BEBE KNOWS ALL.
Continued.

PLEASE say no more now. Give me the address, and, for your own sake, say nothing to any one that you are not—my wife. Call me Lilford before your servants—you will do that, Bebe?

'Yes.'
'Thank you.' I will send Philippe to remain with you until my return. He hesitated a moment, looked at her long and hungrily, then, without a word, his whitened face giving evidence of the struggle in his heart, he left the room.

In the hall below Etienne Millet joined him.
'How is she?' inquired the Frenchman eagerly.
'Better, thank you. I must beg your pardon. In my anxiety for her I had forgotten you, even after the great service you rendered us.'

'It is nothing. Can I be of any use?'
'No, I thank you, unless you can tell me where the nearest cable office is.'
'I will go with you, if you will allow me.'

Loyd-Lostyn took his hat, and, with his new friend, went into the street. At the door of the cable office they parted, Millet with the invitation to call that he had sought.
'I am afraid I was ungrateful and ungenerous to you a while ago,' Bebe exclaimed to Loyd-Lostyn, when he returned to tell her the cable had gone. 'Will you forgive me. You have been so good, but I am very miserable.'

'I understand, poor little girl. You must not distress yourself about me. There is nothing that I would not do to insure your happiness, even to the giving up of my life.'
'You love me like that?'
The sweet, blind eyes were filled with tears, the lips trembled piteously. He hesitated for a moment, then answered:

'I can find no words to tell you. You are my restored honor, the life of my life, the soul of my soul. I am not fit to touch you, and all I ask is to be your slave. I want you to marry me for your sake, not mine. Listen, Bebe! You have been with me beneath my roof for months, surrounded only by the servants who believed you to be my wife, yet loving you as I do I have never kissed your lips. You have asked me to do so, believing me to be your father, yet never once did I take advantage of your sweet trust. Is not self-repression the greatest evidence of love, Bebe?'
'You are the only one who ever loved me!' she cried, unable to conceal the retrospective agony of her heart. 'The only one! Oh, God, what am I to do?'
The reply she would have made was prevented by a knock. A cable was placed in his hand.
Aloud he read:
'LOYD MOSTYN, RUE—Paris.
'Lansing and sister left weeks ago. No address.'
'MELTON.'

Mechanically he paid for it, then turned to Bebe.
She still sat upon the chair where he had left her, pale as the marble Psyche beside her. He went to her and took her hand.
'My darling,' he whispered tenderly, 'what shall you do?'
'What can I do?' she cried miserably, hoarsely. 'You alone can answer now. Remember that my honor, my soul, my life are in your hands. I am blind and helpless. May God deal with you as you wish me!'

CHAPTER XXXVI.
A FRESH MYSTERY.

AT the time of Edwin Childe's advent into France, a certain part of that country was in a state of considerable confusion. The third republic had been proclaimed, with General Trochu at its military head. The army was deplorably situated.
One half was lying in Metz and almost the whole of the other half either prisoners at Sedan or destroyed.

'It was, therefore, with almost open arms that the Americans, Erle Childes, as he had determined to call himself in future—Meredith Lansing, and Charlie Quintard, were welcomed.
Miss Beaufort, under the name of Soeur Mathilde, was put in charge of a small private hospital, and administered with the tenderness of a yearning and breaking heart to the sufferers and of the wounded.
Erle Childes' first engagement won for him the thanks of General Trochu in the presence of the army; his gallant conduct in the second bringing him the decoration of the Legion of Honor, and command of a regiment.

It was immediately after this well-earned recognition that he ventured to call upon Miss Beaufort for the first time.
In her black gown, with white apron and cap, strangely becoming to the high-bred face, she received him in her little poorly furnished parlor, her sweet, clear eyes filling with tears as they were lifted to his handsome, flushed face.
What man ever looks so well in the eyes of the woman who loves him as in the uniform of a soldier?
Erle Childes had never seemed like a god to her before, yet she had loved him all those years. 'I have come for your congratulations, Soeur Mathilde,' he said simply, as he held her hand.
'I am very proud of you,' she answered gently, touching the medal upon his breast. 'There is so much in my heart that I could never say it to you in words. When you told me at Mansfield that you intended to join the army, my single thought was for your safety. I think I should have been glad to have seen France engulfed in the Channel, but you have taught me to live for better things than selfishness. Oh, I wish that I, too, might fight for France. If only I might mould my life with the nobility of yours.'

'Duchess, don't!' he cried, passing his hand across his eyes. 'Can't you see that my whole life is given up to clearing my soul of the crime I committed in the telling of a cruel lie? Oh, Duchess, what have I made of your existence?'
'Hush, please, hush! We were never to speak of that again, you know. I might have been the happiest woman upon earth to-day but for my stubborn pride. I have been justly punished, Erle, most justly.'
'You break my heart. You take the blame when it all belongs to me, all! You think you might have forgiven me now, because there is an eternal barrier between us, but were it removed the remembrance of my deception would come to you with cruel force. You would remember that my brother was hanged for murder, and that I was suspected of being his accomplice. Ah, no, Duchess! The shadow of murder has darkened my life for years, and must go on doing so to the end.'

'You are bitterly cruel, but I deserve it. Do you think that I believe that of you? Why, if you declared your guilt with your own lips I should say you were dreaming or—murder and God-like nobility do not dwell in the same heart, Erle. You have given me a pattern for my life. We shall see how closely I can follow it.'

'Duchess?'
'Much as my own folly has caused me to suffer I do not regret my life. Ah, Erle, it is wrong, wicked, but I know that your heart is mine! I know that, magnificent as your soul is, noble as are your acts, love for me has drawn them out; and, wicked, good for the complexion and at night are supposed to be quieting. Their digestibility if served mashed, surpasses nearly all other vegetables. A delicate stomach will get away with them when other vegetables would work harm.'

'Much as my own folly has caused me to suffer I do not regret my life. Ah, Erle, it is wrong, wicked, but I know that your heart is mine! Their digestibility if served mashed, surpasses nearly all other vegetables. A delicate stomach will get away with them when other vegetables would work harm.'

