The new Crushed Coffee as compared with Ground Coffee

Merely to look at it you will see how very different it is; Crushed Coffee being in small even grains, totally free of chaff or skin while ground coffee has the appearance of being mashed; large and small grains with chaff or skin mixed together.

Red Rose crushed Coffee, being free of the chaff, can be made as easily as Red Rose Tea. Settles clear and bright. No egg or anything required. Just look at our crushed Coffee and see how correctly we describe it.

Now Cured of Rheumatism
Cost Him $100.00 for medicine which failed—Cured by DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.
Mr. James Clark, Malden, Mass., writes: "I suffered for four years with rheumatism in my shoulders and could not lift my arms above my head. I tried nearly all the advertised remedies and none of them gave me relief. I got me at least $100.00 for medicine before I used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.
"With the use of this medicine, I soon found relief. I followed up this treatment for six months and was then quite free from rheumatism. While using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I never had any other ailment. I would not have believed it possible that I could be cured so soon. They always found the weak spot and gave relief while the internal treatment was bringing about a thorough cure.

BY KIMMA HOWARD WIGHT.
"Dat chile ains knows might well jest what he wants," she murmured, "and he gwine to git it, too, et he kin."
"She was spreading a second biscuit for Ernest when Stephen came into the kitchen."
"Before de Lawd!" Aunt Mandy exclaimed, as she caught sight of the boy's face. "What's done come to you, chile?"
"Come," he said. "Mother wants you."
"Ernest pulled back from him. "Me doing to eat my bustit first," he declared.
Stephen stood quietly waiting until the biscuit was consumed and Aunt Mandy had washed the child's face and hands. Then he took Ernest's hand and led him very gently from the kitchen and up the stairs to the sick room.

At the door he stopped and said: "You must be very quiet and very good, Ernie, so as not to disturb mother. She's real poorly, you know. "Me ain't doing to lay long," Ernest declared. "Me dess do in and kiss mamma. Me doing with Pete to milk the cow."
Stephen softly opened the door. The room was filled with a crimson glow from the setting sun, and a golden gleam across the still figure on the bed.
Ernest ran toward the bed. "Mamma!" he cried.
The next moment he turned and held up a warning finger to Stephen. "Flush!" he whispered. "Don't make a noise. Mamma's gone to sleep."

"See that you have, Pete," Mary said, rising. "Thank you very much," she held out her hand for the basket.
"Don't hurry, Miss Mary, honey," said Aunt Mandy, with a glance out of the window to where she could see the moon returning from the hills.
"Oh, I must make haste home," Mary replied. "Or I won't have the apple dumplings I promised father for dinner," and she hurried out.
"I wonder if Miss Mary knows dat Marse Stephen is lub wid her, too?" Aunt Mandy remarked to Pete.
"How you know Marse Stephen is lub wid Miss Mary?" asked Pete. "I ain't never seed him act lak he was in lub wid her."
"Marse Stephen ain't one ob de kind what shows his feelings," declared Aunt Mandy. "But I ain't took keer ob him all his life for auffer." "I knows what I is talking about," and Aunt Mandy nodded her head emphatically.

Aunt Mandy reflected for a moment. "Now I ain't so shor about dat," she declared at length. "Day said dat love an blind and Miss Mary, she sholy an wide awake to de faults and failings ob Mist' Ernest."
"Deed?" exclaimed Pete.
As Mary passed out, two young men were approaching the house from the direction of the corn fields.
The elder was tall, broad-shouldered, with strongly marked features and grave eyes. The younger was slender and acutely and gracefully built, with a fair face almost womanish in its beauty.
The rose flush deepened a little on the girl's cheek as the two young men came up to her. Stephen lifted his cap and passed on toward the house. Ernest stopped, took the girl's basket and walked with her toward the swinging bridge.
"If I had known you were at the house, Mary," he said, looking down at her basket, "I would have left the field and come home."
"You were much better employed where you were," the girl remarked, demurely.
The young fellow laughed a soft, low laugh.
"I wonder if you really think that," he murmured.
Mary made no reply, but as they reached the center of the swinging bridge, she stopped and held out her hand for the basket.
"Don't come any further, Ernest," she said. "Aunt Mandy was taking up the dinner when I left and yours will be cold when you get back."
Ernest hesitated for a moment, then with a smile, he handed Mary the basket.
"I don't like my dinner cold," he said, "so I reckon I had better go back."
Mary flashed upon him an odd, half-laughing glance in which there was a touch of mockery.
"Good-by," she said, and passed on. Ernest stood looking after her, for a moment, with a little puzzled frown, then he shrugged his shoulders, turned, and went back.

