Love a Conqueror

WEDDED AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The door opened softly, and Mrs. Beadesert entered, looking pale and subdued and touched. She had not seen Shirley since the night of the storm, and now she uttered a startled, shocked exclamation.

"Is it over?" The voice was almost inaudible from agitation and weakness.

"No, not yet," Mrs. Beadesert said unsteadily; "but it cannot be long now. Poor Shirley! Do not be afraid. It cannot be against him."

"What cannot be against him?"

"The—the verdict," Mrs. Beadesert said, startled by a sudden imperative gesture from Lucie which she was inclined to resent.

"Shirley, will you not go back to the sofa?" asked Miss Grey, speaking fast and excitedly in her terror. "You will rest better there. Mrs. Beadesert will help you."

"Lucie, are you hiding anything from me?" Oh, how pitiful the look in the sweet eyes was! "What does she mean? A verdict? I thought it was only a trial for—her voice died away on her lips, but she forced her self to continue—"for murder: that there was—"

"My darling, the coroner's decision is always called a verdict," said Lucie earnestly. "Are you feeling faint again, Shirley?"

"No—oh, no! I am well," she answered eagerly. "Mrs. Beadesert—oh, my heart? What—what is that? What—what is that?"

There was a sound of voices and footsteps, of opening and shutting doors; they could hear the shouting of the crowd outside. Mrs. Beadesert flushed and trembled; and ran to the door, Lucie Grey turned pale, and Shirley stood up, supporting herself by both hands upon her chair, waiting in a silence which was as death itself, it was so intense.

It was broken by hurrying footsteps along the passage, the rustle of heavy silken skirts, the tapping of high-heeled shoes, and Lady Eastwell rushed into the room, her handsome face pale and eager and triumphant. Shirley went toward her, standing alone and unassisted; and seeing her movement, Lucie went to her side.

"What is it?" Shirley said. "You look as if you had good news, Alice."

"So I have," she answered with a vindictive light in her blue eyes. "The verdict is the one I have longed and prayed for from the beginning."

WOMAN TOOK FRIEND'S ADVICE

And Found Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Windom, Kansas.—"I had a displacement which caused bladder trouble and I was so miserable I didn't know what to do. I suffered from bearing down pains, my eyes hurt me, I was nervous, dizzy and irregular and had female weakness. I spent money on doctors but got worse all the time."

"A friend told me about the Pinkham remedies and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was cured. I cannot praise your remedies enough for I know I never would have been well if I had not taken it."—Miss MARY A. HORNBY, Route No. 2, Box 41, Windom, Kansas.

Consider Well This Advice. No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

300% increase in the power of the "soldier" cells that defend the body—after feeding on Virol

Striking Evidence

An elaborate series of investigations recently conducted at a well-known sanatorium has definitely proved that the addition of Virol to the diet exercises a remarkable influence on the action of the white cells of the blood, which protect the body against germs. The experiments showed there was a distinct and progressive increase in the functional activity of the white cells in proportion to the number of weeks the patient had been fed on Virol.

BEFORE FEEDING ON VIROL. Photograph of the blood under a microscope showing that the white cells have no, been attacked by the germs.

AFTER FEEDING ON VIROL. Photograph of the blood under a microscope showing that the white cells have been attacked by the germs.

AFTER FEEDING ON VIROL. Photograph of the blood under a microscope showing that the white cells have been attacked by the germs.

After twelve weeks' Virol diet, the power of the white cells of the blood to destroy the germs was four times as great as that of the average blood of those who had not been fed on Virol.

The infinitesimal "soldier" cells of the blood that defend you die by millions in your body daily; millions of new ones have to take their place. Virol is made of the particular kinds of foods, beginning with bones and glands, thus providing the material with which the blood is crammed with "soldier" cells.

Everyone—man, woman and child—should be fed on Virol. It is a waste of money to run down, should the child be a young child on Virol; it is a waste of money to run down, should the child be a young child on Virol; it is a waste of money to run down, should the child be a young child on Virol; it is a waste of money to run down, should the child be a young child on Virol.

Do you think such wickedness will not be punished? Oh, you may look shocked, Lena, and try to silence me but there would be no justice on earth if such a wretch should not meet with his deserts!"

"Alice, you are cruel; for pity's sake come away! She is so ill," exclaimed Mrs. Beadesert, her bright eyes full of tears. "It will kill her, she whispered. 'Oh, come away—come away! Do not be the first to tell such an awful thing.'"

She had clasped her little hands over Lady Eastwell's arm, and was trying to draw her out of the room; but Alice resisted, the evil vindictive look deepening in her eyes.

"Don't be absurd, Lena! She must know it some time or other, and she may as well hear it from me," she said angrily. "Take away your hands, you are hurting me!" She pushed up the sleeve of her dress looking, with an angry color in her cheeks, at the red marks of the little widow's eager hands on the white flesh. "See how rough you are!" she continued. "What absurd nonsense! As if I would tell it to her more kindly than any one; for she must know it sooner or later."

"Lady Eastwell, let me entreat you," Lucie said imploringly; "say nothing now—she can bear no more! Oh, this is terrible!"

For Shirley was looking from one to the other, making desperate but ineffectual efforts to speak, while the parched lips refused to obey her.

Lady Eastwell looked at Miss Grey in silent contemptuous disapproval, and made a step to two toward Shirley; but again Lucie interposed.

"My dear, my dear," she entreated, "come away, come with me to your room! I will help you. Do not stay here. Good Heaven, she is dying!" she added, in an agony, as Shirley's head sank and her eyes closed; and Mrs. Beadesert flew to the table for some wine, which she forced through the pale lips, in her agitation spilling a great part of it over the white wrapper that Shirley wore, while Lucie trembled so exceedingly that she could hardly support the falling limbs.

"Tell me," the poor girl said, when she could speak—"tell me; I can bear—"

"Another time," Lucie interrupted, tremulously. "It is nothing dear; but you are fit for no more agitation now. Come with me and rest, and I will tell you."

Gently but firmly Shirley put her aside.

"I must hear at once," she said. "Tell me, Alice."

Lady Eastwell hesitated now; she had been extremely startled by the mortal anguish on Shirley's face, and rejoicing in her triumph as she was, she was afraid to tell her the news.

"Tell me, Alice."

"Well, the fact is, Shirley, that some wine, which she forced through the pale lips, in her agitation spilling a great part of it over the white wrapper that Shirley wore, while Lucie trembled so exceedingly that she could hardly support the falling limbs.

Girl's Nerves Fully Restored

Was Never Able to Obtain Lasting Benefit Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Was Used.