'Duchess, do you know how hard you are making it for me to do my duty?'
'Yes, I know, for I know just how hard it is for me to do mine; but how can I be silent at a time like this? In a few moments you will be gone from me. You are leaving me, and I know how I may be brought through that door wounded, or dead? You are here now, to-morrow you may be in heaven. Do you think that I can see them dying about me, removed a minute after death to make room for another, without realizing the horrible uncertainty? Every time the door is opened to bring in a fresh victim my heart stands still with fear lest it may prove to be you. Erle, cannot you forgive my sin in face of my terrible fear?'
'I forgive you? No, my darling—let me go, Duchess! God knows what may be the result if I remain. I think my own misery makes me mad at times. I cannot restrain myself in your presence, and it is much better that we should not meet.'

The sentence was interrupted by a light tap upon the door followed by the entrance of a little nun in her night-like robes.
'Your pardon, Soeur Mathilde,' she said softly, 'but the wounded soldier who was brought in to-day has heard that Colonel Childes is here, and has requested to see him.'
'Very earnestly Miss Beaufort turned to her visitor.
'You heard!' she exclaimed. 'Will you not go to him?'
'With pleasure.'
With sword clanking behind him, his handsome face pale from the emotion his interview had occasioned, Colonel Childes followed her from the room.

Do You Know Your Ailment?

Or is it a complication which can be reached only by DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

There is only one medicine that can prove thoroughly satisfactory in complicated ailments of the liver and kidneys, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

They begin by regulating the bowels and awakening the action of the liver, thereby effecting a thorough cleansing of the excretory system. By thus removing the poisons from the system they lighten the work of the kidneys and gradually restore them to health.

Nobody who once learns of the definite and certain action of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in regulating and invigorating the kidneys, liver and bowels, is willing to take chances by experimenting with other medicines.

Such ailments as biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion, liver complaint and kidney disease yield readily to this treatment.

Eat More Carrots

'If people did but know it,' said a man who has made a study of the food question, 'carrots are among the most nutritious and delightful vegetables that grow and yet it is almost impossible to get them in the average restaurant.'
'Mashed carrots to my mind make a delightful dish, tasty and healthful.'
Carrots are splendid for the blood, good for the complexion and at night are supposed to be quieting. Their digestibility if served mashed, surpasses nearly all other vegetables. A delicate stomach will get away with them when other vegetables would work harm.

Two Little Children Burned to Death.

OTTAWA, Oct. 24.—Two children of George Tremble, a farmer living four miles from North Gower, one a babe of five weeks and the other a boy of three years, were burned to death on Friday in a fire which destroyed their home.
Three children were alone in the house at the time, Mrs. Tremble having gone to the barn for a few minutes. The baby and the youngest boy were asleep upstairs and the oldest child, a boy of five, was left playing in the kitchen. He found some matches, lit them, and threw them into the wood box, setting the house on fire. Then he ran to tell his mother. By the time she reached the house entrance was impossible. Mr. Tremble arrived a minute later, but the frantic father and mother could do nothing but watch the raging flames. The charred bodies of the two children were later found in the ashes.

New York Press on Crippen Trial.

New York, Oct. 24.—Commenting editorially on the Crippen trial, the Tribune says:—
The celerity with which the English courts have disposed of Crippen cannot fail to be contrasted in many minds with the course which such a case would probably have run here. In England the criminal procedure is admirably direct and simple. The court tries to get at the facts and does not allow the main issue to be confused with technical and largely irrelevant embroidery. The spirit of the common law is still honored, for it was the intention of that law to get a common sense judgment on the evidence presented, and not to turn the ascertainment of guilt or innocence into an elaborate technical battle between hair-splitting lawyers and speculative expert witnesses dealing with hypotheses, not with facts.

It can easily be imagined that if Dr. Crippen had been tried here and had been able to raise a sufficient defence fund, his lawyers would have been able to parallel the discreditable manoeuvres of the Thaw trials. Our criminal cases are conducted more with a view to encouraging sophistication and sharp practice than to striking a just balance between guilt and innocence. A simplification of our procedure is greatly needed.
'Conducted in Masterly Way.'
The Times says:—
The trial in London of Hawley H. Crippen for the murder of his wife was conducted in a masterly way, with the dignity that should pertain to all criminal courts, and with expedition. It began last Tuesday and ended yesterday, with the conviction of the prisoner and the pronouncement of the sentence. He will be hanged within three weeks. There is no likelihood of an appeal, less likelihood that a motion of prisoner's counsel to suspend sentence will be entertained. Under the best laws in the world, and the best enforced, Crippen had a fair trial, and there is no doubt that jury found him guilty strictly on the evidence.

The Lord Chief Justice presided at the trial, which was a model of its kind, and vastly different from the protracted and "sensational" murder trials so common in this country.

Old England's New Heavyweight.

London, October 25.—At last England has a heavyweight who can fight.
Bombardier Wells is the heavy, and while he could not at this time wrest Jack Johnson's laurels from him, he is an exceptionally good man, as his victory over Sergt. Sunshine proves.
Wells is 22, and weighs but 183 pounds. As he stands 6ft. 2½ inches, he is lathy in appearance, but he has a frame which will fill out, and with his reach of 79½ inches, a wallop in either hand and considerable natural skill as a boxer, he is really the most promising looking thing the heavyweight brigade has produced in many months.

Wells lacks experience. In beating Sunshine he defeated the most formidable man England could send against him, for Sunshine but recently won from Ian Hague.
Wells played with Sunshine for two rounds, but in the third Sunshine whipped a right hook to the jaw, which he never would have landed had Wells not grown careless. But he did place it, and Wells took nine before he arose. In the nine seconds he recuperated in a way that spoke volumes for his condition. Four times he was dropped in this round, but gameness and stamina carried him through, and the gong saved him. He was carried to his corner unconscious, revived and came back for the fourth, through which he managed to stall. In the fifth he had almost recovered his normal condition, and in the sixth put Sunshine to sleep with an uppercut that sounded like a pistol shot and kept Sunshine out for ten minutes.