CHAPTER III.
Eighteen years later.
A girl was crossing the swinging bridge, carrying a basket in her hand. She was very pretty. She had liquid brown eyes, a creamy skin, pink flush on the cheeks, a lovely mouth and rich, Auburn hair.
In the center of the bridge, she paused and stood looking down the creek. It was a morning early in October. The trees on the banks of the creek had the rich tints of autumn. In some places the creek narrowed until the branches of the trees met and interlaced, forming natural arches dashed with crimson and gold.
The girl lingered for some moments, a dreamy look in her brown eyes, then she turned and walked along the bridge and down the steps to the road upon which the farmhouse gates opened.
A big, stalwart darky was cutting wood in the yard. At the sight of the girl he laid down his axe and came forward to open the gate for her.
"Good morning, Pete," she said, in a voice that was very soft and sweet.
"Good morning, Miss Mary," the darky replied, touching his cap. "I reckon you've done come for some apples? You can go to de house and I gwine to fill yo' basket for you. 'Tain't nobody home cep'ing granny."
"Yes, it is the truth, Aunt Mandy," replied Mary. "I shall begin next week."
"Pete and Mist' Ernest better be a getting married," declared Aunt Mandy. "Dat boy lub yo' better dan he lub anybody in de world."
The girl flushed a little, then she looked at Aunt Mandy with a mischievous smile creeping about her lips.
"Yes, I think you are mistaken, Aunt Mandy, as to the person Ernest loves that in de world," she remarked, demurely. "Of all persons in de world Ernest loves best—himself."
"Well," said Aunt Mandy, after a reflective pause, "I's bound to 'low dat Mist' Ernest allers did know how to look after number one. And we's all done help to spile him, Marse Stephen, Pete and me. 'Tain't Marse Stephen, he allers give us to Mist' Ernest, allers thinking ob him self. He lub dat boy cause as dough he war his own flesh and blood ob being no kin 'tall. Eighteen years later.
A girl was crossing the swinging bridge, carrying a basket in her hand. She was very pretty. She had liquid brown eyes, a creamy skin, pink flush on the cheeks, a lovely mouth and rich, Auburn hair.
In the center of the bridge, she paused and stood looking down the creek. It was a morning early in October. The trees on the banks of the creek had the rich tints of autumn. In some places the creek narrowed until the branches of the trees met and interlaced, forming natural arches dashed with crimson and gold.
The girl lingered for some moments, a dreamy look in her brown eyes, then she turned and walked along the bridge and down the steps to the road upon which the farmhouse gates opened.
A big, stalwart darky was cutting wood in the yard. At the sight of the girl he laid down his axe and came forward to open the gate for her.
"Good morning, Pete," she said, in a voice that was very soft and sweet.
"Good morning, Miss Mary," the darky replied, touching his cap. "I reckon you've done come for some apples? You can go to de house and I gwine to fill yo' basket for you. 'Tain't nobody home cep'ing granny."
"Yes, it is the truth, Aunt Mandy," replied Mary. "I shall begin next week."
"Pete and Mist' Ernest better be a getting married," declared Aunt Mandy. "Dat boy lub yo' better dan he lub anybody in de world."
The girl flushed a little, then she looked at Aunt Mandy with a mischievous smile creeping about her lips.
"Yes, I think you are mistaken, Aunt Mandy, as to the person Ernest loves that in de world," she remarked, demurely. "Of all persons in de world Ernest loves best—himself."
"Well," said Aunt Mandy, after a reflective pause, "I's bound to 'low dat Mist' Ernest allers did know how to look after number one. And we's all done help to spile him, Marse Stephen, Pete and me. 'Tain't Marse Stephen, he allers give us to Mist' Ernest, allers thinking ob him self. He lub dat boy cause as dough he war his own flesh and blood ob being no kin 'tall. 'Tain't Pete, he allers did set a lot ob 'er' by Mist' Ernest; he sholy done lub dat boy."
"We all done took to him from de first when 'de more bring him and his widnowy home to de farm. He war such a pretty chile and so winning lak in his ways and he's done growed up wid dem same winning ways. Don't recount as so gel, what dat boy done set his heart on, could help taling Mist' Ernest, Aunt Mandy concluded, with a glance out of the corner of her eye at Mary.