Too many girls grow up with weak, anemic bodies and exhausted nervous systems. Indoor life and too much application in school are sometimes the cause.

The blood needs enriching and the nerves need strengthening by such means as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food cure is doing wonders for many thousands of girls whose parents had almost despaired of their ever developing into strong, healthy women.

Mrs. J. Bagnall, 385 Woodville avenue, Toronto, writes: "My daughter suffered from nervousness since childhood, and any medicines she tried did not do any lasting good. We read in the papers about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and my daughter used it with wonderful results. This treatment strengthened the nerves that she feels like another girl."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanor, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

poor Hugh did not meet with an accident at all."

"No?"

"The voice was very calm and steady; it deceived Alice, but it did not deceive Lucie Grey; and she covered her face with her hands."

"No, he was murdered."

"Who says—?" The steady voice faltered; but Alice answered the unfinished question.

"The jury. They have given a verdict of willful murder against Guy Stuart."

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Never for many a long year, never even in the memory of its oldest inhabitant, had the little country town of Exminster seen such a concourse of people in its streets as on the fair autumn morning when Guy Stuart was to be tried for his life, charged with the murder of the man who had been his friend and his betrayer, the man he had loved and who had injured him so cruelly. It was not merely the pageant of the sheriff's procession which attracted such numbers; intense interest seemed to pervade all ranks of society as to the result of the trial which was to take place, and which must, the initiated said, prove of special and thrilling import to all.

Nor was it the townspeople of Exminster only who showed this interest. From far and near over the whole land came eager interested visitors of high rank and position; friends of Sir Hugh Glynn's who had admired the brilliant, hapless baronet who had been carried home through the storm, cold and stiff, with the red rose over which they had joked a few short hours before still in the button hole of his gray tweed coat; friends of Guy Stuart's, brother officers who knew him well, and who were furious at the charge brought against one whom they loved, and of whose bravery and honor they had been justly proud during the time he had been one of them; friends of Lord and Lady Eastwell's, their guests at the house they had taken for a short time in the immediate neighborhood—and these, taking their opinions from Alice, inveighed bitterly against the accused and the baseness of his crime. There were many too at Exminster who had known and envied Shirley in her brilliant career as belle and queen of society; and these were anxious to see how she bore herself now that she was dethroned—that her wealth was lost—for, by a will made a few weeks after his marriage, Sir Hugh's entire possessions had been left away from his wife, save a small annuity. Among the crowds of rich and titled visitors who came by every train on the day before the trial, but few sympathized with Shirley. Women who had flirted with her husband in his bachelor days, men who had admired Shirley and had been repelled by her haughty manner, were equally bitter against her now. If it was Guy who had committed the murder, she was the cause of it; she had always hated her husband; she had married him doubtless through ambition, but she had loved Guy Stuart with a great love; and Lady Eastwell was looked upon as an oracle by the heartless votaries of fashion, who had agreed with her in her dislike to the poor girl whose one sin against Alice had been an involuntary one, whose only real cause for hatred lay in that fatal beauty which had won a love she had not craved.

9810. — A BECOMING YOUTHFUL DESIGN.

Costume for Misses and Small Women, with or without Chemisette.

This model was used for a simple party frock of blue crepe de chine. Brocaded silk in Persian tones forms the girde, while shadow lace and net frills add a neat touch to neck and sleeve finish. The design is suitable for serge, albatross or cashmere. It will also lend itself equally well to velvet, charmeuse or satin. The drop shoulder and yoke effect are good style features. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 14, 16, 17 and 18 years. It requires 5 yards of 44 inch material for a 16 year size.

Where Women Count.

By BUTH CAMERON.

"Oh, I wish I were a man," I heard a girl say the other day. "They count for something in the world. When they want things they get them. What women want is only a secondary consideration."

Now it seems to me that this girl expressed a rather common point of view among women and a distinctly wrong one. Women don't realize their own influence; they don't realize how largely the world is run for them.

For one thing, newspapers are written for women. The big advertiser is looking for the newspaper with the largest number of women readers, and as the advertiser pays about five times as much towards the production of the paper as the reader, the editor must try to please the advertiser by pleasing women.

Hotels are built for women. Go into a man's club and see how different its arrangements and decorations are from those of a hotel. "The chief reason I prefer to stop at a club," a business man once said to me, "is that the rooms in the club are planned and furnished with reference to a man's convenience, while the average hotel room is meant for a woman. Exactly what do I mean by that? Well, for one thing the chairs in a hotel room are usually foolish little spindle-legged things that will hardly hold a good sized man. Then the lighting is arranged so as to give the best light to the bureau, while the

The Man of the Hour

Britain Has Been All Agog Over "Jim" Larkin—People Have Been Fascinated by the Man at Whose Word Dublin Workers Starved and Refused to Work—His Speeches Are Crude and Uncouth But There is Power in His Slightest Gesture.

The man who has loomed largest in the public eye of Great Britain in the past few months is Jim Larkin, the hero of the Dublin strikers. He rose almost in a moment from the depths of nothingness to the height of notoriety. He stepped from the motley rank of toilers, and the words in which he championed their cause echoed in every corner of the land.

"A year ago," says an Irish correspondent in The London Times, "when we who thought of him as a troublesome disturber of the peace of mind of our servants, a Dublin editor of adventurous mind, going home in the small hours of the morning, took the way that led through a slum. There was a lit window—some one ill, evidently—and across the panes was scratched in chalk or paint, 'God bless Jim Larkin.' There's something more in Larkin than we know," said the editor.

When he crossed to London some weeks since he was the man of the hour—the "Will and the Fate of the Multitude." He addressed there a great meeting in the Albert Hall, convened by the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress. These are his words: "The British labor leaders are moving, and when they move some times one gets astonished. You cannot expect men to travel as quickly as you and I might like them to do. But I will undertake on behalf of the men who know how to fight, in Dublin that the fight will go on until the leaders in England are ready."

"If anyone has anything to say against the Liberal Government it is the working class in Ireland. But they have promised to carry out one pledge they gave in their history—namely, to let the Irish people govern themselves. Important as it is to win the Dublin strike, it is a thousand times more important that that measure should go through the House of Commons. Do not misunderstand us of the Irish working class. If any slave class in history required the right to assist in breaking the shackles that bind them body and soul it is the working class in Ireland."

"Let us not forget that there are over 300 men lying in jail in Dublin guilty of no illegal act, and over 57 mothers, and daughters—girls of 11 up to women of 60—lying there because they dared to say 'Up Larkin.' Think of the statesmen who would send a pure, clean-minded, clean souled girl of 16 to spend a week's holiday with those who had forgotten their race, their sex, and their soul!"

