LADY LAURAS' RELEASE

—OR—
THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER XXXI.

"There," remarked Angela, "my mother will not be made miserable. She will not be overburdened on her notice every hour of the day that which makes her most unhappy. I shall take her away."

"You are a very determined young lady," he said. "Is your mother willing to go?"

"You cannot doubt her willingness to leave a place where your chief effort is to make her miserable," answered the girl, bitterly. "I have no more to say, Captain Wynyard. You have failed to make my mother happy. I will take care of her myself for the future, and you can go the way that seems best to you."

He looked at her in wonder. She seemed to have suddenly grown older, and her fair young face was full of calm courage and high resolve. He felt abashed and uneasy before her.

"I know," she continued, "that it is useless to make any appeal to you. You did not love my mother when you married her; you are not likely to love her now. It is of no use appealing to your honor and asking you to leave Brighton—to leave the society that my mother dislikes, and go to Rood."

"No, that it certainly is not," he replied, promptly. "If your mother and you choose to make yourselves ridiculous, that is your own affair. I like Brighton; I am enjoying myself very much here, and I shall not curtail my visit because your mother chooses to encourage one of her jealous tempers."

"My mother has no tempers," said the girl, sadly; "she is simply breaking her heart. I have no more to say. We shall leave Brighton at noon."

"It is Angela's fault," the captain said to himself. "Laura would not have gone but for her; she would never have had the courage to concoct such a scheme." And he hated his wife's fair young daughter with a hate that was to lead him—whither?

CHAPTER XXXII.

The time-worn and ivy-covered old walls of Rood Abbey that had witnessed so many grand ceremonies, that had been the center of so much hospitality and gaiety, where a monarch had sought shelter and had found loyal hearts, where a queen had rested and had carried with her pleasant memories of the charming grounds, where warriors of old had ridden forth to victory, and men of a newer generation had reigned in noble simplicity, now looked down upon a very different spectacle. Knights and ladies no longer wandered over the grounds as of yore; beautiful women no longer watched from the turret windows, for the coming of their lovers; valiant chieftains no longer gathered faithful followers around them; fair ladies no longer held high revel there. The spectacle on which the old walls looked down was a sad and solemn one; it was the martyrdom of a fair woman—a woman who sought the most hidden paths, who wandered aimlessly through the gardens and the grounds with despair on her pale face and unutterable sorrow in her blue eyes. No pictured face-hanging on the old walls was fairer than hers; no lady among the many noble ones who had reigned over Rood Abbey was ever more sweet or gentle.

Angela did her best to cheer her mother's desolation; but the task seemed almost hopeless.

In the meantime Captain Wynyard had not found it all sunshine at Brighton. Lady Kinloch, roused to indignation by the fact that he had allowed the ladies of his family to travel without an escort to Rood, while he remained idly at the seaside, gave orders to her servant to say that she was not at home when he called; and from that time she kept a closer watch on Gladys. There were no more walks on the pier in the dusk of evening, no more moraine rides; and for this curtailment of his pleasure the captain blamed Angela, and hated her with a bitter hatred. It was she, he told himself, who had taken his wife from Brighton, and so spoiled all the plans which he had laid down. He fancied that society did not welcome him as warmly as usual, while he could not help hearing that there was an idea abroad that all was not well in the Wynyard domestic circle—that he was not what a kind and devoted husband should be. There were some who thought with sorrow of the beautiful mother and the fair young daughter; and from these Gladys Rane and the captain met with a very cool reception.

The man who had so completely ruined her mother's life.

Captain Wynyard tried to laugh at what had passed—to sneer at it; but the grave noble face of the young girl rose before him; the pure reproachful eyes would not leave him. Shortly afterward he went to his wife's room, and said, loud enough for the maids to hear:

"So, Laura, Angela has persuaded you to return to Rood. I am sorry that Brighton does not suit you."

Lady Laura made no answer; nor were the maids deceived by the regretful words of the captain.

"I am sorry that I cannot run down with you myself," he continued; "but your decision has been so sudden, and I have so many engagements, I cannot leave just at present."

Still no remark fell from his wife. Her thoughts had flown back to the pier and the two figures she had seen passing to and fro in the dusk of the evening.

"Good-bye, Laura," he said, drawing nearer to her.

"Good-bye," she returned, coldly.

"Have you anything to say to supplement your daughter's most dutiful address to me?" he asked.

"I have nothing to say," she replied.

He was surprised at the change which had come over his wife and half sighed as he left the room.

"I shall be free from reproaches and scenes for some few weeks, at least," he said to himself a little later, "and I will make hay while the sun shines."

He did not feel quite so happy as he had expected, notwithstanding the greater freedom he now enjoyed. Every one seemed to think his wife's sudden departure rather strange, and people looked curiously at him when he spoke of Brighton not suiting her. Lady Kinloch made some very unpleasant remarks about it, and even Gladys seemed to grow more circumpect.

"It is Angela's fault," the captain said to himself. "Laura would not have gone but for her; she would never have had the courage to concoct such a scheme." And he hated his wife's fair young daughter with a hate that was to lead him—whither?

BEAUTIFUL HAIR IN A MOMENT

Try This! A Gleamy Mass of Luxuriant Hair

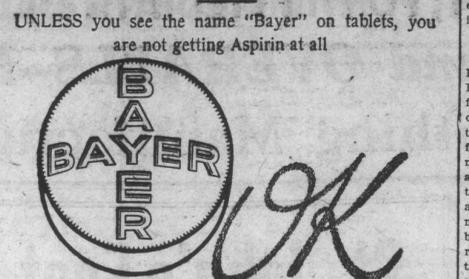

At once! You can transform even plain, dull flat hair. You can have it abundant, soft, glossy and full of life. Just get a 35 cent bottle of "Danderine" at any drugstore. Then moisten a soft cloth with the "Danderine" and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Instantly, yes, immediately, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will be a mass, so soft, lustrous and so easy to do up. All dust and excessive oil is removed.

Let "Danderine" put new life, vigor and brightness in your hair. This stimulating tonic will freshen your scalp, check dandruff and falling hair and help your hair to grow long, thick, strong and beautiful.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

ARE YOURS IN REPAIR.

"If a man does not make new acquaintances as he advances through life he will soon find himself left alone. A man, Sir, should keep his friendships in constant repair."

—Johnson.

A woman I know was recently left a widow without children. She is a woman between 45 and 50. Her husband has a fairly large insurance which will give her an income sufficient to live simply on without working. Most of her acquaintances say she was lucky to be left in such comfortable circumstances. I get to differ with them. I don't think she has been left in comfortable circumstances at all.

Friend Poor.

For while her husband left her fairly well provided with money she herself has lived a life for the last 20 years which has left her very badly provided with something that is as much needed to make happiness as money.

She is very poor in friends. She has been much wrapped up in her husband and their life together and she has let herself grow very poor in the matter of friendships. She has lost track of old friends and has not put herself out to form new ones.

As a girl she made friends easily and had many of them. They meant much to her and she could not conceive a time when they should mean any less. Then she married and transferred the warmth of emotion and devotion that had made her such a good friend almost entirely to her husband.

They were unusually happy together and in the security of this happiness she forgot the need of friendship, neglected her old friends and was careless about forming new ones. And the result is that to-day when she needs friends as she never needed them before, she is almost a pauper in friendship.

So Easy to Lose Them.

Her case is an exaggerated one but I think there are many of us who, as Dr. Johnson puts it, fail to keep our friendships in proper repair. We lose old friends by neglect, by death, by the inevitable sundering of active friendships which in this country of magnificent distances so often comes about when childhood friends and their lines laid some thousand miles apart. And we are not quick to make new friends, we are wrapped up in business or family affairs, we are rushed along in the day to day activity of the years between 20 and 50, and we do not realize we shall ever have time again, as we did in our younger days, for such leisurely luxuries as friendships.

But Friends Are More.

Acquaintances we have, of course, and neighbors. People we play bridge with, people we dance with, people we talk to at the Church supper, people we are on committees with, people we invite to our teas and our dinners, people we call on. But friendship is more than that. One may have a large circle of cordial acquaintances and still be poor in friends.

This is a time of year for stocktaking. Why not take stock of one's friendships and ask oneself if one needs Dr. Johnson's reminder, "A man should keep his friendships in constant repair," and why not set about repairing some of them if we find that to be the case

They were unusually happy together and in the security of this happiness she forgot the need of friendship, neglected her old friends and was careless about forming new ones. And the result is that to-day when she needs friends as she never needed them before, she is almost a pauper in friendship.

