CHAPTER XVIII.

Rath was silent a moment.

"No, I was wrong. It was not I who discovered it, but one who was here."

He turned his head away from the other man's sparkling, flashing, and eager eyes.

"No matter who discovered it, there's enough for both of us—enough for half a dozen men—enough to make millionaires of us! Oh, Rath!"

He gasped, and laughed almost hysterically; then he controlled himself, and stammered, apologetically:

"Look here, old fellow; I'm afraid you'll think I've taken leave of my senses, and am behaving like—like a school-girl; but—but, Rath, you don't know what this"—he touched the nugget—"means to me!"

Rath dished up the stew as carefully as usual, and looked at him gravely. Edward Bryan fondled the nugget in his hand, and glanced from it to Rath, and then back again, as if he could not keep his eyes from the precious lump.

Rath regarded him enquiringly.

"It—it means money, wealth," Edward went on, with terrible earnestness; "it means more than that; it means happiness! Rath, do you know why I left England—why I came out here to seek my fortune? It was not so much because I wanted money for myself—for myself, I could have found some work, however poorly paid, in England; but I wanted money—a lot of it, because—because I love a girl there, and—and I can't have her because I'm poor. I've never spoken of it to you; it was too—too sacred to speak of, even to you. Ah, Rath, you—you don't know what love is. You have lived here all alone, without a woman near you."

Rath did not start, but stood with the tin dish of stew in his hand, his eyes fixed, with a strange expression in them, upon Bryan's working face.

"You don't know—understand—realize—what a thing this love is! To long for, and—and want her—the girl you love—every hour and day and week of your life! To feel that if you don't get her, life isn't worth living! To think and dream and dwell upon her night and day—Oh, my God! Rath, it drives me mad not to be able to make you understand! You don't know—you have never loved—you don't know what it means!"

Rath set down the dish on the table and stood with knit brows, a strange look on his face as he listened.

"See here!" Edward went on. "This girl I love, she has been beyond my reach, just because I was poor. She—she—might have been forced—induced—to marry another man! Oh, my God! if I should be too late—too late! A man unworthy of her, a man my better in rank and wealth—No, he's not my better in wealth now, for there's enough of this to buy him ten times over! Oh, Rath! don't you understand that this gold means happiness to me; that, with it, I shall be able to marry the girl I love! Love!" he repeated, with frenzied emphasis. "Oh! I despair of making you, who have never loved, understand what I mean! See here, Rath, suppose—easy now, let me try hard to explain!—suppose there was a being in the world—a woman—one of the opposite sex, who was so dear to you that you couldn't bear to have her out of your sight; so dear and precious to you that every time she spoke or touched you—just in shaking hands, old chap!—you thrilled all through you—oh! how can I explain?—and that you could get her to live with you always, to be by your side all through life till death, to be your companion, chum, day and night—Oh! it's no use; you can't understand!" he broke off, in despair.

But Rath was quicker than Bryan thought him. His face had grown white, his lips were twitching.

"I—I know!" he said, hoarsely. "Yes—that is how I felt!"

Bryan stared at him.

"What do you say? What are you talking about? I say, you can't understand. You have never been in love!"

Rath strode forward and laid his hand on Edward Bryan's shoulder in a grip like that of a steel vise.

"Silence!" he said; "I do understand. I—I—know now! Take the gold—go back to her—this girl you love. The gold will give her to you—while I—"

His hand relaxed its grip and fell limply to his side.

"Take it all," he said. "It is of no use to me!"

CHAPTER XIX.

"Take it all; it's of no use to me!" said Rath.

Edward regarded him earnestly and eagerly. He saw that there was something behind Rath's words—some mystery. Rath had sunk into his seat, his head leaning on his hand, his now favourite attitude; and his face was cold and almost stern.

Edward leant forward.

"Look here, Rath," he said, more calmly, "don't you be offended at what I'm going to say. The man who says that gold—money—is of no use to him, talks the most awful rot; there's not a man in the world to whom gold is not useful, indispensable."

"This is not the world," said Rath, quietly; "this is out of the world."

"True! But there's no reason for you to remain here, no reason why you shouldn't go into the world and mix with your fellows," argued Edward. "If you were—well, a savage, nothing better than the ordinary backwoodsman, lumberman, trapper, there might be some reason for your being satisfied with the island, for not caring to leave it or change your mode of life; but you are not a savage or ordinary trapper! Dash it all! my dear Rath, you are a gentleman, and you are out of your proper place here!"

Rath shook his head, unmoved, and served out a portion of the stew; but Edward would not be silenced.

"In addition to being a gentleman, you are young and strong, and—and have all your life before you. Rath, you don't know how good that life can be! You have lived here all your time, wrestling from Nature your daily bread, fighting with her for dear life; you know nothing—forgive me, old man!—of the delights of civilization, of the joys which the world can give; the friendship of other men—the healthy amusements, the recreations of life! I grant you that in the world from which I come a poor man has a bad time of it, that he has to work as hard as we do here, and under less favourable circumstances; but you—we—should not be poor! Wealth beyond the dreams of avarice! Is a favourite expression in England; they use it there without understanding its full significance; but, by George! that's just what we should own! There's nothing we couldn't buy, nothing too high for us to aim at! We might be great, famous—oh! it's difficult to make you understand!"

