CHAPTER XVI
THE DEPARTURE FROM THE ABBEY.

She ate no breakfast, though both made a hollow pretense of doing so, and as the sun was rising above the hills they left the Abbey. One of the stable-boys had wheeled their boxes to the platform, and they found them obeyed the mandate with surprising alacrity.

"Let me send for a doctor, sir," said Lord Edgar.

"I shouldn't see him," curtly responded the marquise. "I would sooner die. As to that, I am not so sure that I am not going to die at last, Edgar!"

"Yes, sir," responded Lord Edgar, quietly.

"Don't leave me,"

"Certainly not," he said. "I had no intention of doing so."

"Promise me that you will not leave my rooms until I give you leave. I want you near me. Strange request, isn't it?" with a bitter smile of irony.

"Strance or natural, of course I grant it, sir," said Lord Edgar, flushing.

"I'm very ill. I have never been worse. I can not account for it. Oh, Edgar, sit down; there is an easy-chair there. Be comfortable. Talk if you like; smoke—"

"Great heavens!" exclaimed Lord Edgar, wounded to the quick. "Do you think I am utterly devoid of feeling, sir?"

"I don't know," said the marquise, in would still be time to reach the cloisters before Mr. Temple went to bed.

"His lordship is very bad, my lord, and wishes to see you."

"Very bad?"

"I never saw him worse, my lord," said Mr. Palmer, with emphasis.

Lord Edgar swung his cigar away, and followed Mr. Palmer upstairs. To his surprise the butler passed through the marquise's sitting-room, and ushered him into the bedroom.

It was the first time Lord Edgar had ever entered it.

The marquise was in bed, and looked most frightfully ill; his face was distorted, his lips livid, his eyes staring fiercely; the gout was taking its revenge for the time during which its slave had suppressed it.

Ill as he was, the marquise turned as Lord Edgar entered, and bent a searching glance upon him. Something in the young man's face seemed to reassure him, for he groaned and sighed with relief.

Lord Edgar came up to the bed, and the marquise exclaimed at once: "Don't touch me, or I shall go mad! Where have you been?"

"To the vicarage," said Lord Edgar.

"I'm awfully sorry—"

"Yes, yes, thanks," broke in the marquise, evidently with an effort. "Don't commiserate me; I hate it. Leave the room!" this was to the valet and Mr. Palmer, both of whom obeyed the mandate with surprising alacrity.

"Let me send for a doctor, sir," said Lord Edgar.

"I shouldn't see him," curtly responded the marquise. "I would sooner die. As to that, I am not so sure that I am not going to die at last, Edgar!"

"Yes, sir," responded Lord Edgar, quietly.

"Don't leave me,"

"Certainly not," he said. "I had no intention of doing so."

"Promise me that you will not leave my rooms until I give you leave. I want you near me. Strange request, isn't it?" with a bitter smile of irony.

"Strance or natural, of course I grant it, sir," said Lord Edgar, flushing.

"I'm very ill. I have never been worse. I can not account for it. Oh, Edgar, sit down; there is an easy-chair there. Be comfortable. Talk if you like; smoke—"

"Great heavens!" exclaimed Lord Edgar, wounded to the quick. "Do you think I am utterly devoid of feeling, sir?"

"I don't know," said the marquise, in

"DANDERINE" FOR FALLING HAIR

Stop dandruff and double beauty of your hair for few cents.

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of "Danderine" at any drug store for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Your hair appears soft, glossy and twice as thick and abundant. Try it!

his caustic fashion. "I had hoped so. To possess feelings is to be the target for every dart which misfortune, malice, hatred and envy carry in their quiver."

"At any rate, sir, I have feeling enough to sympathize with and to be most sincerely sorry for you. Are you sure I can do nothing to help you?"

"Nothing, unless you pour me out a full dose of prussic acid, which you will find in that top drawer," retorted the marquise. "Yes, you can remain with me."

"At least I can do that," said Lord Edgar, sadly, and he sat down quietly.

The marquise looked relieved and satisfied, and occasionally, as the hours passed, in his lapses of consciousness, he turned his keen eyes on the handsome face, and his lips twisted with something like a smile.

The night passed, and Lord Edgar sat there a fast prisoner, but not an unwilling one, while Lela was packing her boxes and preparing for flight. The night passed; every now and then the marquise asked Lord Edgar to give him some brandy—which, of course, was adding fuel to fire—and Lord Edgar obeyed. Beyond this the marquise would allow him to do nothing, taking the glass from him with a cold "thank you," and accompanying the expression of gratitude with a searching look, followed by the same twisted smile of satisfaction.

Toward morning he fell asleep, and Lord Edgar half dozed, but was awakened after a time by the marquise starting up in bed and exclaiming in a fierce voice: "Palmer, you sound! Where is he?"

"Do you want me, sir?" said Lord Edgar, rising.

The marquise stared at him, then nodded and fell back.

"Yes; I thought you had gone. You—have not been away, Edgar?"

"Certainly not, sir. I should not dream of leaving you."

The marquise sighed.

"Thanks. I—I can scarcely forgive myself for trespassing on your good nature, Edgar, although I endeavor to console myself with the reflection that it is the first time I have been so exacting. I promise you that it shall be the last."

Lord Edgar said nothing in response to this characteristic speech, but rose and put the bedclothes straight.

Something in the handsome face, in the gentleness of the touch of the strong hand, seemed to touch the suffering schemer, and he looked up at Lord Edgar with a curious gaze.

"You are very attentive. Have you ever been ill yourself?"

"No, sir," said Lord Edgar, carelessly. "Except when I broke my arm and the rest of it."

"I am sorry that I was not near you. But no, I should have been of no use. The sight of pain in others irritates me. What's that?" he broke off to demand.

Lord Edgar went to the window and looked out.

"A train leaving the station," he answered, calmly, little dreaming that it contained Lela.

The marquise drew a long breath. "It is quite morning, then?" he said. "Will you ring the bell?"

Lord Edgar obeyed.

"Bring some breakfast for his lordship and lay it in the next room," panted the marquise. "But, perhaps," reluctantly, "you would like to have it down-stairs."

"I would rather have it up here," replied Lord Edgar.

The marquise nodded; the breakfast was brought, and he waved Lord Edgar out of the room.

Lord Edgar was so anxious that he did not enjoy the luxurious meal; the presentiment that had set in upon his mind as he left the vicarage had increased into a settled sentiment.

As he reflected that he might be detained by the marquise's sick-bed for the day, days perhaps, he felt the vague dread become insupportable. He must communicate with Lela in some fashion.

He went to the marquise's writing-table and scribbled a few lines, telling her the cause of his absence, and sealing the envelope, called softly to Palmer.

"Give this—you, yourself, please—to Miss Temple, will you, Palmer, and wait for an answer."

Mr. Palmer took the note, and was leaving the room, when the marquise called him.

The butler stole in on tiptoe.

"The brandy—" said the marquise, and as Palmer approached the bed with the glass he added, in a low, stern voice: "And that note!"

Mr. Palmer started, and, of course, placed it on the bed. The marquise eyed it with a sardonic smile, and coolly tucked it under his pillow.

"Go," he said, with a glance which meant, "But not to Miss Temple," and Mr. Palmer, quite comprehending, stole out of the room.

