Spring Announcement!
 "Like a bold champion I assume the lists,
 Nor ask advice of any other thought,
 But faithfulness and courage."
 The winter frost and snow have lent their aid in harvesting the product of the forest. The logs are now gaily bounding through the open Rivers on their way to meet the onslaught of Circular and Gang Saw. The result will be Lumber in galore, and of the best.
 The clean atmosphere, high winds and warm sun of Notre Dame Bay have united to provide the seasoning process in perfection, so that our 1910 stocks arrive here clean, bright and dry. Already several large cargoes have been landed at our wharves, St. John's, in spite of a late spring. Others are in course of transit.
 We call upon our friends in St. John's, and through the length and breadth of the country to send us their orders.

Tale of Mystery

CHAPTER XXIII.

TRAPPED.

The calculations which the Count had made as to the probable actions of the two sisters were singularly shrewd and accurate; and the moment he had led them they set to work to plan out their best course of action.

"What does he mean to do, Daphne?"

"It is impossible to say yet," was the reply. "He has probably gone away to think over a new position and to make some fresh plans. He won't give in without a big effort; and much of that effort will depend upon how far he thinks he can get off scot free from any investigation into the murder of the Indian. If he is sure that my conviction will be secured without any risk to himself, my arrest will take place within five minutes. He will bring the first policeman he meets up here."

"Oh, Daphne," cried her sister, with an expression of pain.

"I am not afraid, dear. I have taken up the cross and I'll carry it now. Better the trial now than the uncertainty that lingers like a canker, killing every hope. I didn't kill the man. I didn't even rob him, as robbery is understood in criminal courts."

"But if I am not to live a life of constant disguise and fear discovery, the trial must come; and so far as I am concerned the sooner the better."

"I can't endure the thought of it," "If I can, you may," said the elder sister, curtly.

"I don't mean for my own sake only. The thought of your having to face a whole court of people, and—"

"It's not that I flinch from," said Daphne, interposing. "The world and I have been on terms of mutual dislike and distrust, and one more chance of showing it won't count for much with me. Besides, I had my fling, and must pay the cost. I'm no coward. But I'm not by any means sure that it will come to that. I thought so when you first came to me; and I'll own I was scared. But this scoundrel has too much to hazard to risk it thoughtlessly."

"He is such a desperate man, Daphne."

"Desperate, yes, but always with one eye to his own interest. Let him have what influence he may with this fool of a friend of yours—this Mrs. Markham—the knowledge that he is really Collyer and Leppard rolled into one—a convicted murderer in the one character, and a very probably one in the other—would certainly prevent her marrying him. To accuse me and rake up that horrible scandal will mean the wreck of his marriage hopes, therefore, at the start, and he won't do that without strong reason."

"But we are going to stop that marriage in any case; and he knows it."

"No, he only knows we've said so. He is too accustomed to threaten on things and mean another to take every threat of ours for gospel."

"Yet I do mean it," said Daphne firmly. "I wish we had done what he asked—given him these wretched jewels and let him get out of the country with them as soon as possible, and be quit of him." She took them out of her dress as she spoke and tossed them on to the table. "I can save Dora now it is as much as I want, and he can have the rubies with pleasure."

"It will be time to think of that when we know really what he means to do. So long as those rubies remain in your possession you can make your own terms with him. Let him get them, however, and we shall both be at his mercy. At present he clings to the hope that he can both win the rich wife and force or juggle us out of the jewels. To-morrow he will know that Mrs. Markham at any rate is lost to him—that is if we can find her—and then these stones will have a much greater value in his eyes. Keep them. You had better keep them not I. If they were found on me, supposing I am arrested, things would probably go much harder with me. I should take them back to the safe if I were you."

"I will," said Daphne, "but I am anxious to go and find out the truth about Dora Markham. Even an hour's delay may be serious now."

"Then you'd better go at once."

"But what will you do, dear?"

"Wait here for what happens. I have made up my mind. Do you think I am not as resolute as you?" and Daphne smiled. "You won't be very long away in any case, and I shall put on my uniform and be Nurse Morland once more. If anyone comes for you I shall be only a nurse waiting to see you for journalistic purposes, or some such excuse. We nurses are used to exercising patience. Get back as soon as you can, and then we shall settle our next step."

"Dessie was not many minutes getting ready."

"What shall I do with these?" she asked, when she was ready, holding out the rubies. "I can't carry the cigar case about with me, nor the tobacco case. I think I'm a little nervous about having such valuables on me at all."

"There's not much fear in 'broad daylight,'" replied the other. "But wait, let me look where we can best hide them. Not your stays—that's the first place everyone thinks of. Better here." She unhooked the girl's dress skirt, and in a few minutes had stitched the rubies into the top of the skirt at the back, where the gathers effectually hid all signs of them.

"There now, even a professional searcher might run her hands over you and miss them."

They laughed at the precaution thus taken and with a kiss parted, Dessie running lightly and quickly downstairs. As she closed the heavy door behind her, and stood a moment on the top step, she glanced round, the thought in her mind being to make sure that the Count de Montalt was not waiting for her; and seeing nothing, she walked off at a brisk pace.

She had barely turned the first corner, however, when she found her way barred by a number of women, gaudily dressed in flaunting but shabby clothes.

They formed a semi-circle in front of her, and one of them came close to her and held out her hand.

"Ulo, Molly, old dear, who'd a thought of seeing you here? You are a toff, you are. Wo's your lay now?"

"What do you mean? I don't know you," said Dessie, quickly, feeling not a little alarmed at the women's looks and gestures. They all burst into a loud, discordant laugh when she spoke, and the one who had addressed her turned to the rest and said, with an oath:

"My ain't she proud, the bloomin' hussy. Look 'ere, Molly, that ain't good enough for me. You may be a fine lady—as you thinks yer are, praps—but you never paid me that arf quid you borrowed, not you. No nor even shelled out for them boots as yer sneaked. I dessey yer all right; but, if so, shell out now, and e—to you."

"I never saw any of you before in my life," said Dessie, "and of course you all know that well enough. I'm only a hard-working girl, like any one of you, and—"

"Ar'd workin' gell be sugared," cried the spokeswoman. "I ain't ar'd workin' gell, and you knows that well enough. No more aint you. But I want my coin—that which yer borer, and that for all the things yer sneaked; and what I want to know is—are yer gell ter pay or take the consequences? I don't care which and so that's straight, eh gells?"

A chorus of approbation came from the four women, and this was followed by an evident disposition to change from words to something more serious. They jostled Dessie, abused her for having borrowed money and stolen things, and closing round in a small semi-circle shut her up against the wall of a house, and barred every way of escape.

The incident did not last more than a minute or two, but it quickly developed so threatening an aspect that Dessie was thoroughly frightened, and looked in all directions for the help which did not come.

