Ruled Destiny!

CHAPTER XXII.
LINKED WITH THE PAST.

"Well, I wrote and told her so, and asked for more particulars and references, of course. The references came, and I found them extremely satisfactory. I then gave her some few particulars respecting yourself, and, in short, I accepted the situation for you on condition of your agreement. The salary is not a large one, but there will be a comfortable home, and Florence is a beautiful place, I am told. Never was out of England myself, and don't want to be!" he jerked in; "but still, it's a beautiful place, and most ladies are fond of flowers, why—"

"Floris' eyes filled. 'You have been very good to me, Mr. Morrell. When you asked me the other day whether I had any friends, I ought to have replied, 'Yes; one very, very kind and true one!' And have you really got the situation for me?"

"Yes," he said, huskily; "that is, if you like to take it. You shall look over the papers and decide. The work will not be hard; you will have to do some copying and write from dictation—I should buy a work on botany and study it on the journey, if I were you—and from what I hear, I think you would find Mrs. Sinclair a very nice lady. Now, don't say a word, but look over the letters while I take a cup of tea."

"Floris took the letters to a side table and read them. As Mr. Morrell had said, they were very satisfactory. The salary was not large, but ample for her poor wants, and there would be a comfortable home."

"But the greatest attraction in the offer for her was the fact that, if she accepted, she could get away from England. Florence, too! How often she had read of it and longed to see it! Heart-rending! A pang shot through her heart for a moment, as she remembered that it was one of the places Lord Norman had often talked of taking her to when they were married—when they were married! Alas, alas!"

"Mr. Morrell, who was watching her, saw her lip quiver. 'There, there,' he said. 'Don't think any more about it, if you don't like the idea. Something else will be sure to turn up.'"

"Floris rose and went up to him. 'Nothing could turn up better than this,' she said. 'Then you will go?' he said. She hesitated a moment. 'It is a long way from England!'

"Ah, that is the greatest inducement to me!" she responded. "Yes, I will go, Mr. Morrell." And so unconsciously she drew the chain that bound her to the past a link closer.

All unknown to herself, and un-guessed at, there awaited her at Florence the most eventful chapter of her life's history!

CHAPTER XXIII.
A BITTER PUNISHMENT.

IT was an awful ride which Lady Blanche had undertaken, and for the remainder of her life she remembered that night journey.

They reached the house, and at the sound of their approach, Sir Joseph came to the door. He started as his eyes fell on Lady Blanche, and he looked beyond her as if he had expected to see some one else—Floris. "Lady Blanche!" he said. "Have you come all this way—"

She fell rather than slipped from the saddle and caught his arm. "Tell—tell me the truth!" she panted. "Is he—"

Her white face and suppressed emotion startled him. "Lord Norman, thank Heaven, is alive!" he answered gravely. Lady Blanche put her hands before her eyes and remained motionless for a moment, then she accepted Sir Joseph's arm and allowed him to lead her into the house.

"And you have ridden all this way in the dead of the night!" he said, scarcely yet realizing that it was really she who stood before him. "You must be wet through. You have no change of clothes; we have, unfortunately, no women-folk here."

She shook her head. "It does not matter. No, I am not very wet. I do not care in the least. Sir Joseph, can I—can I see him? But of course, I can! I have come to nurse him!"

Sir Joseph stared. If any one should have come, it should have been Floris—the girl to whom he was engaged. His thought found expression. "Have you told—how is Miss Carlisle? I trust the sad news has not made her ill?" he said.

Lady Blanche looked up wildly. She had almost forgotten Floris. "We—we did not tell her," she said, coldly and distinctly. "We thought it better not to do so until—until we know how Lord Norman really was. This is why I have come."

Sir Joseph felt surprised. "You have not told her?" he said, gravely. "I am rather sorry, I think she ought to know. But perhaps she will follow with Lady Pendleton in the carriage?" he said.

"Perhaps so," assented Lady Blanche; "and now will you go and see if I may go to him, Sir Joseph? Dr. Greene may want me."

He went upstairs, and came down again after what seemed an age to her. "Yes, Dr. Greene says you may see him; but he thinks you should have some rest."

She took off her hat and put it down with a gesture of refusal. They entered the bedroom, and Lady Blanche, pressing her hand to her heart for a moment, unseen by Sir Joseph, glided to the bed. There lay Lord Norman, white to the lips—white as the bandage about his head, saving for the dark red scars on his forehead which the savage stag had caused.

Beside him stood Dr. Greene, and at a little distance the miserable boy whose inexperience and youthful im-

HUSBAND SAVES WIFE

From Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"For many months I was not able to do my work owing to a weakness which caused backache and headaches. A friend called my attention to one of your newspaper advertisements and immediately my husband bought three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. After taking two bottles I felt fine and my troubles caused by that weakness are a thing of the past. All women who suffer as I did should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. J. A. ROHRSBERG, 620 Knapp St., N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Women who suffer from any form of weakness, as indicated by displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues," should accept Mrs. Rohrsberg's suggestion and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a thorough trial. For over forty years it has been correcting such ailments. If you have mysterious complications write for advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Dr. Greene looked up as she approached, and scanned her face critically. "Is he asleep?" she whispered, huskily.