"They must have Home Rule. He had been told by the newspapers that he must put forward a policy. They needed a policy to cure the evils of which he was speaking. He knew of two girls in Dublin who worked for 12 days for 10d. Whose was the shame? His and theirs. The Bishop of London knew the shame. Bishop Gore knew the shame. Birrell was taking blood money. Lloyd George and Herbert Henry Asquith were taking blood money, too. There was a time when Asquith and Lloyd George had human hearts inside them, but their hearts had become stones, and these men forgot that people had a right to live. He challenged Mr. Birrell to come to Dublin, where his wages were paid, and carry out what he was paid for. He was a loafer, idler, trickster; he was the joker, and wanted shifting out of the pack. But the Dublin joke was a grim one.

"In Dublin they believed in fellowship, comradeship, and brotherly love, and they carried it out. The sweat had been sheltering behind what was called the good employer, and the said that they would not associate with the man who would pay a girl 10d. for twelve days' work and they would not associate with the people he employed. If those people would not kick and kick hard, they would kick them. He would say to the British workers, 'Give us Home Rule.' It was the best bargain they would and prospective owners, what a full line of parts right here in the city means to you—prompt service and every satisfaction. It is useless to ignore the fact that you don't require parts. It is all the same if the car costs eight hundred or eight thousand the parts must be renewed sooner or later. The piece of machinery has not been made yet that won't wear. Unfortunately we are such a great distance from the factory and to get parts it takes considerable time, not to mention them having quite a rest at St. John, N.B., for a month or so; and then when you do get them at last, nine times out of ten they are not as ordered. Personally I have known cars to be tied up all the summer from the above cause.

I have a full line of parts always in stock and invite inspection. In fact I carry the only complete line of parts and accessories in the city. I shall be leaving for the "Ford" Factory about the fourth of February and any orders placed before I leave will be attended to personally.

Evening Telegram.

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor.
W. F. LLOYD, Editor.

THURSDAY, January 29, 1914.

Premier Waxes Indignant.

The debate on the Address in Reply closed about midnight after the longest discussion for the past 15 years. Sir Edward Morris, the Premier, closed the debate and showed much resentment because the Opposition had moved an amendment to the Address in Reply expressing regret that the heads of the departments had not been appointed from members of that House and expressed the hope that such appointment would be made immediately. One would have imagined from the indignation expressed that the proper constitutional practice was to keep such Ministers out of the Legislature as long as possible. Sir Edward was most unhappy in his defence of the outrageous conduct of his Ministry, and this is not to be wondered at, as his conduct is indefensible. He stated that Mr. Lloyd had pointed out that Mr. Gladstone held office for months without a seat in the House of Commons, but the Premier forgot to state that Mr. Lloyd had stated that this conduct had caused considerable adverse criticism and had not been repeated by the British Ministry during the past seventy years. The Premier waxed indignant also at the criticism directed against the administration by Mr. Lloyd a week ago. It had evidently been rankling deep in his memory ever since. He grew heated at the recollection of the remarks directed against his financial blunders and he fulminated against The Evening Telegram. But he failed to answer the criticisms about the expenditure of both Railway Loans, the obligation to build 50 miles of railway this year without a red cent in hand, the shortage in revenue, the overspending and being forced to go into a stringent money market at an unpropitious time and with a record of blind financing. He however intimated that there would be another opportunity of discussing the loan question, meaning, presumably, that he intends to propose a third loan to the House this session.

At the Theatre.

A capacity house greeted the W. S. Herkins Players at their production of the comedy "Is Matrimony a Failure?" at the Casino theatre last night. The play tells the story of the pleasure-seeking wife of a busy man who can find little time for amusement. The wife who feels she is neglected by her husband seeks amusement elsewhere and somewhat encourages the attentions of a young army officer, who falls a complete victim to her charms. Her indiscretion places her in many serious predicaments which cause her to resort to amusing stratagems to exonerate herself from her husband's censure. Though the plot is a rather light one, the play abounds in many amusing situations. Miss Van Duser gave a very faithful portrayal of the frivolous society lady, and was ably supported by the other ladies of the company in their respective roles. Frank Conway was as usual, excellent, and his clear enunciation and clever delineation of the several characters assigned to him at all of the performances, have won the encomiums of all our theatre goers. Herbert Charles gave a splendid performance of a difficult role. Harry Stubbs furnished the comedy, and was ably supported by the other members of the troupe. The same bill will be produced to-night and on Friday night "The White Sister" will be again staged in response to a large number of requests.

At Rossley's.

Crowded to the doors, many standing to witness the beautiful production "Bonnie Wee Mary." Everyone says it's the best yet, and that's what they all say from week to week. On Friday night the pantomime will be under the patronage of the St. Andrew's Society, of which Jack Rossley is a member. They will turn out in a body to do honor to the memory of their beloved Scottish Bard, and on this occasion the Rossleys will give a special show and make it one of the best nights ever seen at this popular Vaudeville House. Every night this week, the Rossleys have been cheered as well as applauded; they deserve it; they work hard, and benefit quite a number of people. Jack Rossley, sole proprietor of The Rossley Theatre, has no less than sixty-eight people on his pay list and all belong to St. John's, except his housekeeper, Orth and Burkhardt and Miss Arkandy. He spends his money where he makes it. Now will you be good.

Case Against City Butcher.

The postponed case between Health Inspector O'Brien and a city butcher was heard to-day before Judge Knight. The defendant was charged with a breach of Section 12 of the Slaughter House Rules, to which he pleaded guilty, and was fined $2 or 7 days. The rule says that all offal should be thoroughly boiled before given to pigs. In this case the offal was in a decomposed state. This sort of food stimulates tuberculosis. It is a serious matter concerning the public interest and the practice should be discontinued.

Murderer and Bank Robber

HELPED BY FRIENDS TO BREAK OUT OF PRISON.

Winnipeg, Jan. 19.—That Krachenko was armed during the last days of his preliminary hearing was hinted by the bandit to-day to the provincial jailor. "It's a damn good thing you didn't move me to the provincial jail that night," he said. "There would have been trouble. I had an automatic in my pocket, and a bunch of my friends were on the outside, armed and ready to help me." Bail amounting to $20,000 was insufficient to release Percy Haget, Krachenko's counsel, when application was made by his counsel, R. A. Bonnar, K.C., before Sir Hugh John Macdonald this afternoon.