When it had reached its height, the occupant called, in a loud voice, to the driver to stop, he jumped out, and before the women seemed to have realized what had happened, Sir Edmund Landale pushed his way into their midst, gave his arm to Dessie who was now trembling and frightened, and handed her into the carriage. "You can explain afterwards," he said, as he handed her into the brougham. "Let us get away first. Who on earth are these creatures? he exclaimed, as the women crowded round the carriage gesticulating and shouting as if in anger at having been balked in their purpose.

"I haven't the time to have a look of doubt. 'Are you going very far?'" "Oh, no, the place is only about five minutes' ride from here, or at the outside; and really you will be quite as soon at your friend's. From Holborn to South Kensington via Finchley road is not the shortest cut, of course; but it is quicker behind a pair of horses like mine than in an omnibus, and much safer than on foot. But I should like to tell you what this little business is of mine. You are a woman journalist and knock about a good deal; so you'll really be a judge. You writers pick up all sorts of odds and ends of useful knowledge, and I darsay you know a lot about singing birds. Do you? I've been asked to buy a wonderful cage bird—a great beauty, and a splendid singer and talker; extraordinary that for a small bird, isn't it? And to tell you the truth I have rather jumped at the chance of having you with me to see it. There are so many scores of ways in which a man gets taken in in things of the kind, where a woman's sharp eyes can see the imposture in a moment. And you know I have unbounded faith in you." He laughed lightly as he added: "I hope you won't be awfully angry with me for having brought you so far out of your way on such an errand."

Markham's house in Edgcombe Square."

"I am going to South Kensington myself," returned her companion. "Let me drive you there. You will get there at least as quickly as if you go by any other means. I have one call to make by the way which will not take up much time, and my horses travel fast. What say you?" He asked the question in a tone of such apparent genuine solicitude, and Dessie was so really grateful to him for the service he had just rendered her, that she consented. She was without a suspicion that anything was wrong or that the whole incident was not due to quite natural and innocent causes.

Sir Edmund Landale turned the conversation into the safe grooves of small talk; chatted with her about her work, told her he had bought copies of all her books, pressed her to tell him what she was writing, urged her to make use of him in any way to get her writings better known, and was altogether so pleasant and agreeable that when the carriage turned out of Oxford Street to the north toward Finchley, instead of paying any heed to the fact more or less to accept the explanation he volunteered that he was just going to make the business call he had before referred to.

The brougham went at a great pace along Baker Street and across into St. John's Wood, and when they had passed the shops and were rattling through the squares and streets of private houses, Dessie began to feel a vague uneasiness.

"I am really in a hurry," she said at length, and her face wore a look of doubt. "Are you going very far?"

"Oh, no, the place is only about five minutes' ride from here, or at the outside; and really you will be quite as soon at your friend's. But I should like to tell you what this little business is of mine. You are a woman journalist and knock about a good deal; so you'll really be a judge. You writers pick up all sorts of odds and ends of useful knowledge, and I darsay you know a lot about singing birds. Do you? I've been asked to buy a wonderful cage bird—a great beauty, and a splendid singer and talker; extraordinary that for a small bird, isn't it? And to tell you the truth I have rather jumped at the chance of having you with me to see it. There are so many scores of ways in which a man gets taken in in things of the kind, where a woman's sharp eyes can see the imposture in a moment. And you know I have unbounded faith in you." He laughed lightly as he added: "I hope you won't be awfully angry with me for having brought you so far out of your way on such an errand."

"What shall I do with these?" she asked, when she was ready, holding out the rubies. "I can't carry the cigar case about with me, nor the tobacco case. I think I'm a little nervous about having such valuables on me at all."

"There's not much fear in 'broad daylight,'" replied the other. "But wait, let me look where we can best hide them. Not your stays—that's the first place everyone thinks of. Better here." She unhooked the girl's dress skirt, and in a few minutes had stitched the rubies into the top of the skirt at the back, where the gathers effectually hid all signs of them.

"There now, even a professional searcher might run her hands over you and miss them."

They laughed at the precaution thus taken and with a kiss parted, Dessie running lightly and quickly downstairs. As she closed the heavy door behind her, and stood a moment on the top step, she glanced round, the thought in her mind being to make sure that the Count de Montalt was not waiting for her; and seeing nothing, she walked off at a brisk pace.

She had barely turned the first corner, however, when she found her way barred by a number of women, gaudily dressed in flaunting but shabby clothes.

They formed a semi-circle in front of her, and one of them came close to her and held out her hand.

"Ulo, Molly, old dear, who'd a thought of seeing you here? You are a toff, you are. Wo's your lay now?"

"What do you mean? I don't know you," said Dessie, quickly, feeling not a little alarmed at the women's looks and gestures. They all burst into a loud, discordant laugh when she spoke, and the one who had addressed her turned to the rest and said, with an oath:

"My ain't she proud, the bloomin' hussy. Look 'ere, Molly, that ain't good enough for me. You may be a fine lady—as you thinks yer are, praps—but you never paid me that arf quid you borrowed, not you. No nor even shelled out for them boots as yer sneaked. I dessey yer all right; but, if so, shell out now, and e—to you."

"I never saw any of you before in my life," said Dessie, "and of course you all know that well enough. I'm only a hard-working girl, like any one of you, and—"

"Ar'd workin' gell be sugared," cried the spokeswoman. "I ain't ar'd workin' gell, and you knows that well enough. No more aint you. But I want my coin—that which yer borer, and that for all the things yer sneaked; and what I want to know is—are yer gell ter pay or take the consequences? I don't care which and so that's straight, eh gells?"

A chorus of approbation came from the four women, and this was followed by an evident disposition to change from words to something more serious. They jostled Dessie, abused her for having borrowed money and stolen things, and closing round in a small semi-circle shut her up against the wall of a house, and barred every way of escape.

The incident did not last more than a minute or two, but it quickly developed so threatening an aspect that Dessie was thoroughly frightened, and looked in all directions for the help which did not come.

When it had reached its height, the occupant called, in a loud voice, to the driver to stop, he jumped out, and before the women seemed to have realized what had happened, Sir Edmund Landale pushed his way into their midst, gave his arm to Dessie who was now trembling and frightened, and handed her into the carriage. "You can explain afterwards," he said, as he handed her into the brougham. "Let us get away first. Who on earth are these creatures? he exclaimed, as the women crowded round the carriage gesticulating and shouting as if in anger at having been balked in their purpose.

"I haven't the time to have a look of doubt. 'Are you going very far?'" "Oh, no, the place is only about five minutes' ride from here, or at the outside; and really you will be quite as soon at your friend's. From Holborn to South Kensington via Finchley road is not the shortest cut, of course; but it is quicker behind a pair of horses like mine than in an omnibus, and much safer than on foot. But I should like to tell you what this little business is of mine. You are a woman journalist and knock about a good deal; so you'll really be a judge. Markham's house in Edgcombe Square."

