FIRE DESTROYS 28 CATTLE IN ABATTOIR STOCK PENS

Early Morning Blaze Does $10,000 Damage When Big Barn Catches From Spark—Firemen Forced to Lay 3,000 Feet of Hose to Tap Nearest Hydrant.

Twenty-eight head of cattle were burnt to death and $10,000 damages done at the Dominion Abattoir, London Junction, this morning, when the stock pens were destroyed by fire. When the blaze was discovered there were thirty head of cattle in the building, but so fiercely did the building burn that employees had only time to unchain two before the place was a mass of flames.

Cause of the fire is unknown. According to Fire Chief John Aitken, a spark from a passing locomotive or from the abattoir chimney was undoubtedly the cause. It was discovered simultaneously at 7:30 by a man walking on the Grand Trunk tracks and Foreman John Kervin, of the plant. Both saw smoke coming from the barn. The stranger opened the rear door of the pens almost the same moment as Kervin reached the front.

Private Department Responds. An alarm was immediately sounded, and the private fire department of the abattoir responded. Scarcity of water, however, stopped anything like effective fighting against the flames, but the prompt action of employees is credited with having reduced the loss considerably.

3,000 Feet of Hose Arrived. When the city fire department arrived it was necessary to lay hose for 3,000 feet to the nearest hydrant at Pottersburg station. The half-mile canvas water line reduced the city pressure materially, and it was very weak. The firemen, however, confined the fire to the stock pens, after it had threatened the entire plant.

Valuable Machinery Damaged. So fierce were the flames that the windows of the killing room and engine house, across the lane from the stock pens, were charred and broken. Valuable machinery in both these sections of the plant were badly damaged by water, while several frame structures close to the destroyed pens were also scorched and slightly burned. Their safety from total destruction is credited to the abattoir fire department's quick work when the blaze was first discovered.

When the fire was the hottest, scores of rats ran from the burning barn into the fields close by. Several of them were killed by the onlookers.

Slaughtered Animal Left. The rapidly rising flames which the flames licked up the building was shown by a charred beef on the wrecked cattle-way, which had been slaughtered a moment the fire was noticed, and had to be left there.

The building, which was a story and a half barn, where the animals are penned before being slaughtered, was partly filled with barrels of refuse, and the stench arising from this and the burning carcasses of the cows was sickening.

Loss Fully Covered. The loss is fully covered by insurance. Einar Rehnitz, president of the city company, is at present out of the city, but is expected to return shortly.

PRESIDENT EXTENDS OFFICIAL WELCOME TO W. A. DELEGATES

Mrs. G. B. Sage Reviews Important Questions Coming Up for Discussion.

$975 THANK OFFERING Large Sum Raised by Annual Thank Offerings—Committee Reports.

Reviewing in optimistic terms the spread of Christianity in India and China, referring to the past successful year of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary in Huron diocese, and outlining the important questions to be discussed by the auxiliary, Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) G. B. Sage, the diocesan president this morning warmly welcomed to London the delegates to the Huron Auxiliary's twenty-seventh annual convention, meeting in Bishop Cronyn Hall this week.

Mrs. Sage referred to the new plan of work whereby the Women's Auxiliary in the diocese throughout Canada were held responsible for missionary efforts conducted by the Church of England, among women and children, both in the foreign field and in the Canadian West. Last year it was shown that the total giving of the Women's Auxiliary had been $101,739, and this amount was likely to be exceeded in 1914. Yet some twelve years ago, the amount asked from the church in Canada, exclusive of the Women's Auxiliary, was only $75,000. God had prospered missionary effort in a most wonderful way, she said, and this was doubtless due to the deep spiritual tone of the work.

More Bible Study. At the meeting of the general board in Toronto, strong emphasis was placed upon the necessity of reading and studying the scriptures, especially from a missionary point of view. More study of the Bible in school and home was being advocated on all sides, the president said. This question will be discussed during the annual sessions. Although the year had been one of such encouragement, yet the great aim, to have a branch of the Women's Auxiliary organized in every parish of the diocese, had not been attained. The president hoped that in view of the great responsibility resting upon the delegates, they would be able to report on the progress of the work.

MUST HAVE MAINS IN NEW SECTION

Fire Chief Declares They Are Imperative for Protection of Residents.

According to Fire Chief Aitken, fire hydrants and mains will have to be installed in the newly-annexed territory at once if adequate protection is to be given the residents there.

This morning it was necessary to lay more than half a mile of hose to reach the big fire at the Dominion Abattoir works. The fire chief estimates a pressure loss of three pounds for every hundred feet of hose. With over 3,000 feet of it in a single stretch the weak stream was no surprise to the firemen.

When Ealing and Pottersburg came into the city one of the conditions of annexation was the extension of water mains to those suburbs. They have been extended as far as Hale street, just past the Asylum gates.

When the boundaries of the city were again extended to include the Dominion Abattoir property, it was understood that ample fire protection would be provided for property in the additional territory.

Officials of the water commissioners' department have not been aware that General Manager Glubitz's plans for the extension of water mains included extension to the Dominion Abattoir, although it has been discussed, but not definitely in the board of water commissioners.

The Advertiser got in touch with the Southern Ontario Gas Company's office in St. Thomas this afternoon, and while nothing definite was obtained, the intimation was given that the company would shortly take up this matter with the city. In order to run its pipes into London, the consent of the city council would be necessary, but no objections from this quarter are anticipated, as there would be practically no tearing up of streets in order to lay the necessary main.

J. C. Duffield, managing director of the City Gas Company, told The Advertiser today that he had had no communications from the natural gas interests of late, and knew nothing of their intended intention of piping gas into Eastern London.

It is probable that the city council, at an early date, will have a preliminary application from the Southern Ontario Company to bring this product into this city. As the gas would be used entirely for industrial purposes and would not interfere with the streets, it is thought unlikely that a vote of the ratepayers would be required to give the necessary permission.

Premier Puts the Officers of Army Into Their Places

Will Never Consent to Give Assurances of Hypothetic Character Asked.

[Canadian Press.] London, March 25.—The refusal today of Premier Asquith to accept the proffered resignation of Colonel Seely, secretary of war, was followed by a strong speech by the head of the cabinet, in which he told the House of Commons that the Government had made a firm stand in regard to the position of public servants. He said he would never assent to the claim of any body of men in the service of the crown to demand from the Government assurances of a hypothetical character as to what should be done in circumstances which had not arisen. It would, he said, be a new claim, and would put the Government at the mercy of the military and naval authorities.

The Premier's pronouncement sent the supporters of the Government wild. They climbed on the benches, waving papers and handkerchiefs, to the accompaniment of salvos of cheers, which lasted several minutes.

LATEST DISPATCHES FROM MEXICO SAY REBELS REPULSED

Federals Put Up an Unexpectedly Strong Resistance to Villa's Men.

MANY REBELS WOUNDED El Paso Hears That the Attacking Forces Were Driven Back Twenty Miles.

[Canadian Press.] Bermejillo, Mexico, March 23.—(By Courier to El Paso, March 25).—Rebel wounded from Gomez Palacio and the lesser recent fights in the vicinity are being brought north in large numbers, and it is officially admitted the federals put up an unexpectedly strong resistance at Gomez Palacio.

Rebels Repulsed. El Paso, Texas, March 25.—Miguel Diebold, the Mexican federal consular service, said today that he had been officially informed that the rebels were repulsed with heavy loss at Torreón, and that some of them were driven back twenty miles.

"It is very significant that Juarez is without news and I regard it as confirmation of my dispatch," said Senator Diebold.

[Canadian Press.] Washington, March 25.—The Mexican embassy has received the following telegram from the city of Mexico dated last night:

"The rebels were repulsed today in an attempt to reach Torreón. Gen. Velasco well prepared for attack."

NATURAL GAS MAY BE USED IN FACTORIES

Southern Gas Company Said To Be Approaching Manufacturers in East End.

That the Southern Ontario Gas Company, the firm which made a proposition last January to supply natural gas to London users through the City Gas Company, was turned down, will enter the city through another route is practically certain.

The Advertiser learned last night that managers of industrial enterprises in the east end factory district have been approached on this matter, in an indirect way, and that negotiations would be opened within a short time to supply manufacturers with the natural product.

The Advertiser got in touch with the Southern Ontario Gas Company's office in St. Thomas this afternoon, and while nothing definite was obtained, the intimation was given that the company would shortly take up this matter with the city. In order to run its pipes into London, the consent of the city council would be necessary, but no objections from this quarter are anticipated, as there would be practically no tearing up of streets in order to lay the necessary main.

POLICE TO INVESTIGATE YEAR OLD DESERTION

Child's Appearance as Witness in Abduction Case Starts Inquiry.

Alleged to have been deserted by her parents in London more than a year ago, 12-year-old Madeline Nichols is still in this city, and today Chief of Police W. T. Williams and officers of the Children's Aid Society started an investigation of the case. Following the disappearance of her parents, the girl was taken in charge by Mrs. John McNeirne, 429 Elizabeth street, now out on bail on a charge of abduction, preferred by the father of 15-year-old May Eveland, a neighbor.

The Empire Theatre, a little over a year ago, looked an act, named The Nichols, which included a man, woman and little girl. They all boarded at Mrs. John McNeirne's rooming-house during their stay in London, which extended over some weeks.

One night on returning home from visit to the couple, Mrs. McNeirne learned that the couple, who claimed to be man and wife, had disappeared, leaving behind their supposed daughter, Madeline Nichols. Since then nothing has been heard from them.

Yesterday Chief of Police W. T. Williams learned of the conditions of affairs surrounding the desertion of the child, and stated to The Advertiser that he and members of the Children's Aid Society would investigate the affair, and do all in their power to find the parents of the little girl.

It was the result of the girl appearing in the Eveland abduction case as a witness, which led Chief Williams received information which led him to investigate the affair.

CHURCHILL UNDER FIRE IN HOUSE

Indignantly Denies That Government Tried to Encourage Hostilities.