So Easy to Lose Them.

Her case is an exaggerated one but I think there are many of us who, as Dr. Johnson puts it, fail to keep our friendships in proper repair. We lose old friends by neglect, by death, by the inevitable sundering of active friendships which in this country of magnificent distances so often comes about when childhood friends and their lines laid some thousand miles apart. And we are not quick to make new friends, we are wrapped up in business or family affairs, we are rushed along in the day to day activity of the years between 20 and 50, and we do not realize we shall ever have time again, as we did in our younger days, for such leisurely luxuries as friendships.

But Friends Are More.

Acquaintances we have, of course, and neighbors. People we play bridge with, people we dance with, people we talk to at the Church supper, people we are on committees with, people we invite to our teas and our dinners, people we call on. But friendship is more than that. One may have a large circle of cordial acquaintances and still be poor in friends.

This is a time of year for stocktaking. Why not take stock of one's friendships and ask oneself if one needs Dr. Johnson's reminder, "A man should keep his friendships in constant repair," and why not set about repairing some of them if we find that to be the case

QUIT TOBACCO

So easy to drop Cigarette, Cigar, or Chewing habit

No-To-Bac has helped thousands to break the costly, nerve-rattling tobacco habit. Whenever you have a longing for a smoke or chew, just place a harmless No-To-Bac tablet in your mouth instead. All desire stops. Shortly the habit is completely broken, and you are better off mentally, physically, financially. It's so easy, so simple. Get a box of No-To-Bac and if it doesn't release you from all craving for tobacco in any form, your druggist will refund your money without question.

CHANCE.

I once was fond of betting and playing slot machines, and had some dreams of getting a roll by easy means. I backed full many a pony that never won a race, and bet on fighters phony who were the r in g's disgrace. Sometimes I made a killing, and cleaned up iron men, but sports were always willing to make me broke again. For years in chance I trusted, and joined the sporty crush, and nine days saw me busted, where one day found me flush. I found the gambling fever was seeping through my trunk, so I applied the cleaver and killed that habit punk. I know a lot of stagers with get-rich-easy aims, they're always ripe for wagers, and little quiet games; and they are men of sorrow, with hangovers at their heels; they know not if to-morrow will bring them beds and meals. I do not bet or gamble or spend long hours in play, and to the bank I amble with bundles every day. The packages are smaller than misers might design, but every hard-earned dollar is safely put in brine; and when I'm sick and silly, my timber out of tune, and age comes, bleak and chilly, this coin will be a boon. Where one gets rich by gambling ten thousand try in vain, and we behold them rambling down the poorhouse lane.

Bolsheviki Have no Art.

Isidore Lelivaine in Forum Tells of Lamentable Failure in Proletarian Press and Art.

Thus for magazines. The Bolsheviks could not and never will be able to create a proletarian magazine simply because they never will be able to create a proletarian art. What they have succeeded in was to create a proletarian newspaper and therein lies their greatest merit. They brought the newspaper to the peasant, and even to the illiterate. Of course, this part of our discussion deals more with education or propaganda, if you want, and not with art, but the matter is that everything is so chaotically mixed up in Russia that you can hardly separate one element from another.—From February Forum.

House of Lords Discuss Aerial Defences.

Difference of Opinion as to Britain's Preparedness.—Labrador's Lure of Gold Still Attracts Prospectors.—Floating Mines Menace Atlantic Steamer Lane.

LORDS DEBATE DEFENCE.

LONDON, March 22. Relations with France, and French superiority in a war of defence, was the subject of another long debate in the House of Lords, to-day, when peers of such differing shades of politics as Birkenhead, Haldane and Viscount Grey, in varying degrees, voiced the same apprehension of Great Britain's position of inferiority in the face of the existing uncertain position of Europe. The debate drew from the Duke of Sutherland, under Secretary of the Air Ministry, an admission that the Government in 1919 held it down as an axiom that there was not likely to be any major war for a decade. He added that the present Cabinet decides, this axiom is no longer tenable, and if the Committee of Imperial Defence acquiesces, and the country is ready to face the expenditure, a larger air force could be raised. Some speakers argued that Government might provide the necessary money by cutting down unnecessary commitments abroad, such as Palestine and Mesopotamia. Lord Birkenhead demanded a one power standard for the air as well as for the navy, and commented on the fact that France is able to spend enormously on air defence, while owing large sums to Britain, which, apparently, there was no prospect of her paying, at any rate in the near future. Viscount Haldane emphasized great Britain's defencelessness against a short range air attack. He did not believe France dreamed of such a thing, but experience proved the whole history of defence was full of sudden changes. Both Birkenhead and Haldane agreed that Germany might be left out of account, so far as her character of organizing her defence by sea, land or air was concerned. Lord Curzon said he had no more confidence in international politics than in home politics, concerning what might happen in the future. He objected to basing the nation's defences on any act of faith. Viscount Grey feared that unless through the League of Nations, or otherwise, some sense of security could be obtained in Europe, it would be impossible to rest content with the present position of Great Britain, and its inability to defend itself against a possible attack from the air.

Quips for the Times.

The Advocate shall henceforth be known as the Literary Sargossa.

Into that paper drifts all the detritum of the scribbling crack-brains, and these come from near and far.

A typical example of the rankness which fouls the surface of the Advocate is "We want Squires and the Humber."

We want Squires too, in the sense that the police sometimes want a fellow.

The public "want" Squires too and we have all the clues necessary to his conviction before the bar of public opinion.

We will put the "darby's" on him about May 8th. The rest of the brood will then scatter. Coaker will probably go to Palm Beach.

Another sample of twisted and badly snarled up Advocate logic is contained in the latest New York letter.

The half-brained dabbler in metaphysics has evidently been feasting his poor befuddled mind on such pabulum as H. G. Wells delights to startle the light-headed with.

What a rattle such stuff must set up in an empty head.

It is not "such stuff as dreams are made of." It is more like the effect of a nightmare.

It is ten to one you might see the points of the nightmare's hoofs on that fellow's head.

How nicely this metaphysical (?) rubbish dovetails with the Coaker-Squires political rubbish.

Such a segregation of all that pertains of the nature of literary and political garbage naturally then reminds one of the Sea of Sargossa.

Who can explain the law of gravitation. Capillary attraction, may explain how everything of unbecome finds its way to the Advocate.

This New York writer believes in man's evolution. So do we; also how explain the ante-diluvial mentality of the Advocate clan.

"Save qui peut" of Campbell is now "save Squires."

Leave it to Linagar to head-up Squires, and put the tussles on him.

Death of a Presentation Religious.

SISTER MARY DE CHANTAL LIDDY. (Hr. Main.)

The Angel of Death has only lately visited us and borne into Eternity the soul of our much esteemed Sister De Chantal Liddy. His terrors, generally portrayed in such melancholy and appalling colors, seem to have abated somewhat in the case of our loved Sister, who was well prepared to respond to the dire summons of Death with that peacefulness and calm so well merited by one whose life was a constant preparation for that dread hour. Having survived a severe illness some months ago in which death was anticipated, our dear Sr. M. De Chantal has been falling rapidly and for the past four or five months has been unable to attend her accustomed duties. Nevertheless, she was a model of resignation and patience even when her sufferings were intense; the words of prayer were constantly on her lips and fortified by the rites of Holy Church she went forth to meet her Divine Master on Monday, March 19th, in the 43rd year of her profession. Being called to a life of perfection Sr. M. De Chantal entered the Presentation Convent, Hr. Main, in the year 1878 and pronounced the holy Vows of religion which aroused her to Him whom the angels serve. In the year 1881 Filled with a spirit of prayer and self-sacrifice which only increased with years, she strove to advance her holy Order and to educate the little ones whom Christ loved so much and with whose care He had entrusted her. The daily struggle to progress in the path of perfection and to instill into the tender minds of young children the maxims of Faith, together with the education necessary for their future lives, was rendered sweet and agreeable by the love and generosity with which the task was accomplished. Her life, so well becoming a true Spouse of Christ, was one of solitude, retirement, and almost uninterrupted converse with God; it does not speak of renown; she did not seek for such, but the renown of the sanctity of her life is only too well depicted in the happiness of her death. The interment took place this morning, March 21st, after High Mass, celebrated for the repose of her soul. The deceased leaves to mourn one brother, one sister, a religious in Girvan, Scotland, three nephews, Rev. Fr. Liddy, Charles, and William; to each of whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

Splendid Cast in "Watch Your Step."

