New Catholic Text Book.

The Catholic Scholar's Introduction to English Literature. This is the title of a text-book for the use of Catholic Schools, by Arnold Harris Mathew, (De jure Bail of Lands). Revised by Very Rev. W. A. Sutton, S. J., Rector of Mangret College, Limerick. The work is published by James Duffy & Co., Ltd., Dublin, and bears the date of 1904. It is a volume of four hundred and twenty pages, with a table of contents and a full index. The mechanical part of the work is well executed; it is printed in good type on fine white paper. The author sets forth in his preface that the volume is intended to be nothing more than an introduction to English Literature, and to provide a text book suitable for placing in the hands of Catholic children in statu pupillari. In our opinion the author has performed his task exceedingly well. A work of this kind demands, not only rare literary judgment, but also a very wide range of reading and unusual powers of discrimination. The ability to judiciously select and properly condense are most necessary qualifications in the preparation of such volumes as the one before us. To maintain a fair proportion under all these conditions is by no means an easy matter. Despite these difficulties the author has provided a volume, which, if not perfect, must certainly go a long way towards supplying a want that must have long been felt. The author brings us back to the dawn of English letters. He points out that the heroic legend of King Arthur, sung by Merlin, Geoffrey of Monmouth and Walter Map runs through all our literature down to our own time and is sung in noble and lofty strains by Tennyson, in The Idylls of the King. He presents to us St. Caedmon, the author of the first great Christian poem in English Literature. He was a contemporary of the Venerable Bede, our first great writer of prose. His writings lend lustre to the literary record of England in the seventh century. St. Caedmon must have written between 657 and 680, while the Venerable Bede flourished towards the end of the century. From these writers the author conducts us step by step, presenting to us King Alfred and numerous saintly churchmen, who all contributed to the development of our language and expansion of our literature, till he comes to Geoffrey Chaucer, the great genius "who harmonised, regulated and made popular the discordant elements of the English speech." The genius of Chaucer is faithfully exemplified to us by the author, and the achievements of himself and contemporaries are set before us in due proportion. Henceforth the author divides our literary history into periods, presenting for consideration what is worthy in each epoch. From Chaucer to the Elizabethan age, our author passes, pointing out what is best at a time when no great literary light appears. The Elizabethan age was most prolific of renowned literary geniuses. This was the age of Shakespeare, Johnson, Spenser, Sir Francis Bacon, Sir Philip Sidney, and scores of other eminent literary men. The author deals with each, according to his estimation of their merit and the limits of his space. In the early Stuart period we have Massinger, Beaumont Fletcher and numerous others. This brings to the days of Milton, the greatest epic poet in our language. In due course the author sketches the literary achievements of Dryden, Pope, Macaulay, Byron, Dr. Samuel Johnson, Burns, Campbell, Scott, Tennyson, Newman, and the numerous other writers of prose and verse, who have shed lustre on the literature of their times. We are unable at present to deal at any greater length with the work under review. We would, however, recommend it to the favorable consideration of those charged with the education of youth.

The author certainly deserves praise for devoting much time as could be spared from his official duties to the compilation of a work of this kind, and it is to be hoped his labors in this direction will be appreciated at their proper value.

"The Christian ideal, of course," says the Ave Maria, "is to do one's work, no matter what it may be, for the glory of God, according to the counsel of St. Paul, but the average Christian is a lamentably imperfect being, spurred on to action by a variety of motives; and it can scarcely be doubted that the judicious praise of the worthy is a genuinely powerful incentive to renewed efforts along the arduous path of either public or private duty. The withholding of such encouragement is often excused on the ground that its bestowal may engender responsible feelings of vanity, may foster a pre-occupied pride of self-conceit; but there is commonly more exaggeration than reality in the alleged fear of producing such harmful results."

