MAMMOTH DEMONSTRATION IN QUEEN'S PARK SPLENDID PROGRAMME FOR LABOR DAYCommittee of Trades and Labor Council Have All in Readiness for the Big Event.History of the Day Which Is Acknowledged To Be Labor's Own.

Today is the day of all days for organized labor. Unions may have excursions and picnics and celebrations during the year, but on the first Monday in September all unions get together and celebrate their Magna Charta day, the day when they are recognized officially as one of the mighty forces in the country.

The day takes rank among the patriotic holidays of Canada. London for twelve years now has been celebrating Labor Day, and the celebrations have become greater each year, with the result that there is less out-of-town travel on this day than on any weekday holiday of the year.

The First Labor Day.

The first Labor Day celebration held in Canada was held in Toronto in 1885. It was a comparatively small affair, compared with the celebrations of later days, but it gave promise of better things to come. In 1886 Montreal fell into line with a large demonstration. In 1891 Quebec followed the other cities. At that time, while the celebrations were generally held on the first Monday in September, the day was not officially recognized as a holiday, and at times there was some difficulty between men and their employers regarding it.

Considerable agitation began to make the day a public holiday, and the matter was brought to the attention of the House of Commons. During all these years the labor movement had been making considerable headway—so much so, in fact, that the unions were recognized as a force great enough to receive official recognition.

Act Passed.

In 1894, during the regime of the

MR. H. B. ARCHER,
President of the London Trades and Labor Council.

late Sir John Thompson, an act was passed making the first Monday in September a national holiday for Canada. That act is still in force. In 1896 the cardinal principle of the labor agitation, at that time and since, the eight-hour day, was officially recognized by the Government by making the eight-hour day applicable to the Government printing bureau.

The first Labor Day celebration was held in London in 1895, the year after the act came in force. Every year since that demonstrations have been held, and all have been very successful. New and interesting features are introduced every year.

The labor unions are looking forward with much expectancy to the celebration today in Queen's Park.

Parade Dispensed With.

The parade, one of the great features of other years, has been cut out this year, as it was considered too expensive, as well as involving too much time of the men engaged in it. This year the whole day will be spent at the park, and there will be enough doing all the time to make the most pessimistic forget his troubles and be joyful. The committee in charge have been enterprising and enthusiastic, with the result that they have gathered together a programme that will prove a splendid attraction and put the London celebration in the forefront of Labor Day exercises.

If the day is bright, nothing will prevent the workmen of London enjoying the best demonstration yet.

A Splendid Programme.

A splendid vaudeville programme will be given, in which such artists as Bert Harvey, Leroy Kenney, Master Frank Clegg, Victor Lewis, the Imperial Quartet, besides a strong array of dancers, will participate. It was expected that Onelda, which was billed as an extra strong attraction, would be present, but a telegram was received on Friday announcing that it would be impossible for the lady to be present.

The wires were kept busy by the secretary, and he announces that Bert Walton, the padlock king, a very strong attraction, will positively appear, and will delight the audiences just as much as Onelda would have done. The vaudeville programme will be also given in the evening, and is sure to attract a large crowd. The Twenty-sixth Regiment Band will play both afternoon and evening.

The Day's Events.

The afternoon programme is as follows:

Boys' race, 15 years and under, 50 yards—1 $1, 2 75 cents, 3 50 cents.

Girls' race, 15 years and under, 50 yards—1 $1, 2 75 cents, 3 50 cents.

Men's race, 100 yards, open—1 $3, 2 $2, 3 $1.

Dropped Dead in a Room of Hotel;
Mr. Martin O'Meara Dies SuddenlyCalled by Death While Walking Through the House—Successful Hotelman.

Mr. Martin O'Meara, proprietor of the Grigg House, dropped dead in a room of the hotel Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock.

Mr. O'Meara's death came with awful suddenness.

He had been ill for the past three years, and most of the time had found it necessary to employ a nurse to care for him.

For some time, however, he had been feeling pretty well, and on Saturday morning his spirits ran very high. To his son and several other persons he remarked that he never felt better and he ate a hearty breakfast and dinner.

The latter meal was partaken of quite late, and it was close upon 3 o'clock when he left the dining-room.

He chatted with several people in the hallway and then, as was his usual custom, he took his cane and began a walk about the hotel to see if everything was all right.

Died Almost Instantly.

He stepped into one of the rooms to look about it and as he did so one of the employees heard him exclaim, and then fell onto the bed. He had evidently attempted to sit down when the weakness overtook him, and had died almost instantly.

Dr. George H. Wilson, of York street, was summoned and he declared death to have been caused by heart failure.

The late Mr. O'Meara was one of the best known and most successful hotelmen in Canada. He was about

78 years of age, and was born in Ennagh, Tipperary, Ireland.

When a young man he came to America, and for a time lived in Baltimore, Maryland. He then removed to

THE LATE MARTIN O'MEARA.

Labor's Hearty Invitation

"We wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks to the citizens of London and outside patrons who attended our last year's celebration and helped to make it such a splendid success, and at the same time extend to you, one and all, a most hearty and cordial invitation to be with us again this year. The intention and efforts of this year's committee in charge is to make Labor Day a home holiday for our citizens and as many visitors as possible from outside to enjoy the day with us.

"The unions decided that the parade should be dispensed with for this year in order to allow the vast army of workers to enjoy the entire day with their families and friends. Queen's Park is an ideal spot for such an outing, as has been arranged for Labor Day, and with the splendid list of sports and special attractions booked, our citizens will have no need to go out of the city for lack of entertainment at home, which has been too often the case on former holidays in London.

"Two trophies will be offered this year, the first contests for which were held last year. The Canadian Club donated a magnificent silver cup, which was won last year by a team of four members from the Cigar-makers' Union. The tankard donated by the Cigar-makers' Union was last year won by one of their own members. These will only be a small part of today's doings.

"In conclusion, we again extend to you a most earnest invitation to be with us on Labor Day, and enjoy the entertainment, which we feel confident will meet with your approval.

"CHAS. J. MEADEN, Chairman,

"JOS. L. GOODBURNE, Sec.-Treas."

Tragedy of a London Wedding Ring

A wedding ring has caused all kinds of trouble in this world since the invention of matrimony, and last week it caused considerable worry to a couple. The story has just leaked out.

The young persons were going to be married last Wednesday, and decided that last Sunday would be a good day for a rehearsal. Even matrimony to be successful must be rehearsed. So the leading actors and their assistants were assembled at the bride's home, and the ceremony was gone through with more or less success.

The little gold band was slipped over the prospective bride's little finger and she smiled as only a woman can smile when she has landed a man. Everything went as merry as the proverbial marriage bell until the groom came to the conclusion that he ought to have his ring back to finish off the real marriage the next week.

Ring Was Sticker.

Then the bride got busy. The ring failed to come off. The groom probably learned finger measuring in a correspondence school, and not in the old-fashioned method of holding hands. She tugged and she tore, but the ring was on to stay, and the poor bride did not know whether she was married or whether she would be married. She tugged at the ring, but it failed to move. It was tighter than a sailor on shore leave. Her finger began to swell and she worried.

The whole family tried to separate the girl from her jewelry but there was "nothing doing." Then she became genuinely alarmed. Her finger was twice its normal size, and there seemed no chance for the doctor to get it off. He tried manfully, but he failed no better than the rest.

He then cut the ring in two. The groom hurried out early the next morning and had it fixed.

The ring would bind any woman to him for life, so he wanted it fixed and real badly.

EXPRESS CRASHES
INTO FREIGHTA Fast Grand Trunk Train Wrecked Short Distance
West of Detroit.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1.—Grand Trunk passenger train No. 8, eastbound, which left Chicago at 11 o'clock this morning, collided head-on with a freight train this evening about fifteen miles from Detroit, near Birmingham, and a number of people are reported injured. At the office of the Grand Trunk here it is said no one was killed.

No. 8, the train wrecked near Detroit is one of the fastest trains on the Grand Trunk through here. It is due in London at 12:05, and makes but two or three stops between Sarnia and the Falls. No word has been received at the local office regarding the wreck. The advice the officials received at midnight was that the train was two hours late.

Labor Day Is Last Day of the Holidays

Today is the last of the school holidays, and tomorrow the "kiddies" will be packing their books, and with longing looks will turn towards the schools. Some of them will confess that they are glad the holidays are over, and that they want to go back to school, but the boy—the healthy boy—will turn up his nose, and declare that the holidays are too short. There is never enough time for play. The routine of school life does not appeal to him, and work is not in his line.

Tomorrow the little army of clean-frocked youngsters will march to greet their new teachers. The summer is the time for promotion, and there will be much wonderment on the morrow as to what the teacher will be like. Promotions are not too pleasant to the kiddies, and there is always sadness in the child's heart when he parts with his old friend, the old teacher.

There will be many changes in the staffs of the London schools. These changes were outlined last week in The Advertiser. There may be more. The teachers are anxious, as is Inspector Edwards also, that all the students be in their places on Tuesday morning. The work of reorganizing the different rooms is somewhat difficult at this season of the year, and it is very essential that the youngsters get away to a good start.

Filtration Out of Running Now; Flow of River Kills Its ChancesChairman Darch and Commissioner Saunders Give Their Views of the Situation.

Engineer Moore's statement regarding the flow of water in the Thames has caused a mild sensation.

It is well known to Londoners that Mr. Dabney H. Maury, the Peoria, Illinois, engineer, based all his calculations for a filtration plant for London on the assumption that the minimum flow of the north branch of the Thames was not less than 27,000,000 gallons per 24 hours.

The figures were credited to Mr. Moore by Maury, and now Mr. Moore says that the flow of the river as measured by him on Saturday last, does not reach 10,000,000 gallons per 24 hours.

The exact figures are about 9,200,000 gallons.

No Unlimited Supply.

The many citizens who had almost been convinced that the city should look to river water for a supply, on the ground that an unlimited quantity of water was to be had in the north branch, now realize that they have been misled.

Chairman Darch's Views.

Chairman Darch, of the water commission, was seen by The Advertiser, and he gave his views to the reporter. "What do you think about the measurement and quantity of water in the north branch," was asked. "As to the measurement," Mr. Darch replied, "I consider it fairly accurate, as the water was measured by a weir the same as at Komoka."

"As to quantity I must confess that there was only between 3 and 9 million gallons daily. True, this amount would supply a city twice the size of London, or added to our present Springbank supply, a city three times our present proportion, but I cannot look upon this amount as an everlasting supply. Besides, in order to procure this amount in the dry season, it would be necessary to take ALL the water in the river. This would mean (Continued on page eight.)

The Regiment Will Take 420 Men
To Bison City on Wednesday NextBand Will Muster About 50 Pieces—Regiment at Divine Service on Sunday.

All arrangements have been completed for the trip of the Seventh Regiment to Buffalo this week. The regiment has had several splendid drills during the past two weeks, and are in excellent shape. The officers are confident that the men will give a good account of themselves.

Orders have been issued to the men to parade at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, and that they must have everything in readiness. They are requested to turn in their tunics and caps Tuesday evening to be packed.

Four hundred and twenty men will be taken on the trip with a band of fifty musicians.

A church parade was announced for yesterday morning, but the rain spoiled it. Service was held in the armories. Rev. Mr. Perdue, assistant rector of St. Paul's Cathedral, preached to the men. There was a splendid turnout.

Insurance Man Alleged To Be Over $900 Back in AccountsFormer Members of Stratford Board of Education Jailed by a London Man.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Stratford, Sept. 2.—With his accounts in a considerable tangle, Mr. Albert Yates, local agent for the Sun Life Insurance Company and the Imperial Guarantee Company of Toronto, was apprehended Saturday night, and brought before P. M. O'Loane in the morning.

The information was laid by Mr. W. B. McGregor, of London, representing the Sun Life in the Forest City, who asked that Mr. Yates should explain the state of his financial affairs. Mr. Quinn, of Toronto, superintendent of the Imperial Guarantee Company, was also in the city representing his company.

It is said that Mr. Yates was somewhat inexperienced in business matters, and had not exercised care and attention with regard to the funds of the companies for whom he was the agent. He was remanded until Sept. 9, and as yet had not secured counsel.

Mr. Yates was for many years engaged in the woolen mills of Dutton & Sons, previous to his taking up the insurance some few months ago. He was a member of the public school board of 1905, he having, as labor candidate, defeated Mr. George McLagan.

To The Advertiser Mr. McGregor stated that Mr. Yates was behind in his accounts over $900. He had been given time to make good, Mr. McGregor said, but had failed to do so.

Detroit Young Lady Lost in London;
Visitor to the City DisappearsPolice Asked to Locate Miss De Pappi—Has Friends on Hyman Street.

One of the strangest cases of sudden disappearance that has come to light in this city in a long time took place last night when Miss Irene de Pappi, a handsome young Belgian woman, who was visiting friends on Hyman street, disappeared as if by magic and has not since been located.

Miss de Pappi came to this city to visit Miss Anna Watson, of 148 Hyman street, yesterday and intended to stay here during fair week.

Felt Indisposed.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Watson went down town to do some shopping, leaving their visitor home as she had stated that she felt slightly indisposed and did not care to accompany them.

When the couple returned home about ten o'clock Miss de Pappi was missing, but no alarm was felt at her absence for some time as her hosts thought that she might have merely decided to take a short stroll before retiring. When she had not returned up to midnight, however, they became alarmed and notified the police of the occurrence, besides telephoning the station master at the G. T. R. station.

No Word As Yet.

Not a word has been heard of the missing girl since her disappearance, however, and her friends and relatives in Detroit have been notified of the incident.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson have no theory to advance for the girl's disappearance except that she might have taken a walk out in the country and have become lost in the darkness. Even then, though she would have certainly found her way back to the city today some time. The case is a most puzzling one and the police refuse to talk on the subject at all.

The theory of premeditated flight is set at rest by the fact that Miss de Pappi did not take with her any clothes other than what she wore.

The Watsons and Miss de Pappi had been friends for a long time and they are greatly worried over her disappearance.

LITTLE REGGIE REID.

The young son of Mr. Ed. Reid, of Colborne street, who was taken away by a woman whom the police are looking for.

ESTIMABLE LONDON
LADY PASSES AWAYVery Sudden Death of Mrs. William Gurd, of 417 Princess Avenue.

In the death of Mrs. Mary Gurd, who died suddenly at Port Stanley yesterday, London loses one of its eldest and most respected ladies.

Mrs. Gurd had been visiting for a few days at the Port, and showed no signs of illness until yesterday morning, when she was suddenly taken ill. Medical assistance was at once called, but the lady expired shortly before noon.

Mrs. Gurd is survived by her husband, Mr. William Gurd, the local gunsmith; three children, Florence and Emma, at home, and Walter, of this city; two sisters, Mrs. William Skinner, wife of ex-Ald. William Skinner, and Mrs. Thelma Burgess, also of this city; and a brother, Professor William Saunders, of the Ottawa experimental farm.

The late lady was a devout church worker, and for years had been a member of the First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Gurd was a daughter of the late William Saunders, of this city, was born in Crediton, Devonshire, England, and came to this city in 1849. For a number of years she has resided at 417 Princess avenue.

The funeral, which will be private, will take place from the family residence on Tuesdays to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Three Italians of Title Killed at Auto Races

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Rome, Sept. 1.—The automobile race for the Florio cup at Brescia today will long be remembered. It resulted directly or indirectly in the death of three prominent persons, two of them men of title and the serious injury of two other persons. The accidents were the worst that have occurred in the history of motor racing. The first accident occurred last night. The Marquis Pallavicino was driving his auto from Rome to Brescia to witness the race. With him in the car were Signor Malvano, an eminent lawyer, a chauffeur, and a mechanic. Near Magenta, while the car was crossing the railway tracks a train suddenly dashed down at full speed into the side of the car. All the occupants of the car were thrown out on the track. Signor Malvano died immediately of a broken skull. The Marquis Pallavicino died in the hospital at Magenta this morning of his injuries. The chauffeur was dangerously injured. The mechanic was the only one of the occupants of the car who escaped unhurt.

During the race itself at Brescia, Baron de Martino was entering the fourth round when his car suddenly capsized, pinning the baron underneath. The crowd witnessing this race was terrified for a moment, but men soon rushed to the rescue. It was too late, however, for the baron was already dead. The accident was apparently due to some sudden damage to the brake of the car which caused the driver to lose control of the machine, which blundered into the edge of the street where it was overturned and fell into a small ditch. The mechanic of the car was also seriously hurt.

The Florio cup was won by Minola, driving an Isotta-Fraschini car made in Italy.

The fans swarmed upon the field in hordes and only the efforts of a couple of policemen and High Constable Hughes and two of his assistants prevented hostilities from reaching the dangerous point.

Twirler Thompson had his revenge yesterday. On several occasions in the past the aforesaid slab expert has been accredited with defeats because of erratic support. Saturday the Bakers played like champions and as a result Brer Thompson slaughtered the Sippites with a coat of kalsomine, three notches deep.

Tommy Hyttenrauch was on the rubber for the vanquished ones, and although rather liberal in dealing out passes he kept the hits scattered well enough to win at least nine out of every ten games with a team that could hit, behind him.

Errors were responsible for at least two of the three runs the Bakers annexed, and the most flagrant offender was Bobby Mines. One time Bob's great right whip got working overtime, and on another occasion he fumbled a throw to the plate that was none of the best.

According to all the established precedents of the game the Bakers should have scored in the opening session. They didn't.

Beaton walked and stole second. Wagner was out at first and Beaton went up one.

Tommy drew a pass and purloined a sack. Gregory separated the balmy thrice. Ward was given a ride and the stations were full. Wanless missed three nice ones and the bunch died on the sacks.