The Wells-Sunshine bout was the first of Hugh McIntosh's so-called "elimination" series to find England's best heavyweight. Wells will be matched with Bill Lang, if McIntosh's plans are carried out, and if he wins he will meet Tommy Burns, then Al Kaufman and other American heavyweights. If his performances result in victories he will in a couple of years challenge Johnson, providing the pace the champion is traveling does not end in his defeat by someone else.

Wells won the heavyweight championship of the army in India, and sought his discharge. He came to England a few weeks ago to follow the fighting game. He put Private Smith to sleep in three rounds before meeting Sunshine. All of Wells' fights have been won with knockouts, and critics say that with his gameness proven, all he needs to become a great fighter is the coaching and experience, to be gained in successive battles.

Mission Services.

Yesterday was Mission Sunday in the Methodist Churches and addresses were delivered by eminent preachers from Canada. At Gower Street in the morning the pastor Rev. Dr. Cowdrey presided over the service. The congregation stood while the organist played the Dead March in Saul in memory of the Rev. William Kendall, Rev. Mr. Marshall presiding in the afternoon. There was a joint meeting of the Sunday Schools of Gower St. and Cochrane Street. At night Mr. Sidney Woods presided over the missionary meeting, which was addressed by Rev. Dr. Hartwell, who comes from missionary work in China, and the Rev. Mark Fenwick, the representative of Newfoundland on the Mission Board at Toronto. Special anthems were rendered.

At George Street, the Rev. Dr. Stephenson, Secretary of the Young People's Forward Movement presided, and Mr. H. V. Tuff gave a solo. In the afternoon, former pastor, Rev. George J. Bond, and the Rev. Dr. Stephenson addressed the teachers and children of George St. and Wesley Sunday Schools. A missionary meeting was held at night presided over by Dr. Grenfell and addressed by the Rev. Mr. Bond on his work in China and the Far East. Mrs. King was soloist.

Yesterday's services at Cochrane Street Church were most interesting. In the morning the Rev. Dr. Hartwell, returned missionary from China, gave a most interesting account of the work there, and showed conclusively the great need of the church home making every effort so that the present opportunity in China may be availed of to the utmost. In the evening Rev. Dr. Marshall, Superintendent of Missions for the Maritime provinces, gave a most earnest and practical discourse, setting forth the claims of the work and the responsibility with regard to the work which lies upon everyone claiming to be a Christian. His sermon was most timely, and appealed very strongly to the large congregation who were present. The choir sang "Abide With Me" at the morning service, and in the evening "At Eventide the Sun was Set." At the offertory last night Miss Herder sang "Abide With Me." Her full rich tones filled the church and gave much pleasure to the congregation.

At Wesley Church in the morning, the Rev. G. Bond made a powerful missionary appeal and at night the Rev. Dr. Stephenson was chief speaker. Mr. C. H. Hutchings presided.

Funerals Yesterday.

Two funerals which were largely attended took place yesterday at the General Protestant Cemetery. The first was that of Rev. Wm. Kendall, whose remains were placed near those of his devoted wife, who departed 5 years ago. The service at the graveside was very impressive and was taken by Revs. J. W. Bartlett, J. K. Curtis, H. P. Cowperthwaite, D.D., W. H. Browning, Mark Fenwick and F. R. Matthews, B. A. The service was very solemn and sad and moved many of the friends of the deceased clergyman to tears.

Just a half an hour after the interment of the deceased clergyman, the remains of the late Mrs. J. N. Johnstone were brought into the churchyard, and laid at rest in the family plot of the late James Gordon, her deceased father. The service was conducted by Rev. J. S. Sutherland of St. Andrew's Church, and several who were present at the funeral of the Rev. Wm. Kendall remained for the obsequies of Mrs. Johnstone, whose sad death many in the city deplore.

McMurdo's Store News

MONDAY, Oct. 31, 1910. To-day will ever be memorable in the annals of our country as the day of the opening of the first Manufacturers' and General Agricultural Exhibition, one of the first fruits of the new National Policy. A similar policy—that of growing products of its own people, and using goods of its own manufacture has largely contributed to making the United States the great nation it is. Our resources for the size of the country, are not less great, and if the general public of the country realize that they can produce first class manufactured articles, and patronize home made goods, Newfoundland will be richer by many thousands of dollars yearly. Our stalls will show specimens of the finest toilet preparations, Baking Powder, and Essences locally made and we expect a boom in them in consequence of the Exhibition.

Officers Elected.

A largely attended meeting of the Star of the Sea Society was held yesterday afternoon when the election of officers took place and resulted as follows:— President, E. M. Jackman; Vice-President, J. T. Martin; 1st Asst., J. J. Holden; 2nd Asst., J. J. Vinnicombe; Ass't. Treasurer, J. Marshall; Secretary, W. F. Graham; Marshall, T. Melville; 1st Insurance Trustee, J. Byrne; 2nd Insurance Trustee, J. Kelly. All were re-elected except Mr. J. Lacey.

Furlong temptingly display on their shelves a variety of cakes, pastries, cookies of all kinds, temperance drinks and aerated waters, and their well stocked booth shows what can be done in the culinary art by local chefs. Upstairs in the building they have allotted to them handsome dining rooms with a fully equipped kitchen, and afternoon teas and dinners will be served by the Messrs. G. C. MACKINSON.

In a compact and neatly decorated booth Mr. Geo. C. Mackinson displays the excellent butter for which his factory at the Conche near Hazelton is noted. The decorations of the booth are in blue and white, which the many electric lights set about greatly enhance. The butter made in the factory is of a very superior kind, such as Jersey, creamery and other excellent brands, and the exhibits are put up in nice tubs of various sizes, in prints, cubes and glass jars, and there again the both piles of this product put up in 1 lb. prints, which present an excellent appearance. A young lady is in attendance on the booth and will serve the butter on biscuits, so that visitors may have the opportunity of testing its excellent qualities.