SEEN AT THE NICKEL LAST NIGHT

The Goldwyn company has solved the problem of getting the right actors for every role in their pictures. Their latest offering, "Watch Your Step," which is now playing at the Nickel has a large cast of finished players, headed by Cullen Landis and Patsy Ruth Miller. It is Miss Miller's first leading role with Goldwyn, and this charming young lady makes the most of her part as a demure country miss. Bert Woodruff gives an excellent performance as a village storekeeper, and William Orlamond is seen as a nervous country doctor. Other well known players in the cast are John Cossar, Lillian Sylvester, Cordelia Callahan, Alberta Lee and L. H. King. "Watch Your Step" was written by Julien Josephson, who has written many of Chas. Ray's successes. It was directed by Wm. Beaudine, and the picture was edited by Ralph Block of the Goldwyn Scenario Department.

with an unanimity unobscured by force in our land that living was better higher, taxation never so burdensome. That the masses are beginning to see this for themselves now is evident from the outspoken hostility to those now in power, and their determination for a change of government.

TAXATION BRINGS POVERTY. The present high scale of taxation is forcing poverty on many at home, and the knowledge that Squires will increase taxation if returned in order to get millions of dollars to pay the debts is having the effect of uniting men of all shades of political belief into one united body to vote the Grabballs out of office, and install the Party led by Mr. J. R. Bennett in charge of the Government of this badly ruled and misused colony.

BURDENING THE PEOPLE. The gauge of prosperity of any country is found in the happiness and comfort of its people. Are we happy and comfortable to-day? Go out into the high-ways and bye-ways, go out into the districts north, south and west, and ask the men you meet there if the present Government brought them happiness and prosperity over that enjoyed under their predecessors.

M. C. L. I. VERDICT FOR NEGATIVE.

The M.C.L.I. last night discussed the question of Child Welfare, the resolution submitted being:

"That Child Welfare Work in St. John's is of such importance as to warrant a special tax being levied on all citizens, to have it successfully carried out." The resolution was moved by Mr. R. F. Horwood, who was supported by Dr. Fred James and W. Newbury; it was opposed by Mr. C. C. Pratt, who had as his supporters Messrs K. Blair and W. Herder.

The weather took a sudden change since Monday and some of the snow banks have been made to look smaller by the heavy downpour of rain. This combined with the fierce gale to-day has kept many indoors, it being hardly possible to get about. The jam of ice in the Harbor is broken again from the Point of Beach.

Successful Concert for Church Charities.

It was a happy idea to combine the talents for service of the Young Men's Bible Class and the Epworth League Young Ladies of Wesley Church, to augment the funds to supply coats to the poor this cold season. Rev. J. G. Joyce, B.A., presided and there was a large audience, which nearly filled the S.S. Room. Miss Jean Taylor sang a lovely old favourite, and the encore just suited her voice and manner. Miss Eva Dawe rendered a Piano Solo. Mr. Stephen Tucker in fine voice gave that splendid tenor solo, "Queen of the Earth," and was obliged to respond with another. The curiosity of a singing does not abate at all, and the announcement of Mr. Diamond makes an uproar among young people. The "action songs" of seven girls from the Methodist Orphanage, so well trained was just delightful. Mr. George King and B. Snow contributed excellent baritone solos, and Miss M. Brown recited "The Lifeboat." She has a marvellous memory; every word was telling. The appeal of the mother, the rescue and recovery of Jack, was told with a vividness that it seemed as if the scene was before one's eyes.

GAINED 65 POUNDS!

"Five years ago when I was first married, I had wonderful energy. I could be on the go all day long without feeling the least bit fatigued. I had a great appetite and could eat anything. I weighed 147 pounds. I used to be busy every minute of the day and when the day was over, I could go to bed and never waken once during the night. Thirteen months ago my first baby was born. After that my energy seemed to leave me. I was tired all the time. I had to give myself to do my household duties, instead of being a pleasure as formerly, these duties became a real task. I lost all desire for food and nothing would tempt me. I had to make myself eat. I would go to bed at night and toss from side to side for hours at a time. After a while I would doze off only to find that I had been sleeping for ten or fifteen minutes. Naturally when morning came, not having slept, I started the day completely fatigued. I was shaky and nervous. The least noise would startle me and make my heart race along. I could see that my husband was worried. I was losing weight every week and had all ready lost 54 pounds. I tried all kinds of tonics, but they didn't help me. One night, a night I shall never forget because it started me on the way to health and happiness again, my husband brought in a bottle of Carnal. A friend told him that Carnal had saved his wife's life, so he insisted upon my trying it. Six weeks after I began taking Carnal, my weight increased from 93 pounds to 158, an increase of 65 pounds. And, am I well these days? Every morning I fairly jump out of bed ready to tackle anything, and every minute of the day is a joy to me now. Carnal is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. - 6-623"

The "action songs" of seven girls from the Methodist Orphanage, so well trained was just delightful. Mr. George King and B. Snow contributed excellent baritone solos, and Miss M. Brown recited "The Lifeboat." She has a marvellous memory; every word was telling. The appeal of the mother, the rescue and recovery of Jack, was told with a vividness that it seemed as if the scene was before one's eyes.

GAINED 65 POUNDS!

"Five years ago when I was first married, I had wonderful energy. I could be on the go all day long without feeling the least bit fatigued. I had a great appetite and could eat anything. I weighed 147 pounds. I used to be busy every minute of the day and when the day was over, I could go to bed and never waken once during the night. Thirteen months ago my first baby was born. After that my energy seemed to leave me. I was tired all the time. I had to give myself to do my household duties, instead of being a pleasure as formerly, these duties became a real task. I lost all desire for food and nothing would tempt me. I had to make myself eat. I would go to bed at night and toss from side to side for hours at a time. After a while I would doze off only to find that I had been sleeping for ten or fifteen minutes. Naturally when morning came, not having slept, I started the day completely fatigued. I was shaky and nervous. The least noise would startle me and make my heart race along. I could see that my husband was worried. I was losing weight every week and had all ready lost 54 pounds. I tried all kinds of tonics, but they didn't help me. One night, a night I shall never forget because it started me on the way to health and happiness again, my husband brought in a bottle of Carnal. A friend told him that Carnal had saved his wife's life, so he insisted upon my trying it. Six weeks after I began taking Carnal, my weight increased from 93 pounds to 158, an increase of 65 pounds. And, am I well these days? Every morning I fairly jump out of bed ready to tackle anything, and every minute of the day is a joy to me now. Carnal is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. - 6-623"

Early Morning Blaze. SIR WM. LLOYD'S RESIDENCE, GUTTED BY FIRE. A destructive fire occurred at 6.45 this morning when the dwelling house on Princess Cove Road occupied by Sir Wm. F. Lloyd, was razed to the ground, while the occupants barely escaped with their lives. Mr. Walter Lawlor, the owner of the house, who lives about one hundred yards from the scene, first noticed a huge volume of smoke pouring from out the window of the top flat on the western side of the building. He at once acquainted the Central Fire Hall by telephone, after which he rushed down the road to the scene of the fire, accompanied by his son. Upon his arrival he first noticed Arthur Lloyd making a daring escape through a window on the front exposure, which led to a veranda. Sir Wm. Lloyd, his father, followed him, and without accident both managed to reach the ground. The activities of Sir William Lloyd were then directed to the saving of Mrs. Green, the housekeeper, who occupied a bedroom on the top floor, at the eastern end of the building. Mr. Lawlor, with the assistance of Arthur Lloyd secured a ladder and having opened the window rescued the aged lady just in the nick of time as much difficulty was experienced in lowering the woman from the window to the ground. In the meantime the flames had arrived, but the men had gained such headway that they were powerless to quench them owing to no water being available in the vicinity. A number of men, however, formed a bucket brigade to a well close by, but their efforts were of little avail. Every attention had to be given to Mr. Lawlor's house and barn. Sir Wm. Lloyd, his son and Mrs. Green, who escaped in their night attire, suffered much inconvenience. They were removed to the home of Mr. Lawlor where they were given hot drinks and provided with clothing. The loss of Sir Wm. F. Lloyd is a heavy one, although he had his furniture and insured he lost many articles of great value, particularly papers, documents and a library which contained the collection of a life time. Mr. Walter Lawlor, the owner of the residence, had it partly covered by insurance, but yet the loss to him is a very heavy one. The cause of the fire is attributed to crossed wires. Sir Wm. Lloyd states that everything was O.K. when he retired at 11 p.m.