It was one, two, three for the Rockets until the sixth, but the Bakers started something off the third time up. Tozer dropped one in front of the plate and Mines heaved it out to right field in trying to get him at first, the runner going around to third. Gregory placed a beautiful double-sacker and the score tallied one for the Bakers. Ward and Wagner fanned, and Wanless was out at first.

The Rockets made a sprint in the sixth but it was no use. Maitland poked for one, but was nailed at second. Hyttenrauch slashed the atmosphere. Arthur connected for a single and was out at second on a little bluff from De-wan's stick. After that the Sippites placed but one man on first and went out in regular order. Perkins, in the eighth, pulled off one of those clever double plays at second for which he is becoming noted, and was accorded several hands. Gillett hit. Gibson poked to Perk, who tagged the first named runner and doubled Gib at first. From the third to the seventh the Bakers were dangerous but once, and but nine men faced wee Tommy in the three innings.

Session seven, however, was all to the merry-for-the dough-mixers, and they hit the glad going twice.

Pop Stein and Perkins singled, and both went up a notch on Thompson's sacrifice. Beaton hit. Wagner led one down to Dunn, who threw rather low to the plate to head off Stein and Mines juggled the ball, then dropped it. Tozer fanned. Hyttenrauch then walked Gregory and forced a run. Ward poked to Dunn and Wagner was nailed at third.

All hands went down in order after that, and beyond a sensational running catch by Maitland out in the right garden, there was nothing worthy of comment.

The Bakers put up as pretty a contest as has ever been witnessed in this city, and had they played the same kind of ball, even half the season, would now undoubtedly be fighting it out with the leaders for first place.

Both twirlers and their teams were frequently applauded for their brilliant work and the contest voted excellent.

Considers Kelly the Greatest Ball Player

Joseph Quinn, the St. Louis ball-player who has been on nine championship baseball teams and finished his major league career with the local club in 1901, considers Mike Kelly, of "Slide Kelly, slide" fame, the greatest player the game has ever known, says the Washington Post. Quinn played with Kelly in the old Boston league and Brotherhood clubs and had a good chance to study him at close range. Since then Quinn played three seasons with McGraw, Keeler, Jennings and Kelley, on the Baltimore team which qualifies him to draw comparisons between Mike Kelly, the champion ball-player of a decade ago, and Billy Keeler, Joe Kelley and Johnny McGraw, three of the most up-to-date men in the game today.

Quinn played with three champion Boston teams. He was also a member of the St. Louis Union when the Lucas-Turner team won the Union association pennant in 1884. Later on he played with the champion Des Moines club, of the Western league, and then wore the uniform of Duluth, Minn., team the year this club won the championship of the Northwest. Quinn retired from the diamond only a year ago, and is still in good physical condition, although more than 40. He is now in the undertaking business.

"Baseball has not advanced much, except in one respect, since the days of Anson's great Chicago White Stockings," said Joe the other day. "Teams play together better today than they did then—that is to say, the club practice team-work today, but none of them play together any better than Anson's champions. As for individual stars, there is no man in the game today who can be said to have anything on Mike Kelly when he was at his best."

The Baltimore club is credited with perfecting the hit-and-run play, when, as a matter of fact, the Chicago White Stockings pulled off that play as perfectly as the Orioles once before McGraw, Keeler, Kelley and Jennings were heard of. Kelley and Arlie Iatham had the bunt down to perfection in the latter '80's. Of course, there are more players proficient at this play today which makes third base a much more difficult position to play, but the old saying that there is nothing new under the sun, its baseball, to my way of thinking.

"Kelly was a catcher, and right fielder on the Chicago team, but he could play any position on the diamond. He had no equal in his days as a baserunner and runner-getter. Kelley always hit between .325 and .350. He invented the hit-and-run play by placing the ball when at the bat to assist the baserunner. Like the Batmobiles, the Chicago Whites would have their man on first, feint the opposing infield into showing its hand by having the baserunner make a bluff to steal on the first ball pitched."

right swing, stepped back, put on his coat, carefully parted his hair again, took his hat and cane, and walked away from there.

Mike? Oh, they played siphons on Mike's head until he came to, five or ten minutes later, and then they helped him out to the sidewalk and sent him home in a sea-going hack.

That made Kelly's reputation. Soon afterward he entered the amateur championships, won the lightweight title, and started his ring career. After cleaning out the amateurs under the Olympic Club colors, Jimmy was persuaded to turn professional, and his fighting career has been remarkably successful. One thing that Jimmy occasionally mentions with pride is the fact that he is the only professional fighter allowed to hold a membership in the Olympic Club. Jim still holds his, and is one of the most popular members in the whole organization.

Britt is wealthy and well educated. He can quote Shakespeare like Harry Stevens—and that's going some.

When Jim fights Gans there will be hair-raising. Gans was rooting for Britt in the Nelson fight, but that is no indication of friendship. Gans simply wanted to see some one hang it on the Dane. When he faces Britt himself it will be all different.

It is customary to make light of Britt's fights on the ground that he is a "native son." But all good judges who have seen Britt in any of his great ring battles agree that he is a remarkable boxer, a game, aggressive fighter and a tough, wiry fighting proposition all around. I'm not predicting defeat for Gans, but the great negro's time must come, and Britt is as likely a contender for his title as any now on the pugilistic map.

His team would likely be called upon to meet the best Toronto, Brantford and Hamilton could produce, and by the time those contests were finished it would be time to lay away baseball paraphernalia for the season.

Boxing. GUELPH DEFEATS ST. MARYS. Guelph, Aug. 31.—In one of the finest games of lacrosse that Guelph ever witnessed the Shamrocks won the round from St. Marys this afternoon. The score was 4 to 4, but as the local boys in green had a lead of five goals in the match played at St. Marys they were now, after the round, towards the coveted championship. Both teams were out to win, and as a consequence the play was most of the time superb, and as the score shows, the teams put up an even game. Play was pretty rough and the umpire had his hands full penalizing the players, the bench being decorated most of the time. There was some talk of a protest against St. Marys using players not qualified, but it will not now be necessary. The boys from the stone town certainly played a great game and for a long time seemed to have things all their own way, but the Shamrocks rallied to old-time form and pulled the game out of danger. Guelph tallied one in the first quarter, and in the second St. Marys made things look dangerous by netting three. In the third the Shamrocks rallied and by great play scored two more, and in the last quarter, both got another one. That ended things.

While not busy training with some fighter, Jimmy kept books for his father, who was a prosperous contracting plumber. And when business called on him, James went out of an evening and picked a fight with someone. He wasn't particular whom he fought. On one occasion he entered the Richelieu, a corner cafe, and attracted the attention of big Mike Collins, an Olympic Club heavyweight, who afterward went away as boxing instructor aboard a Chilean training ship.

"Aw, look at the dude," said Mike. "Do you refer to me?" asked Britt. Mike haw-hawed. James took off his dinky little overcoat, folded it carefully and laid it on the bar. He placed his hat and his cane beside the coat, and his fingers through his long hair to make sure it was correctly parted, and walked over to Mike.

"Better take off your coat," said James.

Mike haw-hawed again at the ridiculous idea of being attacked by this small "dude." He stepped away from the bar and put on his hands in burlesque imitation of a boxer. Without wasting another word Britt jumped up, reaching big Mike's chin with a vicious today who can be said to have anything on Mike Kelly when he was at his best.

The Baltimore club is credited with perfecting the hit-and-run play, when, as a matter of fact, the Chicago White Stockings pulled off that play as perfectly as the Orioles once before McGraw, Keeler, Kelley and Jennings were heard of. Kelley and Arlie Iatham had the bunt down to perfection in the latter '80's. Of course, there are more players proficient at this play today which makes third base a much more difficult position to play, but the old saying that there is nothing new under the sun, its baseball, to my way of thinking.

"Kelly was a catcher, and right fielder on the Chicago team, but he could play any position on the diamond. He had no equal in his days as a baserunner and runner-getter. Kelley always hit between .325 and .350. He invented the hit-and-run play by placing the ball when at the bat to assist the baserunner. Like the Batmobiles, the Chicago Whites would have their man on first, feint the opposing infield into showing its hand by having the baserunner make a bluff to steal on the first ball pitched."

"The batsman would take a strike in order to help the play along. This trick would show who was going to cover the bag. If it was the second baseman's duty to take the throw Kelley would try to place a hit through right field. On the other hand, if the first baseman covered the bag, Kelley would aim to hit through second and third. BURNS EARNED

Tommy Burns, the heavy-weight champion, is another of the wise pugilists who are saving their money for a rainy day. During the last twelve months Tommy has fought five battles, which, combined with his share of the receipts, his bets on these battles, and his management of George Memsic, the Chicago fighter, and bets on his chances, has netted him just $51,700.

He made his money as follows: Draw with Jack "Twin" Sullivan, at Los Angeles, $3,500; knocked out Jim Flynn, Los Angeles, $3,500; first battle with Jack O'Brien, Los Angeles, a draw, $6,000; second battle with Jack O'Brien, which he won, $15,000; beat Bill Squires at Colma, $3,000; from bet on battle with Jim Flynn, $1,200; bet and percentage for management of George Memsic, $2,500; first battle with Jack O'Brien, Los Angeles, a draw, $6,000; return battle at Milwaukee for bet and management, $3,500; same for Memsic and Montana Kid at Los Angeles, $2,000; let on match with Bill Squires, $5,800. Grand total, $51,700.

LACROSSE.

Now that big Al Kaufman, the California heavy-weight, has beaten Mike Schreck, the Cincinnati pugilist, the indications are that Kaufman and Bill Squires, the Australian fighter, will be matched to battle for twenty rounds before one of the clubs in San Francisco the latter part of next month. Jim Cofforth is anxious to have Squires box Kaufman, and it is almost certain that Billy Delaney, manager of Kaufman, will consent to the match.

Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt's Opinion of Husband, Told by Miss Darrell.

New York, Aug. 31.—Counsel for Miss Minerva Vanderbilt, who is seeking to have her father, Mr. Edward Ward Vanderbilt, declared incompetent because of the free hand with which he has given houses and property to his bride of last June, Mrs. May Pepper-Vanderbilt, the spokeswoman of Brooklyn, closed their case yesterday, after Mr. Vanderbilt's attorneys had finished their cross-examination of the mysterious young woman in blue, in the county court, Brooklyn.

Though still preserving a good deal of mystery about herself, the blue-gowned young woman was compelled to reveal that she is Caroline Boynton Darrell. She gave her address as No. 49 East Ninth street, Manhattan, which is a lofty building containing several fine manufacturing firms. She was not known there.

The cross-examination was conducted by former Judge Griffing. He seemed much pleased when he brought out that at one of Mrs. Pepper's parties the witness had recited "Belinda Blonde." Miss Darrell witness said there were fifty or sixty persons in the house at the time, but that they were all in the basement at the time of the kissing.

In writing to Bright Eyes the witness had always addressed the letters care of Mrs. Pepper. She declared that she was investigating spiritualism, and was not a believer in it. She was simply gathering materials for a book, and got more than she had dreamed of getting.

"Mrs. Pepper is not a spiritualist," said Miss Darrell, before leaving the room, "but declares that she has psychic powers. Her power of intuition is rarely developed."

Only Her Singing Teacher.

Miss Darrell was asked if she had gone abroad in the company of a man. She replied indignantly that her only companion was her singing teacher. She had spent several months

English Journalist Writes of London; Thinks the Forest City Is Beautiful

Mr. Joseph Cooke Gives His Impressions in the Sheffield Independent.

Mr. Joseph Cooke, of the Sheffield Independent, who recently visited London in company with the British Journalists, who were touring Canada, in a column article in his paper gave his impressions of his visit to this city.

Mr. Cooke says: The mayor of London, Ont. (Mr. J. C. Judd), with most of the members of his municipal council, and the president of the board of trade (Ald. Stevely), were on the platform of London city station to welcome the visitors, and although we were an hour and a half late owing to the breakdown of the engine, our London hosts were all smiles and welcome.

We were conducted to the London Club, where a sumptuous six-course dinner awaited us, and about forty of the principal businessmen of the city sat down with us. These included Senator Coffey, editor and proprietor of the Catholic Record, Ald. Neil Cooper, chairman of the reception committee, Postmaster Cameron and Post. office Inspector Dr. Campbell, who had both previous to their appointments occupied positions on the newspaper press, Ald. White, Mr. Miller, Mr. C. Doe, and others.

Tried to Cross THE WRONG BRIDGE

The straight and narrow path is a good one for the average man but a farmer last night got mixed in his paths and there was some trouble and a lot of fun.

At 10 o'clock last night he drove his faithful horse down York street. There was the road, and there was also the street railway bridge. He had offered gone home on the road, but apparently looking for variety and excitement he thought he would take the street railway bridge, and he turned his horse that way. The horse was willing, but in a few moments there was some excitement. The animal took a couple of steps and then his legs went down into the openings between the ties. He tried his best to extricate himself himself, but all he did was tear off a few shoes, and smash the harness.

A crowd soon collected, and the horse seeing that his efforts were not appreciated, settled down into a calm and dignified inactivity, waiting for the worst.

At last the buggy was taken away, and Mr. B. Edminster, and Mr. W. Stinchcombe proceeded to hoist the horse from his sad plight.

They could not locate Carrie Nator and her little hatchet, so they borrowed a saw from the London Electric Company and saved the horse's way to freedom.

The ties were cut sufficiently to allow the animal to get his legs up, and it was then an easy matter to free him. He was turned over to his owner who fixed up his rigging, and proceeded to take his burden home.

The street cars were tied up for fully half an hour, all of which did not worry the horse. The driver was also little troubled.

CHARGED WITH INSANITY

Farmer Jackson Said to Have Threatened His Children.

Thomas Jackson, the London Township farmer who recently figured in the balky horse episode which was heard in the police court, was arrested Saturday by a constable on a charge of insanity.

The unfortunate man has been confined in the asylum before, and was discharged as cured. Last night, it is alleged, that he threatened to take the lives of his children, eight in number.

Jackson was arrested on the market square on Saturday, where he was acting queerly, and declaring to a crowd which had gathered that he had never owned a balky horse, and never would.

AMOS BRADFORD DEAD

Was a Former Well-Known Businessman of London.

Mr. Amos Bradford, a well-known confectioner, of this city, died Saturday at his late residence, 521 Dundas street, after a short illness. He was widely known and highly respected by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

The late Mr. Bradford was born in Cambridgeshire, England, in 1840. When a boy of 14 years of age, he came to Canada, settling in London, where he had resided ever since. He entered the confectionery business in 1875, and continued in that business until a few years ago, when he entered the employ of the McCormick Company where he has been employed ever since.

He is survived by a widow and eight children, Mrs. Alfred A. Lury, Buffalo; Walter Bradford, Kankakee, Ill.; Mrs. S. Southcott, this city; Mrs. A. D. Hodgins, Toronto; Harry T. Bradford, Weston, Ont.; William A. Bradford, Buffalo; Mrs. M. Howitt, Cleveland, and Miss Bertha L. Bradford at home.

The time for the funeral has not yet been decided; it will be private.

SIX HUNDRED JOBLESS.

Marseilles, France, Aug. 31.—Six hundred Italian workmen, who have arrived here expecting to go to Colon, and obtain employment on the Panama Canal, will not proceed to the isthmus as their services are not needed, the canal authorities having discontinued hiring labor abroad, the 42,000 men now at work being sufficient for the present.

THIRTY AUTOS BURNED.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Thirty automobiles today were destroyed in a fire in Croft Brothers garage in Evanston avenue, following an explosion of gasoline in a tank on one of the machines. The automobiles and garage were valued at about $100,000, and were insured.

HER BUNKERS AFIRE.

Manila, Aug. 31.—The British steamer Fitzclareance, which has arrived here from Norfolk, Va., reports that her bunkers were on fire during the voyage and that 500 tons of coal were more or less burned. Her cargo was not damaged, but some of the interior frames were bent.

NEW PHASES OF THE WATER PROBLEM.

The water controversy derives a fresh interest from the decision of the commissioners to separate the two distinct features of the Komoka scheme, and the evidence that the north branch of the Thames is not to be relied on as a permanent source of supply.

Engineer Maury's estimate of a flow of 27,000,000 gallons daily in the north branch was based upon measurements taken by local officials. These measurements were no doubt accurate at the time, but the present unusually long spell of dry weather has upset previous calculations. It is no one's fault that the advocates of river filtration have been misled, and they will probably see that the situation has been changed by the undeniable proofs of the shrinkage of the volume of water in the north branch. The contingency of a drought, such as this part of Ontario has been passing through, must be reckoned with in any plan for using river water, especially as the Maury scheme has been put forward as a final solution of the problem. The present flow of 9,200,000 gallons in the north branch will be considerably less in a month's time if generous rainfalls do not take place meanwhile. In a few years there may be less water than it proposed to collect in the vicinity of Komoka.

These facts have a bearing upon the high-pressure scheme, as well as upon the Maury scheme. There is apparently twice as much water in the south as in the north branch. There are other arguments for drawing upon the south branch for the high-pressure service. The main from a pumping station on the south branch would cover the whole factory district of the east end. In his instructive letter in Saturday's Advertiser, Mr. John White, president of the Rolling Mills Company, says that his firm is pumping millions of gallons from the south branch, and finds the water excellent for industrial uses. "I believe we use more river water than any five firms in the city put together," he says, "and we know something of the value of it for manufacturing purposes."

Mr. White's view is the one which is steadily gaining favor among citizens who have given thought to the question. He strongly believes that the city should preserve spring water for drinking and culinary purposes, and should use river water for fire protection, for factories, and for other than domestic requirements. He points out that high-pressure system, using river water, would afford the only adequate fire protection and would relieve the spring water system of a great many demands that are made upon it at present.