At that moment Pete entered, carrying Mary's basket filled with big red apples.
"I done fetched you some mighty nice ones, Miss Mary," he said.
"See that you have, Pete," Mary said, rising. "Thank you very much," she held out her hand for the basket.
"Don't hurry, Miss Mary, honey," said Aunt Mandy, with a glance out of the window to where she could see the moon returning from the hills.
"Oh, I must make haste home," Mary replied. "Or I won't have the apple dumplings I promised father for dinner," and she hurried out.
"I wonder if Miss Mary knows dat Marse Stephen is lub wid her, too?" Aunt Mandy remarked to Pete.
"How you know Marse Stephen is lub wid Miss Mary?" asked Pete. "I ain't never seed him act lak he was in lub wid her."
"Marse Stephen ain't one ob de kind what shows his feelings," declared Aunt Mandy. "But I ain't took keer ob him all his life for auffer." "I knows what I is talking about," and Aunt Mandy nodded her head emphatically.
"Well, I reckon Marse Stephen ain't got no chance side ob Mist' Ernest," said Pete.
Aunt Mandy reflected for a moment. "Now I ain't so shor about dat," she declared at length. "Day said dat love an blind and Miss Mary, she sholy an wide awake to de faults and failings ob Mist' Ernest."
"Deed?" exclaimed Pete.
As Mary passed out, two young men were approaching the house from the direction of the corn fields.
The elder was tall, broad-shouldered, with strongly marked features and grave eyes. The younger was slender and acutely and gracefully built, with a fair face almost womanish in its beauty.
The rose flush deepened a little on the girl's cheek as the two young men came up to her. Stephen lifted his cap and passed on toward the house. Ernest stopped, took the girl's basket and walked with her toward the swinging bridge.
"If I had known you were at the house, Mary," he said, looking down at her basket, "I would have left the field and come home."
"You were much better employed where you were," the girl remarked, demurely.
The young fellow laughed a soft, low laugh.
"I wonder if you really think that," he murmured.
Mary made no reply, but as they reached the center of the swinging bridge, she stopped and held out her hand for the basket.
"Don't come any further, Ernest," she said. "Aunt Mandy was taking up the dinner when I left and yours will be cold when you get back."
Ernest hesitated for a moment, then with a smile, he handed Mary the basket.
"I don't like my dinner cold," he said, "so I reckon I had better go back."
Mary flashed upon him an odd, half-laughing glance in which there was a touch of mockery.
"Good-by," she said, and passed on. Ernest stood looking after her, for a moment, with a little puzzled frown, then he shrugged his shoulders, turned, and went back.

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 1, 1910.

Mr. Borden is Scoring.

