HARRY TURNER IS ACQUITTED Of Complicity In Departing an Immigrant From St. John

Chief Justice Will Rule Later on Important Point Raised by Attorney General Pugsley.

Harry M. Turner, United States Immigration official has come out victorious in the suit brought against him by Onatozas Papageorgiou. Chief Justice Tuck without any hesitation freed him this morning from all liability in the transaction which subjects the unfortunate Greek to much misery and trouble.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Turner was subjected to a searching cross-examination by Attorney General Pugsley. The attorney general was, however, unable to elicit from him anything that might tend to weaken his case. The defendant's case, so far as the taking of evidence was concerned was now closed and L. A. Curry addressed the court in behalf of the defendant. He admirably summed up the salient features of the case pro and con and in a convincing way demonstrated what he regarded as the legal weakness of the plaintiff's case, dwelling with particular emphasis upon the fact that Attorney General Pugsley had failed to connect Mr. Turner with Serafo, who had been proved to be responsible for the treatment to which Papageorgiou had been subjected.

The attorney general in support of his argument in this particular pointed out the fact that the defendant had been arrested within the jurisdiction and had given bail for his appearance. Continuing, the attorney general said that Serafo had written this receipt, notwithstanding it was signed by Corey, and this tended strongly to show that there was a conspiracy on the part of Serafo and Corey to conceal his identity. This version of the matter was further strengthened by the manner in which the arrests were made at the airport. It would be noted along with the plaintiff and the two Assyrians with the full knowledge of the defendant that Serafo's arrest was all sham. The court, however, was open to all that was going on and he was undoubtedly a party to the transaction.

Attorney General Pugsley now dealt with the legality of the arrest of the plaintiff in the United States. Serafo was an officer of the United States and after inducing the plaintiff to enter the United States he had no authority whatever to arrest him. The United States can only act through its officials and an arrest by officials under such circumstances was a farce. It would be contrary to law and natural justice. Serafo, an official of the United States, fraudulently arranged for the plaintiff to enter the United States, and informed the defendant that the plaintiff was going to enter the country. The fact that Turner acted on this information and arrested the plaintiff was enough to connect the defendant with the transaction. The defendant had no right to throw the plaintiff in prison if he only wished to hold him as a witness, and, further, his conduct in sending him back to Europe was an arbitrary exercise of his power to deport. He could easily have sent the plaintiff back to Canada where he had been legitimately residing. The defendant, in deporting the plaintiff from the United States, should have proceeded in the manner specified by law, and as he had failed in this respect he must be held liable for a culpable infraction of duty.

The attorney general submitted that under the law the only court of inquiry that can decide as to a man's fitness to enter the United States must be a court within the United States. There is no statute authorizing the establishment of such a court outside of the United States. The court of inquiry in St. John which refused the plaintiff

MONTREAL Death of R. C. Jamieson, Paint and Brush Manufacturer.

(Special to the Star. MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—R. C. Jamieson, the well known paint and brush manufacturer, died this morning.

TORONTO MAN'S EYES OPENED. Lieut. W. J. Miller, of Toronto, who has just completed a six months training course at the Salvation Army Training College, Toronto, arrived in the city yesterday en route to Inverness, N. S.

Lieut. Miller was for three years a proof reader on the Toronto Star, after which he was employed as a construction iron worker. Mr. Miller could not understand the climate of St. John. To see so much snow and the harbor frozen, the only thing that was a novel sight to him. Toronto has little snow, but the skating on its harbor lake is excellent and ice-boating is a very popular sport at the Queen City.

TWICE DISCHARGED.

The men Edward Riley and John Bent arrested on suspicion of stealing two bottles of ale from Labatts' agency on Nelson street, were discharged this morning by the court. Mr. Bent did not wish to press the charge. It is understood that Bent who was foreman of the bottling department has lost his position for a violation of the company's regulations.

TODAY'S FUNERALS.

The funeral of the late Ernest Janson took place this afternoon from his late residence, 70 St. John street, West End. The Rev. W. H. Sampson conducted the service. Interment was at Cedar Hill. The funeral of the late Mrs. Minnie C. Fraser took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from her late residence, 227 King street. The Rev. A. A. Graham conducted the service. Interment was at Fernhill.

ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION.

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 18.—Wendall P. Jones, the newly appointed solicitor general was elected today by acclamation. There was some talk of opposing Mr. Jones but it was later decided not to do so, hence his election by acclamation.

TICKETS CANCELLED.

Monday evening will be devoted to the hockey game and the games at the Queen's Rink, together with all local parties who care to see the college team play Sussex. All season tickets will be cancelled for this occasion.

G. H. Arnold, of Arnold's department store, Charlotte street, leaves for New York today on a business trip. Some solos from Haydn's Oratorio, "The Creation," will be sung at St. Paul's (Valley) church on Sunday evening.

W. B. Bulmer, of the firm of Bulmer & Hodges, of Boston, passed through the city today, en route to Halifax. The main wire on one of the tracks of the street railway in the North End was broken this morning, but as the break happened on a down grade it did not interfere with the running of the cars.

admission into the United States was only an arrangement for the convenience of the United States immigration department and had no legal authorization. An immigrant therefore would have the right to go to the border whether or not he had been examined by the court of inquiry in St. John, and once within the United States could demand an examination by a court of inquiry there.

The Chief Justice—if your argument is correct, and I don't now question that it is not, it would place the United States immigration officials under a great inconvenience. Continuing, the attorney general said that the United States immigration officials had no right to stop an man in St. John from going to the United States. They could only advise him not to go. Furthermore, the plaintiff had made up his mind to reside in St. John and was only going to the United States to visit relatives, and therefore he could not possibly be arrested. The arrest could only be made of a person in transit, and Papageorgiou was not in transit at the time. Before closing the attorney general said that Serafo was guilty of a most damnable act, and if he were an official of the Dominion government he would be dealt with most severely. Mr. Curry—"Damnable" is a strong word, is it not?

The Chief Justice—it is a good word and fits fine. After the attorney general had taken his seat, the Chief Justice delivered the following judgment: "I have no hesitancy at all in saying and I deem it my duty at this moment to say that I free Turner from all complicity in this transaction. Turner acted independently of Serafo and was no party to any conspiracy which the latter concocted to entrap the two Assyrians, and the plaintiff. I believe every word of Turner's testimony, which struck me as exceptionally straightforward. I am happy indeed to free Turner from any blame."

The Chief Justice at a later day will make a ruling with reference to the point raised by the attorney general that the United States cannot prohibit persons on Canadian soil from passing into that country. Hon. Isaac W. Dyer, United States district attorney for Maine, was complimented by the Chief Justice for the able manner in which he conducted the defence as well as for the fairness with which he exhibited throughout. Mr. Dyer thanked the court.