SEELY MAKES STATEMENT

Government Guaranteed Officers No Intention of Using Army for Politics.

[Canadian Press.] London, March 25.—Premier Asquith refused today to accept Col. Seely's resignation. After the sympathy reception by the House of Commons of the Secretary for War's explanation of his action regarding the army officers in Ireland, the Premier decided that he would not sacrifice his lieutenant.

[Canadian Press.] London, March 25.—The resignation of Colonel John Seely, secretary for war, followed quickly after the publication today of the white paper, giving details of the crisis in the British army, whose officers refused to participate in active operations against the inhabitants of Ulster, who had prepared to offer armed resistance to the introduction of home rule.

Colonel Seely, in his valedictory address to the House of Commons, denied that King George had taken any initiative of any kind in the army crisis. He said:

"The suggestion is absolutely without foundation in the broadest sense. His Majesty took no initiative of any kind. The correspondence between Col. Seely and the officers in Ireland had astounded the country and in the opinion of seasoned politicians, demanded one of two courses—the cashiering of one of the two, or the resignation of the Secretary for War or the resignation of the entire cabinet. The first course was decided on at a protracted cabinet council this morning. Later in the day, in the House of Commons, Premier Asquith, in reply to a question, made it clear that the instructions given to General Sir Arthur Paget before his interview with the officer under him had emanated directly from the war office and were not submitted to the Prime Minister by the Secretary for War."

House Excited. The House of Commons buzzed with excitement and was crowded to its utmost capacity when Lord Charles Bessborough opened the attack on the Government by demanding information as to the naval movements in connection with the situation in Ulster.

"Was the battle squadron ordered to steam at full speed from Spanish waters to the Irish coast and ordered to embark field guns?" he asked.

Amid ministerial cheers and derisive laughter from the Unionists, Winston Spencer Churchill, in reply to the inquiry, admitted that the battle squadron had been ordered to Lamlash, "so as to be in proximity to the coast of Ireland in case of serious disturbance arising. While it is true that the military precautionary movements had been carried out without opposition, it was decided that this movement of the fleet could be delayed until the Easter leave period of the crews was over."

Churchill Angry. The statement of the first lord was immediately followed by a cyclone of questions. Unionist members asked if Mr. Churchill expected that "this precautionary measure for movement of troops would lead to fighting."

In a moment the first lord flared up. "I repudiate the hellish suggestion," he shouted.

When the consequent uproar had subsided the Speaker reprimanded Mr. Churchill, saying that such an expression should not have been used. If Mr. Churchill expected that "this precautionary measure for movement of troops would lead to fighting," he should have said so.

Guns For Exercise. Mr. Churchill, continuing his reply to the questions, said: "The admiral wanted the field guns."

$125,000 ADDITION TO ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

New Wing Will Accommodate 70 Private Patients, Chapels and Nurses' Home.

Tenders will be called next week for a new wing to St. Joseph's Hospital, to cost approximately $125,000. The addition will be built on the west corner of the property, having a frontage on Richmond street of about 250 feet, and on Grosvenor street of 95 feet. It will be connected to the main building by a closed corridor.

At the present time the hospital has about 80 patients, and is overcrowded. The new building, which will be four stories in height, will accommodate approximately 70 patients, the sisters' dormitory and a new school. It will be divided into suites of two rooms each, with bath, and will have a flat roof for nurses' recreation.

The structure will be complete throughout and modern in every detail, including the latest telephone system and signal systems, sanitary arrangements and other desirable features. Watt & Blackwell are the architects.

THE CHAGRES RIVER

How That Unruly Winding Stream Has Been Used as a Helpful Means in Building the Canal.

By Willis J. Abbot, Author of "Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose."

For my own part I hold the Chagres River a much maligned stream. Pirates, pioneers, prospectors and even poets have taken their fling at it, but the fact remains that but for it we should not have the Canal—at least according to the American plan. The French looked on it with apprehension, filled with dread of its sudden floods and propensity to bring down great masses of silt and deposit them precisely where they would do the most harm. Accordingly they planned its banishment by damming it high up in the neighborhood of Alhajuela, some miles beyond the boundaries of the Canal Zone, from which point they intended to divert its channel through a ten-mile tunnel under the Cordilleras and thereby lead the erring stream to the Pacific instead of the Atlantic, into which it at present flows. The Americans approached the Chagres differently. When their survey was completed they found that the river crossed the line of the Canal some 25 times between Gatun and Gamboa, a distance of about 15 miles. Manifestly no self-respecting canal would submit to being thus crossed. Adopting the principles of politics, the engineers turned the enemy into a helpful friend. A great dam at Gatun has turned the narrow rushing stream into a lake with an area of 164 square miles. Into every depression of the land, in all directions, the water has backed, or will back when the great flood gates are closed down and the basin allowed to fill. Native villages and isolated huts now clinging to the borders of the river will be submerged and their inhabitants driven to the new lake shores. For what they are losing they are being duly, even liberally, paid, though much of what should go to them is taken by pettifogging lawyers whose services are wholly useless, but who have persuaded the natives that they are indispensable. Considerable villages, even towns, built by the commission, like Gorgona with a population of 3,444, will be partly submerged and wholly abandoned, to be overgrown by the jungle.

upon Peru. Earlier still Balboa entered there to brave the Indian perils in his search for the Pacific. In later years it was the highway for the forty-niners bound for the golden sands of California. The first San Lorenzo fell before the assault of Sir Henry Morgan. The second, the ruins of which still stand, was abandoned only about 100 years ago.

At the base of the hill on which the fort stands is the village of Chagres, a cluster of about twenty native houses surrounding a frame church, with but one store visible and that a primitive saloon in which the modern beer and whiskey signs contrast curiously with the thatched roof and earthen floor. In the days of the gold rush the village is said to have housed as many as 2,000 travelers of a night—in which case the stately dome of heaven must have been the roof for most of them.

Ascending the river toward Gatun, one passes through a primitive tropical jungle. This part of the stream has been untouched by the Canal builders and nothing in future is likely to disturb its primeval simplicity, as the Canal diverts traffic far away from it toward Colon. Natives paddling their cayucos—slim canoes hewn or burned out of a single trunk—herons, white and blue ducks and cormorants, and once in a while, an alligator, are the only signs of life. The tropical thicket which borders either bank is too dense for any save creeping things to come down to the water, and though we are told of deer, ant-bears, jaguars, boar-suckers and other animals, we see none.

Along the upper Chagres are lines of hydrographic stations at which the stage of the water is recorded several times daily and telephoned to the office at the dam. The stream has a habit of sometimes rising 40 feet in a few hours and the watchers at the Spillway must be prepared to meet the emergency lest the Canal itself be swamped under an uncontrollable tide.

GYMNASIUM AND TRACK INCLUDED IN PLANS

Renovated Collegiate Specifications Call for Modern Physical Equipment.

Plans for the renovation of the Collegiate Institute, prepared by Messrs. Gilbert, were viewed by the members of No. 3 committee of the board of education at a meeting held in the Collegiate Institute Tuesday afternoon. The plans will be submitted to the department of education for approval before being dealt with by the board.

The plans call for an expenditure of $42,250. A number of the classrooms will be rearranged and it is proposed to move the north wall of the building a distance of fourteen feet to allow for the enlargement of the gymnasium. The floor will also be excavated to give a seventeen-foot ceiling to the gymnasium, around the outside of which it is proposed to build a running track. Six shower baths, three for the boys and three for the girls, are included in the specifications.

How Thin People Can Put On Flesh

A NEW DISCOVERY.

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like water through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the nourishment is hardly got enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of the entire world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions, assimilation, are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and funny savoury diets. Omit the flesh cream rub-ons. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of those a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should be the net result. Sargol charges your weak, stagnant blood with new life. Treat the new red blood corpuscles—gives the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people gain all the way from 10 to 35 pounds a month while taking Sargol, and the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a scientific combination of elements known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant to eat, and are expensive, and all druggists sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Adv.

How to Take Off Excessive Fat From the Places Where It Shows.

"Is there anything that will really reduce weight? My hips and abdomen have grown so fleshy that I feel and look far older than I really am. There are certainly others like myself who know the horror of being fat, and would appreciate a frank opinion as to whether there is any hope for getting rid of it."—R. K.

Until recently we knew of nothing that could be relied upon for reducing superfluous flesh, but we lately learned that a specialist in herboristic had found a means which many of our readers declare to be most effective in reducing flesh. On lady who used it lost fourteen pounds of fat from her hips and abdomen in only two weeks' time, so this shows what it will do. The recipe is extremely simple, and you can try it by getting from any good druggist one dram of quassia chips and three ounces of artemisia. Treat the home, and after putting the quassia chips in a pan, pour over them a teacupful of boiling water. When the water has cooled about a minute, strain through a cloth and add the artemisia. Then pour the mixture into a bottle and apply it freely every night and morning with your hands for several minutes, using a circular movement. By taking your weight and measurements each week you can keep track of the exact progress you are making, and no one need ever know how you reduced your flesh unless you care to tell. Phoning E. L. Guilleminot, Dundas and Richmond street; Bruce Wallace, 419 Richmond street; and George A. McLachlan, 390 Richmond street, we learn that all these druggists are filling this prescription frequently, and that it can be obtained from them at any time. Adv.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 25.

The Federals at Torreon appear to be making it hard for Villa.

That Mexican situation is about as puzzling as Mona Lisa's smile.

Those frostbound robins should take a course in ground hog shadow dancing.

Just a little more sunshine and it will be up to father to shift the rubber plant from the parlor to the porch.

All the world loves a lover, and a large section of it has an equally high regard for a bonny fighter. Witness the reception to Dr. Pugley when he returned to the House.

Shakespeare himself was something of a futurist as a spring poet when he sang of "the spring time, the only pretty ring time, when birds do sing, by ding a ding, ding." Birds ringing bells: a curious note.