At one time, Buxton said, Reid had a revolver belonging to Buxton in his possession to give to Krachenko, but Buxton was so much afraid that this would be traced if Krachenko was ever caught, or if his attempt to escape failed that it was better to let it go. Buxton said that he succeeded in having the other one stolen from a store. It was the stolen revolver that was given to Krachenko, and it was the same revolver which was found in a wastepaper basket in the room where the bandit was captured on Sunday night.

Buxton detailed at length the various meetings with Reid and Haget when the details of the affair were planned from time to time. He knew all the details and knew that Krachenko was to go to Westlake's room. Buxton occupied the gun only after a good deal of trouble, having forced a boy in a pawn store, over whom he had influence, to steal the gun, a Colt automatic. At Haget's request he went to Eaton's store and bought a bank of ordinary cotton clothes line which was also given to Reid. He told of the trouble in figuring how Reid could carry the rope, in as it made so much bulk under his tunic. While declaring that he had not hoped or expected to get anything for the part he took in arranging for the escape, Buxton told of Reid explaining that Krachenko had wondrous treasure cashed away in the country, including $200,000 worth of railway stock certificates, $10,000 worth of diamonds and gold watches and considerable cash. He also stated that if Krachenko got out in time he would be able to hold up a C.P.R. pay car and get $15,000 more which he would divide among "The Boys."

play of Haget. Over and over again Buxton declared that he had no active part in assisting and that it was only when he later that he realized that he was making a fool of himself. Two days before the escape he had tried to pull out of a hole that had tried to warm Reid that it would never be pulled off, but Reid, he claimed, insisted that it was worth the chance.

Although admitting at first that Haget was the prime instigator of the whole plot, Buxton's later evidence tended to show that Reid had taken the most active part in planning the details.

At the House

Petitions were presented by Mr. Piccott, from Bay Roberts Agricultural Society, asking a bonus for land clearing; by Mr. Coaker, for a road and telephone connection from Squid Tickle to Salvage Bay; by Mr. Jennings, for a breakwater at Indian Burying Place; and by Mr. Abbott, for a post office at Drake Cove, E. B.

The debate on the address in reply was continued and lasted up to midnight. A feature of the speeches made by the Government side of the House was their efforts to boost up the branch railway policy.

Mr. Targett resumed speaking on the Agricultural policy. The Government had given it too much praise already but he was unable to say anything good about it and it was of no earthly use or benefit to the people he represented. In his opinion the best way to improve agriculture would be to give bonuses for land clearing. He pointed out the non-success of the Old Age Pensions; he understood it was to be given to destitute toilers of 75 years of age but he knew of men who had money in the banks getting pension support. He illustrated his remarks by stating that a previous member for Trinity went around asking old men who they were going to vote for so that he could get pensions for those who supported him. He thought that such discriminating distribution amongst the worn-out toilers was unfair. He said that it was through the instrumentality of Mr. Coaker the price of fish went up. The present government told the fishermen five years ago that if they got in power they would keep them advised as to the price in foreign markets. So far nothing has been done in that direction, except to tell the fishermen that fish was 40 milraes in Brazil. That information might do for the educated person but it was strange news to the poor fisherman.

Mr. F. J. Morris was the next speaker. For some time he dealt with the agricultural policy and said it was a success because it was a continuance of the policy of the late Sir W. V.

Whiteway. He said that the Fishermen's Union was a good organization but should not aim at controlling the Government of the Colony. He dilated on the railway building of the present Government regardless of the money spent. Railways at any cost appeared to be the drift of his policy.

Mr. Emerson followed, congratulating the Speaker and dealing with the Old Age Pension Scheme, telling how well it was put in operation in his District. As to the agricultural policy the government meant well and should not be blamed for the mistakes of its agents. He concluded his remarks by contending that the present administration was a fishermen's government.

Mr. Dwyer in a brief speech referred to the agricultural policy, showing that three experts did away with the Experimental Farm and abolished the Board of Farmers. Thousands of dollars are being spent on agriculture and the people cannot see the benefit.

Mr. Coaker then gave a lengthy speech, going into detail of various public matters, notably the fish question. He supported the amendment proposed by Mr. Kent and stated that if the positions of Minister of Justice and Minister of Agriculture and Mines were filled from the Legislative Council that the F. P. U. would agitate for the abolition of that Chamber. In dealing with the Agricultural question he thought the best way to improve the present state of affairs would be to give bonuses for clearing land. He then read out a list of the wasteful and extravagant expenditures of the dredge boat which was of no use on any part of the Island, except St. John's. The list showed the names of those who got fat pickings. The lion's share went to Mid. Produce Co., M. A. Duffy, and Capt. Bartlett. He said the dredge would be of better service if used as a distress boat and a new dredge purchased. He told interestingly of the wretched conditions for the men in the lumber camps and how tuberculosis was spreading as a result. He then went on to deal with night schools and cottage hospitals in outports. Just then another scene occurred in the House. Mr. Young, member for Harbour Grace, began to interrupt in an objectionable way.

The speaker called order and Mr. Young tried to insist on speaking. Mr. Speaker emphatically refused to allow him. Continuing, Mr. Coaker directed the Speaker's attention to the man as intoxicated. In referring to railway development he was in favour of it in the proper way and gave reasons why he was against the present Trossey and Heart's Content branches.

THE SPAR QUESTION.

Mr. Crosbie then spoke in an unusually heated way and was evidently after the scalp of Mr. Coaker. He scored the idea of Coaker taking the credit of raising the price of fish and began to tell how it came about that he got from the Government the $2,200 and stated that the whole lot-out of four spars and rigging cost $2,200. In dealing with the coal question he gave figures to bear him out that coal could not be sold in St. John's cheaper than $7.19 a ton.

The Prime Minister was the last speaker and made an attempt to handle the criticisms of the Opposition, but soon found that he was unable for the task and waxed warm on the great railway building the present administration had accomplished and began to tell how onerous the Reid Company obligations were proving. He referred to the two defeated ministers, Messrs. Morison and Blandford, who he (the Prime Minister) contended were being criticized unfairly and stated that constitutional practice would be maintained as to the filling of these two portfolios. He said that the reason Sir Robert Bond resigned was because of the criticism upon those two ministers. This was denied by the Opposition. His main line of argument was a continual harping over the Evening Telegram, and its editor, who, said the Prime Minister, made a speech here the other day that was bristling with bitter criticism. The Prime Minister plainly told the worry he was being caused by this Journal because of its persistent criticism of his policy. The Premier so far forgot himself during the course of his speech as to say that the Bond administration, with which he was Attorney General, never did anything but collect the Revenue and pay officials their salaries. In reference to the Tuberculosis question he said that the first sanitarium would be erected in the spring on Waterford Bridge Road, but omitted to say that the sum of $3,000 had been paid to a Government official for the site.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

When the Premier finished Mr. Downy asked the speaker's permission to say a few words about himself. He was not an applicant for Minister of Agriculture and Mines and could earn a living in many other ways. He began to go into detail about his ability in re fishery matters. The whole was an autobiography. The amendment was then put and lost. Every Government member voting against it and every Opposition member for it. A division was taken. Afterwards the address in reply was passed on a similar division. After a long suite of notices, the House adjourned at 12:15 a.m.