Summerville

Wants a Change.

Dear Sir.—Please grant me space in your estimable paper for a few remarks from Summerville.

A short time ago we had a visit from two of the delegates of the United Fishermen's Movement, Messrs. Winsor and White. In the Advocate of Feb. 16th, "Union Man" wrote a short account of their visit. He said that they did not hold a meeting here. That I will not contradict, but he did not say why there was no meeting. To enlighten some people who may be under the impression that it would not be worth the trouble to hold a meeting here, I shall explain the reason. All meetings here, both private and public, as well as political, are held in the Orange Hall. At the time of the visit of Messrs. Winsor and White, the man who had charge of the hall was temporarily absent, and as there is no other building suitable for public meetings, it was impossible to hold one.

He also said that they left their petitions to a few Tory heblers, who voted for Cashin and Morine in 1919. As to the Tory heblers of whom "Union Man" speaks, I can truthfully say that they have increased at least 60 per cent. since the election of 1919.

To judge from "Union Man's" letter, one would think that the majority of Summerville people are against the United Fishermen's Movement, but such is not the case, as can easily be proved by the fact that about 69 per cent. of the voters signed the resolutions which were taken around by the "few heblers." As a final remark regarding "Union Man's" letter, I would say that the Advocate, and at least some of its correspondents, are not to be regarded in a very serious light.

We congratulate Mr. J. R. Bennett on being approved by the public as Leader of the Opposition and wish him every success in his new office. In his speech given at the Star Hall notice that Mr. Monroe is to come out as a member of the Opposition Party in the coming election for Bonavista District. At the present time, when Newfoundland needs the best brains to uplift her from the political morass into which she has fallen, it is men of the calibre of Mr. Bennett and Mr. Monroe that we want, and I think I am safe in saying that as far as Summerville is concerned, Mr. Monroe has the good-will of the majority, as we know how much he has done for the benefit of the fishermen. We also know how much the Government members have done for our benefit. They have done so much that a great many of our young men who could always get a decent means of living in their own country can do so no longer, and have had to leave it.

I shall finish by saying that if the present so-called Government is re-elected that a great many others of us will have to leave the country also. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for publishing the above letter for me,
I remain, yours truly,
FISHERMAN.

Sunken Treasure.

The greatest interest is still being taken in South Africa in the efforts of the Grosvenor Bullion Syndicate to recover the treasure from the East Indiaman Grosvenor, sunk off the Pondoland coast in 1782. Though its work has not been all plain sailing, the syndicate continues to make good progress with the necessary operations, and if the statements of Mr. D. Webster, the secretary, may be taken as a criterion, the vast treasure should shortly be taken from the African sea-floor.

Interviewed a month ago by a representative of the Johannesburg "Star," Mr. Webster, who has taken an enthusiastic personal interest in the work, observed that operations on the hull had been resumed with renewed vigour and confidence. On October 6, he said, the pilot drill was pushed forward 10ft. beyond the extremity of the existing tunnel, when, upon taking a survey, a slight error in the line of direction was discovered. After consideration, it was decided to attempt to find the location of the hull by diving operations, and with this object a contract was entered upon with Messrs. Thesau & Co., whose best available diver, Mr. R. H. Tuley, took charge of operations.

Piece of Hull Found.

Early on the morning of Sunday, November 6, a start was made, but until Friday, December 8, a continual storm made further advance impossible. On that morning a lull in the stress of the storm was taken advantage of and the anchor was dropped over the exact spot where the Grosvenor lies, and the diver was lowered. Some time later he emerged, bringing with him a piece of the teak wood, which he had found jammed in a mound of sand behind the houlders, and which he positively affirmed was a piece of the hull. After resting a little, Mr. Foley returned to the depths, in order to anchor the buoy, and while continuing his submarine survey of the wreck, Captain Hansen attempted to throw a line ashore. It fell short, however, and in attempting to seize it a man was caught by a sudden breaker and nearly carried out to sea. This providential warning to cease operations came not a minute too soon; barely had the boats been secured when the gale again broke out.

Mr. Webster further expressed the belief that during his next survey the diver would be able to take those soundings necessary to direct the tunnel to the lazaret in the after part of the Grosvenor, in which the treasure is stored.

In this connection one important discovery has been made. It is that the sand in which the vessel lies buried has been compressed by the action of the water into a concrete mass, which, of course, should greatly facilitate the final stages of the tunnelling.—Glasgow Herald.

Enameled woodwork is best cleaned with warm water and neutral soap. A very dirty spot may be helped with a little kerosene.

A delicious maple icing may be made with confectioner's sugar. Mix sugar with maple syrup and add a little cream to keep it soft.

THE EVENING TELEGRAM

THE EVENING TELEGRAM, LIMITED, PROPRIETORS.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Friday, March 23, 1923.

PRINTING FIGURES.

THE President of the Fishermen's Protective Union in a recent Circular addressed to his Local Councils, when referring to Government printing by newspapers, made an elaborately exaggerated statement that "probably since 1919 the Telegram has received from eight to ten thousand dollars" by way of Government patronage.

Table with 4 columns: Department, 1920, 1921, 1922. Rows include Agriculture & Mines, Public Works, Militia, Marine & Fisheries, Colonial Secretary, Posts & Telegraphs, Finance & Customs, Shipping.

The large sum in the year 1920 on account of Marine and Fisheries, was due to the fact that there was much common advertising in the now executed Fishery Regulations. The sums paid by the Shipping Department had to do with the advertising of the sailings of steamers and other public matters connected therewith.

A DISGRACEFUL ATTACK.

MR. W. S. MONROE has consented to become a candidate for election to the Assembly, and thereby to place his abilities at the disposal of his fellow countrymen.

The "Mail's" own story is this: (1) That last year Mr. Monroe's business was financially embarrassed, and (2) that the Government arranged with a bank to enable him to continue business, but (3) that as he has joined the Opposition, no such assistance can now be given; (4) wherefore his Petty Harbor dealers, in particular, can get no supplies from him this year.

We do not know the truth or otherwise of this story, but, judging by its source, the greater part of it is as probably false, as all of it is disgusting. Admitting, however, its truth, for the sake of argument only, consider it critically for a moment!

It amounts to this, then, that the Government uses its influence to aid its embarrassed friends, and refuses aid when its opponents would be helped, even though the real sufferers are the innocent fishermen.

Things have come to a pretty pass indeed when the campaign sheet of the Premier, his Will-o'-the-Wisp mouthpiece, attacks the business solvency, past and present, of one of the largest suppliers in the Colony, to satisfy the malice of that Premier.

There will be a Special Meeting of the T.A. Ladies' Auxiliary on Friday evening, 23rd inst., at 8.30 o'clock.

SNAP SHOTS.

Day by day In every way The crowd all say Bennett will be our next Premier.

Hooraah for Bennett and Better Times.

Ambrose got $25,000 to be the joke on the Southern Shore.

Just imagine, giving Capt. Tom one hundred and twenty thousand dollars to go to Placentia.

Bennett can get fifty better men to go there and be elected for nothing.

Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott will have bigger majorities than in 1919.

Yet the peoples' one hundred and twenty thousand bones will be gobbled up.

Capt. Thomas Bonis Minister of Finance. It is to laugh.

It only goes to show how loose and careless Coaker and Squires are with the peoples' money.

The only way the Government can get this money back is to wagger the full amount that the "Cap" will be defeated by over 700 votes.

Mr. Squires laid a nice trap for Mr. Hearn when he consigned him to oppose Moore and Cashin.

All the civil servants are shaking in their shoes afraid they will be forced to go to districts for the Government.

And the Prime Minister told the War Heroes that they were "Paid to Fight."

And now he has dropped the extortionate tax on sugar because the soldiers' pensions will cease after June 30th.

Mr. Coaker's nerve is commendable.

He says that he is just as determined to enforce the fish regulations as ever, and will do so if his party is elected.

He is right in putting in the word "if," and if that is all the chance he has, you can bet your socks he will never again hear Fish Regulations.

We want the Humber Deal—yes, if it is any good at all.

But we must have a sane Government to make the deal a success.

If you want a Humber Deal that will be a good deal for the Colony, vote for Bennett and his party.

