WHITHER ARE WE DRIFTING ?- Grip showing a keen appreciation of the litical situation. Under the above political situation. title its Saturday's issue contains a vigrously drawn and racy cartoon, representing Sir John standing upon the prostrate form of Canada, declaring olemnly that "These hands are clean. His eyes are upturned to heaven; one hand holds a scroll, inscribed "Prorogation and Suppression of Parliament;" the other hand is outstretched, and upon the palm is printed the words "Send me another ten thousand." To complete the picture, a bottle labeled "Taktix," sticks out of his coat-tail pocket.

THE THREE-MILE RACE, as announced in our issue of Saturday, came off at the place named, but not at the hour specified, owing to May's non-arrival till nearly nine o'clock. May's object for this will nine octock. May's object for this win-be seen by the following strategy: On coming up he asked his opponent, seeing that it was now dark, to shorten the race to two miles, and that each would take a mark with him so that he who would reach the end of the mile first would reach the end of the mile first would stick his mark in the ground and the other coming up would bring it back. This was agreed to. In the meantime May had placed his brother about half way so that when Beirnes came up the brother would be in readiness to start after him and bring back the mark to May, thus leaving May to run only one mile. But "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft aglee." Beirnes won the race in 11:40, beating the two by fully a minute. The fraud was discovered by a party who were on their way to witness the race.

Constitution, "The King can do no wrong;" meanting that he acts by the advice of his Ministers. The real question seems to have been carefully kept back from the Governor-General, who does not seem to investigate charges against the Government. The failure of its committee did not robit of that privilege, and surely it had a right to be consulted in regard to the superseding of it by another form of enquiry. The objection of the assembly at Ottawa on the 13th not being a full Parliament could have easily bean met-by an adjournment, as suggested by members of both shades of opinion; but even as it was the Ministry seem to be open to blame. Seeing things in this light, we could perfectly well imagine His Excellency replying to the objections of his Ministers that the House was not full: "So much the worse for you. A right of Parliament is involved in the course you advise me to adopt with regard to the issue of a Royal Commission, and you ought to have taken proper measures to enable me to consult the representatives of the people in this matter." But it would seem that the Cabinet has impressed upon His Excellency that any refusal to follow implicitly their advice or the adoption of a course not approved by them is tantamount to dismissing them from office,—that in short he was a political nonentity.—Witness

Can We Curtail the Credit System?

The following remarks from the Monetary Times are worthy of thoughtful consideration :-

It would be a mistake to suppose that credit is essentially bad; the mischief begins when credit is abused when it is extended where it ought to be refused, and when it is paid for at too dear a rate. The credit extended by retail merchants in Ontario is specially open to the last since the Pacific developments, and named objection, and is faulty and assert that a great majority of the

Viewed from the standpoint he has made retailer's sales, and his books show a margin of profit. And if the seed is well and wisely sown; if the clouds carry out their part of the undertaking by affording plenty of copious and timely showers; if the harvest weather is not unduly "catchy" and wet; and lastly, if the proceeds are not diverted into some other channel, they pass to the storekeeper's till and the farmer's credit, and the whole trans action is successfully closed in a year from the time of being entered upon If, on the other hand, any link in this chain should part, the sole prop is removed from the superstructure of credit. The goods are consumed and there is nothing at hand which will bring money. Further time is asked and must be granted. When this state of things become wide spread there is a general stoppage of remittances; the whole m of credit, running through retail and wholesale merchants, manufacturers bankers, everybody, is put out of

CHAPTER XXXIV.

BARNARD HAYES BECOMES A SCAPEGOAT.

Mr. Langton, who had been at first wholly incredulous, no, sooner saw him dumb and guilt-stricken than the conviction dawned on him that the horrible charge which Philip had made was true; and then it was that a feeling of deep stern indignation took possession of his heart, all whose feelings of honour and truth had been outraged.

With a look upon his face such as Barnard Hayes or his wife had never seen there, he strode forward to where the lawyer stood.

"Hayes," he said, in a low, husky, compressed tone, "have you no word of lenial or defence?"

"It was in your interest, and that of Augusts, I was acting," he sullenly replied.

"In our interest—ours!" exclaimed the

"It was in your interest, and that of Augusta, I was acting," he sullenly replied.

"In our interest—ours!" exclaimed the merchant in a tone of amazement.

