One in a Thousand, BUT TRUE TO THE LAST

CHAPTER III.
LORD LASSELLES.

At my anecdote my future brother-in-law goes off into such a genuine burst of laughter that I am compelled to join him.

"Pon my soul," he says, while the tears stand in his eyes, "you really are one of the jolliest little mortals I ever met with! Come round to the stables."

I decline his offer, though I have found him improve on acquaintance. I can see my father and Loys already making for that haven of masculine delight; but I return to the house, and just enter the drawing room in time to hear Theo sobbing passionately.

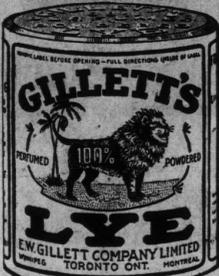

"Oh, dear hand that he kissed—dear ring that he gave me—oh, tell me once again that he loved me as I"—with a long, shuddering sigh—"as I love him still!"

During the ten days which follow everything at Thorngaby Manor is in too great a state of bustle and excitement for any regrets or anything approaching to drawing back. Theo is too fully occupied in choosing silks and jewels, with interviews with milliners and dressmakers, with upholsterers and servants, to attend to anything I may wish to say. Several times, when I happen to find myself alone with Lord Lasselles, my heart prompts me to cry out that Theo does not love him, and that she does love another; yet what Loys said about Arthur St. Clair turning out to be a pawnbroker keeps me silent, and the days slip by, until it is too late.

Presents pour in from all the countryside, and three days before the wedding Maud and Constance Luttrell, of Rest, arrive. They are bright, stylish girls, fair-haired, like all the Luttrells. They think that Theo is an awfully lucky girl, and that Lord Lasselles is awfully nice; and they do not, either of them, hesitate an instant to say that they would give anything to be in Theo's shoes. Late in the evening, when he comes in for a cup of tea—which, he demands, shall be strong and have plenty of sugar—he brings four little boxes, which he distributes among the bridesmaids. They contain each a locket of plain gold, with "Theo" written across a shield of turquoises. "Oh, how awfully nice!" cry Maud and Constance, in the same breath. "And they will match our dresses exactly."

"It is very kind of you, Lasselles," says Theo, softly, yet without any love in her voice. "You don't ask me what I have for you?" he says, sitting down upon the arm of her chair. "As you've given me about twenty presents already to-day, I think that would sound rather greedy."

"Well, but I've brought you something I want you to wear on Thursday and every day."

As he spoke, he opens a case, and shows her a locket exactly like ours, save that the shield whereon her name is graven is diamonds.

"It is very beautiful," says Theo, taking it into her hand; yet even then I see the glitter of those other diamonds which adorn her right hand, and I shiver.

"Let me put it on for you," says the bridegroom.

So he unclasps the necklet she wears, and, with bungling, yet certainly loving, fingers, fastens the shining ornaments about her throat.

"Thank you, Lasselles," says Theo, gently, and lays her hand for an instant upon his own.

He looks intensely pleased, and, in spite of his ugliness and his unvarnished manners, I feel, somehow, as if Theo is not acting quite honestly by him, for, even if he knows she does not care for him, he hopes to win her some day. He would not, I think, wish to marry her if he knew that her whole heart is given to another. But Derrick, Lord Lasselles, does not know it, and so the gay preparations continue without impediment.

CHAPTER IV. THE WEDDING.

When the bridegroom's sisters come, I decide at once that they are nice; their mother is nicer. She seems to have only one failing. She cannot see how things are between the bride and bridegroom. She is, mother-like, blind to his personal plainness, and desirous that he should have his own way. She evidently never dreams for a moment that Theo is not marrying for love, but that a title and a large income, or what is infinitely worse, a feeling of pique, have, or has, made her bestow her hand where her heart is not.

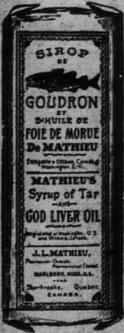

"I admire Theo immensely," she says, on the afternoon previous to the wedding, when our cousins, with Loys and I, are sitting round the drawing-room table, busily directing cards and writing out the menus for the breakfast. "She has such calm repose of manner, such a grace when entering a room; she is such a perfect aristocrat, I tell Edith and Constance that they may, with advantage, take her for a model. She is perfectly charming."

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS

Cannot be cured with ordinary soothing syrups. The disease must be attacked at the root to eradicate the irritation of the lungs, heal the wounds and strengthen the respiratory organs. The composition of of Tar and Cod Liver Oil and other Medicinal Extracts makes it amongst all other remedies as the true specific for the diseases of the throat, the bronchial tubes, and the lungs. Here are a few conclusive proofs:

Dear Sirs,—We have nothing but good to say of Mathieu's Syrup and can conscientiously describe it as the most popular and successful Cough Medicine we handle. Owing to the absence of any drug store in this vicinity there is a great variety of proprietary medicine sold in the course of the year, and Mathieu's Syrup pre-eminently leads in its own class. Yours, sincerely,

"I am glad you like her," says Loys; "because it would be very wretched for Theo if you did not." "It would be impossible to help loving Theo," says Lady Lasselles, graciously.

"Everyone says so," puts in Constance Luttrell, warmly.

I think of Arthur St. Clair, and wish that this was all over.

My wish, fulfilled itself quickly enough; the afternoon wears away, and the dinner is eaten. We do not have any guests who are not staying in the house, for there is to be a ball to-morrow evening. We get up a dance among ourselves, but it is a lame sort of affair, for three of our groomsmen, including the "best man," will not arrive until near midnight, so I have to dance with Maud, who finds it such tiresome work that she takes only one turn round the room. I am not sorry, for I am not so tall as my cousin, and she will not act as gentleman, for fear, I imagine, of spoiling her step for to-morrow night. Theo does not dance at all, but I dance once with Lord Lasselles, who is not an adept in the art. He seems to think that a rush and a jerk constitute waltzing, and, having knocked a couple down and overturned a side table laden with china, he stops declaring that he has not had such a good hop for many a day.

"I should hope not," I say, with a laugh, as I glance over to where Edith Lasselles, with a woe-begone countenance, is holding out a torn dress, and her parter is rubbing his shin. "Do you usually exert yourself so vigorously?"

"Oh, Edith always was the most luffay girl in existence!" he says, laughing carelessly. "And, as for Kerr, he's just the biggest duffer I know!"

