral of father and daughter took place from the family residence, con. 14, Maryboro', to the Rothsay cemetery and it was a sight which we trust will not often be witnessed in this section—two hearses leaving the same residence at the same time conveying to their last resting place a kind and loving husband and father a beloved daughter. The funeral was attended by the entire neighborhood and was one of the most sad and solemn events that has ever occurred in this section. A heart broken mother, one son and two daughters are left to mourn their sad bereavement.

The following license commissioners have been appointed for East Wellington:—Donald MacMurehy, Robert Stevenson, Samuel Williams.

The mat factory, Mount Forest had a narrow escape from destruction by fire Tuesday evening. By mere chance, a daughter of Mr. A. Thompson, after some trouble, extinguished the blaze, which started in the floor alongside the stove.

The funeral of the late Mayor Goldie at Guelph on Saturday was most impressive. Twelve thousand people attended. It is a peculiar fact that Mr. Goldie is the third and last of the deputation appointed last spring by the South Riding Liberal Conservative Association to attend the funeral of the late Sir John Macdonald. The others were the late Judge Drew and the late F. J. Chadwick.

On Wednesday of last week, Mr. Hayes, of the 4th con. of Arthur, who was chopping wood in the bush, accidentally struck his foot with the axe he was using, the blow severing the big toe, all except a little of the outer skin. The patient was doing well when last heard from, and likely to retain his toe.

It is said that a prophet has no honor in his own country, but the people of Elora seem to take a different view. The Warden elect acknowledged the honor, and thanked his friends for their kindness and the demonstration in honor of him being elected Warden.

In this age, money saving is the great ambition, and most people think it necessary to have a large income, to save enough to keep them in their old age. But how many, or rather how few, are fortunate enough to be thus situated.

Better than Salary is ## Economy.

The Economical husband and the thrifty House-wife can steadily amass wealth without being stingy, but careful. Careful what you buy, where you buy, and what you pay for it.

Our advice in regard to this matter would be: Buy only what you need; Buy it at the Glasgow House and you won't pay too much for it. We don't claim to be giving goods away, but we do claim to have as good value in all, and a great deal better value in some lines, than our competitors. For example

See our 50c. Cashmeres.

The usual verdict is "It's the best goods for the money we have yet seen." You will say the same thing when you see the goods. We have other lines of Dress Goods which show good value, also which would interest you.

We also make a specialty of

GENTS' FURNISHINGS,

SUITINGS,

AND OVERCOATINGS.

If you are contemplating purchasing a suit of Clothes, Spring Overcoat, or anything in the line of Gents' Furnishings, don't make the mistake of purchasing elsewhere before seeing what you can do with us. We keep all qualities from the coarse full cloth to the finest broad cloth, with prices ranging accordingly. ALL WOOL tweed suits made to order, from $10 and up. When you see the Goods the price will suit you.

To those who have not yet favored us with their patronage we would say, "It's never too late to mend."—But the sooner the better.

We will not here enumerate prices. You would only have our word for it. Come and see the goods and price and judge for yourselves. If not satisfactory, don't buy. Remember the place

AGRICULTURAL

Dairy Products

Professor Saunders, director of the Dominion experimental farm, at the annual meeting of the Ontario Dairywomen's Association said that the dairy products of Canada had made for themselves a name and a fame of which this association and the country generally might be proud...

With regard to another very important dairy product, butter, much could not yet be said in praise of the Canadian article, since so much of what we have made in the past has been of inferior quality...

Prof. Saunders gave a brief outline of the system of experimental farms for the Dominion, and more especially of those features in the work of such institutions which had a practical bearing on the dairying industry of the Dominion.

Next proceeded to explain to the association the general plan of dairy work which has been organized by Prof. Robertson, who he recently was prevented from being here to speak for himself.

First, as to the proportion of rennet which it was desirable to use in cheese making, and concerning which there was a great diversity of opinion. Experiments were tried with the extract of rennet, standard strength in the proportions of two, four and six parts per 1,000 milk...

Prof. Fletcher delivered an instructive address on grasses. He pointed out that there were no less than 300 varieties, many of them no good.

It has been found as the result of a very large number of tests that no process of setting and skimming milk will yield as large a percentage of butter fat as can be obtained by the use of the Centrifugal Separator...

A creamery was started at Mount Elgin under the supervision of Prof. Robertson early in the season with the view of demonstrating the advantages of winter dairying.

He followed him. He was going home, and it was growing dark. His road from the station was a lonely one, and he was getting along as fast as he could when he suddenly suspected that a man behind was following him purposely.

Here are a few suggestions to be followed by men who wish to keep their names out of the newspapers. Don't have any enemies. Don't inherit money. Don't lose it. Don't sign any petitions. Don't subscribe to any lecture courses or stock companies.