Erected Flag-Pole

It has always been stated that whatever part of the world a man visits he is certain to come across one or more of the ubiquitous flag-poles, but to those of us who have followed the history of our own country the same remark may be applied here. It is this to be wondered at, because during the sixties of the past century and at later dates, hundreds of Newfoundland sea-faring men had emigrated to the United States, Canada and elsewhere, and entered the Navy and mercantile marine of the countries. They were eagerly sought after and employed, and very many of them attained high positions in the service. They were remarkable for their agility, seamanship, love of adventure and contempt of danger. They were trained from childhood to board our great fleet of ice-hunters, very many of which their fathers were owners and masters, when they pursued the seal-fishery in years ago, by, inured to all the dangers of the summer months, and from October to February, they manned our mercantile marine, and thus they became the most competent sailors in the world, and their history is written in the annals of our country from earliest days. By their pluck, perseverance and hardihood they conquered the storms and hurricanes of the oceans, and none but Newfoundland sailors could have withstood the snow and ice as they did in their determination to reach the Coast of Newfoundland during the winter months. They were mariners to be proud of, and few of them but could make the sails, rig and spar the ship, and all these qualifications were turned to good account when the depression in trade and the innovation of steam compelled our great sailing fleet to become almost a thing of the past, and gave way to modern ideas and improvements. In every emergency the Newfoundland sailor was to be found, and with his natural ingenuity he conquered all obstacles, and this fact shall establish in the following the story.

We hear so much these days of what scientists can perform, that I think it only just and proper to tell an episode wherein an old Newfoundland sailor overcame a difficulty that puzzled the scientists and compelled them to take a back seat.

Not many years ago when the Canadian Pacific Railway Company had accomplished their task of building their lines to Vancouver, and erected their immense hotel in that city, they referred to the General Manager that it would be a splendid advertisement for the Lumber Industry of British Columbia if they were to place on the ground a flag pole from one of the wonderfully great Douglas Fir Trees that grew to such extraordinary heights in that Province. These trees grow as straight as an arrow to a height of from 200 to 300 feet, and measure many feet in circumference. It is needless to say that the best tree was selected by the engineers and those in charge, and it was conveyed to Vancouver, where it was skinned and fashioned into a flag pole. When it was completed what was the consternation of those eminent engineers to find that notwithstanding all their scientific ability, not one of them knew how to get the pole on end. It was a splendid stick, and being such length, and of such a heavy weight, they were completely perplexed. They found themselves in such a position

By H. F. SHORTIS.

It has always been stated that no man in the world is certain to come across more of the ubiquitous Irishman, but to those of us who have followed the history of our own countrymen the same remark may be applied. It is this to be wondered at, because during the sixties of the past century, and at later dates, hundreds of our Newfoundland sea-faring men have emigrated to the United States, Canada and elsewhere, and entered the Navy and mercantile marine of these countries. They were eagerly sought after and employed, and very many of them attained high positions in the service. They were remarkable for their agility, seamanship, love of adventure and contempt of danger. They were trained from childhood on board our great fleet of ice-hunters, very many of which their fathers were owners and masters, when they prosecuted the seal-fishery in years gone by, inured to all the dangers and storms of the Arctic regions. During the summer months, and from October to February, they manned our mercantile marine, and thus they became the most competent sailors in the world, and their history is written in the annals of our country from our earliest days. By their pluck, perseverance and hardihood they conquered the storms and hurricanes of the ocean, and none but Newfoundland sailors could have withstood the frost, snow and ice as they did in their determination to reach the Coast of Newfoundland during the winter voyages. They were mariners to be proud of, and few of them but could make the sails, rig and spar the ship, and all these qualifications were turned to good account when the depression in trade and the innovation of steam compelled our great sailing fleet to become almost a thing of the past, and give way to modern ideas and improvements. In every emergency the Newfoundland sailor was to the fore, and with his natural ingenuity he conquered all obstacles, and this fact I shall establish in the following little story.

We hear so much these days of what scientists can perform, that I think it only just and proper to relate an episode wherein an old Newfoundland sailor overcame a difficulty that puzzled the scientists and compelled them to take a back seat. Not many years ago when the Canadian Pacific Railway Company had accomplished their task of building their lines to Vancouver, and erected their immense hotel in that city, it occurred to the General Manager that it would be a splendid advertisement for the Lumber Industry of British Columbia if they were to place on the ground a flag pole from one of the wonderfully great Douglas Fir Trees that grew to such extraordinary heights in that Province. These trees grow as straight as an arrow to a height of from 200 to 300 feet, and measure many feet in circumference. It is needless to say that the best tree was selected by the engineers and those in charge, and it was conveyed to Vancouver, where it was shaped and fashioned into a flag pole. When it was completed what was the consternation of those eminent engineers? And that notwithstanding all their scientific ability, not one of them knew how to get the pole on end. It was a splendid stick, and being such length, and of such a heavy weight, they were completely perplexed. They found themselves in such a pishion great rope was stretching or giving, and it looked as if the entire arrangement would collapse, which would not alone cause the loss of the monument, but the loss of life also, as the multitude was crowding as near as possible to the scene of operations. The boldest held their breath, when a voice was heard: "Wet your rope, wet your rope." It was the voice of an old sailor who recognized at a glance the true state of affairs. The engineers were in a terrible dilemma, but the suggestion of the old sailor was acted on at once, and the monument went into its place like a charm. In recognition of this old sailor's service the authorities granted him and his descendants the exclusive right to sell palms in St. Peter's Square on Palm Sundays.

Nicaragua Grants British Demand

On Tuesday, April 30, 1895, a remarkable event occurred in Nicaragua, a republic occupying the largest State of Central America, its 51,660 square miles extending from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic. Of about 210,000 inhabitants, one quarter are American natives, known as the Indians by the first European discoverer of that continent, and others are of a savage race named Mosquitos, while the rest are mostly of mixed descent. It was, therefore, not surprising that they did not then know the sort of treatment which the British Government would require. Mr. Hatch was serving as British pro-Vice-Consul at Bluefield, on its Atlantic coast and he was accused of conspiracy against the Nicaraguan Government and was arrested, along with other British subjects, and expelled. The present Earl of Rosebery was then Prime Minister, and on March 19, 1895, £15,000 were demanded from Nicaragua as reparation for these injuries. Nicaragua, on April 15, proposed that all the questions should be referred to impartial arbitration; but, on the 22nd, three British ships arrived at Corinto, a seaport on its west coast, and on the 24th demanded this compensation to be paid within three days, which was refused on the 26th. Corinto was therefore taken possession of on the 27th by a party of British marines and bluejackets, who landed from H. M. S. "Royal Arthur," without opposition, and Captain Trench was installed as Governor. On April 3, Nicaragua agreed to pay £15,000 within 15 days after the British ships should retire from Corinto, which they did. A commercial treaty between Nicaragua and Britain was signed in April, 1905.

Giant Reservoir.

With the enormous capacity of 60,000,000 gallons, the British Admiralty's new oil-fuel reservoir has been completed at Rosyth. The reservoir, which is to be used for the storage of fuel for H. M. ships in the Firth of Forth, is built of concrete on a rock foundation, the site being the bed of the sandstone quarry known as Howe's Cove, from which stone was quarried for the purpose of building the new dockyard. The use of concrete as a material of construction for oil reservoirs of large size is a novelty. The amount deposited totalled about 93,500 cubic yards, and the rock excavated was upwards of 800,000 cubic yards. The area occupied by the reservoir and surrounding roadway, pipe track, etc., is 11 1/4 acres, and the roof area 7 1/3 acres. The final testing of the reservoir was carried out by pumping salt water into it from the Firth of Forth at the rate of 4,000 gallons per minute by means of a suction dredger outfit and a temporary pipe line 24 inches in diameter and 2,400 feet in length.

Well Merited Promotion.

We are pleased to know that Capt. William Haynes, of Catalina, has received a letter from the Minister of Militia, conveying him his congratulations of the splendid conduct of his son Sergt. William Haynes, 1974. The following was taken from a supplement to the London Gazette: "For conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on the 13th April, 1918, while in command of a platoon, the enemy attacked in strength and forced a gap on the left flank of the battalion. Under very heavy fire he led his platoon to a counter-attack, re-organized the line and held it against further attacks." Sergt. Haynes went to France in June, 1916, was in the July and October 1916, and was being wounded was with the Regiment all winter in France. On the 14th April 1918, at the Battle of Monchy, he was wounded in the right hand from which the Sergeant suffered severely. Since receiving the D.C.M. Sergt. Haynes has been promoted to Lieutenant, and the people of Catalina feel proud of Lieut. Haynes, 1974, and join with the Minister of Militia in congratulating Captain and Mrs. Wm. Haynes on the honor for conspicuous bravery and devotion bestowed on him. We hope Lieut. Haynes and his brother Adam Haynes, who was wounded with the Canadians in France, will soon be returning home. Lieut. Adam Haynes, well known in St. John's, served as clerk at Ayre & Sons, removed some six years ago to Calgary, Alberta, Canada, where his wife and family at present reside. —C.A.H.