SHADOW OF DOOM ON RUSSIAN CAPITAL

The Assassination Fills Czar's Cup to the Brim.

Precautions Doubled for the Preservation of the Lives of the Imperial Family

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 18.—1.30 p. m.—Oppression like the shadow of doom seems to be hanging over the Russian capital. Bells are tolling and the people in the streets are awestruck at yesterday's bloody crime. Every one seems to shrink before the contemplation of what may happen next. The tragedy struck deep in the heart of the perplexed and tried emperor and many who were unparing in their criticism yesterday today have only expressions of sympathy for his unhappy lot. The bitter cup which during the past year has been pressed again and again to his lips is once more filled to the brim and in almost pathetic words this morning he implores his subjects to pray for the repose of the soul of his murdered uncle. Death is in the air and no one knows where the next blow may fall. Although precautions have been doubled in every direction for the preservation of the lives of the imperial family and the ministers, and the secret police are seeking out and arresting those known to be associated with the fighting organization, the authorities realize their impotency to ward off the swift acts of terrorism, murder in the streets being possible at any instant. The only safety seems to lie in seeking refuge behind palace walls and all the imperial family have been warned not to venture out.

Although only the official papers and the Grashanin (the Citizen), a reactionary paper of a friend of the late Emperor Alexander III, appear with black borders, the editorials of all of them are strangely soiled with the blood of the Grand Duke Sergius, are drawing back before the prospect of armed resistance, only by Prince Edward being practically warm and sympathetic in tone. It is probable that several governments will send representatives to the funeral of Grand Duke Sergius.

Among the revolutionaries, however, there is a sentiment of elation. They openly glory in the death, and proclaim that it removes the most reactionary influence at court and also proclaims the general theory that in the absence of armed resistance, only by Prince Edward being practically warm and sympathetic in tone. It is probable that several governments will send representatives to the funeral of Grand Duke Sergius.

Expressions of condolence have reached the emperor direct from practically all governments, those of President Loubet, Emperor William and King Edward being practically warm and sympathetic in tone. It is probable that several governments will send representatives to the funeral of Grand Duke Sergius.

THIS MUST BE STOPPED.

Police Magistrate Will Deal Harshly With Men Who Insult Women on the Street.

"Young fellows and old fellows must be careful. They cannot and will not be allowed while in this city to speak to or in any way insult ladies on the streets." Thus spoke His Honor Police Magistrate Ritchie this morning and to prove that he meant what he said he sent D. J. Cheery, an Englishman, forty years of age, to jail for two months, in default of paying a fine of eight dollars.

Cheery was arrested on Prince William street, the officers seeing him accost several ladies. His honor, in delivering sentence, said there was too much of this sort of thing going on in the city. If the ladies who were insulted would inform the police he would see that the hearing of the case was private and would agree not to use the lady's name. His honor further said that if the men complained of were arrested when in the streets they did not appear in court a night in "the sweater" would do them good.

MAY SOON RETURN.

Hon. Isaac W. Dyer, U. S. district attorney for Maine, Arthur Chapman, Mr. Dyer's assistant, and Burton Smith, deputy chief U. S. marshal at Portland, who have been attending the trial of the case of Anatozas Papageorgiou vs. H. M. Turner, will return to Portland this morning.

Messrs. Chapman and Smith, while in the city, have made hosts of friends. Mr. Smith is brimful of anecdotes and delighted the chief justice with the relation of a number of them. Hon. Mr. Dyer has proved himself a gentleman of an attractive personality and chief among his admirers is Attorney General Pugsley.

In the police court this morning two common drunks were disposed of. One was fined four dollars the other eight.

The funeral of the late Margaret Byron took place tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 from her late residence, 3 Harris street.

Two hundred and fifty sacks of Nova Scotia mail arrived this morning and were forwarded on the Prince Rupert. The D. A. R. has not recovered from the recent storm and the southern part of Nova Scotia get their mail via St. John and Digby. Yesterday a large quantity of mail was forwarded to Shelburne, Lunenburg and coast towns by the steamer Seniac.

ELDEST SON OF IRISH BARON

Enlists as Private in the United States Army.

Would Have Joined the Canadian Mounted Police

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Hon. Arthur Reginald French, eldest son and heir to the title and estates of Baron de Freyne, a large land owner in County Roscommon, Ireland, who arrived here yesterday 18, and was reported yesterday to the police as having mysteriously disappeared from his hotel, is at Fort Bloom on Davids Island, near New Rochelle, wearing the uniform of a private in the United States army. On the day of his disappearance French enlisted at a recruiting station in this city and was assigned to the eighth regiment.

He came to America to visit his uncle, Captain William French, who owns a ranch in New Mexico. Having telegraphed his relative and received no reply, the young man decided to take up army work, of which he is very fond.

When seen at the fort, French was considerably amused at the excitement caused by his disappearance. "I supposed," he said, "an obscure Englishman, more or less, in this big country did not amount to much, and might very well drop out of the ranks without such a fuss. I enlisted because I had a pretty strong notion of doing so when I left home. I had an idea of going up to Canada and joining the mounted police up there in the Northwest. But the more I heard and thought about that country and its forty degrees below zero the less I liked it, so I just enlisted in the United States army and I like it. I came out here primarily with the object of going on my uncle's ranch, where he has lived for about twenty years. My private income won't answer to live on. I've got to do something and soldiering is the only thing I know how to do. I don't know anything about ranching. Maybe I couldn't have done anything at it when I got there."

Asked why he left all his luggage at his hotel in this city, he explained that he did not expect to need his citizen's traps and abandoned them to cover a small sum he owed the hotel. "I did not make any particular secret about my enlistment," he said, "and as to leaving the service, I want to say I am here where I want to be and intend to stay."

Private French previously served in the Royal Fusiliers and when he left England was a lieutenant in the reserves.

Lieut. French is about 26 years old. His father, Lord de Freyne, late colonel of the Connaught Rangers, is an Irish baron, the fourth of the line. His mother, Lord de Freyne's first wife, was Lady Laura Octavia Dundas, sister of the first Marquis of Zetland.

HISTORY OF THE VICTORIA CROSS.

The Victoria Cross, the most coveted of all military decorations, was instituted in 1856, and its award made retrospective to the commencement of the Crimean War. It is an insignificant looking little token. In shape it takes the form of a Maltese Cross, measures one and two-fifths inches square, and weighs four hundred and thirty-four grains, though it should be added that the weight varies slightly.