THE F. B. WOOD CO.

Exhibits the goods turned out at their big factory on Hamilton Street in a very pretty booth 15 feet square and showing a frontage of 28 feet. Mr. Barker, the genial and enterprising manager, may well be proud of it. The erection is done in lattice work and is arched in front, the arches being outlined in frosted incandescent lights with the name of the Company and its trade mark emblazoned above. The shelves contain a great variety of all kinds of confectionery from the very lowest to the very highest in value. The exhibits are arranged artistically in bottles, buckets and glass covered frames, with one variety design in all kinds of chocolates, caramels and bon-bons. Innumerable varieties of colored sticks, surfaced almonds and the different kinds of wafers goods are shown and the shelves of both wings are composed of jams, syrups, aerated waters, &c., syphons of soda waters, and lemonade form a pretty trimming around the tops of the shelves, and a little machine, the principal flywheel of which makes 6,000 revolutions per minute, grinds out candy while you wait. This candy will be given gratis to spectators who wish to partake of it.

A. J. HARVEY & CO.

Harvey's biscuits are found the Island over, their quality being excellent, and the pretty booth assigned to them at the exposition cannot but add to their attractiveness in the public mind. The booth in which they are exhibited has an oblong form and a wide open entrance in front and also an entrance at the western side. The roof has a bell shaped appearance and the predominant colors are white and blue, relieved by red. The booth is bordered by electric lights, and the 60 different kinds of fancy biscuits manufactured by the Company are tastefully displayed on the shelves in boxes of standard size and cartons neatly labelled. The plain biscuits are shown in ten different varieties, and excellent exhibitions of the breads made at the bakeries are also shown, including butter, &c., and form a most interesting display. Besides this, Messrs. Harvey & Co. make an excellent display of butter turned out at their factory on Forest Road, and the booth is one which none should miss seeing.

Agricultural Exhibition.

This Exhibition is being held at the Curling Rink, alongside the Prince's Rink, and is under the management of the St. John's Agricultural Society. The Curling Rink is a building 155 x 70 feet, and its interior presents a very attractive appearance. The pillars, beams and girders have all been covered and festooned with pink, white and green cheese cloth which is draped down to the show tables in a graceful and like shape giving a very artistic effect.

Entering the door at the east end the visitor sees before him the long stands extending almost the whole length of the Rink covered with all kinds of produce that is raised from the soil of Newfoundland. The stands to the left contain the exhibits of St. John's and vicinity. The benches in the centre are devoted to the fine lot of exhibits sent in from Harbor Grace and Carbonear. In the middle of the Rink, at the west end of this stand, there is a pyramidal stand with four steps containing all the potted flowers that have been sent in. This is a very pretty sight and is much admired by horticulturists. Beyond this stand towards the western end of the building are the stands where the exhibits from St. George's and Trinity are displayed. To the right on the next row of stands there is an attractive selection of the farm products of Twillingate, Port de Grave, Burin, Fortune Bay and Fogo. Beyond the traverse walk on a line with those are the exhibits from Placentia and St. Mary's and Harbor Main Districts. The visitor looking out of the name painted on calico suspended from the girders immediately overhead.

The poultry pens are on the left side of the building—near the wall—and extend the whole length of the building. Under the wall at the right side of the Rink, also, running the whole length of the floor, there are shelves devoted to a special collection from the St. John's Agricultural Society and not in for competition. All kinds of local vegetables and seeds may be seen here, and on the western side of the stand there is a very interesting collection of peat bricks.

hundreds of them sent in from the different districts: there is quite a variety in the quality and shape.

In the left hand corner of the Rink is a pretty little stall fitted up in an attractive manner. It is exclusively devoted to a display of all kinds of cattle feed sent in by local dealers. In the opposite corner is the household in fancy needlework, handmade embroidery of which there is a very fine display. The woolen work including stockings, gloves, mats, jerseys, cushions, quilts, is displayed with striking effect on framework at this end of the building.

Mechanical and freehand drawings from the local School of Art, on the wall along the western end of the building imparting an artistic effect to the surroundings.

The four main avenues along the stands running east and west and the three transverse passages are over six feet wide and afford great facility in moving about and taking in every detail of the Exhibition. The walks are covered with sawdust so as to avoid the dampness that would come from the bare ground, as the Rink is not floored. No detail seems to have been overlooked in order to make the interior of the building as attractive as possible, and the exhibition itself a success. No words that one could use in a description can supply the place of a visit to the Rink as far as getting a correct idea of the exhibition is concerned. The place is well worth a visit and no citizen who takes an interest in agriculture, etc., should fail to go there before the exhibition closes.

The description that we are attempting to give here is for the information of our readers and friends in the outports who have not the opportunity of visiting the exhibition.

Indigestion & Dyspepsia

In all its Forms can be Cured. It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything, I have no heart to exert myself and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. My life seems a veritable burden. Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a Bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at

Put Up To Contract.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—It is reported here that the contract for the steam service between this port and the north side of Bay St. George, which expires this year, is to be renewed with the old contractor without putting same up to public tender. Now, sir, without reflecting in any way on the manner in which the contract has been carried out the past three years, I consider that this important service should be thrown open for public tender, so that those who may be so disposed may have an opportunity for making a bid for the work and giving the public a chance of securing the most efficient service. Considering that all similar work, even the motor service across this harbor, has been let out by public tender, it seems a good deal like a conundrum to many of us here that this important mail and passenger service for nearly the whole of the district, should be assigned in a secret manner. If public opinion be not entirely dead amongst us, it should at once arise and demand a revision of this hole and corner business. Hoping that some able pen than mine will deal with this matter, I remain,

Yours truly, JUSTICE. St. George's, Oct. 27th, 1910.

Schooner on Rocks.