He Misunderstood Her.

Miss Simpkins was a lady of uncertain appearance and age, and rather frightened De Vere, who was a young assistant in a chemist's shop, by her persistent demonstration of friendship. He flattered himself that every girl and woman fell madly in love with him. He felt sure she meant to hook him. But chance threw them alone one day, and De Vere felt that his hour had come.

"Mr. De Vere," she said, "I can no longer bear this unspeakable anguish. I have at last plucked up courage to ask you a question which concerns my future happiness and comfort. Will—will you be—"

"My dear lady," gasped De Vere, breaking out into a cold perspiration, "it would break my heart to refuse. I have every regard and respect for—"

"Sir! what do you mean?" gasped Miss Simpkins. "Surely you can't object to my asking what corn-cure you can recommend?"

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

Although there are sales reported as low as $18 for Scotch cured herring in New York, and, indeed, there are reports of sales of inferior goods as low as $16 the market has developed a little stronger during the past week, and if the inquiries from domestic sources can be taken as an indication of future business, there is reasonable expectation that the late spring and early summer season will be more active. Some factors in New York holding stocks of fancy quality Newfoundland herring are quoting at $24, and sales of small lots of these goods are reported at prices up to $23 per barrel. The situation is not by any means normal, however, and it is the prevailing opinion in the trade that the inferior quality of the usual run of Scotch cured herring from this source has more than anything else depressed the market. There are considerable stocks held in Newfoundland still, and offerings continue to come from Halifax and Montreal. This has had a further weakening effect on the market. But in spite of these adverse circumstances, it appears that there is a better feeling in the trade. Those who hold stocks of good quality herring are inclined to be bullish, while those holding inferior herring display an anxiety to sell. The practice of offering goods in selections of sizes has again come into vogue, and sales of small lots of large fish this week have almost invariably been accompanied by sales of small fish. In other words the trade is not willing to sell large fish only, or to give buyers the option to pick a few barrels from a number. The small jobbers have been buying from hand-to-mouth during the past few months, none carrying more than a week's supply at a time. Winter and Spring herring is not in demand and prices continue weak.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette, April 19.

At the Majestic.

Another packed house greeted the show at the Majestic Theatre last evening, when "The Forbidden City" was screened. This six-reel picture by George Scarborough and featuring the pretty Norma Talmadge, dealt with Oriental love and was a splendid success, if generous applause on the part of the spectators testifies to success. A most astounding part of this picture is the manner in which the leading lady has transformed herself into a Chinese maid. To the casual observer it seems that she is really Chinese, and it must be confessed that the make-up is a work of art. In story, the gist of the picture is a strong contradiction of the words of Kipling, when he said,

"The East is East and the West is West,
And never the twain shall meet."

Love knows no geography or race, and this truism was forcefully exemplified in "The Forbidden City," which all lovers of good acting, splendour of costume and scenery, and interesting plot should undoubtedly see.

The Young

By RUTH

RUTH CAMERON

In the old days there used to be styles for younger women and distinct styles for older women. How times have changed!

I was strongly impressed by this obvious fact the other day when I sat waiting for a friend in the Misses' frock department of a certain shop and witnessed an interesting little scene. A young girl of perhaps twenty had come into the department to try on a frock. She tried on a very jaunty little affair in the latest shade of bright blue. It did not exactly suit her for some reason and she was about to lay it aside when the mother said, "Let me try that. I like the color." She tried it on, preened herself before the mirror, and eventually bought it. Now, can you imagine that happening, say, twenty years ago? I can't.

Doesn't She Sometimes Keep Herself Too Young?

There has been a great deal said in the last few years about the wonderful way in which the woman of today keeps herself young. The twentieth century grandmother's refusal to wear bonnets or caps or any of the old-time badges of grandmotherhood has been highly commended. I sometimes think this commendation has gone too far.

Perhaps when I am fifty-five or sixty I shall feel differently about it. At the present I must say that to be a woman whose style of dress and manner changes, somewhat with the years, is far more beautiful than the woman who dresses and acts as if she were twenty or thirty.

Is Chasing A Will O' The Wisp?

I think.

I suppose when a woman of many years dresses in the bright colors and advanced styles of youth she is trying to make herself more attractive, subconsciously pursuing an element of beauty. But fitness is the most element of beauty, and when

The Young Old Woman.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

In the old days you have no fitness you haven't even the foundation of beauty. There are so many lovely things older women can wear that I do not see why they covet the colors and styles that are most suitable to youth. Is there anything lovelier for the woman with grey or white hair than silver grey or lavender or all white, or, if she has fresh enough color and good enough line to wear it, the exquisiteness of all black with just the relief of plain white collar of ruche? What a sense of dignity and harmony and the eternal fitness of things she gives us. I am sure when the Lord made silver grey and lavender he thought of older folks.

I was strongly impressed by this obvious fact the other day when I sat waiting for a friend in the Misses frock department of a certain shop and witnessed an interesting little scene. A young girl of perhaps twenty had come into the department to try on a frock. She tried on a very jaunty little affair in the latest shade of bright blue. It did not exactly suit her for some reason and she was about to lay it aside when the mother said, "Let me try that, I like the color." She tried it on, preened herself before the mirror, and eventually bought it. Now, can you imagine that happening, say twenty years ago? I can't.

That Undignified Clutching At Youth. Of course I like to see both men and women keep the fresh clear skin of youth, as long as they can, and, of course, I like to see them keep in their hearts the spirit of youth, but I hate to see that undignified clutching at youth which expresses itself in clothes and manner that do not harmonize with one's years.

Middle age and old age are so beautiful where they are willing to be themselves. In spite of its over use I still love the phrase "growing old gracefully."

REAL GLORY.

You can do a lot of clever things and not be truly great. You can paint a perfect picture and still stain your soul with hate; you can hoard up gold and silver till your time of life shall end and still remain unhonored here and never have a friend.

You may live your generation through and not become a man. You may build a great cathedral and still fail the Master's plan; you may be a skillful workman and the topest heights may gain, but still if that is all you do your life is spent in vain.

For the things which make for greatness are not born of power and skill; the poet with his pen, the tyrant with his conquering troops remains a tyrant still. And the sculptor with his chisel and the poet with his pen, but how they lived as men. Must find their glory not in works.

Wise Men Say—

That success comes in cans. Failures in cant. That a diplomat is a man who remembers his wife's birthday, but not her age.

That we must have respect for others or we cannot expect the respect of others.

That getting on is largely a matter of getting up each time you are knocked down.

That the fun is in the struggle, not the reward.

That the biggest little thing is kindness.

That no tyranny of circumstances can permanently imprison a determined will.

That we should judge ourselves by what we feel capable of doing, not by what we have done.

That we never think of limiting ourselves to what we have done if we have a proper estimate of ourselves.

That the optimist is never afraid of the worst, because he knows that the worst never happens.

That a man is a real hero who keeps stout-hearted and undismayed when troubles and tribulations are piled on. He knows that the chances are that no man but himself can pull him out.

A Chinese Typewriter

OF UNIQUE DESIGN.

Mr. Hou Chow, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who was one of the original Chinese indemnity students to be educated in the United States, formerly aeronautical engineer for an American aeroplane company and now mechanical engineer for a printing press company of Shanghai, is the inventor of a typewriter which utilizes 4,000 Chinese characters.

The ordinary Chinese printing office uses about 6,000 characters while a complete Chinese dictionary may contain as many as 50,000. For all practical purposes, however, the 6,000 characters commonly used in a Chinese printing office are found to be quite sufficient.