Rath frowned thoughtfully.

"You said you wanted the gold because—because you could get the girl you loved," he remarked.

"Yes!" assented Edward, eagerly. "God knows that that is the only desire of my life, and the only thing I want the money for; but, Rath, forgive me!—you are young, as I said just now, and—well, they don't make many chaps of your stamp and with your phiz in England. Don't you think that you, too, would meet with some woman you could love, someone you would want for your own—your very own?"

Rath's face grew white and haggard, but he bent his head over his untouched plate and said nothing; and Edward went on, so absorbed in his argument that he did not notice these storm signs in the face of his chum.

"You don't know what love is, Rath! It's—it's the first, the greatest thing in life—it is, indeed! All things come second to it. It's the one thing which makes life worth living. To have someone to love, to worship, some woman who is the companion and the delight of one's life!—Ah, well—there! But, Rath, why shouldn't this happiness fall to your lot as well as to others—to mine? You can't tell! Come with me to England, and you will meet with some girl who will make you as happy as I shall be—if I get the woman I love, Come, Rath."

Rath rose, his worn face working.

"Be silent!" he said, almost inaudibly, so great was the emotion with which he was battling. "I don't want to hear and more. I—I—"

He stopped suddenly, sank into his chair again, and covered his face with his hands.

Edward aghast and wondering, went round to him, and laid a hand upon his shoulder.

"What have I said—done?" he asked, remorsefully. "Forgive me, Rath! My dear old man, I didn't mean to pain you, to hurt your feelings in any way. I won't say another word. And, look here!" he added, almost solemnly, "I've been forgetting all this time that the gold is yours and not mine! That I've no right to an ounce of it. You discovered it before I did, and it's on your land. Say no more, Rath. I'll give it up. I'm not the man to desert a friend, and I'll stay on here with you and say no more about the gold. Indeed, I'll try and forget it, though that will be precious hard; at any rate, I'll say no more about it unless you do."

This offer of renunciation and all it meant touched Rath to the heart. He held out his hand to Edward, and the two men exchanged a grasp in silence; then Rath raised his head.

"No," he said, quietly, but firmly. "You shall take the gold and go back to England, Edward; but I will stop here. I'll tell you—yes, I'll tell you why."

He drew a long breath, and stared straight before him.

"I shouldn't be happy in this world of yours. I don't want to go there. There is nothing that I should care for. There is no woman I could love—"

He paused a moment. It cost him a great deal to speak of Stella, to tear his wound open; but after a moment or two of inward struggle, he went on:

"Before you came I had another friend—companion. It was a young girl. She drifted to the island with her mother. I didn't want them. I was sorry they had come, for my father had warned me against women—"

Edward murmured an exclamation of surprise; but Rath went on:

"But I could not help myself, though I tried; they had to stay. We made a bargain—she and I—that we would be friends—boy-friends; and—she lived here in this hut, alone with her mother, and helped me with my work—"

He paused for a moment; for as he spoke, the vision of Stella stood before him, the sweetness of the old life and companionship with her came back upon him and tortured him.

"We were together all day, friends, chums, as you and I are. And life seemed different to what it had been before she came. I was happier, though I didn't know it. I liked to have her with me, to hear her sing while I was at work, to hear her laugh. We were together all the time, for her mother was ill and did not leave the hut. Then her mother died, and we were together alone."

Edward had returned to his chair and was listening breathlessly.

No novel he had ever read was more extraordinary than this story which was being told him by this haggard, despairing man, whom he had until this moment regarded as one absolutely without romance in his solitary life.

"Alone!" he echoed, half unconsciously.

Rath inclined his head.

"Yes; we only had each other. But it was enough for me. I think it was enough for her," he added, simply. "We were still happy. I don't think she even wanted to leave the island to go back to the world. We were happy. Then—then one day—"

He stopped and rose from his seat and went to the door, gazed out vacantly, and then came back.

"One day she left me to get some sea trout. A storm arose—the boat was blown out to sea, and—and I lost her."

"Lost her!" echoed Edward in a whisper. "Good God! She was drowned?"

Rath shook his head and shaded his eyes with his hand.

"I don't know," he said, hoarsely. "I fear so. It was a hurricane. I went after her. I searched the bays along the coast. I lost her."

"There was something so moving in the repetition of the simple, tragic words that the tears sprang to Edward Bryan's eyes. He rose and put his arm round Rath's shoulder, but wisely did not speak for a moment or two. At last he murmured huskily:

"My poor Rath! How you must have suffered! I know now why you are so pulled down, so gaunt and worn. Yes, you must have suffered! I think I should have gone mad, if I had been in your place."

"Perhaps I was mad," said Rath, simply. "I—I scarcely remember the days that followed after—after she had gone. I did not sleep, I could not eat. I did not know what was the matter, why I was so unhappy. I only knew that I wanted to die."