"Poor things!" I remark.

"They should have kept out of the way," he says, with calm indifference, and marches off to Theo's side.

I do not know, of course, what she says to him, but while I am pinning up Edith's dress, he crosses the room, and says he is really very sorry, and will give her a new dress, if she will remind him.

"I hope I haven't smashed your shin, Kerr," he laughs; "for I can't very well buy you another, can I?"

Then, having made the amende honorable, he once more takes refuge by Theo's sofa. She smiles, and whispers something into his ear, at which he flushes up all over his face, but he looks pleased, so I conclude she has been kind to him. Poor Derrick! Much as I hated him at first, my heart is warming to him fast now. It seems to me a cruel thing to let him go blindly to the altar to-morrow, to meet the woman he loves but who loves not him. In my simple, childish honesty, I feel as though we are all conspiring against him by allowing this miserable farce to continue. I do not know that, if he were told all now, he would, in all probability, still wish to have Theo as his wife. When I say good-night to him, he tells me he shall not see me in the morning until we are in church. A sudden impulse prompts me to lift my face to his, and whisper that I hope he will be happy.

"Thanks, little sister," he says, cheerily. "I dare say we shall, for I shall let Theo take the lead."

His good-natured, simple, homely way of expressing himself brings the tears into my eyes, and I hurry away and jump into bed before Loys comes upstairs.

I fall asleep with a wild wish at my heart that Derrick had waited a year or two, and had fallen in love with me—not because I envy Theo, or that I have an idea of being in love with him, but because there would be no Arthur St. Clair to make everything unhappy and miserable.

I awake in the morning to find Loys yawning and decidedly cross, already making her toilet—not the grand costume in which we are to make a tall for Theo, but in a plain wrapper, such as we were accustomed to wear in the morning at Mrs. Dickenson's.

"Come, do get up, Audrey," she says, sharply; "it's ever so late, and we've got to help Theo to dress."

"Why, what's that grand maid of her's for?" I ask, unwilling to move.

"To wait on her, of course."

"Well, then, why need we bother ourselves? We shan't do it half so well."

A BEAUTIFUL BABY

Gained Wonderfully After Being Put On A Well Known Food.

Mrs. E. Warner of 32 Winnifred Ave., Toronto, in writing about Neave's Food, says, "I have used Neave's Food for my baby and it has agreed when everything else failed. He has gained wonderfully since I started giving it to him."

Mr. A. J. Forgue, Labelle Street, Montreal, writes, under date 13 Oct: "My little daughter, born Aug. 15th., likes Neave's Food very much. She is a bunch of fat."

Mrs. J. Fallon of Whitby, Ont., says "Neave's Food is the only food that has agreed with our little boy. He is bright, and his flesh is firmer, since taking it."

Neave's Food has been the standard Infant's Food in Great Britain for more than 85 years.

Mothers and prospective mothers may obtain a free tin of Neave's Food and a valuable book, "Hints About Baby," by writing Edwin Uley, 14 Front Street East, Toronto, who is the Agent for Canada. (Mention this paper.)

Neave's Food is sold in 1 lb. air tight tins by all Druggists in Canada.

"It is the proper thing to do," says Loys, decidedly; "so get up, you lazy creature, do."

She pulls all the clothes from off me relentlessly, and I lie shivering and shaking, although the warm, July sun is blazing straight into the room.

At last, in consequence of Loys's repeated admonitions, I rise, and make my toilet as quickly as she has done.

We go down to the breakfast room, where we find all the bridesmaids assembled, chattering like so many magpies. Loys pours out the coffee; and presently the door opens, and Derrick's "best man" puts in his head.

"Miss Loys," he says, humbly, "it's awfully slow in the dining room; mayn't we come in here?"

"Who are 'we'?" asks Loys, saucily.

"Oh, Kerr and the other groomsmen! It's not fair that we shouldn't grub with the bridesmaids this morning."

"Well, come in, then," laughs Loys; "but, mind, if anything is said, that you take the blame upon yourselves."

"Oh, yes!" is the reply.

Mr. Alan Fitzhugh comes in hastily followed by Mr. Kerr, Capt. Clark and Teddy Vincent. I see by Rose and Edith Lasselles' faces that they approve of the invasion. So do I, for it prevents Loys and me from breaking down and having red eyes to take to church with us.

Before the others have finished, I slip away, and go up to Theo's room. I find her sitting at the open window, her arms upon the sill, and her soft, gray eyes gazing listlessly into vacancy.

"Theo!" I say, timidly; for, somehow, of late I am afraid of my pretty sister, and I am not sure that she waits me here.

But she looks round, without either impatience or annoyance on her face, and holds out her hand to me.

"Well, Audrey, what is the matter?" she says, kindly. "Where is Loys?"

"Not finished her breakfast yet," I answer. "All the groomsmen have managed to get let in, so they are having great fun."

"Is it not time for you to be dressing, dear?" says she, after a long silence.

How strange it is that I feel so constrained and awkward when I am alone with Theo! There are only two years between our ages, and we used to be so much more to each other than sisters often are. Yet now, after a few months absence, she seems to have grown years and years in advance of me. I came upstairs for a last serious talk with her, but her kind, yet condescending manner checks my intention in the bud, and I go away, having kissed her, feeling miserable and longing to cry. But my tears are doomed not to flow yet a while, for in the corridor I meet all the girls coming gaily upstairs to begin the important business of dressing.

A Suspicious Sign.
 BY RUTH CAMERON.

"Methinks the lady doth protest too much," so to-day, a very much protesting is a suspicious sign.

There are a great many things which in the intercourse between ordinary human beings, are taken for granted. To make protestations about them is more likely to arouse doubts in the hearer's mind than to reassure him.

For instance, if a man goes out of his way to bolster up some statement by saying "Now I'm telling the gospel truth," instead of making me believe in his veracity, he instills doubts of it into my mind. It ought to go without saying, that he is honest. But he evidently thinks he needs to reassure me, and being in his own confidence, he probably has good reason for that thought. He may be telling the gospel truth at that moment, but it is perfectly patent that that isn't his habit.