To remember that for each day of the week there is a special devotion, Sunday, the Holy Trinity. Monday, the Souls in Purgatory. Tuesday, the Guardian Angels. Wednesday, St. Joseph. Thursday, the Blessed Sacrament. Friday, the Sacred Heart and the Passion. Saturday, the Blessed Virgin. That the months are also consecrated to particular devotions, the most generally observed being: March, St. John. May, the Blessed Virgin. June, the Sacred Heart. July, the Precious Blood. October, the Guardian Angels and the Rosary. November, the Souls in Purgatory. To hear Mass, or perform some work of devotion, on the feast-day of one's patron saint. To congratulate clergymen and members of religious communities on their namesdays; that is, the feast-days of their patron saints. To know that in Catholic countries the namesdays are celebrated as well as the birthdays. To know that the patronal feast of a country is always a day of obligation; as the Feast of the Immaculate Conception in the United States, St. Patrick in Ireland, St. Boniface in England, etc. To pray to St. Anthony for things that are lost or misplaced. To St. Aloysius the patron of youth, for assistance in studies and the virtues of parity. To St. Cecilia, the patroness of musicians, for success in musical studies. To St. Thomas Aquinas, patron of philosophers, for a clear understanding of philosophical and theological questions. To St. Roch for the restoration of health, and when a plague is threatened. To St. Blaise for a cure of all diseases of the throat. To St. Anne, Mother of the Blessed Virgin and patroness of married women, for all the graces and assistance necessary in the matrimonial state. To St. Patrick, the great apostle of Ireland, for conversions. To make a novena, that is, the nine day's prayer, by way of preparation for the great feast-days in the year. If this novena is public in the church, to be punctual in attendance, and to arrive in time. If absolutely impossible to make the novena in the church, to do so at home, having a stated hour each day for saying the prayers. To know that the first Friday of the month is consecrated especially to the Sacred Heart, and that all members of the League should make their Communion of Reparation on that day. To know that a plenary indulgence may be gained on that day on the usual conditions.

An oath is the calling of God to witness the truth of what one says or promises. Two conditions are requisite to the being of an oath: (1) the intention to take it, and (2) the outward expression of that intention by words or signs. So vital is the former of these conditions that, on the one hand, there never can be an oath without it, and, on the other hand, with it, there is an oath even when the outward expression is of itself ambiguous. Nay, one who really means to take an oath, but employs some word or sign of itself not apt to express his intention, in order before God the responsibility of having taken an oath (See Lehmann, Moral Theology, Vol. 1, p. 253, ed. of '88).

The intention is thus the soul of an oath, so to say. But, unless otherwise made known, the intention is judged by the words or signs employed in individual cases. If the words or signs are the conventional forms for the taking of an oath, the one who uses them is presumed to have taken an oath; otherwise, he is not. Thus, if a man says, "I call God to witness," or "So help me God," or kisses the Bible, or signs his name to a declaration beginning with the words, "I swear," or lifts his hands and solemnly says, "I swear," he is presumed to have taken an oath, for these are so many different ways which literary usage or convention has determined to be of themselves expressive of an oath. On the other hand, if he simply says "I swear," he need not, and perhaps should not, strictly speaking, be presumed to have taken an oath. The reason is that the calling of God to witness is only implied in the meaning of the word, and one need not mean all that a word implies though he should employ it. But all this is a going by presumption merely. If the one who says "I swear," really means to take an oath, there is not the shadow of a shade of doubt that he takes it.

The Oath.

Special Devotions.

An Ungracious Habit.

An ungracious habit, and one that does not receive half the condemnation it deserves is that of "forgetting." A peculiarity of this species of forgetfulness is that it almost invariably affects other people's concerns, whilst it is rare indeed that the interest of the offender is involved. Selfishness predominates here as in the neglect of those other duties of friendship or charity, the scrupulous discharge of which adds so largely to the "likeableness" of life and which none but a really selfish person will ignore. Forgetful individuals are frequently profuse in their promises, and indeed often undertake more than it would be reasonable to expect them to perform. Yet the fault lies at their own door, and experience ought to have taught them the limit of their powers and the unkindness of raising expectations they cannot hope to fulfil.