The success which has been attending Mr. R. L. Borden upon his triumphant tour in Ontario is very gratifying to us in this his native province, and especially to his old neighbors and friends in this vicinity. The welcome which he is receiving, however, is no surprise to us. Mr. Borden always was a favorite and extremely popular in Ontario. In fact his popularity has been so great that we question if he is not received with a warmer welcome, with a greater enthusiasm than that which we accord this peerless leader, right "at home." It is characteristic of Ontario to show their loyalty to the party. On this occasion there has been no exception. Mr. Borden has captured the hearts of the Ontario voters, and on every side has received an unbounded welcome. The Liberal press has given his meetings generous attention. The reports of the meetings of Mr. Borden have even in the Liberal papers contained much praise of the leader of the Opposition, all of which is a pleasing manifestation that Mr. Borden is surely coming into his own and is being publicly proclaimed by friend and foe as the next Premier of Canada and that right soon.

Dr. Keirstead.

Prof. E. M. Keirstead, D. D., of McMaster University, widely known and much beloved throughout the Maritime Provinces, is spending his vacation in British Columbia. In a report of the closing exercises of Okanagan College, in the Western Outlook, we find these references to him: "All our hearts were made glad by the presence of Dr. Keirstead, of McMaster University. The distinguished and learned professor has the eye and imagination of a seer and readily enters into a genuine appreciation of 'futures,' an asset of the west that must never be omitted in estimating the worth of a place or the value of a cause. During the week which Dr. Keirstead spent in Summerland he won the respect and admiration of all who were fortunate enough to come into contact with him." On Sunday morning in the Baptist church at West Summerland, Dr. Keirstead preached an inspiring and informing sermon on the relation of higher education to life at its best. In the evening he gave his message in the young men's Club Hall at the Front. The Methodists and Presbyterians courteously discontinued their services for the day and so the preacher had full houses and appreciative audiences from all denominations. It is worth a good deal to any man, no matter what his denominational affiliations, to hear the truth presented by such a master of the tongue eloquent as Dr. Keirstead. Of his address before the graduating class of the college, the report says that for an hour and a quarter Dr. Keirstead held the audience enthralled while he elaborated in a unique and locally appropriate manner the ideal of higher education. It was a masterly effort by a master of English and will do much to strengthen the faith of some who heard and to enlighten the minds of others who may have been wholly or partly in ignorance of what Okanagan stands for.

The 'Royal Edward,' the new triple-screw turbine steamer of the Canadian Northern Steamships, limited, has clipped two hours of the Canadian Trans-Atlantic record. Leaving Bristol 5 p. m., June 28th, she completed the journey to her dock at Quebec in 5 days, 23 hours, 30 minutes. The previous record for any Canadian steamer was 6 days, 1 hour, 45 minutes. This establishes the claim made for the twin-ships, 'Royal Edward' and 'Royal George,' that they are the fastest and finest appointed steamers sailing between Canada and Great Britain.

The Victoria baseball club has been very successful so far this season, and their efforts to sustain a good baseball team in town should receive the support of citizens generally. The club is made up of a fine lot of young men, and we believe, will give a good account of themselves throughout the season. Wolfville people should be glad to assist any undertaking to encourage athletics in town, and we believe at the present time contributions to the funds of the club will be much appreciated.

The contract between the Nova Scotia government and the Halifax and Eastern Railway company was signed on Monday afternoon for the building of 204 miles of railway from Halifax to Guysboro, with a branch across the province from New Glasgow to Country Harbor on the Atlantic seaboard. The enterprise has been promoted by E. B. Bertram, of Toronto, and the company is composed chiefly of London capitalists.

Today is the forty-third birthday of this Canada of ours. What wonderful progress has been made since these provinces were welded together into one Dominion. To those great men of the past who conceived and brought about this union sit honor and thanks is certainly due from the present generation.

Serious reports are coming from the west with reference to the wheat prospects. Manitoba reports tremendous heat and drought. A loss of at least 10 per cent. is already reported in that province, and the future is certainly far from reassuring.

RECREATION OR RE-CREATION.

Recreation is usually considered to be mere diversion. It is the change of scene or occupation with which we endeavor to relieve the monotony of life. It is the introduction of the thrill of excitement into the customary quietness of ordinary existence. It is getting away from everyday duties and finding fun and relaxation on pleasure fields, beaches, and islands.