Don't get inane. Don't get sick. Don't accept presents. Don't do anything that might bring you a vote of thanks or commendation. Don't sue anybody. Don't get sued. Don't go to law at all. Don't live to be an octogenarian. Don't die.

THE CZAR AT HOME.

In the Russian Windsor at Gatchina, by the seaside at Peterhof, or in the Danish park at Copenhagen, the Emperor delights for a time to forget the cares of state in the society of his wife and children.

No, ma'am, she isn't called Polly. Her name is Loretta. I've had her long while. A gentleman gave her to me. She is very old, and I'm fond of her, for she saved my life.

To Remove Black Ink Stains. Several subscribers ask how ink stains can be removed. If the stained article is washed immediately in several waters and then in milk, letting it soak in the milk for several hours, the stains will disappear.

CLIMBING TENERIFFA

In 1878 last year Mr. H. T. Munro, an English mountain climber, ascended the famous peak of Teneriffe, in the Canary Islands, from the little town of Orotava at its northern foot.

King Christian IV.

The Princess of Wales' father, King Christian of Denmark, is now 73 years old. At one time, before he came to the throne, he was obliged to give evening lessons in order to support his family, and the Princess of Wales used to make her old dresses over and over again, with excellent taste, it is said.

Golden Thoughts For Every Day.

Monday—Beauty is but a vain and doubtful good, a shining glass, that breaks on every side; A brittle glass, that's broken on every side; A brittle glass, that's broken on every side; A brittle glass, that's broken on every side.

Continuation of agricultural text from the left page, including sections on dairy products, ink stains, and various anecdotes.

Last Thursday's elections proved a veritable Sedan for the Reformers. Our neighbor on the North—East Bruce—fought a bitter contest which ended in the Conservatives wresting the constituencies away from their opponents and placing Mr. Cargill at the head of the polls by a majority of 18 (or possibly 9.) In the six other contests which occurred on that day, five Conservatives were elected.

The Ontario Legislature is now in session at Toronto, having commenced on Monday. The speech from the Throne has been received by the House and is under discussion. Mr. Sol White has announced himself as an annexationist and was promptly repudiated by Mr. Meredith. Dominion government methods have come in for a fair share of comment, but the members have not yet got down to solid Provincial work.

Reinoco.

The nuptials of another of our respected citizens were celebrated last Wednesday at the home of the bride's father, Mr. McBride. The felicitous couple is Mr. Wm. Bridge and Miss McBride. They are spending the honeymoon in Toronto. The L. O. Y. B. concert which was to have taken place here last Friday was postponed on account of the inclemency of the weather. Mrs. (Rev.) A. C. Stewart returned from Toronto last week. We are pleased to learn her mother is recovering. Mr. Geo. Brimmer commenced teaching here on Monday. Mr. A. Stewart, of Bolton, is visiting his brother the Rev. A. C. Stewart. Mr. John Inglis, from Chicago, is visiting at his brother's Mr. Thos. Inglis. There is more excitement over the elections in Bruce, now than ever. At first it was thought Mr. Cargill was elected. Then at the official count on Saturday Mr. Truax was reported in by 8 votes. As they are having a re-count it is hard to say which will be in.

Second Line Items.

Mr. Rolston Dunlop, of Chicago, is at present visiting his uncle, Mr. Dunlop. Miss Lizzie Armstrong is the guest of Miss Ella Cooper at present.

Huntingfield.

A pleasant party was held at the residence of Mr. John Johnston, jr., on Wednesday evening last. An enjoyable time was spent in dancing and other social amusements, until an early hour in the morning, when all departed for home highly delighted with the way Mr. J.'s family had entertained them. There has been no curing on the rink here as yet this winter. This is no doubt accounted for by the unusual amount of sickness which has prevailed hereabouts of late. Mr. John Doig, of the 2nd con., Carrick, has been quite seriously ill of late, but is now, we are pleased to say, improving nicely. Mrs. Robt. Nichols is now among those who are on the sick list. Several Huntingfield people attended the wedding of Miss Hicks, daughter of Mr. Simon Hicks, which occurred at her father's home, in Minto, a few miles east of Fordwich, on Wednesday, Feb. 17th. Miss Hicks is well and favorably known and her many friends wish her much happiness. The snow is very deep hereabouts but work in the woods is not retarded. Some of the sidelines are partially blocked, yet not sufficiently so to prevent traffic.

Orange Hill.

We expect a wedding here soon as one of our young bloods makes his trips regular. He intends taking his wedding trip to Germany where he will see her many friends. As Mr. A is a very highly esteemed young man we wish them a pleasant trip. Mr. Alex. Montgomery, Jr. paid Neustadt a visit this week. Mr. Robt. Ferguson is very busy at present making preparations for his new house. Mr. John Padfield is going to draw milk next summer. Mr. John Montgomery paid his friends at a distance a visit lately.