The schooner New Home going to Petty Harbor with a load of provisions ran on Cahill's Rock in the Narrows this morning. Pilots' tug boat, Capt. Furlong and Capt. Gosse, happened to be going out at this time to seek for the S. S. Adventure and the Allan boat. Engineer Ring who was on deck saw the schooner's plight and in quick time the order was given he bore down on the schooner and warped her off in safety, afterwards towing her out to Blackhead. It would have been a serious loss to the owners had there being a sea on, as the cargo was not insured.

Wreckage Found.

D. Chafe and crew of three men visited the scene of the Regulus wreck Saturday evening. Fred Lee fished up an oil jacket and also found a new wooden pipe. A horse chiew went out to search again at noon to-day. There is a report at Petty Harbor that two young men, Stack and Brien, of the place took passage in the s.s. Regulus at Bell Island. This morning a piece of a ship's boat was picked up. It had drifted ashore last night at Staffordside.

Rescued From Drowning.

We learn from men who came from Tilt Cove in the s.s. Prospero that three boys came very near being drowned in the pond there last week. The boat capsized and drifted away from them bottom up. They were left struggling in the water when Mr. J. Rowell, who happened to be passing along the road, heard their cries for help. He swam out with all his clothes on except his boots and coat, and kept the boys afloat till they were rescued in a boat.

Church Parades.

The largest church parade in the history of the C. C. C. was held yesterday when the Corps attended last Mass in the Cathedral. Headed by the new Promotion Co. the Corps lined up 500 strong. After Mass they paraded through the city to the music of their fine band. This brigade and drums Corps were a great addition and the parade evoked the admiration of all who saw it.

The Church Lady Brigade, 350 strong, paraded to St. Thomas's Church at 2:30 p.m. yesterday attending Divine service there. Rev. Canon Dunfield took the service and was assisted by Rev. J. R. Godden. Canon Dunfield delivered an eloquent sermon in the course of which he made touching reference to the Regulus disaster, in which two of the Corps members, H. Goudies and M. McNeil, lost their lives. After the sermon the band rendered the Dead March in Saul, the congregation standing in white. Later the brigade paraded through the city.

Ingraham From Wreck

The tug Ingraham with the divers of the Brilliant and Mr. Piccott on board, got back from the scene of the wreck of the Regulus at 5:30 p.m. Saturday. She was there over four hours but owing to a heavy under-tow the divers could not work. Portions of the ship's wheel and other wreckage were found and the ship is evidently breaking up as considerable woodwork is floating about. It is feared by many that the chances of recovering the bodies are very slim now.

HIGHEST WAGES.

The Adventure, Capt. Couch, arrived here yesterday morning from Sydney with 1,200 tons of coal to A. J. Harvey & Co. She made the run in 38 hours. She had the full benefit of the storm of Sunday week in which the Regulus was lost and all hands. The Adventure came through it without damage.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

I have had everything that life has to offer. And as an abstraction I suppose most of us accept it. But when it comes to the concrete, I don't imagine there are many of us who don't look longingly at those who have wealth or beauty or talent, or whatever is to us the most desirable thing, and sigh out, "How happy they must be."

"But the only happiness I have known has been in anticipation—in a n t i c i p a t i o n of the things that I expected to bring happiness—and that did not."

Such is the recently published statement of a young woman in the prime of life and health, called by many critics "the most beautiful woman in the world," possessed of a magnificent talent, and plentifully supplied with all the good things that come out of the feshpots of Egypt.

In other words, the grand opera singer, Lina Cavalieri.

There are just forty-eight words in that statement, and yet it appeals to me as one of the greatest and most thought-provoking essays on the nature of happiness that has been published for many years.

It seems to me that if any discontented person who reads this, provided his discontent comes from dissatisfaction with his equipment, his possessions or his opportunities, and is not the divine discontent of aspiration, would cut out that confession of Cavalieri's and paste it where he can see it daily, that might help some.

The preachment that happiness is more a state of mind than a matter of possession or position, is so familiar as to be almost a bromide. And as an abstraction I suppose most of us accept it. But when it comes to the concrete, I don't imagine there are many of us who don't look longingly at those who have wealth or beauty or talent, or whatever is to us the most desirable thing, and sigh out, "How happy they must be."

All this doesn't mean, of course, that wealth and talent and beauty and the feshpots aren't things to be desired.

Nor that they are incompatible with happiness.

But just that they aren't sure to bring happiness.

Just that it is possible for one who has none of them to break bread daily with that much wooed but very shy lady—Happiness—and for one who has them all, to pass his life in the courting of her and never catch a glimpse of anything but her pale ghost—Anticipation.

I'm sorry for Cavalieri. I'm sorry that, with no apparent external barrier between her and happiness, there seems to have been something within herself that makes it impossible for her to find it.

But she surely has not suffered in vain, if, through her confession, those of us who are apt to fancy that if we had this or that or the other thing we would be "perfectly happy," may realize anew and with a twentieth century application, the old truth that

"A MAN'S LIFE CONSISTETH NOT IN THE ABUNDANCE OF THINGS WHICH HE POSSESSETH."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe remedy in any condition of the system. THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of known composition. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either mistaken or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most priceless possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

Household Notes.

A bottle containing lime water and linsed oil, equal parts, is always kept in my cookroom, as if it is applied directly after a burn, it will keep the skin from blistering, and allay all pain.

It is a wise plan to shrink a woolen or mohair braid before putting it on one's skirt. Then if the skirt is wet, there is no danger of the braid shrinking the garment in an unsightly manner.

Make a practice of emptying the dishpan, as well as the tea or coffee pot, into a strainer rather than into the sink. Then the contents of the strainer may be easily emptied into the refuse pail.

Keep a skewer or orangewood stick at hand near the kitchen sink. When washing a cooking utensil that is seamed or grooved, run the skewer around to take out any foodstuffs in the crevices.

When broiling a slice of ham recently rubbed brown sugar on it before it broiled it and found the ham when cooked had the same delicious flavor as baked ham prepared the same way.

