HAMILTON, Thursday, Oct. 14 .-Judging from the attendance at the meeting held in the city council chambers at the city hall yesterday afternoon for organization for the collection of funds on Trafalgar Day, Thursday. Oct. 21, to be expended by the British Red Cross Society in its work on the battlefield and in the hospitals. the citizens are showing little interest in the matter and those present were disappointed.

While those present represented the city and many societies and other or-ganizations, nothing definite in the way of organization was decided upon, and the public will again be requested to attend a meeting which will be held in the council chambers at 8 o'clock Friday evening. Nearly 200 invitations were sent out to prominent business men and women of various societies

He said that at no time was the British Red Cross Society in greater need of funds than at the present time, and asked what work could be more pressing or for a greater cause. He scored the citizens of Hamilton for the lack of interest in such a great cause, and suggested that the city impose a tax so that everybody could be reached, and that substantial grants be made by the city. If a tax was imposed, not only those who would give freely and liberally to the cause, would be reached, but also those who hold back and allow the willing to do it all.
Mayor Walters, who will act as chairman of the organization, said that Hamilton as a city and its citimatter of organization, and to allow the people to give as they saw fit. He the United States. Some of the systems now in the federal court hospital were doing a fine business but a few years ago, carrying their bond issues easily, paying handsome dividends and accumulating substantial reserves. Hence the specious claim that these roads have been put out of business by government interference and the imposition of confiscatory rates.

But when we come to examine the facts we find that not too much, but too little regulation contributed to their downfall. They are today banksupt, not because the government regulated rates, but because the government failed to regulate capitalization. These derelicts were robbed of their cargo and stripped to the hull by Wall street banditti, thru the issue of watered stock and other devices of overcapitalization.

When Mr. James Couzens resigned from the managing directorship of the Ford Motor Company, he probably never thought of the $100,000 a year salary which was involved. In this respect he resembled Mr. Henry Ford himself, who never considered in the least the effect upon his business the announcement of his views on the war might have. Both men are indifferent to money for its own sake, and it would not be true to attribute the indifference to their possession of vast wealth. Some men are born with the carelessness or contempt for wealth which only a few ever have the opportunity of exhibiting. Just as many poor men propor-