When the Liberals in the Local Legislature announced their "banish the bar" policy, the Government responded with a declaration that they would "abolish treating." No friend of temperance work objects to that if it could be enforced. But the years pass by, and the suggested legislation does not appear; and there is no prospect that it ever will. When Mr. Hanna, acting for the Government, is questioned about it, he says such questions are not parliamentary. They refer to matters of policy, in regard to which formal questions must not be submitted. But a technicality should not stand in the way of giving information, provided there is any to give. Evidently there is not. The Government's legislation to prevent treating has doubtless gone to the place where other good intentions go.

A FINE SEASON.

OUR weather has been almost too fine this winter. Precipitation has been so scanty that citizens are going dry, except where they have been frozen up since the cold set in early in February. Perhaps we shall be called upon to pay with a wet summer. But in the meantime these fine March nights are the astronomer's day.

It is the dreary, whistling, sleety March that drives the well-to-do to Florida. In the "spring" the rich man's fancy lightly turns to Ponce de Leon and Southern golf. But why run away from Ontario's blue, brisk air in a season like this to the lazier sunshine and drenching rains of the south, then to catch the inevitable cold coming back? This is at any rate a poor man's reflection.

The Southern fruits are here, even to the strawberry. Store windows are full of them. But where are the apples? Can't they raise enough in Canada for Canada? Are our apples in the windows of Southern stores?

TAX REFORM.

THE Ontario Government has again blocked the movement for a needed reform in our system of taxation. The trend of public opinion of late years has been in favor of a modification of our old method of taxing real estate. The method has been one of discouraging improvement and penalizing enterprise. If a man put a coat of paint on his house, he found his tax bill raised. The poorer and more shabby his buildings, the less he had to pay. He might hold vacant land at a moderate rate, but the moment he commenced to build, he had to pay for his progressiveness. Now people are beginning to realize that it is good policy for a municipality to encourage the erection of good buildings, and the improvement and beautifying of old ones. And that can only be done by taxing the land at its full value, and charging less or even nothing on the buildings.

But the Government of Ontario persistently stands in the way. It is not necessary, we are told; nobody is asking for it. And this in spite of the fact that boards of trade and municipal councils have been passing resolutions in favor of it. Even Conservative papers, forgetting for a time their party allegiance, have supported the movement. But because the Liberals in the Legislature have made it a plank in their party platform, the Government says "no." At least we suppose that is the reason, for it is difficult to understand their opposition on any other ground.

Whether or not the single tax on land is a proper system may be open for discussion. But no one is asking for that. Nor is Parliament asked to make the required reform compulsory. But there is a demand, irrespective of party, that municipalities should be allowed more liberty than they have; that instead of being confined to a uniform system, they should be allowed to judge for themselves what is best suited to their several circumstances. If a town wants to cling to the old idea, and tax its citizens whenever they show any signs of enterprise, let it do so. They are the ones who will suffer. But the municipality that is disposed to encourage its own people to erect, build up, and beautify, should have the full privilege of doing as it pleases. To say that it should trust to its assessors and its court of revision to under-assess buildings, and over-assess land, is to suggest irregular and illegal work, which can only lead to confusion.

Apart from the system of taxation itself, there is another question involved, and that is the liberty of the municipality. If a hard and fast rule, binding down to one course all municipalities, no matter how diverse their conditions, was ever permissible, the time has certainly gone by. While certain prohibitory legislation may be advisable for the protection of personal interests against unjust treatment in local matters, there should be far more liberty than is at present enjoyed. The people of any section ought to know their own interests, better than others can know; and though they may sometimes make mistakes, and do themselves an injury, yet it is better for them to learn by experience than to be forced to follow a path set for them by others.

SASKATOON'S PROBLEM.

THE people of Saskatoon are considering a question which may easily arise in other places. The Y. M. C. A. of that city erected a splendid $100,000 building with a fine auditorium for public meetings. It is said that the liquor-dealers contributed liberally to the enterprise. Now they ask permission to use the hall for the purpose of discussing matters connected with their business and organizing force for its protection. Shall the request be granted?

On behalf of the applicants, it is maintained that the building is not of the sacred nature of a church; it is for general purposes, and should be at the service of all parties engaged in legitimate business who can pay the fee. The liquor traffic is a legitimate business, recognized by the Government and the municipality. And as the liquor dealers helped to put up the building they should be allowed the use of it on the same terms as an association of drygoods merchants.

On the other hand, it is safe to say that the use of a Y. M. C. A. building by liquor dealers for the benefit of the liquor traffic would seem to the average man, even though not a prohibitionist, as something horribly inconsistent. A Y. M. C. A. and all the religious forces which it represents are strongly opposed to the liquor traffic, and could scarcely be excused for assisting it, even indirectly.

Then another question crops up. If the liquor traffic is such an evil thing, can money be accepted from the dealers in liquor for religious and moral enterprises? Is not such money tainted with the foulness of the trade, and even when freely offered, should not the Christian exclaim: "Thy money perish with thee?"

It is a well-known fact that many distillers, brewers and hotelkeepers contribute liberally to religious and charitable enterprises. Should that money be accepted and utilized for worthy objects? Not only is it given voluntarily, but cases have been known where it was solicited. Is this consistent?

DECREASING TRADE.

GOVERNMENT returns for the month of February, just issued, show a marked decrease in trade as compared with the corresponding month of last year. Imports decreased by $14,401,754; exports by $2,204,080. This is the worst monthly showing for years. Taking the whole year, ending February, there was a decrease in imports of over $27,000,000. Exports were better; but that was evidently owing to the special demand for Canadian products, consequent upon the reduction of the United States tariff. But along with decreasing trade, there is an increasing expenditure, and an increasing debt. And there is no indication that the Government proposes taking in sail. Money is being spent freely, and in many cases unnecessarily. Every department is calling for increased appropriations. Public works, buildings, armories, are being initiated, regardless of expense. Contractors are flourishing, despite the reflections on that class of people by the Guelph report. One would think that the Government is not calculating on a very long lease of life, and desire their friends to reap a good harvest while the sun continues to shine.

THE CONSTITUTION MENACED.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE said the other night that in the present conflict the Asquith Government is facing a conspiracy to overthrow British constitutional rights which were hard won. Should the Government yield in principle to the clamor and threats of the Tory leaders, Great Britain would at once lapse back among quasi-democracies such as Germany and Turkey.

The one object of Messrs. Law and Balfour is to jockey Mr. Asquith out of office, snatch if possible an election victory before the abolition of plural voting and before the insurance act has fully justified itself, and repeal the Parliament act. Their avowed plan is to unshackle the Lords and then perhaps "reform" the Upper House by limiting its number. This would obviously remove the safeguard for popular government, the power of the sovereign to create new peers enough at any time to carry out the will of the Commons. Of course it would be a closing of the safety-valve and a prelude to a socialist revolution. But the desperate Unionists cannot see the rocks ahead.

It is their pretense that the Parliament act, passed after a referendum election, passed by the House of Lords itself, signed by King George, is unconstitutional, and that open rebellion is therefore justifiable against its working. Particularly in the present unsettled state of men's minds and women's minds in Great Britain, on many problems, land, wages, franchise, etc., the actions of the Unionist leaders and of officers resigning their positions are fraught with danger, not only to the constitution, but to the nation's very life.

NEWSPAPERS.

A SPEAKER at the Social Service Congress in Ottawa has apparently a poor opinion of the newspapers of Canada. He thinks there is little to be expected from them in raising the standard of citizenship because their system of management is wrong; instead of private ownership there is a tendency to corporate ownership. A public speaker should be clear in his statements, and in this case we are doubtful as to what our critic means. If the idea is that instead of one man owning, managing and editing a newspaper, a company of several men own it, and employ the people who manage and edit, then he is right. If he means that some business corporation, such as a railroad, or a bank, or a combine, owns the paper and controls its policy, then he is wrong.

A newspaper, even in a city no larger than London, has become both an extensive and an expensive concern. Few persons care to supply all the money necessary to run it. And any one person who could afford it would certainly be too busy a man to be able to give his time to it either in the office or the sanctum. The consequence is that nearly all, if not all, of our large papers are owned by a company; a number of people, from half a dozen upward, put their money in the enterprise; through their directors they decide what the general policy of the paper shall be, and then employ men to carry it on. It is the only course available. It is the course adopted in all large businesses. Grocers and drygoods men, if operating on an extensive scale, adopt the same plan, and form a corporation—limited or unlimited. The growth of business makes this a necessity. Insofar as newspapers conform to modern methods in financial methods no fault can be found.

If by "corporate ownership," however, is meant the ownership and control of a newspaper by a company engaged in some other business, we doubt if many examples can be found in Canada. Even in the much-criticized operations of Sir Hugh Graham in Montreal, the main object seems to have been to buy material cheaper, and make the different papers owned by him more profitable. Few corporations in Canada have any control over our newspapers.

As to the charge that the press does not assist in attaining or maintaining a high standard of morals, nothing can be farther from the truth. In politics they differ as their owners differ. And our opinion of the political morality of a newspaper will depend very much on our own political views. Apart from that feature of the case, however, newspapers of all kinds support all good measures for the improvement of the community, materially, morally and spiritually. There may be a question sometimes as to whether the tone of a certain newspaper is or is not sufficiently dignified; but that is a matter of taste. As a rule, even the newspaper that is somewhat light in its literary character supports what is good and condemns what is wrong.

Of course, it must be admitted that we will occasionally see a newspaper whose writers are so biased by politics that they will tell lies in what they think is the interest of their party. But this variety of moral astigmatism is not confined to the degenerate editor. There are others—too many of them. It is to be regretted in the interests of the country and for the reputation of the press that the editorial liar should exist at all. But we have to put up with evils that we cannot prevent. Fortunately Ananias in the sanctum is the exception and not the rule. The press of Canada is much better than the social service critic seems to think. We fear he has been reading a bad specimen. He must not judge us all by the low standard of one.

