among the officers of the German army. In one month twenty-eight officers shot themselves.

According to the Manchester gossips, who presumably were informed by some of the Hawarden set who attended the conference in full force, Mr. Gladstone toward the end of last session took an opportunity of informing Mr. Parnell that he and his family were yearning to have the pleasure and honor of receiving him as what the Americans term a house guest at Hawarden. Mr. Parnell did not, I understand, respond to the invitation of the aged statesman who so triumphantly consigned him to prison only a few years ago, with even a tolerable approach to the enthusiasm which Mr. Gladstone is accuistomed to expect on such occasions, but he did not absolutely refuse to visit Hawarden in the course of the autuinn. A few weeks ago Mr. Gladstone, according to a Manchester story, wrote to remind Mr. Parnell of his engagement and expressed the earnest hope that Hawarden would have the high honor of receiving him as a guest on a certain specified day, when there would be a party of congenial politicians to meet him. Frem that day, however, until Wednesday last Mr. Gladstone, as the story goes, never received any answer whatever from Mr. Parnell who, unless poli-there would be a party of congenial politicians to meet him. From that day, however, until Wednesday last Mr. Gladstone, as the story goes, never received any answer whatever from Mr. Parnell who, unless politicial friends at Manchester have been romancing, has certainly treated his venerable colleague with scant courtesy.

Australian Federation. SYDNEY, Dec. 10.—Sir Henry Parkes Premier and Colonial Secretary, is following up his proposition for a federation of the Australian colonies somewhat upon the model of Canada. This scheme grew out of the pro-position for the formation of an Australian of Canada. This scheme grew out of the proposition for the formation of an Australian tarmy, but aims especially to overcome many gross evils of misgovernment which seem in eparable from the present system. While it has many other supporters than Sir Henry himself, there is a conservative element which apprehends that if once the colonists take to organizing a general colonial government they will not be satisfied to remain dependent, but will desire to emulate the United States. Sir Hery suggests the abolition of all border duties and absolute free trade between the colonies, guaranteed if necessary by special intercolonial treaties; a uniform marriage law to protect the family from the evils of divorce as seen in the United States, and a uniform railway gauge for the States, and a uniform railway gauge for the whole country. livered his popular lecture, entitled "Does Death End All?"

Mr. Stapleton Caldecott presided and introduced the distinguished lecturer, who is well-built, commanding and with a decided tendency to portlines.

The lecture, which occupied two hours, was in the form of an argument.

In his preliminary remarks Dr. Cook referred to the vastness of the future and said:

"We were not in the world a little while ago and in a little while we shall be here no longer. The question is shall we be anywhere! Is there no Thomas Carlyle now in existence in the universe! Is there no Lord Beaconsfield, or George Elliot, or Wilberfore, or Newton, or Milton, or Shakespeare, or Burns!

or Burns?
"Man's life means tender teens, teachable twenties, tireless thirties, fiery forties, and so on until death and then—God; but if Materialism is a correct philosenthether we are to have no hope of future God: but if Materialism is a correct philosophy then we are to have no hope of future happiness, but are like bubbles pricked by a needle which floats away into nothingness."

Continuing, the lecturer said; "Some of the Saviour!". To this La Patrie cuttingly replies: "This sentiments in Shakespeare's works have been the foundation for mighty thought on the part of great men; for instance the quotation: "There is an undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns.""

Many arguments and theories have been advanced, he said, to prove that death does end all, but they had all been overthrown by the immortal book, the Bible, which is the best weapon with which to fight the doubtful agnostic or arrogant infidel.

eloquence.

The Swiss cantons, said the lecturer, have long been the home of freedom. Interesting experiments in political government have for centuries been made in Switzerland and not a few valuable lessons can be learned by other countries from this small European nation. One of the chief of these is the strength which small communities possess when animated by a common desire to pre-tonly chairman of the council; but the reelection of practical men is the rule.

The most interesting feature of the Swiss system is the direct control exercised by the citizens over those to whom they have entrusted legislative powers. The methods by which the people assert their rights as free citizens of a pure democracy are the same as described in the Germanius of Tacitus.