Mr. Chow's invention has been exhibited by him at the American consulate general at Shanghai, and was found to be simple in design and portable. It should be comparatively inexpensive. Obviously, however, no great speed will be possible in operating the machine as now constructed. The 4,000 characters are distributed over an ordinary metal matrix drawn about a cylinder which is approximately 6 inches in diameter and has the appearance of being about 15 to 18 inches in length. The characters represented on the cylinder are printed on a flat table surface attached to the front of the machine, and by means of a rod attachment to the cylinder it is possible to locate any character by placing the pointer at the end of the rod above the character on the flat surface. When this is done the character on the cylinder is in exact position for securing an impression by the dropping of a hammer on a plunger. In this way several carbon copies may be secured readily.

Mr. Chow first thought of the practicability of a Chinese typewriter while inspecting American typewriters in the Mechanics Building, at Boston, as a student at the Institute of Technology. He has met with great obstacles in perfecting the mechanical part of his invention because of a lack of technical assistance at Shanghai.

Inasmuch as it would be utterly impossible to construct a typewriter having keys corresponding to the multitudinous Chinese characters, Mr. Chow resorted to the device having the revolving cylinder attachment. The first model of the machine, now exhibited, weighs about 40 pounds. By improvements which are under way the weight will probably be reduced to 30 pounds.

The inventor of the Chinese typewriter is of the opinion that his machine will be extensively required in Chinese offices where several copies of documents must be made. Moreover, he believes that it will be popular among the Chinese in foreign countries where it is difficult or impossible to secure the services of a skilled Chinese writer who is familiar with Chinese characters.—Ex.

Electrically Heated Soles

Keeping warm is one of the military arm's greatest problems. Time and again the fighting arm is confronted with the intense cold of the height altitudes, and the resultant suffering and numbness seriously interfere with the work in hand, if, indeed, they do not lead to disaster. Hence it becomes a matter of prime importance to keep the arm warm so that they may "carry on" in winter as in summer.

Of the various means of keeping the arm warm, none has proved the equal of electrically heated clothing. Heating units in the form of fine resistance wires are incorporated in the heavy coats of the arm, and the warmth produced is utilized to the fullest extent. Because of the limited radiation of the heat, only a small amount of electric current is required to keep the brow of an airplane as warm as if they were sitting in a parlor in "Blighty." The feet, which are generally the first members to suffer from cold, are heated by means of electrically warmed insoles. By means of flexible conductors and detachable connectors the heating units of the coats and the shoes are brought into circuit with the airplane generator, which is normally employed for furnishing current to the lights, wireless apparatus, and so on.

Have You Seen Him?

Scotland Yard are searching for a rather stout, fresh-complexioned man with a slight impediment in his speech. The man drove up in a van to the offices of the Public Trustee in Kingsway, chatted with the night watchman, went to get a meal, strolled leisurely back, filled up his van with 261 foot-mats, 28 rugs and a Brussels carpet, whistling merrily the while, and then departed with his haul, which is valued at £200. It appears that the man, who was accompanied by a youth, was wearing a

AKRON.

One thing my painting soul desires, which is to visit Akron town, and see the people making tires, the white and black, the red and brown. I know the notion is a boob's, yet 'twill not from my mind retreat; I'd see them making inner tubes, and rubber up and down the street. I drop my feeble, halting pen, and interrupt my half baked poem, to wonder why the rubber men selected Akron as their home. I wonder if they've grocers there, and editors who print the news, and barbers who will prune your hair, and bootblacks who will shine your shoes? Do clothiers sell the handmedowns, and butchers saw off lengths of bones? I'd like to walk where Akron lies, on shoes that have non-skid tread, and see the wives make rubber pies, and bakers vulcanize their bread. I hear of Akron every day, I taste that city in my dreams, and every hour hear salesmen say, "These Akron tires are surely screams!" I never hear of Akron odes, of Akron music, Akron art; but she has tires for all the loads men pile on lorry, truck and cart. Some time I'll pack my grip, and go to see the town of my desires; it's where my hard earned savings go—I'm busted buying Akron tires.

And Eggs Soaring.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—It is indeed ridiculous for writers to be continually blowing their horn sounding the praises of the Poultry Association, for the ordinary citizen looks upon that Association as nothing more or less than a fad. Let Messrs. LeMessurier, Johnson, Calvert, etc. enjoy themselves to their hearts content decorating each other with medals, but for goodness sake let them not pose before the public in a serious role. Mr. LeMessurier has only to look up the number of eggs imported for 1918 to find that the importation is by far greater than it was for the five years previous. I have been informed that this so-called Poultry Association receives a very considerable amount of money from the Government to help along the work and if this be true I say that they are giving no returns to the taxpayer. It is sickening to read day by day of the noble work of this Poultry Society in face of the fact that we were forced to pay from a dollar to a dollar and twenty cents for a dozen eggs all winter.

Let us have no more bouquet presentations until something worth while is achieved. The public is already fed up.

Yours,
April 30, 1919. CITIZEN.

St. Andrew's L. S. A.

H. D. Reid, Esq., President of St. Andrew's Society, opened the Sale of Work by the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Society, in the club rooms, Smallwood Building, at 3.30 yesterday afternoon.

Bunting flew from the building while inside the hall and stalls had been most artistically decorated, the prevalent colours being the white and blue of St. Andrew.

The Sale was brisk and the goods provided were rapidly bought up. After the Sale there was a card tournament, followed by dancing which was kept up till an early hour this morning. Miss T. Power provided the music for the dancers. The event proved most successful in every way and the ladies are to be congratulated on their success. The stall holders were:—

- Plafwork—Mesdames C. Henderson, McIntosh and Forbes.
- Fancy—Mesdames A. and R. G. Ross.
- Handkerchief—Mrs. Angus Reid, Miss Helen Reid.
- Wool—Mesdames J. Tylar and W. Neal.
- Candy—Mrs. Turner, Misses MacFarlane, Wallace and Whitten.
- Teas—Mesdames Crawford, Ash, Nicholson, Johnson, Kennedy and McKinley and Miss Crawford.
- Grab-Bag—Mesdames D. McFarlane and Eadie.

On May 20th a number of the young ladies of the Auxiliary will hold a dance in the C. C. Hall.

S. P. A. Matters.

The gross proceeds of the comedy given on the 24th instant in aid of the Society for Protection of Animals were $291.35. The Society appreciates very highly His Excellency's kind patronage and financial support. To the dramatics personnel the Society tenders its sincere thanks, recognizing that such a performance calls for more arduous preparation than the audience are apt to imagine. Special thanks are due to Captain Campbell and to Mr. Gordon Christian, his accompanist, for several songs beautifully rendered and accompanied to perfection.

The Society will have a Tag-Day on May 23rd. Its disbursements this year will almost double those of any former year. A Work Horse Parade will be held in September in the grounds of Government House.

Gigantic British Budget.

1,500,000,000 Pounds For Current Year.

Late German Pacific Fortress for Japan --- Belgium Wants Legitimate Claims Adjusted---Wilson Stands by Treaty of London.

THE BRITISH BUDGET.

LONDON, April 30. A statement on the Budget was made in the House of Commons today by Chamberlain. Great Britain must find fifteen hundred million pounds. On the present basis of taxation she can find nine hundred and thirty-six million pounds. The difference must be made up by new taxation. The expectation is that the Chancellor will attempt to raise one thousand million pounds by taxation and the remainder by loans.

KIAU CHAU DISPOSED OF.

PARIS, April 30. The announcement was made this afternoon that the dispute over Kiau Chau had been settled. No details were given.

JAPAN TO GET KIAU CHAU.

PARIS, April 30. The Peace Treaty will provide that Germany must surrender Kiau Chau to Japan, the Paris representative of Reuter's, Ltd. says. Japan will transfer the territory to China in due course. It is added that Japan's other agreements with China will not be affected.