The Movie Tax.

We publish elsewhere in this issue a letter from Mr. J. P. Kieley, the Manager of the Nickel Theatre, to which an affidavit is attached, testifying to the accuracy of the statement contained therein. The letter has reference to the Movie Tax, and Mr. Kieley sets forth the expenditure in connection with the Nickel Theatre for the year ending December 31st last. He shows that $18,283.16 was spent, and it is evident outside of the charge of films, which amounts to $3,471.10, most of the money is spent locally. He shows further that $51,59 was spent in duties and $321.33 in taxes. It is clear from this that the Nickel is contributing both to the upkeep of the general revenue of the country and to the municipal revenue. As the taxes are 2 1/2 per cent on the gross receipts and the taxes amount to $521.33, the income did not exceed the expenditure by any large sum. It appears to us that the Nickel contributes a fair share to our national and also to our civic revenue.

Nickel Expenditure.

St. John's. To wit: I, John P. Kieley, Manager of the Nickel Theatre of St. John's, make oath and say as follows:—

1. The statement contained in the letter to the Daily News, a copy of which is hereto annexed marked "A," is a true and correct statement of some of the monies expended by the Nickel Theatre for the year ending December, 1913.

Sworn at St. John's this 23rd day of Jan. 1914, before me, D. G. KENT, Commissioner, S. C.

THE LETTER.

"A" D.G.K. Editor Daily News.

Dear Sir,—Owing to the great prominence which has been given by the daily press to the so-called Movie Tax and to the publishing of one side of our private business, in justice to ourselves and to correct an erroneous opinion as to the profits made by those shows, I would thank you to publish the following statement of some of the expenses paid out by the Nickel Theatre for the twelve months ending December, 1913:—

Rent	$2,183.00
Salaries	8,288.00
Light	3,471.50
Advertising	861.70
Duties	551.59
Taxes	521.83
Light	728.30
General expenses	1,770.24
	$18,283.16

Again thanking you for valuable space.

I am, yours very truly, J. P. KIELEY, Manager. St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 28, 1914.

Entire Parish Changed.

The character of an entire parish near Monroe has been changed. Jewish agriculturists gradually ousted the old-time French and English habitant farmers. The parish is St. Sophie de la Corne, county of Terrebonne, seven miles from St. Jerome. Originally the district was a Scotch settlement, but French Canadian farmers took it over slowly. The new invasion by Jews came and now there are only three French Canadian and one English farmer in the entire parish. In the event of a sale of property it is always turned over to a Jew. They have a school and own the village store. Summer residences for Jews of the city are now being built. The establishment of a sanitarium is now contemplated for the use of Jewish patients exclusively.

Report on Subject of Dun Fish.

BY S. H. BLICHFELDT, ESQ., BACTERIOLOGIST, AND PAUL S. ARUP, ESQ., B. Sc., LONDON.

Early in 1911 Captain Solling drew our attention to the difficulty which was experienced in the curing and preservation of dried and salted fish, as prepared in Newfoundland and Labrador. At his request we perused the existing literature on the subject, and forwarded to the Newfoundland Government a brief resume, including general advice regarding the cleaning and disinfecting of the curing places. It appeared afterwards that the authorities were not quite satisfied that the disease which prevailed in North West Europe was exactly the same as the one they had to face in Eastern Canada and Newfoundland, and that therefore the treatment and disinfection recommended might not be applicable in this case. They accordingly requested us to extend our investigations to the exact determination of the cause of the disease in the Newfoundland fish curing industry, and to this end sent us early in 1912 a box of dun dried fish.

On arrival the enclosed photographs of the fish were taken, in order to exemplify what we considered to be the symptoms and visible effects of the dun, and our investigations were concentrated on classifying the organism which caused these particular symptoms. Referring to the photographs, it will be observed that the fish is covered with spots. These spots are brown in colour, and are formed of a powdery material which can easily be brushed off. When the fish was allowed to stand in moist air, the brown spots increased in number and size.

EXAMINATION OF THE DUN.
Microscopical: The brown material was found to consist of numerous clusters of cells, the single cells measuring about 2 to 4 micro-millimetres in diameter, and also parts of a mycelium. The obvious conclusion was that this was a mould, and the material was consequently spread on various nutrient media with the object of further studying it, and obtaining pure cultures.

Physiological: The mould was inoculated on various well known media, such as malt extract, fish decoction, and also sterile decoction of the dried fish itself. We found that the surface, and when the spore formation stage was reached, developed brown colonies exactly similar to those observed on the fish itself. It was particularly noted that the mould thrives specially well on fish decoction from the dried and salted fish, and on closer examination of this phenomenon it was found that the presence of salt seemed to accelerate the growth, and it thrives well, even on gelatine and agar media containing 10 per cent of salt. The mould had a distinctly aerobic character, as it never grew downwards into the media, but showed the distinct surface development always noticed on the fish. Growth took place at temperature varying from 5 to 35° C., the white mycelium developed on the optimum temperature being about 25° C.

Classification: Our examination led us to the conclusion that the mould was identical with that occurring in North West Europe, which has been described under several names, such as Oidium Pulvinatum, Odi Morrhusse and Torulva Pulvinata. For a detailed description of this organism we would refer to Eristian 'Toye, Bergen's Museums Aarbog, 1901 No. 7, and 1904 No. 9. This author in his last publication specially deals with the technical problems involved in combating the ravages of this disease.

Nature of Disease: The following recommendations are mainly based on these observations. The mould grows as a sprophyte on the fish, and is in no way derived from any part of the fish itself. Salt in its original state as it leaves the Factory, does not contain any disease germs. The mould develops and generates on the dead fish before it is completely dry, and on the offal from the curing place. It is spread as a fine spore dust in the air in and around the curing places, and settles, together with dust on the walls, ceilings, and especially on the tables and utensils used for treating the fish. It also settles on the clothes of those engaged in handling and curing it. Once the mould has got the upper hand, it will infect the whole surroundings, and everything with which the workers are likely to come into contact. It may be expected to be specially prevalent in fishing boats, docks, and all sheds and houses in which the fish is treated, and all appliances with which it is likely to come in contact.