"No," he said, aloud; "you need not be afraid to speak. Lady Blanche; he is quite unconscious, and will remain so, I am afraid for some time."

"Is he much hurt?" she asked, her eyes riveted on the white face. "Very much," he said, concisely. "The stag did not spare him, poor fellow!"

"Is it dead?" she ground out between her teeth, with a sudden savage flash of her eyes. "Is it—the stag? I do not know." "Yes," murmured Lord Harry, miserably, from the other end of the room.

She did not hear him, but stood with her eyes fixed on the motionless face, while she drew off her gloves. "Sir Joseph tells me you wish to help me, Lady Blanche," said Dr. Greene. "Do you not think you had better rest for a while? Your journey has been an extraordinary one for a lady to undergo."

She shook her head. "I could not rest. Tell me what I am to do?" He inclined his head, seeing that any further remonstrance would be useless.

"Keep his bandages moist, please," he said. "I am going downstairs to prepare fresh ones. Call me if he gives the slightest sign of returning consciousness."

As he left the room Lady Blanche sank on her knees beside the bed, and let her head drop until her lips rested on Lord Norman's.

"Oh, my darling, my darling!" she breathed. "You will not die! You must not die! No, Bruce, live for my sake! My darling, my darling!"

Lord Harry stared at her with his bloodshot eyes, and almost frightened by what he had seen, rose and stole out.

The morning broke, and the sun came sleepily through the mist, and the noon and evening passed, and still Lord Norman lay as dead to all around him, as if indeed life had passed the portals of his white lips; and still Lady Blanche knelt down by his side.

Toward nightfall the carriage from Ballyfoe arrived. It contained Lady Pendleton and a nurse, but to Sir Joseph's amazement, no Floris came. "Have you told Miss Carlisle?" he asked as he held Lady Betty's trembling hands, and tried to encourage her.

"No!" said Lady Betty, flushing and then turning pale again. "No; Miss Carlisle was summoned from Ballyfoe quite suddenly, before the news arrived."

be in the way, left them, and the two women confronted each other. "You have come, then," said Lady Blanche. "Where are the things you have brought?"

"The nurse has them," said Lady Betty, coldly. "The nurse!" echoed Lady Blanche. "Why did you bring one? I am the nurse, Lady Pendleton."

"What right have you here?" she demanded. "Do you think Floris will be pleased when she hears—"

"Floris, Floris! I am sick of the name!" said Lady Blanche, with a curl of the lips. "Listen to me!" and she came quite close to the agitated woman. "Floris Carlisle is not here, she will not come here. You know why, as well or better than I do. Do you think because she has jilted and deserted him, that I should do so, too? Wait! I have come down because I have something to say to you. Remember, please, that I am Lord Norman's relative; that I am nearer to him than any Floris, jilt or no jilt, and that it is I—and no one else—who will tell him how she has deserted him! I will brook no interference from any one but Miss Carlisle, and do not expect to meet with any from her!" and, with a wave of the white hand, she swept noiselessly from the room.

The days passed; the little stone house, which had been built for pleasure, had become like a hospital. On the evening of the fifth day, as Dr. Greene stood beside the window, looking out on the wild scene with a grave and anxious face, he heard Lady Blanche whisper his name, and turned noiselessly to the bed.

Lord Norman had opened his eyes and was looking at Lady Blanche with an expression of consciousness in them.

"Floris!" he breathed. Even then she did not speak, but her hand stole along the bedclothes and enclosed his hot, wasted one.

"Floris! You here? What has happened? Ah! I remember"—he added, with a faint effort at a smile. "Is—the boy safe?"

"Lord Harry is all right," said Dr. Greene. "He has gone home." "Poor boy! I am glad of that. I am very tired! How long have I been lying here? The whole day?"

Dr. Greene drew a silk handkerchief across the feverish eyes. "Don't talk now, Norman," he said. "Try and sleep. We will tell you all about it in the morning."

With a gesture of obedience he turned his head on the pillow, his hand still on Blanche's.

All night Lady Blanche sat with his hand in hers—hers which he thought was Floris!—and in the morning he awoke, with the fever left far behind.

"Why, Blanche," he said, feebly; "you here? Where is Floris? Has she gone to lie down?" She inclined her head.

"I am glad of that. Poor girl! She must need some rest, surely! She has been watching beside me all night, hasn't she?" Lady Blanche smoothed the bedclothes.

"Don't talk yet, Norman," she said, huskily. "Blanche, how long have I been lying here?"

"Six days, Norman," she faltered. "Six days! Six—and Floris has been watching all the time! My poor darling!" and the tears—she was still fearfully weak and easily moved—rose to his eyes. "Six days unconscious! And, of course, you all thought I was going to die? My own poor darling, how she must have suffered! Is she very ill, Blanche?"