CHURCHES SHOULD ADVERTISE.

(Ottawa Citizen.)
 There is no good reason why the church should not profit by newspaper advertising. If it has anything of special appeal to the non-church goers of the community, the columns of the press offer the best place for the announcement of the fact.

IS THIS BRIBERY?

 In Chicago, at political meetings, they are giving women bottles of scent, instead of the customary campaign cigars. Doesn't the taking and giving of "scent" constitute bribery and corruption?

SALTING SALARIES.

 The Canadian Salt Company has just followed the example of the Henry Ford Company by putting its employees on a profit-sharing system. Surely their workers ought to be able to salt down some of their salary.

CHANGED TO SUIT.

(Christian Register.)
 In England the interest in woman suffrage extends even to the children. A little girl in a strong equal-rights family lately named her new kitten "Antisuffragette." Her mother protested. The child answered calmly, "Oh, I am going to change her name as soon as she gets her eyes open!"

A FEARSOME FEAT.

(Glasgow News.)
 An American, something of a writer, sought local color while in Glasgow by haunting the docks. He fell into conversation with a barge-man. "I've consumed great quantities of liquor," "You drink a good bit of whisky, don't you?" asked the visitor. "Naething tae speak o'," said the

When a Feller's in Love.

When a feller's in love, it's a dandy old world:
 There is joy and content in the breeze.
 All his troubles and woes to the four winds are hurled.
 And the birds sweetly chirp in the trees.
 When she lays her blonde head on a feller's broad chest,
 And she says that she loves him for fair,
 That he is her Lochinvar out of the west,
 Then he feels like a quadrillionaire.

When a feller's in love, he will talk like a nut,
 And he writes stuff that ain't fit to print;
 He will walk down the street with an important strut,
 Just as though he could buy out a mint.
 He will put on his collar and necktie, by gum,
 Seven days in the week and he'll primp,
 And he'll put his old savings account on the bum,
 And he'll act like a regular sump.

When a feller's in love, he's a true candor,
 For the insane asylum, no doubt,

One of the chief advantages of being rich is that a person does not have to pay his bills so promptly.

Only the poor have to pay up on time.

Songs We Used to Whistle and Sing

A subscriber sends a copy of the song,
"The Old Wooden Rocker," and asks in return for the words of "A Boy's Best Friend is His Mother."

The Old Wooden Rocker.
There it stands in the corner, with its back to the wall,
The old wooden rocker, so stately and
tall,
With naught to disturb it but the duster and broom.

For no one now uses that back parlor room.

How well I remember in days long gone
by,
How we stood by that rocker, my sister and I.

And we listened to the stories that my grandma would tell,
In that old wooden rocker we all loved so well.

CHORUS—
As she sat by the fire, she would rock,
rock, rock,
And we heard but the tick of the old brass clock.

Eighty years had she sat in that chair
grim and tall,
The old wooden rocker that stands by the wall.

If that chair could but speak, oh the tales
it would tell,
Of poor, aged grandpa, in fierce battle fell.

'Neath the old Union Jack, he fought bravely and true;
He cherished his colors, the red, white and blue.

It would tell of bright days, and of dark ones beside,
Of the day when dear grandma came forth as a bride.

This is why we all love this old chair
grim and tall,
The old wooden rocker that stands by the
wall.

Now, dear grandma is gone, and her stories are done,
Her children have followed her, yes, one by one.

They have all gone to meet her in the sweet by-and-by.

And all that is left is dear sister and I.
Never more will we hide her gold specks or her cap.

Never more will we tease her while taking her nap;
Never more will she sit in that chair grim and tall.

The old wooden rocker that stands by the
wall.

The Baby's Bath.

After the baby is a week or ten days old it should be given a tub bath every day. This can be given more quickly and thoroughly than can a sponge bath, and there is less danger of chilling. The water should be comfortably warm, but not hot. It is well to lay a bath towel in the bottom of the tub and put in only a small amount of water at first, so as not to frighten the baby. If a baby is plunged in immediately into a tub of water it is apt to become startled and may never recover from his fear of water.

While the water is added gradually the baby soon learns to enjoy its morning dip.

For the first few months of its life,
the baby should be allowed to stay in the bath only a few minutes, and then be taken out and dried quickly. As it grows older and stronger, it should be allowed to play in the water for about fifteen minutes, as the skin absorbs some water, which is beneficial to the system.

Besides this, the water relaxes the muscles and aids in overcoming many wrong conditions.

SUITS AND SUITINGS.

There is a new quality in the suitings that are in vogue at present, they must comply with the necessity of draping, yet at the same time be delightfully heavy. This late winter suit is developed in permo in a cinnamon-brown tone.

built in a semi-Russian blouse effect and touched with the bit of fur that will adhere to fashionable suits until late into the spring. The inevitable button boots that now always accompany the fashionable costume and a hat in the brown tone perfect the toilette.

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letters can be answered privately.]

To Clean Curtains.

Dear Miss Grey—Would you please tell me how to clean chenille curtains, and oblige?

A—I do not really see that you could clean the curtains at home, unless by dry methods. Place them one at a time in a sack containing some cornmeal and flour; leave the curtain in the sack two or three days, frequently rubbing it between the hands. Then remove, hang on the clothesline and whisk out the powder with a fairly stiff whisk broom. To give a light sponging over with ammonia water would help restore the color.

Ask at Drug Store.

Dear Miss Grey—I have been very interested in reading your columns in The London Advertiser, and I am writing to ask if you know what S— is? How much does it cost, and would one be able to get it at a drug store?

Hoping to see an answer in your paper soon, and also requesting that my right name will not be used in the paper. I remain, yours truly,

A—I must confess that I never even heard of the preparation you ask for.
From the name, it is a proprietary medicine, and you would be able to get it at any drug store.

They Have It Bad.

Dear Miss Grey—Would you please answer this question for me:

1. How long should an engagement last between a couple if they love one another and can't bear to be out of one another's sight?

A—1. Some favor an engagement of six months' duration, others say it is better to wait a year, or even two. There can be no hard and fast rules regarding such matters.

2. None of the songs that you ask for are "old-time" pieces, except "Nellie Gray." This will be published shortly.

Checks for Autumn?

Dear Miss Grey—Could you answer a few questions for me?

1. Will checks be worn in the fall?

2. What trimming would look well on a raw silk dress made pepum style?

Hoping I have not troubled you, I remain, yours sincerely,

A—1. It is rather far ahead to predict, but I feel fairly certain that checked materials will still be used then.

2. Piping of a pretty plaid silk, and covered buttons to match would be nice;
or you might use an ecrú-colored galloon or lace edging.

Misused Words.

The New York World publishes a few of the most commonly misused words in the English language. They are words which most of us use wrongly perhaps a dozen times a day:

Awful—"Awful" means "awe inspiring."
It does not mean "very." To say "I am awfully glad to see you," is every bit as incorrect and absurd as to say "I am awe inspiringly glad to see you."

Revenge and Vengeance—Revenge means the satisfying of a personal grudge or hatred. Vengeance is a just and impersonal punishment for a crime or sin.
A man "revenge" himself by doing his enemy an ill turn. The law wreaks "vengeance" by putting the murderer to death. "I will have revenge!" hisses the melodrama villain. "Vengeance" is the Bible text "Vengeance" (not "revenge") is the verb for "Vengeance."

Forgive and Pardon—These terms are too often misused as meaning the same thing. Their meanings are wholly different. To "pardon" means to forgive from all consequence of a deed. To "forgive" is simply to hold no grudge for such a deed. For example, suppose a man should burn the house of a state's governor and the governor might perhaps "forgive" the deed; in other words, he might bear no rancor against the perpetrator.
At the same time he might, for justice's sake, refuse to pardon him, and the governor might be imprisoned for so long.

Instead, use the term "palatable."

Great—"Great" means "large"—
"mighty"—"valiant." Sing and later, common usage, have twisted it into such forms as "We are 'great' friends," "He is a 'great' (meaning 'persistent') talker," etc. As sensibly say "We are sublime friends" or "He is a large talker."

THE HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, MARCH 26, 1914.

Now the new moon
Brings many a boon.

On this day the new moon is read as pressing important events, since it falls in the seventh house with Venus in sex-ing to Uranus and Mercury, while Jupiter is in the fifth, Mercury in the sixth and Mars and Neptune in the tenth.

According to a London astrologer the positions of Mars indicates increase of arguments.

Venus is in a place held to be highly unsatisfactory for social conditions. Divorces, scandals and libel suits will be numerous. These will touch one or two women of international fame.

The death rate for next month is likely to be high. A number of celebrated persons will succumb to diseases due to inclement weather conditions.

Great activity in building vessels, starting discoveries in science and progress in aviation are prophesied.

The astral influence for today are contradictory, but the sun gives power to persons who command their fellow men.

There is a fortunate sign for workers in the fields. The influences are believed to increase physics activity and to impart unusual vigor.

Those who work in gold or gold quartz should benefit. There is an augury of a great discovery in a mining region.

Gain through enterprise and responsibility should be easier under this rule than at other times.

Association with prosperous, optimistic persons will bring extraordinary rewards. It is said, when this rule prevails.

In this rule it has been held that arbi-trations are subject to a favorable outcome, which leaves satisfaction with both the parties involved.

Trouble for Great Britain and Ireland is predicted for next month, when a serious crisis is likely. There is also a threatening omen for Turkey and Northern Africa.

Persons whose birthdate it is have a happy augury. Great benefits will come to those born in 1855, '66, '74, '78, '80,
'84, '88, '90 and '92. Speculation should be avoided if the prognostication of success and prosperity is to be fulfilled.

Children born on this day probably will have happy and successful lives. Their magnetic centre is the sun in the zodiacal sign Aries, and their principal ruling planet is Mars.

paper Syndicate.)

Woes of Mrs. Newlywed

"How can I tell good from bad eggs?"
inquired Mrs. Newlywed.