OFFICIAL BRITISH STATEMENT.
LONDON, May 17. The following official statement was issued by the British War Office tonight: "The first army has made a successful attack between Richebourg Lavoue and Festhubert, breaking the enemy's line over the greater part of a two mile front. The attack commenced at midnight to the south of Richebourg Lavoue, where we carried two successive lines of German breastworks on a front of 800 yards. A mile further south another attack at dawn carried 1,200 yards of German front line trenches. It was pushed rapidly on, extending the south of Lorette. At Neuville St. Vaast, we are continuing the conquest of the northern part of the village and have captured several groups of houses. To the northwest of Pont a Mousson, in a plain adjacent to the forest of Le Pretre, we have made about 50 prisoners, one of them an officer."

FRENCH PROGRESS.
PARIS, May 17. The following official statement was given out this afternoon: "In Belgium the enemy last night delivered three counter-attacks against Tienenstratte. The third, which took place at daybreak, was particularly violent. Our assailants were repulsed and suffered great losses. We captured three machine guns and about fifty prisoners. To the north of La Bassée between Richebourg Lavoue, and Quinke street, the British troops last night seized several German trenches. To the north of Arras fighting was desperate during the whole night. Upon the slopes east and south of Lorette a hard battle with hand grenades won us some progress. At Neuville the enemy tried in vain to recapture the houses which we captured during the day. Neither was he able to retake the trenches which we won from him on the outskirts of the village."

VICTORIOUS ALLIES.
PARIS, May 17. An official statement issued by the War Office to-night says: "We repulsed this afternoon with complete success, the fourth German counter-attack at Steenstraete. We have conserved all the positions won yesterday, and consolidated our gain. The importance of which is emphasized by the violent effort of the enemy. Further south the British troops have inflicted on the Germans a serious check. They have carried to the southwest of Richebourg Lavoue a kilometre (two-thirds of a mile) of trenches. At the same time, north-west of Festhubert, they took possession of 500 metres of trenches. This second attack was later pushed in the direction of the Quinke street front for 600 metres, and resulted in a gain of 1,500 metres (about a mile) in which the number of German losses was very high. The advance of the British troops continues. In the section north of Arras we have carried out actions with a view of consolidating our new front. In driving out the enemy from several points where they were still slighting on, our troops gave proof in the struggle foot by foot, of great tenacity. We gained 200 metres on the slope which descends from the plateau of Lorette near the sugar refinery of Souchez. We have carried some additional houses in the northern part of Neuville, and exploded a captive German balloon east of Vimy. Our aviators have bombarded the station of Somain. In Champagne, northwest of Ville sur Tournai, an action, purely of a local nature, has given us a very brilliant success. Last night the enemy exploded a mine behind our first line. Eight German companies immediately precipitated themselves on our positions. They gained a foothold at our gallant and we immediately delivered a counter-attack, and retook part of the lost ground, taking 77 prisoners, of whom three were officers. During the course of the day we delivered a second counter-attack, which was carried out with much spirit with the bayonet and hand-grenades, and resulted in our recapture of all the positions. The enemy suffered enormous losses, a fact which has been established by us with certainty, both in the trenches and on the parapets. We have, in fact, found more than 1,900 German dead, and we have, in addition, captured 300 prisoners, including nine officers, and taken six machine guns. Thus almost all the attacking force remained either in our hands or on the ground. The possible loss of Premysl. Despatches from Lyouz (Lemberg), state that the Russians have taken up positions of great strength on the heights of the San, where they have mustered an enormous quantity of artillery and erected strong defensive works. Both in Galicia and Southern Poland, where the Russians retired to strategic territory east of Kiel, the Russian lines are being stiffened with reinforcements. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg is reported to be hurrying German troops to Bukowina, where the Austrians are in retreat from the Bistrizza River to the Roumanian frontier, over a line nearly one hundred miles long. The battle at Sharvi in Central Russia, continues without any result."

AUSTRIANS IN RETREAT.
PETROGRAD, May 17. Although General Von Mackensen's Austro-German army has come to grips with the Russian centre on lines paralleling the San River, in Galicia, no fears are felt here over the possible loss of Premysl.

SIR ERNEST CASSELL INTERVIEWED.
LONDON, May 16. In an interview to-day, Sir Ernest Cassel, a Privy Councillor of German birth, said: "Words fall me to express my deep sorrow at the manner in which the way is being conducted by Germany. I had looked upon her as one of the most civilized and humane nations so that it was difficult to believe the first accounts of atrocities in Belgium and France. They are only too true. Since then, their disregard of non-belligerent life has increased, culminating in the sinking of the Lusitania. Methods of warfare have been adopted, such as the poisoning of wells and the use of poison-gas, which are a blot on civilization. Have you any word for the people of German blood in the United States?" he was asked. "I do not see how they could change the situation. The German nation appears to have gone mad," he replied. "Why should not you, and those who agree with you, attempt to express your conviction effectively?" "No words can change Germany's purpose. She intends to subjugate all opposition, if ruthless war can do it. Terrorism is the fundamental principle of her policy."

RIOTING CONTINUES.

