Methodist Chatham District Meeting

Endorses Prohibition Act—Change in Method of Raising Aged Ministers' Pension Fund Proposed

The Methodist Chatham District meeting was held here yesterday afternoon and evening.

Those present were: Bathurst—Rev. F. A. Wightman, president; Mr. J. F. Carey, local preacher.

Campbellton—Rev. Geo. M. Young, secretary; Mr. H. B. Anslow, Newcastle—Rev. Dr. C. W. Squires, Mr. H. D. Atkinson, Chatham—Rev. J. J. Pinkerton; Mr. R. S. Curll, Harcourt—Rev. J. J. Stebbings; Mr. Carmea Wathen, Buctouche—Rev. Wm. Lawson, Millerton—Rev. J. E. Rowlands; Mr. Cepp.

Richibucto—Rev. B. A. Hartman, Rev. W. H. Barraclough, sec-treas.

supernumerary Augmentation Fund of N. B. and P. E. I. Conference.

Following reports were recommended from the Missionary funds: Richibucto, 700; Tabusintac, $215; Buctouche, $400; Harcourt, $325; Benaventure, for fall and winter supply, $75; Gaspé and Cape Ozo, $465.

Rev. Geo. M. Young, and Thos. A. Clark (Newcastle) were appointed a special committee to visit weak circuits.

Rev. Mr. Barraclough spoke in favor of changing the supernumerary fund of the N. B. and P. E. I. Conference (which is the same as that for N. S. and for Nfld.) to the same basis as the superannuation fund of the nine central and western conferences.

Last year 73 of the 89 N. B. and P. E. I. circuits made returns to the supernumerary fund and responded encouragingly. We must now go forward and raise not only the regular supernumerary fund, but the supernumerary augmentation fund as well. Last year there was $2029 extra needed to pay all claims in full. There were 12 ministers claimants and 28 widows. There will be $520 more needed this year than last. Last year the $5,449 raised paid only 80% of the claims.

The supernumerary fund is raised by an assessment on the church membership plus three per cent. of the minister's salary. The Centre and West raise their superannuation fund by a sliding assessment of six to ten per cent. on circuit funds, an additional three and one-half per cent. on amounts raised for concessional funds and a sliding scale of from three to four per cent. on Ministers' salaries. This he submitted was the better way. He wished for an amalgamation of the two funds. The Western people were much wealthier and their Toronto publishing house gave profits of from $5000 to $30,000 a year while that at Halifax gave the supernumerary fund not more than $500 a year. There was no part of Canada where Methodist ministers were doing better work, than in the east and none where they worked under harder conditions. The three Toronto Districts with 50 ministers contributed almost as much to the superannuation fund as the three eastern conferences, with 250 ministers, to the supernumerary fund.

Instead of the $5449 raised in N. B. and P. E. I. last year $8000 had been needed. Minister's widows receive but a mere pittance. He knew of one widow educating a daughter and receiving but $15 from the fund. The largest claim for a widow if paid in full, was only $240 a year, and of a minister $480. The assessment is $5288. This must be increased by the Augmentation proposed to $8000.

Last year the district was assessed the usual $256 plus $178 extra—total $434. The new plan would make the total assessment on the laymen of the district $463, while the ministers, on the basis of their last year's salaries would have to pay $286. He proposed the following resolution:

That this District meeting rejoice at the success of the appeal on behalf of the supernumerary augmentation fund, and cheerfully commits itself to the raising of an amount for this new year, based on the assessment made for the superannuation fund, which plan we are informed, if adopted by all the Districts will enable the Treasurer to pay in full all the claims within the bounds of this Conference, it being understood that the part of these amounts assessed by the General supernumerary committee, be paid in the manner provided by Discipline and the balance through the Financial Secretary to the Treasurer of the special supernumerary Augmentation Fund.

Splendid Workers Enter Big Voting Campaign

Workers Will be the Winners--No Chance for Idle Wishers--Vote Standing Will be Published Next Week.

Some splendid workers have entered the Advocate's second big voting campaign, and present indications are that within the next week the race for first honors will have become very exciting. Although fourteen ladies have been nominated up to the present, there is still a very fair chance for new contestants to come to the front, and by the time the vote standing of the various contestants is published in next week's issue of The Advocate, it is more than likely that other names will have been added to the list, and not improbable even that the late comers will be well up in the vote standing. So far no one has secured a sufficient number of votes to place her in a particularly advantageous position and with a few days earnest hard work it would be possible for a lady starting now to overtake and pass the present leader in the race. Next week the vote standing of contestants will be published for the first time, and the names of contestants who do not give promise of being active contestants will be dropped from the list. Surprising interest is being taken in the campaign by many of the Advocate's old subscribers, who have been sending in their renewals within the past ten days in considerable numbers, and from this source there are now thousands and thousands of votes credited to a number of contestants, which will help very materially to swell the totals of votes to be published next week. McTavish-Simpson Nuptials at Redbank

One of the most interesting society events of the season took place at 3.30 Tuesday afternoon, last week, at St. Stephen's Manse, Redbank, when Allan Alexander MacTavish, son of the late John MacTavish of Casillia, led to the altar Miss Evelyn A. Simpson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson of Redbank. The bride, who was gowned in black and blue striped silk, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas, was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Simpson, who was dressed in a brown and white dress and wore a hat to match. Rev. Jas. F. McCurdy, B. A., tied the nuptial knot in the presence of a large number of friends of the contracting parties.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. MacTavish motored to Newcastle and left for a honeymoon trip to Montreal, Quebec, Niagara Falls and New York, and on their return will reside in Newcastle, where the groom holds a responsible position with the Lounsbury Co.

Blessing of Corner Stone and Banquet

Ceremonies Being Held To-day in Fr. Murdoch's New Church at Renous

The ceremonies in connection with the blessing of Rev. Father Murdoch's new stone church at Renous, are being held there today, beginning at nine o'clock, and will be followed by a big banquet at half past twelve o'clock. Every preparation for the successful carrying out of this noteworthy function has been made, and it is expected that a very large number of priests and others will be present to assist.

His Lordship Bishop O'Leary of Chatham, will preside, and will be assisted by Revs. Father Dixon, of Newcastle, and Father Crumley, of Blackville. Rev. Father Hawkes, of Bartibogue, will preach the sermon for the occasion.

The following priests will be present, besides those already named: Revs. Father Power, of Nelson; Father Wallace, Campbellton; Father Hartt, Chatham; Father Gavin; Father Babineau, Acadiaville; Father Saldon, Legaceville; Father Martin, Chatham; Father J. Deuceit, St. Margarets; Father Chalmers, Blackville; Father Burns, of Renous, and Mr. Violette, eccl. of Madawaska. It is expected that the donations given towards Father Murdoch's new church will be large. A fuller account of the ceremonies will be given next issue.

Honor For Lt. Jack Lawlor

Newcastle Boy Will Command New Field Artillery Draft

A new field artillery draft has been authorized to be raised in Military District No. 6, according to latest reports. This is, in reality, a new type of unit, for Military District No. 6; field artillery depots have been authorized for the Maritime Provinces but this authorization carries with it the district's first full-blooded artillery draft.

The unit will be recruited through out the different provinces consisting the division, to wit, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island and will be commanded by Lieutenant John L. Lawlor, of Newcastle, now of the 12th Battery Canadian Field Artillery, a militia unit.

The complement of the new unit will be one lieutenant, one sergeant, two corporals, four bombardiers and forty-three other ranks.

Although no definite announcement has yet been made, it is very likely, in the opinion of those who know the game, that this newly authorized draft will be trained in the use of the newest and most modern type of gun, and will without a doubt be a great attraction to intending recruits. Further details regarding the organization of the unit have not yet been given out. It has not yet been announced where the headquarters of the new unit will be.