There are those, however, who could if they would do all they promise to do; but their resolutions are of a vague and shadowy description when it is only "someone else's" interest or pleasure which is at stake, and even if they get through the formality of making a note of the matter it runs none the less risk of being forgotten, simply because self is not vitally interested. A girl, kind enough at heart, perhaps, promises a visit, a letter, a gift to a neglected friend or relative, but she "forgets," and to the intense disappointment of the expectant one, the promise never merges into performance. Eventually the girl even forgets she has forgotten, but the sting of disappointment rankles long in the heart of her friend. In similar manner during the month of the Holy Souls many promise a Mass for the alleviation of the poor Soul's suffering, but nine times in ten Christmas will have come and gone, and the promised Mass will be still unaided. Then there are appeals in various directions for help, advice, or information, which could be readily responded to without the slightest inconvenience; but the forgetful one, though knowing her own weakness, instead of instantly carrying out the good intention, puts the matter off to another day and ends by forgetting all about it. In many homes this lack of memory on the part of one or other member of the family causes much avoidable misery and discomfort, and occasions that trying irregularity which in its turn brings the inevitable friction so destructive of Christian charity, and, if it be the female head of the household who is the offender, it may be regarded as a foregone conclusion that the true spirit of home-life will indeed be absent. There are some peculiarly constituted persons who seem to live in a state of chronic forgetfulness of their most obvious duties, and who yet appear to think that the excuse "I am sorry, but I forgot," is sufficient apology for every lapse of memory, however unpleasant the consequences which supervene. Just as pure selfishness is at the root of all this "forgetting," so is consideration for others the mainspring of that kindly charity which never neglects or forgets the claims of friend and fellow, and which seeks to know and pays regard to their idiosyncrasies, their thoughts and their feelings as much in small things as in great. Self-interest is a wonderful stimulant to memory, and when any personal gain or pleasure is to be obtained by remembering, seldom indeed is heard the unpardonable plea: "I forgot." Once in a while, perhaps, under stress of exceptional circumstances, the excuse may be validly offered; ordinarily it is but a confession of extreme selfishness whose acknowledgment should arouse in the delinquent a sense of deepest shame.—Clara, in Catholic Weekly.

"Why are the young sons of our rich families going so fast to the grave and the devil?" asks the Western Watchman. And answering its own question, our esteemed contemporary says: "Because they are not brought up right. They are taught no moral restraint. They have no religion. If they ever had it, it was driven out of them by the example of their parents and of early, immoral companions." The Watchman contrasts the state of things with that which obtains in Europe, and says: "Rich fathers and mothers in this country should learn from their brothers and sisters across the water. There are no children so carefully brought up or more closely watched than the sons of the European nobility."

There are those, however, who could if they would do all they promise to do; but their resolutions are of a vague and shadowy description when it is only "someone else's" interest or pleasure which is at stake, and even if they get through the formality of making a note of the matter it runs none the less risk of being forgotten, simply because self is not vitally interested. The Bad Cold of To-Day MAY BE PNEUMONIA TO-MORROW.

The sore throat or choking cough that, to the careless, seems but a trivial annoyance, may develop into Pneumonia, Bronchitis, or some Throat or Lung trouble.

DR. WOODS NORWAY PINE SYRUP

contains all the long-acting virtues of the pine tree, and is a sure cure for Coughs, Colic and all Throat or Lung troubles. Mrs. B. Hutchinson, 186 Angell Street, Toronto, writes: "I have been a sufferer from Chronic Bronchitis for years and have found Dr. Woods' Norway Pine Syrup far better than any of the hundreds of remedies I have used. Our whole family uses it in cases of Coughs or Colic. We would not be without it."

Don't be bungled into taking something "just as good," ask for Dr. Woods' and insist on getting it. Put up in yellow wrapper, three pine trees in the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A well known artist overheard a countryman and his wife ridiculing his picture, which represented a farm scene. He was so indignant that he at last interposed with the remark: "That painting is valued at a hundred pounds. Allow me to ask if you are familiar with works of art?" "Not very familiar with art," replied the farmer, "but I know something about Nature, young man. When you make a cow that gets up from the ground by putting her fore feet first you do something that Nature never did."