That the friends of Mr. Walter Monroe will resent that attack in last night's Government papers is a certainty.

Just imagine Cloutier, Mosdell, St. John and Mews vilifying a man of the type of Mr. Walter Monroe.

The people of Petty Harbor will, when the opportunity presents itself, rise in their might to vindicate their friend.

The Coaker-Squires team in the West End will, as they never did before, regret those scurrilous attacks on Mr. Monroe.

The three hour meeting of the young voters of St. John's West last night is proof positive of the landslide that is coming.

Five hundred young men between the ages of 21 and 35 are joining Bennett's West End Committee.

Fully 1000 voters present heard spirited addresses from Cashin, Lincoln and Hunt.

The names of the Clean, Legislative Hall candidates.

The West's Awake. The country is awake.

Never again for Coaker control.

The St. John's West Committee is now approaching the one thousand mark.

The West Coast is with St. John's West and Conception Bay and other districts in destroying the menace of Coakerism.

If you vote for Coaker you will see more rocks ahead.

The Coaker-Squires Government is truly styled The Rocky Government.

Rocks, Rocks and more Rocks.

They are all Rocking.

Back to 1919 and plenty of work for every workman.

When the fishermen will get his support.

Daily Mail Convicted of Falsehood--Official Correspondence Between Bank and Monroe Export Company.

Saint John's, March 23, 1923. Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir--With reference to the article which appeared at the head of the first column on the front page of last evening's issue of the "Daily Mail," we take the liberty of enclosing you herewith copies of letters recently passed between the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Daily Mail.

The Bank of Nova Scotia, the Government, or any person or persons not connected with this Firm arranged for financial assistance for our Company at this Bank.

Dear Sir--With reference to your letter of the 22nd inst., I beg to advise you that since I assumed management of this Branch no arrangements have been made with us by the Government or any person or persons, not connected with your Company, for financial assistance for your Company at this Bank.

Dear Sir--We shall be much obliged if you would advise us whether, during the past eighteen months, which period covers your term of office as Manager of the St. John's

NUMBER IV. INTRODUCING HON. WILLIAM R. WARREN.

Gentlemen--The high privilege and honor falling to my lot this evening is to introduce to you one who has made a name for himself in law, politics and society. It is not of a man that men climb to fame in such a speedy manner as the gentleman who is now seated at the seat at my right. But in him we have one, who at least if he did not achieve greatness had greatness thrust upon him.

He is right in putting in the word "if," and if that is all the chance he has, you can bet your socks he will never again hear Fish Regulations.

We want the Humber Deal—yes, if it is any good at all. But we must have a sane Government to make the deal a success.

CAPPY JONES AND CO. MEET ZERO TEMPERATURE.

BOTWOOD, (To-day.) Special to Telegram. The Squires Coaker Candidates held their meeting here last night. Poor Jones, no one understood what he said. Brown is a positive failure. Dr. Barnes said he was going to back the Humber deal. He said also that Bennett and Cashin were backing it. He claimed the Squires party had kept the people alive but he could not admit it was claimed that that party brought them to starvation. He said there is a steamer chartered to come here for the people. One of the audience remarked that it was too late as the proposals were all burned. About one hundred men, women and children were present at the meeting. Not one of the speakers mentioned Coaker's name during the evening. It was the flattest political meeting ever held here.

The Tragedy of the West Coast.

(From The Evening Telegram, Friday, October 1st, 1920.)

The memorial of the people of the West Coast, addressed to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, made in the House of Commons, is made in clearly that they were not asking charity. They claim that "the fish regulations had crippled their main industry, and placed them in a position of want. As a way out of the difficulty into which they had gotten through no fault of their own they requested, firmly but respectfully, that the duty of the Government was to make some immediate powerful and effective attempt to get them out of their financial straits, and in order to do this they suggested to the Minister of Fisheries several alternatives either of which would be of valuable assistance to them. But did the Government harken? Not so much that it could be noticed a week or so ago. The memorial continues:

"This district (Burgoo & LaPole) owing to productive fisheries has paid into the exchequer hundreds of thousands of dollars, and we now demand that some attention be given to the needs of the place (Burnt Islands). We were sold to a man in electing the present administration, but you will find us just as solid, and far more determined to uphold our just and eternal rights as human beings. A long winter stares us in the face and now is the time to prepare. Such a condition has never been thrust on us before and we demand prompt and efficient action."

The five names affixed to that memorial represent five of the most prominent citizens of Burnt Islands, who signed on behalf of the voters of that place and vicinity. Such a memorial adopted at a public meeting and bearing the signatures of men whose names are a household word in Burnt Islands, and who are well known in every settlement in the Western section of the district, should have produced a response commensurate with the urgency of the demand. But did it?

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries as Acting Prime Minister, began his reply in a manner little calculated to appease the resentment shown by the people who had addressed themselves to him. He looked at it through political glasses and instantly jumped to the conclusion that the men of Burnt Islands had been incited to their action by politicians, and those who wished to make political capital out of the regulations. Therein he erred and in his faulty judgment added insult to injury already done to the West Coast. What mattered it to the men of Burnt Islands that the Minister was buying fish at $11 for No. 1 and $9 for No. 2. In passing it might be added that not one shipment of fish has averaged anything near these figures. The skills of Burnt Islanders could not get their catches to Port Union, neither could they freight them along to St. John's, hence it was left idle on the part of the Minister to pad up his reply—there is but one word for it—dope of this nature. "I am," he continues, "a better judge of conditions and fishermen's requirements and interests than political wire-pullers on your shore. . . . and you must rely on me." Of what use, talk such clap trap to a community that had already stated its condition and had requested assistance (1) by the erection of a cold storage plant in their vicinity, (2) by starting some other industry, and (3) by selecting some plan whereby the homes and obtain employment elsewhere. They had already shipped off their season's voyage to pay their accounts. No inducement was being held out to continue fishing, because no person could or would buy, and the only thing left to them was to seek employment (assisted) elsewhere in order to keep themselves and families fed and clothed. Yet in the face of such an explicit statement of cold facts, the Acting Premier tells them that they must rely upon him. Of what use such reliance? His knowledge of conditions of the West Coast, notwithstanding his boast, was nil. He had no appreciation of the situation, nor has he yet, and the men of Burnt Islands were not slow in letting him so, plainly and emphatically.

Their reply will form the subject matter of the next article, for as is the case with Burnt Islands, so it is with the greater portion of the District of Burgoo and LaPole.

PRESENTS BANK OF MONTREAL HOCKEY TEAM WITH CUP

A very pleasing presentation took place this morning, when the Bank of Montreal Hockey team, the Champions of the Bankers' League, 1922, were the recipients of a handsome cup, appropriately decorated with the bank's colors. The team now wish to thank the unknown donor, through the columns of the press, for the token of appreciation, and trust that they may have the pleasure of thanking him in person soon. After Saturday the cup will be on exhibition in J. Clouston, Tinsmith's, window.

Llewellyn Club.

REV. R. J. POWER LECTURES.

The members of Llewellyn Club and their friends met in Canon Wood Hall last night, the lower room of the building being taxed to capacity. The President, Rev. E. G. Eary, introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. R. J. Power, who delivered a very interesting lecture on St. Patrick, which he prefaced by many humorous legends of that great missionary. He also spoke of the great influence the Irish had exerted over the world at large, naming many of the greatest men in history who were of Irish birth and extraction. For instance of the 29 Presidents of the United States no less than 12 were Irishmen, while Lord Kelvin, who has received the title of the Napoleon of Science, the Duke of Wellington were all Irishmen. The date of St. Patrick's birth is uncertain; but it was probably about the year 389. He was the son of a deacon, Calpornius, and the grandson of a presbyter named Potitus. His father was a middle-class landed proprietor. It seems certain that Patrick's home is to be sought near the Severn, and it is conjectured at a place called Banew in Glamorganshire. The British name of the future apostle was Succat. Patrick was doubtless educated as a Christian and was imbued with reverence for the Roman Empire. When he was about sixteen years of age he was carried off by a band of Irish marauders. His bondage lasted for six years. During this time he became subject to religious emotion and he had visions which encouraged him to effect his escape. It was doubtless during his stay in Britain, that the idea of missionary enterprise in Ireland came to him. Despite his natural diffidence, and opposition on the part of his relatives, Patrick resolved to return to Gaul in order to prepare himself for his mission. He proceeded to Auxerre, where he must have spent at least fourteen years. He was consecrated in 422. Patrick proceeded to Ireland and landed at Inverara. He immediately proceeded northward to the kingdom of East Ulster, Lanaghan on the shores of Stranorlar Lough, he commenced his labors. A convert chief named Dich granted him a site for an establishment. Several churches seem to have founded in the Kingdom of Meath by the Saint; he is stated to have visited Connaught on three different occasions, and to have founded churches; as regards Ulster he established churches in the three kingdoms of the province (Ailch, Oriel and Ulidia). Patrick's work is more closely identified with the North of Ireland than the South; traces of his Mission, however, are to be found in Ossory and Muskerry. There is some evidence that he made a journey to Rome (441-442) and brought back with him valuable relics. Some years before his death, which took place in 461, Patrick resigned his position as Bishop of Armagh to his disciple Benignus, and retired to Saul in Dalriada, where he spent the remainder of his life. The "Confession," written by himself towards the end of his life, gives an account of his career.