One is reminded of the story of the captain who wrote in his log, "The mate is drunk to-day." The mate protested, but the captain said, "It's true, isn't it?" and when the mate admitted that it was, the captain said it must stand. A few days later the captain sprained his hand and the mate had to write the log. Whereupon he promptly wrote, "The captain was sober to-day." Strange to say, the captain was not at all pleased at thus having his sobriety attested.

The subject of over much protesting was brought to my mind by some new acquaintances who have recently made a rapid rise in the financial world. I didn't know the family before the man of the house made his money, but I know the rise must have been recent because of their manner of talking and acting. Midas has apparently touched their vocal chords, for they talk gold all the time.

No matter which way the conversation turns this man and his wife invariably bring it back to the one subject in which they seem to take an interest—money. How much so and so is making in his 'beef business; how much one of their friends paid for his new automobile; the number of bedrooms in another friend's new house and how much they cost per bedroom; the tremendously high rate of the hotel at which they stayed last summer—such is the edifying subject matter of their talk. Though they try to make their references casual, a child would understand that they are saying as boldly as they dare. "You see how much money we and all our friends have." "But this is what they really say to all who have the knowledge of human nature as a key, "You see we weren't used to having money and so it seems a big thing to us."

People who are used to wealth, refinement, education, and the other good things of life, take these things for granted. It is only those to whom such things are strange and new, who prate about them.

As in Shakespeare's time, so to-day, overmuch protesting is a suspicious sign.

Household Notes.

Red bandana handkerchiefs make excellent dusters.

Currants for jam or jelly should be picked when dry.

Bathing suits should always be of very light material.

Endive, stewed, makes a pleasant change as a vegetable.

If paraffin is used to grease cake tins, the cake will not stick.

Cold sauce or fruit added to junket makes a pleasant change.

Common mignonette grown in a pot is very disagreeable to flies.

Cotton crepe is now being used for covers for summer pillows.

To cook macaroni without sticking use a vessel with a sieve bottom.

Young mustard can be boiled for greens and tastes almost exactly like spinach.

To clean rusty knitting needles, rub with kerosene and polish with pumice.

People who suffer from acidity should eat acid fruits with farinaceous food.

In cooking asparagus for salad, it should be dropped into cold water when done.

Flowered crotonnes make the best covers for beds on the out-of-doors sleeping porch.

Flies don't come around without being invited, and the invitation consists of refuse.

With a steam cooker an entire meal can be cooked over one burner of the gas range.

If sandwiches are served with afternoon tea, they must be small and dainty, and minus crust.

The most economical way to cook mushrooms is to stew them, because all the stalks can be used.

Left-over strips of wall paper can be used for the "lining papers" that are put under straw matting.

A pure, unperfumed soap is the only kind to use for baby's bath or for people with very thick skins.

Plain custard, cold and poured over three cupfuls of sliced oranges makes a delicious summer pudding.

Grapes and apples are among the most nutritious fruits and should be freely eaten, even by the most delicate.

Wine stains may be removed with methylated spirits, finally freshening it with chloroform to restore the color.

Pyrethrum powder burned in a room stupefies flies until they can be swept up and put where flies ought to be.

In the summer delightful informal entertaining may be done with the help of paper tablecloths, dishes, and napkins.

It doesn't take any more time to prepare ices than to make pies, and they are far better desserts for hot weather.

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was.

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter, if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. Cook, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

Two Boys Met Fate in Niagara.

Niagara Falls, June 23.—Donald Roscoe, aged ten years, and Hubert Moore, nine years old, both of Niagara Falls went to their death in a small boat last evening in the whirlpool rapids, while hundreds of men watched helplessly from the shore. The boys had been playing in a flat-bottomed scow near the lower station of the hydraulic power company half a mile above the rapids. The rope holding the boat broke and they were carried out into the stream and down the river.

The boys, realizing their fate, stood up as the boat neared the edge of the roaring whirlpool and shook hands good bye. A second later they were engulfed on the crest wave of the rapids. The boat shot out of sight. One of the boys was seen a moment later struggling in the rushing waters. Never was there at any time a chance to save the boys. There was scores of passengers in the cars along the gorge route and they watched the hopeless struggle of the boys. The hundreds who had gathered at the water's edge could offer no aid. Men became hysterical in their powerlessness and women passengers on the cars wept and prayed.

Congregation Stung by Bees.

Montclair, June 14.—A man wise in the ways of bees has been engaged to evict from between the walls of the First Congregational Church of this town thousands of Italian honey bees that have made their home there. It is thought that there must be many pounds of honey packed away in crevices of the structure.

The bees were first noticed about the church several years ago. Their numbers increased until their buzzing became annoying. It is said that several members of the congregation have been stung in the course of the services.

Not Alarmed.
 SAYS THE BOSTON HERALD.

Free fish from Newfoundland is not frightening dealers at T wharf by any means, say the Boston Herald. Though the public hails a possibility of lower prices through revision of the tariff, the chances are that fishermen of Newfoundland will not flock here with fares that may upset the market. Newfoundlanders, however, are possessed with the idea that their market is to expand considerably. Large quantities of salt fish are being shipped from there to the West Indies, South America and coast countries of Europe. Prospect of expansion looks good, even at long range.

"They'll never dump fares of fresh fish on T wharf," declared an official of the Boston Fish Bureau yesterday. "The schooners from Newfoundland may bring salt fish here; but the kind they now produce—hard dried fish—isn't in much demand in the section of the United States supplied from Boston. Perhaps, under the new tariff, the Newfoundlanders may conclude to manufacture a brand of fish that will sell here, but, as a matter of fact, their present trade requires practically all the fish caught by the fleet, and there's really no need for expansion that will put the product into Boston."

American buyers have been in Newfoundland several years picking up salt fish and herring when these fish could be snapped up at a price that left no reasonable doubt as to profit. Most of the herring that arrives at Boston during the winter season is purchased by the American buyers and loaded into schooners dispatched to Bay of Islands for the special purpose of freighting the cargo into local ports—Boston and Gloucester. Under the tariff, before revision, duty on herring was one-half per pound on cod.

Newfoundland is quite well represented in the Boston fishing industry, perhaps a third of the men who man the vessels hailing from there. Some of the most expert fishermen out of Boston trace their success to experience aboard Newfoundland schooners that make long sojourns on the banks in quest of cod.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette, June 21.

Not Stuck-on Itself.