"I am going to South Kensington myself," returned her companion. "Let me drive you there. You will get there at least as quickly as if you go by any other means. I have one call to make by the way which will not take up much time, and my horses travel fast. What say you?" He asked the question in a tone of such apparent genuine solicitude, and Dessie was so really grateful to him for the service he had just rendered her, that she consented. She was without a suspicion that anything was wrong or that the whole incident was not due to quite natural and innocent causes.

Sir Edmund Landale turned the conversation into the safe grooves of small talk; chatted with her about her work, told her he had bought copies of all her books, pressed her to tell him what she was writing, urged her to make use of him in any way to get her writings better known, and was altogether so pleasant and agreeable that when the carriage turned out of Oxford Street to the north toward Finchley, instead of paying any heed to the fact more or less to accept the explanation he volunteered that he was just going to make the business call he had before referred to.

The brougham went at a great pace along Baker Street and across into St. John's Wood, and when they had passed the shops and were rattling through the squares and streets of private houses, Dessie began to feel a vague uneasiness.

A WOMAN'S ADVICE TO WOMEN

TAKE GIN PILLS

TRINIDAD P. O., ONT. "I received your sample of GIN PILLS and after using them, I felt so much better that I got a box at my druggist's, and now I am taking the third box."

The pain across my back and kidneys has almost entirely gone and I am better than I have been for years. I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism but it has all left me. I strongly advise all women, who suffer from Pain in the Back and Weak Kidneys, to try GIN PILLS.

Mrs. T. HARRIS. Thousands of women, right here in Canada, owe their robust health, their strength and vigor, their bright eyes and rosy cheeks—to GIN PILLS. And they know that GIN PILLS will cure the Kidney and Bladder Troubles with which so many women suffer.

Do just as Mrs. Harris did—first, write for a free sample box of GIN PILLS and try them. Then, if they do you good, get the regular size boxes at your dealer's. Your money promptly refunded if GIN PILLS fail to give relief. National Drug and Chemical Co., Dept. N. Toronto.

The original Gin Pills, made by National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada Limited, Toronto, are sold only in this box.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

For man must work and woman must weep And the sooner it's over the sooner to sleep— And good-bye to the bar and it's moaning.

"Oh, I wish I were a man. I could do so much more in my work." It was Molly, the little stenographer I a day, who enunciated that sentiment. She made her moan before a group of half a dozen women, and four out of the six promptly echoed her sentiment.

"Just imagine being able to ask anyone you wanted to marry you, and not simply sit and wait to be asked," said the author's wife. "Aren't they lucky?"

"Wouldn't it be great to be able to travel around anywhere you liked and see the world and have adventures and never have to think about propriety?" mused the butterfly girl.

The other two didn't give any reason, just said they'd always wished they'd been born boys instead of girls.

Have you ever noticed how often you hear this sentiment expressed among women, especially of the younger generation?

"How I wish I had been born a man!"

Why, to one young woman I've heard say she was heartily glad she was a woman, I've heard ten say they wish they had been born on the other side of the fence.

Incidentally, I can't recall that I ever heard a man say he wished he had been a woman. Can you?

Isn't it queer? And yet I can't quite condemn the attitude, because I must confess that

I've been one of the ten sometimes. But I do think there is a good deal more on the reverse of the medal than many of us who envy men their freedom and their opportunity to do big things realize.

For instance, I've often heard one of these would-have-been men say with a sigh of relief when the work went badly, "Oh, well, I suppose I shall get married and stop work some day."

Please turn over the medal, madame.

Please remember that a man, no matter how strenuous and exhausting the competition, no matter how disagreeable the conditions of his work may be, he cannot look forward to any such relief. Marriage means to him merely the shouldering of new and tremendous responsibilities. He cannot fall now, he cannot drop out of the ranks. He must keep on, no matter how tired and weary of it all he may be, once he has given "hostages to fortune," in the shape of a wife and children.

Again, we think it must be splendid to be able to seek out the one you love and woo her, instead of sitting with folded hands hoping against hope that the right man will come for you, which like as not, he never will.

But turn the medal over again. Isn't it wonderful to know that the one who lays his heart at your feet has chosen you out of all the human beings he knows to be his mate? The man can only know that the woman has chosen him out of the few who has sought her, not out of all. There is one joy in having the right to choose out of all the world, but there is another joy in being chosen out of all the world.

These are but two ways in which the medal you thought had only one side can be turned over.

Doubtless you can find others for yourself.

Dondon to Have Great Traction Combine Soon.

Central Committee to Take Over Control of Vast Transportation Interests.

LONDON, May 20. London is about to witness the formation of the biggest municipal transportation combine in the world. An arrangement has been reached between the General Omnibus Company and the companies controlling the underground railways and private street car lines by which the management of all these will pass into the hands of a central committee. The combination will operate 1,400 omnibuses, 200 miles of underground railways and fifty-five miles of street car lines.

"Nobody," said the manager of the General Omnibus Company, "need be alarmed lest the trust in the eyes of the public. The object of the new arrangement is to amalgamate the transit facilities, to adjust fares, to devise more convenient routes of travel and bring into being a system of universal transfer tickets on the American model. Although London has widespread facilities for quick transit, so poorly are these adapted to one another that the freedom of general travel is seriously restricted."

Some of the Advantages.

"One buys a ticket on a certain omnibus or underground railway, or street car, goes a little distance and then finds one's self up against another system with facilities working independently and so requiring the passenger to make a fresh start as regards both the buying of a ticket and the catching of a bus, train or car. We propose to survey the whole field of transportation and introduce harmonious working among all the properties concerned."

"Apart from the street car lines controlled by the London County Council no line worth considering will be outside our scheme. Our problem is to transport with the minimum of trouble to the passengers considerably more than 650,000,000 persons a year."

Gentlemen.—In January last, Francis Leclair, one of the men employed by me, working in the lumber woods, had a tree fall on him, crushing him fearfully. He was, when found, placed on a sled and taken home, where grave fears were entertained for his recovery, his hips being badly bruised and his body turned black from his ribs to his feet. We used MINARD'S LINIMENT on him freely to lighten the pain and with the use of three bottles he was completely cured and able to return to his work.

Chicago 1911 Code.

No Harem Hobbies, Bloomers, Short Skirts or Sleeveless Waists.

Chicago, May 8.—Superintendent of Police McWeeny has issued the following code for 1911:

Women must not wear one-piece suits. Skirts must reach below the knees. Loose bloomers must be worn to a point below the knees. Bloomers must not be worn without skirt; sleeveless suits must not be worn by women. Stockings must be worn by girls over sixteen. Blouses must not be worn too delicate. Close-fitting bathing suits for women are barred. Harem, hobble and directoire skirts are barred.

Indigestion & Dyspepsia

In all its Forms can be Cured.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden."