Lt. Lawlor who is to command the new unit, is the only son of Police Magistrate J. R. Lawlor, of Newcastle, and being thoroughly trained in all branches of artillery should experience very little difficulty in securing the fifty men the draft calls for.

Cardinal Begin Writes to French-Canadian Priests, that German Success Would Endanger Religion

Montreal, Sept. 1—Cardinal Begin has issued instructions to the French Canadian priests in Quebec that the Allied cause is one that must be supported. He refers to complaints received about poor recruiting and points out to the priests that if Germany wins the war, it would see a spread of those beliefs that have caused it.

Town Council Meets In Special Session

Resignation of Chief Finley Accepted and Police Committee Recommend Frederick Lucas of St. John to Fill Vacancy

A special meeting of the Newcastle Town Council was held on the 31st. Present: The Mayor, and Ald. Hayward, Kingston, Mackay, McGrath, Miller, Scribner, Stables and Stuart. The Police Committee recommended that the appointment of a Trustee of the Miramichi Hospital be considered by the whole council. On other Aldermen who had any information of Ald. Miller and Kingston, Mr. R. Corry Clarke was appointed such Trustee.

The Police Committee submitted accounts of W. H. Finley for $19.00 and $197.00 for expenses in connection with enforcement of the C. T. A. and recommended payment. The bills were incurred in the employment of the Scott Act Detective.

Ald. Hayward said the expenditures had been made for purposes of helping to enforce the Scott Act. The Scott Act funds could be used for no other purposes. The bills had not been incurred without forethought and advice, and they must be paid.

Ald. Miller asked why Chief Finley had not done this work himself. People would ask about such bills. Ald. Hayward said that Finley was constantly watched by the liquor interests and their friends, and therefore could not find out everything he wanted to know. He needed a detective and got one.

Ald. Miller thought the detective had not done right in inducing people to break the law.

Ald. Hayward replied that Finley had endeavored to get a good man, and had made a mistake. The committee had been told that many more places were selling liquor than had been prosecuted, so they authorized getting a detective to find out the truth.

Ald. McGrath said that it was probably true that the Scott Act fund could be used only for enforcing the Act. But it was in the custody of the Mayor and Treasurer. And the Police Committee should have got authority from the Council to spend any money in a new way. If the mayor should refuse to issue a cheque for these bills the Committee would have to pay out of their own pockets. He wanted to know if the money had already been paid, and if a cheque had been issued for the same and, if so, its date.

His Worship said the Police Committee had given authority to the Chief of Police, after due consultation to take the action he had taken. The thing was kept quiet—not even the Police Committee knowing who the Detective was nor when he came. Finley had arranged with the man that he should be paid. A cheque was issued for the payment about the time of trial.

Ald. McGrath claimed that such expenditure was illegal.

The Mayor said that many cheques had in past years been issued without being brought before Council. He did not care to give his opinion of how town business had then been transacted. In this case the committee was anxious to get rid of the detective as soon as possible and he was paid as soon as possible.

Ald. McGrath—Then he was paid by private parties, for Finley swore in Court that he had paid detective partly out of his own money.

Ald. Hayward said it was true that Finley had advanced considerable of his own money, as he had previously done in other cases.

The Mayor said that this sum was trifling, compared with the sums that had been taken out of the Scott Act fund in former years. The same thing had been done elsewhere, and in this town, before.

Ald. Miller said that Finley didn't ask the Board re getting detective. And he understood that the detective was a relation of Finley's. Finley should have been more careful. Never in his (Miller's) ten years at the Council had he heard of such an affair.

Ald. Stuart asked for information. Ald. Miller had just said that he (Miller) understood that Mowry was Finley's relative. Others professed 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

He felt that Newcastle should vote $1,000. The ratepayers would not object.

R. Corry Clark said that we could not estimate or fully appreciate the value the British navy was to us. Without it, not a stick of lumber would have left this country by water. Our mills would have shut down.

J. D. Creaghan was heartily in sympathy with the request for a grant.

Judge Lawlor was in favor of the town making a grant.

Ald. Miller thought $1,000 very small for Moncton. Inland towns received as much value from the navy as the others. What Newcastle town voted now should be deducted from their share of what the County might afterwards give. The grant was a worthy one.

Ald. McGrath sympathized with the purpose of the fund. We should not be influenced by what Moncton had done. Moncton is a city and stands alone. We are a part of the County for taxation purposes.

The Mayor said that we had got off easily so far. No one had felt what they had given.

Ald. Hayward favored advancing the money at once, subject to a proper refund when the county makes a grant.

In reply to Ald. Miller's question, Mr. Park said that Chatham had not had the matter presented to them yet. The best thing to do was to act independently of the county, giving what we think best, and claiming exemption should the county afterwards give something.

Ald. McGrath wanted the matter postponed till next regular meeting to see what other places were doing.

To Ald. Stables, Mr. Park said the Fund needed money now. It would be handled by the British navy Department, for the benefit of the widows and orphans of sailors in both naval and merchant marine who had died in government service.

Mr. Clark said that this matter of contribution in Canada was of the nature of an appreciation from Canada.

On motion of Ald. Hayward and Miller, the matter was referred to the Finance Committee for a report at next meeting.

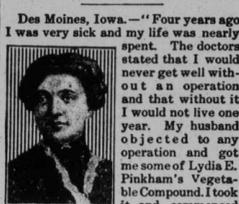

All Day Service

Mr. Park said the Hospital wanted all day electric service to run its elevator and laundry. The Board had understood that the town had ordered a new pump in order to install the all day service and would like to know when that service would be available. In the meantime they would like to have the electricity two afternoons each week to run the laundry, which is now being run by night, but disturbs the patients by its noise. The board would ask the town for more than the usual twenty per cent. discount on light bills. Chatham, he understood, gave its hospital fifty per cent. discount. It was apparent to everyone that the Town must soon make great improvements in its light system. The latter was near the end of its life. A new plant would soon

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It took it and commenced to get better and am now well, and stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been in my Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHIE JEFFERSON, 703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Before submitting to a surgical operation it is wise to try to build up the female system and cure its derangements with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has saved many women from surgical operations.

Ors at about $70.00 a month each, each $1500 a year out of Scott Act funds. Finley did no better work than the other inspectors.

Ald. Stables—What can a man do if the people are not behind him?

Ald. Hayward contended that Finley was a success.

Ald. Miller contended that there should be no Scott Act fund, out a deficit. The sale of liquor should be stopped absolutely.

100 More Wanted for the 132nd Battalion

A telegram having been received from Major Tilley by R. Corry Clark, saying that Lt. Col. Mersereau is in urgent need of 100 more men for the 132nd, a meeting of the Executive of the Recruiting Committee was held here Wednesday night. After discussing the matter thoroughly the committee decided to notify Col. Mersereau that the best available way to secure more recruits was to send officers down from Valcartier to make a house to house appeal to the young men of the Northern counties.

OUR SECOND MONSTER VOTING CAMPAIGN

MONDAY, AUGUST 28th

The Union Advocate formally instituted its Second Great Voting Campaign, in which $700 worth or more of Beautiful and Highly Useful Prizes will be Given Away Absolutely Free to those Ladies who take part in it.

1st PRIZE -- $400 LONSDALE PIANO

Three Other Prizes Totaling $300 or More

Every Lady in Newcastle and in the Circulation Zone of The Union Advocate is Eligible to Share in this Great Prize Distribution Costs Nothing to Enter!

The first prize will be a beautiful Lonsdale Piano, which sells regularly throughout Canada for $400. This instrument will constitute a truly magnificent prize and the lady who wins it will have just cause to congratulate herself on her success. The Lonsdale Piano is one of the finest instruments manufactured in Canada; and it has achieved a most enviable reputation among people of cultured musical tastes who know piano values, on account of its thoroughly high class construction, and tonal qualities. The winner of the Advocate voting campaign will, therefore, have the satisfaction of becoming the owner of an absolutely dependable, high-grade piano which she will be proud to use and exhibit in her home. At least three other prizes will be awarded to ladies who take part in the contest. The value of these will be not less than $300 and may exceed that sum.