There is nothing better for children's Coughs and Colic than Dr. Woods' Norway Pine Syrup. It is very pleasant to take and always cures the little ones' coughs promptly.

A lady recently engaged to a widower asked his son, a little fellow of seven years: "How would you like me for your step-mother?" "First-rate, as far as I'm concerned," he replied. "You'll have to speak to papa about it, though."

Clears Away Worms.

Mrs. Wm. Graham, Sheppardton, Ont., writes: "I have given Dr. Low's Worm Syrup to my boy time and again and find it a good worm medicine. It is nice to take and never makes the child sick like powders." Price 25c.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

A story is told of a certain newly appointed judge who remonstrated with counsel as to the way in which he was arguing his case. "My lord," said the barrister "you argued such a case in a similar way when you were at the Bar." "Yes, I admit that," quietly replied the judge. "But that was the fault of the judge who allowed it?"

An All-Round Remedy.

Mrs. Hannonson, Biscarib, Man. writes: "I have used Haggards' Yellow Oil for Sore Throat, Cuts, Scalds and Frostbites for a long time and consider it the best all-round household remedy made." Price 25c. all dealers.

In a Liverpool restaurant recently a gentleman left his wife for a few moments to chat with an acquaintance at another table, and while he was there his friend persuaded him to partake of some lamb. Under a misapprehension the waiter removed the lamb before he had eaten it, whereupon he exclaimed, "Goodness! Where is my lamb?"

His wife, overhearing the question answered in a clear voice, "Here I am, darling."

Minard's Liniment cures Colds etc.

THREE Trying Times in A WOMAN'S LIFE

WHEN MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS are almost an absolute necessity towards her future health. The first when she is just budding from girlhood into the full bloom of womanhood. The second period that constitutes a special drain on the system is during pregnancy. The third and the one most liable to leave heart and nerve troubles is during "change of life." In all three periods Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will prove of wonderful value to tide over the time. Mrs. James King, Cornwall, Ont., writes: "I was troubled very much with heart trouble—the cause being to a great extent due to 'change of life.' I have been taking your Heart and Nerve Pills for some time, and mean to continue doing so, as I can truthfully say they are the best remedy I have ever used for building up the system. You are at liberty to use this statement for the benefit of other sufferers." Price 50 cents per box or three boxes for $1.25. All dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

We wish all our readers a Merry Christmas.

As we are approaching the Christmas season, when we are expected to be kindly disposed towards our fellow men, we earnestly desire to be partakers of the good wishes and friendly dispositions of this festive time.

The struggle between the Government and the spirit of revolution still goes on in Russia. Every day brings fresh intelligence of strikes and outbreaks and threats of extraordinary violence from different parts of the country.

The general election campaign in the Province of Saskatchewan, which terminated on Wednesday last week, was an extremely hot one, and the final result is still somewhat in doubt.

The following intelligence from Ottawa throws some light on the hog question: An Order-in-Council which was recently passed prohibiting the importation of American hogs and which was never put in force, had been kept in suspense until such time as the Minister of Agriculture had discussed the whole matter with the Canadian packers of hogs.

month half the hogs used came from the States. The minister has yet to meet the Canadian breeders of hogs who are of the opinion that the packers could get hogs in Canada if they paid a little more for them.

and Plato, men of the East like Confucius and Buddha, men of theory like Aristotle, and men of practice like Solon and Numa—all had attempted in some way to better mankind by their teaching or their laws.

The Meaning of Christmas Day.

By The Very Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, S. T. D. Professor of Church History in the Catholic University of America.

(Copyright, 1905, by The Catholic Associated Press.)

The season of Advent has drawn once more to its close, and the mystic exaltation of soul which the Christian religion annually nourishes in its adherents finds its fulfilment and reward in the birth of that Infant for whose coming Time and Humanity were so long consumed with hope and expectation.

DRAMATIC NOTE IN ADVENT SERVICES.

As the splendid drama approaches its solution, its may currents merge into ever fewer and deeper and broader. The follies, the passions, the extravagances of men, all the immemorial wrong and injustice of the world, all the stony-heartedness, and stiff-neckedness, the ingratitude and the treachery, the vanity and the waywardness, fall away from the stage and in their place moves out the central figure of Humanity,—its Teacher and its Lawgiver, its Liberator, its Reconciler.