At last, in an open space left by a fallen tree, she saw the tiger, and here she stood for a moment, and then she saw the body of the great beast was heavy in her nostrils as with outstretched knees she stood awaiting his attack. It was not long delayed. With an angry grunt the tiger thrust his head through the clearing, then with a spring, utterly disdaining the puny weapon, he leaped to the earth, and Majidah lay motionless, her arms outstretched even to the earth, and Majidah lay motionless, her arms outstretched even to the earth, and Majidah lay motionless, her arms outstretched even to the earth.

BEAST AND WIRE. The animal kingdom in British East Africa looks upon the 2,100 miles of telegraph wire strung through that region as an innovation to be utilized. The wires arouse curiosity and stimulate experimentation. A number of genera and no end of species are trying to find the adaptation of the telegraph to their special purposes, and so the routine of the telegraph business is more or less crowded with incidents of an unusual character, some of which are mentioned in the latest official report. This speaks of monkeys as inordinately many of them have been shot and thousands frightened, but they cannot get over the idea that the wires are merely a new facility for their athletic performances in mid-air. They have ceased to pay much attention to the locomotive, and even the shrieks of the whistle are not permitted to interfere much with the fun of swinging on the wire. Three wires are strung on the same line of poles for 584 miles between the Indian Ocean and Victoria Nyanza, giving an opportunity for more complicated performances. The Kikuyu forest is mentioned as a place where monkeys are particularly numerous, sometimes succeed in twisting the wires together. The gentle giraffe is also a source of annoyance. He sometimes applies enough muscular energy to the bracket on which the wire is fastened to twist it around, stretching the wire and causing it to foul with other wires. The hippopotamus is also a nuisance, because he rubs up against the poles and sometimes knocks them over. These creatures, however, do not steal the wire. Thevrey was the greatest evil with which the telegraph builders had to contend, and the evil has only recently been suppressed. When the copper wire was stretched from the east from Victoria Nyanza through the Nzoia country, the natives cut out considerable lengths of it, and at one time about forty miles of wire were carried away and never recovered. Passing caravans found also that they could help themselves along the way by cutting the wire and using it in the barter trade. The temptation was great and not always resisted, for wire would buy anything the natives had to sell. A great deal of energy was expended in stamping out wire stealing and it now seems to be a thing of the past. Fifty-nine officers are receiving and sending telegrams in British East Africa and Uganda. Wireless connect the seacoast with Albert Nyanza, where Emin Pasha was so long cut off from the world by the Mandatis. Telephone messages are constantly being sent between Mombasa, on the coast, and Nairobi, 238 miles inland, and the telegraph business last year amounted to 42,759 messages—New York Sun.

TWO BRITISH SALVAGE SHIPS. There has been so much written about the exploits of the Norwegian Salvage Companies that it is satisfactory to read in Engineering of the good work done by the Liverpool Salvage Association. This body has two well equipped vessels. The Ranger was purchased some years ago from the British Admiralty, having formerly been a gunboat. It had been formerly built, but the reconstruction work and the re-equipment have cost a very costly sum of money. The Association recently purchased a gunboat of the same class—the Linnet, and it is intended that she shall also be reconstructed and provided with sufficient light in a vessel of 197.5 ft. long by 28.5 ft. broad and 14.4 ft. deep. She is of composite build, with two thicknesses of oak, and is enclosed in thick plate-glass armor-plate of the new triple-expansion engine is 1020, and the speed attained from 12 1/2 to 13 knots. She has a complete installation of electric light, the dynamo being of 150 amperes, 65 volts capacity. There are two 5,000-candle-power arc-lamps, a 20,000-candle-power searchlight, a very complete set of portable lamps and long cables, for transmitting current to lights on board a ship when being salvaged. The electric lamps used by the divers are enclosed in thick plate-glass boxes of gun-metal; this has been found to work quite satisfactorily at a depth of fifteen fathoms. Along the side of the salvage ship there are different connections for the submarine mains to the divers, so that there is no difficulty in providing sufficient light in the sunken ship. A 1 1/2-in. pump is mounted on the top of the boiler and engine casing. In addition to one 12-inch suction for the full capacity, there are six branches, so that suction can be taken to different parts of the wreck if required. The total pumping capacity which can be carried by the Ranger, if required, is equal to 4,561 tons per hour. In the engine-room there is a donkey pump for fire duty, with connections to the deck. The pump is designed to throw a jet of water 100 ft. high from a nozzle 2 1/2 inches in diameter.

JEWELS FOR KNIGHTS. Pleasing Feature at K. of P. Celebration Monday Evening. The forty-first anniversary of the organization of the Knights of Pythias here will be celebrated Monday by New Brunswick Lodge, No. 3; and Union Lodge, No. 2. A unique feature will be the presentation of jewels by the master. At the last meeting of the supreme lodge, permission was granted for all members of twenty-five years' standing to wear jewels, and the pleasing ceremony on Monday next is the result. The following will be the recipients: John Beaulieu, James Moulson, Ed. J. Mahony, Henry Rubin, Samuel W. Whittins, Thomas Armstrong, John Le Scheben, James E. White, James Dineville, John Law, Park A. Melville, Boston, Andrew J. Armstrong, John R. Armstrong, Alexander L. Eastlings, E. W. Dorrain, J. Fred Sullivan, William McAdoo, Andrew McNieloh. A daintily designed programme, the work of John Hopkins, of the 3rd room staff of The Telegraph, will make a pleasing memento of the proceedings. Of a delicate pale green, it bears on the front the arms of the order. In colors, while the shield-shaped design is appropriate to record the proceedings of the gallant knights. HOW KANSAS FIGHTS.

The State of Kansas is taking the grip with the Standard Oil monopoly in a way that makes the millionaires sit up and take notice. Kansas has only recently become an oil state. In the early stages of development Standard Oil bought Kansas petroleum at good prices. Lately the price has been cut low and as the producers cannot get their oil to other refiners on account of the pull that the syndicate has with the railways, they seemed to be at the mercy of the corporation. But the state of Jerry Simpson and Carry Nation is not without resource in emergencies. Having no power to go into the refining business as an independent industry the state legislature passed a measure establishing a new form of prison labor. This penitentiary industry is refining oil, and it will be carried on in the midst of the oil district. The concern will start in a small way, but with capability of expansion. Incidentally it may reveal to the world the extent of the refiners' profits. Also it may mitigate the price of kerosene. The announcement of this departure coincides with the declaration of a quarterly dividend of fifteen per cent. by the Standard Oil Company. The State of Kansas will be satisfied with less than that every two years.

FROM GLENGARY TO LONDON.