GUARANTEED REWARD FOR EVERY CONTESTANT

10 per cent. Cash

Commission to

10 per cent. Cash

Every worker in the Advocate Voting Campaign will be a sure winner. We do not want any contestant to work for nothing, and to make sure that every lady who takes an active part in the campaign will receive at least fair compensation for her efforts it has been decided to pay every contestant who continues actively in the campaign until the end, ten per cent. cash commission on all the money she collects during the campaign. In the event that she does not win a prize, thus every element is removed from the campaign, and every contestant is absolutely assured of a suitable reward for her efforts. With the assurance of certain reward in any event, no lady who desires to share the prizes will be deterred by the Advocate's should allow anything to prevent her from entering the campaign at once and starting to work without delay. No cash commissions will be paid to prize winners.

How the Prizes are to be Won

The Voting Campaign will be primarily a subscription campaign in the interests of the Advocate and MacLean's and Farmers' Magazines. Any lady living within the circulation zone of the Advocate may enter the campaign, whether she is or is not a subscriber to either publication, and may secure subscriptions to either three publications from anyone, anywhere, for any length of time. For each and every subscription obtained by contestants, votes will be credited respectively to those contestants who secure the next highest number of votes. Complimentary ballots will be issued during the campaign, and published in each issue of the Advocate, and these, too, will be added to the votes secured by each contestant on subscription business. At the close of the campaign three prominent citizens of unquestionable integrity will act as judges for the purpose of reviewing the conduct of the campaign, and deciding the winners. Neither the publishers of the Advocate nor MacLean's or Farmers' Magazines will have anything to do with deciding the winners of the campaign. The names of the judges will be announced in an early issue of the Advocate.

Two Periods of the Campaign

The campaign will be divided into two periods, the first period, extending from Monday August 28th, to Monday, September 18th, and the second period extending from the latter date until the close of the campaign on Monday, October 9th. The vote schedule in the first period of the campaign will be that published next week on this page, and the vote schedule for the second period will be twenty per cent. less. The distinction between the vote values of subscriptions is made for the purpose of encouraging contestants to bestir themselves early in the campaign, and rewarding those who do good work in the early part of the campaign. This arrangement will undoubtedly work out to the advantage of those who enter the campaign, without delay, and that is exactly what it is intended to do. It is simply a modified application of the old proverb that "the early bird catches the worm," and is designed to help the early bird to catch the worm. However the campaign is open to every lady in the circulating zone of the Advocate and as one contestant has the same opportunity as another of getting an early start the arrangement is absolutely fair to everybody, and no one can have cause to complain thereof.

Rules and Regulations of the Contest

The campaign will open on Monday August 28, at 12 o'clock on Monday, October 9th. Any lady who is a resident in the circulation zone of the Advocate and who is not an employee of the Advocate may participate in the campaign. Contestants are not required to be subscribers to either of the above publications. No entrance fee, nor expenditure of any kind is required to enter the campaign. Before any lady may participate in the campaign, she must be nominated in writing, and must obtain receipt books, etc., for use in the campaign from the Advocate. Contestants may be nominated by themselves or by anyone else. Nominations may be made any time, before the date to be fixed for the close of nominations. Votes will be given contestants for subscriptions secured by or for them to the Advocate and MacLean's and Farmers' Magazines, according to vote schedule advertised from time to time and for complimentary ballots. Contestants may obtain subscriptions anywhere, either new or renewal and no distinction will be made between the vote values of old and new subscriptions in the regular vote schedules. Contestants must report and settle for all subscriptions secured by or for them at least once each week. Anyone may assist any contestant in securing subscriptions. All receipt books and supplies needed for use in the campaign will be supplied free of charge. The campaign will be in charge of a Campaign Director who reserves the right to alter or abrogate any rule or condition, and to make and enforce any new rule or condition which to him may seem expedient for the proper conduct of the campaign. The interpretation or application of any rule or condition shall be a matter for the Campaign Director alone to deal with and his decision on any point relating to the campaign shall be final. The subscription price of the Advocate and Farmers' Magazine is $1 a year each in Canada and Great Britain; MacLean's Magazine is $1.50 per year. The subscription price of the Advocate to the United States is $1.50 a year. Votes cannot be transferred from one contestant to another under any circumstances whatever.

Any subscription paid at the Advocate office with the subscriber's request, at the time of paying the subscription, but not thereafter, that votes therefor be credited to a contestant; and complimentary ballots handed to the Campaign Director, with the request that the votes therefor be credited to a contestant, will, in either, or both cases, be credited as requested; provided the contestant to whom it is requested that votes be credited shall within the first period of the campaign, collect and pay to the Campaign Department not less than Twenty-five Dollars for subscriptions, in accordance with the rules of the campaign. In case any contestant shall not collect and pay to the Campaign Department as much as Twenty-five Dollars for subscriptions within the first period of the campaign, she shall not be entitled to receive credit for any subscription paid to the Advocate office, nor for complimentary ballots handed in to the Campaign Director at any time during the campaign. This rule shall be construed to mean that subscriptions or complimentary ballots sent by mail to the office, or to the Campaign Director, by anyone other than a contestant, shall be counted as having been paid or handed in at the Advocate office, or to the Campaign Director in person.

THE FOLLY OF PEACE TALK

Nothing can be more pernicious than the practice, which appears to be on the increase, of writers in English newspapers and magazines entering into a discussion of possible or probable terms of peace with Germany. The very suggestion at the present time, of peace should be utterly abhorrent to the English people. Any such suggestion is an insult to—may it be a crime against—both the brave lads who are enduring the hardships of the campaign and the relatives of those who have laid down their lives for the cause. Instead of discussing possible terms of peace, which will only be interpreted in Germany as signs of weakening there should go forth from England unmistakable tones that her people do not want and will not suffer peace at any price until Germany is grovelling on her knees for mercy. And then the terms of peace should be merciless.

How can any self-respecting nation harbour any intention or desire to treat with a horde of barbarians, vandals and murderers such as the German nation has shown itself to be? The Cavell and Fryatt incidents alone, not to mention the baby-killing atrocities of which England has been the victim, should make all ideas of peace unthinkable until Germany's throat has been cut and her corporeal entity dismembered. To stop short of this, will only mean a repetition of the present state of affairs in the not distant future, as soon as ever Germany feels she is ready again. And it cannot be too clearly understood that next time she will not make the mistake she has done in this war. If the Prussian snake is only sketched and not killed outright, the sacrifice which the war has entailed will be all in vain.

Fears have been expressed that diplomacy may give away some of the advantages which militarism has gained for us. There is nothing more likely; and British people the world over should insist that a deaf ear be turned to those doubtless well-meaning, but utterly misguided, persons who in dealing with Germany would temper justice with mercy. Diplomacy failed, and failed lamentably, to keep Britain and her allies out of the inferno that now exists and diplomacy should be allowed but a comparatively small say in the settlement. The Allies owe their present advantage to the sword, and those who wield this weapon should insist upon having the finish largely to themselves. Only on such conditions will the gains they have made become permanent.

CANADA AFTER THE WAR

In certain financial circles in this country there is a disposition to anticipate business trouble after the war is over. It is pointed out that at the present time Canada is enjoying an almost unknown period of prosperity, and that while strict economy and abstinence from nearly every kind of luxury is enjoined and enforced in Britain, France and Germany, nothing of the kind is to be found here. It is further pointed out in proof of the foregoing that during four months of the present year, Canadians have purchased and imported from other countries $91,868,764 worth of commodities, mostly unnecessary, more than was the case in the same period last year. Just as much money is being spent in Canada today in elaborate dresses and pleasure seeking and luxuries generally as ever was the case; and economy is the last thing thought of.