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a Bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at

DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, Duckworth Street and Theatre Hill. Small size, 25 cents; postage, 5c. extra; large size, 50 cents; postage, 10c. extra. Mail orders must be accompanied by remittance.—Oct 29, 11m.

The note of red cerise, French blue or emerald green is very often introduced into the black and white frock and bits of Persian or Russian figured silk or embroidery are also used as trimmings; but some of the very best looking trotting frocks in the black and white are entirely without color relief, the color note being left to the hat, parasol, etc.; used with the frock.

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body is no stronger than its weakest organ.

If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

"When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also."

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

GIVEN AWAY.—Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, new revised Edition, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Household Notes.

When sweeping a room which has a heavy, old-fashioned dresser in it remove the lower drawer and sweep underneath with a whisk broom.

If a pancake griddle must be kept hot for late-comers slip it into the oven, close the door, and when the griddle is needed again it is hot.

The simplest thing for removing iodine from hands or white goods is household ammonia, which converts the iodine into iodide of ammonia.

A drop of oil of cloves on the tongue takes away the sense of taste for a moment, and disagreeable medicine can be given without any trouble.

Put a receipt for making plasters on your medicine chest door. It will be convenient in case someone unaccustomed to making them has to do so.

Instead of just heating butter and sugar together for hard sauce stir into it one-half cup of whipped cream and the white of an egg, beaten very light.

Use two pieces of glass and two pictures placed back to back in pass-partouting. Fasten the hangers to the cardboard between the two pictures.

When a white enameled vessel has become discolored simply fill the vessel with water and add a teaspoonful of chloride of lime; let boil a few minutes.

The best frosting for cakes is made by simply mashing five or six dark red strawberries and mixing with confectioners' sugar until stiff enough to spread.

In removing spots put a thick pad of cheesecloth or some other material underneath the spot to absorb the dirty cleansing liquid that soaks through the garment.

A tablespoonful of Epsom salts added to one half gallon of cold water thoroughly dissolved and poured over plant roots will hasten their growth wonderfully.

Put a cupful of Indian meal, half a cupful of white flour and three tablespoonfuls of powdered borax into a paper bag and shake an article that needs cleaning.

Take any old discarded toothbrush to blacken shoes with paste blacking. It is better than anything sold on the market for getting into cracks where dust is bound to collect.

When a cork falls into the vinegar bottle, to get it out tie a nail on the loop of a string so that it will not float, and it will be easy to get the string into place under the cork.

Union suits dried on a coat-hanger and with the tape about the neck drawn up slightly will not draw out of shape about the neck as they do when hung on the line by the shoulders.

A wire clothesline can be cleaned perfectly by rubbing with a woolen cloth saturated with coal oil and afterwards with the same cloth liberally sprinkled with cleansing powder.

Chicago, May 19.—R. F. Dudenhal was given credit by the police for the best "hard luck" story of the day.

He was passing an alley in Indiana avenue, near his home, when two men seized him. One choked him so hard that his gold teeth fell out.

"Hey, Jack," said one robber who caught his teeth, "this looks good. Tighten up on him; he may give up more."

They not only took Dudenhal's gold teeth, but $50 and a meerschaum pipe.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

"How big was Alexander, pa, that people call him great?" "My son, he used to swat the ball when'er it crossed the plate. I've seen him knock it half a mile, and thereby save the game; no wonder that the ALEXANDER nation ring with Alexander's fame; I've seen him in a THE GREAT crucial place leap twenty cubits high, and claw the blooming firmament to catch a whizzing fly. In all departments of the game he is a honeybird, and would-be rivals seem to me incompetent, absurd. I've seen him plunge for seven yards, then slide upon his face until the umpire called him safe at third or second base. I've seen the fans stand on their heads and tear their clothes and howl when Alexander jumped the fence and nailed a soaring foul. The conduct of our public schools is sure a thing of shame, when growing youths have never heard of Alexander's fame. Our educators should reform; their system's out of plumb; they'll have to hump themselves and change their curriculum."

For the Children.

We hope that the public will rally to the idea of providing something suitable for a children's festival in connection with the Coronation rejoicings. It is a pity that so little public support was tendered to the movement, attempted to be inaugurated last evening.

It would be a pity to let the movement drop. We believe that the public are in sympathy with the idea, in spite of the fact that the meeting yesterday was so poorly attended.

Death of Mr. Pippy.

It is with sincere regret we record the demise of Wm. G. Pippy, of the West End, the well known and respected business man. The deceased passed peacefully away at his residence this morning. Mr. Pippy had been ill of a serious internal disease for little over a week, and Monday an operation was performed with the hope of prolonging life, but since that he gradually sank until the end, which was peaceful and happy, came. Mr. Pippy was well known and liked by many in the city. He was a business man of strict propriety and was noted for his square dealing in all transactions. He was a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity and was specially identified with the Masonic Club. A wife and 2 sons and 2 daughters survive the deceased. One of the former is now at Govan, Scotland, finishing his education as an engineer, while Henry is in St. Paul, Minn., U.S.A., and Thomas an engineer of this city. To the bereaved family the Telegram extends its condolence.

Sudden Death.

Another sudden death occurred in the East End this morning, the victim being Mrs. Ryan, wife of Mr. Fred Ryan, cooper, of Prospect Street. Mrs. Ryan retired at her usual hour last night, apparently in good health, but when a member of her family went to call her this morning she found her dead in her bed. Death was due to heart failure. The deceased was well known and respected. She leaves two sons and two daughters, one of whom is wife of Mr. Ed. Moskier, of Shea & Co's. To the sorrowing relatives the Telegram extends its sympathy.

Roman Catholic Citizens Meet.

TO HONOR BISHOP OF ST. GEORGES.

A meeting of Catholic citizens was held in the T. A. Armoury last night with a view to discussing the best means of honoring Rev. Father Power on the occasion of his appointment as Bishop of St. George's. Hon. J. Harris was voted to the chair. Mr. T. J. Smith was appointed Secretary. A discussion followed in which Hon. M. P. Gibbs, Hon. Jno. Harris, E. M. Jackman, Inspector General Sullivan, T. F. Smyth, W. J. Higgins, Geo. F. Power, M. A. McCarthy, Jno. Barron, Geo. T. Carry and V. P. Burke took part. The decision agreed upon after all had given their opinions was that the new Bishop be presented with a purse and a address. The subscription list was then and there declared open and a handsome sum was realized. The following were authorized to receive subscriptions from the public: Hon. John Harris, Hon. M. P. Gibbs, Inspector General Sullivan, Councilor Mullaly, M. W. Furlong, John Barron, C. O'N. Conroy, J. J. McGrath, W. J. Higgins, John Fenelon, J. V. O'Dea, J. J. Bates, F. J. Doyle, R. C. Callahan, Dr. O'Connell, M. A. McCarthy, E. M. Jackman, George Power, J. Sheehan, T. J. Foran, W.