Donald MacMaster, K. C., of Montreal, one of the most brilliant of Canadian lawyers, is about to take up the practice of his profession in London. He does not do this for want of a large income in this country, for there is no member of the Montreal bar who has a more lucrative practice. The suggestion is that Mr. MacMaster will follow Mr. Blake's example not only in taking up the practice of law in London, but in entering the imperial parliament. If this should happen the Canadian colony in the house of commons would be greatly strengthened. Mr. MacMaster is a strong imperialist and would be a supporter of Mr. Chamberlain. The Ontario constituency of Glengary where Mr. MacMaster was born was represented by him in parliament twenty years ago. There is a tradition that his defeat in 1887 was due to a joke which he made in the house in which he spoke of "the predatory instincts of my Highland ancestors." This unhappy jest was circulated in its baldest form among the men from Glengary, who straightway arose in their might and elected an Irishman.

JAPANESE CIVILIZATION.

The following striking remarks, recently made by the Japanese ambassador at Paris have an evident point: We Japanese have for many generations sent to Europe exquisite lacquer work, delicately carved figures, beautiful embroidery and many other commodities which show how artistic we are; but the Europeans described us as "uncivilized." We have recently killed some 70,000 Russians, and every European nation is wondering at the high condition of civilization which we have attained. Perhaps this statesman is hardly fair. Before Japan had killed any Russians Great Britain thought so well of Japan that she formed with her a close alliance. Yet it is undoubtedly true that Japan has risen greatly in the esteem of the world—because she has shown that she is capable of taking care of herself. It is not by killing a great many people that Japan has become famous. The Mahdi might have killed 70,000 English without laying himself open to the charge that he and his Arabs were highly civilized. Japan has exhibited splendid powers of organization and administration and these qualities belong to civilization.

THE HOCKEY INCIDENT.

Incidents such as occurred in Queens Rink last evening exercise an undesirable influence on the feelings which should exist among all true lovers of sport. In the excitement of the moment players of both sides are apt to say and do things which, after consideration, they will regret, and in so far as is possible the heads of contesting hockey teams and of similar organizations should endeavor to avoid such combinations of circumstances as may lead to friction. This cannot always be done, and in cases where disputes unavoidably arise the trust sportsmanship is shown by quietly accepting the decisions of those chosen as judges. In last evening's game the deciding goal was in dispute. The goal judge and the spectators held different opinions, and confusion followed. The outcome was that the game was given to the visiting team, while the St. John players have entered a protest. Had the latter quietly accepted the decision of the judge and gone on with the play they might have shot another goal and won the game, at the same time retaining more self-satisfaction than they can now feel. Had the visitors scored in continued play the protest entered by the St. John men would not be of less effect.

It is not to be expected that the tragedy of Moscow will end the rule of the Grand Dukes or bring about radical reforms. Assassination in Russia has not worked that way hitherto. There are other reactionary princes and potentates in Russia. Whatever faults they may have, most of them are not afraid of death. Other royal lives are likely to be lost in this cause before Russia sees the daylight of liberty.

IRISH LULLABY.

Softly now the burn is rushing,
Every lark its song is hushing,
On the moor thick rest is falling,
Quickly o'er the flowery matting,
Calling, calling, lonely, lonely,
For my darling, for my only
Leannan mo' Leannan mo!

Trotting home, my dearie, dearie,
Wee black lamb come, wearie, wearie,
Hear its soft feet pit-a-patting
Quickly o'er the flowery matting,
See its brown-black eyes a-blinking—
Of its bed it's surely thinking,
Leannan mo, Leannan mo!

The hen to roost wee Nona's shooting,
Brindley in the byre is mooring,
The tread-out cricket's quit its calling—
Yet sleep on all be ye hushin',
Lark and cow, and sheep and starling—
Feel it kiss our white-haired darling,
Leannan mo, Leannan mo!

SATURDAY SERMONETTE.

THE YES MAN.
Whenever I hear a person say "Yes, yes," to every proposition, I think of a weak deceitful man—unless the "affirmative" person is of the opposite sex—and then I think of a weak hypocritical woman.

Loony-going, timid people very often say yes, when their judgment tells them they ought to say no. They lend money, or their names (which is worse) and learn from bitter experience that Solomon was wise when he warned them against suretyship.

Yes men are generally behind with their business engagements for they cannot possibly keep their engagements, no matter how honest their intentions.

When the affirmative persons is a woman, then there is trouble—for herself—for she does not want to hurt "his" feelings when he asks the most important question a woman can be asked, but says yes, and lives unhappily afterward.

The yes man gets into financial difficulties for he cannot say no to the book agents with a plausible tongue. The yes man promises his vote to every candidate and this is why you can never bet on an election without losing. It is the Yes men who are the uncertain element.

Yes men and women are the fruitful field where the missionary of every "cult," from Brigham Young down to Lewis gather their disciples.

Learn to say no, my friend, and say it so that it can be heard, and you will be richer and wiser than the writer of this sermonette will ever be.

WARK AND COSTIGAN.

The New Freeman is indebted to Captain James J. Cremer, West Quaco, for the following interesting facts: On Sunday next when Senator Wark receives congratulations on his hundred and first birthday he will have sixty-four years in parliament. On the score of continuity of service he is surpassed only by Lord Mansfield, sixty-eight years and Lord Fitzwilliam, sixty-four years in parliament. On the score of continuity of service he is followed by Lord Templemore, father of the House of Lords, who entered parliament the day following his coming of age, June fifteenth, eighteen hundred and forty-two, precisely the same year in which Mr. Wark entered upon his political career. Emulating him in Canadian politics we have Honorable John Costigan, seventy years of age and in parliament forty-four years, fourteen of which he had been a member of the cabinet. In those two Irishmen New Brunswick can claim the unique distinction of holding the fatherhood of both the federal assemblies.

Some Westville People Won't Have Any Other Flour Than "Royal Household."

The Westville Free Lance recently obtained the following interview with Geo. E. Munro, one of the leading merchants of Pictou County. It will be read with interest by all who have used and are using "Royal Household" Flour:
"Yes, we handle 'Royal Household' Flour; we sell a good deal of it," was the reply given our reporter when he called at the store of Mr. George E. Munro. "I am sorry to say that for a few days we were completely sold out of stock; but a car load now coming in will keep us going a little while unless the demand increases, which it may do judging by the reports we hear of 'Royal Household' popularity in other parts of Canada."
"I understand," said Mr. Munro, "that 'Royal Household' is now the popular flour, as far west as Victoria, British Columbia, and that the millers who make it have had great difficulty in keeping up with their orders. I have made no effort to obtain the opinion of Westville people who have bought the flour, as to its quality, but this I can say, that no complaints have been made, which is a very good sign that the flour gives satisfaction. During the few days we were out of stock several people came to us anxious to get a barrel of 'Royal Household,' and when asked if they would have a substitute the reply invariably was that they would wait for the new lot. Personally, I believe that 'Royal Household' is a very fine flour, probably the finest that has ever been made in Canada, and I have had satisfaction in selling it as such. You are at liberty to make this statement in your paper, in fact I would consider it fair to have you do so."