Dr. Bourinot read an admirable description by Professor Freeman of the village commune and its elections. Referring everything to the popular vote interests the populace in public affairs. The whole system threefold: German, French and Italian. Protestants and Roman Catholics are in the same proportion as in Canada.

But Switzerland shows no such liberal spirit as Canada, which allows all religious sects to pursue the even tenor of their way. In Canada the Salvationist is as free as the Roman Catholic to follow the peculiar methods of his faith.

Religious freedom has been the governing principle in Canada; it has always kept pace with the extension of political rights, and it is only on this bagis that Canada can be governed. [Applause.] As soon as she departs from this impartial course hen peace will be disturbed.

Eloquently Dr. Bourinot showed the connection between decadence of nations and the obliteration of local liberties. Never was the spirit of patriotism so strong in Switzerland as now, and never were local rights more respected. Neither French, Germans. In or Italians wished annexation with the countries whose language they speak. They are one and all, first and last, Swiss. [Applause.] The sentiment of nationality is universal and strong; hence there is no fear of disintegration.

enterprise, and already the venture is proounced a wonderful success. The new building is called the "auditorium" excellence, just as if there were none rs in Chicago, or in the United States, others in Chicago, or in the United States, or in the world—worthy of the name. It was built and is owned by a joint-stock company, and cost three million dollars. The Chicago papers are busy these days comparhalls in their own country, also with the most celebrated in the Old World. The Paris Opera House cost the French Government and only Sir John. for the ground; and yet its capacity is not quite half that of the Chicago auditorium. Then the Paris structure is an opera house ing more; whereas the auditorium let us quote a little boasting, just as we find it in the business report by the company's resident:

The French Government paid over $7,000,000 for the Paris Opera House, besides $2,000,000 for the ground, and its erection occupied thirteen years; yet its capacity is but one-half of that of your Auditorium, and the shancture contains nothing but an opera the structure contains nothing but an opera-house. It is furthermore pronounced in-ferior both in beauty and in its practical features. This is true of all the great opera-houses of Europe, including those of Vienna, Frankfort, Dresden, Berlin, and Milan. Most Frankfort, Dresden, Berlin, and Milan. Most of these have grand approaches and splendid vestibules, embellished with costly freecess and statuary which governments have paid for; but the interiors are a disappointment, and lacking in practical details as compared with the Chicago Auditorium. They are all smaller in capacity, exclusive boxes occupying much of the space. They are built for the few rather than for the masses—the titled and the wealthy rather than for the people lacking the broad democratic policy of pro-viding for all which prevails in the arrange-ment of your Auditorum, thereby lessening the gulf between the classes.

Policeman Jamieson Bounced.
At the meeting of the Police Commissioners yesterday consideration of the charges preferred against Policeman Jamieson of No. 4 Division was resumed. He was accused of having been guilty of improper conduct in maintaining relations with a woman of solute character in St. John's Ward. The commissioners, after making the fullest enquiry into the case decided to dismiss Jamieson from the force.

quiry into the case decided to dismiss Jameson from the force.

The discharged officer was accused of being on too intimate terms with a married woman named Emma Quinn, that in fact, he alienated her affections from her husband. The charge was preferred by her husband. Mrs. Quinn was locked up for a short period after the investigation was concluded, but through the efforts of Lawyer J. G. Holmes, she was shortly afterwards bailed out.

stock of all the best coal and wood stoves being constantly kept. Tinware of all kinds is manufactured and general jobbing, furnace work, cheese factory work and all kinds of repairing promptly attended to. The store is two doors south of Ensign printing office. If you are despondent, low spirited, irritable and peevish, and unpleasant sensations are felt invariably after estime, then get a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and its will give you relief. You have dyspepsia. Mr. R. H. Dawson, St. Mary's, writes: "Fourbottles of Vegetable Discovery entirely cured me of dyspepsis; mine was one of the worst cases, I now feel like a new man."

J. A. Kelly, proprietor, is conveniently lo-cated, and is well furnished and in good The Pay of the Police.

The petition of the men on the force for an increase in pay, about 25 cents per day all round, was brought up at the meeting of the Police Commissioners yesterday. Judge McDougall being absent it was decided that the applications be considered by a full meeting of the board early in January. In the meantime it was referred to the Chief of Police for a report.