The spores may, of course, fall on the dry fish, but as long as this has been properly cured and well dried it will offer no opportunity for the development of the spores, and as long as the salted fish is kept in a well dried condition, there is no fear whatever of its being attacked.

If salted fish develops the dun to any appreciable degree there is no doubt that it has been strongly infected by the spores of this mould at the time of killing and curing, and the degree to which it later on develops depends very much on the efficiency of the drying process. Any delay here will increase the consequence of the infection.

Recommendations: On the basis of these facts it should not be a difficult matter to master this dun. The cure really only amounts to cleanliness and efficiency in the process. As regards cleanliness, it can only be repeated that the holds of ships, sheds, rooms and places in which the fish is stored and treated must be thoroughly disinfected from time to time; all implements likewise must be washed and disinfected every time they are finished with. All offal must be cleared away and disposed of as soon as possible, and not allowed to lie about.

For the disinfection of the curing places, etc., the best and cheapest method has been shown to be fumigation with sulphur, using about one ounce of sulphur per 35 cubic feet. In order that the fumigation may be effectual, it is necessary that the place disinfected be closed up practically air tight. If this cannot be done, the walls and ceilings, etc., must be washed with some disinfecting liquid, such as Formalin (a 7 p.c. solution of the commercial article) or Sulphurous Acid, (one part of concentrated acid to fifty parts of water). Other disinfectants recommended are Ammonium Bifluoride in 1/2 p.c. solution, or lime wash made by diluting ordinary Milk of Lime with ten parts of water. Such disinfection should take place periodically, say once a week. Implements, tables, etc., may be disinfected with Formalin, Ammonium Bifluoride or Sulphurous Acid solutions as above, and in this case also disinfection should be carried out at regular intervals, say every day.

Besides washing with disinfectants, all implements, tables, floors, tanks, decks, docks, etc., with which the fish is likely to come into contact should be frequently washed with fresh water (not stale harbor water) or better still, steamed down. This should be done at least once a day. A small stream of water under high pressure is stated to be more efficient than a larger stream at low pressure. The fish should be washed by spraying with clean pure water, and not by merely throwing it into the water and taking it out again. It is of special importance that the butts should be thoroughly cleaned, and either steamed for twenty minutes or washed with some disinfectant every time they have been used.

The salt must be clean, having been preserved in clean packages and not exposed so as to allow it to become infected with the spores.

The treatment of the fish throughout should be conducted with the utmost care and cleanliness. Thus, it should not be allowed to lie about on decks or docks, etc., where the men are likely to walk about in their dirty boots, and the treading of the fish by foot in packing should not be allowed. In all cases it is advisable to use mechanical appliances in preference to manual labor if possible, always provided, of course, that such appliances are kept properly clean on the lines indicated above.

A further important point is, as already stated, the immediate removal of refuse from the neighborhood of the fish, for if left lying about it will undoubtedly become a breeding place for the undesirable organisms which will infect the fish.

It is recommended that the rooms in which the fish is treated should be light and airy, allowing for ample ventilation, and provision should be made for entirely closing the room for fumigation purposes. Cold storage of the fish after salting and dressing has also been shown to have a beneficial effect, but as has been stated above, the really important points are cleanliness and quick and complete drying.

Conclusion: In Norway considerable success has been achieved in eliminating the disease by working on lines as indicated above. It is sufficient here to point out the main principle and methods for combating the disease, and to emphasize the necessity for steps being taken to secure reforms on these lines. The actual details must be left to the judgment of scientific experts on the spot.

It has often been stated by practical men that such precautions as we advocate cannot be carried out, owing to their being too troublesome and costly. In reply it may be said, firstly—that the cost and trouble of following out the simple and by no means exacting directions laid down would be more than repaid by the better quality of the fish, and consequently higher prices fetched by it. Secondly—that signs are by no means wanting that scientific methods are being adopted by some firms in Norway with great success, and it is certain that those who do not follow suit will eventually be fatally handicapped by the inferior quality of their product.

It is only reasonable to demand that food for human consumption should be treated according to modern ideas of hygienic and sanitary conditions, and there is no doubt that the fish curing industry will benefit thereby, as have all other food industries which have adopted the advantages offered by technical science.

"To One Bath 60 Pounds."

Jumbo is very fussy about his bath and in his native land takes great joy in splashing about in pools and rivers. Nature has been especially kind to him, inasmuch as she has endowed him with a shower bath, which he carries about with him. But whether he takes the same pleasure in the bath that is given him when—for show purposes—he is in captivity is another matter. In any case, it must be a wearisome business, as it occupies a week.

Also it requires the services of three men, and costs £60! The first thing is to go over the elephant's huge body with the best possible soap—and as the amount of soap used is something like a hundred and fifty pounds, this is not a small item.

When he has been dried, the elephant is well sand-papered—which does not sound particularly enjoyable. The sand-papering being finished, Jumbo is rubbed all over with the very best Indian oil until his mouse-colored skin is supple and glistening. This is the most costly part of his toilet, as about thirty pounds' worth of oil has to be used.

Fashions and Fads.

The train of an evening gown should be lined with its own material or with a plain silk of its own color.

Little vest "tabs" showing under the closing of the coat are almost indispensable to the fashionable costume.

More and more the long-bodied French style is seen in children's frocks, both for school and better wear.

Macrame work is gaining in favour everywhere for all sorts of objects, from girdles and handbags to table covers.

Fashion is going to the opposite extreme of tight swathing, new coats and other wraps being positively voluminous.

Panama hats are sometimes trimmed with scarfs of raw silk stenciled in color. Pongee done in green has a good effect.

One of the prettiest necklaces is the velvet collar with its pendant or buckles. Short strings of very heavy beads are also liked.

Some of the new cotton crepes have a dash of silk mixed in with them to form a design, and this design is often as not in color.

In planning a blouse or gown, be sure always to have soft lines about the neck. The woman doesn't live who isn't improved by them.

Broad sashes of Roman striped ribbon are a pretty note of brightness in the simple dark dresses appropriately chosen for schoolgirls.

Coats to the new "sweater" dresses for spring are cut very full, hanging loose from the shoulder and springing into godets at the hem.

One of the most radical French dressmakers is showing gowns with draped skirts of black satin and bodices of peau de peche in bright colors.

Duveltyne is a great disappointment so far as durability is concerned, but it is forgiven for its wonderful texture. Wool velour has its virtues without its vices.