It is announced that the Government has decided to intern all male aliens of enemy nationality, also to protect with every force at its disposal naturalized aliens or those who have applied for naturalization. General Botha has issued to the people of the Union of South Africa, from Windhoek, the capital of German South Africa, a message deploring anti-German riots which he characterized as unworthy of a strong and chivalrous people, however great the provocation."

STOCKHOLM, May 17. A group of prominent Swedes have requested the press to distribute in Canada and the United States the following expression of their sentiments concerning what they call inhuman methods of warfare: "The Swedish people are unanimous in supporting the Government in its policy of strict neutrality. A large section of them whether the majority or not, we cannot say, are anything but neutral, in their feelings over the methods of warfare adopted in this terrible war, which culminated in the sinking of the Lusitania. This mis-conception of war suspends all the laws of humanity, and must prove fatal to future civilization, and disastrous to that human solidarity which is of such vital importance, particularly to the smaller nations of the world."

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $225,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administrators their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

The American Note.

We have read the text of the Note sent by the United States to Germany and find that the forecast published last week is correct. The Note is signed by Secretary Bryan and was sent to the American Ambassador at Berlin on Thursday last, with a direction to call on the German Minister of Foreign Affairs and after reading the communication to him, to leave a copy with him. The document is expressed in plain and simple language and is a full and comprehensive, though comparatively short, statement of the American case. Among the statements, we find:

"It is clearly wise and desirable that the Government of the United States and the Imperial German Government should come to a clear and full understanding as to the grave situation which has resulted."

"The sinking of the British passenger steamer Falaba by a German submarine on March 25, through which Leon C. Thrasher, an American citizen, was drowned; the attack on April 28 on the American vessel Cushing by a German aeroplane, the torpedoing on May 1 of the American vessel Gulfbird by a German submarine, as a result of which two or more American citizens met their death; and, finally, the torpedoing and sinking of the steamship Lusitania, constitute a series of events which the Government of the United States has observed with growing concern, distress and amazement."

In referring to the office of submarine warfare against mercantile shipping, Secretary Bryan says:

"This Government has already taken occasion to inform the Imperial German Government that it cannot admit the adoption of such measures, or such a warning of danger, to operate as in any degree an abbreviation of the rights of American shipmasters, or of American citizens bound on lawful errands as passengers on merchant ships of belligerent nationality; and that it must hold the Imperial German Government to a strict accountability for any infringement of those rights, intentional or incidental."

After reminding Germany that she has never questioned these rights, and it is assumed their existence, Secretary Bryan says:

"The Government of the United States, therefore, desires to call the attention of the Imperial German Government with the utmost earnestness to the fact that the objection to their present method of attack against the trade of their enemies lies in the practical impossibility of employing submarines in the destruction of commerce without disregarding those rules of fairness, reason, justice and humanity, which all modern opinion regards as imperative. It is practically impossible for the officers of a submarine to visit a merchantman at sea and examine her papers and cargo."

"It is practically impossible for them to make a prize of her; and, if they cannot put a prize crew on board of her, they cannot sink her without leaving her crew, and all on board of her, to the mercy of the sea in their small boats. These facts, it is understood, the Imperial German Government frankly admits. We are informed that in the instances of which we have spoken, time enough for ev-in that poor measure of safety was not given, and in the last two of the cases cited not so much as a warning was received. Manifestly submarines cannot be used against merchantmen as the last few weeks have shown, without an inevitable violation of many sacred principles of justice and humanity."

"It confidently expects, therefore, that the Imperial German Government will disavow the acts of which he complains that they will make reparations so far as reparation is possible for injuries which are without measure, and that they will take immediate steps to prevent the recurrence of anything so obviously subversive of the principles of warfare or which the Imperial German Government have in the past so wisely and firmly contended."

"Expressions of regret and offers of reparation in case of the destruction of neutral ships sunk by mistake, while they may satisfy international obligations, if no loss of life results, cannot justify or excuse a practice, which is not only unnecessary and of which it is to subject neutral nations and neutral persons to new and immeasurable risks."

"The Imperial German Government will not expect the Government of the United States to omit any word or any act the necessary for the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens, and of safeguarding their free exercise and enjoyment."

A suggestion of arbitration of the Lusitania case emanated from Berlin on Saturday. Whatever value there may be in the suggestion, it is past, on its face it is valueless unless it is accompanied by an undertaking not to sink mercantile vessels without first providing amply for the safety of non-combatant crews and passengers and an absolute cessation at once of the practice.

Resigned to Enlist.

SALANDRA REMAINS PREMIER.

ROME, To-day.

Prior to the announcement that Premier Salandra would return to power, the King requested Senator Boselli, Dean of the Italian Parliament, to form a new Cabinet, but he refused at the same time expressing the opinion that Signor Salandra must retain Premiership. The King had a lengthy conference with Lieut. General Count Cadorna, Chief of Staff, who afterwards proceeded to the War Office, and discussed the situation with General Zupelli, Minister of War. The Austrian Ambassador, Baron Von Macchio, conferred at Villa Malta with Prince Von Buelow, German Ambassador, for two hours. The trend of events is considered most significant, particularly in view of the fact that clashes between Italian and Austrian troops are reported to be occurring on the frontier. The Austrians, according to one report, have attempted to cross the boundary at one point but were repulsed by the Italians who took one prisoner.