Before leaving the summer cottage paint the stove, the flatirons and the window and door screens with boiled linseed oil, putting on a generous coat. Next year they will show no sign of rust.

A turquoise which has lost its blue color and becomes green may be restored by being soaked in pure alcohol for two weeks and dried carefully for a week. If the color changes again, repeat.

A bag made of burlap is very useful in the house where homemade ice cream is served often. Crack the ice in the bag and mix the ice with a third its bulk of salt before putting it in the freezer.

PROOF in the MORNING!

We tell you about how good you'll feel after taking a CASCARET—that millions of people—buy, use and recommend them—But that's talk—you buy a box now—take as directed—night and get the proof in the morning—After you know CASCARETS you'll never be without them.

CASCARETS 10c a box for a week's treatment, all druggists. Biggest seller in the world. Million boxes a month.

Bequeathed a Million.

But Had Only $100.

Boston, Oct. 25.—Believing himself a beneficiary to the extent of one million dollars in the will of a rich man in New York, whose name is not disclosed, Miss Cora Johnson, who died here a few days ago, left a will disposing of such property, although being possessed herself of but $100 at her death. Miss Johnson, of whom little is known, makes several public bequests of $5,000 each to hospitals and homes, but leaves half million in trust for the benefit of Charles Ward Holbrook, son of Henry W. Holbrook of Newton, Mass., the boy to receive the principal at the age of 25 years.

Notes From Bell Island.

There passed peacefully away on Tuesday evening, after a lingering illness, at the age of 21, Clarence Hiram W. Bartlett, second eldest son of Capt. Isaac Bartlett. The deceased young man had been going to sea for a number of years, and in the early part of the spring came to work at carpentry for the D. I. & S. Co. He contracted a severe cold which developed into consumption. His funeral, which took place on Thursday, was largely attended. Services were held in the church and at the grave by the Rev. W. C. Booth. We extend our deepest sympathy with the bereaved parents in the loss of a bright young man.

Both mining companies are now working in full swing, filling orders before navigation closes in the Gulf.

What about our roads, especially the new road leading to the mines? Now, as the wet season has come along, the people who do their business on the main street of the Island are still walking on the track. If one of those cars break loose from their grips, and if any one is passing along at the time, they will surely be killed on the spot, in spite of the notices put up by the companies warning them not to go on the track. Last week's Roadmaster Kelly did part of Main Street for a paltry sum of fifty dollars, and a clever job was done for that amount of money. We hear that there are four hundred and fifty dollars left to be spent on the roads, and because a dispute has arisen with the Road Board, the Chairman has decided to keep the money back. By what authority can he do so? If the money was sent here to be spent, why wasn't it done? If he was not able to do the work, why didn't he put it into some one's hands able to do the work? Now, Mr. Editor, 'tis time for our present Government to be up and going, and let our roads be put in a better condition than they are at present, especially the new road leading to the mines. They can get all the gravel and ashes from the companies, who are willing to get clear of it, or else throw them over the cliffs, and let us have one decent road to walk in to get to prayers of a Sunday morning.

Managers McDougall and Butler arrived by the s.s. Mary on inspection of the D. I. & S. Co. mines. Both are well pleased with the operations and the work done during the past summer.

A petition for the release of two Jaronites, who are now serving a term in the penitentiary for wounding another, has been largely signed by the residents of the Island, and we hope that His Excellency Sir Ralph Williams will show his sympathy with these poor men, whose conduct whilst in prison is the best of its kind.

The s.s. Mary arrived on Tuesday evening with a load of dynamite for the D. I. & S. Co., consisting of 500 cases. Owing to the number of steamers and schooners discharging at the pier, she had to lay off in the stream flying the danger flag.

What about the vacancy to be filled in place of the late lamented T. P. O'Donnell, Esq.? Surely our Government must be very slow in filling such an important position. There is a large number of cases waiting to be adjudicated upon, and the public is anxiously waiting for some person to fill the vacancy.

If our Government has anything to do with a society called Cruelty to Animals, we would like the members of the society to make a visit to the Island and see for themselves the miserable state of Beach Hill Road. It is something good to see a horse hauling three or four barrels of flour on the level of our bad roads; but to see them hauling one barrel over the hill, or a wagon with two persons in it, is somewhat a disgrace to the public eye or an outside visitor who has sympathy with dumb animals. If the horse could speak, as in the days of old, "Am I not thine horse, and support of thy family?" he would surely speak to the Government on the condition of the roads.

The s.s. Ellen arrived on Friday night, having on board the Dominion footballers, who are returning from their visit to the Sydney Mines. Although making several draws with the Sydneyites our heroes came back, but not defeated.

THE EXHIBITION.

This afternoon His Excellency the Governor opens an Exhibition which should do much to make folks realize what is being done in Newfoundland and which gives an earnest of the great possibilities of the future. Over a quarter of a century ago an exhibition was set up by the late Archdeacon Botwood. The exhibits consisted mainly of family relics, heirlooms, historical curiosities and national history specimens of Newfoundland. People were very pleased with it and the exhibition was considered very creditable. It was impossible, however, to show local handicrafts, wares and manufactures such as those exhibited now in the Prince's Rink. They were mostly manufactured here at that time. They are now and folks can see them and have an opportunity of realizing the immense strides which local industries have made since Archdeacon Botwood's Exhibition. The brilliant lighting of the Rink themselves calls to mind the partial utilization of the water power of the country for industrial and economical purposes during that time. The harnessing of the water flowing into Petty Harbor was the first big attempt made in Newfoundland to take advantage of the great principle of conservation of energy and to transform the working force of moving water into electricity which can be easily transmitted to convenient spots and re-transformed either into light, heat, or mechanical energy to run a linotype, a printing press, pulp machinery or paper machinery. What was at first done on a small scale at Petty Harbor is now being done on a much greater scale at Grand Falls, and preparations are much advanced for the utilization of the same water in the same way at Bishop Falls. Here in the Exhibition is to be seen a model of the mills at Grand Falls, and specimens of the pulp and paper output. This is a phase in the industrial development of Newfoundland which has attracted world wide attention to our natural resources and must ever be associated with the arduous pioneer labors of Sir Robert Bond who made the introduction of this industry possible by the bills he had passed in 1905, just five years ago.