"Good eggs will sink in a brine of two ounces salt to a pint of water; bad ones will float," answered Mrs. Neighbor.

Jack had just been stung by a nettle.
"Mother," he asked, thoughtfully, "if a bee got on a nettle, would the bee sting the nettle or would the nettle sting the bee?"

Miss Genevieve Clark declares she has no pet hobby, no drastic ideas, no pet and denies that she is at all clever. No she must be.

TEAM'S SUCCESS RESTS WITH PLAYERS, SAYS DR. REISLING

All He Can Do Is Show Them How To Use Their Hands, Feet and Head, but They Must Get the Results--London Manager Is Strong on Harmony.

URING its sojourn in the Canadian League the London club has had a varied experience with managers and local fans will watch with interest the work of Dr. F. C. Reisling this season. The Caldwell, Ohio, dentist should prove the best of the five men who have from time to time held the position. His experience from the Toledo American Association team, from which he was drafted by Washington, should serve him in good stead.

His opinions show logic. The doctor uses a great deal of common sense in his dealings with baseball. His opinions are mostly based on sound logic and his ideas are wrought from his own experience. In discussing the local situation with the writer, he declared that he was not coming to London to show the fans how baseball should be played or how a team should be run. "I dare say," he said, "there are some fans in London who know the game just as well and perhaps a lot better than I do. I have a great respect for the average fan's knowledge of the game. I am going to handle the London team to the best of my ability and I am going to make a fight for the pennant. But, I cannot do any more than the players let me. The success of the club is up to them. I have only two hands, two feet and one head the same as they and if they do not use them to the best of their ability I cannot make them. I can only try and show them to the best of my ability what must be done, but the real results must come from them. They are the ones who win or lose the games. I make no predictions whatever about the London team this coming season. I have gathered together what I consider a pretty good bunch of ball players, but the season alone will prove what they amount to."

No Poker-Playing Allowed. Manager Reisling prizes harmony on a ball club a great deal, and he will make every effort this season to keep harmony in the London team. "Nothing breaks up a team's playing as quickly and as effectively as discord and friction among the players of one team," he declared. He is strongly opposed to poker-playing among the players, and the members of the London team will not indulge in this indoor sport this season. Ballplayers, as a rule, are great little poker-players, the pastime coming handy to pass away the time during rainy days or on long trips aboard trains. However, the London players will have to learn "Old Maid" or indulge in some other innocent pastime during their spare time, while Dr. Reisling is handling the team. He claims that poker tends to create any other element or influence combined. It is a great little trouble-maker, and no ball club whose members are continually indulging in card games among themselves can have perfect harmony. Ill-feeling is bound to arise as a result of these games, and often what appears to be a perfectly harmless little game of draw poker will stir up more enmity and bitterness than is good for any team.

CATCHER CADDY OF SOX
REFUSES FED. OFFER

Is Offered $12,500 a Year With $5,000 Bonus.

SIGNS UP WITH BOSTON

No Announcement As Yet As To Whether Pitching Injunction Will Be Contested by Outlaws.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 24.—Cady, the Boston American League catcher, announced tonight that he had refused a Federal League offer of $12,500 a year and a bonus of $5,000 to sign with the Pittsburgh club of the new league. Cady already has signed a Boston contract. No announcement was made today as to whether the temporary injunction obtained yesterday by the Pittsburgh National League Club management against S. H. Cannitz and another Federal League agent, described as "John Doe," will be contested. The order issued in Chancery Court restrained Cannitz and "John Doe" from communicating with any member of the Pittsburgh club. It is said several Federal League representatives are in Hot Springs.

LATEST HAPPENINGS IN
THE CANADIAN LEAGUE

Only three of the Canadian League clubs will train at home this season. In Hamilton, Brantford and Erie ball parks are being repaired.

The Hamilton Club is planning a great deal of faith on the promise of support from Connie Mack. According to Mack, the Hamilton Club will get many of the Baltimore International League's cast-offs.

Frank Bowerman, the old Giant catcher, who managed the London team for a short time, but who retired hurriedly to answer the call of "back to the land," has rented his 100-acre farm and is seeking a berth as an umpire.

George Leclair, the ex-Montreal pitcher released by Guelph last season, is with the Pittsburgh Federals. Some league, that Federal.

Friends of Lefty Rogers say he is cleaning up from $200 to $500 a week peddling paint in the middle west.

Manager Yates of the Hamilton club will not report in the Ambitious City until April 1. He will likely remain there until the beginning of the season. His players will begin reporting about April 8.

Despite the fact that the Hamilton Club appointed Dr. Yates manager of that team some weeks ago, one of the St. Thomas papers printed an article Monday to the effect that Dave Rowan would likely receive the position this season. St. Thomas hasn't heard about Yates' appointment yet.

The Brantford Club will play the Philadelphia Athletics on August 11, during old home week. The Ottawa Club will meet the Detroit Tigers some time in June or July and Erie will play the New York Giants on May 28 and the Naps and Athletics later in the season. The big leaguers will become quite familiar to Canadian League fans at this rate.

Brantford fans regret the departure of "Chubby" Coose, who was traded by the London Club to Saginaw of the South Michigan League. Coose was a general favorite in Brantford and the only real ball player on the Red Sox line-up last season.

PETROLEA WILL HAVE A LACROSSE LEAGUE

Oil Town Enthusiasts Are Reviving National Pastime and Forming Teams for Coming Season.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Petrolea, March 24.—The youths of Petrolea are entering enthusiastically into lacrosse plans and are looking forward to forming a league in the district so that the winners will obtain medals offered by enthusiasts who are trying to revive the national game throughout Canada. Boys plan to form a league of one team each from Collegiate and Central School, one from Business College, one from various banks, two from town itself, one each from Brantford and Oil Springs.

WOODSTOCK WILL NOT
ENTER THE W. O. B. L.

Woodstock, March 24.—An effort is being made to form a manufacturers' baseball league for Woodstock during the coming summer. Bains, Canada Furniture, Kams and Hays are sure to place teams in the league. Stewarts & Thomas Organ Company are also possibilities. It is hardly likely that Woodstock will be represented in Western Ontario Semi-Pro League this year, as the district will be called in a short time and the matter will be gone into thoroughly.

STRENGTH OF SOME CLUBS
MAKES SHAUGHNESSY WORRY

Ottawa Manager Has Not Yet Landed Enough Players To Bolster Up Last Year's Champions--His Pitching Staff Needs Attention.

WILLIAM the Canadian League champions practically have every one of last year's squad at their command. Manager Shaughnessy isn't warbling "Ish ka bibble." Shaughnessy is worried. I tell you there will be four or five awful tough teams to beat in this league this year. It won't be like last season, when we got by on one pitcher, four bats and a catcher. The situation with my club is like this: I need a shortstop and pitching staff. I am banking a lot on Joe Lill this season, and if he has acquired any kind of control he will be the best pitcher in the league. If his control is no better than last year, he will be the worst. Lill is already working out at St. Louis. I have written him frequently how to work up gradually and expect him to report at his best. Kane may be a useful pitcher for us this season, although he has the reputation of being a warm weather man. Kubat has been a good breaking curve ball as any pitcher I ever saw, but is a poor starter. Donovan hasn't shown anything at all. I think Kane will make good at Nashville, but if he doesn't I may be able to get him back. I have a number of

BROOKLYN FEDERALS
TO SHARE IN PROFITS

President Ward Has Good Scheme to Get the Best Work Out of His Players.

Baltimore, Md., March 24.—President R. B. Ward of the Brooklyn Federal League Club, before leaving for home today, disclosed a profit sharing plan for the players of his club. Each player will have an ownership in the club proportionate to the salary he receives. Shares of common stock will be set aside for the men as a bonus, and when dividends are declared they will profit the same as the original holders of stock.

"I know that the scheme will be successful," Mr. Ward said. "I am not changing a thing. I've experimented with it in my business and it works out wonderfully. I know that the players will share in the greater if a higher degree of efficiency and economy is attained. They all work toward that one standard with the result that much more is accomplished than could otherwise be done."

BACK TO HARRISTON
GOES McEWING TROPHY

This Is Just About the Tenth Time It Has Gone Back This Season.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Harriston, March 24.—Harriston sent one fine last night to Palmerston after the McEwing trophy, which left here on Saturday last. Two games were played. Harriston lost the first by one shot, but captured the much-coveted trophy on the second game by eleven shots. And now the trophy rests once more in Harriston, with a challenge in the hands of the secretary from Palmerston.

The scores: First Game. Palmerston, W. M. Fisher, C. Southgate, G. Daum, A. Corrigan, Stan Burns. Harriston, W. M. Fisher, J. J. Lavery, G. D. Lavery, T. Johnstone. Second Game. Palmerston, W. M. Fisher, Stan Burns, G. Graham, Joe Chalmers. Harriston, W. M. Fisher, J. J. Lavery, G. D. Lavery, T. Johnstone. Total. Palmerston, 22. Harriston, 33.

Major league ball players, after a week or two of training, can jump further than they could during the winter. And dozens of them are waiting for the opportunity.

$20,000 Challenge Still Open

Russell-Knight Supremacy Unquestioned

Thirty days ago we offered a challenge of $20,000 to the whole world of manufacturers and owners of automobiles with poppet valve engines, to equal the recent performance of the RUSSELL-KNIGHT at West Toronto.

To date no one has seen fit to accept.

Until this challenge is accepted and our record equaled the Canadian-built

RUSSELL-KNIGHT

Engine acknowledges neither superior nor equal.

For sixty days longer the challenge remains open. In the interest of motor manufacturing we hope some enthusiastic admirer of poppet valve engine will have confidence enough in his favorite motor to accept the challenge and enter the test.

Meantime the World's Champion Motor is the Canadian-built RUSSELL-KNIGHT.

CONNIE MACK THINKS
WELL OF CATCHER McAVOY

Former Berlin Backstop is Showing as Well That Mack is Puzzled What To Do With Him.