The water commissioners now appear to recognize that the problem is divided into these two parts, and that the matter of fire protection stands on a separate footing from that of the mere increase of the water supply.
They will submit the Komoka scheme in two sections, and if they are wise they will submit only the first section.
It provides for an expenditure of $393,500, as follows:

Land	$ 15,000
Collecting conduits	20,000
Pumping basin	1,000
Additional mains	45,000
Pumping station, 3,000,000 gal- lons capacity	47,500
18-inch main to Springbank ..	150,000
24-inch main to city	115,000

Total $393,500
According to the commissioners' estimates this expenditure will add 3-000,000 gallons daily to the supply of spring water available for distribution in the city. It will considerably increase the pressure, and place the city in a better position as regards fire protection than it has been for some years, though it will not be sufficient to obtain a reduction in insurance rates.

The second section of the Komoka scheme calls for an expenditure of $182,500, in the Komoka district, as follows:

Reservoir	$ 90,000
Land	15,000
Dam	50,000
Power-house	10,000
Pumping machinery	17,500

Total $182,500
This expenditure is designed to increase the water pressure, and store a sufficient supply for fire-fighting purposes, but we contend that infinitely better results at less expense would be secured by substituting an independent high-pressure system, using river water. With an independent system, the cost of the first section of the Komoka scheme could be greatly reduced. It would not be necessary to construct a 24-inch main from Springbank to the city limits. An 18-inch main would meet all requirements at a saving of at least $30,000. Again, with the independent system it would not be necessary to spend $45,000 on new mains within the city limits to carry spring water. As for fire protection, there is no comparison between the independent and the Kom-oka schemes. The latter would furnish a maximum pressure of only 75 or 80 pounds at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets. Engineer Maury says it might be considerably less.

The independent system would give a pressure of 200 pounds at the hydramants, which is the pressure asked for by the Fire Underwriters' Association. It would bring also a reduction of 25 per cent in the insurance rates.
No matter how the rates varied, they would be 25 per cent less with a high-pressure service than without one.
The surtax which would be levied upon the property-owners in the district protected by the independent system would make the latter scheme a cheaper one for the body of the ratepayers than the second part of the Komoka scheme. It will be surprising if the commissioners do not realize this before the question is finally disposed of.

LONG-LIVED PRIME MINISTERS.

[From Tit-Bits.]
The fact that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, who will celebrate his seventy-first birthday in September, is not only Premier, but also father of the House of Commons, invites comparison with the ages of other Prime Ministers of the past. Mr. Balfour will only be 59 on the 26th of the present month, at which age, curiously enough,
Mr. Gladstone first succeeded to the Premiership. It was not until nearly thirty years later that the "G. O. M." conclusion was broken and the record which has been held by Lord Sid-mouth, who died at the age of more than 88.

Other octogenarian Premiers were Earl Russell, who nearly completed his eighty-sixth year, and to the last strenuously advocated popular measures, in spite of the nickname of "Finally Jack" which was bestowed upon him, and his declaration in favor of "resting and be thankful"; the Iron Duke, who lived to celebrate his eighty-second birthday, and Lord Palmerston and Earl Grey, who both died at 81.

Of the other Prime Ministers of the Queen who are dead, Disraeli's age was 77, the Earl of Aberdeen's 76, the Earl of Derby's 70, Viscount Melbourne's 69, and Sir Robert Peel's 62.

A LEAN YEAR.

The Weekly Sun, which in matters of the sort is very well informed, declares that this will be a lean year for Ontario farmers, but that after a long succession of good seasons they can stand one. The Globe's crop reporter reached the same conclusion while on his rounds recently.
It is well that the public should know the facts in regard to so important a matter, and the truth seems to be that hay and oats are about as poor a crop as we have reaped in Ontario in many years. This will greatly increase the cost of dairying.

WORRIED.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]
"Why do you worry so? You ought to be one of the happiest persons in the world. You own half a dozen automobiles; you have a piano in nearly every room of your palatial home; you have stocks and bonds piled up in cords;
you—"

"Yes, confound it! somebody has put the tax assessors on!"

HIS LIMIT.

[St. Louis Star.]
In a western Kentucky town Ben Watson had saved the life of Myra Underhill. Miss Underhill had been overturned in a creek with a swift current, and the act of young Watson was a very heroic one. He had saved the life of the girl after she was sinking for the third time, and had barely strength to pull himself and the young woman to shallow water.
The news soon spread, and Ben Watson was hailed as the real, live hero of the village.

Aunt Tabby Watson, the oldest woman in the village, the mother of the little colony, was loud in praise of the heroism of the young man, and at once declared that Ben and Myra must get married. "Ben saved Mary's life," she said, "and now they must marry and be happy ever afterward, just as they do in the story books."

But Ben demurred; the arrangement did not suit him. "Myra, Ben?" said the old lady. "She is yours, and you must have a wedding."
"She is a nice girl, all right," replied Ben, "but I don't think we ought married. Seems to me," he went on,
"I have done enough for Myra."

REQUIESCAT.

[Oscar Wilde.]
Tread lightly, she is near.
Under the snow;
Speak gently, she can hear
The daisies grow.

All her bright golden hair
Tarnished with rust;
She that was young and fair Fallen to dust.

Milk-like, white as snow,
She hardly knew
She was a woman, so Sweetly she grew.

Coffin-board, heavy stone
Lie on her breast;
I vex my heart alone—
She is at rest.

Peace, peace, she cannot hear Lyre or sonnet;
All my life's buried there—
Keep earth upon it!

A CAREFUL VERDICT.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]
The most popular men in a Nevada town got into difficulty with a respectable woman for a long time the terror of the place—and proceeded to "do him up" in a manner entirely satisfactory to the community at large. It becoming necessary, however, to vindicate the majesty of the law, the offender was brought up for trial on the charge of assault with intent to kill. When the jury had been out about two minutes they returned.

"Well, gentlemen of the jury," asked the judge in a familiar, off-hand way, "what have you to say?"
"If it please the court," responded the foreman, "we, the jury, find that the prisoner is not guilty of striking with intent to kill, but simply to paralyze, and he does it."

LAST WINTER IN THE WEST.

[Mack, in Saturday Night.]
In one town, on entering a barber's shop,
I was recognized as a former patron of a Toronto shop in which he was employed.
On asking him if he felt the cold last winter, he countered by inquiring whether I intended going back to Toronto. Assured of that, he said: "Cold isn't the word, mister. Anyway, the word 'cold' don't mean nothing to you. But we don't talk about it here. Say, they're all members of a secret society, but here, flutter out oath to fan themselves and mop the sweat of their foreheads whenever a stranger comes near them in winter time. Last winter the walking was bad between here and Toronto, and so I praised the weather louder than any of them; but now I've got enough money saved up to pay my freight back to the banana belt, and I'm going to start telling the truth about last winter."

A SIGN.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]
When a girl's mother cries at the wedding it is a sign that she has been told concerning the age of the bride.

WOMAN'S STANDARD IN FRANCE.

[London (England) Chronicle.]
Though the French woman's position is in many respects legally a poor one, still by virtue of her own commanding talent and power of attraction it is in actual fact often a good one. The average French husband, in law his wife's lord and master, is generally her admiring and obedient subject. Everyone knows the deference and devotion of the French son to his mother, which is a cult in France. In their homes, then, the French women are queens, but, as one of them cleverly said the other day, they do not wish to hold their sovereignty by divine right only.
Still, even in the region of man-made laws,
the French woman has some legal advantages denied her English sister. She can practice in the law courts when she has qualified, and she is not put under such unequal divorce laws as is the English woman. On the other hand, she has not married woman's property act give her a right to her own property. The Frenchman has a right even to his wife's earnings. One advance in this direction was made, however, in a law passed in 1881, which gave a married woman the right to start a banking account in her own name, and even draw from it without first obtaining her husband's permission.

SUNDAY MORNING IN EARLY AUTUMN.

[S. E. Kiser.]
A sense of sadness fills the air,
The fields that lately were so green
Are touched with yellow here and there,
A haze lies over all the scene.
The first faint hues of autumn stain
The leaves that shall be soon fluted down,
And far away across the plain
A cross gleams o'er the resting town.

The vines are bare where roses spread
Their fragrance, and the daisies are long;
The apple's cheek is turning red,
The lark has weariest of its song.
But slender streams are winding where Mad rivers lately roared away;
The hills once green begin to wear
Their autumn hoods of sober gray.

The yellow stubbles seem to sigh
For wealth that once belonged to them,
And every zephyr passing by
Is singing summer's requiem.
The world appears to mourn the loss
Of joys that were too quickly done,
But o'er the distant town a cross
Is gleaming golden in the sun.

GRACEFUL LINES.

[Pittsburgh Dispatch.]
"Women should be all curls and curves," says Mrs. Anna Bradley. There's no reason why the shortest, curliest, and curves are cheap enough these days.

SO HAPPY.

[Illustrated Bites.]
"I am so happy," she said, "Ever since my engagement to Charlie the whole world seems different. I do not seem to be in dull, prosaic England, but—"
"Lapland," suggested her little brother, who was doing his geography lesson.

[Sam Kiser.]
She was a pretty little nurse and he a gray old millionaire;
They brought him to his ward because his system was in bad repair.

Day after day she came and went with footsteps light as flakes of snow;
With cool, soft hands she touched his brow, his every wish she seemed to know.

If he had been a dimpled babe and she his mother, young and glad,
His treatment never could have been more tender than the care he had.

Her eyes were deep and dark and soft, her face an artist would have praised; Whenever she went tripping past the sick ones turned and gladly gazed.

The rich man's ill grew less and less, and so the doctors came one day And looked him over and declared 'twas time for him to go away.

He rose and went, well pleased, indeed, that he was once more well and strong;
But strange to say, he didn't take the pretty nurse along.

P. S.—Perhaps it ought to be explained that he—the grizzled millionaire—was married when he put him in the pretty little nurse's care.

THE MISTAKE OF A LATE DINER.

[Saturday Night.]
Three Toronto men were strolling home early in the morning, not long ago, after a dinner. The row of three plug hats swayed from side to side, but the man in the middle was the only one very steady. At the regular stopping place the end men took the middle man up to the steps to his house, leaned him against the doorpost, rang the bell, and, when at a decent distance, watched for development.
Soon the door opened, a hand shot forth, and their friend was drawn in. With a sigh of relief the two were about to go on home, when they heard a noise, and, turning, saw their friend come bounding down the steps of his home and into the gutter.
As the door slammed shut they went back to their uneasy companion. Raising him to his feet, they asked what had happened.
In a thick voice he answered: "I got to tell ye—boys—I don't live here—any more."

STAMPEDE TO MICHIPICOTEN

Railway Discovery Starts a Rush That Rivals the Cobalt.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Aug. 31.—A stampede to Michipicoten Island, rivalling the rush to Cobalt, is promised by the disclosures made in the Soo today by Gordon L. Michael, a well-known prospector. Michael, who has been quietly prospecting in the island for some months, has returned to the Soo with a large number of samples showing an extraordinary richness in native copper and silver. He has staked out three claims on the island, and says that it will not be long until the place is swarming with men endeavoring to secure locations.

It has been known for some time that native copper existed on the island, but it was the general impression that the place was practically covered by the old patents and leases, which closed the country to prospectors.
While in Toronto in February, Michael was surprised to learn that nearly three-fourths of the territory was vested in the crown, and open for staking under the Miners' Act.
Michael, who has always had great faith in the island, immediately started operations, which have exceeded his most sanguine expectations. Prof.
Wilmot, one of the best mining experts in Ontario, had the following to say after examining the samples: "If the samples had come from Cobalt there would have been a stampede at once.
The specimens of silver are as good as any that have come from the Montreal section. Michipicoten Island is geologically like the Keweenaw Peninsula, and while very little prospecting has been done on the island, there is good reason to believe that native copper deposits similar to those at Calumet, may be found there."

"Years ago nickel and cobalt minerals were reported from the island, also that the association of nickel, cobalt and silver is similar to that of the Cobalt district. It is generally assumed that the diabase intrusions of the Cobalt are of the same age as the similar intrusions at Michipicoten island."
The samples would make a seasoned Cobaltier envious. They show native silver, alloyed with copper, not float, but samples taken from mineral in place and knocked out with a pick.
The best native copper discoveries are in a basic rock, containing both iron and lime, this material forming a valuable flux of Algoma.

BEGGAR KING BANQUETS MATES

Feasts in Cemetery, Using Grave- stones in the Place of Tables.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—Ivan Stepanoff, the king of Russian beggars, has just celebrated the thirty-fifth anniversary of his sovereignty.
Stepanoff is a tall, well-built man of 60, who had plied his "trade" for thirty-five years at the largest and most fashionable cemetery of St. Petersburg, where he solicits alms for his "poor" wife and "starving" children.
As a matter of fact, his wife wears valuable furs and diamonds, and his two sons are at college.
For his anniversary the king of beggars caused invitations to be sent broadest to the beggars and tramps of St. Petersburg. The banquet hall was the cemetery, the home of his exploits.

The police raised no objection to the jubilee in the graveyard, and allowed the caterers' wagons to unload huge piles of eatables and great baskets filled to the brim with bottles of strong vodka.

On each gravestone was laid a sumptuous repast, and a dozen or more of the strange guests—who numbered 1-000 in all—gathered round each grave, and there feasted.
Ivan himself presided at one of the central graves, a great mausoleum, the family vault of a prince. During the feast he also visited and drank toasts at other of the tombs.

This strange affair continued from noon throughout the evening, until the time came for the cemetery to be closed for the night.

Ivan Stepanoff announced early in the day, with much eclat, that, in view of the festivities, he would abstain from importuning strangers for alms for that day, the first day in thirty-five years in which he had not attended to his business.

It is estimated that the celebration cost the king of beggars fully $500. But he is plying his trade more vigorously than ever, and may soon make up this.

ALCOHOL FROM CACTUS PLANTS.

"Texas ranchers are much pleased with the new denatured alcohol law, for it is expected that they will be able to make a goodly sum of money from the cactus plant, which grows so

Advertiser Correspondence

Mr. Ferguson's Resignation.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:
The resignation of Mr. W. C. Ferguson of the English department of the Collegiate Institute staff, is an irreparable loss, and is a matter of deep regret and concern to all citizens who take a pride in the educational interests of our city. The place of this competent and worthy gentleman is to be temporarily filled by a lady teacher.
Moreover the vacancy in moderns has been filled, after the board has ac-knowledgeed that the London Collegiate Institute cannot compete with Owen Sound in this department.

Now, supposing young men and young women who are preparing for matriculation in Toronto University, and intend taking honors in English or moderns, are looking around for the best teachers in these branches—and that is just what non-residents certainly do, and that most carefully—will they come to London this fall?
We have known students to go from one end of the province to the other on account of the fame of some particular professor in some particular branch. How many will come to London under existing circumstances?

There is a large body of citizens in London already who think that the Collegiate Institute is more of a luxury than a necessity, and if it is to be made a football of by unscrupulous and little-souled politicians, the sooner it is closed up the better.

The present disorganized and demoralized condition of this, our highest educational institution, the sense of injustice and humiliation among our teachers, the lack of confidence and disgust among the citizens in general over the action of the five trustees, stamps them as the most incompetent and incapable officials in the service of this city at the present moment.
Yours respectfully,

PARENT AND TAXPAYER.

The Liquor Cases.
To the Editor of The Advertiser:
It is monstrous that in this enlightened age men of the Hanson and Macrae stamp should have the power to induce citizens to commit crime that they may have them punished.
Who has the power to grant these men this prerogative which is denied every other citizen? No one; not even King Edward.

What would be said of our chief of police if, to justify his position, he were to instruct his force to induce citizens to rob and assault other citizens, that he might have them punished? His arrest would quickly follow, and that should be the fate of the person or persons who send such men as these out as "spotters." What a misnomer! "Incenters to crime" would be more appropriate. Besides, these men commit crime themselves by the purchase and consumption of liquor in prohibited hours. Yet they are immune from punishment.
The whole thing savors strongly of the indulgence, which we look upon with horror, but tolerate in our own city.

No free and enlightened community would stand for it.

Arsenic in River Water.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:
The poisoning of cows at Chelsea Green might be left unnoticed were it not for two matters.

The first you have already referred to, namely what use would artificial filtration be as against the poisoning of water by refuse from factories.
Similar poisoning could take place as well in the north branch as the south branch.

The other point is the pollution of the milk supply. It is not said whether the milk from the cows in question was supplied to the public. The cows were milked before they were poisoned and not after. But the cows were pastured in a field through which ran a creek receiving the refuse from a factory and (no doubt) from other buildings. The water when the cows were killed was deadly. But perhaps it was then only more deadly than

"Oh, I haven't told you my own name yet, have I? I'm Miss Fielding—Joy Fielding. There's nobody here but Leah and me, except Uncle Jordon our man-of-all-work, and King, the Chinaman. Midmeadows is a lonely place, though it's lovely in the summer. Well, I hope you'll be able to sleep well, and be much better in the morning. I'll hope to see you then. Good night." She left me after placing the lamp just out of sight.

Later Leah entered, bringing me some books to read, in case I should be wakeful. I dipped into them all immediately, seeking for further evidence of Miss Fielding's taste. One was of poems, one of essays, one of short stories, and one a novel.

The house was silent. I heard nothing until quite late, when the two women came upstairs to retire. By their voices and footsteps, I made out that Leah slept in the room next to mine, and Miss Fielding across the hall farther off. There was some soft conversation, Leah's voice deep and rich, Miss Fielding's rising several notes above, always with that fluttering, delicate quality which I had noticed. Then the doors closed, and I heard nothing more except, somewhere below, a heavy rhythmic snoring which I assumed came from Uncle Jordon's room.

There came to me now one of those weary, irksome vigils of the sick, when the darkness and the pain seem to co-operate to stretch out the hours to infinite lengths. I tried one position and another, I lighted the candle and put it out again, but my discomfort and my sleeplessness persisted. I could think of nothing else but Joy Fielding! I think that a little of my delirium returned, also, but all through my torment I kept repeating to myself that I did not want to know who she was. I refused to speculate upon that, except in ways that were romantic and fantastic.