The built-in—not stuck-on—tire like Dunlop Traction Tread is the only successful Anti-Skid. Manufacturers of the stuck-on type dare not make the corrugations big enough to prevent skidding without fearing to make them so big that they will destroy resiliency.

The Cheapness of Satisfaction.
 The cost of the safety which you obtain by purchasing Dunlop Traction Tread tires is insignificant in comparison with the price of neglect.

Notes and Comments.

We welcome to St. John's, H. R. H. Prince Albert, the second son of H. M. the King. The day of his arrival is somewhat unpropitious, but the weather will in no way dampen the heartiness of the reception of the Prince. We have seen the Prince spoken of as the heir presumptive to the Throne. This is not correct. Prince Albert cannot become heir presumptive to the Throne while his father is alive, and there cannot be an heir presumptive while there is an heir apparent. The Prince of Wales is heir apparent. He is heir apparent because his title cannot be defeated if he survive his father. A heir presumptive is a person who is the immediate next in kin, who will succeed if his title is not defeated by the birth of somebody nearer a kin. Prince Albert is not next in succession and is neither heir apparent nor presumptive. A king's brother next in age to him is his presumptive if the king has no son. But the birth of a son to the king destroys the presumption that he will succeed. An heir apparent and an heir presumptive are alike in one respect, both are immediate successors. They differ in this respect, the title of the heir apparent is indefeasible if he survive his father, but the title of the Regatta Committee.

The meeting of the Regatta Committee held at Wood's West End Restaurant last night was attended by the following: Pres. Hiscock, Vice-Pres. Higgins, Treas. Ellis, Secy Noonan, Dr. Scully, N. Andrews, J. L. Slattery, P. F. Moore, R. W. Jeans, T. Carow, R. Dowden, F. W. Hayward, P. J. Hanley, Councillor Ryan, T. J. Foran. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read by Secretary Noonan and confirmed, the President conveyed to the Committee the thanks of the Governor and Mrs. Davidson for the invitation extended the latter to award the trophies to the winners of Regatta Day. Mrs. Davidson will be very glad to perform that pleasing function. The prizes to be awarded will be similar to those given last year.

Mr. F. Rioux wrote for Mr. W. D. Reid, thanking the Committee for electing him honorary member.

The C. L. B. Boat Club will conform to the regulation with reference to the transfer of crews.

Mr. N. Andrews had been asked by the Reid Co's. factory men if medals could not be given instead of money as the prize for the Factory Race. If a joint request is made to the Committee on the matter it will be considered.

Councillor Ryan was again elected to fill the important office of disposing of the sites for tents, &c., along the lakeside. For years the Councillor has given entire satisfaction in this important department of the Committee's work, and those requiring ground for tents or for other purposes must see him.

The Committee has got through far more work to date than last year, and now all that is required is to see the crews engage in practice for the event. The Committee this year have determined to make this year's Regatta if possible the best in the history of our great aquatic derby, and the collectors will be about looking to their most important part of the work by July 7th. They are anticipating a reception as liberal as any they have received heretofore.

Language of an Honourable.

His jealousy of the prestige of the Telegram leads the Honourable P. T. McGrath, of the Legislative Council, the erudite (?) Editor and accurate (?) historian to use some lovely language in the Herald last night, and he again commits himself to the elegant phrase, "your dead a month." Our information as to the Tritonia was received from a gentleman who arrived from Botwood, Wednesday night, and we think he knows more about the A. N. D. Co.'s boats than the learned P. T. Anyhow, what would he know about it? Why, if he were about at night he would be afraid that the boo man would be after him, or that he would wet his feet.

Would Be Interesting Feature.

Last year, previous to the Regatta, Mr. P. F. Collins suggested the advisability of putting on the programme an inter-collegiate race. Our colleges contain some excellent young oarsmen and a contest of this kind would be as exciting as the Regatta Race. Most of the committee, however, believe the idea is not feasible, as the best oars in these institutions, mostly out-of-town lads, are at their homes for a month previous to the regatta, enjoying their vacation.

Johnson has made good his escape from the United States for the time being. He can neither be extradited nor deported from Canada, according to the latest official view here. He is travelling on a tourist ticket, and Canada cannot return him because her immigration laws do not include transient aliens in such circumstances. Moreover, his offence is not extraditable in Canada. Officials here to-day were making efforts to have the negro returned under the Canadian immigration laws, but the attempt has failed.

LONDON, June 27.
President Poincare left this morning for France amid a display of cordial enthusiasm. King George, the Prince of Wales, Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught and a brilliant assemblage of Court dignitaries, Cabinet Ministers, and military and naval officers gathered at Victoria Station to bid him farewell. Crowds lined the streets and cheered him as he passed, for during his short stay he has made himself extremely popular. The royal train, placed at his disposal by the King, took him to Dover, where he embarked on a French warship amid deafening salutes from a fleet of 26 powerful British and French warships, dressed in rainbow fashion with French and British colors intertwined. Several British battleships acted as an escort across the Channel.

Leaped 170 Feet to Show His Nerve.

New York, June 21.—If friends of John Burns, an architect, still have any doubt as to his "nerve" he says he is willing to duplicate the feat he performed yesterday, when he leaped from the high arched Washington bridge into the Harlem river, 170 feet below.

A few persons who saw him thought he was deliberately jumping to his death and when he struck on his side with a great splash it seemed as though he must have been killed.

While a policeman was hurriedly making off in a boat to recover the body, Burns bobbed to the surface and started with strong strokes to make his way ashore.

The policeman dragged him into the boat and placed him under arrest on a charge of attempted suicide.

"Oh, I wasn't trying to kill myself," he protested. "A lot of my friends had been annoying me by saying I did not have any nerve. I just jumped off the bridge to show them."

War on Confetti.

An East End Clergyman On The "Senseless" Practice.

As stated recently in the Daily Graphic, a campaign against the use of confetti at weddings has been inaugurated by the Rev. H. Elton Lusk, Vicar of Holy Trinity, Reading. This indomitable cleric has announced his intention of levying a toll of 2s. 6d. per head upon any persons who are discovered carrying confetti into his church on the occasion of a wedding. The half-crown is to be deposited with the verges, and if the confetti is used the money will not be returned.