But recreation is infinitely more than this. As the word itself clearly states, it is re-creation. Its function is more than fun and its purpose more than pleasure. It is not diversion only, but development. It is not change only, but character creation. It is a necessary process in the development of human life and of Canadian citizenship.

It means relaxation. It has been discovered in great manufacturing establishments that the machines need regular rests, or are benefited thereby. To keep the wheels whirling day after day, without any cessation whatever, decreased the period of usefulness of the machine. And if this be true of wood and steel, what must be the need of the human body and brain for rest and relaxation?

The country that does not make adequate provision for the proper relaxation of its working brain and brain is guilty of an invidious sort of suicide. It is neglecting one of the prime factors in the development and conservation of the human force which must ever be its motive power in progress and achievement.

Work is not more a necessity than leisure. Toil creates things, leisure re-creates the worker. Toil of itself makes a man into a mere machine, and insofar as it becomes automatic there is a corresponding decrease in the brain activity of the worker. It becomes absolutely necessary that if the real man is to be saved from the stultifying and machine-making process, that he be given every possible chance of re-creating himself by means of leisure, relaxation and change of thought.

Pleasure parks play just as important a part as factories and workshops. Amusement is just as essential as industrial activity. The product of physical effort cannot be properly appraised without taking into account its cost in human character. Where wheels grind grain at the expense of the workers, there can hardly be other than a net loss.

It is to be hoped that in this last day of human wisdom and common sense we shall see the measurability of the "world-workshop" idea, which has so long been paraded before our country as the ideal towards whose realization all should strive. Canada is doomed if we can collectively turn our backs on the fact that this country offers a brilliant chance to every man to work himself to death, as a cog in the great industrial machine that is able to produce wheat for a world.

Canada surely exists primarily for the purpose of developing Canadians. Our wealth is of use only when it adds to our well. It were better that our industries should go to smash, and our wheat fields and orchards should become a waste than to sacrifice human development in the least to increase our gain.

The present rush of humanity in all the great centers of population for beaches and fields Sunday and holidays is wonderfully significant. It reveals the consciousness of the need of change, the desire for larger outlook, the demand for the joy of life. It is in reality a protest against conditions which make men only slaves to the machines of production, and the assertion of the natural craving of a real human self that refuses to be so limited and confined. As for ourselves, we are wise to seek that form of recreation that re-creates. Many a vacation is a useless farce, leaving one at the end more tired than at the beginning, and contributing nothing to character or to content.

If it be in your power during the summer to bring a re-creative influence into the lives of any of your fellow citizens, count it a sacred duty. If you can give a dollar to help send some child into some more pleasant conditions, and thereby give it new life and stronger impulse towards the higher things of life you may be sure that the dollar will be wisely spent, not only for your own good, but for the good of Canada.

Teddy Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt having returned to America, the unhappy British Empire must worry along as best it can. Egypt seems likely to become undeniably prominent again. The British government must be embarrassed over Mr. Roosevelt's outspoken speech at the Guildhall, because if a change is desirable they can hardly make it at the bidding of a blunt visitor.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst calls Mr. Roosevelt "a tin soldier" and "a toy colonel," and advises him to confine himself to whatever private business he may have. The truth is that America is three sizes too small for Mr. Roosevelt, and he is about fit to run the earth and if he could have got hold of the right length of rope he would have lashed Hearst's Conestoga, and about all Mr. William Randolph Hearst can do is to run behind Mr. Roosevelt while he is on his "private business" and cheer.

The Greatest Cure For Rheumatism In The World

"For many years, I suffered from severe Rheumatism, and the attacks were very distressing and prevented me from doing my ordinary work. I tried many remedies and physicians' treatments, but nothing seemed to do me much good, and I was becoming very anxious for fear I would become a permanent cripple from the disease. I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and this medicine has entirely cured me and I honestly believe it is the greatest Rheumatism cure in the world." E. E. MILLS.