Out of the thousand conflicting elements of the human story, there stand out three things,—the Internal Strife within the soul of man, the External Strife within the bounds of Creation, and the Great Reconciliation or Appeasement that was worked by Jesus Christ.

A DIVINE TEACHER AND LAW-GIVER.

It is as a Teacher and a Law-giver that Jesus Christ is sent to us by the Eternal Father. He is sent, as He so often tells us. No teacher chooses himself, but is called by one greater than he. The Father saw, as he now sees, that the key of human misery was our own disordered will and darkened mind.

He taught the whole cycle of truth, gashed all men into His fold, laid before them clearly the necessary and attainable scope of their being, and did all this with ineffable suavity and irresistible power.

"O Wisdom that goest forth from the mouth of the Most High, recumbent from end unto end, and disposses all things with strength and sweetness, come and teach us the way of prudence! O Orient, thou splendor of light eternal and sun of justice, come and shed thy rays upon those who are seated in darkness, even in the shadow of death."

In the fulness of time He came in a divine and incomprehensible way. He filled the world with His teaching. First and only one of mankind, He was Himself perfect as His teaching. And He gave us His Holy Spirit, and perfect law its firmest support in the commentary of His own life and Death.

COMMUNION WITH MANKIND.

The true teacher must feel with and for disciples. And so, when Christ would be born to teach all mankind to rise above itself, and to be again like the image of God, He entered into the most intimate relations with Humanity. Most men are poor, unhappy, pitiable; it is only the few who are otherwise, nor is their lot a certain one. So Jesus was born in a wretched manger and bore every pang and whip of poverty and sorrow; He was despised and dependent, that He might teach us how to look on all these things, might leave to the most helpless of our race the strong supporting philosophy of a Divine Example, might glorify and sanctify these menial conditions of our birth and training.

This day, nineteen hundred years ago, they were killing fat bees at the altars of the Temple, and repeating the solemn promises of the Lord that He would rend the heavens and rain down the Just One. Something, too, was stirring the hearts of men at Rome and in the Orient lands. A Virgin sings his mystic lines, that even yet seem the highest flight of human hope in days of despair.

The Holy Church is well aware that the evils of life are not all traceable to the shortcomings of men; there is an external power, the power of Satan, the source of temptations and disorder, the irrepressible root of rebellion. Against this manifold power she holds the Birth of Jesus as the coming of Israel. His right arm shall be stretched out to ward off the host of impiety. Long had Israel known the roads that led down into exile; often had the people of God watered their bread with their tears in the lands of Pharaoh, or Cyrus or the Ptolemies or Caesar.

But now Judah is passing away. The shadow of the sword lies over the City and the Temple. A new light falls on the pages of the Old Law from the Crib of Bethlehem. There is indeed a new Captain, a new Liberator, but no longer from the thralldom of Egyptian or Assyrian or Greek. This new Captain comes to break the gates of hell, to free the souls of men from their real oppressor, whom as yet they only dimly recognize.

The officers of No. 1 Division A. O. H. for the ensuing year are:—President—Dr. F. F. Kelly Vice-President—M. Curran, (re-elected); Fin Secy—Maurice Galvin; Treas.—W. W. Walker, (re-elected); Recy—Secy—Walter Ryan; Exec. Com.—John McAleer, John Gormery, Wm. Hennessy, John McQuillan, L. J. McMahon.

"O Adonai, thou Leader of the House of Israel, who didst appear to Moses in the Law on Mount Sinai, come and redeem us in the strength of thy arm! O Key of David, and Sceptre of the House of Israel, who doest open and no man doth open come and free the captive from his prison-house, where he sitteth in darkness and in the shadow of death!"

In this double conflict with the force within and without himself, man was being ground as wheat between the upper and the nether millstones. He did not understand the terms of the struggle, and his best efforts, both in the Law and outside of the Law went for naught. From many a heart in those days went up the cry of the Apostle, "Unhappy me! who shall free me from the body of this death?"