The idea seems to be that while economy may be justified in England, France and Germany there is not any such need for it in this country. While the German producer, the factory employee and the labourer are being trained to still harder conditions than was their lot prior to the war, the artisan in Canada is being initiated to a higher standard of living than he has hitherto been accustomed. The operators of factories, especially those making munitions, will tell you that expert men are not content with less than $5 or $6 per day; and even female workers, when trained demand high wages just as soon as they realize that they have attained to the necessary standard of efficiency. Both sexes are spending such earnings generously on pleasure and dress. The unnecessary commodities being imported are coming into the country because they are sought after by the people who are earning high wages and living high. At the end of the war, what is going to be the position of this class of worker when the demand which now exists for his labour has fallen away to a large extent, and in addition he will be compelled to face the competition which will come from the lower paid workmen of Europe? It is all very well to make hay while the sun shines, but it won't always be high noon. A readjustment of conditions has to come later, and only those who have saved money will be able to tide over the period of readjustment without inconvenience. When once extravagant habits are acquired, they are hard to get rid of, and the longer they are persisted in the more difficult it is to make a change. The man who begins now, and puts his extra earnings into some sound securities instead of spending them, is the man who is going to come out "on top" a little later on.

Letter to Mayor Fish

Addresses of Clubs in London Open to Canadians

The following will be of much interest to our readers:
Millbank House, 2 Wood Street, Westminster, S. W.
27th July, 1916
His Worship The Mayor,
Newcastle, N. B., Canada.

Dear Sir,
I am much obliged for your letter of June 6th, and I am requested by the Secretary of the Victoria League to say that if you could make known either through the local press or otherwise, the existence of these Clubs for Non-Commissioned Officers and men of the Overseas Forces, to which their Majesties King George and Queen Mary have graciously given their patronage; also another Club, lately opened in the West End of London, for which ladies from the Dominion living temporarily in Great Britain are eligible for membership, she will be greatly obliged.

At the Canadian Red Cross Society's Office, 14 Cockspur St., S. W. Canadian newspapers are welcomed and are distributed to wounded men in the hospitals here and also in France. The papers give immense pleasure and there are seldom enough to go round the wards where men await them eagerly. The news from France is excellent but many brave men are being lost in this great effort in the West. Enclose cards of various clubs.

Yours faithfully,
M. E. WINTLER,
Hon. Sec.

The address of the Clubs is as follows:

- King George and Queen Mary's Club, Peel House, Regency St., Westminster, London, Eng.
- The King George and Queen Mary Maple Leaf Club, 11 Charles St. Berkeley Square, London, W.
- Oceana Club (Victoria League), 21 Hill Street, Berkeley Square, London, W.
- King George and Queen Mary Victoria League Club, Dorland House, 16 Regent St. 1-5 Mason's Yard, Bedroom Annex, London, S. W.

Your Weekly Newspaper

PERHAPS you haven't been thinking much about it—just taking for granted that $1.00 a year is a right price for The Advocate, year after year, let other things cost what they may. But you are a reasonable being, and so can see that the price of a weekly newspaper should no more remain "fixed" year after year than the prices of such common things as

beefsteak	wheat	motor cars
sugar	eggs	lumber
coal	potatoes	horses
boots	clover seed	land

CAN you think of any other commodity except newspapers and their like whose price has remained unchanged and unchanging year after year? Why, then, should your newspaper's price remain forever the same—the same, for example, as when you could buy

- a cord of wood for $1.50
- a bushel of wheat for 50 cents
- a common fowl for 25 cents
- a dozen eggs for 10 cents
- a pound of butter for 12 cents
- a cow for $25

THE war has brought to a crisis a condition of things which has vexed publishers for years; the selling price of their newspaper. It has sent prices of paper, ink, type and supplies skyward. It is costing us many more dollars a week now to produce The Advocate than before the outbreak of war. Where do we get off at?—in the slang language of today. The answer is: we must get more for The Advocate. And so on and after November 1st the subscription price of The Advocate will be $1.50.

You are reasonable, and so we count on you to meet the necessities of the situation cheerfully. Three cents a week for your local newspaper—it is worth the price, is it not?

Less than the price of a "Smoke"

Dustin Farnum in "David Garrick" the Great Famous Players Special at the Happy Hour, Sat. Sept. 16

David Garrick is a widely known name but few know that until he came to Drury Lane in 1742 an actor was not considered a fit associate for respectable people.

The great reconstruction of Dramatic Art was started by this remarkable actor and leader who was the first to act in the now universal "natural manner" which was an innovation on the stilted declamation of those days.

This strange condition and how the force of the great man's personality overcame it forms the theme of the Pallas photo-drama "DAVID GARRICK" on the Paramount Program.

Dustin Farnum makes a strong and dramatic "GARRICK" without losing any of his charm as a vigorous actor. There probably never has been worn more costly apparel in a dramatic photoplay than the costumes worn by Dustin Farnum in "DAVID GARRICK" the Pallas Pictures release on the Paramount Program.

Clad in an elaborate black silk coat completely covered with embroidery, a robin's egg blue waist coat the material for which cost fourteen dollars a yard, knee breeches to match, thigh boots of soft Morocco leather and cocked hat he appears before the screen for a short flash only to re-appear in the next scene in another costume as expensive.

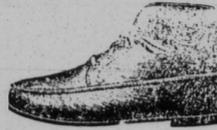

His costumes were only excelled by the beauty and elegance of the creations worn by Winifred Kingston who as Ada Ingot, the London heiress makes a wonderfully attractive appearance.

All the sets including a complete Drury Lane of that period (1742) are built on a lavish scale and make this picture decidedly "worth while."

The city council of Prince Albert, Sask., has decided to send a resolution to Ottawa, declaring that the pension bill being prepared by the government should treat officers and privates alike, it being held that in Canada's cosmopolitan army the officers are the superior of the privates only through the accident of war, in private life they being absolutely equal.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets cure these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the newborn babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It was necessary that all Scott Act Counties should repeal that Act if they would share in the referendum on the retention of the Prohibition Act after the war. If they failed to come under the new Act they might be the cause of having the Act defeated on the referendum.

Next district meetings will be at Harcourt in November and at Chatham in March.

Rev. Mr. Hartman and Mr. Anderson were commissioned to speak on Missions at Buctouche.

Rev. Mr. Barraclough was thanked for his presentation of the supernumerary question.

Ald. H. H. Stuart of the Newcastle Town Improvement League, spoke on the Prohibition question urging the District to make a pronouncement on that matter. He argued that the Provincial Prohibition Act was in many ways an improvement on the Scott Act, its enforcement more simple, its penalties greater, and its administration entirely in the hands of the government. It was necessary that all Scott Act Counties should repeal that Act if they would share in the referendum on the retention of the Prohibition Act after the war. If they failed to come under the new Act they might be the cause of having the Act defeated on the referendum.

Ald. Hayward said that as the present night policeman was willing to do Scott Act work there might be two inspectors. The new chief should be here before Finley leaves.

Ald. Miller said that many were kicking because a town man was not employed. The committee should advertise and fully investigate.

The Mayor thought that one policeman was enough. The whole town was to blame if the Scott Act was not enforced. He thought that as much rum was sold here as ever, and that the sale would never be stopped.

Ald. Miller moved, seconded by Ald. Kingston, that the P. & A. Committee be authorized to advertise for a Policeman and Scott Act Inspector in one issue of each local paper and in two issues of St. John Telegraph.

Ald. Hayward said it was only killing time to advertise. A man was wanted before the 19th. Motion carried.

Payment of J. J. Gallah's bill was referred back to the committee for final report at next meeting, on motion of Ald. Miller and Scribner.