The use of confetti in London is practically confined to the East-end and to some of the suburbs. It is almost unknown at the weddings of the West. With the object of eliciting the views of some East-end clergymen on the subject, a representative of the Graphic made a tour of Stepney recently. He encountered a surprising unanimity of opinion on the subject. At St. Augustine's, Stepney, the use of confetti is strictly prohibited. "The thing is a decided nuisance," said the vicar (the Rev. Richard Wilson), who is affectionately known to his parishioners as "Father Richard." "Of course, we couldn't possibly have it. It gets in to the church matting; in to the clothes of the congregation; everywhere.

"And it leads to endless trouble with the church cleaners. They settle the matter for you. We could hardly permit confetti if we wanted to."

Equally emphatic in his condemnation of the practice was the Rev. G. C. Wilton, Rector of St. Dunstan's, Stepney—a church famous for its many marriages.

"At our weddings," he said, "we generally make people give up the confetti to the verges before they enter the church. But the question is: Should it be allowed in the churchyard? I do not think it should.

"It is a stupid and meaningless practice, and it is curious that it should have lasted so long. There was some meaning in the old habit of throwing rice—rice, of course, was a symbol of fruitfulness; but what symbolic meaning can anyone attach to confetti? I am willing to admit that the use of rice is very dangerous. I am absolutely opposed to the habit."

Be Modest.

No man is so mighty in knowledge or cash that when he drops out he'll make more than splash. We'll go to the boueyard to see him interred, and say, "When he lived he was surely a bird," and then we'll dismiss him at once from the mind, and give all our thoughts to the demmition grind. And maybe next year, if you mention the dead, the fellow you speak to will scratch at his head, and mutter (so fleeting and idle is fame!): "I seem to remember a skate by that name." And if you imagine that when you are dead the world will be jolted clear out of its tread, that people will weep till they wear out their eyes, you're in for a jarring post-mortem surprise. The world will roll on without slipping a cog when you and the dead ones are lost in the fog that hangs over the breast of the murmuring Styx; the people will traffic and play the old tricks; the women will gossip, the children will dance, and if you are mentioned it will be by chance. The sun neither rises nor sets in your clothes, the planets don't borrow their light from your nose; the globe that we live on goes round in a ring, but you're not the fellow that's pulling the string; so don't let your head get too swollen for use; don't think you're an eagle if you're but a goose.

C.E.I. Win.

Last night's football match between the C.E.I. and B.I.S. was witnessed by a fair gathering and resulted in a win for the former by three goals to two. Play was evenly divided throughout but the exhibition on the whole was by no means brilliant. Up to a few minutes before the final whistle sounded it looked as if the match would be a draw, but the C.E.I. got in some fast play and scored the winning goal. The Star and Casuals will compete in the next match.

Landing of Prince Albert.

H. M. S. Cumberland, Capt. Ambrey C. H. Smith, M.V.O., entered port this morning at 9 o'clock, having on board H. R. H. Prince Albert, son of their Majesty King George V. and Queen Mary. In honour of the pleasing visit of the young Prince every public building and all shipping in port were decorated with bunting. At 11 o'clock Capt. Beech, A. D. C. to His Excellency Governor Davidson, went on board the warship and arranged the hour for the landing of the Prince. At 1 o'clock His Royal Highness, accompanied by Capt. Smith, came ashore in the Cumberland's steam launch and alighted at the pier, well known as the King's Wharf, where, despite the adverse weather, hundreds of citizens and a squad of police, under Supt. Grimes, lined up.

The immense gathering were eager to catch a glimpse of the sailor Prince. All were favourably impressed at his delightful and pleasant appearance, as he is a fac-simile of his father who landed here as Prince George over thirty years ago. When Prince Albert came on shore heavy cheers were given for him while the disciplined land stood to attention and saluted. Then Prince Albert, accompanied by Capt. Smith, entered the coach of His Excellency the Governor and proceeded via Water Street, Queen Street, Theatre Hill, Queen's Road and Military Road to Government House to pay his respects, a customary in other British ports that the Prince has landed, to His Excellency the Governor who entertained the Royal visitor at lunch to-day. On Tuesday next an Afternoon Dance and Garden Party will be held at Government House in honour of the Prince. H. M. S. Cumberland will remain in port until Wednesday morning next, and no doubt the sojourn of Prince Albert will be made as enjoyable and pleasant as possible for him.

His Royal Highness Prince Albert

Affable, Kindly and Jolly.—Favorite with Cadets on 'Cumberland,' Who are Typical English Lads, Robust and Healthy.

