First Wireless Distress Call.

The first case on record of 'wireless' being employed by a ship in distress occured on March 3, 1899.
On this date the R. F. Matthews ran into the East Goodwin lightship during a heavy fog. The weather conditions would, in the old days, have rendered the work of rescue very difficult, if not impossible. But the R. F. Matthews was equipped with what was then a novelty—Marconi's system of wireless telegraphy Messages were sent ashore and speedily brought infe-boats to the rescue.—London—Globe.

There is always, at this time of the year, a number of boys in very community who feel very eluctant to go back to school, and who begin to negotiate with their parents for permission to leave school, on one pretext or another. They fancy that if they can only They fancy that if they can only go to work, they will be men at once. Heaven help us all, won't they be men only too soon, without trying to forestall the years which will run by so quickly? Do not let these whims prevail. Remember, the conditions of today call more loudly than ever for education, for mental power, for the ability to distinguish the sound from the hollow, the false from the true, the worthwhile from the useless. Keep the boys at school—Antigonish Casket. at school-Antigonish Casket.