Chiffon taffeta lends itself peculiarly well to hip and busta draperies—which may be one reason why we may expect to see a great deal of this taffeta for spring.

A Plain Business Proposition

Can you afford to go on suffering from biliousness, sleeplessness, heart flutter and various other troubles so often brought on by tea or coffee drinking, just because you like it? Thousands have quit tea and coffee and are using Postum, and to their joy find that the annoying troubles have quickly disappeared. Not only that, but they find Postum a delightful beverage, with a rich, snappy flavour, distinctively its own.

Postum, unlike tea and coffee, contains no caffeine nor other drug. Made only from clean hard wheat, with a small per cent of New Orleans molasses, it is a pure, wholesome food-drink which can be freely enjoyed with benefit by all the family.

Postum now comes in two forms:
Regular Postum—must be boiled 15 to 20 minutes.
Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A scant teaspoonful to each cup of hot water dissolves instantly.

The convenience of Instant Postum is apparent. But, when prepared according to directions both kinds are exactly the same. The cost per cup is about the same.

Grocers everywhere sell both kinds.

Just One More Woman Rises.

Mrs. John Cabot, After Six Years' Suffering, Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and Found New Life and Energy.

White Head Percé, Que., Jan. 28. (Special).—One more woman has risen to tell her suffering sisters they can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. That woman is Mrs. John Cabot, well known and highly respected here, and she expresses her enthusiasm in these words: "I certainly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills. There is nothing better."

Asked to give her experience, Mrs. Cabot continued: "My trouble started in a cold, and I suffered for six years. Rheumatism, neuralgia, stiffness of the joints, cramps in the muscles and heart flutterings were among my symptoms, and finally Bright's Disease developed. It was then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and they helped me almost from the start. After taking four boxes I feel like a new woman."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys. Healthy kidneys strain all the impurities and poisons—all the seeds of disease—out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills not only cure the disease but by ensuring good blood give new life and energy to every part of the body.

France to Raise Army Expenses From The Rich.

Paris, Jan. 18.—The French cabinet's project to meet the immense additions to the military expenses of the country by an annual tax upon capital, was laid before the chamber of deputies when it re-assembled to-day. It had been anxiously awaited by the propertied classes of France.

Joseph Caillaux, minister of finance, the author of the measure, estimates that it will produce $38,000,000 in the first year and more in the years following.

The new tax begins with fortunes amounting to $6,000. After deducting $1,000 for each child, an assessment of twelve cents is to be made on each $200. The assessment then rises gradually up to fifty cents per $300 upon fortunes of over $2,000,000. This tax is to be supplemented by an income tax.

The French government in drafting the bill kept two considerations in view—not to drive capital from the country, and yet to add considerably to the government revenue.

Paul Deschanel was re-elected speaker of the chamber of deputies and the Abbe Lemire one of the deputy speakers.

W.C.T.U. Meeting.

The reports in connection with the recent Temperance meeting at Gower St. Church, and of the annual entertainment at the Poor Asylum, were submitted at yesterday's meeting. The ladies visited the Asylum on Thursday last, and supplied fruit, cakes and many delicacies to the inmates. A concert followed in which Miss Gladys Duley, Mrs. Penman, Mrs. Foster and Miss Benedict, took part contributing vocal and instrumental selections which were thoroughly enjoyed. One of the inmates, Miss Monroe, also gave a recitation. The question of organizing departments, one for Scientific Temperance instruction in the schools, and another to be known as the Department of Mercy, was freely discussed, but definite arrangements were not effected. The meetings will take place on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month, instead of Wednesdays as formerly. Some interesting matter showing the evils of intemperance was read, after which the meeting closed.

An excellent programme of dances was gone through the music being furnished by the C.L.B. band. During the interval teas were served by the lady friends of the corps. The tables were tastefully arranged, and beautifully supplied with tempting viands, which were assailed with keen appetites by all present. Dancing was kept up until an early hour this morning.

A Thrilling Steeple Chase

At the Nickel Theatre. Crowds attended the Nickel at both sessions yesterday. The performance opened with the attractive drama: "A Gypsy's Warning" which was watched with the greatest interest. Then followed the thrilling picture entitled "The Great Steeple Chase." It is a remarkable story, covers two full reels and was produced by the Pathé actors. "Going Some" is a bright comedy. Mr. Koch repeated the song "All so Pure" and was warmly applauded. This evening the pictures will be repeated, but Mr. Koch will be heard in a new song.

The Yellowstone National Park.

By GEORGE FITCH,
 Author of "At Good Old Swash."

The Yellowstone National Park is a public pleasure ground, maintained by the United States Government for the enjoyment of the people and the brown bears of the nation.

The park is typical American because of its size. It is the largest park open to the public anywhere. Many nations could not have a park of this size unless they borrowed some territory from their neighbors. It has about 3,500 square miles, and is not fenced in. This is carelessness, of course, and leads to some trouble, but the government has never had time to dig the post holes.

The Yellowstone Park is situated in the northwest corner of Wyoming, about $125 from the center of population, including Pittman fare. One might think from its inaccessibility that it was a postoffice, but in this case the government had some excuse. The park is where it is because it was impossible to move the scenery of which it is composed to some more centrally located spot.

Scenery and natural curiosities are the strong points of the Yellowstone Park. It contains several mountain ranges, a plateau, a large number of canyons, a large lake, a 300-foot waterfall and a magnificent collection of geysers. In fact the park has a monopoly of geysers in this country, and geyser lovers who do not like the price of admission are at liberty to jump off the dock.

The Yellowstone Park is 11,000 feet high in some spots and in others reaches so far down that the water in the springs is red hot and smells of sulphur. Watching the geyser throw water at the dog star, boiling eggs in the mud pots and escaping from the tame bear, catamounts, mountain lions and rattlesnakes are the favorite occupations of the tourists. Guns are not allowed in the park, and the bears and buffalo are so tame that they will frequently walk up to a shivering stranger and attempt to borrow a chew of tobacco from him.

The Yellowstone Park has the grandest and wildest scenery on this continent, and if it were near New York the government could make millions by charging admission. It also contains another great American curiosity—good roads. Automobileists who have travelled mostly in Illinois and Missouri frequently go to the park to see these roads alone.

Robert Templeton

Wedding Bells.