SHE SHIPS SAILORS.

Mrs. Mary Ranlett, of Rockland, is a Remarkable Woman.

A remarkable woman is Mrs. Mary Ranlett, of Rockland, Maine. She is not only an authority on dogs, cats and horses, but probably has a more intimate knowledge of the great coastwise shipping business than any other woman in the United States. "Thirty-three years ago she married John S. Ranlett, who keeps a sailor's boarding house and shipping office, and who was shipping commissioner at Rockland for nearly five years. Mr. Ranlett was unable to attend to the more active part of the shipping office, and she took over the business and into a position never before filled by a woman stepped Mrs. Ranlett, a fine type of Maine's rugged and energetic womanhood. The office was called upon to furnish crews not only for the thriving ports of Rockland, Rockport and Thomaston, but along the Kennebec river. The coastwise trade, then at its height, created an immense demand for sailors, and under the supervision of Mrs. Ranlett as many as 3,000 of them have been furnished at Rockland in a single year. Those who shipped at regular intervals were not long in recognizing the marked personality of the woman who had taken over the business. She was not only a matter-of-fact one for their articles and checks. Mrs. Ranlett went to Boston to take charge of ship's crews and had one which numbered 18 men. They were landed at the desired point on a scheduled time. Instantly taught the sailors that Mrs. Ranlett was a woman of nerve, quick to meet emergencies, and of the most unflinching courage. She was a sailor's friend, and she was with other sailors he took French leave. Mrs. Ranlett pursued him in her team, got him aboard and carried him back to the wharf, whence he was escorted to the ship with lack of ceremony.

FACTS THAT FEW KNOW ABOUT FLOWERS.

To Revive Withering Flowers—Flowers which have been withered may be revived by plunging their stems into hot water. The same result may be obtained by burning the ends of the stems.

Flowers Grow from the Roots in Three Weeks—Fill a flower-pot more than half full with quicklime, and fill to the top with good soil. Plant the bulbs in the usual way. The heat of the lime will rise through the earth, and in this manner seedling flowers will be obtained at any time. The soil should be kept dry.

Soil for Flowers—Good soil is of first importance, for without it no plant can thrive. The best soil is produced by mixing fresh sandy loam with a third of well-rotted manure. In potting plants, press the soil well down in the pot. Never use wet soil for this purpose under any consideration; if you do, disappointment will be the result.

A Tonic, and a Preventive for Insects—To vivacitate running vines, burn beef bones, then pulverize them, and mix with the soil. To rid your plants of the harmful insects which gather on the under side of the leaves, use a strong suds made of whale-oil soap and water, applying it with a whisk-broom by splashing from the ground upward.

Hyacinth Culture—Hyacinths require a light but rich soil; sandy loam well dressed and mixed with thoroughly rotted manure is best. If the soil is not sandy, add to it a third of silver sand. The soil for a hyacinth-bed must be dug deeply, well mixed and turned over. The bulbs should be planted eight inches apart and four inches under the soil.

NORTH SYDNEY FIRE. Earl of Minto

McDonald Block Completely Destroyed—Firemen's Hard Fight.

HALIFAX, Feb. 17.—The McDonald block, North Sydney, was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon, causing the loss of upwards of ten thousand dollars, partially covered by insurance. The fire started in the basement, originating, it is believed, from the furnace. It had made considerable headway before discovery, and after it reached the first floor, where it caught a strong current of air, it spread with such rapidity as to put it beyond control, and the building was soon a mass of flames. The building collapsed in about three-quarters of an hour after the fire broke out, the front wall crashing out on the street, carrying away telegraph and electric wires. Adjoining buildings were saved through a hard fight on the part of the fire department.

Excitement on Charlotte St.

Opposing Parties Struggle For Possession of Morrell and Sutherland's Store.

In the case of Gault Bros., Ltd., of Montreal, v. Morrell & Sutherland, Judge Barker yesterday morning dissolved the injunction restraining the defendants from making an assignment for the benefit of all their creditors. J. B. M. Baxter appeared for Morrell & Sutherland; Hanington, Teed & Hanington for Gault Bros., and J. King Kelley for the creditors. The judgment, however, did not quench the ardor of the plaintiffs, whose action in forcibly effecting an entrance to the premises yesterday afternoon created something of a sensation, and bids fair to further complicate what was already a somewhat intricate case. The plaintiffs' solicitor, C. S. Hanington, accompanied by two constables, E. V. Godfrey and Frank McBratney, from the rooms of the Neptune Rowing Club raised a window in the store and got in through it and took possession. Their possession was of short duration, however, as the defendants, acting under advice that they had a right to enter their store, came to the outer door and demanded admittance, stating that judgment had been given in their favor. Mr. Hanington, it is understood, left the two constables in charge, and they announced their intention of remaining where they were. This statement was by subsequent events proven incorrect, as Messrs. Morrell and Sutherland kicked out the glass panel in the door and went inside, and thrust forth the constables. Godfrey declined to go, and resisted violently, winding his legs around each piece of furniture that was passed. He was endeavoring to telephone when he was first grabbed, but was obliged to desist. He was thrust forth into the cold world, and his companion followed. Thinking, perhaps, that discretion was the better part of valor Mr. McBratney went out quietly. Godfrey was taken in charge by Officer Ira Perry and escorted to the central station, but was soon released. The owner of the building has disclaimed for rent, having a claim of $200 against the firm, and his representative, Ernest Wilson, is now in charge of the premises, but is acting in harmony with Messrs. Morrell and Sutherland. After the door was repaired a couple of watchmen were engaged, who remained in the store all night. Morrell & Sutherland made a general assignment for the benefit of all their creditors. The assignees are Thomas H. Sommerville of the London House and Frank Roach of Brock & Patterson. Morrell & Sutherland also intend to commence an action in the supreme court against C. S. Hanington for damages for trespass. There will also be an action in the equity court to determine the question of ownership of the stock carried, Gault Bros. claim that by an arrangement made with the defendants in 1904 they are the owners of a certain portion of the stock, and the court will be called upon to determine this question. Altogether it is an interesting case, and there are prospects of considerable litigation before it is finally disposed of.

ST. JOHN'S STONE CHURCH

Appointed Committee to Consider Names From Which Rector May be Chosen.

