Centralize Cattle Markets Hon. Jno. Dryden's Remedy

Difference in Price Here and in Chicago Not Due to Difference in Quality.

The live stock industry, its possibilities and its present condition was interestingly discussed by Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture, with a world reporter on Monday afternoon. Hon. Jno. Dryden has become a member of the government, and in fact, practically all his life he has closely studied this branch of agriculture and can, accordingly, speak with some authority on the subject.

Canadian Cattle Are Good.
Mr. Dryden is a firm believer in the superiority of Canadian cattle. There is no earthly reason, he says, to prevent the Canadian farmer from raising first-class cattle, every bit as good as that raised in the United States. "For years," he added, "I have been telling the people this, and they are beginning to understand now. I think that good quality pays. As an evidence of this, I might point out that no one can go through the country today who understands anything about cattle and not see the great improvement that has taken place during the last few years."

Better Prices in Chicago.
"It is true," Mr. Dryden continued, "that cattle on the Chicago market sell for a higher price than in Toronto. But the choicest cattle there are not exported, but are ready sale at home among those who desire and demand the best cuts. Over there it might be pointed out that export and shipping costs, lacking in quality, bring from $6.25 to $7 per cow. Now, surely we should get that much for our cattle here. Unfortunately, however, we don't."

Why Is That? Mr. Dryden was asked. "That is just the whole question," he replied. "I have never received a satisfactory answer to it. A prominent dealer confessed to me a short time ago that he bought better cattle in Canada than in the United States, so it is evident, therefore, that the quality of the cattle is not the reason for the wide difference in price. For years his question has been a live one in this country."

Quality Not Cause.
"Then the difference in price is not caused by the fact that Canadian cattle is inferior to United States cattle?" "I answer, No. Emphatically, no. That is not the reason, and in saying that, I mean that I know, I have had conversation with a gentleman buying cattle in Chicago. This gentleman, who is a well-to-do man, has been buying cattle in Canada for some time. He has sent animals across from Toronto which he sold in price in Chicago. He said they were sending across from Chicago, and he tells me that he recently secured in the vicinity of Hornby and Fergus, in the County of Wellington, some cattle which will bring a better price than their arrival in England than anything sent from the city of Chicago. If that is so, then, when our people come to understand it, they will produce more and more than we are producing here now; and I offer you that I would send out some message, that I would get you business people in the community to enter on this. I would get you to raise, just as I have suggested."

Some of the Reasons.
Among the reasons which Mr. Dryden gives, why the prices are lower here than in Chicago are the following: First of all, there is a scattering market in this country, not sufficient centralization. There are higher insurance rates, which always have to be paid by men shipping live animals in many. There are higher freight rates on the railways and steamships, and then there is, worst of all, lack of proper competition in the trade, and a number of men engaged in buying cattle in this country have, apparently, no desire that they should secure the highest place in the matter of beef cattle, and therefore content themselves on their own Canadian stock and not more than four or five cents a pound.

All in Canada's Favor.
All this, however, Mr. Dryden submits can be overcome. We have in our favor, he says, "the fact that we are five hundred miles nearer the English market, and there should be better communication with the proper men who ship the cattle will then be able to go to the railways and steamship companies and demand more favorable transportation than they are at present giving. It seems to me that it is difficult to equal the quality of the cattle, and that with increased competition, there will come improved shipping facilities and better communication with the English market, and I think that the situation that better stock yards are required, as clearly as we do who live outside."

Concentrated Markets Needed.
"It is in this country's interest," Mr. Dryden continued, "and the cattle breeders and in both to have a better concentration in price, and, therefore, a greater expansion of trade, and should have better stock yards in Toronto in order that trade may be benefited by concentration, and it will lead to almost unlimited expansion."

Bright Outlook.
Mr. Dryden has this encouraging observation to make: "There is a better outlook here, it is a better prospect, because when a man's eye can buy good cattle here as I can buy in Chicago, and when he is able to get the same transportation facilities here, he will pay just as much here as he pays in Chicago. In the time of ten years there has been such a bright outlook, and it is the first time I have ever seen in this country that the trade in cattle is likely to improve and is likely to go on increasing probably faster than you think. And another thing I say to our country farmers all over the country, you ought to prepare to meet this demand that is coming by buying to better care of what that stock will produce, because the price which the situation demands will be a handsome return on your outlay."

Waste in Slaughtering.
Asked what he thought about the statement made by Mr. Webb's English cattle dealer, that Canadians did not properly utilize the carcasses of slaughtered cattle, Mr. Dryden replied that that might be true. It was not

GREAT BRITAIN ANNOYED AT VENEZUELA AND MAY SEEK DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS

Cause of Crisis Not Confined to Any One Incident, But Consists in a Multiplicity of Differences, Showing That Venezuela Intends to Force Matters to a Crucial Issue.