H.M.S. Cumberland arrived in port with Prince Albert on board at nine o'clock this morning. Capt. Smith, her commander, visited this side of the Atlantic last time in the cruiser Bellerophon, a ship which many in St. John's will remember, she having visited this port on several occasions, when her excellent band was heard to the delight of our citizens, both at Government House on more than one occasion and at least once at the Regatta many years ago. The Cumberland was in North American waters as part of the command of Prince Louis of Battenburg, some seven years ago, but was then in charge of another commander. She is now doing a six months' cruise and has visited to date Tencriffe, Trinidad, Barbados, St. Lucia, Jamaica, Porto Rico, Bermuda and other islands of the West Indies, Quebec, Montreal, Halifax, St. George's, N.F., and St. John's, N.F. Prince Albert is purely and simply a Cadet on board ship and receives exactly the same treatment as the sixty-four Cadets who are his shipmates. Like the orthodox tar of the British Navy, he sleeps in a hammock, possesses his own sea chest, and has no greater privileges on board than his brother cadets. However, at each port of call on the ship's itinerary the Prince calls on the Governor of each Colony or Province, and pays his respects. The Prince on board ship merely continues his experience in the naval college. He is taking his four and a half years' training as a Naval Cadet, so that he might qualify for the next step as a sub-lieutenant. The routine of his day on the ship is as follows: 7.30 to 8 a.m., flag-signalling, etc.; 8.30 to 8.45, "stand easy"; 8.45 to 9.30, gymnastics; 9.30 to 9.55, breakfast; 9.55 to 9.59, prayers; 9 to 11, work; 11 to 11.10, "stand easy"; 11.10 to 12.30, work; 12.30 p.m. to 1.30 p.m., dinner; 1.30 to 3.30, work; 3.30 to 4.45, tea; 4.45 to 6, shore leave (in port), 6 to 8.30, dress; 8.30 to 8.45, supper; 8.45 to 9, work; 9 to 9.30, "stand easy"; 9.30, prayers, turn in. The Prince in his work applies himself to practical engineering, with the usual instruction in seamanship and naval warfare. The naval engineering was introduced into the training of cadets some few years ago, and each cadet must put in an allotted part of his day in the ship's engine room and must, while in port, do his part in overhauling the machinery. When he has served his time on board ship and his training has concluded, he is supposed to be "fitly competent" to undertake the duties connected with a modern warship. The Cumberland's work is identical to that performed by the cruiser Cornwall, in taking at intervals new contingents of cadets on board to finish their training. The Cumberland, laid down in 1903, is an armoured cruiser of 3,800 tons, 22,000 indicated horse power, and can steam 24 knots. Her largest guns are 6 inch; she is painted in the regulation gray and has three funnels. Other notable are on board as well as Prince Albert, amongst the cadets. One is Mr. Tennyson, grand-son of the great Lord Alfred Tennyson, poet, and he is 18 years old, was born a couple of years after the death of his illustrious grand-parent, and is a son of Mr. Hallem Tennyson, Hon. Mr. Curzon is also a distinguished member of the cadet contingent though he is no relative of the celebrated Lord Curzon. To the visitor on the ship interest will centre mostly in the big vessel. Here the country's sailors and future commanders and admirals could be seen at their best. The lads act as good, strong manly young fellows, wit and repartee, joking and rollicking are in evidence, and there is ample proof to show that the life is anything but a dull one. Prince Albert can easily be known to the visitor to the ship by the striking likeness he bears to his grand-father, the late revered King Edward VII. He is very popular with the whole ship's company, but particularly so with the cadets who say that he is "very friendly, lively and good humored, and is also obliging and considerate of others. Though his august parents gave strict instructions that no reception be given their son, he was lionized by the people of Quebec and Montreal, the streets and snaphotted by numerous cameras and as a result after leaving Quebec was in the sick bay for four days. At Gaspé the Prince had some nice sport fishing and captured a 20-lb. salmon. The Cumberland will remain here for four days when she will weigh anchor for Plymouth, on arrival at which place the cadets and officers will get a month's vacation. When the ship arrived in port to-day crowds witnessed her entering the harbor, the King's wharf and the piers along the waterfront were thronged with people of both sexes and all ages, and despite the downpour of rain, many cameras were levelled at the stately ship as her anchors brought her up in the deepest part of the harbor. Mr. James Vey, photographer, took splendid negatives of the landing of the Prince and the big warship, whose advent here at this particular time and with such a distinguished personage on board, is a noteworthy event.

Special Notice.

We take pleasure in announcing the appointment of Mr. Richard C. Power as our Newfoundland Representative for the sale of one of the most attractive securities that we have marketed during the long period of forty years in which we have served the investing public.

We refer to the 7 per cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock of the Maritime Mail Company, Limited, a prosperous corporation operating at St. John, N.B., with the largest output of any single mill of its kind in Canada.

This issue is unusually well secured by assets appraised at $160 for every $100 share of Preferred Stock, exclusive of the amount covering the Bonds outstanding. The earnings record of the issuing Company is alike exceptionally strong and rapidly expanding under the present efficient management. Two other desirable features are the 50 per cent. Common Stock Bonus and the alternative plans of payment, cash or instalment.

A fully descriptive circular has already been mailed to our many Newfoundland patrons. We advise these friends of ours and all other interested persons to immediately get in touch with Mr. Power, from whom additional copies of the circular and further particulars may be had. His office address is given below.

Twice Proven Cure for Nerves

Irritable, Hysterical, Sleepless, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restores Health.

There is a message in this letter for thousands of women who are suffering from broken-down nervous systems. Sleepless nights, much irritability over little things, spells of dizziness and nervous sick headaches are among the symptoms.

You may not realize the nature of your ailment until nervous prostration comes upon you. Still, in whatever stage you find yourself, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is ready to help you.

Mrs. W. J. May, 88 Annette street, Toronto, writes: "Some years ago I suffered from nervous trouble, and took Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which completely cured me. About six months ago I received a shock which again shattered my nervous system to such an extent that I was irritable and hysterical, and could not sleep nights. I began to use the Nerve Food again and was not disappointed. Improvement was apparent from the first dose, and now I am entirely well."

THURSDAY.

The missionary committee reported through Dr. Fenwick, that several circuits and missions had during the last year increased their missionary givings by 10 per cent. Several others had increased 8 p.c.

It was unanimously resolved that this conference during the coming year contribute $21,000 to the missionary fund.

It was also decided not to ask the General Conference for a Supt. of Missions entirely set apart for the purpose. Dr. Fenwick, the present Supt., in conjunction with the missionary committee, seem to be doing at present all that is necessary.

Dr. Endicott, the late missionary in China, addressed a large congregation last night on the subject of Foreign Missions. Enthusiasm ran high.

The Spiritual conference held daily at 12 o'clock, are well attended and a splendid means of grace for the deepening of the spiritual life.

Dr. Bartlett, General Secretary of the Young People's Societies came in by train Thursday night.

Dr. Borden, of Mt. Allison University, is expected to-day, Friday.

The British Band will hold an excursion to St. John's about the middle of July. As the full brass band will be on the train a good time is assured.

Caplin are numerous in all the coves around here, and are being sold to farmers and others at 20 cents per barrel.

Some good catches of codfish were secured this week, one man having two quintals with hook and line one morning. May it continue.

Mr. John Bickham, of the firm of Downing and Bickham, while at work painting a house on Cathedral Street yesterday was seized with a weakness that seemed for a time of a serious nature. The telephone was utilized to call the doctor quickly to his side, and although still feeling the effects of his illness, we are glad to say he is much better.

Mrs. Thomas Walsh, Miss Walsh and Master George Walsh leave here next week for St. John's enroute to Montreal, by the S. S. Morwenna, there to join her three sons who are in good positions there.

Miss Maud Butt, the popular Principal of Victoria School, is taking her scholars in the country this afternoon and has provided a picnic for them. It is only in extreme cases during school hours that Miss Butt has to punish a child. Love for the scholars and kindness to them will work better than many birches. This to our mind, is Miss Butt's secret of success as a teacher. Miss Butt leaves on her trip to England by Tuesday's train, taking with her the best wishes of all her friends, including her scholars, for a very pleasant time.