A vote of thanks was ably proposed by Mr. Llewellyn Colley, and seconded by the Secretary, and was carried by acclamation.

His Excellency, Sir Wm. Allardye, then briefly expressed his pleasure at being present to hear so instructive an address. He delighted the members of the Club by expressing his willingness to become a member of the organization, while two amusing stories that he told brought forth shouts of laughter from his hearers. He has promised that perhaps some time during the next season, he will spend an hour lecturing to the Club on his experiences abroad.

At 9.30 a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Distributing Transformers

The distributing transformer is not a very imposing part of an electrical system. Its duty is to transform the high voltage alternating current to a low voltage, and thus to make the electricity easy to use in the home and factory.

It is easy to see that dependability is the most important thing to be desired in a transformer, and it is this quality, together with a very high efficiency, which has caused Westinghouse Distributing Transformers to be so universally used.

Oxford-Cambridge Boat Race.

ANNUAL HISTORICAL EVENT ON THE THAMES.

LONDON, Mar. 16. — (Canadian Press)—The University Boat Race, the "Derby of Bating", in which crews representing Oxford and Cambridge have struggled for supremacy for nearly a century, will take place next Saturday at 4.30 p.m. over the historic four-and-a-quarter-mile course from Putney to Mortlake. This year's will be the seventy-fifth inter-Varsity contest, of which Oxford has won 39, Cambridge 34, with one tie, the race of 1877. Since the early days of the Boat Race the contest has become especially dear to the heart of a sport-loving nation, and no sporting event of the year is so essentially typical of the best traditions of the country. There has been romance and tragedy associated with the race since the first was won by Henley in 1829. The first race was from Hambledon Lock to Putney Bridge, a distance of over two miles against a summer stream which was won by Oxford. Of the winning crew one member later became Bishop of St. Andrew's, another Dean of Ripon, and a third the Dean of Lincoln, while the Cambridge crew contained G. A. Selwyn, afterwards Bishop of New Zealand. During the next seven years there was no contest, but in 1836 Cambridge won over the Westminster-to-Putney course. In 1845 the race was rowed for the first time over the Putney to Mortlake course, Cambridge winning by thirty seconds. It was a memorable race, with twelve degrees of frost, and ice floating in the Thames. In 1866 the race at Putney became a recognized annual fixture for the first time.

A SENSATIONAL INCIDENT.

The official announcement of the 1870 race: "Oxford won in 24 minutes, 20 seconds and Cambridge sank" gives a little idea of one of the most sensational incidents on the whole series of races. Putney Reach on the day was a veritable sea and Cambridge, shipping water all the way, went down beneath the waves on passing Barnes' Bridge. Oxford paddled home in a sinking state. In 1872 the race was rowed in a snow-storm. Four years later, sliding seats were used by both crews, while in 1877 the race resulted in the famous dead-heat that was the cause of much discussion for years afterwards. For nine consecutive years, 1861-69 inclusive, Oxford furnished the winning crew and duplicated this feat during the years 1890 to 1898, inclusive. The Cambridge crew that in 1870 broke the Dark Blue's string of victories, was stroked by J. H. D. Goldie and nearly thirty years later, after a similar period of depression, the Light Blues turned the tide in their favor, with C. V. D. Goldie, a son of the most famous of Cambridge's strokes, a member of the crew. Cambridge has met with more success than Oxford in recent years, winning eleven of the eighteen races since 1900. Oxford's seven victories during this time were won prior to the five year interruption in the series due to the War. Since the resumption of the race in 1920 Cambridge has been undefeated. In last year's race, excepting for the first half dozen strokes, the Light Blue was in the lead from start to finish. Oxford was handicapped by the change in their crew two days before the race and lost their strength and cohesion long before the race was completed.

CAMBRIDGE BEGAN EARLY.

Cambridge was the first to make a serious start with preparations for the forthcoming boat race, thirteen men having been ordered by the Boat Club president to be in readiness for practice on January 7. Included in these were B. G. Ivory, P. D. Collet and K. N. Craig, who rowed for the Light Blue last year. Oxford began training a week later. G. O. Nickalls, the Oxford president, had a lot of promising material to begin his task with, as six members of last year's crew were available this year.

Whether there is any real advantage in an early start in training is open to question. There is always the danger of going stale, as the rowing programme at both Oxford and Cambridge is a heavy one. This year, however, things are rather different as the boat race will be rowed on almost the earliest possible date, owing to Easter Sunday falling on April 1, whereas last year it was a fortnight later.

ITINERARY OF CREW.

Cambridge finished its training on the Cam on February 8 and on the following day rowed their boat down to Ely, a distance of eighteen miles, where they went through the second stage of their training, remaining there until the end of the month. At the start of their practices the Light Blue eight was anything but impressive, but during the ten days previous to going to Ely they made extraordinary strides and at that stage of their training were quite the equal of any crew to leave the Cam. Early this month the Light Blues left Ely for Marlow, where they remained ten days, leaving for Putney for the final stages of their training. The selection of the Oxford eight was more difficult than usual this year. In the Trial Eights at Moulford much promising material was uncovered, and critics were strongly impressed with the physique of the two crews, either of which in this respect was superior to last year's eight. Physique, these critics pointed out, was the most important factor in building up a crew and with these available it only required intelligence on the part of the coxswain and good coaching. Dr. G. C. Bourne, who did the early coaching of the Dark Blues, gave them a good deal of strong work, with long and short course alternating. Oxford went into strict training on February 14 and on the following day the crew was decided upon. Eight days later the Dark Blues left the home water for Henley, to undergo the next stage of their preparations.

Municipal Council

The regular meeting of the Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Martin, Outerbridge, Winnicombe, Ryan and Dowden were present.

The meeting was a short one, routine matters only occupying the attention of the Board. After the preliminary business was disposed of, the following received consideration. A communication was tabled from the Longshoremen's Protective Union, stating that as a result of sewer trouble, they had been put to the expense of $98.40 in endeavouring to locate same, which, they stated, was found to be the result of a cave-in in the City Sewer. The Engineer was asked to report on the matter for the next meeting.

W. J. Brown, Solicitor, on behalf of Mr. K. Noah, suggested the advisability of Council acquiring the property of his client, situated near the bottom of Casey Street, for town improvements. Mr. Brown is to be asked what price is required.

Communications were read from A. Mercer, McKay Street, T. B. Gilt, LeMarchant Road, in reference to the opening up of surface drains. These matters were referred to the Engineer, as was also the claim of Mr. P. J. Butler for damages caused by surface water flowing into his dwelling Duckworth Street.

Applications for permission to repair and alter buildings were received from J. J. Ryan, Holdsworth St., and Messrs. Walter Clouston and Sons, Water Street. The Engineer was asked to report on same for next meeting.

L. Bennett's application for permission to erect signboard over shop, Water Street, was also referred to the City Engineer.

W. Simmonds applied for position as Impounder. He is to be informed there is no vacancy.

The Health Officer reported four new cases of Scarlet Fever and one of Diphtheria in the city for the past week.

Reports of the City Engineer and various officers were tabled and discussed, after which the meeting adjourned.

Young Voters Line Up For Clean Government.

Overflow Meeting at Star Committee Rooms—Hundreds Unable to Obtain Admittance.

Last night's meeting of young voters of the West End of the city in the Star Hall exceeded any thing of its kind ever held in St. John's. Every inch of room was occupied and long before the hour for which the meeting was called, crowds of people were unable to gain admittance. Though the audience concluded at 11.30, the heat, desired that other speakers should be heard. It is estimated that over 1,000 people were in the audience.