FRENCH LABOR STRIKE.

PARIS, April 30. The general labor federation to-day distributed placards and cards giving the reasons for the general strike on May 12. The cards which are being sent to all members of labor unions for signature read: "May 1, 1919, I strike to demand, first the eight-hour day, second, total amnesty, third, rapid demobilization, and fourth, a just peace and disarmament. I strike to protect against first, intervention in Russia, second, income taxes on wages, third, martial law and fourth the censorship."

BRITISH SHIPBUILDING.

LONDON, April 30. (Via Reuter's.)—The encouraging progress of British shipbuilding in the first quarter year since the war is shown in Lloyd's register returns. On March 31st, 2,254,545 tons were under construction in the United Kingdom. World-wide construction, excluding that of belligerents, was 7,796,266 tons. British tonnage was mainly applied to the construction of 693 steamers. The total tonnage under construction at the end of March was 375,000 above that of the December quarter, and 375,000 above that building a year ago. In March, 233 more vessels were building than in December, and 259 more than a year ago. The predominance of the Clyde as a shipbuilding center is shown by the fact that over one-third of the total British tonnage was under construction there, while the Tyne was second with approximately one-fifth of the total. Four vessels of between ten and twelve thousand tons were under construction on March 31st, eight vessels of up to 15 thousand tons, six up to 20 thousand and four up to 25 thousand tons. Work was started during the past quarter on 100 steamers totalling 423,576 tons, while 72 steamers of 203,966 tons were launched. The Clyde output for April was only exceeded in April, 1913, when the Aquitania and Calgarian were launched. The present month Clyde output is thirty-four vessels, aggregating 55,774 tons. Since the beginning of the year it has built 89 vessels, aggregating 163,435 tons. Prospects indicate that the Clyde will soon reach a higher standard than before the war. Of the tonnage abroad, 75 per cent. was building in the United States. In the British Dominions, 308,088 tons were building. The next leading shipbuilders are Japan and Holland.

WILL DEPORT GERMANS.

MELBOURNE, Aus., April 30. Plans to deport interned Germans beginning late in May, were announced to-day.

BELGIUM DISAPPOINTED.

BRUSSELS, April 29. The Senate to-day passed a resolution appealing to the Parliaments of the Allies for "powerful support and intervention to uphold Belgium's legitimate claims for restoration of country." Devilla, a member of the Senate said, "we have been bitterly disappointed in the hope that our Allies would spare us from further dissatisfaction."

WILSON EXPLAINS.

PARIS, April 29. The statement by President Wilson given to-night for publication in Italy, deals with the President's memorandum to the Italian delegation on April 14th. He says he stands by the treaty of London and insists the Flame should be internationalized. He says he was bound in the consideration of the Adriatic question to stick to the fourteen points which had been accepted by all as a basis of peace.

NO CHANGE IN SITUATION.

PARIS, April 30. In spite of the optimistic views of the French press on the effect of Premier Orlando's speech to the Italian Parliament, there were no indications in peace conference circles to-day of any feeling that the situation had altered materially. The temperate tone of the Italian Premier's address, was commented upon favorably, but on the part of the Council of Three there were no signs of yielding from the previous position, as was suggested in despatches from Rome.

GENEVA CELEBRATES.

GENEVA, April 23. A palace for the permanent seat for the League of Nations will be constructed on one of several beautiful sites along Lake Geneva, near the city. In the meantime the city authorities will place the Palais Eynard near the University, at the disposal of the delegates. Flags and other decorations were hung out in Geneva to-day, and to-morrow will be a public holiday. The State Council will hold a special session in the morning in honor of the selection of Geneva as the seat of the League.

JAPAN'S CONFIDENCE.

PARIS, April 30. Baron Makino, Chairman of the Japanese Peace Delegates, in a statement published in the Matin to-day declared that Japan who had mobilized her forces on the 14th day of the war will remain by the side of those who had been her friends and allies from the first hour. He said that he was confident that Japan would obtain satisfaction regarding Kiau Chau.

CENSOR'S OFFICE CLOSED.

LONDON, April 29. This is the first uncensored message the Associated Press has cabled to America since 6 p.m., August 2, 1914. "The Official Press Bureau closed at 6 o'clock to-night and correspondents may telegraph now as free as in pre-war times, but are still subject to the Defence of the Realm Act, if any message should be found to disclose military secrets or endanger the safety of the realm."

ROMANIAN ADVANCE CONTINUES.

PARIS, April 30. Hungarian Communist troops have withdrawn from Karazag, 85 miles east southeast of Budapest, before superior Romanian forces. A Hungarian official statement from Budapest says the Romanians continue their advance down the river valleys leading to Budapest east of that city.

EDITOR DEPORTED.

BOMBAY, India, April 30. (Via Reuter's.)—The Governor of Bombay, with the sanction of the Viceroy, has ordered that Horniman, editor of the Bombay Chronicle, who was associated with Grandt in the passive resistance movement, leave India for England immediately.

Gower Street M. C.

The Gower Street Mission Circle held a most successful tea, sale and concert in the Methodist College Hall last night. The tea tables, sumptuously provided, took a big toll of patrons, while the various stalls were rapidly depleted of their well-filled stocks, and the holders were well pleased at the rapidity of the sales. The concert was all that could be desired, the members taking part being encored repeatedly. The performers were:—Mrs. H. G. Christian, Misses M. Mitchell, B. Langmead, M. J. J. P. Inkpen and E. Harris, and Messrs. C. Hutton, H. Courtney, C. Trappell, F. J. King and H. G. Christian.

The Harkins Co.

At the Casino Theatre, last night, "A Stitch in Time" was presented by the Harkins Company to a packed house which thoroughly enjoyed this delightful comedy. As Phoebe Ann, the scrub girl, Miss Marjorie Dalton was a surprise and delight to her many admirers in St. John's. The manner in which Phoebe Ann wins her way into the heart of a young artist and realizes her dreams cannot fail to charm an audience. Last night's performance proves Miss Dalton to be an actress of great versatility. Mr. Ross, as the young artist, had a part well suited to him and which he handled with ease and finish. Other members of the company were seen in parts that were life-like and true. Especial mention should be made of Miss Edna Bern for her remarkably good performance of Mrs. Trevor. "Ghastly Chesters," a clever comedy crook play, will be given Friday and Saturday. In it we are shown how two gangs of crooks set about to rob each other and how all are trapped by a clever woman detective who in turn falls in love with the leader of one gang and causes his reformation. The popularity of this play can be seen by the fact that it was presented one week by twelve different stock companies in as many cities in the United States. A matinee will be given Saturday at 2.30. Seats are now on sale.

At Kilbride.

Capt. Leo Murphy lectured at Kilbride last night. The hall was packed, and the lecturer having been introduced to the audience by Mr. J. Doyle, spoke in his usual style of Ypres, Monchy and Guedecourt, and the Newfoundlanders there, giving many humorous sayings and doings of the boys. Rev. J. P. Coady, P.P., moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer and spoke of a few of his own experiences, and welcomed Sgt. Rickett, V.C. to the hall. Mr. Ed. Conolly seconded the motion. Mr. A. McDonald contributed much to the enjoyment of the evening and songs were rendered by Mr. E. Doyle and Capt. J. O'Grady, Messrs. Skinner (2), and Murphy. After the entertainment dancing was indulged in.

Flight Postponed Again.

Largely in consequence of our announcement yesterday, some thousands of the citizens of St. John's turned up at Pleasantville in the afternoon in hopes of witnessing the beginning of the double fight, and the countryside was dotted black with the surging crowds. For a few hundred yards either way from the tent hangar automobiles, carriages and bicycles were lined up, and nearly every second person present carried a camera. Many distinguished citizens were there, among them being the local journalists almost in full force. Several foreign newspaper men were also on the scene. The "Raymor" was all ready, and Major Morgan merely had to jump into his suit to be prepared for the great journey. Mr. Raynam, the pilot was in the city, waiting until the last minute to receive the very latest meteorological reports, and it was with a feeling of dismay that the waiting crowds saw him arrive in his big red motor and announce that, owing to the receipt of an unfavorable weather report, the flight would not take place. There was then nothing else to do but pack up and go home, and for half an hour after, Quidi Vidi Road, on the North, was the scene of masses of people wending their way wearily homeward, much disappointed over the apparent enmity of the weather god toward the birdmen.