"Yes—don't you see how? What I had in view would have brought Seymour's property to you. As things have turned out it was unnecessary, for the girl's death has brought it to you in another and surer way."

"Oh, heaven, and did you think we covered wealth obtained by means so foul, so wicked? Barnard Hayes, could the past be undone, I would rather be a bankrupt at this hour, and working as semmon labourer in a Liverpool warehouse, than be solvent as I am, and the posseesor of Rockstone. But that, alas, may not be. Providence, in His inscrutable working, has seen meet to bring the property to us, which God knows we would gladly yield up if Annabel could be brought back to earth. This also is a vain wish, and therefore these words are useless. But for you, Barnard Hayes, henceforth you are a stranger to us. To continue intercourse with you would be to become partakers of your crime, your dishonour, your disgrace—therefore begone, and never come near us again.

"What! You order me from the house? You—you break with me?" ejaculated Hayes, turning and facing the merchant in unmitigated astonishment.

"I do—most unhesitatingly and emphatically I do."

"And think you I will submit to this? After all I have done to serve you, I am to be sacrificed. Not exactly! You think you are secure in—"

He was stopped by a convolsive grasp to be sacrifieed. Not exactly! You think you are secure in—""

He was stopped by a convulsive grasp on his arm, and was dragged round to see the white face of his sister quivering before him.

see the white face of his sister quivering before him.

"It is a punishment you have deserved. Barnard," she said, with every show of reproach in her tone, but with a meaning glance in her eye, which he did not fail to notice or be influenced by. Even I, Barnard—I, your sister, cannot defend or plead for you. Joseph is right; you must leave us for the present, and if in the future you show penitence for your great offence, he may—"

"May! I shall promise nothing," interrupted the merchant. "I can never again trust one who has been fraudulent with such deep and skilful deliberation. Go, sir, go."

again trust one who has been fraudulent with such deep and skilful deliberation. Go, sir, go."

Pride and rage again nearly o'ermastered the lawyer's prudence, and he was about to retaliate by a statement which he judged would overwhelm the merchant like a ways of ruin, when another warning and imploring leok from Mrs. Langton again checked him, and still more the cold, and, as he thought, triumphant face of Philip Weston, as he stood on the hearth silently regarding him.

Checking back, therefore, the rising impulse, he walked to the door which his sister had opened for his exit, and passed out without once looking back.

Augusta went after him, closing the door on her husband and Philip, and followed him up to his o vn room, speaking not a word till he and she both were in the safe retirement of that apartment.

Guelph, June 34th,

Worth Looking after.

The Woodstock Weekly Review—which by the way is a specimen of almost faulties typography and press-work—calls attention to the preposed visit of Joseph Arch to this continent. Arch, it will be remembered, was one of the leaders in the recent Trades Union movement among the English Agricultural labourers, and has been very favourably spoken of by a section of the English press. The Review says:—Joseph Arch, the champion of the English Agricultural laboring class, is expected to arrive very shortly in New York and preparations are being made to receive him in what may be termed we suppose a befitting manner. Arch is a main of excellent common sense and as unlike the violent Bradlaugh as light is unlike darkness. Formerly a laborer in the Agricultural districts himself, he is fully cognizant of the miseries of Hodge's condition and has assumed the very oncrous task of either improving his position where he now is or otherwise of seeking a home for him in the fertile fields of the Western hemisphere. Those who look up to this Arch and are content to go whither he directs them are precisely the immigrants Cenada requires — hardworking, industrious tillers of the soil. So far as mechanics go we are not in any particular want. Through the ordinary efforts of Emigration agents they drop into the country about as rapidly as their services can be utilized. But as to farm hand we can find room for all that can be sent us and more. The cry frem all sections of the Dominion, and of Ontario particularly, is for agricultural help, but to the wail there is little response and for the very cogent reason that the help is not in the country. Joseph Arch has it in his power to turn to our shores or the shores of the United States, thousands of the very men the country is suffering for. Shall we then permit him, to be manipulated by the shrewd people on our southern border without endeavouring to bring him amongst us that he may see the resources of the Dominion, the vast demand for labor, and the opportunitie SURGEON DENTIST, GUELPH.

Iron in the Blood

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG

ad Solution of the Protoxide of tron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as casily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "athousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vivilized blood permeates every "ret of the body, repairing dama, as and waste, searching out "a "bit seemetions, and leaving sothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of "a conderful success of the remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrheen, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Pevers, Humors, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy new and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