London, Sept. 22.—The Associated Press is in a position to announce that diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Venezuela are on the verge of being severed. Any day, almost any hour, may bring the announcement that the British Minister at Caracas has been given his passports with corresponding action towards the Venezuelan representative in London.

The cause of the crisis does not seem to be confined to any particular incident, but consists in various differences which culminated in Venezuela, assuming such an angry attitude as to leave Downing-street fully impressed with the belief that the Venezuelan government intends to force matters to a crucial issue.

That a diplomatic rupture would result in hostilities is a contingency thus far scarcely contemplated.

The present diplomatic relations are so strained that, to quote a responsible British official, "it would make really very little difference if the fact became public property by the absence of the diplomatic representatives from Caracas and London."

No Satisfactory Deal.
The view of the Foreign Office is that affairs have reached a stage where it is impossible to deal satisfactorily with Venezuela in any matter which may come up. In proof of this contention, the Foreign Office instances the report of the United States Minister at Caracas, Herbert W. Bowen.

Of all the disturbances of the last decade the present seems to be the most serious. This, combined with the attitude of the nominal government, makes us somewhat indignant to any action which may take place. The Venezuelan appears inclined to be rather reckless, and it is not clear that the report of the United States Minister at Caracas, Herbert W. Bowen, will protect them from the results of their own folly.

It is not clear that the Venezuelan government had protested against the British flag being raised over Patos (or Goose) Island, over which the Venezuelan government claimed sovereignty.

According to the British government's understanding Venezuela is quite mistaken in this matter, but apparently the impression has much to do with her present actions.

VENEZUELAN TIRE IS AROUSED.
Port of Spain, Trinidad, Sept. 22.—The Venezuelan government has protested against the action of Great Britain in raising the British flag on the island of Patos, on the ground that the sovereignty is vested in Venezuela, and not in the British government.

The controversy over the island is old as similar protests were made in 1850 and 1857. Great Britain claims the island on the ground that it was discovered in 1822, according to which Trinidad was ceded to England, and the British consider that the island of Patos is tributary to Trinidad.

Venezuela contends that the island was not discovered by the Venezuelan, and consequently did not pass into the possession of the British. The Venezuelan also claims that the island is the sovereignty of Spain until the independence of Venezuela, when the latter country obtained possession. Venezuela says the sovereignty of the latter country over the island was confirmed by the treaty signed in Madrid in 1845.

They also point to the geographical position of the island, which is less than three miles from the Venezuelan coast.

The Venezuelan press is still ignorant of the action of Great Britain in regard to the island, which has no strategic importance and is the rendezvous of fishermen, smugglers and Venezuelan revolutionists.

Refugees Destitute.
London, Sept. 23.—In a despatch from Geneva, the correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says indignation has been aroused at Basel, Switzerland, by the arrival there of hundreds of Rumanian refugees, who have come in the hope of finding refuge in England or the United States.

Most of them are destitute, and have no means of proceeding further on their journey. The Swiss authorities will not allow the refugees to settle in Switzerland, because they are destitute. They have been relegated to one of the poorest stations, and are receiving temporary aid from the local authorities. Their increasing numbers, however, are leading to embarrassment. Some of them are in terrible condition, and a visiting doctor found a starving mother holding a naked baby to her breast.

Because It Would Mean the Dis-membersment of Their Union.

Washington, Sept. 22.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor said today that the striking miners in the Pennsylvania coal fields were prepared to hold out for months. He said the miners were disposed to make concessions, but the operators had refused all overtures from them, and that the men now "are not going to budge."

"The strikers," he said, "are receiving all the supplies they really need, and can continue their fight indefinitely. The Federation will do all it can to aid them. One thing is certain, that the strikers will never yield on the basis of the dismemberment of their union organization, which all that has raised them even over so little above their desperate condition."

TWO MEN SHOT.
Scranton, Pa., Sept. 22.—Sheriff Schatt of Lackawanna County to-night telegraphed Governor Stone to send troops to his assistance. The sheriff had just prepared a proclamation announcing that he would call troops if the lawlessness did not cease.

He said that a series of telephone calls to quell disturbances up the valley. He found on investigation that the situation was such that he could not cope with it, and sent a call for troops.

The worst of to-night's outbreaks occurred at Archbold. The crowd of 200 strikers on the main road, smashed the quarters occupied by the forty men employed at the Raymond Works, and meeting with the men at work and the strikers, they returned back to the refuge of the washery.

The mob then returned to the colliery proper, drove out the engineers, firemen, pumpmen and guards and took possession of the plant. The plant of the Crescent Electric Light Company, which is supplied with steam from the breaker, had to shut down, and the whole region around was left in darkness.

The Deputy Sheriff Miles McAndrew was attacked and shot at by a mob at Olyphant. The steam pipes of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, which are supplied with steam from the breaker, had to shut down, and the whole region around was left in darkness.