Truly, He made the twin to be one when He healed so potently the evil bias of our hearts and the perverse darkness of our minds; when He called Himself the Son of God and accepted the name of Friend of Sinners; when He took the title of King of the Jews and yet sent His Apostles to the ends of the earth; when He set with publicans and sinners and rebuked the proud and lofty Pharisees. He made the twin to be one when He ignored the narrow lines of nationality and created a Heavenly Fatherland, in which men could hold a citizenship that transcended whatever was highest in the political world made by man.

Truly, He made the twin to be one when He proclaimed the henceforth ineradicable principles of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. Through long and painful ages some men like the Stoics had some within sight of these holy principles, but their insight, their scrupulousness were only valiant, rude mental sketches of an Utopia beyond the grasp of Humanity. The people were sunk in a Malebolge of sin and wrong and ignorance; their rulers were men of blood and iron, skilled in the logic of despotism, the logic of the sword.

A NEW AND PERFECT BROTHERHOOD. Truly our Brother was born to-day, and with Him we too are born into the sweet bond and union of Brotherhood. Perhaps by the lapse of ages and the very commonness of the Christian name, we have ceased to be moved by the mighty concept that lies in the Birth of Jesus Christ among men, as a man with a real human nature and manner. It was our Maker, our Governor, our final Judge, who this day put on flesh, compressed the law of His Godhead, and entered the cycle of our poor life.

It was no mere chance or whim that He did so; it was the result of divine counsel, fore-seen from the beginning and fore-ordained. He came as a Man and a Brother to relieve the awful pressure of inequality and injustice to measure men of the equal dignity of the human soul, in whatever frame it has its being; to rekindle in such human souls as would listen to Him a mutual respect for one another, and, based on that, a tender love for one another, and the love of Christian Charity.

consciousness? Are we dealing now with one another as men who recognize the Christian dignity in one another, that dignity which Leo the Great could appeal to as a warning not to fall back upon the former villainess of our state? In our incredible passion for wealth, in our reckless crushing of the poor man's equal right to life and its comforts, in the expansion of our commerce and industry, in our legislation, in our public opinion, in the estimate we set upon the goods of life, in the uses we find for our activities, in the ideals we follow or encourage others to follow, do we keep in mind that we are all brethren of Jesus Christ and children of a New Life, a New State, the Kingdom of Heaven?

Or has the idea of the Kingdom of Heaven perished from among us? And is it true, as the critics of our country so often tell us, that we are the least Christian of peoples, that we are sunk to the lowest plane of naturalism, and that we bound man, life, the spirit, God, and the things of the soul by the circumference of a yellow coin?

Jesus Christ is still our King. No! in spite of all that appears upon the surface, we are still, and we know ourselves for the brethren of that little infant, who this day was born for the welfare of mankind. And if we have perchance, allowed this thought to slumber; if we have not translated it into our dealings with one another, with the world about us, with the false, the empty, and the insufficient ideals of existence, we shall, God willing, do so henceforth. None of us will again say with Cain "Am I my brother's keeper?" But we will remember that this little Babe, grown to manhood, left to the world the parable of the Good Samaritan; that He went about doing good; that He healed and consoled and blessed and encouraged all sorts and conditions of men and women; that His whole activity went out into the social betterment of the world about Him, that He is the author of the Golden Rule, and that He transformed a degenerate world not with praise or promise, but by deed and example. What wonder that the Angels, weary of the endless round of human wrong and misery, broke out into that chorus of joyful praise, as they contemplated the changes which the Birth of Christ was sure to inaugurate. What wonder that the poet's fancy was touched with inspiration as the glories of Christ's reign on earth opened before his anointed eyes!