HEAVIEST CASUALTIES LIST OF THE WAR.

LONDON, To-day.

The week end casualties list, including those in the Dardanelles as well as those in France, which was issued last night shows the heaviest casualties published since the war began. The Zeppelin put up a spirited fight with machine guns and tried to escape by rising to high altitude but the aeroplanes manoeuvred skillfully and gave the bulky airship no chance. Within a few minutes the Zeppelin had received several mortal wounds and fell. All the crew of sixty killed. Two aeroplanes were destroyed by the Zeppelin's guns.

ROME, To-day.

Premier Salandra has convoked a Council of Ministers for to-morrow morning, at which it is expected a decision will be reached as to the stand Italy shall take. The decision probably will be reached also as to whether Parliament shall reopen on May 20, as arranged before the ministerial crisis, or whether it shall be prorogued.

REVOLUTION IN TRIESTE.

ROME, To-day.

A revolution has broken out at Trieste, according to a message to the idea Le Zionale, telegraphed from the frontier. A crowd, composed chiefly of women (because most of the men had been called to the colours) invaded the Square on which faces the Palace of the Governor. The women cried: "Death to Francis Joseph," "Down with Austria," and burned an Austrian flag together with a portrait of the Emperor. They attempted to attack the Palace. The Governor ordered the gendarmes to charge the crowd, and the women retired, fighting stubbornly. The despatch adds that 47 women were killed and over 300 injured.

CALM RESTORED AT LISBON.

PARIS, To-day.

Absolute calm has been restored in Lisbon, and the Portuguese capital has resumed its normal appearance, according to a despatch. Some of the best known monarchists are leaving the city. The movement is said to have been directed solely towards strengthening the Republic, which the revolutionary attempts are believed threatened or weakened by the policy of Pimenta Castro as Premier.

NO REPLY FROM GERMANY.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

The American Government was still without advice early to-day, indicating the nature of Germany's reply to the Lusitania notes. Telegrams had come from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin, and official information was lacking. The State Dept. officials are confident, however, that the Ambassador will be heard from soon. Meanwhile the administration officials are reserving comment as to the probable attitude of the German Government, but in diplomatic circles speculation still was rife.

Manipulation by Trade Unionists, drink and lost time are all serious questions.

ITALIAN AND AUSTRIAN TROOPS CLASH.

Apparently the 1st Contingent are now stationed there.

An operation on the patient can not be performed owing to his weak condition.

The Abnormal Development of the GIRAFFE is remarkable, but the abnormal development of the demand for SUNLIGHT SOAP is still more remarkable. It is not known how many people have never seen a Giraffe, but it is known that there are millions and millions of careful house-wives all over the world using

SUNLIGHT SOAP.

These housewives no longer dread the advent of wash-day, for, with SUNLIGHT SOAP as their ally, they are assured of a quick despatch of all dirt and uncleanness. SUNLIGHT SOAP saves your clothes.

"VISIONS OF THE PAST."

The past, as it were, rises before me like a dream. Again we are in the great struggle for national life. We hear the sound of preparation—the music of the boisterous drums, the silver voices of the bugles. We see thousands of assemblages, and hear the appeals of orators, we see the pale faces of women, and the flushed faces of men; and in those assemblages we see all the dead whose dust we have covered with flowers. We lose sight of them no more. We are with them when they enlist in the great army of freedom. We see them part with those they love. Some are walking for the last time in quiet, woody places with the young lady they adore. We hear the eternal love as they lingeringly part forever. Others are bending over cradles kissing babies that are asleep. Some are receiving the blessings of aged men. Some are parting with mothers who hold them and press them to their hearts again and again, and say nothing; and some are talking with wives and endeavoring, with brave words spoken in the old tones, to drive away the awful fear. We see the wife with the babe in her arms and the sweetheart standing in the door—standing in the sunlight sobbing. At the turn of the road a hand waves—the answers by holding high in her loving hands the child, she throws out a kiss, he is gone, and forever.

We see them all as they march proudly away under the flowing flags, keeping time to the wild, grand music of the band—marching down the streets of the great cities—through the towns and across the prairies—down to the fields of glory to do and die for the eternal right. We go with them one and all. We are by their side on all the gory fields, on all the weary marches, in all the hospitals of pain. We stand guard with them in the wild storm and under the quiet stars. We are with them in the ravines running with blood—in the furrows of old fields. We are with them one and all. We are by hosts, unable to move, wild with thirst, the life ebbing slowly away among withered leaves. We see them pierced by balls and torn with shells in the trenches of forts, and in the whirlwinds of the charge, where men became iron with nerves of steel. We are with them through all their suffering, but human speech can never tell what they endured. We are home when the news comes that they are dead. We see the fair young sweetheart in the shadow of her sorrow. We see the silvered head of the old man bowed with the last grief. The past rises before us. We hear the roar and shriek of the bursting shell. The broken fetters fall. These heroes died. We look; instead of slaves we see men, women and children, and we see homes, and firesides, schoolhouses and books, and where all was want and crime, cruelty and fear, we see the faces of the free. These heroes are dead. They died for liberty—they died for us. They are at rest. They sleep in the land they made free, under the flag they rendered stainless, under the solemn pines, the sad hemlocks, the tearful willows, the embracing rivers. They sleep beneath the shadows of the clouds, careless alike of sunshine or storm, each in the windowless palace of rest. Earth may run red with other wars—they are at peace. In the midst of battle, in the roar of conflict, they found the serenity of death. Lover thy gentle voice is hushed, Thy warm true heart is stilled, On thy pale and peaceful face Is resting death's cold chill; Thy hands are clasped upon thy breast, I've kissed thy lovely brow, In my aching heart I know I have no lover now.