Mr. John N. Ash, who was stricken with paralysis some weeks ago, is still very sick, and having lost his speech is unable to communicate his desires to his friends.

Mrs. Mary Archibald is here from Lynn, Mass., on a visit to her friends. Master T. P. Connor, one of the candidates for the C. H. E. Exams was seized with a dizziness, or weakness while at work on Tuesday. He was assisted to the open air, and after a few minutes, feeling better he pluckily returned to his task. He will no doubt succeed as formerly.

Cured Eczema Like Magic

Suffered for Years—Tried All Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of ointments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the writer of this letter was astonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"It worked like magic," she writes. Indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The stinging and itching are relieved at once, and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment.

Mrs. Clements, 13 Strange street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have suffered from eczema for years, and after using all kinds of ointments, at last tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. It worked like magic and proved a God-send to me. I would advise anyone suffering from eczema to try one box and be convinced. 40 cents a box. C. L. B. Meeting.

A meeting well attended was held last night in the C. L. B. Armoury of Churchmen invited, there by the Bishop of Newfoundland. His Lordship presided and after a brief introduction called on Lt.-Col. Rendell to explain the object of the meeting. The latter set forth the financial position of the organization due to the building of the Hall and the current expenses. He asked that some means be devised that greater assistance might be afforded in meeting these liabilities.

Canon White suggested that a committee of Churchmen co-operate with the officers of the Brigade.

Sir Joseph Outerbridge formally proposed that a committee be formed. This was seconded by Mr. W. B. Grieve, and some discussion ensued in which Mr. T. Hallett, Mr. A. G. Williams, Mr. Withers and Mr. Outerbridge took part. The motion was carried unanimously and the following committee was nominated by the Bishop: The Lieut. Colonel, the Battalion Chaplain, the Senior Major, Sergeant Major Dicks, and the Chairman of the warrant and non-commissioned officers together with:—Sir Jos. Outerbridge, Hon. W. C. Job, J. R. Bennett, M.H.A., W. B. Grieve, F. W. Hayward, F. E. Dench, W. Snow, A. Carnell, W. B. Fraser, T. Cook, Dr. Lloyd, K. Ruby, A. G. Williams, M. Wellman and T. Hallett.

A note of thanks to His Lordship for presiding was carried unanimously. The committee will meet next Thursday night.

PRESCRIPTION "A"

CURES INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA IN ALL ITS FORMS.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing.

I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden.

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Prescription "A". A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at Trial size, 25c; postage, 5c. extra. Large size, 50c; postage, 10c. extra. Prescription "A" is also for sale in every outport. June 2, 1913.

New Association Will Be Formed.

Mayor Ellis intimated at yesterday's meeting of the Municipal Council that in the not distant future a Motor Association would be formed with the object of reducing speed. It was the desire of the Board yesterday to fix driving at five miles an hour, but in view of the Mayor's announcement no further discussion took place on the matter.

OBITUARY.

The death occurred at Big Pond, on Wednesday, of one of the best known and most respected residents of that locality, in the person of Mrs. Mary Warren, wife of Mr. John Warren. The deceased who was one of the good old stock and a native of the Emerald Isle, was noted for kindness, charity and neighbourliness. She leaves a husband, one daughter and three sons, one of whom is Mr. P. Warren, butcher, of this city, to whom the Telegram extends its condolences.

Society Wedding

BOWRING-WINTER.

One of the most pleasing and brilliant social functions of the season was the marriage of Miss Madeline Isabel Winter, youngest daughter of Hon. Marmaduke and Mrs. Winter, to Mr. Eric Aubrey Bowering, son of the late Hon. Charles Bowering, which occurred at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The ceremony was solemnized at St. Thomas's Church, His Lordship Bishop Jones, assisted by Rev. G. R. Godden, Rector of the Parish, officiating. Before the commencement of the ceremony a large congregation filled the church, which was profusely decorated. The ushers were Dr. Harold Bowering, brother of the groom, Messrs. Alec and Harry Winter, cousins to the bride, Mr. Arthur Donnelly and Mr. Gerald Harvey. Precisely at the hour appointed the bride, who was charmingly and becomingly gowned, dressed in ivory satin, trimmed with Limerick lace, carrying a bouquet of sheaf of cream roses, entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away. As the bride moved slowly up the aisle of the church the Wedding March was appropriately and beautifully rendered by Organist Stirling. The bridesmaids were Miss Marion Winter, cousin to the bride, Miss Ruby Ayre, Miss Mary Rendell and Miss Evangeline Arnaud, who were costumed in pale yellow satin directoire gowns with overskirt of cream lace. They had pearl caps as head dress and carried bouquets of white and crimson carnations. Mr. James J. Grieve ably fulfilled the duties of best man. Immediately after the ceremony was performed the Lord Bishop congratulated the young couple that had just joined partnership and wished them every happiness and success in their matrimonial career. The gift of the groom to his bride was a diamond necklace and his presents to the bridesmaids were pearl pins. On leaving the church the bridal party motored to the residence of the bride's parents on Renne's Mill Road. The exterior and general surroundings of this palatial home was gaily bedecked with bunting, whilst the interior showed an equally well prepared and fitting display. The health of the bride and groom was heartily honored. The guests invited were:—

His Excellency the Governor and Mrs. Davidson, Major Davenport and Captain Beech, Hon. J. Ayre and Mrs. Ayre, Miss Ayre, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ayre, Miss Dorothy Ayre, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Miss Ruby Tessier, sister of Mrs. W. H. Herder, leaves by the City of Sydney to-day to enter Western Hospital, Montreal, to go in training as a professional nurse.

Mr. Thomas Murphy, painter, had a telegram Thursday from New York stating that his sister, Miss Eva Murphy, had been married there that day to Mr. Wm. Wilson, of Jersey City, machine. After the ceremony the couple went to Tampa, Florida, where Mr. Wilson carries on business. The bride is a native of this city and is well known and respected.

Mr. Petrie Hurt.