Wonderful Wireless.

France will shortly possess the most powerful wireless station in the world. It is at Croix d' Hines, near Bordeaux, and has four masts, each to carry aerials. These masts will measure 275 metres high (1 metre equals about 40 in.) that is to say, 5 metres less than the Eiffel Tower in Paris. The new station will be able to communicate direct by wireless with Washington to the West and China to the East.

One Hundred Years Old

AND FIT AS AS A FIDDLE.

Alexander Baptiste, of St. Louis, Mo., celebrated his hundredth birthday the other day by knocking off work a little earlier than usual to attend a dinner which was given at noon in his honor. Baptiste is not quite as fit as he was on his eighty-eighth birthday, when he wrestled and threw his son George, then recognized as one of the best men in St. Louis, but at one hundred he is vigorously healthy. He still appears at his place of business, coming twelve miles from his residence on a street car, not infrequently meeting the fate of other street-car travelers and being compelled to stand in the aisles. His handclasp is crushing. His hair, a mass of it, is hardly touched with grey. His moustache is wholly black. His skin has a healthy glow. "Ho, ho," said his son, who is fifty-four and "who he picked up a newspaper," "I see the kaiser—" "Let's see," exclaimed the father, and he removed his glasses to read the despatches. He explained that he used his glasses only for distance. "I'm glad of that," he said. "I'm glad to live to see that murderer go." His eye fell upon the account of what the influenza did. "Pooh," he snuffed. "Grip; that's all! No man will get it if he takes care of himself. I am not afraid of it." Baptiste has his recipe for longevity. "Drink no intoxicants. Go to bed as early as you can; get up as early as you can. Exercise before breakfast, and then a warm bath, tapering off to cold. Eat fresh food. Above all, shun bad company." He says he expects the formula to at least carry him to the age his father reached—116. "I have never spent a day in my life in bed from sickness," he said. "I guess I'd die with my boots on." An athlete all his life, and still taking his morning turn at the pulley in his room, Baptiste says that his greatest feat was the lifting of 1,200 pounds. Baptiste came to St. Louis sixty-nine years ago. His first employer here was Pierre Chouteau, who conducted a steamboat trade with the Indians. He was born in Athens, Greece.

Every Saturday evening after 7 o'clock, Choice Ends of Beef, Mutton, Lamb, Pork will be sold at cost. ELLIS & CO., LTD., 203 Water Street.—Nov 29.

A Women's Newspaper.

(From the New York World.) The experiment of a daily newspaper edited, managed and printed entirely by women, has failed at Atlantic City, after an eight months' trial. This does not mean, of course, that women are incapable of editing and publishing a newspaper with success. All it proves is that it is not enough merely to feminize a journal to make it appeal to readers. A successful women's newspaper is quite as feasible as a successful women's bank or factory, but only on the same conditions, and in the case of the newspaper must print the news with such regard to sex or of the fact that the editors and printers are women. No doubt there will some day be a great women's newspaper. The opportunity exists, there is a vast female constituency, and it would not be difficult to assemble a staff of competent women editors, reporters and managers. But a newspaper of the kind to gain circulation and influence would have to be conducted on the same lines as the great mass newspapers and in competition with them. It would have to print the news and make its editorial opinion authoritative and adopt sound business methods of publication. All the failure of the Atlantic City experiment shows is that to publish a newspaper success must be observed, and these have nothing to do with sex.

MAJESTIC PRESENTATION.

Wednesday and Thursday,
"THE FORBIDDEN CITY," 6 Reels.

By George Scarborough, featuring Norma Talmadge.

An altogether delightful six-reel picture of love in the mystic Orient. Have you ever seen your own Norma Talmadge as a sweet coquettish maid of the East? The many theatre-goers who have seen and admired the splendid performances of the "Mikado" and "Geisha" will certainly enjoy this picture, which abounds in Oriental splendor, and shows on the screen as the opera does through song the atmosphere of the Orient.

Returns What He Could Not Use.

The robbery of the East Side Bank, of Portland, Ore., by Arthur C. Davis, a twenty-year-old bank clerk, about November 1, broke into the limelight again recently when H. H. Nowhall, president of the bank, announced that Davis had returned all the non-negotiable papers he had taken when he stole $18,500 in Liberty Bonds and cash.

The suitcase was shipped by express from Salt Lake City, Utah, affording the police the first clue to the whereabouts of young Davis since he made his escape after looting the bank in broad daylight. Nowhall received a letter from Davis recently, telling of the clerk's intention to send back all the papers which were of no value to him. The letter was written on note paper of good quality and was enclosed in a dainty little envelope such as women use for personal correspondence.

"Dear Mr. Nowhall," the note read, "I am returning to you by express all the papers taken from your bank excepting such as are negotiable."

"A. C. DAVIS."

The suitcase arrived in due time, billed to R. Usher, another clerk at the bank. Mr. Usher and two private detectives went to the express office for it. The suitcase contained about twenty pounds of mortgages, notes and deeds, all recorded in the county records and of no use to any one but the proper owners. The package was taken to the bank and opened. The shipping receipt purported to have been written by Willis Ireland, cashier of the bank. Mr. Ireland had been in Portland ever since the robbery, so the writing was a patent forgery.

Davis' theft is one of the most sensational in local police annals. He visited the bank after daylight in the morning, filled an automobile with Liberty Bonds, sacks of gold and silver and currency and drove to his home, where he left $1,500 with his wife and then disappeared. He is a son of the Rev. C. Howard Davis of this city.

Roses as Rent.

King George is the recipient of many queer rents, which, if of no intrinsic value, are certainly curious. They are really surviving customs of feudal days.

The City of London's rent for certain property of the Strand consists of two knives, six horse-shoes, and sixty-one nails, and it is paid to the King's Remembrancer at the Law Courts.

The Royal Academy pays a peppercorn rent for the site of Burlington House.

The owner of Copeland Manor holds his tenancy on condition that he supports the King's head should the Sovereign be sequestered in crossing from Dover to Whitesand.

The Manor of Aylesbury is bound to provide the King with three geese if he goes there in summer, or with three eels if it is in the winter. It is also bound to provide clean straw for the King's bedroom three times a year should His Majesty pass through Aylesbury. This obligation dates from the time when straw was a luxury for the bedroom floor.

St. Olave's Grammar School, near Tower Bridge, is rented by roses. Originally the value of the land was £30. Its worth is now £5,000 a year, but the rent is still a bunch of roses.

The ancient city of Chichester is bound to provide the King with "a string for his cross-bow," whilst the lord of Bryanston, in Dorset, used to hold his manor on condition that he provided a boy with a stringless bow and an unfeathered arrow whenever the King made war in Wales.

The tenant of Bradley Great Wood, near Grimsby, is compelled to send a wild boar or its equivalent in cash to the Mayor of Grimsby.

As wild boars are somewhat scarce nowadays the money is usually sent.

A carload of frozen lamb and mutton, one of several consigned to New York of a shipment from New Zealand, via Vancouver, has been placed on sale at a New York market. In wholesale lots the shipment is expected to sell several cents under American products. Heretofore England has been the principal market for New Zealand lamb and mutton.

Edgar Cramond, a prominent British financial writer, estimates the direct cost of the war to the Allies at $28,360,000,000 sterling, and to the Central European Powers at $13,675,000,000. He estimates the total cost of the war, including indirect losses, at $52,000,000,000.

