CHAPTER XXXIV.
TRUST BETRAYED.

The chill autumn had faded into cold dark winter, and the sea-swept coast which Headfort stands was bleak with winds and storm clouds.
She never paused to reflect on the wrong she was doing. He was devoted to her, and this satisfied her; and for a moment she felt she was being loved, the next she forgot this, and told herself her life would be so weary without him.

"What is he?" inquired Ruth gravely.
"Of course he is; how can such an idiot amuse Mrs. Heathcote, and Lady Hastings too, who is going to dine with us this evening, without a woman?"

"It seems to be so much with you," Frances gave a little shrug.
"Whoever can that but just one of those dinner-time too," said Audley, looking at his watch.
A moment later Colonel Kenyon was ushered into the room, and after shaking hands with Ruth and Audley, he asked for Frances.

"What is he?" inquired Ruth gravely.
"Of course he is; how can such an idiot amuse Mrs. Heathcote, and Lady Hastings too, who is going to dine with us this evening, without a woman?"
"Whoever can that but just one of those dinner-time too," said Audley, looking at his watch.

NEWS.

Ruth did not attempt to take any rest at that miserable night, but wandered from room to room in a half-distracted state.
"Is this not at the Hastings?" she asked hoarsely; "she has never been. Kenyon's like a madman. He thinks she has been murdered."
"Still, I was a resident of Port Limerick, and I was always used to the Hastings, and I know it to be a respectable and ordinary character."

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 11.

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD.

The paths of glory lead to the grave.

The whole Dominion is today plunged into pathetic grief over the death of our most illustrious statesman, whom has guided the ship of state almost uninteruptedly for forty years.

Sir John A. Macdonald is dead.

His was a remarkable career, and his removal from the political arena will not only be a blow to the party of which he has been the honored head, but will be a heavy loss to the whole country.

During the week that the angel of death hovered by his bedside, the deepest sorrow was manifested both at home and abroad for him, and the prayers and supplications of all classes were blended together for his recovery. Messages of sympathy to the devoted wife and sorrowing family were received at Earncliffe from all parts of the world, the Queen herself being among the most dutiful and loyal subjects of our beloved Queen.

As for myself my course is clear. A British subject I was born a British subject I remain to be. With my utmost, with my latest breath, will I oppose the "veiled iron" which attempts by secret means and mercenary profligate, to lure our people from their allegiance. During my long public service of nearly half a century I have been true to my country and its best interests, and I appeal with equal confidence to the men who have trusted me in the past, and to the young hopes of the country, to give me their united and strenuous aid in this my last effort for the Empire and the preservation of our commercial and political freedom.

The best evidence that Sir John was to be expected in the manner in which he built up and controlled the Conservative party. His personal magnetism and sound judgment attracted the better elements of our population to his side, and in his declining years it made him a leader of men as well as a profound ability as a statesman. When he entered Parliament in 1854 the political horizon was clouded, there being a wide gulf between the Queen's representative and his responsible advisors, which in time brought about the resignation of the Ministry of that day. True to the traditions of the party, Sir John stood on the side of the Governor-General and his first speech in the House, which was in reply to the Hon. Robert Baldwin, showed the wide grasp he had of public affairs, and won for him the admiration of his colleagues. In 1857 he assumed the office of Receiver General, and in a short time afterwards was appointed to the management of the Crown Lands Department, where his scope here for the young man to display his ability, as the Department was in a state of chaos. Sir John entered on the work with great spirit and soon brought it under business methods. In 1858, on the defeat of the Draper Ministry by Baldwin and Lafontaine he relinquished this post and sat for six years on the Opposition benches. During this time, amidst a storm of abuse from the Government, he was the Government's champion in the House, and in 1863 he was appointed to the management of the Crown Lands Department, where his scope here for the young man to display his ability, as the Department was in a state of chaos.

The great question which you will shortly be called upon to determine is whether you will support the Government or the Opposition.

DOMINION DAY. We are pleased to observe that steps are being taken in this city to celebrate Dominion Day in a becoming manner. It will be the 50th anniversary of the Confederation of the Dominion, and is an occasion which invites the enthusiasm of all patriotic citizens.

There are many ways in which the day may be celebrated. It has been suggested that one or two of the foremost orators of the country be invited to the present, and deliver addresses. No doubt this idea will find much favor with all classes of our citizens. What day or what occasion could form a better theme for the eloquence of our countrymen than the Dominion Day which our young and beloved country has made in the last two decades is wonderful indeed, and no man can speak too extravagantly of the success which has been attained.

AN EFFECT IN THE HOUSE. One of the evidences of the respect in which Sir John Thompson is held in the House of Commons is shown by the fact that the practical effect of what Sir John said was that the House spent the afternoon of the 10th inst. in a debate on the continuation of the Premier had not assumed a serious phase, nor were there any reasonable hopes of a favorable issue of the illness, a new Administration would have been formed, and in the face of this they could not undertake to decide upon a question which would involve the whole of the national arrangements as well as entail responsibilities that any Administration would have to undertake.