There is a word, of grief the sounding token; There is a word bejeweled with bright tears, The saddest word fond lips have ever spoken; A little word that breaks the chain of years, Its utterance must ever bring emotion, The memories its crystals cannot die. 'Tis known in every land, on every ocean— 'Tis called "Good Bye."

Quits Quit! Back-Soreness Goes!
Torturous Lumbago Cured by "Nerviline"

This Wonderful Curative Liniment Has Almost Magical Powers.

You can compare a congestive pain to a little fire. When congestion smoulders, pain comes and goes. Congestion grows into inflammation, but pain, now intense, grows excruciating and stays, too. There is an absolute antidote of pain—it is Nerviline.

New, to you, perhaps is Nerviline, but known well in many lands as the most penetrating and pain-subduing pain remedy ever discovered. Not oily or ill-smelling, but pleasant—it rubs on. Not temporary action, but permanent in its control of pain.

Not an ache or a pain anywhere that it cannot reach. No soreness or strain that it has not the power to relieve.

Nerviline is the only remedy in the world old under guarantee—if it does not relieve you, you get your money back. Proof enough that Nerviline is a remedy that will fulfill absolutely every requirement of a pain-reliever, both for internal and external use.

Backache it cures like magic. For rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, stiffness, sprains or strains, it is the only thing. Large bottle, 50 cents; trial size, 25 cents; at druggists.

C. L. B. Parade.

The Church Lads Brigade held their second Church parade for the season yesterday afternoon, attending Divine Service at the Cathedral. The service was conducted by Rev. J. Brinton, and the preacher was Rev. Mr. Adams who delivered a forceful address. During the service the battalion band rendered a number of hymns.

Owing to the downpour of rain the March through the city was abandoned and the Brigade returned to their armoury via Long's Hill. On arrival at the armoury the Lieut.-Col. presented Capt. R. Wood, of C. Company, Lt. F. Rendell of F Company and Lt. R. Ash, B Company with their commissions which they recently received. The parade was largely attended despite the unfavourable weather, upwards of 300 taking part including many of the Old Comrades.

Craft in Peril.

While beating out the harbour yesterday a Southern Shore craft mis-stayed and went in near the rocks by the South Head of the Narrows. There was an unusually heavy sea running at the time and the little craft and her crew were in imminent danger, as gradually she was being dragged towards the shore. A pilot boat went to the assistance of the craft and towed her clear of danger. The craft sustained very little damage and proceeded on her voyage.

Fell From Cart.

While driving home Saturday evening a man belonging to a down the shore settlement, fell from his cart near the East End Fire Hall. As a result a bad cut was inflicted in the back of his head from which the blood flowed copiously. He was picked up in a semi-conscious state and brought to the Hospital in the ambulance where his wounds were attended to. Later in the night he was discharged again from the institution.

Narrow Escape From Death.

MAN FALLS BETWEEN SHIP AND PIER.
 James Hollihan, aged 23 years, a laborer of Battery Road, had a close call from losing his life on Saturday evening. It was about seven o'clock and the s.s. Durango, which had just arrived from Halifax, was moving in slowly to berth at the Furness Witley Co's pier. Hollihan, who was standing on the wharf, seemed anxious to be one of the first to get aboard, and as soon as the ship came within a yard of the pier he stepped towards the rail of the ship. The stride proved too much for him, however, and he fell between the ship and the pier into the water. It was feared that he struck in his descent, but when he arose to the surface it was observed that Hollihan had not struck anything. He was very much alive. An improvised life-belt in the shape of a large rope with a loop at one end of it, was thrown by workmen from the wharf to Hollihan who grasped it and was lifted safely to the pier. While waiting for the line to be fastened, Hollihan, who was unable to swim, managed to cling firmly to the huge cross bars which are projectors for the front of the wharf and which together with the fact that the Durango did not fasten her mooring right away were doubtless responsible for saving Hollihan's life. He had a narrow escape, though he was none the worse for his immersion a few hours afterwards.