The Stone church congregational meeting held last night was attended by a large number of representative members of the congregation. The object of the meeting was to take steps toward securing a successor to the late Rev. John de Soyres. W. M. Jarvis was elected to the chair, and H. J. Smith secretary. The proceedings were opened with prayer by Rev. Joseph Smith, LL. Col. Armstrong read Rev. Dr. Fotheringham's tribute to Rev. Mr. de Soyres, and after briefly referring to the great loss the church had sustained in his death, moved the following resolution:

Resolved, that the congregation of St. John's church, in the parish of St. Mark, in the city of St. John, deeply deploring the loss which they have sustained in the death of their late pastor, the Reverend John de Soyres, M. A., LL. D., hereby adopt and confirm the resolutions of regret passed by the church wardens and vestry in the words following: That they endorse the action of the vestry in taking charge of the funeral, in arranging for the attendance thereof of the daughter of Mrs. de Soyres, in agreeing to pay to the widow the salary which had been lived would have been due to the rector to the end of the present fiscal year, and in undertaking the providing of a lot in Fernhill cemetery, wherein his remains may rest. That they also approve the action of the vestry in the appointment of a committee to consider the advisability of erecting a monument on said lot, and the placing in the church of a memorial tablet, the expense of which several undertakings which have been carried out, and such of them as may be carried out, to be borne by the church corporation; and they heartily recommend the action of the ladies of the congregation in undertaking the placing of a window in the church as a further memorial for our late pastor.

This resolution was seconded by Mayor White and passed unanimously. There was considerable discussion as to the size and personality of the committee which the chairman announced should be appointed to consider names from which a pastor would be selected by the congregation.

Finally the following resolution, moved by Mayor White and seconded by H. D. McLeod, was passed:

Resolved, that a committee of twelve members from the qualified voters of the congregation be elected for the purpose of considering names to be submitted to a meeting of the congregation.

L. P. D. Tilley wanted a committee of twenty-four appointed, twelve to be qualified voters and six from the ladies' societies and six from the young men's organizations. This amendment was defeated by a vote of 29 to 3.

James F. Robertson then moved, seconded by Mayor White, that the Women's Auxiliary and the young men's societies each have the power to elect six members to act with the committee of twelve. This resolution was carried.

A ballot was taken, which resulted in the following being elected members of the committee: Thos. McAvity, Wm. Downie, W. M. Jarvis, Mayor White, H. C. Tilley, J. R. Armstrong, G. E. Fairweather, D. C. Clinch, R. B. Emerson, H. D. McLeod, A. H. Hanington and F. W. Daniel. Thos. McAvity received the highest number of votes and was declared the convener of the committee. The scrutineers were L. W. Kay and A. G. Burnham.

The question of securing locum tenens is now under consideration by the vestry. It is necessary to elect a rector within six months.

St. John Streets and How They Got Their Names.

St. John has a greater wealth of historic suggestion in its street nomenclature than any other city on the continent. To the reflective mind the names of the streets of the original part of the city call up all those exciting historic scenes for which the eighteenth century was so characteristic. It must be remembered that St. John is a child of the American revolution. It was founded by men whose love of country was so great that they sacrificed all for home under the old flag whose honor had been so vigorously maintained by their forefathers. Having left everything for the sake of their loyalty, it is not surprising that the loyalists should commemorate the great names and events of their time in the street names of the newly formed city. Intensely loyal as they were to the person of the king they honored him and his family in every way, and this is why so many of the streets in the older part bear names suggestive of loyalty.

The older part of the city—from Sheffield to Union streets—was for a short time called Paratown, in honor of Gov. Parr. It is suggested that this was in compliance with a request of the governor's esteemed wife. The name did not find any response in the hearts of the people at that time, was not a popular governor—and after a brief period of about a year the town became generally known as St. John—every school boy knows why.

The loyalists landed at what is now Market Square—this was for a long time known as the Public Landing. The first houses were built near the Public Landing, but back of Prince William street.

Water street was not known in the early days. It was reclaimed from the sea since Prince William street was named. Water street is really St. John street, but is called Water street by common consent, owing to its proximity to the water.

Prince William street was named in honor of William, Duke of Clarence, son of George III. He was born in 1765. He spent his early life in the navy and had the misfortune to ascend the throne of England in very troublous times. One of the burning questions of St. John civic politics at the present time, was the question of parliamentary representation. The rank in the population of England had become so ridiculous results in their boroughs. Some with large populations were not represented at all, while ancient, but decayed boroughs had a representation of six or seven or even one elector, still returned members. One borough—Old Sarum—had been almost completely deserted, but there was one elector left, the keeper of an alehouse, who elected two members to represent him in the house of commons. These members were frequently sarcastically referred to in the house as "the honorable gentlemen representing the crabs and fishes."

This could not stand, even in conservative England. William Cobbett did a great deal by his vigorous writing to bring about the change which came in 1832. He was the first to digress here to remark that this same William Cobbett was in St. John, in the 6th regiment in barracks on Port Howe Hill, in 1782. "How high that Cobbett began the serious study of the English language of which he became so great a master, and not far from that time will be made by the fact that even in his later life he was a member of the house of commons."

William IV's reign is not to be remembered after the fact of Prince William, Duke of Clarence, who was in honor of the king. It was in this reign that the political names Conservatives and Liberals came into general use. The really great event of William IV's reign was the abolition of slavery throughout the British dominion. The Union Jack from that day forth stood for the right of the subject regardless of race or religion, color or creed.

Canterbury street was not named after the Archbishop of Canterbury, but has its reference to that great See in England. It was named in honor of one of New Brunswick's governors—Viscount Canterbury, who was the first Thomas Manners-Sutton. Manners-Sutton was elected to the house of commons in 1833, but was unseated for bribery. In 1834 he was returned for Canterbury, and held the position of under secretary of the home department, under Sir Robert Peel. In the general election of 1837 he was defeated, and never sat in the commons again. He was appointed lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick in 1854, which position he retained until 1857. After he left New Brunswick he was governor of Trinidad and Victoria. In 1861 he became Viscount Canterbury and took his seat in the house of lords. He died in 1877. Cernian street commemorates the life of Lord George Sackville, 1716-1782. It is interesting to note why he was called Cernian. Lady Elizabeth Germain was the second daughter of the Earl of Berkeley. The Duchess of Marlborough wrote of her in 1738, "mywithstanding the great wealth of the Berkeley family, she married an innkeeper's son." The duchess was not content with giving the fact she felt should explain the young lady's choice, and she adds with that mischievous pleasure so characteristic of the feminine mind when dealing with a sister: "She was very ugly, and without a position." The young man was Sir John Germain, and she was his second wife. She was many years younger than her husband, but their union was happy owing to her good sense. They had three children who died in infancy. Germain left her the Drayton estate and a vast fortune he had inherited from his first wife. He requested her, on his death bed, to marry a young man and raise up heirs for their great wealth, but if not he expressed the wish that at her death the property should go to Lionel, the youngest son of the daughter of his friend and companion-in-arms in the Dutch war, Lieut-General Colyear. Lady Germain lived a widow for fifty years and left the Drayton estate and $100,000 to Lionel, who became Lord George Germain, and later Viscount Sackville.