MEETING OPENS.

Chairman Caldwell, of the General Committee, in calling the meeting to order said that the demonstration was probably the best ever witnessed in St. John's and clearly showed that the people both young and old were alive to the grave situation which faces the country. He then called upon the voters to elect their Chairman to conduct the meeting, and also a secretary. Mr. L. J. Delahunty, first time at the forthcoming election was unanimously appointed chairman and Mr. Thos. Smyth, one of the first 500 who did his bit with the Regiment and was a prisoner of war for some 20 months, was appointed secretary.

Both Chairman Delahunty and secretary Smyth thanked the gathering for the honour conferred upon them. They were handing tickets to down Coakerism, and Squiresism in the West End, and to help and put Nfld. once more on safe street.

MR. HUNT GETS ROUSING RECEPTION.

Mr. C. E. Hunt, the first speaker called upon by the Chairman, was given a rousing reception. He said it was good to be a candidate, when such genuine interest was manifested by the young voters who are responding so nobly to the call for clean Government. They had two courses open to them; one was Squires and Coaker and disaster, and the other Bennett and progress. He knew what the voters were waiting to do, after the past 3 1/2 years of misery and privation. The Government did nothing but borrow money, that was squandered away, not a promise of the 1919 manifesto was kept, and St. John's West never saw so much unemployment, poverty and distress as to-day. This is mainly attributable to the fishery regulations that were introduced by Coaker and Squires, when cargoes of fish left our shores, and were left to rot in the foreign markets, the merchants losing thousands and thousands of dollars. The West Coast was ruined and St. John's with the rest of the country suffered. In 1919 we were a happy and contented people, no rock-breaking, no relief needed, and it is back to those days that the people are looking to-day, and that is why they are flocking to the standard of Mr. Bennett and his candidates, because they believe that they can make things better for them.

FALSEHOODS REFUTED.

Mr. Hunt referred to the Humber deal which the Government are endeavouring to hoodwink the electorate into voting them back into power, and he pointed out that they had not the courage to place their proposition before the people. They even said that unless you vote for Squires the British Government would withdraw its guarantee, but Great Britain is not supporting the Squires Government. Great Britain is dealing with Newfoundland, and her word is her bond. It is ridiculous the kind of stuff that the Squires bunch are trying to stampede the electorate with. Mr. Hunt referred to the attacks that are being made upon members of the Opposition, especially the younger members of the party, and he referred to the dastardly attack on Mr. Monroe in yesterday's Mail in connection with his dealers at Petty Harbour. He said it was a gross and deliberate falsehood, as was also the statement that Sir R. A. Squires gave Mr. Monroe financial assistance at the Bank of Nova Scotia. It was a libel on Mr. Monroe, and would be resented by St. John's and throughout the country, where Mr. Monroe's name is a household word. Mr. Hunt referred to Dr. Campbell's professed loyalty for Newfoundland, and his slur on the young Newfoundlanders who are rallying to Mr. Bennett's standard. Bennett was a man of honour and would do everything possible to rescue this land. It was up to the young voters to do everything possible, as it was a serious matter for our young manhood when thousands of them were compelled to leave their home for other lands. Coakerism is killing St. John's, it is making the grass grow on Water Street. It is driving Nfld. to bankruptcy. It was therefore up to all true sons of Newfoundland to vote for Bennett and clean Government.

After repeated requests from the audience, Mr. Higgins spoke, the chair, and asked him to say a few words. Coming forward, rousing cheers were given for Mr. Hunt at the conclusion of his speech.

THE EVER POPULAR "BILLY."

bought them all up and they were storing them all in the East End Oil store. Continuing, Mr. Higgins recalled that the elections had been forced upon the country. Things had been done by the Squires-Coaker Administration that would not be permitted in the olden days. The House of Assembly had been closed by the crowd that could be called nothing but lazy, incompetent good-for-nothings.

AFRAID TO OPEN HOUSE.

They were afraid to open the House and to-day a half million dollars to be distributed for the purpose of purchasing an election is borrowed by a bunch of men who have not even a seat in the House. What was the use of Responsible Government if they could do that. The situation to-day is that the Government has gone and borrowed a half million dollars for the purpose of purchasing the election. This was borrowed on the authority of men like Dr. Campbell, Hons. Geo. Shea and M. G. Winter, who were never elected by the people. Referring to the railroad Mr. Higgins said nobody knows how it is being run and how much it is costing the country.

HUMBER NOT AN ISSUE.

The young voters were surely not going to stand for this sort of thing, and they were not going to be influenced by the Humber Proposition, which is being used as camouflage to hide the misdeeds of the past three years. The Government in showing up the Humber are pointing out the can't pay the loan and saying the ship is going full speed ahead, when in reality she is not making any headway. Already on the ship one million dollars had been spent without any legislative authority. The Humber Deal, Mr. Higgins explained, was not the issue of the election as whether the country likes it or not it is already committed to it by the acts of the Government. Enthusiastic applause greeted Mr. Higgins' remarks and hearty cheers were given for him. The chairman then called on Mr. Linegar to address the meeting.

LABOR CANDIDATE SPEAKS.

Mr. W. Linegar, the Labor candidate on the West End ticket, was given a very hearty demonstration by the young voters. His opening remarks were confined to the young men who, he said, came and volunteered their assistance in the fight. He assured the young voters that whatever Cashin, Hunt or himself could do to turn down the present incompetent administration would be done. It was, he said, apparent from the immense gathering present that the young voters as well as the older ones were not satisfied with present conditions. They wanted no more misrule, no more of raising money by Minute of Council. He was glad to see that the young men had decided to take the matter up and have the present crowd from the Assembly. It was essential that the present conditions must alter if the country is to prosper, and it was fitting that the young men were coming forward demanding a change.

A FRIEND OF LABOR.

Mr. Linegar referred to the attack that was made upon him by a gentleman at the Squires Committee rooms on Wednesday night, who was supposed to be a friend of labor. This man said that Linegar was not a representative of labor, but he would like to inform this gentleman that for 30 years he had stood by the labourer, mechanic and tradesman, and he had fought their battles throughout. At their request on two occasions he had entered the political field, and now this gentleman, who only struck this town about 10 or 12 years ago, says that Linegar had no right to be a representative of labor in his native city. This same gentleman nine months ago said that he told Squires that he must do something for the mechanic to better their conditions, but Squires has not done anything as yet, and the best the mechanic in this city can get to-day is 3 days a week. Then we have the joke of Dr. Campbell talking of barearmed labour, when the only barearmed labour he does is write scripts and buying splits together with his friend the grocer and tinsmith. Concluding Mr. Linegar appealed to the young voters to pay no heed to the promises of the present administration, nor give any countenance for their appeal for a split vote for Mr. Squires.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE DENOUNCES GOVERNMENT PRESS.

Sir J. C. Crosbie, the popular standard bearer of the Bennett Party in Bay de Verde, was next called upon, and in a short address he did not spare words in denouncing both Mosdell and Squires for their desperate attack on Mr. Monroe. The time had come when they would have to be dealt with as the United Fishermen did last fall with the Advocate. Things had come to a pretty pass, he said, when men like Mr. Monroe were being vilified by tramps. He asked what has Squires done for St. John's. It could be plainly seen if one were to look at Water Street from Beck's Cove west. The same question may be asked, he said, of Dr. Campbell. He has done nothing except build a fine house for himself on Duckworth Street and buy splits. Between them they had turned over 10,000 people out of Newfoundland to seek a live-

MR. P. E. OUTERBRIDGE SPEAKS.

Mr. P. E. Outerbridge was next called to speak. Mr. Outerbridge is a very witty and forceful speaker, and he was repeatedly cheered as he made point after point against the Government. He said that some 400 or 500 years ago there was a law that prohibited any one from living in Newfoundland, and if Squires is allowed to continue there will be no need for that law. At a recent social function Sir R. A. Squires had said that all who left Newfoundland were trash. Mr. Outerbridge's idea of trash was a Prime Minister who wandered to London, lived on the best and ran up hotel bills at the rate of $150 per day which the country had to pay. Referring to the Humber, but in the hands of the Bennett Party, Mr. Outerbridge pointed out that one of the reasons for all the mystery surrounding this deal, may be attributed to the fact that some two years ago Mr. Morgan came here inspecting the railroad, said it was rotten and it was stated at the time that Chinese were to be brought here to rebuild the road because they were cheap. Take care that this Humber deal does not include similar arrangements whereby some big American concern has the contract to supply Chinese labour, and that this is the reason Squires is afraid to place the terms before the people. Regarding the split business, on Wednesday he had been offered a cart load for $2.00 that had already been sold to the Government. He had been termed one of the merchants but if running a skating rink was a merchant then he was guilty. He had always worked for his living and one of his first jobs, was with an Under-wood when he was within six months he had learned to write as well as the people of this country were going to enshrine the present Government in May next. He had always heard of honest John Bennett but he had yet to hear of anyone called honest Dick Squires. In conclusion he wished the West End trio every success.