Increased precautions have been taken to safeguard the Premiers and President Wilson in their daily conferences at Paris. So careful have the plans been made that not even the chiefs of the secret service squads are informed as to when the meetings will take place.

A decision to make an early contest of the constitutionality of the wartime prohibition restriction, effective July 1, was reached recently at Chicago at the close of a two-day session of the distiller's committee and about 75 officials of as many distilling concerns.

The old country doctors have decided to form the profession into a trades union affair. They say that this is the only way they can get justice. The organization of the new Ministry of Health has forced the doctors to get a move on. Dr. Stancomb (Southampton), asked: "How is it that the community can pay Charlie Chaplin $200,000 a year to make them laugh, and only pay me $200 a year to keep them alive?"

MR. CHESHIRE ILL.—Mrs. W. R. Cheshire received word Monday that her husband was ill of typhoid at Bermuda, and at once Mrs. Cheshire booked passage en route to the island.

A Slight Mistake.

Concerning one of his earliest flights, Harry Hawker, the famous aviator who is expected to make an early dash across the Atlantic tells an amusing story. His height-recording barographs had been sent to a certain laboratory to be tested, and a few days later the secretary of the Aero Club telephoned to ask about them.

"What is the height recorded on those barographs?" he asked. "About one foot eight inches," was the reply. "What!" gasped the secretary. "I expect the height is nearer thirteen thousand feet."

"Who are you getting at?" demanded the voice. The secretary explained patiently: "I want to know the height recorded on the barographs sent to be tested." "Oh, I don't know anything about barographs," came the answer. "I'm the gardener. I thought you said you wanted to know the record height for asparagus."

NURSERY HYGIENE.

The nursery is the most important room in the house; therefore its hygiene must be above suspicion. Many parents fall into a fallacy regarding modern heating methods, and while admitting the comfort, cleanliness and convenience of the Gas Fire, call its suitability for nursery use into question on the grounds of hygiene.

This idea is wrong. The modern Gas Fire is more hygienic than the coal fire, has all its good points without its bad ones. The Gas Fire gives radiant heat and assists ventilation. All the products of combustion are carried off by the fine connection to the chimney. There is no smoke, dust or ashes, and for a sick room it is invaluable.

The modern ventilated Gas Fire produces radiant heat, a natural heat similar to that given by the sun, and adds hygiene to its many other advantages.

For particulars of the new Radiant Fires, phone 97 or call at the Gas Co.'s Showroom. apr 19, 1919.

How Long Should We Sleep?

Sir James Crichton-Browne says that between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-seven we should sleep for nine hours out of the twenty-four. When we have passed this age, eight hours will suffice.

The old Duke of Wellington used to say that a man who could sleep more than five hours was a fool, whilst George R. Sims declares that in his young days two or three hours' sleep was all that he ever wanted. Lord Holdane is one who sleeps very little, and so is Sir Edward Carson.

Before scalding fish you should dip them in boiling water for a moment; they will scale much more easily.

The old-fashioned flour starch is excellent and will never stick to the irons if care is taken to boil it for five minutes.

When the butter won't come, put a little honey in the cream—a teaspoonful to a gallon of cream. It works wonders.

Put equal quantities of canned corn and tomatoes, well seasoned, into an ollod baking dish. Sprinkle with crumbs and bake.

Finger nails that are manicured every week will retain their delicacy and luster much longer than those that are neglected.

A bathroom window can be frosted with a strong solution of Epsom salts and vinegar, then gone over with white varnish.

To clean woodwork satisfactorily paint with kerosene water. One cupful of oil to six quarts of water is the right proportion.

Put equal quantities of canned corn and tomatoes, well seasoned, into an

To-Day's Messages.

A PONDEROUS DOCUMENT.
PARIS, April 30. Forty thousand words or about half of the draft of the Peace Treaty have been cabled to the State Department at Washington. The balance is going forward steadily. Thus the entire treaty will have been transmitted in a day or two, for release for publication, upon authorization of the Conference.

WILL OPPOSE PREFERENCE.
LONDON, April 30. The exigencies of business limited tonight's debate on the budget, which was presented in the House of Commons today. The chief critic was William Adamson, the Opposition Leader, who characterized the budget as extremely disappointing, and strongly criticized fresh borrowing, reduction of the excess profits tax and the introduction of Colonial preferences, which he regarded as the thin edge of the protection wedge. It was expected that the Opposition Liberals might challenge divisions on the question of Colonial preference, and when Chancellor Chamberlain appealed to the House to adopt the resolutions necessary to put the new proposal in force, Sir Donald Maclean, the Liberal Leader, declared that the Liberals were opposed in principle, and did not desire to prejudice their Opposition in the debate. Thereupon Mr. Chamberlain gave an assurance that there would be ample opportunity later on to challenge the preference policy, and the House adopted the resolution without division.

BOWERY DESTROYED.
NEW YORK, April 30. With a loss estimated at a million dollars, the famous Bowery, at Brighton Beach, was destroyed to-night in the most spectacular fire Coney Island has known in years.

OTTAWA HAS STRIKE.
OTTAWA, Ont., May 1. Three thousand men engaged in the building trades, struck this morning.

AND SO HAS WINNIPEG.
WINNIPEG, Mann., April 30. In consequence of employers failing to grant the demand for a general increase of twenty cents per hour, the Building Trades employees voted to strike to-night.

TAXES AND PREFERENCES.
LONDON, May 1. Features of budget exciting the most discussion are the continuance of the policy of heavily taxing wealth, without any increase in the taxes of people of moderate means, and the launching of a preference scheme for imports from the dominions and colonies.

TORONTO NEXT.
TORONTO, Ont., April 30. Six thousand workmen and two hundred and twenty-five factories engaged in the metal trades are affected by a strike decision reached to-night.

MUNICH RINGED IN.
COPENHAGEN, To-day. A ring of government troops is closing around Munich, according to Berlin despatches.

WILL GET THEM MONDAY.
PARIS, May 1. An opinion prevails in Peace Conference circles that the Peace preliminaries will be communicated to the Germans on Monday afternoon.

BELGIUM STANDING OUT.
BRUSSELS, April 30. Extremely strong measures, relative to Belgium's demand at the Peace Conference has been decided upon by the Government. According to "Le Soir," "Belgium won't accept the terms which the Council of Three desires to impose upon her."

Learning to Fly by Kinema.
(By Leonard Donaldson, in "Daily Mail.")

A kinema school for pilots is the latest development in the aeronautical world. In the future the chauffeur of the aerial limousine is to become conversant with the rules of the air by means of a series of screen tests, it having been proved that the kinema is invaluable as a demonstrator in this direction.

The theory is that when civilian flying becomes general, no man should be granted a pilot's certificate until it has been definitely proved that he is capable of acting promptly in the face of danger.

Some recent tests have been carried out in the United States in which the pilot was placed in an aeroplane in a darkened room specially equipped for the purpose.

The machine was raised from the floor, allowing the wings free movement. Immediately in front of the aeroplane a screen was erected on which motion pictures were shown. Films showing the correct method of passing other machines in flight were shown, the student being instructed to act as if the incidents depicted were actually taking place.

The system has proved to be highly successful, and pilots who have passed the "kinema test" have invariably proved to be careful and efficient flyers.

Omnibus and tramway companies have a similar method of giving instruction calculated to decrease the number of street accidents.

One picture recently shown portrayed the unhappy plight which befell an elderly passenger who alighted from an omnibus with the right foot foremost.

The fee charged for a course of "kinema nerve tests" is quite moderate; the methods of avoiding "side slips," "pancakes," "nose dives," or "crashes" being explained in a series of six lessons.

United States Acquire a Colony Cheaply.

On Sunday, May 1, 1898, the United States won, without any loss of life to themselves, a naval battle against the Spaniards, off Manila, a fortified city, which had been ever since A. D. 1571, the capital of the possessions of that European nation in the Philippine Islands, in the Malay Archipelago, one of the easternmost groups off the east coast of Asia. This resulted in those islands becoming a colony of the United States, with an area of 121,895 square miles, whose inhabitants number 6,987,686, of whom about 647,740 are wild and uncivilized. The Spanish squadron, commanded by Admiral Montojo, consisted of eleven ships, and the Spaniards showed great courage, none of them surrendering, but their vessels were inefficient, and were therefore destroyed, while others ran ashore to escape capture.