Ring out ye crystal spheres,
Once bless our human ears,
If ye have power to touch our senses so;
And let your silver chime
Move in melodious time;
And let the bass of heaven's deep organ blow;
And with your ninefold harmony,
Make up full concert to the angelic symphony.
For, lo! such holy song
Bewrap our faggy long,
Time will run back and fetch the age of gold;
And Speckled vanity
Will sicken soon and die,
And leprous sin will melt from earthly mould,
And hell itself will pass away,
And leave her dolorous mansions to the peering day.
Yes, truth and justice then
Will down return to men,
Orb'd in a rainbow; and, like glories wearing,
Mercy will all between
Throuse in celestial sheen,
With radiant feet the tissued clouds
Down steering;
And heaven, as at some festival,
Will open wide the gates of her high palace hall."

DIED

At the Prince Edward Island Hospital, on Dec. 12th, of heart failure, James Alfred Groom, aged 89 years, leaving a wife and three children, R. I. P.
In this city, on the 12th, Elizabeth McMahon, relict of the late Michael McQuaid, aged 77 years. She leaves to mourn one daughter, a Sister of the Congregation de Notre Dame, now in Montreal, and three sons, Thomas, Phillip and Peter of this city. May her soul rest in peace.
At Springfield, Oct. 67, on Nov. 15th, 1906, Catherine Isabella, aged eleven years and four months second and youngest daughter of Ronald and Mary McDonald. She leaves to mourn her sudden death, a sorrowing father, mother, eight brothers, one sister and a kind and good aunt, besides a host of kind and loving friends. May her soul rest in peace.

Canada is expected to have a visit pretty soon from Prince Arthur of Connaught. The Prince is on his way to Japan on a mission from his Majesty King Edward, to the Emperor of Japan, and will return home by way of Canada. The Dominion Government has sent an invitation to his Royal Highness which has been accepted. The Prince will land at Vancouver and will come thence to Halifax over the C. P. R.

The Summerside papers contain the following particulars of the sad death from hemorrhage of Clovis Arsenault, who was found within a quarter of a mile of his home on Monday morning of last week: The young man had recently returned from a trip to the United States. Although in somewhat delicate health he was apparently well on Sunday and, in company with some other young men, went out to spend the evening at a neighbor's residence. He left the house with the other young men and parted with them after going some distance. Before reaching home, however, he took hemorrhage. When his body was found next morning it lay near a post. Hanging on the post with his cap, showing that he had either leaned against the post as he was weakening from loss of blood; or, that when he found himself dying and likely to be covered by the drifting snow he hung up his cap as a signal to his friends who would begin searching for his body next day. Deceased was a son of Dominic Arsenault and was twenty-two years of age. The circumstances of his death are most sad and the family have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

LOCAL AND OTHER ITEMS.

Four men were killed and twenty injured by an explosion of dynamite while excavating for a new building on Fifth Avenue New York yesterday.

We are indebted to Mr. E. H. Mochoern of the Confederation Life Insurance Association for a very handsome Calendar for 1906.

Our readers will make no mistake in purchasing their goods from the merchants who advertise in the Herald. Read the advertisements of our patrons in this issue.

A cable of the 11th from Havana to Halifax says the cargo of potatoes and fish of the steamer Angola has been landed in good condition. The vessel has been floated.

The worst storm of years raged at Newf, N.S., last Friday night. After incessant rain the streets in the lower part of this city were flooded and the harbor crowded with weather bound vessels.

St. Luke's Cathedral (Episcopal), Halifax 60 years old, was destroyed by fire on an early hour last Thursday morning. The fire is said to be the work of incendiaries. The building was insured for $20,000 and the organ $6,000.

One hundred tons of coal and steel freight moved from Sydney and North Sydney to Point Tupper, between Saturday night and Monday noon. This is doubtless the shipment of freight made at one time over these lines, and great activity in the activities at the Sydneys.

The tenth annual meeting of the Provincial Fruit Growers' Association opened in the Market Hall here yesterday forenoon. Addresses were given at the meetings during the day and evening and several valuable papers were read. There is a fine display of fruit.

While Roy Green of Hamilton, Ont., was out driving with his two daughters, aged seven and ten years, on Monday evening, their buggy was run into by a street car. The oldest daughter was killed outright, and the other had her leg broken and was otherwise badly injured. Green himself was picked up out of the ditch badly shaken up; but not seriously hurt.