Charlotte street was first called Studholme and was no doubt so named in honor of Major Studholme, who was at St. John in the early part of the century. He was an official letter of the "Town on the east side of St. John harbor."

The loyalist mind could not brook this foreign sounding name, and with all deference to the memory of the major, changed it to Charlotte in honor of Queen Charlotte, the royal consort of George III.

Sydney street was named in honor of Thomas Townshend, first Viscount Sydney. Sydney's life was full of incident. He was educated at Cambridge whence he graduated M.A. in 1753. In April of the next year, although barely 17 years of age, he was elected to parliament for Wiltshire, Hampshire, which he represented, continuously for 30 years. He held a clerkship of minor importance till 1762, when he was summoned to the office along with several other of Pitt's adherents, who did not satisfy the "king's friends."

In 1763 Townshend was secretary of the treasury, and in 1764 he was appointed Lord North for the levity of his conduct during the American war. "Happen what will," he said, "the noble lord is always ready with his joke."

In 1782 Townshend became secretary of war. For nearly a year he was leader of the house of commons. He made an able speech in defence of the peace made with the American colonies, and some said that he earned on that night the soubriquet of "the noble lord of the peace." He was appointed, able and eloquent though the speech was, it failed to save the government, which a few hours later was defeated. Townshend was created Baron Sydney in 1783.

In the House of Lords Sydney lost much of his force and vigor, but he advanced steadily in the opinion of the house and country. He denounced Lord North for the levity of his conduct during the American war. "Happen what will," he said, "the noble lord is always ready with his joke."

While Sydney had the home department, to which the colonies were then attached, he founded a colony in New South Wales, the town of Sydney, in which is named in his honor. He agreed with Pitt's letter and spoke against his slave regulation bill, but was created Viscount Sydney in 1789 with 2,500 pounds a year. He died in 1800.

Carmarthen street was not named in honor of any Welshman, as has been suggested, but was named in honor of Thomas Osborne, Marquis of Carmarthen, a distinguished politician. Osborne was born in 1631. He was not educated at a university, but travelled considerably and spent some time in Paris. In 1652 he returned to England and made love to a distant cousin, Dorothy Osborne. She repelled his advances with scorn and afterwards married Sir W. Temple. Osborne was not to be so easily cooled in his ardor for the fair ones, and the next year he met with better success in his love making, for he married Lady Bridget Berkeley, daughter of the Earl of Lindsey. In 1667 he was created Viscount Osborne, and was sworn in privy councillor. He became Lord High Treasurer of England the same year, and was for some time the chief advisor of Charles II.

It is said that he was not too scrupulous in his methods of acquiring money. He was very rich. His income was $5,000 and he owed debts to the amount of $50,000. He trafficked in offices and his wife did a good business in the same line. One writer says: "Greedy of wealth and honor, corrupt himself, and a corruptor of others, he did not wholly lack political principle." He did everything to maintain the credit of England, he promoted the marriage of Mary, daughter of the Duke of York, to Prince William of Orange, which took place in 1677. Louis XIV. was very anxious to be assured of Charles II's neutrality in a war in which he was engaged and he had to buy it. This contemptible affair was not approved of by Carmarthen, but he knew of it. His inaction when he knew of such a disgrace prepared him to devote himself to such an extent as to help negotiate a second bribe of $100,000. He tried to shield himself behind the approval of the king, who had written on the letter, "I approve of this letter, C. K." This did not satisfy the commons and he was impeached. He fought a long fight with the commons, but was eventually cast into the Tower for five years.

He was among those who invited William of Orange, and under that king he again gained power. In 1689 he became Marquis of Carmarthen, and he worked hard and successfully to recover the honor he had lost.

He died in 1712, leaving an immense fortune. His real estate was valued at $1,000,000. He was not only a politician, but a man of letters. He wrote a history of the reign of William III, and a history of the reign of George I. He was also a poet and a dramatist.

Wentworth was an excellent public man in almost every particular. Prompt, intelligent and efficient in business, he won the respect of all with whom he came in contact. He did all he could to prevent rebellion when the agitation for rebellion was going on in the American colonies. He was one of the few who joined the loyalists and left the country which had deserted its flag.

Wentworth's habits were expensive. He had a large estate in England, and he advanced steadily in the opinion of the house and country. He denounced Lord North for the levity of his conduct during the American war. "Happen what will," he said, "the noble lord is always ready with his joke."

Pitt street recalls to our mind the great English statesman, William Pitt, and it was in honor of his memory that the street was so named. Pitt was born in 1706, and died in 1804. He was one of the greatest statesmen of his age, and he was a man of great energy and ability. He was a member of the house of commons, and he was a member of the cabinet. He was a man of great energy and ability.

Pitt was an excellent company, cheerful, witty and well bred. He was called to the bar in 1730, June the 12th. At the general election of 1741 he was elected to the house of commons. He was a man of great energy and ability.

the king and the symbols of regal power. Sheffield street was named in honor of Earl Sheffield, John Baker-Holroyd. The "king's" part of his name was changed in 1783 in recognition of the vast amount of property he inherited from his mother. The next year he bought Sheffield Place, in Sussex, for £120,000. He raised and maintained a regiment of Light dragoons which did good service in the Lord George Gordon riots. In 1789 he was elected M.P. for the county of York.

He was among those who invited William of Orange, and under that king he again gained power. In 1689 he became Marquis of Carmarthen, and he worked hard and successfully to recover the honor he had lost.

SIX ROBBERS HELD UP 12 MEN And Cleaned Out Max Mildenberg's Office, Chicago.

Compelled a Clerk to Open the Safe from Which They Extracted Over Eight Hundred Dollars.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Twelve men have been held up by six robbers in the office of Max Mildenberg, proprietor of the Electric Light, Oil and Gasoline Delivery, Clabourne Place and Hawthorne street. The highwaymen fired several shots as they entered, wounding two persons. They know from another unconscious with a blow from a revolver. Then they took more than $800 and escaped. There were only four men in the office when the robbers entered. Without warning the six robbers appeared and began firing. One man was killed, and Mildenberg dropped to the floor to escape the bullets, but two foremen were struck and slightly wounded. After the shooting the robbers ordered the four men to hold up their hands.