The Mayor read the following:
Niagara Falls, Canada,
July 10, 1916

To the Mayor and Council of Newcastle
Gentlemen:

The following resolution was carried unanimously at the regular meet-

How to Have Dry Buildings

IRON doesn't wear out, it rusts out. Ready Roofings don't wear out, they dry out. Do you know how important this is? It means that there is a tremendous difference between ready roofings, even though all have felt and a waterproofing compound in them. It's the quality of that compound, plus the skill used in saturating the felt, that counts. It is the skill used in the saturation, plus the chemical composition of the saturating compound that makes Panamoid a wonderful roofing.

PANAMOID ROOFING

Panamoid is made of the best felt that can be obtained. It is tough, fibrous, strong. This felt is uniformly saturated with a non-volatile compound that stays there. Being thick, the felt holds this saturation indefinitely. If you want dry roofs at low cost, come in and get some Panamoid Roofing. Very easily laid.

Carleton-Paterson Mfg. Co., Limited
Bellevue, N. B., St. John, N. B., Sydney, N. B.

that the City Council of the City of Niagara Falls, Canada, on Monday, July 3, 1916:

Moved by Ald. H. P. Stephens, seconded by Ald J Locke

"WHEREAS the Government of the Dominion of Canada has framed or is framing a Pension Bill to be submitted to the Dominion House of Commons, and,

"WHEREAS the Dominion of Canada is a democratic country where class distinctions do not and should not exist.

"BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that the City Council of the City of Niagara Falls memorialize the Dominion Government that in the granting of pensions for wounds received by Canadian soldiers during this World-Wide War, that Officers and Privates be treated on an absolute equality, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to other municipalities in the Dominion of Canada, asking said municipalities to take similar action."

In presenting the above resolution I wish to point out the fact that the Canadian army is a cosmopolitan one and has been recruited from every walk and avenue of life and that in thousands of instances the officers are the superiors of the privates only through the accident of war. In private life they are absolutely equal.

While they are performing military duty the officers are paid in accordance with the responsibilities of the duties which they discharge. So likewise with the privates. But when they come back to private life, they are again on an equal basis and should be treated as equals.

If unfortunately an officer should lose an arm, and if unfortunately a private should lose an arm, the loss of that arm to the private is just as great, if not a greater handicap to the private than it is to the officer in the struggle for existence in the days that are to come.

In making these statements I wish to emphasize the fact that there is absolutely no desire or intention to criticize our gallant officers but a sincere desire to see to it that our equally gallant privates get their just due.

I want to see officers and privates alike get absolutely everything which a generous and grateful country can give them for their self sacrifice, their devotion to duty and their gallant deeds on the fields of battle in this world-wide conflict between militarism and the democratic institutions which we as British subjects have so enjoyed under the old Union Jack.

If the above resolution meets with the approval of your Honourable Body, I would be pleased to have you pass a similar resolution and have the same forwarded to the Secretary of State, House of Commons, Ottawa.

Sincerely,
ALD. H. P. STEPHENS

The above is the resolution and some of the reasons advanced for its adoption, the resolution being carried unanimously.

Very respectfully,
W. J. SEYMOUR,
City Clerk

Consideration of above was postponed till next meeting.

Ald. Miller spoke of the old buildings in several parts of the town, that were fire traps. This nuisance should be removed in order that we might get better insurance rates. The police should report such buildings to the Council. Insurance rates of 2 1/2 per cent. were outrageous.

Ald. Stables—I know of one case of 7 per cent.

Ald. Stuart said it was no use for the By-Law Committee to submit Building bye-laws, when the Council refused to compel Mr Thompson to move his building that is right in front of a street.

Ald. Stables said that it would cost too much to make him move. And there would likely be a jog in next street. Other towns were full of jogs.

On motion of Ald. Miller and Stuart, the Park and Fire Committee were asked to make a report at next meeting re old buildings with the object of lessening fire risks.

Adjourned till Tuesday night, Sept. 6th.

Retail Merchants to Meet in St. John
The N B Retail Merchants will hold a rally in St. John on Sept 19th and 20th. The object is to secure closer co-operation between retailers throughout the province and the Dominion. One-fare rates will be arranged for on all railroads.

The Work of the Bible Society
Interestingly Explained by Dr. Heine, who Speaks Most of the Languages of Europe

The people of Newcastle were given a rare treat Sunday night when Rev. Dr. Heine of St. John, Bible missionary to non-English speaking people spoke in St. James' Hall on behalf of the Canadian Branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

Dr. Heine who speaks many languages, and sang in several, spoke very interestingly of his work in immigration centres and among foreign workmen in N. B. and N. S.

Last year, he said, was the best year the British and Foreign Bible Society had ever had. 11,058,000 copies had been sold. The scriptures are printed in 597 languages, 497 of which translations have been made by the Society. But all the languages and dialects of the world number 2000.

During the past year 5,000,000 copies of Scriptures had been taken by the soldiers of the warring nations, the circulation being freer than ever before. Even among our enemies, the response of the Turks to Bible circulation was surprising.

245,000 more copies were distributed in Canada last year, 165,000 in English or French; 80,000 in the other 110 languages of the Dominion.

Canadian immigration three years ago was 452,000; much less since, but twice as great this year as last. They come now from all parts of the world, and the Bible must be given to them before they become the majority of our population.

Dr. Heine then described the work of meeting the immigrants at Halifax, St. John, Quebec and Vancouver, and giving them the scriptures in their own tongues. Three years ago, out of 28,000 copies distributed to people of 35 different languages, only some dozen copies were thrown away.

The non-English peoples coming in would have no newspapers for some time, and took very readily to Bible reading. Many were converted to the Evangelical faith thereby. The Russians, Bulgarians and Italians were particularly receptive. 55 New Testaments—all he had—had been bought in one Italian camp. The Russians were very earnest and broad-minded people. They not only studied the Bible, but often organized Evangelical services of their own, and many took the pledge against vodka.

The work among soldiers was very important. The Society aimed to give every soldier a Khaki Testament, or whole Bible. Over 200,000 had been taken by Canadian soldiers. Every man of the 26th, Protestant and Catholic, had taken one. A body of French soldiers had taken all the French Testaments the Society had on hand. Our allies had sent for great numbers of Bibles—Serbians 400,000; Russians 2,000,000; Japanese 800,000; and the French and Italian Bible Societies had doubled their workmen to fill orders. Copying their English brethren, the Sikh, Gurkha and Bengali soldiers from India take copies of the Christian scriptures.

Although the war was a horrible thing, the worst course ever suffered, yet it had caused a oneness of spirit among the soldiers engaged that augured well for future brotherhood.

SILLIKERS NOTES

"Look, mother," said little Bobby, proudly exhibiting a handful of marbles, "I won all these from Billy Smith."

"Why, Bobby," exclaimed his mother, "don't you know it's wrong to play marbles for keeps? Go right over to Willie's house and give Willie back his marbles."

"Yes, mother," said Willie obediently, "and shall I take back that vase you won at his mother's whist party, and give it back to her?"

Miss Murdoch Becomes a Nun

At Chatham on Wednesday morning Miss Frances Caroline Murdoch, daughter of Robert A. Murdoch, entered the Order of St. Joseph, at Hotel Dieu and will be known in the religious life as Sister Allen. The impressive ceremony was held by Bishop O'Leary. Rev. E. S. Murdoch, chaplain of the 132nd North Shore Battalion at Valcartier, is a brother, and another brother is on active service in France.

Beaver Flour is milled of the famous Ontario fall wheat, strengthened with western spring wheat.

The 5,000,000 Bibles taken by them this year would have great results.

The Patriotic, Red Cross, and other funds had been nobly responded to, but the call of the Bible Society should be remembered by all. He pitied the people that forgets the Bible.

Dr. Heine told of many cases of conversions due to reading of the scriptures and of many Evangelical services directly attributable thereto.