One of the Philadelphia scribes down at Jacksonville with the Athletics has the following to say about Catcher McAvoy: "Out of the mass of unknown quantities that always litter up a training camp a young gentleman has popped into the limelight and has Connie guessing. This young gentleman is James McAvoy, a catcher drafted by Connie from the Berlin (Ont.) club of the Canadian League.

"Mac appears to possess all the attributes of a big league catcher, and has shown good down here to be turned around without a good stout string attached. Hence Connie's little guessing game in picking his catcher. Sturgis has all the prestige of past efforts, but McAvoy is showing the goods."

SHARING THE GLORY.

Manufacturers whose accessories were used in any way in the recent world's record-breaking test of the Russell-Knight engine, are vying with one another in advertising the feat, not only in Canada and the United States, but abroad, as illustrating the reliability of their particular units. The Mea Magno manufacturers feature the performance as showing the remarkable reliability of the ignition system. The Stromberg-Carlson Company are using two pages of display in all the leading automobile papers of the United States to show that it was their carburetor that enabled the Russell-Knight to develop 233 per cent of its rated horsepower, to keep up a continuous performance for 300 hours without adjustment, and to establish world's records for gasoline economy. All of this publicity is invaluable to the Russell Company, and fortunately is being done for them now by others whose accessories contributed to the result.

SECRETARY FOR WAR

In order to exercise his right in case of bad weather.

After a brief sentence or two by Andrew Bonar Law, asking for the presentation to the House of the details which had been omitted from the white paper, Colonel Seely opened his defence.

The secretary for war declared he had nothing to conceal, and, foreseeing his impending resignation, said he thought, in view of the information received by the Government, it was necessary to take certain steps to protect the government's interests. He had issued instructions for this purpose with the full authority of the cabinet. General Paget came to London to discuss the best methods of carrying out the movements of troops.

Comotion Possible.
"It appeared to the Government, and to General Paget, that although these movements were purely precautionary in character, a state of excitement might be caused which would result in commotion in all parts of Ireland. I therefore took the necessary steps to support the movements in the event of their being opposed by armed force."

Then came a telegram from Sir Arthur Paget, from which it appeared to the Government that these officers had deliberately defied the lawful orders of Sir Arthur Paget and also his aid, but subsequently it appeared that there had been a complete and honest misapprehension of the statement made by General Paget at a meeting with his officers. These officers believed there was a plan to treat Ulster as an enemy's country and overwhelm her by a surprise attack. That belief, as we can well imagine, must have been fostered by wild rumors which were abroad. There was not a shadow of foundation for these rumors.

"The authorities knew that directly we moved troops these rumors would arise, and that was the absolute justification for my action in accepting the suggestion of General Paget that we should be prepared for a state of disorder following these necessary movements."

Gough Interviews.

Giving an account of his interview with General Gough and other officers, Colonel Seely said:

"The officers explained that they had not an idea that they were going to be asked to support the civil power in the event of disorder and General Gough expressed himself as ready to go to Belfast."

Turning to the letter read by Andrew Bonar Law in the House of Commons, attributing to General Paget the words, "Ulster will be in a blaze by Saturday," Colonel Seely said that General Paget had told him that what he really said was, "There must be a blaze and certainly will be a blaze in the press."

As though to clinch the matter Col. Seely repeated this statement with emphasis. In announcing to the House that he had had no objection to the statement, Col. Seely explained that he had inadvertently misled the cabinet. He said that he had in the reply to General Gough, printed in the White Paper, by mistake added two paragraphs to the document considered and approved by the cabinet at a meeting at which he was not present. He added: "I do not recede from the statements contained in the document, but these alterations make it appear that the officers asked for conditions, and that those conditions were accepted."

Takes All Blame.

Col. Seely absolved Field Marshal Sir John French and Gen. Paget from all blame in the matter. He added: "The blame rests on me alone. I have misled the Cabinet inadvertently and with honest intention. I added to the cabinet document, not knowing it to be final. If I had been present at the meeting of the Cabinet it would not have happened."

Col. Seely added that while he was gravely to blame he had acted honestly and with every desire to be loyal to his colleagues.

The "White Paper."

London, March 25.—The mutiny of a section of the officers of the British regular army in Ireland, when they believed they were to be ordered to fight the Ulstermen, was again today the subject of the most profound interest in Parliament and among the public.

The correspondence between the war office and the army officers in Ireland, which led to the recent wholesale resignations of commissions and reinstatements, was made public today in the shape of a white paper, or official communication, to the Houses of Parliament.

It can be seen from this correspondence that the war office was informed early in December last of the possibility of resignations of officers being presented, in case the political situation in regard to Ulster came to a crisis. In consequence of this information Sir John French, the secretary of state for war, interviewed the general officers in command and explained to them that an officer of the British army was entitled to order to shoot, only in case the order was reasonable one under the circumstances.

Orders Must Be Reasonable.
The Secretary for War told them that no one from a general down to a private was entitled to use more force than was required to maintain order and to preserve life and property. He pointed out that no soldier could shelter himself from the civil law behind an order given by a superior officer, if that order was unreasonable and outrageous. He continued: "If, therefore, officers and men of the British army have been led to believe that there is a possibility they might be called upon to take outrageous action—for instance, to massacre a demonstration of Orangemen, who were causing no danger to the lives of their neighbors—had as were the effects on discipline in the army, nevertheless it was true that they were in fact and in law justified in a refusal to obey."

There never has been and is not now any intention, however, of giving outrageous and illegal orders to the troops. The law will be respected, and must be obeyed. What has happened is that the possibility of action being required by troops in supporting the civil power in protecting lives and property when the police is unable to hold its own.

Some Attempts Made.
"Attempts have been made to dissuade the troops from obeying lawful orders given them, when acting in support of the civil law behind an order given by a superior officer. The claim that officers and men of the army could pick and choose between lawful and reasonable orders, saying they would obey in one case and not in another."

Maintaining that there had not been a single case of lack of discipline in this respect. In the British army, Col. Seely said: "At the same time, as I have stated in the press and elsewhere made the position clear, I informed the general officers that I would hold each of them individually responsible to see that there was no conduct in their commands subversive to discipline. I told them they could let it be clearly understood that any such conduct would be dealt with under the King's regulations."

"If any army officer should tender his resignation I told the generals that they should ask for his reasons, and if he indicated that he desired to choose which order he would obey, I would submit to the King that the officer should be removed from the army."

Letter To Paget.

This was followed by a letter dated March 19, 1914, from the war office to Sir Arthur Paget, commander-in-chief in Ireland, in which Sir Arthur was informed: "In consequence of reports received by the Government that attempts may be made in various parts of Ireland by evil disposed persons to obtain possession of arms and ammunition and other Government stores, it is considered advisable that you should at once take special precautions for safe-guarding the depots and other places where arms and stores are kept as you may think advisable."

"It appears that Armagh, Omagh, Carrickfergus and Enniskillen are insufficiently guarded, being specially liable to attack."

Orders also were given to the officers in command of barracks where arms and ammunition were stored or located that they would be held responsible for the safety of the property and that such places never should be left unguarded. It is pointed out that this order referred to the whole of Ireland.

Nearly All Resigned.
General Paget telegraphed to the war office on March 20, that all the officers of the Fifth Royal Irish Lancers stationed in Dublin had resigned, with the exception of two. He said he feared that the same conditions prevailed among the officers of the sixteenth Queens' Lancers, stationed at the Curragh, and that the men would refuse to move.

That same evening Gen. Paget telegraphed to the war office that the brigadier-general and 57 officers of the Third Cavalry Brigade at Curragh "prefer to accept dismissal, if they are ordered to the north."

Refusal Ordered.
The war office replied to this dispatch authorizing Gen. Paget to suspend from duty any "senior officers who had tendered their resignations, or in any other manner had disregarded your authority. The resignations of all officers should be refused."

The war office also said that other officers were being sent to relieve Brig.-Gen. Hubert Gough, commander of the Third Cavalry Brigade, and the commanding officer of the Fifth and the Sixteenth Lancers, who were ordered to proceed to London.

Brig.-Gen. Hubert Gough, in reporting the feeling in his brigade, as the result of a communication from the war office, conveyed to him verbally by Gen. Sir Arthur Paget, says:

"The officers of my brigade are unanimous in their feeling that the information is essential before they should be called upon at such short notice to take decisions so vitally affecting their whole future, and especially that a clear definition should be given of the terms, 'duty as ordered,' and 'active operations' in Ulster."

[Canadian Press.]
London, March 25.—Documents made public today disclose officially the fact that the British Government gave officers in Ireland a written undertaking that there was no intention of using the army to crush Ulster's political opposition to the home rule bill. The correspondence, however, points out that the Government retains its right to use the army to maintain law and order.

The orders issued by the War Office in respect to the duties of the army in Ireland, chiefly in connection with the protection of government stores, arms and ammunition, are given very completely. The correspondence, however, omits to give the verbal communication made by Gen. Sir Arthur Paget to the officers at the Curragh camp which led to their resignations, and which the Government argues was the result of a "misunderstanding."

Law's Version Correct.

The version of Gen. Paget's communication read by Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, in the House of Commons on Monday, was substantially correct, and the correspondence addressed to the Curragh camp which led to their resignations, and which the Government argues was the result of a "misunderstanding."

The Irish commander-in-chief wrote that he was in close communication with the War Office, and had received instructions from headquarters to notify his officers that those of them domiciled in Ulster and who were asked to "active operations" were to be allowed to disappear and be afterward reinstated. They must, however, give their word of honor not to fight for Ulster. In the published correspondence, Brigadier-General Hubert Gough underlines the words "active operations" when asking for further information, and it appears evident that he was quoting the remarks of Gen. Paget.

Rumors of Resignation.