At this point eight of the drivers and fillers who were in a barn at the rear of the office, took more than $800 and escaped. They were only four men in the office when the robbers entered. Without warning the six robbers appeared and began firing. One man was killed, and Mildenberg dropped to the floor to escape the bullets, but two foremen were struck and slightly wounded. THE FRANKLIN EXPEDITION. Death of the Last Survivor Reported From Illinois. (Louisville Courier-Journal) John Calder, died of pneumonia in a modest little home in Mercer county, Illinois. To most people the name means nothing, but the man himself had had a stirring career, and had played a conspicuous part in one of the most daring exploits of the 19th century. He was the last survivor of the crew that sailed for the Arctic regions in search of John Franklin.

Calder was an Englishman, born in 1819. In 1840 he went to sea, and after a cruise around the world he returned to England. About that time an expedition, headed by James Ross, was organized to go in search of Franklin. Calder volunteered to go, and was with the result. In 1850 a second expedition was arranged, and again Calder volunteered.

He was made captain of the foremast of the good ship Investigator. His trip was attended by as severe privations and perils as ever men faced. The vessel was caught and held by icebergs for a year. Calder and his men worked and hoped for her release, but in vain. In 1852 they abandoned the ship and tramped across the ice field to the open sea. Here they left papers to guide any rescue party that might happen to come that way. In the meantime they had run short of food, and had suffered terribly from cold and hunger, many having died of exposure.

At last, in 1854, they were picked up by two vessels, the Resolute and Intrepid, that had been sent in search for them. But they had not sailed 50 miles when the fleet was caught in an ice foe. After a year of suffering they stayed there. In the summer of 1855 the ships were abandoned and the luckless adventurers made their way to the open sea. Calder and his men found them there and took them back to England. Calder had been absent two years. For his pluck and his men government presented to him two gold medals.

Such was the life of John Calder in his story days. In his old age he lived modestly and quietly in Illinois. In 1855 his little band of men was talked of and lauded in all parts of the globe. In 1895 his name had been forgotten.

SPORTING. The Ring.

The year just ended has been a comparatively quiet one in the athletic world. With the exception of the rise of Battling Nelson, who in 1903 was barely known outside of his own district, and the defeat of Frankie Neil for the world's bantam title by Joe Bowker of England, there was nothing of much moment.

Only one title changed hands—the bantam—transferred from Neil to Bowker. The lightweight title is technically held on a fool. It has been said that Gans cannot get to this weight again, and Britt is therefore the rightful owner of the honors. But the fact must be demonstrated in a public fight before the admirers of the clever negro will admit that Gans is not the head of the lightweight class.

The featherweight title is in abeyance. There is not particular fighter who has any claim to it at this stage. Abe Attell has been mentioned as the real premier in this division, now that the championship has passed from Terry McGovern. Young Corbett never was the featherweight champion, neither was Britt, who whipped Corbett in turn. So it is a difficult problem to state positively who was the rightful owner. The only way the question can be answered, critics think, is by picking out the best men who can get to 122 pounds for a series of bouts, the winner of the final contest to be declared the champion.

As to the welterweight class, Joe Walcott, looked upon as the head for many years, is out of it because of an injured hand. Walcott never has been beaten for the title at the exact weight he has. He was whipped by Kid Carter and others, it is true, but the conditions at which these scraps were decided never involved the championship honors. Most of these encounters were fought at catchweights. There is not much interest in this class anyway. It was formed mostly to fill the gap between lightweight and middleweight, because the scale between the two divisions was too wide to permit a mill to be decided in any degree of equality.

Tommy Ryan's lightweight championship was not in danger during 1904 because "Tommy's" Tommy was not called upon to defend it against any good man. Ryan fought considerably, but most of his opponents, with the exception of Jack O'Brien and Jack Root, were inferior men. In his opinion with O'Brien in Philadelphia, which was only six rounds, Ryan had a narrow escape. And in his mill with Root, he was defeated. Ryan lost what reputation he had by indulging in a bout that many have stamped as a fake of the first water.

The big title—the heavyweight championship—which every ambitious striving man with pugilistic aspirations strives for, has not changed hands. Jim Jeffries still remains the king. No one has thus far been able to take the glory away from him. Jack Munroe, the burly miner, who has the physique and height sufficient to move down a few pounds to meet it, has not been able to do so. He has not been forced to defend his title often. Jeffries has been all ways struggling to meet all comers; but unfortunately there has been no one in his class worthy of his skill, at least just now. Perhaps this assertion may be qualified in the case of Jack Johnson, the negro; but the champion has positively drawn the color line, and there you are. There are a few heavyweights in the field—Sam Ferguson, Marvin Hart, etc., but to attempt to match them against Jeffries at the present time may result in another farce such as the Munroe fight. The figures just now as the superior of any heavyweight now in harness because of his massive frame, height, weight, strength and undisciplined cleverness.

Bob Fitzsimmons has not done any grueling during 1904. His bout with Jack O'Brien at Philadelphia was the only serious contest he engaged in. In that affair the Cornishman showed that he is far from being a back number, because during the latter part of the fight he was able to hold his own, and might have knocked the crack Quaker athlete out had the contest proceeded a couple of rounds further. Before the contest all the efforts during the year to the stage. From a talking point of view Corbett was busy giving out interviews to the newspapers of his post death and his future intentions whenever he had the chance. And at this game, it may be said Corbett has no peer. Tom Sharkey had one fight in public with Jack Munroe at Philadelphia.

The little fellows were active—Young Corbett, Harry Forbes, Terry McGovern, Tommy Murphy of Hazleton, Battling Nelson, Jimmy Britt, Joe Gans, Hughey McGovern, Eddie Hanlon, Jack Blackburn of Philadelphia, Danny Doherty, Frankie Neil, Pedro Delmar, Ben Jordan, Abe Attell, Aurelia Herrera, the Mexican; Monte Attell, Dave Holly, Buddy Ryan, Billy Melody, Johnny Burdick, Willie Lewis, Martin Carole, Jimmy Briggs, Kid Murphy, all figuring in many mills.

Miss Lou Girvan, of Hampton, is spending a few days with friends in St. John.

"HAD HIM TRIMMED."

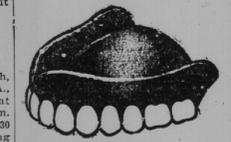

A student of a Boston commercial school purchased a scholarship in the Currie Business University, Limited. After one week at the course, he said to the principal: "You've got me trimmed, sir. I could beat the Boston course; but cribbing don't go here. This is the real thing." The principal smiled.

The institution claims to have a commercial course which cannot be purchased elsewhere, and the management challenges any school to produce a graduate without experience to compete with theirs.

IS NOT INSANE.

Frank Keenan, who was taken in charge by the police on Thursday night was examined by Coroner Berryman, who says he is not insane, and consequently will not advise that he be sent to the asylum. Under these circumstances Chief Clerk says he will not hold Keenan any longer and that if the latter's friends do not look after him he will at once liberate him.