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

A PRETTY PLAY FROCK—4241.

The time has fortunately gone by when the utility garment was invariably as unlovely as it was useful. In children's wear, especially, fashion has made many advances, and the pretty and the practical are now combined in a way that our grandmothers never dreamed of. An example of this is the little play frock here pictured, the novel shaping of which will commend it to the tasteful mother, while its easy adjustment is another point in its favor. The skirt is attached to the sides and back of the dress, under a belt, while it is joined to the straight front under the tucked plaits. It is here modeled in blue and white striped gingham, but can be developed in any pretty wash material. For the medium size 3 yards of 27-inch goods will be needed.

4241—Six sizes, 2 to 7 years.
The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

tastic. What matter-of-fact, common-place explanation of her life there might be, I wanted to hold off as long as possible.

CHAPTER II.

I was awakened early by the sunshine which came pouring across my bed from the window opposite, lighting up the white wainscoting and showing the room, now, clean and brightly distinct to the least detail of the crisp Japanese prints upon the wall.

One sash and the window shade had been left up, and I could see the slope of hill which rose behind the house, seeming shut the place in. The other window was filled with the waving boughs of an apple tree. The day was fine and balmy; the fresh air of the morning swept deliciously over my bed. It was maddening to have to lie there helpless.

Before long I heard doors opening and closing below, and the sounds of preparations for breakfast—the rattling of a stove, a pump that squeaked whimsically like a braying donkey, the clatter of pots and pans, and a Chinaman's voice singing in a queer falsetto. With the odors of flowers and damp earth the smell of coffee came up to me, mingled too, with a whiff from the stable. Then the clock whose hourly chimes had measured for me the slow march of the night, struck seven with a peal of golden notes.

I heard footsteps come upstairs to the hall outside my half-opened door. There was a soft tapping across the way, and Leah's voice asked quietly: "What would you like for breakfast, Miss Joy?"

I could just make out the reply of Miss Fielding's blithe tones: "Oh, just a couple of butterfies' wings, Leah, and a drop of rosedew, please."

How prettily it sounded! From another it might have seemed silly to me, but not from her. I was amused at her fancy. Miss Fielding, then, was a poet. It was all so in key with the freshness of the morning and the gay sweet sunshine!

I was more comfortable now, and more sane. So as I lay awaiting her I wondered how such a woman, so inclined with refinement and with the air of having had considerable social experience, was to be found in so faraway a place. I knew of no residences in this vicinity except an occasional farmhouse; it was remote even from any village. The sight of her as she appeared last night in her elegant negligee came back to me, like the scene of a play. I longed to see her again, to discover if, perhaps, I had not exaggerated if all, or even, perhaps, had dreamed of one so exquisitely gracious.

Leah, also, was a part of the strangeness. She had none of the disturbing beauty of the quadroom—her beauty was without diablerie. It was far from showing any sensuality. It was even spiritual in type. Her face as I brought it up, was more than intelligent, it was lighted by an inward vision. The more I thought of her, the more I wondered if I had not been tricked by my impressionability, by the strangeness of my adventure, by the glamor of the night awakening. To put it to the test, I took advantage of Miss Fielding's suggestion and rang the bell.

Leah appeared in a few moments, and came a little shyly into the room. She wore a clean, fresh, crisp gown of blue, like a hospital nurse's uniform, and was as trim and dignified. No, I had not been mistaken. The light of day showed her still more remarkably than I had remembered. Her regular features, her smooth, coffee-colored skin, her well-kept shapely hands, all testified to an extraordinary breeding.

"Are you ready for your breakfast, sir?" she asked. Her voice was like honey as she inquired how I had passed the night, and apologized for Uncle Jordon's snoring.

"I'll bring your water first," she suggested, and retired noisily, to return in a moment with a bowl, some towels and toilet articles.

She seemed a little embarrassed by the situation, but assisted me in sitting up. Then finding that I could do for myself well enough, she went downstairs, and by the time I had finished my washing, she was back with the tray.

"Yes Joy will be in to see you in a little while, sir," she said as she made me comfortable with dexterous adjustments of my pillows.

But for her "sir," she had in no way acted as a servant, though on the other hand, she had assumed no attitude of equality. I could not help admiring the fine neutrality she maintained without committing herself to either role. All my first impressions of her were intensified by this demonstration, and I waited the opportunity of assuring her by my own manner of my lack of prejudice on account of her color. Indeed, it was not long before I was almost as unconscious of it, so far as any social distinction was concerned, as a child might have been.

Miss Fielding came in a little later, dewy and shining, dressed all in white—an embroidered linen blouse and a short skirt of serge, which made her seem even younger than I had remembered. The sight of her expressive, thoughtful, eager face and the music in her sympathetic voice gave my room quite another aspect. It became a stage again where last night's drama would go on. How long I had waited for her, and now she was here! Only an invalid, perhaps, can understand the difference in atmosphere in that first quick sight of one who has waited for the weary hours to go by and bring the wished-for vision.

She made a few kind inquiries as to my condition, moving meanwhile about the room disposing of the fresh roses she had brought, lowering the window shades and raising the shades, rapid and graceful as a bird on the wing. She was all modern now; the medieval princess had given place to something more complex, and as much more interesting. Every word, every infection of her voice, every gesture of her hand, every expression of her mobile face, showed a subtlety of thought and sentiment; she was obviously a creature of fine distinctions, of nuances of feeling though at present her talk was as simple and joyous as a child's. That simplicity of hers, however, was the simplicity of a Greek temple, made up of subtle ratios and proportions, of imperceptible curves and esoteric laws.

She drew up a chair at last, and sat down beside me. We looked at each other frankly, and smiled, aware of a common thought, the desire to prolong the situation as far as we might. This quickness of her imagination was a delight. But the game was becoming too humorous, now in broad daylight for us to keep it up. Our romance was in danger.

"I'm bursting with the obvious," I remarked.

She shook her finger at me with spirit. "If you dare!"

"Oh, I'll not be the first. Man though I am, I can restrain my curiosity."

How quickly her face changed! An almost infantile look came into it, as she said:

"There are so many more curious things than curiosity, if you know what I mean. Curiosity is such a destructive process, don't you think?"

"And this is creative. The not satisfying it I mean."

"Yes, wonder is—and mystery. It rattles so. It splits the ray." She made a queer, mystical gesture, all her own.

"Oh, it quite blossoms!" I said, I breathe all sorts of perfumes never smelt."

Her eager look came back, and she smiled joyously. "How quick you are! I wish we could keep it up a while! I should have liked to marry Bluebeard! What a splendid dowry he gave! Oh, I would never have opened the door! There was so much more outside than in, wasn't there? But now the role is yours; you must be Bluebeard's wife—or Robinson Crusoe. Oh, you must stay on the island—this island with me, and not try to get off. There are a few little places we can explore without danger—will you be satisfied with them?"

Somehow I got the spirit of it, as at hearing some words of a strange language eloquently spoken. She was warning me off—but from what? I would find out soon enough, should the meaning need to be made more definite. It was like a game of jackstraws; if I did not play gingerly I should bring down the commonplace upon us. My situation was delicate—almost seemed that I had arrived, in some way, inopportunely.

But she had gone on. "Did you read my books?" she asked, taking up one of them.

"I read that one—the poems. I got quite lost in them."

"Which ones?" She looked up from the book eagerly.

"The journey, and—" I hesitated.

"The Riders." I was watching her face earnestly.

"Oh, how right you are!" She was perfectly simple about it. There was no conceit in her. "It means, doesn't it, that we already have a language? But you must read the essays, too. Then maybe we'll have a philosophy."

"I'll explore them with pleasure."

"I tried to keep the appeal out of my voice. I have such a lot of things to do before I go."

She got this quite as I intended. "Well, we'll be perfectly natural and let come what may, as it seems to be all decided for us. We won't force the game. But I'm afraid you'll never be contented. You'll leave the island first, I'm quite sure."

I protested, she shook her head slowly. I knew she was thinking very hard of something. Her smile was wistful, her eyes, always fixed on mine, were almost somber in their expression.

"Would you dare promise?"

I knew now there was something behind all this; some fear of my presence.

"Shall I?" I fenced more to draw her on than from any doubt of her meaning or reluctance to agree with her wish.

"It's base of me—it's foolish, too, for it can really do no good. But, you see, I don't quite know you, do I?"

"And don't quite want to?" I was unkind enough to say, but only with the same motive as before. I wanted to get at the bottom of it—find out what it was she dreaded, and dared not acknowledge that she did.

She was a little hurt and said that it wasn't fair to say so, that I wasn't playing the game. I was properly contrite, and for the moment gave up the duel.

"Let it be a promise, then," I said. At this I thought she looked relieved; and that she should be so at my bare word touched me. It did cross my mind that, perceiving my adaptability to this sort of affair, she might perhaps have taken an adventurous means of heightening the romance of the situation with such innuendo; but she seemed to me to be altogether too direct for that, and too sapient as well.

"Thank you. I may hold you to that promise. Does that seem ungracious?"

There it was. There was most definitely something which she didn't wish me to know, and which my advent jeopardized. I was truly sorry for her now, and a little embarrassed at my position. Meanwhile her eyes were steadily questioning mine, as if to make sure that I was to be trusted.

I took up her last remark to relieve the tension of her mood.

"You couldn't be ungracious, I'm sure. I should as soon suspect Leah!"

She laughed more freely. "Oh, I'm so glad you appreciate her! That says more for you than all the rest."

"The rest?" I insisted quite ready for a compliment.

She gave it to me with her head tilted on one side, and her right eyebrow, the irregular one, whimsically upraised.

HOME OF CRIME AND SUICIDE

Suggestion That the Nations Wipe Out Monte Carlo.

LETTER TO TIMES INDORSED

Many Cases Hushed Up — Families Ruined by the Curse of Gambling.

London, Aug. 31.—An interesting letter in the Times, signed "Indicus," suggests that it is time an end should be put to Monte Carlo, the plague spot of Europe.

"Before this hideous Monte Carlo tragedy ceases to be a nine-days' wonder," writes "Indicus," "I would suggest that it is time attention should be drawn to the fons et origo mali, the gambling rooms of that too notorious place."

"I speak as one who knows, having resided for some time at Monte Carlo, near the villa in which the Golds rented a small flat. How long are the nations of Europe going to tolerate the continuance of this plague-spot in their midst?"

"That is the question that should be agitated in the press and chancelleries of every European capital, whose glided youth are ruined annually in scores, for they flock thither in ever increasing numbers solely because of the gambling facilities, made more seductive by the beauty of the place, its gardens, and the unrivaled Casino band."

"The profits, I may state, accruing from the tables, which average 30,000,000 francs, are divided between the shareholders, the municipality and the Prince of Monaco. On the same day the Golds are supposed to have committed the crime with which they are charged, there occurred at Castellmare the suicide of a young English and American couple on their honeymoon, who had been ruined at Monte Carlo."

President Roosevelt might well assume the initiative in this righteous crusade, for the American plutocrats are as prominent at the tables as the aristocracy of Europe."

Max Pemberton's Views.

Max Pemberton, the novelist, who is an authority on Monte Carlo, said yesterday that the diplomatic situation would make any such action difficult.

"I cannot pronounce an opinion on a crime that is still untried," he said, "but one thing is clear—Monte Carlo is the haunt of every adventurer and adventurer in the world. It is astounding how many big swindles and thefts have been planned at Monte Carlo."

"The obvious curse of the place is that fools go there to make money out of the tables, and rogues go there to make money out of the fools. The atmosphere is most demoralizing to young people, who lose their heads, and also all sense of the value of money."

"Another great evil is that of pure English girls succumbing to the atmosphere. They are often brought in contact at the tables with unsavory persons with whom they actually converse."

"The Government of every country is perfectly aware that Monte Carlo should be suppressed, but the diplomatic situation makes action impossible, and France, under whose protection Monte Carlo exists, is placed in a most difficult position."

"The authorities at Monte Carlo do their best to preserve order in the rooms, but it is perfectly impossible to keep out rogues of both sexes. Wherever you have unrestricted gambling you will have attendant crimes."

"The suicides at Monte Carlo I regard as only a minor part of the evil. There must be thousands of tragedies in all parts of Europe which could be traced back to the gambling rooms at Monte Carlo."

"I am convinced that the suppression of Monte Carlo would produce a more practical and nobler work for humanity than the advancement of impossible propositions at The Hague peace conference."

Suicides Hushed Up.

"The Monte Carlo Casino has been responsible for more suicides than any other institution of any kind in the world," a frequent visitor to the Riviera said yesterday.

"It was said three or four years ago that the gambling house was about to be closed, but it is still drawing thousands of people into its net every year, and so great has been its financial success that a new gambling place in the neighborhood is being talked of."

"It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that thousands of people have committed suicide through being ruined at Monte Carlo. As a rule, the world hears little or nothing of such suicides, for it is not to the interest of the town to say much about them. But now and then striking cases come to light."

"Ruined players are continually jumping into the sea and getting drowned, or going to Paris or elsewhere, there to shoot themselves."

"But the suicides do not represent a tenth of the misery due to the Casino. So many people are 'broken' by the bank that it has been necessary to establish a relieving department in order to get rid of the ruined players, who might otherwise commit suicide."

"Every day in the season a score or more of men and women apply to the Casino officers for a dolo to pay their hotel bills and to pay their fares home. Some time ago, a British officer, who had lost every penny, was given a free P. and O. ticket to Calcutta and $250. The sums paid out by the Casino range from $25 to $2,500."

"But in spite of this toll on its profits the Casino has made millions sterling out of the gamblers who try to break the bank. Last year its total receipts came to $7,540,400, an increase of $769,400 on the year before."

After every expense had been defrayed there was alone on to $3,000,000 for distribution among the shareholders, at the rate of $70 per share. This was equal to 70 per cent on the

"The curse of Monte Carlo is not merely that it is responsible for the ruin of hundreds of men and women," he concluded, "but that it entails undeserved wretchedness on their families, who often have to suffer, not only privation, but great mental anguish, directly due to the evil influence of the gambling tables."

TWO SURPRISES FROM SCHWAB

To Give Millions for Education, Says Wall Street's Opinions Don't Count.

New York, Aug. 31.—The American today says:

Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem steel works, speaking to the Brooklyn Commercial Traveler at Coney Island last night, sprang two surprises. The first was when the steel magnate told what he thought of Wall Street in relation to the real financial condition of the country, and the second was his announcement that he had already given $1,000,000 to the University of Pennsylvania, and is preparing to give very much more.

"The Wall street estimate of the prosperity or financial depression of the United States is a prejudiced one, and is usually incorrect," declared Mr. Schwab. "It is based on conditions that usually do not exist, and does not represent anything in particular, except the desires of a few speculators."

"After thus paying his respects to Wall street, Mr. Schwab said:

"There are a whole lot of persons who consider the possession of money means that a man is successful. It does to a certain extent. It is the gauge by which to some extent we may measure the success of a man, but it is not success itself."

"Take me for example. I have some money. Quite a lot of it, in fact. What good does it do me? I have a nice place in which to live, good meals to eat and clothes to wear. That is about all, except that Mrs. Schwab is able to spend a few pennies and enjoy herself. Still, I have a pet project, that if I can I shall push through before I die. I want the Pennsylvania State College to have the finest engineering school in the world."

"The other day I was able to promise $1,000,000 toward this end. If I can do so I am going to give a lot more, and it is only when a man begins to go in for this kind of work that he really approaches what money can do. Its limits spent, on one's self, are hardly worth considering, and this scheme of the engineering school may

CONSTIPATION

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered much misery with internal piles. Thanks to you I am free from all that this morning. You can use this in behalf of suffering humanity." E. J. Fisher, Rossmore, Ill.

LION NEARLY KILLS KEEPER

Thrilling Battle Between Man and Beast at Detroit Fair.

Detroit, Aug. 31.—Driven to brute frenzy because his owner and trainer interfered in a fight between him and his brother, Orpheus, Prince, the African lion, hurled his full weight upon Percy J. Mundy, the famous wild animal exhibitor and sank his fangs deep into the victim's right thigh and left arm at the state fair grounds yesterday afternoon.

Resorting to desperate remedies, a score of attendants by rare good fortune managed to save Mundy's life. The fight occurred during an intermission in the exhibition, no spectators being present at the time.

Surgeons at the Grace Hospital tent, who are attending the injured man, declare that his escape is most fortunate. On Prince's first attack the fang sank deep into the thigh, barely missing the femoral artery. Had this artery been severed, Mundy would have bled to death within a very few minutes. The presence of twenty meal tickets in Mundy's hip pocket prevented the animal's teeth from sinking deeper into the flesh. The doctors said that his chances for recovery are good, unless infection from the two wounds causes blood poisoning.

Jumps Fearlessly Into Cage.
Mundy made the fatal mistake of placing two male lions in the same cage too soon after the breeding season. No sooner had Orpheus and Prince been placed together than trouble became imminent. Pacing up and down the confines of their prison cage, they growled and snapped and snarled themselves into a fury. Suddenly Prince, who had been the aggressor, sprang upon his brother and in a trice the place was in an uproar.

With no means of defense save a small whip which he carried in his hand, Mundy jumped fearlessly into the conflict, relying on his fine ability as a trainer to pry the beasts apart.

He struck Prince a smart blow over the face with the whip. But in place of gaining the brute's submission to which he had been accustomed, Mundy was greeted with a sullen roar, as the powerful brute turned upon the imperiled trainer. With one leap the beast plinked Mundy to the floor, and with an ugly snap of his jaws sank his fangs into the man's right thigh. The taste of blood drove the animal to greater frenzy and Mundy's struggles to be free only resulted in more fierce onslaughts on the part of Prince.