J. O'Neill, J. J. Doyle, R. Rogers, T. J. Ryan, W. Tobin, R. McGrath, J. P. McLoughlin, C. Renour, G. Carthy, J. Wadden, R. J. Bower, M. E. Murphy, Dr. Howlett, T. Coady, H. J. Brownrigg, W. Dugan, Capt. Nichols, D. Bentley, T. McCarthy, T. J. Melville, J. Pibby, James Maher, C. Kelly, V. P. Burke, P. J. Hanley, T. Wall, J. Doyle, F. J. Morris, P. J. Shea, M. A. Devine, T. Armstrong, M. Bambrick, M. Aylward, T. J. Aylward, E. Malone, Jas. Ryan, T. P. Smyth, Sec. Treasurer. A committee was also selected to draft the address, viz., C. O'N. Conroy, Hon. M. P. Gibbs, M. W. Furlong, J. Fenelon, Jno. Barron, M. A. Devine and E. M. Jackman. The collecting committee will meet again on June the 12th to report to the Secretary-Treasurer.

Wrecked His Boat.

Some scamps went aboard Mr. Le Drew's gasoline launch at Pitts wharf yesterday afternoon and did considerable damage to the machinery. They also threw the riding lamp overboard and spilled five gallons of gasoline oil in a can there. They took the top off the lamp and spilled a quantity of lubricating oil and smashed up two lanterns. The owner informed the police and they are now looking for the culprits.

To Cruise Property.

Mr. Thomas and another gentleman left here by the Bruce steamer last evening for Hawk's Bay to cruise certain timber lands there. He is from Michigan, and on arriving at Gambo will take along Joseph Curran and others. The property to be cruised is a large one and the work will occupy the better part of the summer. It is hoped to sell it to a large American syndicate.

Note From the Rev. James Bell.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Having attended both meetings yesterday convened for the purpose of considering what steps should be taken to fittingly celebrate the Coronation of King George and Queen Mary, it is most regrettable to state that nothing definite was done in the interests of the children of the city. Owing to the many functions already in hand it was not deemed feasible to undertake anything for the little ones. Is it not possible even now to entertain the children in the Parks during Coronation week and provide each child with a packet of sweets and a bun? Perhaps a band also could be present. Such a suggestion might easily be taken up by the committee making arrangements for the Patriotic Concert. The cost would not be great and the enjoyment to the children would be untold. A determined effort would never be as much enjoyed or appreciated.

Yours truly,
JAMES BELL.

GOOD FISHING TRIPS.—The Messrs. McDonald, in their two schooners, returned from Cape St. Mary's last Saturday—one with 50 and the other with 60 qts. of fish. They report fish very plentiful on the grounds but rough weather retards the work of catching cod.

The Children and the Coronation.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir,—I had the pleasure of attending a meeting yesterday in the Board of Trade Rooms called for the purpose of considering the part the children should take in the coming Coronation Festivities, and to state that I was surprised at the lack of interest displayed by the St. John's public, by their non-attendance, is expressing myself very mildly.

Do they not recognize the fact, as Great Britain and her other Colonies are doing, that the growth and cementing together of this Empire depend upon the loyalty shown to the British Throne by the future generations, and in what better way can we show ours than by making this Coronation a live subject with the children? Surely it is not the love of self that has stepped in or that it would be too much trouble, although it seems very much like it.

What has been the main factor in bringing the British Empire to its present height and prominence in the world? Why the British proverbial love of home and family. Yet we who call ourselves Britain's most loyal Colonists neglect to include our children in the most important event of the present generation.

Surely we, the citizens of the Capital of Newfoundland, do not intend to let this opportunity of drawing the children nearer to the Throne of Great Britain go by without another effort to do something. I am confident that if His Excellency the Governor or His Lordship Bishop Jones were asked to call a meeting of citizens together to consider this, something tangible would result therefrom.

Thanking you for space,
I am, yours truly,
SAMUEL O. STEELE.

Those who use Teissier-Freves' Olive Oil do so because they find it quite at the top of the tree for quality. It is not a cheap-grade oil put up in attractive bottles to sell by its appearance. The appearance of both bottle and oil is attractive enough, but the matter goes deeper than that—Teissier's Oil has quality—the best quality behind it. And that it why connoisseurs on the one hand, and those who want to get the best oil for weakly children on the other will find this oil to suit their utmost requirements. Tells Others His Secret Wants them to know how he was cured of itching, protruding piles by DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Doctors usually recommend the knife as the only cure for piles. They overlook the risk, the expense and the suffering of mind and body entailed in a surgical operation. Dr. Chase's Ointment will bring relief quickly and will cure thoroughly if you will but persist. Mr. A. Honington, 52 Bronson Place, Montreal, Que., writes—"I cannot help praising Dr. Chase's Ointment as I suffered many years with itching and protruding piles, and was cured by this ointment. I became tired of the efforts of the best specialists to cure me, and hearing of Dr. Chase's Ointment just as I had of hundreds of other medicines began its use. But oh, great joy, at the very start the sharp pains left me and I was gradually cured. I hope that every sufferer will follow my example with the same success. Every form of piles or hemorrhoids is cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment. 6c cents a box, at all dealers, or Ed Manson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

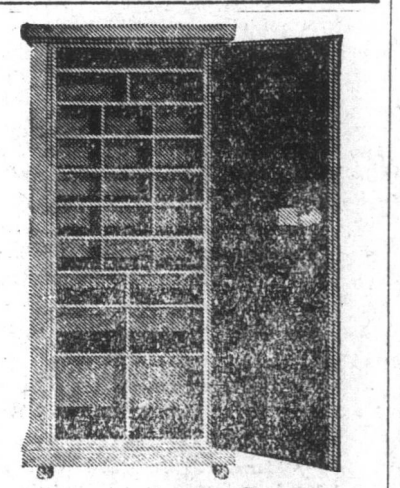

Parade of Over- Sea Troops.

Two hundred Army officers of all nations have entered for the competitions at the Coronation Horse Show at Olympia. The British representatives number 128.

The directors of the show have arranged a special display on the morning of June 13 on behalf of the troops of the Over-Sea Dominions who are in London for the Coronation. This will be the first opportunity the public will have of seeing the 2,000 men in a body. The troops (with the exception of the Indian contingent, who will come from their quarters at Hampton Court by special train) will march with their officers and bands from the Duke of York's School to Olympia.

The officials have been compelled to close the list of costermongers' entries earlier than usual. There are 132 donkeys entered (as against last year's 57), and 52 entries in the new competition for the best and neatest costermonger's pony turn-out.

Men who recently came in from the Bonavista Branch railway say that dogs are a great nuisance at Port Rexton. They break into the shacks of the laborers and eat their meat and other food and they intend soon to turn out and shoot all the brutes of the species they can find.