When the consulting physicians emerged from the Earncliffe grounds they were quickly surrounded by the newspaper correspondents, but it was evident that they were less inclined to divulge their opinions than have been on previous evenings. "We have no news to report to-night, gentlemen," Sir John's condition is about the same as yesterday, but his pulse is a trifle better, and he has been taking the usual nourishment—milk.

Then Sir James Grant remarked: "The pulse was better today, but Sir John is a great deal better, but both Dr. Wright and myself are agreed that he is not as well as he was a few days ago."

the battle the more wonderful. The people did not know early in his illness that his condition was really dangerous. It was a great debility. The vital forces are exhausted and death must ensue.

When the consulting physicians emerged from the Earncliffe grounds they were quickly surrounded by the newspaper correspondents, but it was evident that they were less inclined to divulge their opinions than have been on previous evenings.

Then Sir James Grant remarked: "The pulse was better today, but Sir John is a great deal better, but both Dr. Wright and myself are agreed that he is not as well as he was a few days ago."

On behalf of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Ontario, now in session, I desire to offer our united expressions of sympathy with the family in their bereavement, and to express our confidence in the God of all consolation who will support the Synod while they mourn the loss of the great loss which the Empire who have looked with interest upon the development of this great colony under his guidance.</

Sir John Macdonald died this evening at 10.15 o'clock.
(Signed) R. W. POWERS, M.D.
But before this was written, the news was being telegraphed to the various parts of the country, and the people were rejoicing in the news of his death. The news was first received in London, and then it spread to the other parts of the world. The people were glad to hear that the great man was at last at rest. His death was a great loss to the world, and his memory will be long remembered.

THE SCULPTOR AT WORK.
Before the statue was placed in its position, the sculptor had to work for many days. He had to carve the stone into the shape of the man, and he had to make it look as if it were really the man. The work was very difficult, and the sculptor had to be very careful. He had to make the statue look as if it were really the man, and he had to make it look as if it were really the man. The work was very difficult, and the sculptor had to be very careful.

HANGED.

Larocque Gives Up His Life as a Penalty for Crime. L'ORIGINAL, June 4.—Narcisse Larocque, who on Oct. 17 last assaulted and murdered two little girls named McGonigle, was hanged here at 8:35 this morning.

THE EXECUTION was probably the most expeditious on record. Exactly five minutes from the time the hangman plucked his arms he was out of the world. The prisoner passed a quiet night. Father Berube was with him till midnight. The priest was assisted in his ministrations by two grey nuns from Ottawa. Larocque appeared to be much affected by the service, and a short time after the priest and the nuns had left the doomed man, he laid down and went to sleep. He continued this way until five in the morning when he awoke. He had not been awake long before the priest was again with him and solemn religious ceremony was again performed. This was kept up until 1 o'clock. The religious then retired to allow the prisoner to partake of his last meal.

HIS LAST MEAL, which he had sparingly. At 1:30 Father Berube and nuns returned and final rites were commenced. The prisoner knelt beside the priest, his head bowed and his eyes filled with tears, but he showed no sign of fear. Exactly at eight o'clock Hangman Radcliffe entered the cell carrying a pair of white which to pinion prisoner's hands. At a signal from the sheriff Radcliffe pinioned the arms. Larocque was most submissive, and helped in the adjustment of the straps. Another signal and the death.

MARCH TO THE GALLOWS began. The condemned man kept his eyes on the ground, but showed no sign of weakening. The prayers in a low tone as the procession moved along. Arrived at the gallows Larocque took a long look at a word, and without any sign of nervousness. No time was lost, and as soon as he was in position the priest began the Lord's prayer in French, and Radcliffe placed the noose over his head, and then draw on the black cap. Even at this terrible ordeal, when all the world was shut out from the prisoner kept up his wonderful nerve. Not a muscle of his face moved, nor was there a quiver in any of his limbs that the ordeal was telling upon him. As the priest reached the words in the Lord's prayer, which has just concluded a definite will, by which he bequeaths all his personal property to Holy See.

A Socialist manifesto has been issued in Berlin calling on the Socialists throughout the country to protest against the Government's decision not to reduce the duties on grain. The plumbers of the city of Winnipeg have gained an increase of wages from $3.50 to $4 per day by threatening a strike. The number of working hours has, moreover been reduced to the Chilian insurgent steamer Itico arrived at Iquique Thursday morning and has been loaded over with her cargo of 5,000 rifles to a United States vessel to be taken back to San Francisco.