Attendants Rush to Rescue.
Led by the animal tamer, Major Crawford, a score of attendants rushed to the assistance of their imperiled leader. First a heavy chair was tossed into Mundy. He managed to grab this and started to beat his brute assailant on the head. Prince simply struck the chair a vicious blow with his paw, and crushed the improvised weapon like an egg shell. By that time, Major Crawford had leaped into the tent armed with a heavy iron bar. With this he succeeded in prying Prince's jaws apart, giving Mundy the opportunity to arise.

But Prince was by no means subdued. Keeping his eyes on the beast, Mundy backed slowly toward the door of the cage. Prince with blood dripping from his jaws, looked sullenly on until the trainer had almost reached the exit, when he made another spring. This time he sank his teeth into the right arm. Mundy, however, succeeded in tearing himself away, leaving a shred of flesh as a souvenir of Prince's second onslaught.

SUES BANK FOR $75,000

Toronto Men Claim Bank of Hamilton Broke Contract.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—Mr. L. J. Cosgrave of the Cosgrave Brewing Company, Lother Reinhart and F. W. Mossop, the well-known hotelkeepers, have entered an action against the Bank of Hamilton for $75,000 for alleged breach of contract. It is alleged that the bank had agreed to finance a new hotel which is now in course of construction on Yonge street, and which was to have been opened by Mr. Mossop. The latter, however, could not guarantee that a license would be secured and the bank consequently would proceed no further.

CASTRO WITHDRAWS

Venezuela Objects to Debt Collecting Proposals at the Hague.

Caracas, Aug. 31.—It is stated that the withdrawal of Venezuela representatives from the Hague Conference will undoubtedly be ordered today. This is due to the attitude of Venezuela regarding the working of the proposition for the abolition of collections of debts owing to foreign countries by force, and to the proposed constitution of the international high court of justice.

Venezuela, it appears, is not in accord with the views of the American and German proposers of the convention on the subject of debt collections and is in sympathy with the attitude of Brazil towards the conference.

SEEK TO OWN ALL CIRCUSES

Ringlings Now Have an Option on the Barnum and Bailey Show.

New York, Aug. 31.—Concerning a report current today in amusement circles that Ringling Bros., aiming to control the principal circus business of the world, were negotiating to secure the majority of stock in the Barnum & Bailey show, which is owned by the widow of the late James A. Bailey, J. T. McCadden said this afternoon that there had been no option given, as reported, but did not deny that negotiations were in progress.

Further than saying that his sister, Mrs. Bailey, had not contracted to sell her control of the circus, and that he, as the next largest stockholder, had not disposed of his portion of stock, Mr. McCadden was reticent about the report of Ringling's purported ambition to merge the circuses of the world, besides the show under their own name, the Ringlings own the Foranpaugh Sells circus. The Barnum & Bailey circus ownership carries with it a contract with Col. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), to present him in this and other countries.

With the acquisition of the Barnum & Bailey show, the Ringlings would control the circus business of the globe, and it would represent one of the greatest aggregations of amusement capital that exists today.

Upon the death of James A. Bailey the bulk of the Barnum & Bailey circus stock, standing in the name of the Barnum & Bailey Company, Limited, an English corporation, passed into the hands of the widow of the veteran showman. The board of directors is composed of Charles R. Hutchinson and Frederick B. Hutchinson, nephews of Mrs. Bailey, and J. T. McCadden, her brother. The managing director is W. W. Cole, a millionaire showman, the wealthiest individual in the business, it is said.

According to the report, Mrs. Bailey is ready to dispose of her interests, and the Ringlings, it is said, have negotiated for them to the extent of securing an option which, it is believed, will expire within a few weeks.

In amusement circles the mooted topic was whether the Ringlings would materially change the methods of the late James A. Bailey, acknowledged to have been the greatest genius of the spectacular world.

Another question arises, relating to the great amount of money necessary to finance such an undertaking. The Ringlings would have to secure an amount of stock which would enable them to control the circus business of the universe. They are wealthy men, and money makers, and it is believed that they could get together all the capital needed, prodigious amount though the sum would be.

SCORNED A BIG BRIBE
Kentuckians Offered Him $95,000 to Turn Over Political Fugitives.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 1.—Winfield T. Durbin, governor of Indiana from 1901 to 1905, made the sensational statement that soon after his inauguration as governor direct attempt was made to bribe him to turn over William B. Taylor, Kentucky's refugee ex-governor, to the authorities of that state for trial on a charge of conspiracy to assassinate Gov. Goebel.

He said that the first efforts were in the shape of invitations to meet "certain gentlemen in Cincinnati to discuss the connection of Taylor with the crime of murder," but he declined the invitation, saying that he would give no consideration to the case outside of his own office.

State Senator Binkley, since deceased, was then asked to go to Cincinnati, and he met a number of Kentuckians in a hotel there by appointment. They told him they were anxious to have Taylor returned to Kentucky for trial, that there remained a total of $95,000 of the appropriation voted by the Legislature, and that all this would be cheerfully paid to the Indiana executive if he would surrender Taylor to the Kentucky authorities, or make it possible for them to get him across the Ohio River into the state.

According to Binkley's report to the governor, they were not particular how the thing was accomplished if they succeeded in getting Taylor in custody, but they made it plain that the entire $95,000 would be paid for such a service. Binkley is said to have left the room as soon as the proposition was made, thereby indicating that he would have nothing to do with it.

Durbin said that the matter had been known only to himself and a few friends, and that he had not before given publicity to it because he did not think anything should be gained by it. W. S. Taylor said that he had been advised of the offer soon after it was made, and was cognizant of all that had transpired at the meeting.

BAER BLAMES GOVERNMENT

Says Politics Brought First Strike in the Anthracite Region.

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—The Reading Company, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, and the Iron Company today filed their answers to the suit of the Federal Government to break up the anthracite coal monopoly existing in the anthracite coal regions of this state. The answers of the three concerns, of which George F. Baer is president, make a general denial of the Government's allegations, and go into the first great strike in the anthracite coal fields, and its relation to the presidential campaign of 1900, when McKinley was elected.

It is declared that the agreements to advance the price of coal were brought about in 1900 by the violence and intimidation of the striking mine workers, by the failure of the United States Government, of the State of Pennsylvania to enforce the law and to protect the coal companies, and the importunities of the late Marcus A. Hanna, it is alleged, was anxious to end the strike of miners on account of the impending presidential election.

A London doctor, lecturing, said it was useless to tell a dyspeptic woman not to drink tea. The only thing to do was to give her some harmless stuff in a bottle to be taken every three hours, with strict instructions that she was not to have any tea for four hours before or four hours after each dose.

BADLY BITTEN FIGHTING DOG

Sir Roderick Cameron's Daughter Beat Great Newfoundland in Long Struggle.

New York, Aug. 31.—Gravely hurt in a terrific battle with a great Newfoundland dog, suddenly transformed by heat-madness from a pet into a wild beast, Miss Kitty Cameron, society favorite and daughter of Sir Roderick Cameron, was reported yesterday as convalescing in a private sanitarium near Newport.

The fight between the girl and the animal occurred several days ago at Clifton Birlie, the estate of Miss Cameron's father, on Staten Island. There the young woman has maintained for several years the finest kennels of any fancier of her sex in the country. More than fifty dogs of various sizes and breeds are kept about the big, thickly wooded park.

On a particularly hot day recently a big black Newfoundland became quarrelsome. He started to worry several other dogs in his runway, particularly a heavy, strong-jawed English bull. The smaller dogs gave the big fellow a wide berth, but the bull stood his ground, and soon the two were fighting furiously. Miss Cameron ran to the spot with a lead-butted riding whip.

The sound of her voice and a lash from the whip drove off the bulldog, but the Newfoundland, hitherto one of the girl's especial favorites, turned wildly upon her. He winced under a slash across the face, but came back to the attack, and springing at his mistress, sank his powerful teeth into her thigh.

Disregarding the pain, and never for an instant losing her nerve, Miss Cameron brought the leaden end of the whip into play, and as the brute jumped at her again she rained heavy blows upon his head.

Once more the mad Newfoundland bit her, but still she did not give up. Then just as the aged superintendent of the grounds and one of the grooms came running to the spot, she stretched the brute out senseless at her feet.

"I knew I could bring him to time," Miss Cameron said.

It was decided that the dog should be shot at once, but the plucky girl remonstrated. He did not have rabies, she thought, but was merely mad from heat and fighting. The Newfoundland was killed, however.

Miss Kitty Cameron has taken scores of blue ribbons with her dogs at the bench shows here, at Newport and elsewhere throughout the country. She is a tall, athletic, outdoor type of girl, and excels in riding and sailing. She selects, raises and trains every dog in her kennels.

NOT INTERFERING
Roosevelt Not Mixing Up With the Telegraphers' Strike.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 31.—It was authoritatively stated today that President Roosevelt will not interfere or take any part looking to a settlement of the telegraphers' strike. Secretary Loeb said the numerous appeals to the president, which have been reported in the newspapers, have not been received at Oyster Bay, and that at no time since the beginning of the strike has the President seen any necessity or reason why he should intervene.

INTO BURNING BRIDGE
Wreckers Ditch Fast Mail Train on the Frisco Line.

Tuscola, I. T., Aug. 31.—St. Louis and San Francisco train No. 511, the Texas fast mail, plunged into a burning bridge near here last night. The engine, combination baggage, express and mail car and one passenger car together with all mail, baggage and express, $15,000 in money, were destroyed.

Two persons were dangerously injured. This is the fourth wreck in the vicinity of Tuscola within a week. Railroad officials believe that a gang of train wreckers is at work.

A REAL WAR

French Cabinet Realizes Gravity of Moroccan Situation.

Ramboulet, France, Aug. 31.—The cabinet ministers met at the Chateau here today, and lengthily discussed the Moroccan situation with President Fallieres.

The desperate fighting between the French troops and the Moors near Casablanca, Aug. 28, during which the Moorish fanatics demonstrated their cunning tactical ability and bravery, is accepted as showing that the situation is distinctly more grave, particularly to the extent of indicating that France has a real war on her hands. The probability of a long campaign in Morocco, it is also seen, means enormous expense.

FLAGS FOR RURAL SCHOOLS

The Government Is Calling for Tenders for the Supply.

The Ontario Government is calling for tenders for the flags which are to be supplied to rural schools, and for the purchase of which the Government recently granted an appropriation of $5,000. Each school is to receive one of the flags, which is to be exhibited in the school on the flag days specified by the Government, and on the flag staffs of the schools at the direction of the trustees. The flag will be a Union Jack, carrying the Canadian coat of arms. Tenders will be received until Wednesday, Sept. 11.

GERMANS FRIENDLY TO ENGLAND'S KING

Press Praises His Speech at Kaiser's Banquet.

A BETTER UNDERSTANDING

Germany Unquestionably Confirms Emperor's Experience of Respect for King Edward.

Berlin, Aug. 31.—The recent meeting of King Edward and the Kaiser has led to a more cordial feeling toward England than has existed for a long time.

German press comment on the meeting at Wilhelmshohe seems to be as cordial in character as the meeting itself.

The Vossische Zeitung says: "The events of the meeting show beyond question that the period of tension and discord between England and Germany is past." It points out the cordiality of the meeting, the King's assurances that the Kaiser will receive a warm welcome in England in November.

The journal calls attention to the significance of the fact that while at Cronberg last of the King appeared in civil dress; at Wilhelmshohe both monarchs wore the respective uniforms of each other's armies. At Cronberg uncle visited nephew, at Wilhelmshohe the King of England visited the German Emperor.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung says that "Germany unquestionably confirms the Kaiser's experience of the nation's deference to and respect for the King. We believe the King when he says that he cherishes a wish that the most pleasant relations should exist between the two nations." It says, adding in reference to the fact that the King's toast was delivered in German, "We understand, of course, that this is natural, but it is a pleasant touch of courtesy on the part of the Kaiser."

The Lokal Anzeiger remarks upon the King's ever-winning manner, which "on this occasion shows that deeper charm resulting from sincerity which even the King of England cannot assume except when it is dictated by his actual feelings. The Kaiser's never-failing courtesy was also marked on this occasion by a certain absence of reserve never apparent except when the monarchs are really sincere."

The Cologne Gazette says: "Opinion, not only in Germany, has become accustomed to regard the King as the real director of the foreign policy of Great Britain. It will with all the greater pleasure hear his message of peace. As Prince-Bishop and Sir Charles Hardinge had a long conversation, we may assume that a fresh step has been taken in the path of the common work of the two great nations for the cause of peace. The meetings at Cronberg and Wilhelmshohe and Lechl will, if our expectations are fulfilled, be regarded as milestones in history."

The National Zeitung says: "So far as Germany and England are concerned, there is no need of any special treaty. No one in Germany expects that the British nation will receive their imperial guests (in November) with the greatest joy. The result of the meeting is very gratifying. That a detente had set in in Anglo-German relations to the disgust of all disturbers of the peace must have been observed before. It is now, however, confirmed. An 'entente cordiale' exists between the two sovereigns."

The Post says: "The meetings strengthen the prospects of peace."

MRS. WHITE DENIES

Is Not To Be Married to Murdered Husband's Partner.

New York, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Stanford White, widow of the architect, who was shot to death by Harry K. Thaw, today denied the report that she is to be married to Charles McKim, of the firm of McKim, Mead & White, of which her husband was for twenty years a member. Mrs. White returned to New York today on the steamer La Lorraine after a stay in Italy of several months.

THE SINGER'S EXCUSE

Tells Why She Sang Song That Disgusted King-Edward.

Marjebad, Aug. 31.—The sequel of King Edward's displeasure at a theatrical performance here Thursday evening, when his majesty left the theater in disgust, was seen in the police court yesterday. The manager of the theater and a woman singer were brought to court, and the latter was fined $12 for having given an objectionable song, which was not on the programme. The manager escaped, as he was ignorant of her intention to sing such a song. The woman's defense was that she believed she was making the performance more attractive.

FLAT BURGLAR TRIES TO SMOTHER FAMILY

Opens the Gas Jet, But Is Killed by an Inmate.

New York, Aug. 31.—Caught in the act of attempting to asphyxiate the seven members of George Verrall's family, a burglar who planned to rob the Verrall flat in East Eighty-third street, was shot and killed today while endeavoring to make his escape. The cry of a restless infant saved the Verrall family. The burglar made two attempts to asphyxiate the family. He was shot three times by Verrall and instantly killed.

Early today the cry of Mrs. Verrall's infant awoke the mother, who detected the odor of gas. She turned off the open jets and aroused her husband and told him of it. He fell asleep again, and Mrs. Verrall retired for the night. She grew restless and did not close her eyes, and two hours later she again smelled gas. She hurried to the kitchen and found it filled with gas pouring from open jets. She called to her husband, and finding that her five children were safe, and Verrall went for his revolver. A search was made, and a man was seen trying to escape from an adjoining flat to the fire escape. Verrall fired four shots, three of which struck the burglar, who fell dead as he was trying to get through a window. All of the Verrall family are ill from the effects of the gas. The police have not identified the burglar.

Ramblers Win the East End League Championship McClarys Beat Stars in Sensational Two-One Game

M'CLARYS DOUSE THE SATELLITES AND BAKERS TRIM THE ROCKETS

City League Leaders Fight Out Exciting Two-to-One Game.

In a red-hot, sizzling contest, of the bluff-bang variety, which eventually culminated in a young riot, the bunch from the tin works handed it to the West London Satellites Saturday by a score of 2 to 1.

The stands at Tecumseh Park were fairly packed with rival rooters, and everybody had their shouting rags on. Megaphones were numerous, and the sight reminded one of the scene at Tecumseh Park last fall when London scored a touch-down over the celebrated Hamilton Cubs, of Rugby fame, within the first five minutes of play. There hasn't been a more strenuous, yet contested ball game pulled off in this vicinity in many moons, and there was cause indeed for the fuss the crowd stirred up over the efforts of their favorites.

Contrary to expectations, Umpire Charlie Smith did not officiate on the occasion. President Beal, of the City League, announced to the press that Smith had been taken with a slight sunstroke.

After some little delay in proceedings the management routed out Pop Stein and Wanless the Long, and between them they got away with the arbiting in clean fashion.

A Contest for Blood.
At the jump-off the great crowd present realized that the contest was for blood; and so it proved.

Jack Wilson officiated for the Stars, while Walter Gibson held down the slab for the champs. Both worked splendidly, and it was only superior support which enabled the big fellow to triumph over his smaller but gamey opponent on the rubber.

Nothing Doing Until Fourth.

The leaders lifted the willow first, but there was nothing stirring until session four, but one bingle being registered on either side until that point. In that round the champs got to little John for three safe pokes, and a tally.

Jackson connected for a sack, and went to third on a long single by Bell. Jimmy tried to stretch it into a double, and was nailed at second. Costello smashed a terrific liner in the fourth at Wilson, and the little fellow side-stepped, Jackson lunging, Gibson flew out and McHugh poked him wind.

In the fifth both parties drew a point.

Ecclestone, for the big fellows, singled, went up a peg on Bell's sacrifice, and landed at third on an out at first. Fook rapped what looked like an easy one to Nix Jeffries, at short, and that party juggled the pill long enough to allow all hands to move around in safety.

The conquering hero, Fitzmaurice, has shown conclusively that he is on a par with anything in the league in center garden and as a timely hitter.

Hurroo! John McHugh has discovered his batting lamps once more.

Beal didn't have his famous Long Betsy with him, but he connected safely twice, at that, besides advancing a runner by a place bluff along the first base line.

WITH THE M'CLARY-SATELLITE BOUT

It isn't plain O'Rourke now. In fandom it is the Rt. Hon. Mr. Bertrand O'Rourke. A perfect fielding game, two hits and a stolen base. That's all.