Celebrated STANDARD FLOUR.

What is STANDARD BREAD?
STANDARD BREAD is the old farm-house loaf, made by milling good, sound, sweet, dry wheat, and taking out of the flour the coarser bran.

STANDARD BREAD is not a patent food, or a "patent bread." It is just good sound BREAD, and it is called "STANDARD" by everyone, because it agrees with a standard fixed by eight eminent medical men in a Manifesto, published first by the "Daily Mail" on January 26th, 1911, and since widely republished by the newspapers of the world.

Since the doctors first published their Manifesto, STANDARD BREAD has been well-coming everywhere. For years it has been supplied to the King and Queen at Windsor Castle, and at Buckingham Palace. It is eaten by rich and poor, by young and old, by healthy people and sick people.

STANDARD BREAD has been used for years at many of the great hospitals for Consumption.

STANDARD BREAD made from STANDARD FLOUR has been completely summed up by a Harley Street Surgeon in this statement:—

"The short stature, the pale face, the weak chest, and the general degeneration of the present generation, are greatly due to WHITE bread diet."

STANDARD BREAD made from STANDARD FLOUR is all right.

Doctors and learned scientists have declared with no uncertain voice for the plain unaltered product of the WHEAT BERRY.

The trouble started when a man commenced to "Paint the Lily" to improve on nature. STANDARD FLOUR contains 80 per cent. of the WHOLE WHEAT, including the germ and semolina.

Festival of Empire.

RECORD ATTENDANCE.

Amid manifestations of enthusiasm that have never been surpassed, the King and Queen made their first public progress through the streets of London yesterday. The occasion was one that appealed to the popular imagination, for the Festival of Empire, which their Majesties inaugurated at the Crystal Palace, embodies sentiments and hopes that are uppermost in the minds of every British subject, no matter where his habitation.

London gave expression to these sentiments not only in the crowds that thronged the route from Buckingham Palace to Sydenham, but also in the loyal addresses that marked the most important stages of the royal progress. Nothing was wanting to the success of so memorable an event. Even the sun dispelled the morning clouds, to give unwonted brilliance to the crowded scenes of enthusiasm and to the long chorus of loyal greeting, in which many thousands of children joined to the delight of their Majesties.

The number of people who visited the Crystal Palace yesterday was late at night officially given as 144,224, a record since 1851, when it was opened.

Voice of the Empire—Mighty Chorus of Welcome.

A brilliant and animated scene met the eyes of the King and Queen as they approached the Crystal Palace. About the North Tower were assembled thousands of people, whose cheers shook as with a breeze the purple and white pavilion under which their Majesties passed. Between saluting ranks of West Surrey Territorials and blue-uniformed boys from the Royal Hospital School at Greenwich.

Waiting to receive their Majesties at the entrance to the Palace was a distinguished company, among whom were the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife, Princess Louise and the Duke of Argyll, Princess Christian, Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, Prince Alexander of Teck, the Duchess of Albany, the Duke of Marlborough, the Earl of Londsdale, and Viscount Hill.

The first and formal welcome over the King and Queen with the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, were ushered to the royal box overlooking the central transept of the Palace. Here was the great heart of the event which the Empire was celebrating. Over the heads of ten thousand people who stood and turned with one accord as the trumpets sounded a greeting their Majesties saw the packed balconies and the great orchestra with its bands and its 4,500 singers.

Empire in Miniature.

It was no ordinary assembly that rose to cheer them. Here were men and women from every part of the Empire, of every shade of colour and of all the tongues that make the language of the British Dominions. Ambassadors and Ministers were there; representatives of the Dominions, official and non-official; members of the Government and of Parliament; soldiers and sailors famous in name and deed.

Standing side by side, with their children visible in the shadow of the royal box, the King and Queen bowed to the roar of the cheers that welcomed them.

Their Majesties have heard the National Anthem under many conditions and in many places both at home and abroad, but never have they heard it sung with more fervour or under conditions that gave to the familiar words a deeper significance. It was the voice of the Empire that rose from that mighty chorus and from the massed bands. None even hearing the distant echo of it could be unmoved by the triumph and the supplication with which the words and the music are instinct.

The imperial note reverberated through every phase of this harmonious prelude to the Festival of Empire and found an echo in the hearts of the people.

Three crosses in concord blended The banner of Britain's might; But the central gem of the ensign fair Is the cross of the dauntless knight.

This was the epilogue and the march whose inspiring strain brought to a close the first part of the ceremony.

Amid another tempest of cheers their Majesties withdrew to the reception-room, where Dr. Charles Harris, Sir Hubert Parry, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and Sir Henry Wood, the conductors of this Imperial Musical Festival, were presented. After tea the King and Queen appeared on the terrace and gazed on the splendid panorama that nature and art have created to enshrine this picturesque microcosm of their world-wide dominions. Their whole Empire in miniature lay at their feet—India and Africa and Australia and Canada—but the setting was English, with its tender greens and its grey distances.

Their Majesties' Delight.

Their Majesties did not conceal their delight at the prospect that lay before them, for they have an eye for nature as well as for art. The details also interested them, as the Earl of Plymouth, Viscount Hill, and Mr. Frank Lascelles discovered in the tour of inspection that followed. Descending from the terrace to the gardens by the new staircase that does not discredit its name of imperial, the King and Queen entered their carriage and proceeded to the amphitheatre of the Pageant of London, where 12,000 of their subjects awaited them in historic costume.

Only once has the King seen a pageant of greater magnificence, and that was on the Plains of Abraham when Quebec celebrated her tercentenary. His Majesty could not fail to recall this wonderful spectacle of the greatest of his Dominions as he looked across the wide expanse of greensward flanked by the Druid Temple and by palaces of the Tudor period. For this was the picture of the British people from their earliest days, and the history of the race was embodied in the fair-haired Saxons clad in pelts; in the Druid priests, in the mail-clad knights, and the lords and ladies who pranced about on palfreys, and whose raiment was as the rainbow for splendor of colour.

They ranged themselves along the paths, and the broad stretch of green blossomed into a garden. So delighted were the King and Queen with this novel and attractive spectacle that they were not content with driving past as the programme and time ordained, but insisted on halting in order to admire the more.

From the amphitheatre of the pageant the royal procession made its way through cheering crowds to other parts of the exhibition and descended at the Dominion Club, which had already been opened by Princess Louise. Here their Majesties were received by the Duke of Argyll and Sir Godfrey Lagden, and the Secretary for the Colonies (Mr. L. Harcourt) made several presentations, among whom were the venerable Canadian High Commissioner, Lord Strathcona, and Sir Joseph Ward, the Prime Minister of New Zealand. To the assembled representatives of the Dominions his Majesty these words of welcome:

I am pleased to see you to-day, and I hope you will all enjoy your stay in the Mother-country. These were also the words of leaving-taking, and their Majesties drove back to Buckingham Palace amid renewed demonstrations of loyalty and affection.