It can be seen from this correspondence that the war office was informed early in December last of the possibility of resignations of officers being presented, in case the political situation in regard to Ulster came to a crisis. In consequence of this information Sir John French, the secretary of state for war, interviewed the general officers in command and explained to them that an officer of the British army was entitled to order to shoot, only in case the order was reasonable one under the circumstances.

Col. Seely was not in his place in the House of Commons when the session opened, and all questions addressed to him as Secretary for War were answered by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary for War.

A Great Issue.
Montreal, March 25.—A special cable to the Daily Mail from London says: The Daily News, the chief Liberal newspaper, this morning advises the Government to at once resign and take the verdict of the country on the issue of "the army versus the nation."

"If such duty consists in the maintenance of order and preservation of property, all the officers, including myself, are prepared to carry out that duty. If, however, the duty involved the initiation of military operations against Ulster, the following officers would respectfully and under protest prefer to resign."

The names of 55 officers of the Third Cavalry Brigade follow.

Officers' Questions.
After an interview with Col. Seely, Brigadier-General Hubert Gough wrote to the War Office that one of the first questions asked by the officers would be: "In the event of the present home rule bill being passed, would the Government be called upon to enforce it on Ulster under the expression of 'maintaining law and order.' This point should be made quite clear. Otherwise there will be renewed misconceptions."

In reply to this Brigadier-General Gough wrote a letter, initiated by Col. Seely, as secretary for war, and by Field Marshal Sir John French, in which he was authorized to inform the officers as follows:

A Misunderstanding.
"The army council is satisfied that the incident which has arisen in regard to their resignations was due to a misunderstanding."

The letter continues that it is the duty of soldiers to obey commands for the protection of life and property, and in support of the civil power in the event of disturbance, and the army council is glad there never has been, and never will be, any question of disobeying such orders. It continues: "The Government must retain its rights to use all the forces of the Crown in Ireland or elsewhere to maintain order and support the civil power in the ordinary execution of their duty, but it has no intention whatever of taking advantage of this right in order to crush political opposition to the policy or the principles of the home rule bill."

PAT—Sure, 'tis a fine sight to see the ould Lady doin' all this on MY account.

THE HOLLOW OF HER HAND

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Author of "Graustark," "Truxton King," Etc.

"I only want you to tell me the truth. Do you despise me?"

"Again I say that I do not. I can only say that I regard you with—yes, with awe."

"As one might think of a deadly serpent."

"Hardly that," he said, smiling for the first time. He crossed over and laid his hand on her shoulder. "Don't think too meanly of yourself. I understand it all. You lived, for months without a heart, that's all."

"You put it very gently."

"I think I'm right. Now you've got it back, and it's hungry for the sweet, good things of life. You want to be happy. You want to love again and to be loved. You don't want to be pitted. I understand. It's the return of a heart that went away long months ago and left an empty place that you fill with gall. The bitterness is gone. There is something sweet in its place. Am I not right?"

"Yes, if you mean that I want to be loved by my enemies, Brandon, you are wrong," she said clearly. "I have not been chastened in that particular."

"You mean the Wrangalls?"

"It is not in my nature to love my enemies. We stand on the same footing as before, and always shall. They understand me, I understand them. I am glad that my project failed, not for their sake, but for my own."

"He was silent. This woman was beyond him. He could not understand a nature like this."

"You say nothing. Well, I can't ask you to understand. We will not discuss my enemies, but my friends. What do you intend to do in respect to Hetty?"

"Am I going to make her my wife," he said levelly.

"She turned away. It was now quite dark. He could not see the expression on her face."

"What have you heard does not weaken your love for her?"

"No. It strengthens it."

"You know what she has done. She has taken a life with her own hands. Can you make her the mother of your own children? Remember, there is blood on her hands."

"Ah, but her heart is clean."

"True," she said moodily, "her heart is clean."

"No cleaner than yours is now, Sara."

"She uttered a short, mocking laugh. 'It is necessary to say a thing like that.'"

"I beg your pardon."

"Her manner changed abruptly. She turned to him, intense and serious. 'She is so far away, Brandon. On the other side of the world, and she is full of longing for me. How am I to regain what I have lost? How am I to make her understand? She went away with that last ugly thought of me, with the thought of me as I appeared to her. It is a terrible thing. All these months she has been growing more horrible to her beside her all the time. All these months she has known that I pretended to love her as—'

"You believe you know Hetty as well as you think you do," he broke in. "You forget that she loved you with all her soul. You can't kill love so easily as all that. It will be all right, Sara. You must write and ask her to come back. It—"

"Ah, but you don't know!" Then she related the story of the liberated canary bird. "Hetty understands. The cage door is open. She may return when she chooses. But—don't you see?—she must come of her own free will."

"You will not ask her to come?"

"No. It is the test. She will know that I have told you everything. You will go to her. Then she may understand. If she forgives me, she will come back. There is nothing else to say, nothing else to consider."

"I shall go to her at once," he said resolutely.

"She gave him a quick, searching glance. 'She may refuse to marry you, even now, Brandon.'"

"She can't!" he cried. An instant later his face fell. "By Jove, I—I suppose the law will have to be considered now. She will at least have to go through the form of a trial."

"She whirled on him angrily. 'The law? What has the law to do with it? Don't be a fool!'

"She ought to be legally exonerated," he said.

"Her fingers gripped his arm fiercely. 'I want you to understand one thing, Brandon. The story I have told you was for your ears alone. The secret lives with us and dies with us.'"

"He looked his relief. 'Right! It must go no farther. It is not a matter for the law to decide. You may trust me.'"

"An cold," she said. He heard her teeth chatter distinctly as she pulled the thick mantle closer about her throat and shoulders. "It is very raw and wet down here. Come!"

As she started off along the long, narrow pier, he sprang after her, grasping her arm. She leaned rather heavily against him for a few steps, and then drew herself up. Her teeth still chattered, her arm trembled in his clasp.

"By Jove, Sara, this is bad," he cried in distress. "You're chilled to the marrow."

"Nerves," she retorted, and he somehow felt that her lips were set and drawn.

"You must get to bed right away. Hot bath, mustard and all that. I'll not stop for dinner. Thanks, just the same. I will be over in the morning."

"When will you call?" she asked, after a moment.

"I can't go for ten days at least. My mother goes into the hospital next week for an operation, as I've told you. I can't leave until after that's over. Nothing serious, but I can't go away. I shall write to Hetty tonight and cable her tomorrow. By the way, I—I don't know just where to find her. You see, we were not to write to each other. It was in the bargain. I suppose you don't know where I can—"

"Yes, I can tell you precisely where she is. She is in Venice, but leaves there tomorrow for Rome, by the Express."

"Then you have been hearing from her?" he cried sharply.

"Not directly. But I will say this much—there has not been a day since she landed in England that I have not received news of her. I have not been out of touch with her, Brandon, not even for an hour."

"Good heavens, Sara! You don't mean to say you've had a letter from her—by detectives?" he exclaimed aghast.

"Her maid is a very faithful servant," was her ambiguous rejoinder.

CHAPTER XXI.

Disturbing News.

He walked home swiftly through the early night, his brain seething with tumultuous thoughts. The revelations of the day were staggering; the whole universe seemed to have turned topsy-turvy since that devastating hour at Burton's Inn. Somehow he was not able to believe his thought to Hetty Castleton alone. She seemed to sink into the background, despite the abasement he had been so ready, so eager to grant her on hearing the story from Sara's lips. Not that his resolve to search her out and claim her in spite of everything was likely to weaken, but that the absorbing figure of Sara Wrangall stood out most clearly in his reflections.

What an amazing creature she was! He could not drive her out of his thoughts, even when he tried to concentrate them on the one person who was dearest to him in all the world, his warm-hearted, adorable Hetty. Strange contrasts suggested themselves to him as he strode along, head bent and shoulders hunched. He could not help contrasting the two women. He loved Hetty; he would always love her, of that he was positive. She was Sara's superior in every respect, infinitely so, he argued. And yet there was something in Sara that could crowd this adored one, this perfect one out of his thoughts for the time being. He found it difficult to concentrate his thoughts on Hetty Castleton.

How white and ill Sara had looked when she said good-night to him at the door! The memory of her dark, mysterious eyes haunted him; he could see them in the night about him. They had been full of pain; there were torrents of tears behind them. They had glinted as if burned by the fires of fever.

PLANNING CELEBRATION

West London Progressives are planning a triumphal celebration to mark the completion and opening of traffic of the Wharfedale road bridge. This will not be until some time next summer, but the West Londoners want to be prepared. The proposed celebration will be discussed at the meeting of the West London Progressive Society tonight. Another matter to be discussed at tonight's meeting will be the agitation for a West London belt car line running over Oxford street bridge.

What Dyspeptics Should Eat

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well-fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisulphate of magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisulphate of magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisulphate of magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisulphate of magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

How Is Your Weight

While it is true that too much weight is not to be desired, the fact remains that many men and women are thin to the point of danger. The danger lies in their having no reserve force or nerve power to combat deadly diseases. A little extra flesh is needed by all to feel well and to look well, and this calls up the question of how best to increase the weight. Physicians and chemists by experiments have solved the problem of increasing the white and red corpuscles of the blood, by the administration of 3-grain hypo-aurine tablets, and this is usually followed by an increase of weight. Obtain in sealed packages, and take for a period of several months, according to directions with package.—Adv.

CONTRACTORS BEGIN WORK ON THE TECUMSEH

Hotel Will Have 160 Rooms When the Job Is Completed.

Contractors began yesterday the remodeling and enlarging of the Tecumseh House. When their work is completed in the early fall, the interior of the hotel will have considerably changed appearance.

The chief change will be the addition of a middle wing, extending west from the rotunda. This will be five stories high, one higher than the main building, and will provide 50 additional guest rooms, most of them with baths. When this is done, the hotel will have 160 rooms.

The plans call for the enlarging of the rotunda and the changing of the stairway. A second elevator will also be installed in the new wing. In connection it is proposed by George H. O'Neill, the proprietor, to install a tea room, or a larger grille-room, and in addition his plans provide for a renovation of all the present rooms.