The crowd had lots of fun (?) with Leo Costello. Leo didn't do much on Saturday. He only fielded everything that came his way like a major leaguer, scored two hits—one of them bringing in a run—and drew a pass.

Jackson showed up better than he has in some time. Eddie is generally somewhere about when the roll is called, however. Two hits and a sacrifice for Edward.

If all the bolls were as good as that one a post series between the Stars and the Champs would bring out the S. O. sign at Tecumseh. Rivalry is the life of baseball.

Eleven strikeouts is what Hyttenrauch is credited with. Five of these were scored in the two first innings. In the second Tommy fanned Wagner, Thompson and Perkins.

"There isn't a better whip in the league than that boy Clay Gibson," remarked a fan Saturday.

Every Baker on the list, but Stein, fanned one or more times.

Contests like Saturday's are what serve to draw the crowds.

thin in the face and his legs are pipe-stems. You would think they would crack clean off if he ran real hard, but he is as springy as a bit of whalbone. He hasn't any stride to speak of, and runs with his arms held out in front like a sprinter. He works his way along and has a fighting method that is far removed from Tom Longboat's long, easy lops as I am from a hummingbird.

"He is a funny runner in more ways than one. He won't stand for any massaging like our athletes over here, and does not want his muscles kneaded. He is simply rubbed down briskly, with flesh mitts. He says kneading takes away his strength. On the track he does not run steadily, but in a series of sprints."

ty, Ecclestone scoring. Jackson flew out and the Satellite fans breathed a sigh of relief.

Fitz's Little Stick.
In their half the Stars looked real dangerous, and their chances appeared splendid—for a moment. Tierney flew out. Toots Jeffries' arm connected with a hard inshoot, and the little fellow went down. For a few moments it was thought that the injured member was broken, but beyond a severe bruising it was found to be as good as ever. Fitzmaurice then strode to the pan, and the West Londoners frantically called upon him to kill the pellet. Toots stole, and Fitz connected for two sacks, scoring the run. Tecumseh was not big enough for the Satellite rooters at that point, and they made the welkin ring for miles around with their frantic rooting. With only one down, and the one-time heavy-hitting "Scat" Wilson up, it looked good for one more point, at least. Tecumseh flew out and Fitz was doubled at third.

That ended the merry-making, although only clever, first-class playing on both sides prevented additional scoring.

The ninth especially was productive of several exciting moments. Gibson went out at first. Costello sent a fly out between first and second, and Graham, Fitzmaurice and Ischy Clark all went after it, stopped short at sight of one another, and the ball dropped safe. McHugh hit. Ecclestone was safe on a fielder's choice, which nailed Big John at second, but was in turn tagged at third on a little poke from Ball's stick to O'Rourke, who, by the way, put up the best contest of the season at third base.

The Stars went out one-two, and the fans were getting ready to leave, when Nix Jeffries selected a willow to his liking and faced the rapid-firing Gibson.

"Strike want!" bawled Umpire Stein, and there was a drop in Satellite stock.

"Strike wht!" came forth in a monotone, and all West London's courage fled. Then it happened.

Swiftly Gibson prepared to deliver that fatal third strike. Straight toward the center of the pan it came.

Bliff! The pill was sailing gardenward at what looked like a three-base gain! (Yes, that was some little rooting done at that point.)

Faster and faster went the ball and faster sped the mighty Nix. Had he stopped at second there is no telling what might have happened. He didn't, though, and was nailed on the return.

TECUMSEHS AND SHAMROCKS LOSE

The N.L.U. Leaders Lose to the Cornwalls and Nationals.

Montreal, Que., Aug. 31. — The Tecumsehs played on the National grounds in showery weather. The teams lined up as follows:

Tecumsehs: Goal, Clarke; point, Griffiths; coverpoint, Stewart; defense, Pickering, Davidson, Rountree; center, Felker; home, Querrie, Murton, Whitehead; outside, Durkin; inside, Adamson.

Nationals: Goal, L'Heureux; point, Cattarinch; coverpoint, Clement; defense, Lachapelle, Sauve, Secours; center, Delude; home, Gauthier, Pitre, Lamoureux; outside, Layloette; inside, Lafort.

Referee, Jesse Brown, Montreal; Judge of play, Bob Taylor, Montreal; timekeeper, Russell Bowie; umpires, Charles Porteous and Ben Haynes.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux addressed the players and faced the ball at 3:45. The Tecumseh defense was well on its feet, and the Nationals seemed to go to pieces, being satisfied to shoot from a distance. Adamson and Durkin went right in on L'Heureux, but could not score. Two National players and one Tecumseh man were injured in the first quarter. The Tecumseh defense had to work hard to keep the home men out. The quarter ended with Nationals 3, Tecumsehs 0. At half-time it was 6 to 1.

At the face in the second quarter Tecumsehs drew, but the attack on the National goals was repelled by the defense. L'Heureux saved well on the National home men circled around the Tecumseh goals and Delude let go a beauty, which fooled Clarke. The home of the Tecumsehs seemed to be off color, and could not cope with National defense. The National home seemed to shiver, and Stewart, Griffiths and Davidson worked like Trojans. Lamoureux jumped over three defense men, and though he did not score he deserved to do so. Gauthier tried again, but was not successful.

Querrie by a pretty piece of work scored the fifth goal and the first for the Tecumsehs. The Nationals were a hot one to stop. Delude was ruled off.

L'Heureux stopped a hot one from Querrie. End to end play followed. Davidson was ruled off for tripping Lavolette when he was making a gallant attempt to reach the goal.

The contest was replete with sensational plays, and everybody was on the job at nearly all stages.

KEENES COLINS WINS FUTURITY

Whitneys Bar-None Second in the Great Sheephead Bay Stakes.

New York, Aug. 31. — James R. Keene's undefeated colt, Colin, by Commando-Pastorella, won the twentieth renewal of the rich Futurity on the opening of the fall meeting at Sheephead Bay today, with Harry Payne Whitney's Bar None second and Fred Burlew's Chapultepec third. The time, 1:11 1-5, was fast, though 1 1/2 seconds behind the record made by Ogden in 1896 and equaled in 1900 by Ballyhoo Bay. Last year Electioneer won in 1:13 over a slow track. Pope Joan second and De Mund third. Thus Colin is the 2-year-old champion of the year and his owner is richer by about $40,000. The weather was cool and clear, and a great cosmopolitan crowd thronged the course of the Coney Island Jockey Club at Sheephead Bay to witness the event. The track was in splendid condition and fast. Summary:

First race, 3-year-olds, 1 mile — Arimo, 111 (Finn), 20 to 1 and 6 to 1, 1; Dashaway, 111 (Miller), 3 to 1 place, 2; Littleton Maid, 111 (Gamer), 7 to 5, 3. Time, 1:40 3-5. Ampedo, Ellisdale, Faust, Capt. Emerich, Darabow, Clare Russell and Umbrella also ran. Dick Fennell fell.

Second race, Inaugural Steeplechase, about 2 miles — John M. P., 163 (Brien), 6 to 5 and 1 to 2, 1; Bayonet, 136 (Gaines), 7 to 5 place, 2; Jimmy Lane, 148 (Duper), 1 to 3, 3. Time, 4:05. Commodore Fontaine also ran. Homelise and Sinister fell.

Third race, Fall Handicap, 6 furlongs, main course — Demund, 122 (Notter), 4 to 1 and 7 to 5, 1; Ben Ban (Brussel), 8 to 1, place, 2; Brockdale Nymph, 119 (Gamer), 8 to 5, 3. Time, 1:13 2-5. Seawell, Borgheuse, Count Dress, Dolly Sparker, Keator, Lady Anne and Consistent also ran.

Fourth race, Twentieth running of the Futurity, for 2-year-olds, 6 furlongs — Colin, 125 (Miller), 20 to 1, 1; Bar None, 117 (Finn), 15 to 1, 2; Chapultepec, 117 (Finn), 15 to 1, 3. Time, 1:11 1-5. Fair Play, Meetic, Jim Gaffney, Beauchamp and Countmand also ran.

Fifth race, selling, $1,000 added, 1 1/4 miles, on the turf course — Acrobatic, 96 (G. Burns), 8 to 1, 1; Tony Bonero, 101 (Sandy), 12 to 1, 2; Phil Finch, 103 (Finn), 10 to 1, 3. Time, 1:59 2-5. Lancastran, Voorhees, Banker, Good Luck, J. F. Donohue, Sonoma Belle, Kilter and Gallavan also ran.

Sixth race, purse, $1,000 added, 2-year-olds, 6 furlongs, on main course — Live Wire, 122 (Knapp), 3 to 1, 1; Home Again, 109 (Miller), 8 to 1, 2; Black Oak, 117 (Notter), 9 to 5, 3. Time, 1:15 2-5. Bellweather, Dennis Stafford, Miss Mazzoni, Russell Son, Wise Child and Miss Popular also ran.

Score, Nationals 6, Tecumsehs 1.

The third quarter saw the Nationals again the more aggressive, and after dodging around Tecumseh goal for two minutes Gauthier scored another on a side shot. The Tecumsehs made a great rush for the goal, but the attack being led by Querrie, but Nationals' defense proved a stone wall. Querrie got the ball passed to Durkin, to Murton, and the second score for Tecumseh followed. The whole Tecumseh team came down and tried to score, but failed for ten minutes.

JOE KELLEY'S PETS TAKE TWO MORE

The Maple Leafs Annex a Double Header From the Royals.

Toronto, Aug. 31. — The Pets annexed the first of the double-header Saturday, with the Royals, by the score of 5-2, in a pitchers' battle between Southpaw Hesterfer and Herbst, with the former having all the better of the argument, the locals getting to Herbst for a four count.

Both twirlers had but one strike-out to their credit, while the Charlies were one to three on Hesterfer. Only four Royals were left on bases, while the Leafs had a small crowd of three.

Over 6,000 people witnessed the game the three-base rule being in effect. Catches by Brown, Crooks, Wiedensaul, and Herbst's stab of Schaffly's liner were the features.

Frick was unable to play, and the locals lined up with the same as on Friday. The work of Welch, the new man, was exceptionally good, his two singles sending in three runs.

In the second game the teams were unchanged, with the exception of the batteries, Hughes and Clark being in line for the winners, while Rudolph and Carrigan were on the points for the locals.

The score:
At Toronto (first game) —
Toronto 5 11 0
Montreal 6 9 2
Batteries—Hughes and Walters; Hesterfer and Carrigan. Umpires, McCarthy and Conway.

At Toronto (second game) —

THE RAMBLERS TAKE TWO GAMES AND THE EAST END CHAMPIONSHIP

Oriens Defeat the Somervilles by Score of Fifteen to Four.

The Ramblers on Saturday took two games, one from the Wortmans, 6 to 2, and one from the Stars, 5 to 2, thereby winning the championship for 1907 and 1908. In the first game with the Wortmans the Ramblers played a perfect game in the field, not a single misplay of any kind, not even a pass by Pitcher Smith. This is a remarkable record when you consider that there were seventeen assists in the game. Smith, who pitched both games, played his position finely, having eleven assists in the two games.

Edwards hit off in the first, with a ringing three baser, and scored on Sheritt's hit to Carrothers. In the second they added another tally on Quick's double. Again in the fifth Cochrane hit for a double, scoring one and three more were tallied in the sixth on Cochrane and Gillis' single and P. Penwarden's double.

Wortmans scored two in the second on a single by Henley, Flynn's double and Edwards' single. That was all that was doing in the Ramblers, played an up-to-date game at short stop, while Cochrane's batting and Sheritt's base running, were the features. Edwards and McConnell, for the Foundrymen, made a formidable battery. Only three of the Ramblers were retired at first base in the game.

The Ramblers defeated the Oriens four times, the Wortmans three. Stars three, Somervilles two. They lost to Wortmans one, Stars one, Somervilles two, winning twelve games out of sixteen played.

WINNIPEG IS GOING TOO FAST REAL ESTATE IS BOUND TO FALL

Rev. I. B. Wallwin Returns From Trip to That City—His Impressions.

Rev. I. B. Wallwin, pastor of Em-press Avenue Methodist Church, has just returned from a month's vacation spent in the Northwest, including Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Calgary, Edmonton and some rural districts.

In an interview with an Advertiser reporter he said that the great west is bound to be all its many friends claim for it. It will have temporary checks, as from booms and frosts, but, like a running stream, will leap over all obstacles.

Great Progress.

Mr. Wallwin visited the above places, except Edmonton, eight years ago, and declares that the progress of the country since then has been phenomenal. At Calgary, on a part of the open prairie where eight years ago he played golf, there is now a fine residential district, closely packed with beautiful homes. All the chief cities have grown marvelously, and on the great stretch of prairie along the C. P. R., where there were no signs then of habitation, are now growing villages and towns, farm-houses and stacks of hay, horses and cattle, waving wheat, and oats.

The Crops.

The crops in parts of Southern Manitoba, he says, are spare, in some places very poor, chiefly on account of extended drought after seeding. The first rains of note occurred on his arrival, about three weeks ago, too late to save the situation. North and west of Brandon crops are good, as they are also in the great Regina plain, and also in the Edmonton district.

A Great Year.

This is a quiet year, comparatively, in the west, the crops being so late that the safe harvesting is uncertain, and the real estate boom of the cities having reached a head. The season is fully three weeks behind, harvesting, even in Manitoba, having only begun this week, while about Edmonton the grain ten days ago was as green as the grass. Superabundant rain, falling almost every other day for weeks, from Regina to Edmonton, has retarded the harvest, while on account of the late season, frost is now the bete noire. Two weeks ago a frost at the latter place did some damage, as also indeed in parts of Manitoba.

The real estate boom of the cities has ended, and while holders are steadily buying to maintain prices at high water mark, there is bound to be a serious fall. Mr. Wallwin was told that in Winnipeg there had been enough lots sold for a city of two million people. Probably that is an overstatement, he thinks, yet in all the chief cities property will not further advance in price for at least five years. Regina is bound to be a beautiful city, with its splendid public buildings and the magnificent streets it is laying out and constructing in permanent form. Edmonton, with Strathcona on the opposite bank of the swift and mighty Saskatchewan, is the picturesque city of the west, grandly placed on the north bank of the river, on a high plateau, and commercially the gateway to the great country to the north and west, including the Peace River country.

Superb structures are being erected here—banking, mercantile, educational, religious, private and provincial. Edmonton has been well chosen as the seat of government, and Strathcona as the seat of the provincial university.

Mr. Wallwin took boat at Sarnia, and had a pleasant trip up the lakes, returning by the fine new steamer of the Northern Navigation Company, the Huron.

Rev. Dr. Ross Lays Down Principles For Capital and Labor to Follow

Preaches on Topics of Much Interest on Labor Day—Offers Many Suggestions.

Labor Day topics were discussed in several city pulpits yesterday. Rev. Dr. Ross, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, preached on the Church's attitude to the labor question in the light of the life and teaching of Jesus, the carpenter of Nazareth. On a day of this kind the world is talking of the dignity of labor, less dignified labor for he was a laborer himself. He knew the struggles and sorrows of the poor. He knew what it was to be without work. He knew how difficult it was to work for inadequate remuneration, and he knew days of enforced idleness. But all this did not sour his disposition. He ever kept sense of justice.

All Labor Honorable.

In the light of his teachings all labor is honorable. Laboring men were at one time looked down upon by their employers. That day has passed, and now the danger was the other way. The workingmen are liable to look down upon all others. The labor journals are calling the rich parasites, non-producers, and other names, not complimentary. There should be mutual respect. A man who has built up a large industry by patience and hard work is worthy of respect. He is a producer. A man that rescues another from a life of vice, and makes him an honest and worthy citizen has produced something. The man who saves a man from suicide or a woman from a life of shame is a producer and is worthy of respect.

At present there was not so much antagonism in Canada between capital and labor as in the United States, but as most all the labor organizations have their headquarters in the States there was always danger of imbibing that viewpoint, and he warned labor against that. The workingmen were the largest contributors to churchwork and they would always find the clergy sympathetic and helpful to them.

The Church and Labor.

There were two things that the church and labor organizations should work for—to preserve the sanctity of the Sabbath and the promotion of temperance. The liquor traffic was a great foe to the workingman and always has been. The open Sabbath was not in the interests of the worker. "Labor men should not condone wrongdoing because it was done by men on their side," declared Dr. Ross. "I found a journal the other day that defended the grafting of Mayor Schmitz, of San Francisco. The same journal defended the Western Federation of Miners, an organization composed of, as far as he could judge, of thugs. The acquittal of Hayward is acclaimed with much rejoicing, although no person can believe that he was entirely guiltless. The state was merely unfortunate in its witnesses. Such things as these bring discredit upon labor, and defame it."

Eight Principles.

Eight principles were laid down by Dr. Ross upon which the church ought to insist. The church should by no means take sides with either capital or labor, but preserve its neutrality, a mediator between the two factions. The principles were:

1.—Every man has the right to work for whom and for what wages he wishes. He ought not to be compelled to join a labor organization unless he sees that it is to his advantage to do so.

2.—Every employer of labor should be free to choose whatever laborer he wishes. There should be open shops.

3.—Compulsory arbitration should obtain. This principle is the right principle, especially where the interests of the community are at stake. Capital is capitalized, so should labor unions. The latter should not avoid their fair share of responsibility by avoiding incorporation.

4.—Every laborer should be paid the wages he earns, not the wages another man earns. A uniform scale of wages tends to encourage incompetence and laziness.

5.—Capital must recognize the right of labor to organize. It should not discriminate against a union man just because he is a union man no more than the union should discriminate in favor of a union man just because he is a union man.

6.—No man has the right to quit his job and hold on to it at the same time. He has no right to keep others from work. He should not use violence under any circumstances.