Skin Like Velvet.

It is greatly to be desired and is very attractive. There is one sure way of making your skin like velvet, and that is by using Snow Cream. It is neither sticky nor greasy, and the general verdict is "it makes your skin like velvet." T. COURTESY, the Prescription Pharmacy, corner Duckworth and Prescott Streets, sells the Cream at 25c. per bot.—11.

Special Evening Telegram. LONDON, May 30.

R. Hunt, the Unionist member for Shropshire, who has made it his special business to bait Sir Edward Grey on the subject of President Taft's Arbitration proposals, returned to the charge in the House of Commons this afternoon. Mr. Hunt suggested that the great expectations which had been raised by President Taft's original offer, had whittled away, as its ratification by the Senate was required; and that the proposals could no longer be regarded as a basis for a treaty of unrestricted arbitration. May we, he added, that in future the Government will not allow itself to be bamboozled by Foreign Powers? Sir Edward Grey, as on previous occasions, declined to comment on the proposed treaty until he had thoroughly digested it. The full text of the drafted treaty had just been received. "I have not seen it," he said, "and intend to pay it the compliment of giving it my full consideration before I make any detailed comment concerning it. The draft treaty has a tentative character, and would form the subject of discussion on the part of the two governments. After consideration the British Government would make its suggestions to the United States Government, the author of the Treaty."

Newspapers of this city state that a serious plot has been discovered at Ponte de Lima, on the northern frontier. A number of conspirators had been furnished with arms by rich Portuguese, and were held at a very important point, ready to march at the first signal of the monarchists, who have taken refuge in Spain. The Portuguese Government, of learning of the plot, despatched infantry, which dispersed the conspirators, who fled to the mountains.

The Marine and Fisheries received a message from Belle Isle via Cape Race last evening saying strong gale, north wind; there is a jam of heavy close-packed ice within a radius of 40 miles from here and lying E. S. E. and South; there is a large number of bergs; the Straits is clear.

Ice Near Belle Isle.

Prof. H. Adams in his Presidential Address to the Institute of Sanitary Engineers early in 1908, said:—"Gas fires for heating are already widely adopted for offices, consulting rooms where a fire may be required at short notice. I have had nothing else in my office for the last thirty years and do not find any of the ill effects that have been ascribed to them."

Gas fires are universally used by Medical men in London, and they recommend them for use in the homes of their patients. The Coal Smoke Abatement Society, among whose members are many men of high scientific and artistic attainments, are strong advocates of the use of gas for heating. The Society carried out a most elaborate series of tests with gas fires, etc., in May and June, 1906.

Last Night's Meeting re Coronation Concert.

Last evening a meeting was held in the Colonial Building with reference to the proposed patriotic concert on Coronation Day.

There were present:—Chief Justice Horwood, Sir James Winter, Hons. D. Morrison, C. H. Emerson, and S. D. Blandford, Rev. Jas. Bell, Messrs. F. J. Morris, J. A. Clift, W. R. Howley, R. G. Rendell, A. A. Parsons, R. Goodridge, W. W. Blackall, H. LeMessurier, D. M. Browning, J. L. Slattery, C. Hutton, W. Edgar and C. Woods.

Sir William Horwood was moved to the chair and explained the object of the convention. Mr. R. F. Goodridge was appointed Secretary. Much interest was taken in the proceedings and Mr. Clift hoped that something would be done which would redound to the credit of the Colony and exemplify its loyalty to the Throne, stated that he with Mr. F. J. Morris had interviewed many leading citizens and had suggested the holding of a concert in the Prince's Rink with a capable conductor in charge and with the assistance of the Brigade Bands. All had given their word that they would be delighted to assist and he thought it advisable to hold the celebration on the night of the 23rd June, when no other amusements would occur to interfere with it.

Mr. Hutton spoke on the difficulty of setting music which would be suitable for the chorus which would necessarily be large, but he believed this could be overcome. He suggested that the choruses be composed of the principal choirs and their conductors and believed all would willingly co-operate.

Mr. Morris stated that financial assistance would be received from the business public.

Mr. R. G. Rendell said the bands of the C. L. B., C. C. C. and Highlanders would attend, and he favoured the Rink for the concert. A ball, he thought, would not be feasible.

Mr. J. R. Bennett promised his co-operation and support, and Mr. J. L. Slattery proposed that the concert be held on Friday, June 23rd, which motion Sir J. S. Winter seconded, and who also spoke of the excellent music-cale given at the Prince's Rink when "Their Majesties visited us as Duke and Duchess of Cornwall."

This motion was carried and Mr. Hutton was given charge of the programme.

A financial committee was then appointed, consisting of the Chairman, Secretary, Hon. John Harris, Sir J. S. Winter, Mayor Ellis, J. A. Clift, F. J. Morris, W. R. Howley, J. R. Bennett, A. A. Parsons, A. J. W. McNeill and D. M. Browning.

Plans were discussed for the accommodation of those attending, and the giving of a free band concert in one of the parks. Plans were discussed for giving the children a share in the celebration, but nothing definite was done, and the meeting adjourned at 10 p.m.

What of the Children in Coronation Festivities?

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING NOT A SUCCESS.

Mr. Blackall's invitation to the citizens of St. John's to meet in the Board of Trade rooms last evening in order to discuss a programme for a "Children's Festival" did not meet with a very encouraging response. Less than twenty ladies and gentlemen turned up at the meeting, and not till a quarter of an hour after the meeting opened, Mr. Blackall in addressing the small meeting and speaking of the object for which he had convened the same, expressed the opinion that under the present discouraging circumstances it would be better to go no further. A motion to this effect was then put and carried. At this juncture His Lordship Bishop Jones arrived, followed by several others. His Lordship spoke very feelingly and eloquently on behalf of the children. A long discussion followed but there was nothing done. It is very regrettable that there should be such a lack of interest in this laudable attempt of Mr. Blackall and others to have the children participate in the festivities of the Coronation in such a manner as would afford them pleasant and well defined recollections of the great event in after life and be able to tell their children and children's children of the Coronation of King George V.

Firemen's Union Meet.

The monthly meeting of the Firemen's Union held last night was well attended. The owners of the Red Cross steamers will be requested to pay the firemen on the Florist and Rosalind $35 per month, as is paid to the men on the Adventure and Beattie. The owners of factories and steamers will be asked to employ none but firemen holding certificates. Employees will be reminded that they are liable to a fine of $50 failing to employ competent firemen. The Union will see that this law is enforced. The Shipping Master will be asked to see that none but certified stokers are signed on for work on steamers. All members of the Union may receive first-class tickets by passing an examination before the Inspectors. They may get a certificate of second grade by virtue of length of service on a ship. Delegate Woods was appointed to see Messrs. Bowring Bros. on the question of wages of firemen on the Red Cross boats.