The United States fleet, commanded by Commodore Dewey, consisted of only nine ships. Four hundred Spaniards were killed and 600 others wounded, but not one American lost his life, nor was even wounded. Yet the Spanish Colonial troops in these islands had numbered 17,000, and in 1896 and 1897 these had been largely reinforced to quell a serious revolt that had broken out. The principal products of the islands are sugar and hemp, which is largely exported to Great Britain, while the other's were coffee, indigo, copra, and tobacco. Their trade in 1896 was worth $2,150,000 for imports and $7,500,000 for exports.

Castors will not drop out of chair legs if the holes are filled with melted paraffin just before the castors are set in.

A home-made incinerator is better than none, and only requires a yard and a half of the square-mesh chicken wire.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

On Oct. 22 our Mr. O. K. Nelson started on a round trip to New York via S. S. "Casapadua". On the return trip the vessel was shipwrecked south of St. Pierre on Nov. 17. The passengers and crew were rescued by an English vessel and landed in England.

Being an American citizen, Mr. Nelson could only get permission to go to New York where he arrived on January 12. A few days later he was taken ill with the "flu" and forced to remain for two months, finally reaching St. John's on the S. S. "Digby".

During Mr. Nelson's absence a number of shipments arrived which had to be held at the station till his return, as there was no one at our office here with authority to receive shipments.

The above will explain why our goods were held here so long, also why many letters addressed to this office have not been answered. We are pleased to announce that we have made arrangements with THE COLUMBIA TRADING CO. of New York to act as their agents in Newfoundland and in future they will attend to the purchase and shipment of all goods ordered from New York through this office.

THE COLUMBIA TRADING CO. are general exporters and give careful attention to the purchase and shipment of all American goods. They also handle all kinds of fishery products and raw furs. We can arrange for any of our customers to deal directly with their New York office if desired.

THE UNILECTRIC MACHINE is becoming more generally recognized as the best electric lighting system on the market. These machines can now be equipped with a self-starter so that machine can be started or stopped at any time of the day or night by pressing a button in any room in the house. This equipment gives the UNILECTRIC every advantage claimed for the so-called "battery system" without the unpainted and expense of caring for batteries. Many battery systems which have been in use for only a short time have been replaced by the "UNILECTRIC".

THE HOWE SCALE CO. is one of the oldest and most reliable concerns in the business. They have recently perfected a "springless" computing scale which is the finest scale of its kind ever made. Let us show you this new scale.

KNOCK DOWN ENGINES—one of its kind in the world. Price of engine alone: 4 H.P., $110.00; 8 H.P., $175.00. Price complete with propeller, shafting and tank: 4 H.P., $140.00; 8 H.P., $210.00. We will set up this engine and ship it to you ready to run for $5.00 extra. Last year shipments were greatly delayed owing to war conditions. Now we have some of these engines here in St. John's and others coming. These engines are not an experiment. They are one of the oldest engines made. The only thing new is the idea of measuring every part by the finest gauge, then shipping the parts (unpainted) to be assembled and painted by the purchaser. In this way the engines can be sold much cheaper. If you need a reliable engine at the cheapest possible price, write or telegraph us at once.

GLOWSEN GREI ENGINES—These engines are built in Norway where the finest iron in the world is found. They are of the modified "hot head" type with electric equipment which starts engine and operates till engine is thoroughly heated. These engines have proved so reliable that the Norwegian fishermen do not put masts in their fishing boats, but make long trips at sea, depending on engine alone. They are built in sizes from 4 H.P. to 250 H.P. We will make special prices on the first 2 of 3 engines sold, as the first few engines will show our people what a "real oil engine" can do.

We would appreciate the favor if all customers owing us balances for goods purchased would kindly remit the amount promptly. We will also ask those to whom money is due to kindly send itemized statement.

TRY A BETEL-NUT.

Instead of offering cigars and cigarettes, in Persia one is offered a betel-nut. Everyone carries a supply of them in neat little ivory boxes, not unlike the snuff-boxes of our ancestors.

The betel-nut is a narcotic, in its effects not unlike tobacco, but it is much more harmful. Those who chew it suffer from inflamed gums, and generally lose their teeth.

The betel is a species of climbing plant, with a leaf not unlike the plantain. It is a crop of nuts, which are ground to a powder; this is mixed with similar powder derived from the nut, and made into a paste, which is wrapped in pieces of betel-leaf.

Our American Letter.

Charleston, South Carolina, April 20.—The newspapers continue to print long despatches from St. John's on the proposed flight across the Atlantic, and Newfoundland is much in the public eye at present. It is a matter for regret that the weather has not been suitable for the flight and it is hoped that the aviators will be able to get away to-morrow. The wonderful feat of an American aviator in flying from Chicago to New York, a distance of nearly 800 miles, in the space of less than seven hours is an indication of what the future holds for aerial travel.

The Peace Conference is still debating the various questions which have arisen, as the result of the somewhat changed situation it has to face. The delegates are expected to complete their labors very shortly as far as the signing of the actual peace treaty is concerned, but there will still remain many knotty questions to be disposed of before a condition of harmony can be said to prevail among the various nations. The secrecy attaching to the deliberations is somewhat exasperating to those who were told that everything would be conducted with the utmost publicity. We know as much about the doings of the conference as we did with regard to the plans of Marshal Poch during the war. The visit of the Irish delegates to Paris has aroused some speculation in many quarters as to the kind of reception they will receive at the Peace Conference. If Ireland is admitted to the deliberations it will be a recognition of that country's right to be considered a separate nation.
Wilson's reception of the delegates was most cordial, and it would appear that there is evidence of a changed attitude of mind, with regard to the claim of Ireland, on the part of some of the representatives of the Big Four.

Japan's present attitude is not very reassuring and the intelligence received from China and Korea have cast grave doubts upon that nation's sincerity. Japan is still very much of a supporter of the militaristic idea, and under different conditions there is no doubt where her sympathies would have been, when Germany flung down the gauntlet to the whole of Europe. The danger of a race such as the Japanese becoming supreme in the Pacific, is not to be treated lightly. There is the great possibility of Japan being able to recruit the millions of Chinese and making an alliance with the Bolsheviks, and being thus in a position to dictate to the Western world the policies she has been framing for many years. The refusal of the peace delegates to accord the Japanese the same privileges that the white races enjoy is exasperating to a proud people, and there is no doubt that whether the race question is decided against the wishes of the Japs or not, there will always remain a feeling of resentment against the Western nations responsible for such discrimination.

Something is brewing in the East without question, and the nations will be remiss in their duties to their own interests if they fail to take cognisance of the fact.
The question of prohibition is still agitating the country, and there is little question that much difficulty will be found in enforcing the law.
The soldiers who are returning from France express great disgust over the dry enactment which was put into force while they were absent from the country. The refusal of Great Britain to allow prohibition advocates to land in that country, and they are now going to China instead.
There will be little disturbance in this country on May 1st, according to statements by the labor leaders.
America is not yet ripe for Bolshevism, and the day is expected to pass with the usual speech making and nothing more.

W. M. DOOLEY.

Why He Wasn't Promoted.

He grumbled. He watched the clock
He was "stung" by a cross lock.
He was always behindhand. He had no iron in his blood. He was willing, but untried.
He didn't believe in himself. His stock excourse was, "I forgot!"
He wasn't ready for the next step.
He was content to be a second rate man. He ruined his ability by half doing things.
He chose his friends from among his inferiors. He never dared to act it worth while to learn how.
He tried to make bluff that place of hard work. He thought it was clever to use coarse and profane language. He thought more of amusements than of getting on in the world.