Such a statement could not be bought from a man like Mr. Mills. He thinks too much of this good name, to sell it or sign it to an untruth. Mr. Mills tried 'Fruit-a-tives' after all other treatments failed—and 'Fruit-a-tives' cured him of Rheumatism. In the goodness of his heart, he wrote the above letter in order that sufferers in far parts of Canada would know that there is one remedy that actually does cure Rheumatism. This testimonial was entirely unsolicited on our part. We did not know that Mr. Mills was taking 'Fruit-a-tives' until we received the above letter.

It is a case like Mr. Mills' that proves the marvelous powers of 'Fruit-a-tives' in eradicating and curing disease. It may be stated, without fear of contradiction, that 'Fruit-a-tives' will positively cure Rheumatism when properly used. 'Fruit-a-tives' is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices and is the greatest Rheumatism cure known to modern science.

Most Modern Cattle Accommodations at Dominion Exhibition.

The most modern of live stock accommodations will be afforded exhibitors at the Dominion Exhibition in St. John, N. B., September 5th to 15th—indeed the new facilities embody the latest and most approved ideas, and will be appreciated by both exhibitor and sight seer. In the cattle-barn proper, 500 head will be housed within easy eye range. In connection with each stall there will be running water and other improvements. A patent little carrier suspended from the railway track in the ceiling will be utilized to remove all accumulations, while the drainage will be perfect. Sheep will be accommodated in keeping with most modern ideas. From central elevated walks spectators will be afforded an excellent view of the animals as they wander around their six-foot pens. The carpentry work will be open or picketed, assuring constant circulation of air. The Pigery will follow this same plan of erection, special attention to ventilation, freedom from over-crowding, lighting and sight-seeing. Heretofore exhibits of horses have been made in long rows of box stalls only, but this year special provision is being made for harness horses in new barns arranged with broad aisles. Poultry and Pet Stock are to be shown in what was formerly known as Agricultural Hall where much more space is available and a comprehensive display is possible.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

The second annual convention of the Kings County Women's Christian Temperance Union, which was held at the Baptist church, Berwick, was a very interesting and successful gathering. About fifty delegates from Kentville, Wolfville, Canning, Berwick and Aylesford were present, notwithstanding the very disagreeable state of the weather. Business sessions were held in the morning at 10.30 o'clock and in the afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, when routine business was transacted, reports received and officers elected for ensuing year. Interesting papers were presented on 'The future of the W. C. T. U.', 'Our Departments—How to Work Them', 'The address of the president, Mrs. W. Mitchell, of this town, was very interesting and encouraging. The officers for the ensuing year are as follows: President—Mrs. W. Mitchell, Wolfville. Vice President—Mrs. Turner, Kentville. Recording Secretary—Mrs. (D.) Crowell, Canning. Corresponding Secy—Mrs. B. J. Davison, Wolfville. Treasurer—Mrs. J. N. Chute, Berwick. Auditor—Mrs. Edwin Harris, Aylesford.

In the evening a public meeting was held, at which the church was well filled. Addresses were given by Mr. E. B. Newcombe, president of the Kings County Temperance Alliance; Rev. Mr. Rutledge, pastor of the Berwick Baptist church; Rev. Neil Heron, of Wolfville; Rev. J. D. Spidell, of Kentville, and others. Excellent music was furnished by the choir and a male quartette, and a beautiful vocal solo was given by Mr. Earle Spicer of Berwick.

Baby's Own Tablets.

Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home where there are infants and young children, and at first signs of illness during the hot summer months they should be given to the little one. At no time of the year is a baby in such danger as in summer. Summer complaints come on so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the little one may be beyond help in a few hours. The Tablets never fail to relieve the sick child, and if occasionally given to the well child they will keep him well. Mrs. P. Laroche, Les Fonds, Que., says:—"Last summer my baby suffered severely from stomach and bowel troubles but the prompt use of Baby's Own Tablets saved his life." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