RUTH CAMERON

"She is one of those rare people who seldom give you their opinion unless they are asked for it." So I heard a new neighbor of mine characterized. I felt I should like to know her. Wouldn't you? For it is indeed rare to find anyone who does not consider the giving of his or her opinion on all subjects as one of the most important functions of existence. How our neighbours should spend their money.— How they should bring up their children.— How they could have avoided misfortunes of all sorts, especially financial.— Whom they really should have married instead of the people they did marry.— How they could dress more tastefully.— How few of us there are who do not feel called upon to give our opinion on those or similar subjects every day of our lives. One Thing Everybody Likes to Give. Nobody, to Receive. There is a great satisfaction in giving one's opinion. It is such a delightfully painless way of benefitting one of those rare beings who are content to live in their own way and let their neighbours live in theirs without saying "I should think—". Of course we must have opinions, but most of us can keep them to ourselves a little more than we do with advantage, and can make sure that

Patriotic Concert.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—A very attractive patriotic concert was held in the Methodist School Room here on Thursday night, May the 6th. The hall was beautifully decorated and the stage presented a splendid appearance. At 8 o'clock the Chairman, Rev. J. W. Winsor, called the audience to order and said he was much pleased to see so many present, and expressed his thanks to those who were taking part, especially Miss Janes, Methodist teacher here, under whose leadership the concert was organized. The programme being lengthy occupied the time till 10.30 p.m. Dialogues, recitations and songs being delivered by each of the performers in turn. As each one finished the audience showed their appreciation. Mrs. W. G. Tilley presided at the organ and filled the hall with strains of melody as she went to do. The dialogue entitled "Quack Doctor" was carried out in a very creditable way. "While 'Dixie Land' sung and acted by Huntley and Flossie Butler, dressed as coon and wife, set the audience in a roar of laughter that near shook the building. The concert all through was a thorough success and much praise is due all those who took part, especially our esteemed teacher who organized it. The proceeds doubled the amount expected. After the concert refreshment was served and the younger people remained and enjoyed themselves until noon of the night when the crowd dispersed feeling quite satisfied with the night's functions.

A LITTLE WHILE.

A few more years, or a few more days, and we'll all be gone from the rugged ways wherein we are jogging now; a few more seasons of stress and toil, then we'll all turn in to enrich the soil, for some future farmer's plow. A few more years and the grass will grow where you and the push are lying low, your arduous labors o'er; and those surviving will toil and strain, their bosoms full of the same old pain you knew in the days of yore. Oh, what's the use of the carking care, or the load of grief that we always bear, in such a brief life as this? A few more years and we will not know a side of beef from a woody woe, an ache from a bridal kiss: "I fear the future," you tremble say, and nurse your fear in a dotard way, and moilen it with a tear; the future day is a day unborn, and you'll be dead on its natal morn, so live while the present's here. A few more years and you cannot tell a quart of tears from a wedding ring; a wreath from a beggar's rags; you'll take a ride to the place of tombs in a jaunty hearse with its nodding plumes, and a pair of milk-black nags. So while you stay on the old gray earth, cut up and dance with exceeding mirth, have nothing to do with woe; a few more years and you cannot weep, you'll be so quiet and sound asleep, where the Johnnie-jumpers grow.

Activity of Newfoundlanders.

Never before in the history of the world have Newfoundlanders been so intimately connected with—and played such a prominent part towards—the Mother Country as they have since the starting of this war by the Kaiser whose idea it was to become supreme ruler of land and sea. This British Isle of ours with a population of 250,000 has never had the privilege of enlisting any of her men for service abroad until now. Is she behind in so doing? No, already 1/28 of her strongest are gone forth to take part in active service. For many years she has played her part in drilling men for the Navy. Quite a number of them met their fate off the coast of Ireland while operating on the Vinkor. They died for a good cause. There is no such thing as press-gang or conscription with the British. Every soldier and sailor enlists voluntarily. In addition to the twenty of the Vikmor's crew there were among the number of the Clan McNaughton's and Baynd's losses twenty-three and eleven, thirty-four, loyal Newfoundlanders. Just give our men the opportunity and you will I think find them ready for action and prepared to defend their homes, their wives and sweethearts. They are now ready and anxious to be sent forward, and may be the day is not far distant when Lord Kitchener's orders that the front will be issued to them. Then everyone will know of what kind of stuff they are made of. There is no doubt that ships and guns have undergone great changes these late years, but whatever the latest development in gups and construction may be we shall always want cool heads and strong arms to man the guns and those we possess in the British Navy. Some of the ships are now forcing their way through the Dardanelles, and may success attend them, and may the work of all British heroes be appreciated for such appreciation will increase their patriotism and devotion and encourage them to further exertions. The famous production of the Boer War will be shown to-night at the Casino Theatre, which is becoming equally famous for the master-pieces of photo-plays which are being shown there. Those who visit there to-night will be given an opportunity of witnessing the magnificent and startling picture which portrays almost minutely the great battles that were fought on the Africanveldt and Kopye. The Boers are seen surrounded and facing defeat. They fight with desperation born of despair. Time and time again they endeavour to capture a battery that is playing havoc with them; their sharpshooters pick off the English one by one until only one survivor is left and he stands at his post with grim determination to fight as long as life lasts. These and kindred spectacles will be seen to such excellent advantage that a lasting impression of the great Boer struggle will remain for some time in the minds of those who will see this picture to-night.