BENNETT RECEIVES OVATION.

Mr. J. R. Bennett was greeted with a prolonged outburst of cheering as he came forward to address the gathering. He thanked the young voters for their enthusiasm and pointed out to them the good showing made by the older voters. From a book on the table he displayed a list of over 500 men who had voluntarily come forward to the West End Committee. The meeting reminded him of a similar one held in the Casino Theatre some 15 years ago through means of which the party he supported secured a mighty triumph. It was not to get place or distinction that he was in the fight, but to restore to its proper place the land we love. He wanted to see his children live in this land and desired to see able men administer the affairs of the country in a business like manner. Mr. Bennett said there was no Government work on the island. Two men only were dominating the affairs of the country. Coaker down North and Squires, Warren, the Minister of Justice was going around with a smile of absolute indifference. The Government that he, Mr. Bennett, expected to form would see to it that every dollar expended would be accounted for. He had represented the district of St. John's West for the past 20 years, and now his opponents were trying hard to get something against him, but without success. Their press was ridiculing the Opposition because good men were flocking to its banner. There was not a single man associated with him, who had been promised a dollar to become a candidate and they had more men than they could place. These men would see that the country's affairs were administered as any sane business man would run his affairs. The districts would be contested he said, by good, strong men and this applied also to the Coaker districts. He was flooded with telegrams and letters from people on the inside of Coaker's district and they all stated that surprises were in store and when Polling Day comes Coaker will get a sell. St. John's district will not be alone in the good work, he said. The trouble with Newfoundland, he said, was that it had too much one man Government. Mr. Coaker dominated the North whilst Mr. Squires tried to control the South. All the rest of the executive were irresponsibly. The Cabinet was criminally extravagant. There has been many illegal transactions carried out for which they would be held responsible when the new Govt. assumes power. In this connection bribes were illegal, and the money borrowed for the Campaign would have to be accounted for. Every honorable debt would be met, he said, but doubtful transactions would first be investigated. He believed that when the new Government was formed the Executive Council would be composed of tried and true men and the Government would not be controlled by one man. The families of all would have the satisfaction of knowing that the exodus had ceased and by the development of the new Government would undertake the people who went away will be able to come back. Mr. Bennett assured his auditors that the Humber Proposition would be in safe and sure hands in the new administration. Concluding he congratulated the young voters on their wonderful demonstration and asked them to vote the straight ticket for CASHIN, LINEGAR and HUNT.

MR. P. E. OUTERBRIDGE SPEAKS.

MR. C. J. FOX IN SPLENDID FORM.

In response to a general demand for other speakers, Mr. C. J. Fox was asked to give a short address. Opening his remarks by congratulating the young voters on their magnificent demonstration Mr. Fox said it was a sure indication of what was going to happen on polling day. One man Government was the curse of this country to-day. To it was due Squires' failure, and once a man falls, he is down and out, there is no mercy shown. Squires and Coaker had ruined Newfoundland, and they will be as sure as the sun shines, have to take their medicine which will be administered at the polls at the hands of an outraged and down-trodden electorate. Mr. Fox referred to the wholesale purchase of candidates,

WHO FIRST FELT "LIKE A FIGHTING COCK?"

But it is only 80 years ago that the first man felt "like a fighting cock!"

Now he has brothers, sisters, nephews, nieces, all over the world, all feeling "like a fighting cock!"

It happens this way: A person half sick with bad stomach, indigestion, and heavy headache, takes Beecham's Pills just before going to bed. Immediately the pills begin to harmonize the digestive and eliminative organs.

Consequently, this person has good night's sleep and arises in the morning with clear head, bright eye, keen appetite, and lots of energy for work and play.

It is now just 80 years since Beecham's Pills first began to rectify disordered stomachs and stirring sluggish livers and bowels to natural activity—and feeling "like a fighting cock" is associated inseparably with Beecham's Pills, as the pills are with good health.

Excellent Exhibition.

NEW PUMPER DEMONSTRATES POWER.

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, a public exhibition of the chemical and hose car pumping machine was given at Cliff's Cove. It was witnessed by his Excellency the Governor, Lady Allardyce, Miss Allardyce, his Worship the Mayor, Hon. Tasker Cook, Councillors and Board of Fire Underwriters. The machine was run down on Baird's wharf, and the water was drawn from the Harbor. The first exhibition (deluge) three streams were turned into what is known as the siamese connection. This sent the water from the three hoses out thru one nozzle. In the second exhibition three separate streams were operated. A further exhibition of four separate streams by means of a "Y" attachment followed. The whole demonstrated the utility of this new and modern addition to our fire fighting apparatus. The water in each case was drawn from the Harbor and within two seconds after the pumping began the streams were available. A deluge of water at the rate of 800 gallons a minute was played on the Court House Building. His Excellency the Governor and the large concourse of citizens who witnessed the demonstration congratulated Inspector General Hutchings on his initiative in having this machine added to the Fire Department. Mr. Eller Starr, the expert, who arrived by the Rosalind with the machine, operated the pumps, during yesterday's demonstration. The pumps will afford special protection to property on the Higher Levels, and also in the suburbs. Yesterday morning a demonstration was made from the hydrant on Harvey Road. The pressure at the hydrant was 12 1-2 lbs., while the pressure at the nozzle of the pumper when in operation showed 80 pounds. With two streams connected the water was sent up to the top of the tower of the R.C. Cathedral.

From a Humorous Point of View.

WATER, WATER, EVERYWHERE.

Anyone who happened to be on Water Street yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the vicinity of Cliff's Cove, wondered whether or not he was in a London fog or a sand storm in the Sahara desert. Mr. Dummer, who was passing at the time bumped into Mr. Dummer. "Oh! pardon me," said Mr. Dummer. "Is this Water St. and is it raining or just snowing?"

Dummer, who knew just what was happening, said that as the streets were not slippery enough just now, the authorities thought it would be a good thing to have the new Pumping Engine throw a little water over the Court House steps, so that people could slide down to work in the mornings.

"I don't believe that's the case at all," said Dummer. "I believe it is just an advance showing of 'April showers,' or some other spring cleaning song."

"However," said Dummer, "it is certainly great, I have never seen such a collection of girls, let's stand in a door way and give them the once over."

"My feet are wet," said Dummer. "I can't stand this any longer, and besides there seems to be some salt in the atmosphere."

"You mean salt afloat," said Dummer.

"Shut-r-r-up," said Dummer, "I know I'm Dummer, but your Dummer, it's the new Fire Pumping Engine being tried out."

LECTURE BY ENGINEER COMMANDER HOWLEY.

At the C.L.B. Armory last night Engineer Commander Howley, R.N., lectured to the Battalion on some of his experiences in the navy. The lecturer was introduced by Major Williams, who referred to Commander Howley's splendid record in the war. The lecturer, after a few pleasant remarks, in which he laid stress upon the meaning of the term Britisher, told of some of his experiences during the Messina Earthquake of which he formed one of the relief party, and he also gave a vivid description of the Naval attack in the Dardanelles, during which he acted his ship was sunk, and he himself was wounded with Shrapnel. Commander Howley, when in Hospital, had one hundred and one pieces (101) of Shrapnel taken from his body. Before concluding, the lecturer congratulated the Brigade on their new Lieut.-Col., and said he was sure the C.L.B. would make steady progress under their new O.C. The Brigade showed their appreciation of Commander Howley's interesting lecture by giving three hearty cheers. Several pieces of Shrapnel, which had been taken from Commander Howley's body, and a pair of spectacles which he had had in his pocket and which saved his life by preventing another piece of Shrapnel from entering his body were exhibited. It is hoped that it will not be long before Commander Howley will relate further of his experiences to the Brigade.