7.—The principle of boycott must be condemned.

8.—The golden rule should be applied to all questions relating to capital and labor. It is capable of being employed and would solve many of the difficulties now distressing both parties.

are those from surrounding places, like Woodstock, Guelph, etc., while several were noted to be from Hamilton and Toronto.

Transients Numerous.

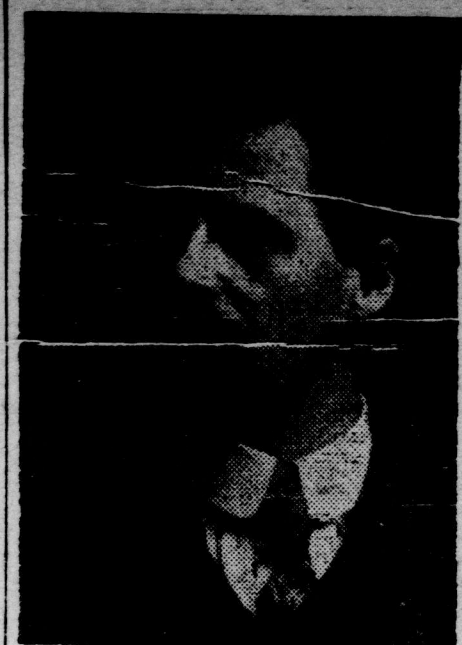

In other hotels the same story was heard. The number of transients registered was remarkable, and although the hotelmen were at a loss to explain the reason for the situation, it is needless to say that they weren't sorry it was so.

"As a rule, when we have outsiders registered here, they are traveling men," said one hotelkeeper. "Now it is different. Nearly all of those here at present seem to just be out for a good time, and that they have selected London as the most likely place to spend the great holiday reflects most favorably on the city as an amusement center."

BOOTH PLANS ANOTHER BIG TOUR

Head of the Salvation Army to Visit America This Autumn.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

London, Aug. 31.—Despite his 73 years, General Booth continues to display apparently inexhaustible vigor in the management of the Army. Although he only recently completed an extended motoring campaign in England, preaching in every town through which he passed, he is in excellent health and is eagerly anticipating a fresh autumnal campaign which he has planned for the United States and Canada. He will sail from Liverpool on September 13, and will be absent about eight weeks, during which he will travel some 8,000 miles and make addresses at upwards of a hundred meetings. He will hold numerous conferences with the Army for the purpose of extending the work in America.

DROPPED DEAD IN HOTEL ROOM

London and after spending a couple of years in this city, he returned to Ireland in 1859, and brought back with him his bride.

Over Half a Century.

In all he had been about 54 years in this country, and all his business efforts proved successful. He was for a long time the proprietor of the Huron Hotel, and later in 1880, he built the Dominion House, corner of Clarence and York streets, which is now conducted by Mr. John Cox. In 1897 he assumed control of the Grigg House, and to the traveling public the house has been known as one of the best conducted in Ontario. He was also largely interested in real estate, controlling large holdings in London.

For a year or more he had not resided at the hotel, but had lived at 172 Kent street, with his daughter, Mrs. Darcy, leaving the management of the hotel to his son, Mr. Michael O'Meara.

Mr. O'Meara was a member of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, and also of the Catholic Order of Foresters. His wife died in 1880, but he is survived by one son, Michael, and two daughters, Mrs. Darcy and Mrs. E. J. Ryan, of this city. A brother, Mr. Patrick O'Meara, lives in Chicago as does also a sister, Mrs. Hogan. Another sister is in a convent in St. Louis.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Catholic cemetery.

AN OFFER TO FOURNIER.

Paris, Aug. 31.—The Echo de Paris declares the King of Greece has offered Admiral Fournier, commanding the French Mediterranean squadron, a commission to reorganize a Greek fleet. It is understood that the admiral will accept the proposal.

SHELDON ON INTEMPERANCE

Says the English Are More Intemperate Than the Americans.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

London, Aug. 31.—The Rev. Charles Sheldon, author and reformer, of Topeka, Kansas, concluded his visit to England this week and sailed for New York today on the steamship St. Louis. Before he left he was presented with an illuminated address by the officers of the United Kingdom Alliance, as a token of gratitude for the lasting service he has rendered the cause of temperance reform in Great Britain. Rev. Mr. Sheldon in an interview said that the English are more intemperate than the Americans. Glasgow and Edinburgh are worse than London, while Durham is the most intemperate county in England.

AMERICAN HUMORISTS IGNORANT BUFFOONS

English Press Says Yankees Are Losing Sense of Humor.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

London, Aug. 31.—The English press has seized upon a Chicago professor's charge that Americans are losing their sense of humor in their pursuits of wealth and seems inclined to treat it as a true indictment. "There is certainly an absence of humor in their said and cruel comments," says the Graphic. "It certainly would not be true that their best jokes are made by their richest men, but the sardonic characteristic of American humor is not its disassociation from dollars, but rather its disassociation from culture. In England it is possible and not unusual for a man to be learned and yet to bubble over with fun. Matthew Arnold did so to such an extent that he was sometimes rebuked for flippancy. Andrew Lang furnishes a contemporary case in point. But in America it is otherwise. Humorists, amusing as one finds them, are mostly ignorant buffoons like Nye and Josh Billings. The men who have got hold of culture make it hum with the unimpeachable solemnity of a top."

VESUVIUS RESTLESS

Signs That Point to Another Violent Eruption.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Rome, Aug. 31.—Recent signs of greater activity of Vesuvius are beginning to cause alarm, especially to the inhabitants of Torre Annunziata, who fear that a violent eruption is about to occur. The Government has instructed the local authorities to take the necessary measures for the removal of the population if it becomes necessary. Telegrams from Catania report that Mount Etna is also more active than usual but the people are not alarmed.

that we would be obliged to settle with the three mills on the north branch.

River Will Decrease.

"I also fear in the years to come the river will not give the quantity of water it does today. My reason for saying this is that the farmers are constantly improving their drainage systems, so that rainfall, instead of taking months to filter through the earth to reach the river, will take a shorter and shorter time until a point is reached when the farm lands adjacent to the river will be drained in a few hours.

"It will, no doubt, be claimed by those advocating river filtration that even then there will be more water in the river than at Komoka, but we must bear in mind that the principal claim made by river advocates is that we will have abundance of water for all purposes.

Komoka Water.

"The commissioners do not claim that the Komoka waters will supply the city's needs for all time, but we do say that by adding these waters the citizens of London will enjoy the same palatable and refreshing spring water that we have been having since the present Springbank system was installed—a water that is the pride of most Londoners and is praised by all visitors who come within our borders, and will give us a supply for a city twice the present population."

Italian Injured.

Sterasinas Rangeti, an Italian, was taken to Victoria Hospital last night, suffering from a broken leg. No particulars as to how the accident happened could be gleaned from him or his companions. His place of residence is not known.

Louis Wigle Injured.

Mr. Lewis Wigle, of Leamington, met with a serious accident Friday night. He was riding in a hayrack wagon, with his feet hanging through the rack. In passing through the gate at his home a crossboard caught on the gate post and was brought back with great force against one of Mr. Wigle's legs. Fortunately, the horses stopped almost immediately, or his foot would have been torn off. As it was he sustained a fracture below the knee and had his ankle dislocated. Dr. Hillier reduced the fracture and Mr. Wigle is resting easily.

NORTH BRANCH FLOWS 9,000,000 GAL.; JUST ONE-THIRD THE MAURY ESTIMATE

Supply From That Source Would Be Only Double the Present Springbank Spring Water Supply.

Engineer Moore Makes Actual Measurements and Commissioners Verify Them.

Engineer John M. Moore on Friday submitted some interesting figures to the water commissioners regarding the flow of water in the north branch of the river.

On Saturday and Tuesday last he tested the flow by means of a weir, the same device used in the measurement of the Komoka springs, and all he found was between 10,000,000 and 11,000,000 gallons per 24 hours flowing in the river.

These measurements were taken just below the Cronyn springs, where the full force of the water from those springs would be felt.

"That is the actual measurement of water flowing at that point," was the statement of Mr. Moore in submitting the figures.

Chairman Darch, Commissioner Saunders, Engineer John M. Moore and others went out to the north branch and measured the flow of water yesterday to verify

Mr. Moore's figures. The weir was found in splendid working order, and the flow was again tested.

It was found that the flow only amounted to 9,000,000 gallons, about one-third the quantity claimed by Mr. Maury in his greater London scheme.

"The flow was only 9,000,000 gallons," said Commissioner Saunders to The Advertiser on Saturday. "That is twice as much as I expected, but it is only about one-third the amount of water Mr. Maury based his calculations on. That is only about twice as much as there is at Springbank, and only about one-third more than is absolutely known to exist in Komoka and Springbank. These figures are none too reassuring to the friends of the filtration scheme, and certainly do not make the filtration scheme look like a greater London scheme. It is a known fact that the flow from the north branch is decreasing every year."

To Increase Spring Water Supply And Fire-Fighting Facilities

Water Commissioners Decide to Submit Two Bylaws to the People at Once.

The water commissioners met Friday afternoon and decided to ask No. 1 committee to recommend the council to submit the Komoka scheme to the electors immediately.

The question will be submitted, if the council is agreeable, in two parts, or rather bylaws.

The first calls for an expenditure of $233,500 for the purpose of increasing the domestic supply.

The second scheme calls for an expenditure of $182,500, and is for fire-fighting purposes largely.

It calls for a storage reservoir with a capacity of 20,000,000 gallons, with a hydraulic power attached.

The cost of the two schemes is divided as follows:

The Domestic Supply.

First scheme, for extending water supply, to cost $233,500, made up as follows:

Land 15,900
Collecting conduits 20,000
Pumping basin 1,000

MANY INFANTS DIED IN AUGUST

7 More Births, One Less Marriage and 11 More Deaths Than Last Year

The vital statistics for the month show 91 births, 32 marriages and 74 deaths. During the month of August 1906, there were 84 births, 33 marriages and 63 deaths. This year there were 7 more births, 1 less marriage, and 11 more deaths.

One remarkable feature of the statistics is the large number of deaths of infants. No less than 25 deaths are reported of infants under 1 year old. They died from all manner of infant complaints, cholera infantum and bronchitis claiming a large proportion of them. Another feature is the large number of old folks that passed away during August. Twenty-five ranging from 60 to 89 died during August. Seven were over 80 years of age, and six from 70 to 89 years of age.

Consumption still heads the list of diseases, although only five died from that complaint during August. Cancer claimed three, and lived from scarlet fever or diphtheria reported. A couple of children died from whooping cough.

PSYCHIATRIC CLINICS AT LONDON ASYLUM

Dr. McCallum Says Institution Is an Excellent Place to Try Them.

"It is possible that a psychiatric clinic may be established in London," said Dr. McCallum of the London Insane Asylum, this morning to The Advertiser. "These clinics are largely experimental as yet, the only one in existence being that at Munich where the case work of all over the world meet."

"The main point is securing of places where those afflicted may be temporarily confined for treatment. We are well situated for such a move as our infirmary is an excellent place for such work as I suggested to Hon. Mr. Hanna."

MATUSHENKO HANGED

Odessa, Aug. 30.—Matushenko, the Russian non-commissioned officer who led the mutiny on the battleship Kniaz Potemkin, and commanded that vessel on its sensational cruise about the Black Sea in 1905, was hanged yesterday at Sebastopol.

After abandoning the battleship at Kustendje, Russia, Matushenko went to New York, where he worked for two years in an iron foundry. Home-sickness led him last July to return to this city, where he was arrested.

CRASH ON THE LACKAWANNA

Stroudsburg, Pa., Aug. 31.—A wreck that resulted in the death of one man and blocked all traffic on the main line of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, from 7:30 o'clock last night until 10 o'clock this morning, occurred near here. A milk train and a fast freight met head-on, on the mountainside, just north of Stroudsburg. A number of cars were smashed, and Jos. Smith, of Scranton, a brakeman, was caught in the wreck and killed.

COLBORNE ST. BOY DISAPPEARS POLICE ASKED TO LOCATE HIM

Son of Mr. Ed. Reid Taken Away by a Woman in Black—A Note Alleged To Be From the Mother.

Yesterday afternoon about quarter to one o'clock a pretty little 6-year-old Reggie Reid, who lived with his father, Mr. Edward Reid, at 776 Colborne street, was playing out in front of the house with some other children, and he was seized by a woman in black, and borne rapidly away to some, at present, unknown locality.

At first sight the action looked like an open case of daylight kidnapping, and in a moment the neighborhood was in an uproar.

Neighbors ran wildly here and there while the lady with whom Mr. Reid and the child were boarding ran to a nearby phone and informed Mr. Reid, who is employed as a florist by Gammage & Sons, of the occurrence.

A search was at once instigated and one young lady shortly afterward discovered the woman and the child in the C. P. R. depot, a few blocks away from Colborne street. Before Mr. Reid could be notified of the fact that the couple were in the depot, however, they had disappeared and it is now thought that the woman had merely taken the child in the washroom of the depot to wash his face, which at the time had shown signs of a recent dinner.

Received a Message.

Perhaps an hour and a half after the occurrence, and while the searches were still scouring the neighborhood, Mr. Reid was handed a message which read as follows:

"Dear Ed.—I have come all the way from Frisco to get my darling boy, and unless we can come to some satisfactory agreement as to the future, I will keep him, as I have a perfect right to do so. A personal in the local papers will receive prompt attention."

"YOUR DETERMINED WIFE."

Upon reading the message Mr. Reid at once called upon the local detective, Mr. Reid was handed that they would do what they could in the matter. Later the case was placed in the hands of an attorney.

An Interesting History.

The history of the Reids is a most interesting one. The couple were married in Staffordshire, England, about eight years ago, and only came across the water two years ago, settling near Detroit, where Reid, who is an expert florist, obtained a good position at his trade. Later the husband was offered a good position with the Gammage people in this city, and came here to reside. Shortly before the couple left Michigan, difference arose, so it is said, through Mr. Reid's disapproval of his wife's conduct toward other men, and they decided to separate. However, the wife accompanied the husband and boy to this city, as she said she wanted to see what kind of a home the boy was going to be placed in. After assuring herself that she child was in good hands, Mrs. Reid left for San Francisco, where she claimed to have a position as traveling companion to a wealthy woman, whom she had known in England.

Husband Suspicious.

For some time the couple kept up a regular correspondence, but some few weeks ago Mr. Reid became satisfied that all was not as it should be with his wife in San Francisco, and communicated with the chief of police there, with the result, it is alleged, that Reid learned something which caused him to cease corresponding with her.

Children in the neighborhood noticed a strange woman in black hovering about the neighborhood of 776 Colborne street on several occasions during the past week, and some of them informed their parents of the fact. Nothing much was thought of the matter, however, until yesterday, when the Reid child disappeared.

The Missing Child.

The lady with whom Mr. Reid boarded stated today that she had never seen a more beautiful or a better disposed child than the missing boy, and everybody who came in contact with him loved the little fellow.

Mr. Gammage spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Reid, and said that he was one of the most reliable, steady and intelligent workmen that he ever had in his employ. Mr. Reid has worked for Mr. Gammage about eight months, and has never lost a day for any reason.

Deep sympathy is expressed for the husband, whom, it is said, is a perfect gentleman in every way.

Inquiry at the various railway stations of the city divulged the fact that no person answering the description of Mrs. Reid had been seen leaving on an outgoing train.

It was also rumored that the woman and the boy were seen on Richmond street last evening, and that fact, coupled with the note in reference to the personal, strengthens the belief

Bridge Wreck Probe On; Govt. Experts Now on Scene

Sixteen Bodies Recovered and Total Missing Is Sixty-One and Fifteen Injured.

SIXTEEN BODIES RECOVERED. SIXTY-ONE MISSING. SIXTEEN INJURED.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Quebec, Aug. 31.—Although many willing hands were unceasingly engaged all night and this morning in the work of recovering the bodies of the unfortunate victims from the ruins of the Quebec bridge, the intricacies of the steelwork render the task exceedingly difficult, and at high tide perilous. At 6 o'clock this morning some bodies were taken out of the debris. Fourteen were brought to the city morgue last evening while two still remain at the bridge.

Coroner Jolicoeur will convene a jury at 11 o'clock this morning at the scene of the calamity and then be discharged until Tuesday morning next when the inquest will begin. The coroner intends making a minute and rigid inquest and shall adduce all possible evidence regarding the disaster.

Messrs. Butler, deputy minister of railways, and Mr. Schreiber, former deputy minister, who have been named as commission to investigate the disaster, with Mr. Holgate as expert engineer, arrived in Quebec this morning, and their first duty was to visit the scene.

Hon. S. N. Parent, president of the Quebec Bridge Company, also arrived from Ottawa this morning, and in company with Mr. E. A. Howare, the company's engineer, also proceeded to the scene. When Mr. Parent was asked if he had anything to state, he said that he preferred to wait until he viewed the ruins before passing an opinion.

One of the directors of the Quebec Bridge Company said this morning that a meeting would be held very likely on Monday, and that in his opinion they would urge the immediate continuance of the work. Asked if he thought the proposed span of the bridge would be shortened in consequence of the disaster, he replied: "We had the best engineering advice in the world before we undertook the work, and the span of 1,800 feet is not by any means too great. The bridge will be rebuilt and it will be along exactly the same architectural lines as the one that collapsed."

It is expected that Messrs. Butler and Schreiber will hold the first meeting of the commission this afternoon.

J. Stirling Deans, chief engineer for the Phoenix Bridge Company, and J. Clapka, also of the Phoenix Company, arrived here this morning to look after the company's interests. They refused to give out any statement for the public.

There are thousands of people lining both shores of the St. Lawrence for a glimpse of either side of the scene while many small craft dot the river in close proximity to where the searchers continue their sad work.