Dr. Heine is now on a tour of the upper part of this county and should be heard by everyone that is interested in Bible Society work and that can possibly attend his meetings.

WHEN YOU ADVERTISE
YOU WANT RESULTS

That's What You Expect to Get when you do advertise and that's where we come in

No matter what paper you have tried, results are sure if you try

The Union Advocate
THE HOME PAPER OF NORTHUMBERLAND COUNTY

Results have been produced for hundreds of others who have tried our columns, and we can make good for you. There are two vital points in the advertising game. The first is to select the paper YOU KNOW has the largest circulation, and the second is to look after your advertising, changing your ads, at least twice a month in a weekly paper. The Union Advocate circulates to all corners of Northumberland County, which no other paper does, and is read by more people each week than any other paper. Is there any reason then why it should not be a better advertising medium than any other paper? If you have any doubts about the above, the subscription lists are open to interested bona-fide advertisers, why not investigate? Is it not worth your while? The Advocate has nothing to hide, and will be only too pleased to prove to advertisers the truth of the above statements. In these war times, particularly, advertisers want the very best possible results to be obtained from their advertising, and unless they use the paper that reaches the most people, they are not getting full value for the money they are spending each year. The of The Advocate each month is steadily increasing. From January 1st, this year, until May 31st, more than 43,000 copies were printed and put in circulation, and this without special editions or extra runs—bona-fide circulation only. Nearly 45,000 circulation in five months! These figures should interest every advertiser and non-advertiser within the radius that The Advocate is covering.

What Results are You Getting?

Are they satisfactory, or do you not think you should be getting more? If you have any doubts, why not investigate, and when convinced, investigate the advertising power of The Union Advocate. This will cost you nothing, and may prove the foundation of a successful business. Country merchants will be wise in taking this matter into consideration. Some have already done so, and have received surprising results.

EXCUSE ME!

RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED BY HENRY W. SAVAGE.

"Well, if such a woman asks for Mrs. Fosdick—she's my husband's first wife—but of course that doesn't interest you."
"No—yes'm."
"If she comes—tell her—tell her—oh, what shall we tell her?"
The porter rubbed his thick skull: "Lemme see—we might say you—I tell you what we'll tell her: we'll tell her you took the train for New York; and if she runs mighty fast she can just about catch it."
"Fine, fine." And she rewarded his genius with another coin. "And, porter," he had not budged. "Porter, if a very handsome man with luscious eyes and a soulful smile asks for me."
"I'll throw him off the train!"
"Oh, no—no!—that's my husband—my present husband. You may let him in. Now is it all perfectly clear, porter?"
"Oh, yassum, clear as clear." Thus guaranteed she entered the stateroom, leaving the porter alone with his problem. He tried to work it out in a semiaudible mumble: "Lemme see! If your present husband's absent wife gets on board disguised as a handsome hideous woman I'm to throw him—her—off the train and let her—him—come in—oh, yassum, you may rely on me." He bowed and held out his hand. But she was gone. He shut himself on into the car.

He had hardly left the little space before the stateroom when a handsome man with luscious eyes, but without any smile at all, came slinking along the corridor and tapped cautiously on the door. Silence alone answered him at first, then when he had rapped again, he heard a muffled:
"Go away, I'm not in."
He put his lips close and softly called: "Edith!"
At this Sesame the door opened a trifle, but when he tried to enter, a hand thrust him back and a voice again warned him off. "You mustn't come in."
"But I'm your husband."
"That's just why you mustn't come in." The door opened a little wider to give him a view of a down-cast beauty meaning:
"Oh, Arthur, I'm so afraid."
"Afraid?" he sniffed. "With your husband here?"
"That's the trouble, Arthur. What if your former wife should find us together?"
"But she and I are divorced."
"In some states, yes—but other states don't acknowledge the divorce. That former wife of yours is a fiend to pursue us this way."
"She's no worse than your former husband. He's pursuing us, too. My divorce was as good as yours, my dear."
"Yes, and no better."
The angels looking on might have judged from the ready tempers of the newly married and not entirely unmarried twain that their new alliance promised to be as exciting as their previous estates. Perhaps the man subtly felt the presence of those eternal eavesdroppers, for he tried to end the love-duel in the corridor with an appealing caress and a tender appeal: "But let's not start our honeymoon with a quarrel."
His partial wife returned the caress and tried to explain: "I'm not quarreling with you, dear heart, but with the horrid divorce laws. Why, oh, why did we ever interfere with them?"

He made a brave effort with: "We ended two unhappy marriages, Edith, to make one happy one."
"But I'm so unhappy, Arthur, and so afraid."
He seemed a trifle afraid himself and his gaze was askance as he urged: "But the train will start soon, Edith—and then we shall be safe."
Mrs. Fosdick had a genius for inventing unpleasant possibilities. "But what if your former wife or my former husband should have a detective on board?"
"A detective?—poof!" He snapped his fingers in bravado. "You are with your husband, aren't you?"
"In Illinois, yes," she admitted, very dolefully. "But when we come to Iowa, I'm a bigamist, and when we come to Nebraska, you're a bigamist, and when we come to Wyoming, we're not married at all."
It was certainly a tangled web they had woven, but a ray of light shot through it into his bewildered soul. "But we're all right in Utah, come, dearest."
He took her by the elbow to escort her into their sanctuary, but still she hung back.

"On one condition, Arthur—that you leave me as soon as we cross the Iowa state line, and not come back till we get to Utah. Remember, the Iowa state line!"
"Oh, all right," he smiled. And seeing the porter, beckoned him close and asked with careless indifference: "Oh, porter, what time do we reach the Iowa state line?"
"Two fifty-five in the morning, sah."
"Two fifty-five a. m.," the wretch exclaimed.
"Two fifty-five a. m., yassah," the porter repeated, and wondered why this excerpt from the timetable should exert such a dramatic effect on the luscious-eyed Fosdick.

He had small time to meditate the puzzle, for the train was about to be launched upon its long voyage. He went out to the platform, and watched a couple making that way. As their only luggage was a dog-basket he supposed that they were simply come to bid some of his passengers good-bye. No tips were to be expected from such transients, so he allowed them to bid themselves adieu to the steps.

Mallory and his Marjorie had tried to kiss the farewell or farewells half a dozen times, but she could not let him go at the gate. She asked the guard to let her through, and her beauty was brave enough.
Again and again, she and Mallory paused. He wanted to take her back to the taxicab, but she would not be so dismissed. She must spend the last available second with him.
"I'll go as far as the steps of the car," he said. When they were arrived there, two porters, a sleeping car conductor and several smoking saunterers profaned the trust. So she whispered that she would come aboard, for the corridor would be a quiet lane for the last rites.
And now that he had her actually on the train, Mallory's whole soul revolted against letting her go. The vision of her standing on the platform sad-eyed and lorn, while the train swept him off into space was unendurable. He shut his eyes against it, but it glowed inside the lids.

And then temptation whispered him its old "Why not?" While it was working in his soul like a fermenting yeast, he was saying:
"To think that we should owe all our misfortune to an infernal taxicab's break-down."
Out of the anguish of her loneliness crept one little complaint:
"If you had really wanted me, you'd have had two taxicabs."
"Oh, how can you say that? I had the license bought and the minister waiting."
"He's waiting yet."
"And the ring—the ring."
He fished it out of his waistcoat pocket and held it before her as a golden amulet.

"A lot of good it does now," said Marjorie. "You don't even wait over till the next train."
"I've told you a thousand times, my love," he protested, desperately. "If I don't catch the transport, I'll be court-martialed. If this train is late, I'm lost. If you really loved me you'd come along with me."
Her very eyes gaped at this astounding proposal.