On January 7th, at the home of Mr. Daniel O'Leary, in the presence of one hundred and fifty invited guests, a very pretty wedding was solemnized, the contracting parties being Mr. Frank Lahey, of Cape Broyle and Miss Kitty O'Leary, of P. Cove, South, who for the past three years has been operatoress with Hon. M. P. Cashin, Cape Broyle. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Renouf, P.P., Trepassey, who delivered a most impressive sermon to the happy couple on the responsibilities which was laid upon them in their newly-wedded life, stating clearly that the fulfilling of their duties rested mainly with their helping each other to be good and true to their religion, and impressing upon them that if these two points were faithfully carried out happiness and contentment would certainly follow. The bride was given away by her father and was very tastefully and becomingly attired in a suit of cream, being attended by her sister, Miss Florrie O'Leary, her cousin Miss Annie O'Leary, and Miss B. Scully, an intimate friend of the groom, while Mr. Peter Lahey (motor driver), did the honors of best man, assisted by Messrs. Sam O'Leary and Vincent Carew. After the ceremony was performed, the guests were seated and partook of a very sumptuous repast, after which music, songs and dancing were freely indulged in till morning, when all dispersed for home well pleased with their entertainment. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents, prominent amongst them being a cheque from the Hon. M. P. Cashin. Mr. and Mrs. Lahey, accompanied by their friends left for home in Cape Broyle by the s.s. "Portia" amidst heaps of good wishes for their future welfare and success. We extend our hearty congratulations to both.—Rel.

Pass Christian.

Pass Christian, which is now on tap, was never known till recently, and then it sprang upon the map with energy, yet decently. I know not if it be a town, nor what the games they're playing there; you cannot keep a good Pass down when Presidents are staying there. Pass Christian, by the public sheets, has boasted been most cleverly, but silence broods upon the streets and in the halls of Beverly. One burg goes up, another down, for burgs are like humanity; humiliation holds one down, while one swells up with vanity. Pass Christian throbbed upon the wires for his brief day, however, while silent were the minstrel's lyres and hushed the bells of Beverly. Pass Christian by excitement tossed, saw crowded every hostelry, until her citizens were lost in all the crush and jostling; one day unknown, the next day great, was ever like emergency? serene and proud she faced her fate, quite equal to the urgency; to entertain her hordes of guests she met them all endeavoring, while sorrow filled the many breasts and chilled the hearts at Beverly.

In The Council.

The Legislative Council met yesterday morning and the Hon. R. K. Bishop moved the following Resolutions:

Pass Christian.

"THAT the Legislative Council hereby records its deep regret on the recent demise of the Honourable James S. Pitts, C.M.G., an event which has deprived the Council of an estimable member and the consideration of a gentleman who, during a long and prosperous commercial career had acquired the confidence of the public, and whose character both in public and private life was unimpeachable.

RESOLVED—That the Council deeply sympathize with the family of the late Honourable Mr. Pitts in their affliction, and that a copy of these Resolutions be sent to Mrs. Pitts in token of their sympathy.

RESOLVED—That the Council do now adjourn until Monday next at 4.30 p.m. as a mark of respect for the memory of their late brother member.

These resolutions, after a sympathetic speech from the proposer, was carried.

Healthy and Unhealthy Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not vitate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:

"Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is not, amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Duffield, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which, with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter being employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewes, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov8,tf

OUTDOOR SKATING YESTERDAY.—Yesterday the ponds in the suburbs were visited by large numbers from the city. The ice was in excellent condition and several interesting games of hockey were played.

Barquentine Clutha Has Stormy Passage

The barquentine Clutha reached port yesterday after a passage of 50 days from Macao in ballast.

The Clutha left Macao on Dec. 11th and on the 19th had crossed the Equator. Fine weather was experienced until Sunday, the 11th inst., when the vessel met a hurricane from the W. N. W., with mountainous seas. The ship was then in lat. 29.31, long. 57.20, and had to "heave to" and ride out the storm under a three-reefed mainsail and mizzen. The storm raged all day Sunday and up to Monday afternoon the 12th when the wind moderated and veered S. W. and the vessel ran along free for a few hours. Suddenly at 10 that night the wind freshened and came with such violence that the Clutha was obliged to run under bare poles. At 4 a.m. the next day the wind again changed and the vessel was put on the starboard tack and at 7 a.m. a heavy sea broke on the vessel, carrying away the mainsail and damaging the bulwarks considerably. The storm continued all day Wednesday but abated somewhat on Thursday. On the following Sunday, the 18th inst., a hurricane from the E. S. E. was experienced, and the Clutha had to be again hoisted. The storm lasted till the 20th, when sail was made, the vessel being then on the S. E. of the Grand Banks. On Sunday last when about 25 miles off Cape Race a heavy gale from the S. S. W. was met and the vessel was again hoisted. At 4 a.m. Monday the wind veered to N. W. and wearing the vessel land was made next day and a good run to port was made.

Capt. Joyce and his crew are well after their trying experience, which the captain says was the worst he had in forty years.

Hockey.

Vics. Defeated St. Bon's.

Last night's hockey match between the Victorias and St. Bon's was well attended. The exhibition was poor and so was the ice. The Vics proved the stronger team and won by six goals to nil. The players were:—

Meeting of St. Bon's L.A.

The annual meeting of St. Bon's Ladies' Association, held in the Aula Maxima yesterday, was largely attended. Mrs. T. J. Edens presided and on behalf of the Association presented Rev. Bro. Ryan, Principal of the College, with a cheque for $2,000. Votes of thanks were proposed to His Excellency the Governor and His Grace the Archbishop for their patronage at their various gatherings held during the year, and to all those who in any way assisted, especially the Press for helpful notices. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. J. V. O'Dea.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Agnes Mitchell.
2nd V.P.—Mrs. C. O'N. Conroy.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. A. Atkinson.
Asst. Treas.—Mrs. Duchemin.
Secretary—Miss M. Bates.
Asst. Sec.—Mrs. P. Kennedy.

After the election Rev. Bro. Ryan expressed his thanks to the ladies for their valuable services on behalf of the College since the formation of the Association. A tea will be given early next month by Mrs. J. D. Ryan and an entertainment will likely be arranged for Shrove Tuesday night.

Back Was Lame For Two Years

Stomach Troubles and Weakness of Kidneys Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is an enormous amount of suffering from liver and kidney derangements and stomach troubles that could easily be avoided by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If you could only realize the scores of every day ills that arise from a sluggish condition of the kidneys, liver and bowels you would not be long in giving this medicine a trial.

Mrs. Edward Stewart, New Richmond West, Que., writes: "I want to tell you how thankful I am for using your Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for stomach troubles and backache caused by weak kidneys. I was unable to wash any clothes for over two years on account of my back being lame. I read the Almanac and began using these pills. Two boxes made a complete cure. I can do my own washing and other work now, and want to say to lady friends that they do not know how much I appreciate Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills." 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edgemon, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.