Inter-Collegiate Match.

Yesterday afternoon the Methodist and St. Bonaventure's College teams tried conclusions at the willow, when the latter won out by a score of 8 wickets and one run. In the first innings the Methodist lads were all retired for the small score of 14 runs, in which six of the team went down for cyphers. St. Bon's, batted up 27 runs, of which Leveson's 7 was the best, and 4 were out with nothing to their credit. The Methodists then batted 38 after which 3 of St. Bon's, scored 87 and won as stated above. St. Bon's stand 4 points: Methodist, 2; Bishop Field, 9; Saturday St. Bon's, and B. F. C. play.

Venerable Citizen Dead

The death occurred this morning at his residence, South Side, of Mr. Levi Taylor, an old and respected resident of that place. Mr. Taylor who was the type of the good old-timer now almost extinct, was in his 83rd year, and was a man of kindly disposition, cheerful of temperament and was justly popular and well liked. He leaves surviving him two sons, Messrs. Leonard and George, of Job Bros. & Co's premises, and two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Roper, of this city, and Mrs. Matthews, who resides at Detroit, Mich. To the sorrowing family the Telegram extends its condolence.

A Sudden Change.

About 4.30 p.m. yesterday, though it had been fine and mild all day with a westerly breeze, a black north-easter suddenly came in and the weather resumed its cold, cheerless aspect. The wind since has changed in that point, and if it lasts much longer in a few days all the French Shores coast will be blocked with ice. This will be a great drawback to the fishing vessels now on the way to that place and the Straits of Belle Isle.

Germany Ready.

Special to Evening Telegram. BERLIN, To-day. The Zeltung in an announcement of the steps taken by Germany towards arbitration, says that after the States had indicated to Germany her readiness to negotiate a broader Arbitration Treaty with other Powers as well as England. The newspaper says Germany expressed a wish to see the draft of the arbitration proposal and also indicated her readiness to take up the study of the propositions in the draft treaty to arrive here shortly. To the above statement can be added the semi-official expression of opinion that Germany, like Britain and France, is most sympathetic towards President Taft's Arbitration proposal. The leading newspapers welcome the news of the suggested Arbitration Treaty, finding that the project is open to improvement in some important points.

Reciprocity Unrest.

Special Evening Telegram. OTTAWA, To-day. Rumors of elections, cabinet changes, and other political matters, floating around, kept members of the Government and other liberal politicians busy filling denials. Mr. Fielding issued a statement to the Press, respecting his trip to England. He declares he booked a passage ten days ago and that he merely intends to pass through England on his way to the Continent, and may not meet Premier Laurier at all. Government supporters are frankly pleased by despatches from Washington which indicate the Reciprocity issue may be removed from Canadian politics by the Senate of the United States.

Motorist Meeting.

Some time ago a meeting was held of the owners of motor cars and motor cycles with a view of discussing the desirability of organizing a society. Last night, under the chairmanship of Mr. H. D. Reid and the secretaryship of Mr. G. M. Barr, a second meeting was held in a room of the Board of Trade. A desire was expressed to give full publicity to all their doings and to welcome reporters at such meetings. It was expressed that the general desire among motorists was to form a public opinion which would exercise control over individual drivers who might be inclined to be rash and reckless, and to promote good feeling among motorists themselves and friendly relations with the public in general. There are now some 119 motor cars and cycles in the city, and in the interest of the motorists themselves and the public, it is well that such an opinion should prevail as would assist the police and the municipality in enforcing the rules of the road and the regulations of speed. It was decided to proceed no further with the organizing until copies of bye-laws and constitution had been received from similar societies in England and the States.

The Brilliant Here.

H.M.S. Brilliant, Capt. Woolcombe, arrived here early this morning from Bay St. George via St. Pierre and will sail again Sunday for St. George. The ship left St. Pierre yesterday and had a good run to port. When at St. Pierre the commander of the ship called upon the Governor of the Island and an exchange of courtesies took place. The ship will celebrate Saturday, the King's birthday, with a Royal Salute and will be dressed out in bunting. She will also be here to participate in the Coronation festivities.

New Encyclopaedia.

THE 1911 NELSON ENCYCLOPAEDIA is based on the Harmer's Encyclopaedia and the Nelson "Loose-Leaf." The amount of reading matter has been slightly increased. The best has been retained from both the older books, hundreds of new articles have been written and everything has been revised and brought up to date. It will be issued in twenty-five fortnightly shilling volumes in the handy size and neat cloth bindings familiar to all purchasers of the Nelson Popular Libraries. The paper is of excellent quality. Illustrations and diagrams elucidate the text where necessary and numerous full-page pictures add to the interest and value of the work. The Encyclopaedia itself will occupy twenty-three volumes and an English Dictionary and an Atlas as vols. 24 and 25, making the whole set a complete Reference Library for the home.

Vols. 1, 2 and 3 now in stock. Price 25c. per vol.

Alpaca for Dresses Wears Well.

ALPACA is an ideal summer fabric—because the rich, smooth, lustrous surface, gives the wearer a refined, aristocratic appearance, and the nature of the surface does not allow the dust of the street to adhere, therefore garments made of it, always look bright, clean and new.
 The Peruvian animal which produces the wool for this fabric, is noted for its lustrous silky wool, and the long fiber of the wool ensures satisfactory wearing qualities. The alpaca cloth will retain its silky appearance, because it is natural to the wool, and not artificially produced, as you will find in so with some fabrics.
 Children's Coats, Dresses, Women's Costumes, Skirts and Blouses made of Alpaca look handsome, and for street wear, one of the most serviceable fabrics you can buy.
 We can give you this reliable and good wearing, stylish, Alpaca Cloth in the following prices and colorings:—
BROWN, all prices from..... 50c. to $1.00 a yard
CREAM, all prices from..... 50c. to 90c. a yard
NAVY BLUE, all prices from..... 40c. to $1.10 a yard
DARK GREEN, prices..... 45, 65, 90c. a yard
BLACK, all prices..... 30c. to $1.10 a yard
 Figure on six yards for a Skirt and Blouse, and call and examine the goods to-day—or write for samples.
 If you want to save money it will pay any woman to examine our extensive range of Dress materials.

"MOLASSINE" MEAL
 It is hoped that these NOTES ON LIVE-STOCK have been read with interest, and closely followed and acted on by all owners of animals and poultry.
 The proof of the pudding is in the eating.
 We can show you learned tables of analysis, showing the percentages of albuminoids, carbohydrates, etc., but many of us would not be much the wiser.
 Give "MOLASSINE" MEAL to your animals and then WATCH RESULTS. They will speak louder than analysis.
 You will be satisfied, and will stick to "MOLASSINE" MEAL and it will stand by you. Be particular about the name.