The structure of the Rink themselves, furniture exhibits, staircases, work wood turning and the handsome frames of many of the stalls, as also the co-operation which are on exhibition show what is being done with our forest resources in turning them out in their finished form of utility and art.

Again, we have the skins of cattle and the pelts of seals not only cured but worked in our factories into strong and handsome boots and shoes. A visit to the western end of the Rink will show that something is being done by our fish exporters to put up fish in small packages, attractive boxes, etc. to cater to a class of customers who can only be reached by such means. Again, the workers in iron as well as those in wood are to the fore. There is a handsome stall of castings which includes a variety of stoves, rails, etc. and there are other stalls devoted to forgings, fittings and turnings, which include fish presses, etc. Confectionery, biscuits, soaps, oil-clothing, wearing apparel are also to the fore, as are also the products of the ham and bacon factories.

The most casual observer of the stalls in the Manufacturers' Exhibition cannot fail to be struck with the fine and creditable showing which our local factories are making. A cutting away from the south west corner of the Prince's Rink leads to the Curling Rink. Here also there is a fine display. Of course, the Agricultural Show is in a different position. There have been many such exhibitions, but the present one is on a much larger scale than previous Agricultural Exhibitions held here. As we mentioned on Saturday the benches in this Rink are divided up into sections for the electrical districts. The showings in the roof crops are exceptionally fine and show what is being done at present and what the way to what could be done with a great acreage of land under cultivation, more attention in the way of seed and stock, and more scientific skill in the handling of land. In another part of this issue will be found a detailed account of both the Agricultural and the Manufacturers' Exhibitions.

Kidneys Act Fine After a Few Doses.

The real treachery and danger in kidney trouble is because the first symptoms are always seen in other parts of the body before anything wrong is noticed with the kidneys themselves. The moment you suspect any kidney, bladder or urinary disorder, or feel a dull, constant backache or urine is thick, cloudy or offensive or the full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a scalding sensation, begin taking Pape's Diuretic as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which is so harmless or will effect so thorough and prompt a cure. Put an end to kidney trouble while it is only trouble—before it develops into Dropsy, Gravel, Diabetes or Bright's Disease. Pape's Diuretic acts directly upon the kidneys, bladder and urinary system; cleanses, heats and regulates these organs, ducts and glands and completes the cure within a few days. Pains in the back, sides or loins, rheumatic twinges, debilitating headache, nervousness, dizziness, bilious stomach, prostatic trouble, sleeplessness, inflamed or puffy eyelids, weakness, worn-out feeling and many other symptoms caused by clogged, inactive kidneys promptly vanish. Frequent, painful and uncontrollable urination due to weak or irritable bladder is overcome. Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will vouch for the responsibility of Pape, Thompson & Pape of Cincinnati, who prepare Pape's Diuretic—50 cent treatment—sold by every druggist in the world.

The Feild Spencer Association.

The "Hallowe'en" Entertainment held by the above Association on Saturday night was most successful. Over 500 people were present and all spent a very enjoyable evening. The concert programme bore such popular names as those of Mrs. John Mrs. George Ayre, Miss Anderson, Miss Bertau, Miss Strang, and Miss Martin. J. Blackall and Seymour, and as was to be expected every item was excellently rendered. A new feature and one which proved most enjoyable was the whistling performance given by one of the men from the Brilliant. The games which followed the concert were entered into with great interest, and the various refreshment stalls and the supper tables were largely patronized. Everything possible was done to make the evening an enjoyable one and the efforts of those responsible met with complete success. Over $230 were made in three hours, and the Association may well be congratulated upon its evening's work.

Intercollegiate Football.

The St. Bon's and Methodist College lads met Saturday afternoon in the inter-collegiate match in St. George's field, one of the most stubbornly contested games of the series resulted. In the second half, St. Bon's made the three goal after fifteen minutes play and their opponents just before full time made the equalizer, off a penalty kick conceded by St. Bon's. The Methodists now have 7 points, St. Bon's 6, and Bishop Field 1. The next match will be between the B. F. C. and Methodists. If the same party will play St. Bon's points and the cup is theirs. If the game is a draw and St. Bon's beat the Methodists the Methodists and St. Bon's will have the same number of points and must play off.

The Exhibition.

Grand Display at the Rinks.

The First of Its Kind Ever Held in St. John's—Splendid Exhibits, Beautiful Decorations, Attracts Thousands.

Though splendidly adapted to the uses for which it has been erected and though a spacious and substantial building, the Rink as seen in the Prince's Rink any particular feature which might excite the admiration of lovers of the beautiful, though for a building of its kind it could not be said to be altogether lacking in attributes which would merit the praises of those of an artistic temperament. Glance at the interior of this otherwise rather prosaic structure to-day and lo! what a change can be wrought by a complete metamorphosis has been wrought. It has been transformed into a bower of beauty. The cause for this wonderful change came from the determination of the Manufacturers' Association to exhibit the goods which their factories produce and the beautiful effect is noticeable in the splendid decorations and artistic embellishments given by the hundreds of busy hands which have been at work for the past four weeks in preparation for the opening days of the show. It drew to the Rink thousands of our citizens who were prepared for something above the ordinary, but who would not but confess that they did not expect to see anything of such magnificence. When the doors were thrown open and the legions walked into the exhibition, the spectacle presented to them was extremely brilliant and picturesque, and expressions of wonder and admiration were heard on all sides. When at night the very pretty scene will be further enhanced by electric lights, the effect will be enchanting. With such evidences of art and beauty on all sides, to properly and sympathetically describe the exhibition is a task of great difficulty. It is bewildering almost to the disorienting prospect before him. Hundreds of flags of all colors depend from the cross beams, the various stalls and booths show resplendently in the central spaces, and on the sides running completely round the building are numerous stalls displaying all kinds of their wares about, and the prospect is one of fairy like enchantment. The exhibition cannot fail to be struck with the seven beautiful booths, each with a floor space of 14 square feet. The first of these is the "Fur and Hides" booth is opposite the main entrance and comprises the exhibits of the ramid picked out in electric bulbs. The whole as a matter of fact is adorned with vari-colored electric lights, and the interior is furnished with the advertising literature of the Company handsomely framed. The Imperial Co.'s show does the Company and Manager Goodwin credit.