At 6.20 p.m. yesterday as Mr. C. Petrie, Inspector of Railways for the Government, was coming out of the General Post Office in going over the steps of the principal entrance, he slipped and fell over them, his head striking the sidewalk with great force and rendering him unconscious. He received an ugly cut and bruise on the side of his head, and his shoulder was badly hurt. The police who were near conveyed him into Connors' drug store where Dr. Campbell who was called by phone attended the man, coming in a few minutes. While Mr. Petrie was in the pharmacy, Miss Petrie, his daughter, happened to pass by heard that her parent had met an accident, and going into Connors' and seeing her father's predicament she fainted. She revived after a while, and father and daughter were driven to their home, Lime Street.

And brings unask'd relief.

To gentle offices of love
His feet are never slow;
He views, through mercy's melting
eyes,
A brother in a foe.

Peace from the bosom of his God,
My peace to him I give;
And when he kneels before the throne
His trembling soul shall live.

To him protection shall be shown,
And mercy from above
Descend on those who thus fulfill
The perfect law of love.

A LIFE LESSON.

There, little girl, don't cry,
They've broken your doll, I know,
And your tea set blue,
And your toy house, too,
Are things of the long ago;
But childish troubles will soon pass
by.

There, little girl, don't cry,
There, little girl, don't cry,
They've broken your heart, I know,
And the rainbow gleams
Of your youthful dreams
Are things of the long ago;
But Heaven holds all for which you sigh.

Free Fish.

Maine Alarmed Over "Free Fish."

Fishermen of Portland and Casco Bay are being made acquainted with the real facts of the Underwood tariff as applied to the importation of fish. It is reported that someone from the Home Market Club of Boston has been distributing letters and circulars among the Maine fishermen, setting for the just what is being done in New England in opposition to the "free fish" measure.

According to the Portland "Press" these circulars point out that it is not a small and isolated industry which is threatened by the proposed free fish clause, but a national industry by every sense of the Government. Historically its foundation was laid along the bleak and rugged coast of New England, but has spread all along our Atlantic seaboard and has followed the Stars and Stripes to the Great Lakes and the Pacific coast even into the rivers of Alaska.

It is not the New England fishermen alone who will feel the effect of foreign competition if the policy of free fish is adopted. The fishermen of the southern Atlantic States will not escape, nor will those of the fleets of the Pacific coast, and the lake fishermen of Michigan, Illinois and Ohio.

The main shore of British Columbia, extending 7,000 miles, provides a vast field for Canadian fishermen, and the products range from the sardine to the whale. Salmon constitute 80 per cent. of the catch of British Columbia, and halibut, herring and cod are numerous in those waters. But these resources are trifling when compared with the opposition Maine fishermen will encounter with the Canadian fisherman to the eastward of us.

The 22,000 fishermen of New England have every incentive to join hands with the 18,000 in Maryland, the 20,000 in Virginia, the 18,000 in New York, New Jersey and Delaware, the 14,000 of California, Washington and Oregon and 7,000 of Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio and Michigan.

The question is asked, "Is it too much to ask that an industry of such importance and of such value to the country should receive the consideration of the Congress of the United States?" And again, "Is it too much to ask that an effort should be made to at least equalize the conditions of competition between the United States and Canada, whose fishermen receive a Government bounty of $160,000 a year.

C.L.B. Boy gone With Capt. R. Bartlett

Mr. F. G. Chafe, of Monroe & Co's store, has received a letter from his son Ernest, who left here three years ago to seek his fortune in Western Canada, and who was formerly a plumber at Gear & Co's, and a prominent member of the C.L.B., informing him that he has just left for a five years' cruise with Captain Bob Bartlett, of Arctic Expedition fame. Ernest, who was a well known athlete, wishes to be remembered to all his friends here.

MINARD'S LINIMENT USED BY PHYSICIANS.

Sideburns.

By H. L. RANN.

As the poet has so well said, baldness is a calamity, whiskers are a crime, but sideburns are a man's own fault.

The sideburn is a shy growth of hair with which the cheekbone of man is upholstered. It is an inexpensive style of upholstery and can be had in shades ranging from a bright cerise to a glossy black. There is nothing that will attract attention quicker than a pair of flaming red sideburns securely attached to a man in a green-figured necktie and yellow oxfords.

In our early life as a people the sideburn was never used. The copious and full-blown whisker mingling gaily with the titillating mustache, was considered a sufficient adornment with which to melt the adamant heart of woman. But one day a near-sighted barber shaved a patron and left the sideburn erect in solemn majesty, and ever since that time men have allowed the appealing, restless look of the sideburn to appease the harrowing fear of total baldness.

The sideburn has been found extremely useful to men who are unable to retain any hair from their eyebrows up. A sprightly, well-turned sideburn, suspended like a tassel over each ear, will distract attention from a head which is neatly fringed with an imitation hair-cut to such an extent that nobody would suspect the owner of baldness until he removed his hat. Two aggressive, deep-chested sideburns will enable a bald man to get by without comment in the most select company.

For some reason or other, sideburns are very liberally patronized by the clergy and the genial plant known as the college professor. This is not at all strange, as there is something about a drooping and conciliatory buff sideburn which cannot be looked upon without a feeling of awe and veneration. Floor walkers and hotel clerks occasionally wear sideburns so that they will not be confused with the common herd. When the face of a floor walker is lit up with a 26-a-week smile, which breaks through a roguish sideburn of vermilion hue, the effect is similar to an impressionist picture of the sun sinking to rest behind a red barn.

Seizure of Rifles.

Guns Awaiting Removal to Ireland, Stored in a London Stable.

In connection with the seizure of rifles at Dublin and Belfast, the discovery has been made that something like 6,000 rifles of the Italian 1886 pattern had been brought by ship to Wapping and conveyed by motor lorry to a stable off King Street, Hammersmith. Scotland Yard men had been watching the stable, and warned the Irish authorities as each consignment left London. About three parts of the collection are still at Hammersmith.

Malta Asks For Home Rule.

London, June 23.—The famous little island of Malta is the latest British territory to ask for home rule. At the time of the recent visit to Premier Asquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill, representatives of various classes of the Maltese population, waited upon Mr. Asquith and put before him the expediency of a constitution being granted which, whilst safeguarding imperial interests, would give the people absolute control over purely local matters. Mr. Asquith promised careful consideration.

Malta has been a British possession since 1800. A measure of representative government was conceded in 1849. At present the Governor, appointed by the British crown, is assisted by a council of which nine members are appointed and eight elected. The population which is almost altogether Italian, is represented as well affected toward the British government. The value of the place to Britain, is of course, as a naval station.