Alien Labour Law.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 4.—In the trial of Moses B. Shantz for importing laborers from Canada under contract, in violation of the Alien Labour Law, before United States Commissioner Gilbert this morning, several witnesses were examined. The witnesses were Canadian, and were employed in a factory. Mr. Shantz formerly lived in Canada. He testified that he had received $10 per week; that he had received $10 per week; that he was not exactly discharged, but when he came to work he found he had his place usurped, and that Mr. Shantz told him he would have no work for him, and that he was yet received no work. The witness was positive that plenty of men could be procured in the United States, and any and all the work in Mr. Shantz's factory if they were paid high enough wages. The defence will commence the following two days.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The collector of customs at Buffalo recently refused free entry of certain boiler tubes or pipes, which formed part of a domestic boiler that had exploded in Canada, on the ground that they were not returned in the condition in which they were exported. Assistant Secretary Harding has overruled the collector, and has directed the free admission of the tubes. He calls the collector's attention to the fact that the provisions of the free list exempting from duty articles of the growth, product, and manufacture of the United States do not require that the articles shall be in the same condition as when exported, but that they shall not have been advanced in value or improved in condition by any process of manufacture or other means. He has been instructed to act accordingly in the future.

Guelph Conference.

BERLIN, June 5.—Conference opened at 9 a. m. The first order of business was the reading of the report of the Nominating committee, after which the question of who had died during the year was taken up. The districts were called and Rev. James Browley of the Guelph District, was reported as having died during the year. The obituary in the case was read by Rev. R. H. Hall. On motion of Rev. J. H. Harrison, seconded by Rev. J. E. Howell, M. A., it was approved and ordered to be printed in the minutes.

Rev. J. A. McLaughlin, M. A., read report No. 2 of the Statistical Committee referring to social restrictions and memorials from the several districts, which were referred to the several committees.

The president read a telegraphic communication from Ottawa in reference to the illness of John Macdonald.

On motion the bill fee was reduced from $2 to $1. It was here decided that Bro. Alexander J. Irwin be not sent to college. Conference adjourned to meet at 3 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION. Upon the opening of conference several of the committees reported, when Dr. Burwash was introduced and gave a very fine account of the work of the year at old Victoria. It has been in existence for 50 years, the first five years as Upper Canada Academy and 50 years as Victoria College and University. During that time nearly 5,000 young men and women have been educated within its walls. 187 have graduated in arts, 1,225 have matriculated, and 500 have entered the ministry of our church. 22 have graduated this year. There has been an attendance of 301 students during the year and 103 have matriculated. Dr. Burwash in the absence of Dr. Potts, presented the report on federation, showing that $174,400 had been subscribed and that $110,747 in cash had been paid. Here some little discussion took place and many expressions of loyalty to the fund were given.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell, Presbyterian minister from Waterloo, was introduced to the conference. Rev. W. F. Campbell read the pastoral address. When a telegram from Ottawa was received, informing of the death of the condition of the Premier, the following resolution was passed and given to be sent: Moved by John George, seconded by Rev. W. S. Griffin, D. D., that the Guelph Conference of the Methodist Church, in the session of 1891, do hereby express their sympathy with the Right Hon. Sir John Macdonald and his friends in this hour of affliction.

Conference then retired to have the conference picture taken, an assembly to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The Behring Sea Bill.

LONDON, June 5.—The bill providing for the issue of an Order-in-Council prohibiting the taking of seals in Behring sea by British subjects, though a government measure, met with the opposition of Alexander Staveland Hill, King of the Kings, Winford division of Staffordshire, and who has represented Conservative constituents in the House of Commons for many years. His opposition was particularly directed against the clause in the bill, which provides that the United States shall catch 100 seals for the benefit of the islanders during the close season.

speech against this section and moved an amendment that the words "in Canada" be added thereto. During the course of his speech Mr. Hill stated that he had received a communication from the Hon. William Henry Smith, the Government minister in charge of the bill, basing his opposition to it on the fact that the Government had already obtained the assent of Canada to the bill.

In view of this statement by Mr. Smith, Mr. Hill withdrew his amendment and the bill was passed.

Thomas Sexton, M. P. for West Belfast, called the attention of the House to the attitude of the Irish members in connection with the bill, and expressed the hope that the Government would appreciate their forbearance in offering no opposition to it, thus allowing the Government to pass the bill on its third reading without delay.

WM. ROSS Secretary. INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY OF CANADA.

THE DIRECT ROUTE BETWEEN the West and the East. Lawrence and Belle Isle (Quebec) via Guelph; also for New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward and Cape Breton (Halifax) via Guelph and St. John's. Express trains leave Montreal and Halifax daily (Sunday excepted), and return without change between these points in 18 1/2 hours.

The through express train on the Intercolonial Railway is brilliantly lighted by electricity and heated by steam from the locomotive. It is the most comfortable and safe of all the trains in the New and oldest highway between Montreal and Halifax, and runs on all through express trains.

MAIL AND PASSENGER SERVICE. Passengers for Great Britain or the Continent, leaving Montreal on Friday morning will join outward mail steamer at Halifax Saturday.

The attention of shippers is directed to the superior facilities offered by this route for the transport of Flour and General Merchandise intended for the Eastern Provinces and Newfoundland; also for shipments of Grain and Produce intended for the European market.

Tickets may be obtained and all information about the route, also freight and passenger rates, on application to N. WEATHERSTON, Western Freight and Passenger Agent, Railway Office, Montreal, N.B., Nov. 21, 1891.