"Why, Harry Mallory, you know it's impossible."
Like a sort of benevolent Satan, he laid the ground for his abduction: "You'll leave me, then, to spend three years without you—out among those Manila woods."
She shook her head in terror at this vision. "It would be too horrible for words to have you marry one of those mahogany sirens."
He held out the apple. "Better come along, then."
"But how can I? We're not married."
He answered airily: "Oh, I'm sure there's a minister on board."
"But it would be too awful to be married with all the passengers gawking. No, I couldn't face it. Good-bye, honey."
She turned away, but he caught her arm: "Don't you love me?"
"To distraction. I'll wait for you, too."
"Yes, and then we can stop being friends."
"My love—my friend!" They embraced in a most unfriendly manner. An impatient yelp from the neglected dog-basket awoke them.

"Oh, Lord, we've brought Snoozleums!"
"Of course we have." She took the dog from the prison, tucked him under her arm, and tried to compose her bridal face into a merely friendly countenance before they entered the car. But she must pause for one more kiss, one more of those bitter-sweet good-byes. And Mallory was nothing loath.

Hudson and Shaw were still glumly perplexed, when the porter returned in his white jacket.

"I bet they missed the train; all this work for nothing," Hudson grumbled. But Shaw, seeing the porter, caught a gleam of hope, and asked anxiously:

"One more—one long last kiss." And there, entwined in each other's arms, with lips wedged and eyelids clinched, they clung together, forgetting everything past, future or present. Love's anguish made them blind, mute and deaf.

They did not hear the conductor crying his "All Aboard!" down the long wall of the train. They did not hear the far-off knell of the bell. They did not hear the porters banging the vestibules shut. They did not feel the floor sliding out with them.

And so the porter found them, engulfed in one embrace, swaying and swaying, and no more aware of the increasing rush of the train than were other passengers on the earth-express are aware of its speed through the ether-routes on its ancient schedule.

The porter stood with his box-step in his hand, and blinked and wondered. And they did not even know they were observed.

All Aboard!
The starting of the train surprised the frontal decorators in the last stages of their work. They smiled died out in a sudden shame, as it came over them that the joke had receded on their own heads. They had done their best to carry out the time-honored rite of making a newly married couple as miserable as possible—and the newly married couple had failed to do its share.

The two lieutenants glared at each other in mutual contempt. They had studied when they were discovered ambushes, and how to avoid them. Could Mallory have escaped the pit they had dugged for him? They looked at their handiwork in disgust.

The coarser effect of white ribbons and orange flowers, gracefully masking the concealed rice-trap, had seemed the wisest thing ever devised. Now it looked the silliest.

The other passengers were equally downcast. Meanwhile the two lovers in the corridor were kissing good-byes as if they were hoping to store up honey enough to sustain their hearts for a three years' fast. And the porter was studying them with perplexity.

He was used, however, to waking people out of dreamland, and he began to fear that if he were discovered spying on the lovers, he might suffer. So he coughed discreetly three or four times.

Since the increasing racket of the train made no effect on the two hearts beating as one, the small matter of a cough was as nothing to them.

Finally the porter was compelled to reach forward and tap Mallory's arm, and stutter:

"Scuse me, but co-could I git by-by?"
The embrace was untied, and the lovers stared at him with a dazed, where-am-I look. Marjorie was the first to realize what awakened them. She felt called upon to say something, so she said, as carelessly as if she had not just emerged from a young gentleman's arms:

"Oh, porter, have you seen anything anywhere that looks like a freshly married pair?"
"Well," and the porter rubbed his eyes with the back of his hand as he chuckled, "well, they's a mighty lovin' couple out theah in the corridor."
"That's them—they're it!"
Instantly everything was alive and in action. It was as if a bugle had shrilled in a deflected canal.

"Get ready!" Shaw commanded. "Here's rice for everybody."
"Everybody take an old shoe," said Hudson. "You can't miss in this narrow car."
There's a hazoo for everyone, too," said Shaw, as the outstretched hands were equipped with wedding ammunition. "Do you know the 'Wedding March'?"

"I ought to by this time," said Mrs. Whitcomb.

Right into the tangle of preparation burst the porter, on his way back to his seat to get more cigars.

"Have some rice for the bridal couple!" said Ashton, offering him of his own double-handful.

But Lathrop brushed him aside with a conciliatory smile.

"Watch out for your head, then," cried Hudson, and Lathrop ducked just too late to escape a neck-knocking, hair-silencing shower.

An old shoe took him a clip about the ear, and the old woman-hater dropped raging into the aisle, but among strangers—well, perhaps a wiser and a colder brain than Harry Mallory's could have stood there and delivered a brief oration restoring truth to her pedestal.

But Mallory was in no condition for such a staccato delivery.

He mopped his brow in agony, lost in a blizzard of bewilderment. He drifted back toward Marjorie, half to protect and half for companionship.

He found Mrs. Temple cuddling her close and mothering her as if she were a baby instead of a bride.

"Did the poor child run away and get married?"
Marjorie's frantic "Hoo-hoo-hoo" might have meant anything. Mrs. Temple took it for assent and murmured with glowing reminiscence:

"Just the way Doctor Temple and I did."
She could not see the leaping flash of wild hope that lighted up Mallory's face. She only heard his voice across her shoulder:

"Doctor? Doctor Temple? Is your husband a reverend doctor?"
"A reverend doctor?" the little old lady repeated weakly.

"Yes—a-a preacher?"
The poor old congregation-weary soul was abruptly confronted with the ruin of all the delight in her little escapade with her pupil-tagged husband. If she had ever dreamed that the girl who was weeping in her arms was weeping for any other reason than the usual fright of young brides, fresh from the preacher's benediction, she would have cast every other consideration aside, and told the truth.

But her husband's last behest before he left her had been to keep their precious pretend-secret. She felt—just then—that a woman's first duty is to obey her husband. Besides, what business was it of this young husband's what her old husband's business was? Before she had fairly begun to debate her duty, almost automatically, with the instantaneous instinct of self-protection, her lips had uttered the denial:

"Oh—he's—just—a—plain doctor. There he is now."
Mallory cast one miserable glance down the aisle at Dr. Temple coming back from the smoking room. As the old man paused to stare at the bridal berth, whose preparation he had not seen, he was just enough bedazzled by his first cigar for thirty years to look a trifle tipsy.

The motion of the train and the rakish tilt of his unwonted crimson tie confirmed the suspicion and annihilated Mallory's new-born hope, that perhaps repentant fate had dropped a parson at their very feet.

He sank into the seat opposite Marjorie, who gave him one terrified glance, and burst into fresh sobbing.

"Oh—oh—hoo-hoo—I'm so unhap-py—py."
Perhaps Mrs. Temple was a little misled at the couple that had led her astray and opened her own honeymoon with a wanton fib. In any case, the best consolation she could offer Marjorie was a perfunctory pat, and a cynicism:

"There, there, dear! You don't know what real unhappiness is yet. Wait till you've been married a while."
And then she noted a startling lack of completeness in the bride's hand.

"Why—my dear!—where's your wedding ring?"
With what he considered great presence of mind, Mallory explained: "It—slipped off—I—I picked it up. I have it here." And he took the little gold band from his waistcoat and tried to jam it on Marjorie's right thumb.

"Not on the thumb!" Mrs. Temple cried. "Don't you know?"
"You see, it's my first marriage."
"You poor boy—this finger!" And Mrs. Temple, raising Marjorie's limp hand, selected the proper digit, and held it forward, while Mallory pressed the fatal circlet home.

And then Mrs. Temple, having completed their installation as man and wife, utterly unforgotten their confusion by her final effort at comfort: "Well, my dears, I'll go back to my seat, and leave you alone with your dear husband."
"My dear what?" Marjorie mumbled, faintly, and began to sniffle again.

Whereupon Mrs. Temple resigned her to Mallory, and consigned her to fate with a consoling platitude: "Cheer up, my dear, you'll be all right in the morning."
Marjorie and Mallory's eyes met in one wild clash, and then both stared into the window, and did not notice that the shades were down.