ROYAL STORES CLOTHING FACTORY.
This booth is one of the prettiest and most artistic of any in the Rink. It takes on the shape and appearance of a pretty rural summer house, done by a lattice work beautifully wrought and painted in pure white. Artificial flowers of every variety are scattered all over the lattice work overhead, and the pillars which support the structure are covered with foliage which take on continual turn out, and the effect is about $1,000. The interior is as bright as day with electric bulbs. In a corner raised above the floor near the entrance stands the wax figure of a baby beautifully dressed and holding a rattle with which she drives about. In the center is a Teddy Bear with all the glory of a full suit of overalls and standing complacently on a marble top table. Three other tables contain fancy work. The floors are covered in white, and the other exhibits are boys' clothing in suits, pants, overcoats, overalls, and ladies' ulsters, skirts and raglans, all fitted to wax figures. The Royal Stores is surrounded with the firm's name in a gilt frame, viz. "The Royal Stores, Ltd., Clothing Manufacturers." This booth must be seen to be properly appreciated.

REID NELD CO. ELECTRICAL DEPARTMENT.

Evidences of the work of the Reid Neld Co. Electrical Department in the way of ornamental and artistic illuminations are seen on all sides in the city, but in the creation of their booth in the Rink it would seem that Supt. Morris and his aides have exceeded themselves. This has the shape of an octagon wrought in the most artistic manner and beautifully colored in white, its outlines being traced with colored electric lights to the numbers of the booth. It displays all kinds of electric devices and appliances for heating, cooking, etc., and the various electrical apparatus, such as washing machines, cream freezers, sign flashers, electric drills and for a variety of mechanical uses. There is also shown a regulation panel board displaying all the various electrical wires with cabinet outfit controlling all the lights in the booth and the different switches and fuses. The Company has done all the electrical embellishments of the exhibition and their booth must be seen to be properly appreciated.

COLONIAL CORDAGE CO.

This Company's booth is a perfect square and is a great centre of attraction, especially for our fishermen and local and foreign mariners. It is all done in the best style and reflects the greatest credit on J. H. Monroe, Esq., the manager, Mr. Murphy and the men associated with him in weaving this unique structure. The four pillars which stand at each corner are composed respectively of coils of six thread white manilla rope containing 120 fathoms, tarred hempen rope, 1 inch coil and tarred manilla. Each of the pillars are ten feet high and the booth is roofed from it and around its sides and forming a pretty border is a fringe of cotton netting, the colors being red, white and blue. In the centre of the booth is a tall pyramid of rope in coils from a 9 inch tarred manilla banker's cable to a 1 1/2 inch bolt rope. The coils which chains are bent for mooring and other purposes. The booth is illuminated with many electric lights and is highly creditable to the Colonial Cordage Co.

THE IMPERIAL TOBACCO CO.

This Company's exhibit is most attractive and is set in a circular space of regulation size, the centre of which is composed of a circular pyramid round which shelves run, diminishing in depth as they near the apex. This is 17 feet high and the base is composed of the Company's well known and popular brands of tobacco packed in boxes, such as Home Rule, Imperial Crown, Brown Slab, Mount Bernard, Mayos and Clover chewing tobacco, while the tiers of shelves above exhibit pretty glass show cases filled with tobaccos, cartons of cigarettes, fancy package goods, etc. The whole is surmounted by a sign 15 feet long by 3 deep, bearing the legend "Products of the Imperial Tobacco Co." and capped by the Union Jack. There is a clock entrance to the interior of the pyramid.

There are three entrances to this booth and none should visit the exhibition without entering it. STANDARD MANUFACTURING CO. The verdict of all who have visited this booth is that it is one of the prettiest and most fully stocked booths in the Rink and showing such a variety of manufactured goods that it is next to impossible to keep track of them. The booth is built in the shape of a square with a domed roof and a pyramid in the centre. The prevailing colors of the decorations are red, white and blue, and the booth is a very artistic one. Around the sides are scrolls which contain the names of the various brands of soap turned out by the Company, the lettering of which is artistically done in soap and attracts much attention. Facing each of the four corners and standing near the shelves containing its exhibits are four mannequin dummies of soap, each weighing about 100 lbs. Most of the soaps made by the Company are aromatic and a delicious perfume pervades the booth as a result. To attempt to particularize the various kinds of goods turned out by this progressive business concern would be impossible with the space at our command. Suffice it to say that besides soaps they manufacture candles, washing powders, washing sodas, soft soaps, as well as toilet and other kinds, disinfectants, coal tar paste, putty, copper and liquid; oil clothes, candles, kerosene oil cans and a great variety of useful manufactures of all kinds. The goods of the Company are very popular and large quantities are sold annually. Telling the south side of the exhibition building, the next booth we meet is that of Nutritive Hypophosphites.

When a person feels "blue"—"all tired out"—"doesn't feel like doing anything"—cannot concentrate his mind on his work—feels weak mentally and physically—doubts his powers—complains of poor appetite and sleeplessness—suffers from headaches—then his nervous system is run-down and demands a good up-building tonic. Nervous exhaustion is a modern disease, caused by too close attention to business, overwork, worry, devotion to trying family cares, overstudy, etc.
 Nutritive Hypophosphites forms the best nerve and brain food known, and have restored thousands of sufferers to health. Large bottle, $1.00.