At a congregational meeting of the Baptist church in Charlottetown, a unanimous call to the pastorate was extended to Rev. Z. L. Fash, M. A., B. D. Mr. Fash preached in Charlottetown a short time ago. Mr. Fash is regarded as an able man and has held pastorates in Halifax, Woodstock, and is at present located in Hillsboro, N. B. He has the call under consideration at present. Mr. Fash married a Greenwith lady, a daughter of the late Edward B. Bishop.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The Farmers' Excursion to Truro on Friday was well patronized. More than 700 tickets were sold at the various stations in the Valley to passengers by the special excursion train, and numbers from Hants county went by regular trains over the Midland. The award of the board of conciliation in the case of the dispute between the O. T. N. and its employees, in the coal and train services on the Eastern Division, has been rejected by the committee representing the men. A Halifax exchange states that negotiations are on for the purchase of the Union Bank of Halifax by the Royal Bank of Canada. Dr. Foster F. Eaton, of Truro, and Mrs. Nelson arrived from Boston on Friday, and are the guests of Dr. H. T. DeWolfe for a few days. Mr. Edward Manning, of Greenwich, is making some quite extensive improvements in his residence at that place.

DOCTOR THE CAUSE NOT THE EFFECT

If you are afflicted with boils, pimples, scrofula, salt rheum, eczema, or any other indication of impure blood, don't waste time and money in external remedies for the treatment of these symptoms.

YOU CAN AVOID ALL THESE THINGS BY TAKING NYAL'S BLOOD PURIFIER

Sometimes there are no outward symptoms of impure blood, but instead there is a feeling of languor, a run-down listless condition, loss of appetite, showing that the organs and tissues of the body are not being nourished as they should be.

The use of Nyal's Blood Purifier is followed by the most pleasing results. The boils heal up and disappear; the skin becomes soft and smooth again, instead of harsh and scaly, or pimply. The liver is stimulated, the blood enriched, and soon the whole system feels the beneficial effect of this excellent remedy.

Pure blood means health and strength. Nyal's Blood Purifier makes pure blood.

Last Friday evening being the fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wheaton, of this town, the event was suitably commemorated by their many friends. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton were down town and on their return found their residence thronged with uninvited guests. Dr. Moore, on behalf of those assembled, in an appropriate address, presented the popular young couple with a handsome china cabinet. The host and hostess were thoroughly taken by surprise, but the former suitably replied to the address. The remainder of the evening was pleasantly spent. Death's Doings.

The death of Mr. John Tully, one of Kentville's most highly esteemed citizens, took place at 8 o'clock on Tuesday morning, after a brief illness. He was in his seventy-fifth year, and leaves besides his widow two daughters, Katherine, a trained nurse in Boston, and May, at home, and four sons, John, of Boston, William, on the homestead, Arthur, of the National Transcontinental staff, St. John, and Harry, a student at St. Francis Xavier, all of whom arrived home before their father passed away. He bequeaths to his children a farm of the largest farms in the valley, a farm that his genius and toil has made one of the beauty spots in this land of gardens, a place which is shown tourists with pride with its immense orchards, fields of oats, acres of roots and the splendid horses and cattle. Yet all is still more worth while than all of these, in the honored name, the splendid example of a life well spent. He passes away sincerely mourned, not only among his immediate circle, but the poor as well, who will miss his generous but modest charity.

The death of Mr. Earle Lewis, son of Mr. George E. Lewis, of Truro, occurred very suddenly last week at his home in Truro. He was a graduate of Acadia of the class of '08 and during his college course was very popular. He took an active part in athletics. For some time past he has been in poor health and spent some time at Seaside Lake, and came home recently, it was thought, much improved in health.

While the bridal chorus was being sung the bridal party took their places under an arch on the lawn where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Powell. Had Eczema In Both Legs

You could scarcely imagine a more severe test of this ointment than the cure of Mrs. Chase. For twenty years she suffered all the tortures of this terrible disease and tried in vain the prescriptions of doctors and the ointments commonly recommended. Mr. Fred W. Clark, Petworth, Ont., writes: 'My mother had Eczema in both legs for about 20 years and suffered from the dreadful itching, stinging, smarting, which she could not describe. She doctored and tried everything for it but got no relief until she used Dr. Chase's Ointment which was recommended to her by a friend. She found that this brought relief and by continuing its use she was cured of Eczema. I do not think any one could have this horrible disease any more than she did and am recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment as a thorough cure for Eczema.'