CHAPTER XI.
A Chance Encounter.

While Mrs. Temple was consoing to her husband that the agitated couple in the next seat had just come from a wedding-factory, and had got on while he was lost in tobacco land, the people in the seat on the other side of them were engaged in a little drama of their own.

Ira Lathrop, known to all who knew him as a woman-bating snapping-trute, was so busily engaged trying to drag the farthest invading rice grains out of the back of his neck, that he was late in realizing his whereabouts.

When he raked his head, he found that he had crowded into a seat with an uncomfortable looking woman, who crowded against the window with old-maidly timidity.

He felt some apology to be necessary, and he snarled: "Disagreeing things, these weddings!" After he heard this, it did not sound entirely felicitous, so he grudgingly ventured: "Excuse me—you married?"

She denied the soft impeachment so heartily that he softened a little: "You're a sensible woman. I guess you and I are the only sensible people on this train."

"It seems—so," she giggled. It was the first time her splendorship had been taken as material for a compliment. Something in the girlish giggle and the strangely young smile that swept twenty years from her face and belled the silver lines in close hair, seemed to catch the old bachelor's attention. He stared at her so fiercely that she looked about for a way to escape.

Then a curiously anxious, almost a hungry, look softened his leonine jaws into a boyish eagerness, and his growl became a sort of gruff purr:

"Say, you look something like an old sweetheart—er—friend—of mine. Were you ever in Brattleboro, Vt.?"
A flush warmed her cheek, and a sense of humor warmed her prim speech, as she confessed:

"I came from there originally."
"So did I," said Ira Lathrop, leaning closer, and beaming like a big sun: "I don't suppose you remember Mrs. Lathrop?"

The old maid stared at the bachelor as if she were trying to see the boy she had known, through the mask that time had modeled on his face. And then she was a girl again, and her voice chimed as she cried:

"Why, Ira!—Mr. Lathrop—is it you?"
She gave him her hand—both her hands, and he smothered them in one big paw and laid the other on her extra warmth, as he nodded his savage head and roared as gentle as a sucking dove:

"Well, well! Annie—Anne—Miss Gattie! What do you think of that?"
They gossiped across the chasm of years about people and things, and knew nothing of the excitement so close to them, saw nothing of Chicago slipping back into the distance, with many lights shooting across the windows like hurled torches.

Suddenly a twinge of ancient jealousy shot through the man's heart, recurring to old emotions.

"So you're not married, Annie. Whatever became of that fellow who used to hang round you all the time?"
"Charlie Selby?" She blushed at the name, and thrived at the luxury of the meeting jealousy: "Oh, he entered the church. He's a minister out in Ogden, Utah."

"I always knew he'd never amount to much," was Lathrop's epitaph on his old rival. Then he started with a new twinge: "You bound for Ogden, too?"
"Oh, no," she smiled, enraptured at the new sensation of making a man anxious, and understanding all in a flash the motives that make coquettes.

Mallory cast one miserable glance down the aisle at Dr. Temple coming back from the smoking room. As the old man paused to stare at the bridal berth, whose preparation he had not seen, he was just enough bedazzled by his first cigar for thirty years to look a trifle tipsy.

The motion of the train and the rakish tilt of his unwonted crimson tie confirmed the suspicion and annihilated Mallory's new-born hope, that perhaps repentant fate had dropped a parson at their very feet.

He sank into the seat opposite Marjorie, who gave him one terrified glance, and burst into fresh sobbing.

"Oh, yassum, clear as clear." Thus guaranteed she entered the stateroom, leaving the porter alone with his problem.

He tried to work it out in a semiaudible mumble: "Lemme see! If your present husband's absent wife gets on board disguised as a handsome hideous woman I'm to throw him—her—off the train and let her—him—come in—oh, yassum, you may rely on me."

Urgent Call For More Troops

100 More Men Wanted to Keep The 132nd Battalion From Being Broken Up

The following telegram is a clarion call to the young men of the North Shore, that is self-explanatory:
St. John, N. B., Sept. 2, 1916

R. Corry Clark, Newcastle.
Please call to your assistance the press of Northumberland County to help out in your campaign for one hundred men to keep the North Shore Battalion intact for the credit of the North Shore. Sincerely trust your committee will make every effort to secure results. Suggest your calling through the press, so many men from each parish to come forward to fill up the quota and that Restigouche and Gloucester counties do the same.
L. P. D. TILLEY,
Major C. R. O. for N. B.

Letters From The Front

From Victor Walls
No. 2 Can. Gen. Hospital.

My dear sister,
I received your letter a few days ago, full of very interesting news from home. It strikes me that all the young chaps are getting married. I do not like to be too critical, but I think I am right when I say that it would suit them much better if they would give over their sickly love making, and join the army and come over to help beat the Germans. It seems to me that it is very selfish of young fellows to take advantage of the absence of the chaps out here defending their rights and liberty. I am honestly ashamed of them and think it is the duty of every serious thinking young woman to say to the selfish slacker, "Go join the colors, go out to France, and when you come back I'll receive you with open arms and heart. Should you not come back I will always honour your memory as one who died a hero."

I am greatly pained to observe that the chaps who strutted about peacock-like in their red uniforms, after their yearly trip to Sussex training camp, are not so much in evidence now, when there is work to be done that requires nerve and pluck. I do not think that the people back home take this war seriously enough. Outside the lamenting the absence of loved ones out here, they appear not to see that there are many more who should be out here.

I think that the home people cannot conceive how we must feel when we pick up a home paper and read something like this, "The young people's club held a reception last evening, a very enjoyable evening was passed." Then following a list of names of the ones present, and each one of us knows that about 90% of those chaps should be in khaki, and yet they still remain "cocks of the walk," while the memory of the absent ones grows dim.
I must close my letter now. I expect to be leaving here shortly but do not know how soon. Any letters addressed here will follow me wherever I go. Good bye for this time. Love to all at home.
Your loving brother,
VICTOR.

Good Results of Temperance Reform

London, Aug. 30.—Interesting and informative statistics compiled by the Liquor Control Board, are published. They provide remarkable testimony to the good results of the work of the Board, showing as they do, a great decrease in the number of convictions for drunkenness in all parts of the country.

From January to June last the average weekly number of convictions was 835 in England and 404 in Scotland compared with 1,558 and 704 respectively from January to June 1915.
In England and Wales the total quantity of beer charged with duty for home consumption in the first six months of this year was 10,782,533 standard barrels, a reduction of over 600,000 standard barrels, as compared with the corresponding period of last year; while in Scotland the reduction amounted to over 25,000 barrels.

happiness. My kind regards to all. I remain your loving son,
PTE. LEO RASCH,
No. 199369 Army P O
9th Batt. C. E. F. London, England.

From Dan Curtis
France, July 31st, 1916

Dear Mother,
I received your letter a couple of days ago, and as you know, was very glad to get it. I must admit that I have not been doing as much letter writing to you of late as I should have done, but I knew you were hearing of me through Mrs. Aspinwall. She has certainly been a good friend to me since I came out here. Everything is much the same here along our part of the line.

The weather is lovely and warm. I was down at the base for three months taking a course in horse-shoeing. I had a fine time, believe me!
I think the war has a pretty good chance of finishing this year, the way the Russians are advancing. I hope it does. I would like to be home for Xmas.

I suppose you are busy at the harvest at home. You said in your letter it had been very dry in N. B. I know it was just the reverse in Ontario and France also. Mrs. Aspinwall forwarded your parcel to me alright, enclosed in one of her own. The tobacco was still in a moist condition.
Did you know Bernard King was killed about three months ago? Poor fellow! He did not live through this war. He was in the 15th Batt.

Well mother, I must close. I will be expecting a letter right back.
From your loving son,
DAN CURTIS.