The market was very largely attended yesterday and there was an abundance of commodities on sale. The prices showed a lower tendency as compared with Friday's market. For pork 8 cents was the ruling price; goose, and fowl also showed a slight tendency to drop. Other than the conditions did not say very much from a week ago.

The Democrats were victorious in Boston on the 12th, the majority election resulting in the election of former Congressman John F. Fitzgerald in a field of four candidates. Fitzgerald's plurality over his nearest competitor, Louis A. Frothingham was 8,300. The vote was unusually heavy for a city election, over 90,000 votes being cast out of a total registration of 114,000.

The election court to try the petition of Howatt vs. Lefurgey, opened at Summerside on Tuesday the 12th, the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Fitzgerald presiding. The Judges announced they were ready to go on with the trial. Counsel for the petitioner stated they had no evidence to offer, and on motion of counsel for respondent the petition was dismissed with costs against the petitioner. Mr. Lefurgey retains his seat.

The following marine intelligence comes from Halifax, dated the 18th: The schooner Exotic from Notre Dame Bay for Halifax, with 2,000 quintals of dry fish is a total loss at Seldom—Come-By, Newfoundland. The crew were saved. The cargo is insured for $5,000 in Lloyd's and $2,000 in Mannheim. The schooner Bronson H. is 26 days out from Catalons, Newfoundland, for this port and fears are entertained for her safety. She has 3,000 quintals of dry fish. The vessel and cargo are insured in Lloyd's.

The insurance appraisers came to an arrangement last Friday night as to the losses to be paid on account of the disastrous fire at the store of Weeks & Co. For the stock of Weeks & Co. the amount allowed was $21,572.00. On the store the damage was estimated at $1,000 and between $100 and $200 on the furniture. Mr. Butcher, insurance appraiser of St. John, with Mr. Fred Perkins representing Weeks & Co and John McLean of Souris on behalf of the companies, had the matter in hand. The losses on account of damage by smoke at S. A. McJannet's and Moore & McLeod's were also adjusted.

The steamer Northumberland completed her season's work on the Summerside-Point du Chene route on Friday last, coming direct to Charlottetown from Point du Chene that night. Since that date the Northumberland and Princess have been making an alternate days between Charlottetown and Pictou. One of the steamers leaves each side every morning. The foreign mails come by that route now, reaching here each day towards noon. The Stanley is making daily trips between Summerside and Cape Tormentine.

About three o'clock on Saturday afternoon a drowning accident occurred at Murray River, the victim being the 12 year old son of William McPherson, of Dover, about three miles from the village. Washing to make a short cut across the river to join some other boys who were fishing young McPherson started across the middle where the ice was thin. He broke through not far from the shore. When the other boys saw him they rushed to his rescue, one of them named Langan, almost losing his own life in an ineffectual attempt to rescue him. In a short time a crowd gathered but too late to save the boy. The body had not been found at latest accounts.

Saturday afternoon at Roodland, B. C., two tons of gelinite which was being thawed exploded killing John Ingraham, formerly Chief of Police, and wounding several scores of other people. Ingraham was in charge of the powder and his death removes every possible chance for explanation of the accident. Buildings in the vicinity were twisted out of shape and windows were all broken. In the city the shock caused consternation and did a great deal of damage. Nearly all the glass windows were smashed and many people were injured by the falling glass. The Centre Star Mine where the explosion occurred will be closed down for some days as will also the War Eagle and Lerol Mines adjoining.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in passing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

Notes From Rome.

(N. Y. Freeman's Journal.)

The French flag that has for many centuries floated in sign of protection over numberless Catholic missions in Mohammedan and pagan Asia and Africa is at last pulled down. France has no longer the protectorate of the Christian interests in the Orient.

What Organization Has Done for the Catholics of Germany.

Writing of the great Catholic Congress held a few months ago in Strassburg, Germany, correspondent in Europe, J. Napier Brodhead, writes:—

THIS is a common expression we hear on every side. Unless there is some organic trouble, the condition can doubtless be remedied. Your doctor is the best adviser.