The Scott Act in Moncton.

Auguste Bellevue, of the Duke Hotel, Moncton, N. B., figured in a record-breaking Scott act enforcement Saturday. He was arrested no less than thirteen times during the day charged with selling and keeping for sale intoxicating liquors. He was arrested in the morning charged with selling and the police searched the hotel, finding nine bottles of whiskey in the attic. Being tried on the first charge he was convicted and fined $50.

Then followed a remarkable series of arrests, charging him with keeping for sale and selling on different dates. In all he was apprehended thirteen times and twelve cases were adjourned. In several cases he was placed on his detour.

Bellevue's case is the most remarkable in the history of Scott act enforcement in Moncton. He paid the first fine but if he should be convicted in the rest the total fines would amount to $1,000. If he should fail to pay and be given the alternative of spending three months in jail in each case, his term of imprisonment would last three years.—Ex.

The country is looking very beautiful just now. The abundance of rain has produced luxuriant foliage on the trees, and the grass never looked better at this season of the year.

Tired brain and feeble nerves are soon restored by this excellent food cure.'

A busy farmer anxiously entered the post office. 'Have you got a letter for Mike Howe?' he asked. 'The new postmaster looked at him sternly. 'For who?' he snapped. 'Mike Howe!' repeated the farmer. 'Well, I haven't,' snarled the postmaster. 'Neither have I got a letter for anybody else's cow. Get out! I have no time for foolery.'

The Mean Man.

Of all unhappy women she who has married a really mean man is surely the unhappiest. I knew a girl who, engaged to be married, never got a present that would not come in useful afterward; even her engagement ring was bought second hand. I knew the woman when she was married, and I can safely say that I never saw such an example of human 'bight'; every year she seemed to shrivel up more and more in body and mind. Her whole thought seemed finally to become centered on counting the farthings of her housekeeping allowance, so that she might steal a few of them for pocket money. No condemnation can be too strong for the mean man. Meanness, of course, is a term which only applies when the economy which practiced comes from sheer selfishness of soul; to do just what one can afford is to my mind the truest generosity. Such giving leaves behind no sting, either for the dispenser or the receiver.—Ez.

Wise Words.

It takes an expert sometimes to distinguish between enthusiasm and gush. The noisy man has plenty of friends if he can only make a sound like real money.

In one sense of the word a 'fast train' is one that doesn't carry a dating car. As a rule it isn't when they are in deep water that people get along swimmingly.

Some women are so fond of dress that every day they go out it is Decoration Day.

The fool who takes his lamels off too soon may not have a chance to rock the boat.

The fellow who spends all his time looking for four-leaved clover won't have much luck.

It is quite possible for the blacksmith to forge ahead without getting very far to the front.

If you are looking for a hen-pecked husband the best place to find him is under his wife's thumb.

Would you say that the poetry of motion was the kind you see in the advertising spaces in the trolley cars?

A woman always wants plenty of clothes and then spends most of her time looking in them for buglers.

The pen may be mightier than the sword, but any edifier will tell you that it isn't a marker to the blue pencil.

Twenty-five Cents is the Price of Pain. The terrible itching and smarting, almost instantly allayed by applying Chamberlain's Salve. Price, 25 cents. For sale by Rand's Drug Store.

Kindness to Parents. Kindness to parents is a matter that too many young people these days too often overlook. George T. Angell, the veteran editor of Our Dumb Animals, speaks of his good old mother once saying to him: 'George, you will never want for money because you have been so kind to your mother.' There is nothing that indicates nobility of character more clearly than kindness in words and deed to parents—a kindness that does not permit of the use of the words 'the old man' or 'the old woman' in speaking of father or mother. Many a father and mother have gone to their graves regretting because of the unkindness of their children. It should never be. It is low, mean, cruel, contemptible.