Copy of Presentment of Grand Jury
To the Judges of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland.
May it Please Your Lordships—
In accordance with your Lordships request at the opening of this Session, the Supreme Court, the Grand Jury visited the Penitentiary and were shown through by Superintendent Parsons.
We beg to report as follows:—
From observation and an enquiry from prisoners we learn that the clothing is not sufficient for warmth during the winter weather.
All the prisoners were unanimous in complaining of the quality of the food called for by contract is not sufficient.
We found a number of prisoners occupying cells for various terms up to forty days. The Superintendent we were informed that owing to difficulty of finding employment for the prisoners, some are confined in cells for full term of imprisonment.
We would recommend to Your Lordships in reference to unemployed prisoners the opening of a Basket Industry which would keep them employed and by which a good income would be derived particularly as materials could be easily secured within the Island. This industry besides being a source of employment would benefit prisoners mentally and physically.
We are of the opinion that the Superintendent's power in the matter of employment is curtailed and would recommend that he be given greater latitude in the manner of employing prisoners.
We visited the Broom Factory and found the same conducted in a very satisfactory manner. We would strongly recommend to Your Lordships the removal of the "Pit" or "Dump" (containing refuse and material for use as manure for 2 months). We consider this very injurious to the health of the inmates particularly those in the Broom Factory. In addition to the inmates of the Penitentiary, we also consider this pit a menace to the health of all persons in the vicinity and would recommend that the Board of Health investigate the matter.
In the case of prisoner Pike, we wish to bring to Your Lordships notice that this man is still confined in an iron cage, unemployed. We were assured by the Superintendent that this prisoner would be given employment during the present month.
We also wish to bring to Your Lordships notice the case of the suspect Snowden who has been in the Penitentiary for five (5) months awaiting trial, and who has been ill for eight (8) months. We would request the services of a doctor but through the Superintendent's neglect the doctor was not called in until two months ago. We would request that the Superintendent be held responsible for the neglect of the doctor. We also consider this pit a menace to the health of all persons in the vicinity and would recommend that the Board of Health investigate the matter.
We also learn that this man was for a period of four (4) months without a change of clothing. This shows a great neglect on the part of responsible authorities.
We would also recommend to Your Lordships the case of prisoner Bishop whose term has almost expired. If he is allowed to remain a fisherman, and the season now opening it would give the prisoner an opportunity of earning support for his family. We would request that the Superintendent be held responsible for the neglect of the doctor. We also consider this pit a menace to the health of all persons in the vicinity and would recommend that the Board of Health investigate the matter.

Court met at 11 a.m. to-day pursuant to adjournment. Present: the Full Bench. Play Ball, June 6th
Proceeds for Patriotic Fund.
A meeting of the Baseball League was held on Saturday night and was largely attended. The fixtures were drawn up, with the result that the Wanderers and Cubs will open the series. The first game will be played on the first full holiday, June 6th, and it was decided by the League that the entire proceeds are to be devoted to the Patriotic Fund. As is customary in all Baseball Leagues, the Mayor, Mr. Gosling, will be asked to throw over the first ball and this formally declares the season to be opened. A brass band concert and parade of players about the field will also take place. The following gentlemen were appointed League Umpires for the season: Messrs. Chesman (chief), Montgomery, Hanlin and Smith. The championship series this year will consist of one round or ten games in all, and the regulation game of nine innings will be played instead of the customary seven here. In view of the handsome object the admission to the opening game will be ten cents, and tickets will be for sale about town. For the balance of the series the admission will be the same as last year. Great enthusiasm prevails among the ball players, and though over seventy-five per cent. of last year's contestants have enlisted, still it is thought that baseball will be better than ever this season. There is no doubt but that each of the five teams will have very strong lineups and fast and exciting baseball should be the result.

JOHN COLLINS.
One of the most largely attended funerals seen in Placentia for many years was that of the late John Collins, which took place yesterday afternoon. The deceased passed away on Saturday morning last, reaching the ripe old age of 82 years. The late John Collins will be remembered by the old residents of Placentia Bay as a prominent figure on the dock of old sailing vessels. He was commanded by the late William Ryan. This packet with which the memory of the deceased will be associated did noble service on Placentia Bay before the advent of our improved coastal system. Mr. Collins was the oldest member of the Star of the Sea Society of Placentia, and his funeral yesterday was attended by a large number of the members of that body. To his brother James, the manager of the branch Savings Bank at Placentia, and the other relatives of the deceased the Telegram extends sincere sympathy.
POOR ASYLUM.
We next visited this institution and found the management bad. On enquiry from inmates we learned that the food supplied is unfit, it contains no nourishment and was wholly inadequate for the needs of the people ill in bed. We also found that the ill persons are denied the proper medical attendance which they should have and we would suggest to your Lordships the immediate appointment

Economy in Dress!

Any economy in clothing commensurate with appearance commends itself as being desirable. This is a subject of actual interest; because how to dress neatly and tastefully and economize is a problem which confronts most of us at some time or another.

But UNGAR'S has solved this problem most satisfactorily. The process of Dry Cleaning and Dyeing enables a man or woman to substantially reduce the cost of dressing, without sacrifice in the way of appearance.
