The American Agriculturist maintains railway in the province of Quebec, and the provincial government, it says, should make strong effort to keep the 300 odd miles between Quebec city and Ottawa. We must say that it is our way of looking at the matter too; but we have to ask whether the thing be practicable, with the prevailing public opinion so far wrong as it is on the question of government ownership or control of railways. Ever since the them, nothing to do. Where shall they go? They are going to Manitoba as fast as they can, and all those that have gone are doing well. But there is a difficulty in the doing well. But there is a difficulty in the way: an Ontario lawyer must pay a cer-tain fee, undergo a year's probation, and pass an examination before he is allowed

The Elephant Jumbo.

The London papers of latest date deal largely with the question of the disposition of the elephant "Jumbo." Mr. Ruskin It is likely that a bill will be introduced into the Manitoba legislature this session to remove these two hampering conditions as regards Ontaro members of the bar. So that therafter any Ontario lawyer may be admitted to the Manitoba bar on the pay-ment of the field thinks that, in view of his growing infirmi-ty of temper, Jumbo had better be got ril of at ence. "In America," he says, "with Barnum's traveling circus, much more scope can be given to the muscular powe To remove these objections is in the in-terest of the people of Manitoba. What they want above all things is population and capital, and if they are disposed to deal liberally with our lawyers they will on steadily increasing in intensity, and like all other old males in confinement, he would have had to be destroyed, but probably not until after he had caused some fatal mischance." M. Zola and the Novelists.

The number of persons who object to their names being borrowed by M. Zola for service in his novels is so much increasing that he has been obliged to declare in a letter to the Gaulois "that the appellations given to his characters will all be maintained until he is ordered by the competent tri-

"WILL OF THE WEST" Texan Oow-Boy Arrested in St. Thomas-Singhed With Bowie Enives and Riddled Slashed With Bowie With Bullets.

(From the St. Thomas Times.) One of the cells in the police station was occupied on Sunday last by Charles W. Moore, alias "Will of the West," an individual who has indeed lived a life of romance and interesting adventure. The varn which he spun to a Times reporter during the short lulls following successive outbreaks in the demoniac howlings of a poor wretch with the delirium tremens confined in the cell adjoining, is given below, and presents a curious picture of life in the remoter settlements on the confines of civilization. There is hardly a portion of Moore's anatomy that has not been perforated by bullets or slashed with bowie knives, and when he stripped to the waist in the chief's office, the sight he presented was peculiar, The left thigh bears the mark of a bullet wound, and the hard pellet, which was not removed, can be felt beneath the skin. In the left arm above the wrist, another bullet is still lodged. A gaping orifice in the left side just above the heart, shows where a "calet," (a Spanish dirk, 18 or 20 inches long, in shape like a spear head, but as pliable as whalebone) was thrust by a greaser in a border raid; while another unsightly hole in the back of his neck shows where the point of the weapon came out. A scar which crosses the forehead, and runs partially around the head, represents where he was scalped by Indians, who "cow-bovs," kil made a descent upon the "cow-boys," kil-ling eight of these desperadoes and wounding two besides himself. Over the left eye is another bullet wound and a portion of his ear is missing. In obedience to his re quest, our reporter counted the scars made by knife thruses on his back and head, with the result that fourteen distinct and separate slashes were discovered, five of which were on the head and neck. The digits of his left hand are frightfully distorted, the result, he says, of a rattlesnake bite. His right leg, from the knee up, states, was riddled with buckshot, and appearance bears out his assertion. Not the least interesting of the disclosures he made in response to the persistent entrea-ties of the scribe for an "experience" were those in reference to the life of the "cov Loys" on the Mexican and Texan fro those free riders of the plains who have special fondness for cattle, and very little cruple as to the herd from which they take them. As he chanted in his cell the low musical refrain which the cow-boys sing to sooth the cattle and let them know of the presence of their herdsmen, he be-moaned the fate which led him here, and expressed the wish that he were back again coned under his tent cloth in a draw" or ravine, enjoying his old-time toilsome and adventurous but irregular life, with its alternation of "sport" and ease—the rush, the dash, the danger and the triumph of successful operations, followed by the wild debauch and the intervals of loafing. Possessed of a handsome, brown face, with large, faely marked eyes and curling black hair and moustache, Moore does not by any means present the ap-pearance of a desperado, albeit when he arrived here on S sturday morning, he had a natty $25 self-cocking revolver in either boot-leg, with which he offered to wager he could knock the neck off a bottle at fifty bunals to change them." The personage who, during the last few days, has figured steps every time. These he had made away with at the time of his arrest, in effecting which the officers had considerabl to the public is a startling reproach to them by contrast. It is further an object the possession of which is sought with the very intensity of covetnousness by railway schemers, because, with it once in their hands, they can work a big game of grab in other quarters as well. Suppose, for in-stance, the North Shore road and the St. Lawrence river line of steemets to pass into further alterations in his names unless he is of age, when its restraints became too irk some, and full of an adventurous spirit, and feeling he could take care of himself in the world, he did what thousands of boys tor the amount was $23,000. The next question submitted was: Is it cheaper to hire horses than to own them ? Ald. Clark said a probable tenderer had said he would let horses to the city at the warrant suppressed on account of the uncom'ortable position that it would place 40 cents per day, the city to care for them. Mayor McMurrich said that the experience of all the cities in the United States was a number of frequenters of the house in, atlemen who are said to move in the good isty of Kincardice. Magistrate McLeod society of Kincardire. Magistrate McLeod of Ripley, a village eleven miles from Kin-cardine, was next appealed to and he is-sued the necessary warrant, and a county constable was despatched from that place to make the arrest. When he arrived in Kincardine he began a search for Burrill, bat was informed by the Kincardine police that the woman had left town, but they would the Riple officer that if they came or all the clues in the onited States was that owning horses was preferable to hiring them. horses. Can street-cleaning be done by contrast? Ald. Evans thought it could be, but the other members thought it could not be done, which settled that question. Ald. Kent which settled that question. Ald. Kent moved that it comprise part of the duty of ward foremen to superintend the cleaning of his own ward. The motion was lost. Ald. Taylor did not think that the citi-zens wanted to curtail expense a few dol-lars so much as they wanted the work properly performed and that they did not want the present system changed. The mayor moved that two Edison street-sweepers be purchased at $400 each to clean the paved streets and that the streets should be divided into two grades of paved and unpaved, the former to be cleaned six or three times or once a week and the latter assured the Ripley officer that if they came across Burrill they would apprehend her. It is stated on good authority, however, that the woman walked on the streets of Kincardine six hours afterwards, but no attempt was made to capture her. After leaving the London hospital the woman Richardson came to the hospital here, where she remained a couple of weeks. Yester-der the eith molice ware sucken to about assured the Ripley officer that if they came the affair; and subsequently the mat-ter was reported to Deputy Attorney-general Scott, who it is understood, will make an investigation of the matter. It is said that the chief of police of Kinor three times or once a week and the latter as often as the commissioner thought neccardine had given a quasi-consent to the existence of Burrill's house in the town, and the expose that would have followed a ventilation of the affray in court would essary. Will the street watering be done by contract? This was not decided and on Ald. Evans' motion the board resolved to have been rather rough on numerous Kin-cardineites.