MR. AND MRS. TRICK HONORED BY FRIENDS

Given Presents and Addresses by Members of the Woodmen of the World.

A pleasant affair took place Friday in the Carling block when Mr. William Trick and his wife were made the recipients of valuable presents by the members of the different Woodmen of the World lodges in the city. Mr. Trick, who is a well-known member of the organization, leaves next Saturday for Vancouver where he will enter the shoe business. Mr. Trick was made the recipient of a handsome signet ring with the W. O. W. emblem on it. The presentation was made by Mr. Jas. McCormick.

Mrs. Trick was presented with a silver fern bowl, Mr. F. Fraleigh making the presentation, and Mr. W. Fessenden the address.

The remainder of the evening was spent pleasantly with song and story, and Mr. Joseph Winters, of Hyde Park, made a speech. There was a large crowd present, a number of whom were from Hyde Park.

TO PROSECUTE GILLETTE

Civil Authorities Arrest the Slayer of Miss Cadenhead.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 30.—Cyrus Gillette, the soldier who shot and killed Miss Cadenhead while attempting to prevent an escape of a prisoner at the Michigan Soo about a month since, and who was recently acquitted by court-martial on the charge of involuntary manslaughter, was taken into custody this morning by the civil authorities.

British Strikebreakers Half Killed by Antwerp Dock Laborers.

Antwerp, Aug. 31.—Disorders have broken out between the striking dock laborers and the men brought in to take their places. Yesterday a band of strikers set upon and half killed four British strikebreakers, and minor skirmishes between strikers and non-union men have been frequent.

For Spring Water and High Pressure; Mr. John White Answers His Critics

President of the Rolling Mills Company and Bolt Works Writes on Water Question.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I have read the reply of "Citizen" in the Free Press of Tuesday to my letter in your paper on Saturday last, and am not surprised, for, as a rule it is easy to astonish a man that jumps at conclusions and makes statements that he cannot substantiate.

First—My letter was written and published before the mail order vote was taken, with the honest purpose of giving voters the true facts of the case, every word of which was perfectly true. I was asked if I would allow my letter to be reproduced and gave my consent. This explains why my letter appeared in Saturday's Advertiser.

"Citizen" complains that I do not profess to know all about filtration, and should not have rushed into print. I may throw back the insinuation, and say truthfully that "Citizen" does not know what he is talking about, and will prove it before I get through. The only difference between us is that I had the moral courage to acknowledge my ignorance, while he assumes a very superior air, and writes what he cannot prove.

Referring to the question what I should do if I were a citizen of Chatham, this is not a parallel case, but if it were I, as a citizen of Chatham, should have done exactly the same as I have as a citizen of London, providing that the conditions were the same, and that an abundance of spring water was as available there that would flow into the city by gravitation as is the case here.

"Citizen" accuses me falsely of trying to poison the minds of the citizens. This is exactly what I am trying to prevent, not only the poison of the minds but the poisoning of the bodies also.

"Citizen" states that 800,000 gallons is the limit of the Cronyn and White springs. I believe there is much more, but allowing that to pass there are other springs within easy reach, that would produce as much, or perhaps more than an equal amount, and would also flow in by gravitation.

I thank "Citizen" for his compliments, and can assure him that I am as firm a believer in the future growth of our city as he is, provided we can prevent extravagant expenditure of public funds for useless experiments and experts' opinions.

"Citizen" accuses me of insincerity in that I recommend to the city what I would not practice in my own business. Again, he is very wide of the mark; for this is precisely what I have been doing for years. At our rolling mill we are pumping millions of gallons of water from the south branch of the river for manufacturing purposes, and use city water for drinking only. We find even the south branch water excellent for our purpose, and have never found any but effects from the use of it. In fact, we prefer it for manufacturing. I believe we use more river water than any five firms in the city put together, and know something of the value of it for manufacturing purposes.

Filtered water alone never can meet all the requirements of the case so long as we are using our present system of piping, which is quite inadequate, both in capacity and strength, to supply water for all purposes at the present time, and as the city grows the conditions will become worse, and our present system more and more unequal to the demand, until a second system will have to be put in, and to the contrary.

A number of alternative proposals have been advanced from the Newfoundland side, but, meanwhile, failing an agreement on a modus vivendi in a new form, it is the understanding that a truce will prevail, by the terms of which American fishermen will continue to ply their vocation on the coast of Newfoundland, according to the terms of the agreement of last year.

CAPTAIN MURPHY WILL QUALIFY FOR A PLACE IN THE BISLEY TEAM

So Thinks Major Hays, Who Has Just Returned From the D. R. A. Shoot.

Major Hayes has returned from Ottawa where he has been attending the D. R. A. shooting tournament at the Rockcliffe ranges. He reports having a splendid time. He does not think he saw such keen shooting in such competition. Capt. Murphy is well up to the top of Bisley candidates.

Formerly a score of 88 allowed a man to get in on the Bisley competition but this year the scores have been so good that the standard was raised 4 points, or to 92.

No Trouble About the Water Vote

"All No. 1 committee can say is either yes or no. We can not suggest or recommend any other scheme. I don't think there will be any difficulty about the matter."

Ald. Stevely was of the same opinion. He declared that all the council could say would be yes or no, as to whether they would submit the scheme or not. "We cannot say what scheme shall be submitted," he said. "If

THE DUMP AGAIN

The dump on Clarence street caused the firemen another run this afternoon about 1 o'clock. They had to run the water on it, as the blaze was somewhat threatening for a time.

The youngsters in the neighborhood are blamed for these fires, and the firemen are none too well pleased with it. It is likely prosecutions will follow if the fires continue.

LONDON AND DISTRICT

—Miss Cora E. Hayne, of this city, is visiting friends in Detroit this week.

—Mr. E. Hildreth intends moving from West Lorne to this city in a few days.

—Miss H. M. Bessey, of 282 Eglinton street, is at present in Toronto on a visit to her brother.

—The death is announced at Mitchell, recently, of Miss Jane, daughter of the late James Ferguson, of this city. The remains were buried at Weeke, near Winchester.

—Mrs. H. Reeves and Mrs. P. Le Sueur of Hollywood, California, are spending a few weeks with Mrs. B. Le Sueur, of Belle Vue, Tecumseh avenue.

—City Clerk Baker has returned from a two-months' trip to England. He reports having had a splendid time, and enjoyed his holiday very much. He brought his daughter, Miss Gwladys, back with him.

—Mr. H. G. Martyn, of Berlin, who has been chosen to succeed Mr. McCutcheon at the Collegiate Institute, was in the city this morning, and when seen by The Advertiser said he expected to be able to come in a month's time. He anticipated no difficulty of getting away by that time.

—The Springwood Gun Club will hold its annual matinee shoot on Labor Day, beginning at 1 p.m. sharp. All shooters are cordially invited to participate. The programme will consist of a team shoot between Stratford, Ingersoll and London, besides five regular shoots of ten and fifteen birds each. The prizes will consist of cups, merchandise and cash. C. H. Ward & Co. have donated a handsome clock, to be given for high average.

Froggett—Hunter.
A quiet wedding was celebrated at the Chapter House, Unitarian Church, last evening at 8:30 o'clock, when Miss Claudia E. Hunter was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Froggett, of the Perrin Company. The young couple were unattended. The ceremony was performed by Mr. V. J. Gilpin, pastor of the Unitarian Church. Mr. and Mrs. Froggett left for a trip to Buffalo, Toronto and other eastern points. On their return they will reside on River-view avenue.

Death of Herbert Leonard.
The death occurred this morning of Herbert Leonard, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Leonard, 857 Queen's avenue, aged 16 years. The lad had been ailing for a long time and his death was not unexpected. He is survived by his parents and a sister. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon from the late residence at 2:30. The services will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Mackenzie.

Fire Statistics.
Fire Chief Clark reports that there were 23 alarms turned in during the month of August. Twenty were for fires, 1 was a chimney blaze, and 1 was test run. Seven were box alarms, 14 came by telephone, and 2 were verbal. Seven proved to be grass fires and 2 were runs to the dumps. The most serious fire of the month was that which destroyed the barns of the Southwestern Traction Company. It was attended by No. 3 company only, as the barns were outside the city.

Rescued Mr. Northcott.

St. Thomas Times: A number of the employees of the Southwestern Traction Company met at the house of George H. Miller last evening and presented him with the following address: "Mr. George H. Miller,—The true hero is one who, without hope for fee or reward, without looking for applause or thanks, quietly does what he sees to be his duty, regardless of consequences to himself. This we believe you proved yourself to be on July 2, 1907, by rescuing, at the peril of your own life, your superior officer, Mr. George Northcott, when he was caught and severely injured by the electric wires of this road." This address was artistically engrossed by Henry Roe. The address was read by Wm. Bolton, and the presentation made by George Hobbs, on behalf of the employees. Mr. Miller was completely taken by surprise, but expressed his sincere thanks.

A. O. F. MEETING AND LONDONERS

Recent Session at Berlin Was Productive of Very Much Good for the Foresters.

The delegates who have just returned from attending the high court of the A. O. F. at Galt, speak in the highest terms of the manner in which the people of Galt entertained them. The "At Home" on Wednesday evening in the town hall was of a high class and was a credit to the committee who had charge of the affair.

The business transacted by the high court will be of vital interest to the members of the A. O. F. The most sweeping change made probably was that of representation to the Subsidary High Court. Formerly the order was divided into twenty-six districts, and a representative elected from each one, but the delegates felt that the members could be brought closer together by having the delegates elected from the respective courts, and hereafter each court will elect one delegate to the high court meeting, and have a vote for each member of the court represented.

To Organize Rural Districts.
The meeting also decided to take a more active part in organizing the rural districts and places where there are no courts now. The bonus system was endorsed.

One feature noted was the executive ability displayed by the delegates. All the questions that came up for discussion were handled and discussed in a manner that would be a credit to any order.

In the election of officers the executive council who have managed the affairs so ably during the past two years, were all honored, with one exception, by being re-elected to serve for two more years. Every office was keenly contested for and London got the following honors:

London Men Honored.
High chief ranger, Bro. W. Richards, of Court Forest City, 754 Dundas street. Law and relief, Bro. A. O. Jeffery, P. H. C. P., of Court Forest Queen, Ridout street.

District chief ranger, Bro. Geo. Walters, of Court Stella, 616 Queen's avenue.

H. C. C., Mrs. Riggs, Toronto, of the Companions of the Forest, addressed the meeting and also the assembly in the town hall. The address was a very credible one, and brought forth great applause.

Special Mention.

Special mention is also due Bro. Dr. L. Secord, Brantford; Bro. W. J. Vale, Toronto; Bro. H. J. Snellgrove, Cobourg; Bro. W. J. Wilson, Toronto; Bro. Ramsey, Montreal, and "Where-we-are-at" Bro. Pinkham, of Brantford.

Some side trips were taken in by the delegates, one of the most enjoyable and amusing being a trolley ride to Berlin. Most of the fun being due to Bro. Woodstock, of Toronto, and another gentleman.

The meeting altogether was productive of good legislation for the A. O. F. and a most pleasant and enjoyable outing for the delegates. The highest praise for Galt is sounded by the members who attended the convention.

Mrs. William Barker and two children have left to visit Mrs. Henry Gram, Calgary, Alta., daughter of Mrs. Barker. They expect to stay two months.

Another Englishman Writes of LondonBirmingham Man Liked This City

Says Canadians Have Much to Learn in the Matter of City Roadmaking.

Mr. A. H. Powell, of the Birmingham Evening Dispatch, who recently visited London with the British journalists, in writing of Ontario and London, says:

The King's Dominion of Canada first impresses the visitor from the old country by its vastness. To one whose sense of perspective is founded on the dimensions of the United Kingdom, the scale of things here is bewildering. Since leaving Quebec I have traveled by night and by day over a thousand miles, visiting many towns by the way.

MR. CHAS. MEADEN,
Chairman of the Labor Day Committee of the Trades and Labor Council.

yet I have only seen a corner of the Province of Ontario. You are to understand that thus far I have only seen the most attractive side of Canada, and that I have seen it under the most favorable conditions. I have not had time to turn aside from the main current of Canadian life, and in order to cover as much ground as possible I have been fain to avail myself of the help of officials and public men, who have naturally with an agreeable impression of their country. I have had a swift-moving vision of a land flowing with milk and honey. My outlook has been rose-colored by a thousand courtesies daily renewed and by the kindest hospitalities.

Ontario Architecture.

In this part of Canada the material employed in building is almost as rich as the architectural design. There are frame houses constructed entirely of wood, though these are viewed with disfavour in some of the large towns as offering too ready a prey to fire. Again, there are native quarries of very fine stone, which combined with freely used concrete is being increasingly utilized, the walls being raised on a simple principle resembling in some respects the distinctive modern American construction. Brick buildings are also prominent in many places, but you will always notice that the builder cunningly invests his work with individuality, and individuality of a kind which appeals to the aesthetic sense. The Ontario home has none of the hard utilitarian aspect to which we are accustomed in our English towns.

Artisan House Owners.
Many of the artisans own their houses and take a great pride in them. This spirit is fostered by the governing authorities, and public money is freely laid out in cultivating the amenities. Unbragging boulevards, fringed with greenward, are a feature of most of the cities. In this respect, London, which lies midway between Lake Erie and Lake Huron, is entitled to the palm, though other towns and cities I have visited are little inferior. The graceful verandas give an extremely pleasing effect to the houses. The humblest cottage has its veranda. Often you may peep through a screen of flowers and foliage, and catch a glimpse of a hammock swinging in the cool recesses within. Hammocks are also slung in the surrounding trees, offering a delicious "invitation to repose." The dwellers in these pleasant places do not seem to be great gardeners. They are generally content with a grass plot and a few climbing plants, the classic "Jackmanii," or some other profuse bloomer about their walls. One misses the scent of the English rose.

Pointer for Canadians.
I have not found that town planning is practiced on quite the systematic lines that Councilor Nettelford and his friends advocate, but a sensible and beneficent control is exercised by the development of urban centers. There is one thing the Canadians have yet to learn, however, and that is the art of road-making. Towns have grown up with little attention to this detail, till the matter has assumed considerable urgency. Not to put too fine a point upon it, the roads are atrocious. Generally speaking, they are primitive of any foundation, and the occasional tribute of stone is engulfed as in a searoman bog. Here and there in the cities you will light upon an asphalted carriage way which is tolerable. More frequently, however, the attempts at road-making are primitive to a degree. When you have jolted at the imminent risk of your neck over a stretch of road, consisting of rough-hewn piles driven endwise in the mud, you begin to wonder whether the remedy is not worse than the disease. I ventured to murmur a wild expostulation to a native with whom I plunged in a motor car from peril to peril. "I guess when you make a road at home you put it there for keeps?" he inquired. I said, "I guess we do." It is satisfactory to know that some of the cities of Canada are beginning to discuss the road problem, though only in a speculative and detached way.

Amusements

"Piff, Paff, Pout," B. C. Whitney's magnificent musical cocktail, which has delighted audiences in all the first-class theaters of the Pacific during the past four seasons, comes to the Grand for an engagement of two nights, commencing next Monday, Sept. 9th.

Porter J. White's representative instructions to the opera house manager is to clear his stage of everything, including all scenery, mechanical effects and furniture, as they carry everything from a thunder-sheet to a $10,000 garden set, in which there are over 6,000 square feet of scenery used and eight caissons, with a carload of effects. Will appear here next Saturday, Sept. 7, at the Grand.

There is said to be more fun stored up in the new play "Sis in New York" than in any that she has had. There is plenty of chance for good comedy, and her playrights have proven in the past that they know how to supply the hostess' funmaker with plenty of opportunity.

She and Zeke show Elmer Morgan how they dance in Posey County, Indiana, you will get your money's worth. "Sis in New York" comes for one night only, on Friday, Sept. 6.

The attraction at the Grand today, matinee and evening, will be the very clever and funny farce "My Wife's Family." This attraction comes to London this season with the most flattering recommendations from every city in which they have appeared. The company number some fifteen people, and each and every one of the cast is an artist in his or her respective role. In the piece, as is so often the case with similar farces, there is no drag in the plot whatever, the lines are bright and epigrammatic flashes run throughout the show. "My Wife's Family" is not a high-priced show, but a show that is built for the people that like a pure, wholesome fun and laughter provoking play at popular prices.

Those who visited the ever popular Grand Opera House on Saturday night were accorded a treat, and it was made quite evident that the splendid advance notice sent out of the ability of Thomas Jefferson to fill the shoes of his famous father in the role of Rip Van Winkle had not flattered him unduly.

The supporting company, too, was a capable one, and the scenic effects the best that have ever been seen in this city in a Rip Van Winkle production. The performance was deserving of a packed house. It was but a fair sized crowd which turned out, the rather sultry weather of Saturday undoubtedly keeping the attendance down considerably.

The vaudeville season will open with a special holiday matinee and an all-star bill at Bennett's Theater today. This is the first time the season has been opened with a matinee performance at this popular playhouse, and the management seem to have struck the popular idea, as seats for this special opening are nearly all gone now, and those who have had seats laid away are advised to call for them early owing to the great demand.

The opening attractions are undoubtedly the best ever offered in a vaudeville performance in London. It was expected that the Bennett management would endeavor to outdo themselves for the opening, but it was never thought that Vokes and Vokes (late Ward and Vokes), would head the bill. These clever character artists have but recently closed a successful starring tour. And then there's Hal Stephens & Co. Mr. Stephens is a dramatic artist of great ability and wide reputation, while Gus Bruno, who also holds an important place on the programme, is a monologist of worldwide fame. Anna and Effie Conley are two clever girls, and offer a dainty act. The Kratons do some really wonderful things with hoops, and Faleo and Price are expert gymnasts. Shungapavi is an American Indian and offers an extremely mystifying specialty.