JUSTICE REFUSED TO ACT
Feared It Would Injure His Business as Storekeeper.

Montreal, March 24. — As a result of the descent of Game Warden Griffiths and assistants for the protection of fish and game on violators of the game laws, in the vicinity of Scottstown, where there has been indiscriminate slaughter of deer for some time, ten men were convicted on Monday, and forty more prosecutions are pending. The fines and costs amounted to $218. A somewhat unusual feature of the case was the refusal of W. J. Black, a justice of the peace, to act on the grounds that the accused were friends of his, and it would injure his business as a storekeeper if he tried them.

THURSTON'S BODY IS NOT YET RECOVERED
Mystery of Toronto Hotel Fire Grows Deeper—Cohen Is Identified.

[Canadian Press.]
Toronto, March 24.—The mystery surrounding the identity of the Woodbine Hotel victims is growing deeper. The first body to be recovered from the ruins and which was buried in New York as being that of Max Cohen, was exhumed yesterday and returned to Toronto, arriving at the morgue this morning. It was inspected by the sister and two brothers-in-law of Charles H. Thurston, of Brampton, whose body it was thought to be, but to the amazement of the authorities the relatives stated that it was not Thurston. They could not distinguish the features of the man as he was so badly burned, but they said that Thurston had no back teeth whereas there is a fine set in the jaws of the dead man. The other corpse, which is at the morgue, has been identified as that of Cohen, while the one shipped away to New York on Saturday was positively identified as Levison's.

Either one of the bodies which was identified as that of Graham and Wilmut was in reality Thurston's or else Thurston was not one of the victims of the fire. Where then is Thurston? Is the question puzzling the authorities and if he was burned which is his body?

"There is not the slightest possibility that the body which was buried here on Saturday and which we had forwarded from Toronto was not that of Jack Graham," said A. E. Silverwood, who made a special trip to Toronto to identify the charred remains of his former employee.

"The finding of the Masonic and Hermitage Club pins on the body in addition to other indisputable evidence makes it certain without a shadow of doubt, that there was no mistake in establishing the unfortunate man's identity. Cohen was a big man, and his powerful frame was identified by his brother. It is my opinion that Thurston was not a victim of the fire and that the remains thought to be his are those of some other person who was a guest at the ill-fated hotel."

JUNIOR W. A. RALLY AT CROWN HALL

Afternoon Session of Women's Auxiliary Was an Interesting One.

BISHOPSTOWE RECEPTION
Delegates Were Entertained by Bishop and Mrs. Williams.

Yesterday afternoon an interested audience filled Bishop Crown Hall, where the twenty-seventh annual gathering of the Women's Auxiliary of Huron Diocese is assembling this week. It was the occasion of the annual rally of the Junior W. A. branches of the city, and as the children, numbering more than 150, marched into the hall, each group singing a missionary hymn, it presented a pleasing and inspiring sight.

His Lordship Bishop Williams occupied the chair, and on the platform were Mrs. (Rev.) Sage, president of Huron Women's Auxiliary; Mrs. (Rev.) Bowen, secretary-treasurer of the diocesan Junior branches; Rev. J. R. S. Hunter, Thomas Rowe, and others. Bishop Williams addressed the children briefly, stating that he was pleased to see so many present. He deemed it a fine augury for the future missionary work that so many children were interested in missions, and congratulated those who had them in training. Some interesting answers were received from the children in response to questions on missionary subjects, propounded by the bishop.

Rev. Mr. Boyd, who for many years was a missionary in China, also spoke to the children, showing the map of China, and explaining what each was used for. Mr. Boyd asked the children to remember three things in their missionary endeavor, to pray, to give, and to work. Their contributions now were helping to support kindergartens in Japan, China and India, and hospital cots in a British Columbia hospital, one in Jerusalem, and were also being devoted towards the education of missionaries' children.

RECEPTION AT BISHOPSTOWE.
Last night a large reception was tendered the visiting delegates, and their hosts, and members of the local clergy, by Bishop and Mrs. Williams at Bishopstowe.

COMPENSATION BILL EFFECTIVE JAN. 1

Proposal of Amendment To Be Introduced—Second Reading Given.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Toronto, March 24.—Probably the most important step to the passing of a workman's compensation bill with up-to-date provisions is being taken in the Legislature today when the principle of the long expected measure was adopted, and the bill given a second reading.

Although both party leaders eschewed the introduction of party feeling into the discussion, W. S. Brewster (South Brant) sought to discredit the attitude of Mr. Rowell by declaring that he had not always entertained the high opinions of Sir William Meredith that he had expressed during the debate.

The Liberal Attitude.
J. C. Elliott, West Middlesex, said that Mr. Brewster had deliberately spoiled the harmony of the occasion by a paltry attempt to make political capital for himself and his party. In 1911, Mr. Rowell had criticised the work of Sir Wm. Meredith because the workers of the province were without an adequate compensation law, and the leader of the Opposition would have taken the same attitude on this occasion if the proposed measure was not before the House. Mr. Brewster has taken objection to the declaration in the Liberal handbook that the province wanted a compensation law, and that was the position the Liberals maintained now.

Mr. Lucas prefaced his motion for the second reading by having a resolution adopted to appropriate $100,000 of provincial labor for the above fund. He proposed to bring an amendment at a later stage setting January 1 next as the date when the act would come into force if it could not be done before by proclamation, while alterations would not impair its efficiency. He thought there was much in the argument of the railways that each might constitute a separate group. He commended the spirit manifested by the labor force, and the part of whose contribution was the above-mentioned of their common law rights, which in many cases would entitle them to receive less compensation under the new law than they could recover in the courts.

Immediate Action Needed.
Mr. Rowell asserted that the situation in the province today with regard to workmen's compensation was one that ought to be changed immediately. He regretted it would take so long to bring the act into force. He noted that the bill had departed in several important details from the draft of Sir William Meredith, and hoped that these alterations would not impair its efficiency. He thought there was much in the argument of the railways that each might constitute a separate group. He commended the spirit manifested by the labor force, and the part of whose contribution was the above-mentioned of their common law rights, which in many cases would entitle them to receive less compensation under the new law than they could recover in the courts.

SCHOOL PLANS GIVE BOARD WARM TIME

Question of Alleged Favoritism Starts "Fur Flying" Between Trustees.

Pertinent and pointed questions by Trustees relative to the recent competition conducted by the board of education for plans for a new eight-roomed school led to a special meeting of the board yesterday afternoon. Watt & Blackwell were finally appointed school architects for the balance of 1914, but this decision was not reached until all but one member of the building committee had participated in an "experience meeting" with the architects. The board then turned to the question of alleged irregularities on which Trustee Dr. Teasdale sought information in the questions he preferred. These alleged irregularities were all explained to the satisfaction of Dr. Teasdale, and he formally accepted the explanations offered by the members of the board. That closed the incident, and the recommendation of the committee regarding the appointment of Watt & Blackwell was unanimously adopted.

Move For Grant Only.
Dissatisfaction with the manner in which the contest was conducted was evinced early in the proceedings in a motion introduced by Trustee Dr. Shaw to the effect that the winners of the competition be granted a prize of $200 for their plans.

The apparent purpose of the motion was to leave the board free to appoint a permanent architect without regard to the results of the competition. Trustee John M. Gunn inquired if the spirit of the competition was to be thus destroyed, and appointed the winner of the competition school architect for the balance of the year.

Dr. Teasdale then rose to ask the series of questions which provoked a number of tense situations during the hour that followed.

He first asked if all the architects who competed were members of the Ontario Association of Architects, the president of which association was one of the judges to whom the plans were submitted.

"I can answer 'No' to that," replied Trustee Dr. Shaw.

Transparency of Signature.
Trustee Teasdale then drew the attention of the board to the winning plans which lay on a table close at hand. All of the plans submitted had been signed and a piece of paper pasted over the signatures. In the case of the prize-winning plans the paper used was so thin that the signature underneath could be readily distinguished.

"Is Watt & Blackwell the only firm of architects that competed that is a member of the association?" Dr. Teasdale asked. Nobody was prepared to answer this question.

"Is it true that McBride & Gilbert, after thanking the board for opening the competition, did not enter into it?" Trustee Teasdale continued.

Admits Withdrawal.
"That's true," replied L. H. Martyn, chairman of the building committee. "The reason they gave was that they were too busy."

"Is it true that some person in the board told them not to compete, as they would have the Collegiate Institute and that would be enough?"

Chairman Martyn replied that to his knowledge nothing of the sort had occurred.

Succession of Allibis.
Then began a succession of allibis on the part of all the members of the building committee. Chairman A. M. Hunt stated that he never saw one of the plans until they were opened Monday, and never talked to any architect in the city. Similar avowals were made by all the other members.

Trustee Rowe referred to the meeting as an "experience meeting" and stated that for his own part he had no conversation with any architect in the city except in a casual meeting with Mr. McBride, in which he asked him if he were putting in a plan. He replied that he was not, but did not say that he was too busy, but that there was not sufficient time remaining.

Resents "Insinuations."
Chairman L. H. Martyn resented hotly what he claimed to be an imputation of dishonesty in the question put by Dr. Teasdale.

"If Trustee Teasdale is imputing dishonest methods to me," he said, "he had better spit it out. This is the first time I have ever been in a meeting and had such slurs thrown at me."

No Intention of Slurs.
"I had no intention of insulting Mr. Martyn," Dr. Teasdale replied, "but when one hears these things one feels called upon to ask questions. These questions have all been answered without any display of heat except on the part of the chairman of the committee, and there is only one thing I can do as a member of the board, and that is to accept the statements of the members."

Chairman Hunt cleared the atmosphere by reminding the members that they were all businessmen and as such should have no hesitation in trusting each other. "I don't hesitate for a moment to say that everything about this competition is absolutely fair and above board," he said.