Lady Blanche shook her head. She could not speak. Every word he uttered went through her heart like a knife thrust. (To be continued.)

Fashion Plates

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Ready Book of our Fashion Plates. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

A PRACTICAL SET OF SHORT CLOTHES FOR A LITTLE GIRL.

2513—This outfit comprises a simple dress, a short-waisted petticoat, and a combination garment consisting of waist and drawers which could also serve as a model for bloomers. The dress is a design good for lawn, batiste, gingham, chambray, voile or percale. For the undergarment muslin, cambric, long cloth and nainsook could be used. If the combination undergarment is used as rompers, it could be of galatee, gingham, drill, linen, repp or percale. The Pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. Size 4 requires, for the dress, 2 1/2 yards; for the petticoat, 1 1/2 yard; for the combination, 1 1/2 yard, of 36-inch material. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A Dainty Dress for Party or Best Wear.

2487—In soft batiste, china silk or crepe, handkerchief linen or dimity, this will make a pretty frock. It is also nice for all-over embroidery, flouncing, embroidered voile or dotted swiss. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow length. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 requires 4 1/4 yards of 36-inch material. ## Market Notes

CODFISH.—Exports of this staple for the past week totalled 9,000 quintals. A few lots of new cod arrived from the outports and sold at 10.00 quintal. Most of it being small, however, this figure should not be taken as a standard. Stocks of 1917 cod in the city, are now reduced to about 3,500 quintals. Foreign markets are healthy and the demand is good. The present outlook for prosperous cod fishery appears in prospect. Barriers marketing difficulties the price of 1.1 Merchandise may go to 1.2.

COD OIL.—Present markets are quite dull it being the period between seasons. Common is quoted at $270 to $280 per ton, and refined at $2.50 to $2.60 per gallon. Most of the fishermen are receiving as high as 15 cents per gallon. Factory men are inclined to hold present products at a higher price than now rules, and it is possible that $3.00 will be paid for it. But small shipments of new medicine oil have been, so far, made to St. John's.

HERRING.—The balance of the Scotch pack in Green Bay is gradually being sent out by schooners to Halifax and New York. Owing to the Cold Storage difficulty holders were glad to let go at $15. The result in Green Bay at present are less than 5,000 barrels. Spring pack splits are noted in good demand and are selling from $7 to $7.50. The West India market demand holds good, the last quotation from there being $14.

LOBSTERS.—A very small catch for 1913 will apparently be the outcome of this fishery, as there are but a few packers operating. Fair work has been done in St. George's and Bonny Bays. Altogether it is estimated that the pack will not be above one half of last year's. The price to-day is $11 per case, pounds, fat.

PROVISIONS.—The Food Control Board viewing the possible shortage of Flour imports, have published regulations compelling the use of substitutes which regulations, we suggest, should be noted not only by dealers, but by householders as well. At present 10 per cent. of substitutes must be used in bread-making. After August 5th, 2 per cent will be insisted upon, and heavy penalty is imposed on persons failing to comply. Notwithstanding the scarcity of "all white" flour, there is no cover carrying charges (this is new one) and leading brands are now $14.75. In a few weeks "Government Standard" will be the only flour available. The price remains $12.50 whole sale as will have been noticed some days ago. The United States wheat crop has been estimated to be 40 million bushels short. Pork still on Market Notes.

CODFISH.—Export of this staple for the past week totalled 9,000 quintals. A few lots of new cure arrived from the outports and sold at $10.60 apiece. Most of it being small, however, this figure should not be taken as a standard. Stocks of 1917 catch, in the city, are now reduced to about 25,000 quintals. Foreign markets are healthy and the demand is good. The present outlook for prosperous year could not be brighter, as a bountiful fishery appears in prospect. Barring marketing difficulties the price of No. 1 Merchantal may go to $12.

COD OIL.—Present markets are quite dull it being the period between seasons. Common is quoted at from $2.70 to $2.80 per ton, and Refined at $2.50 to $2.60 per gallon. Most of the fishermen are selling liver to the refiners and are receiving as high as 50 cents per gallon. Factory men are inclined to hold present products for a higher price than now rules, and it is possible that $2.00 will be paid later. But small shipments of new medicinal oil have been, so far, made to St. John's.

HERRING.—The balance of the Scotch pack in Green Bay is gradually being sent out by schooners to Halifax and New York. Owing to the Cold Storage difficulty holders were glad to let go at $15. The remains in Green Bay at present are less than 5,000 barrels. Spring pack split herring are in good demand and are worth from $7 to $7.50. The West Indian market demand holds good, the last quotation from there being $14.

LOBSTERS.—A very small catch for 1918 will apparently be the outcome of the fishery, as there are but very few packers operating. Fair work has been done in St. George's and Bonne Bays. Altogether it is estimated that the pack will not be above one half of last year's. The price to-day is $18 per case, pounds, flat.

PROVISIONS.—The Food Control Board viewing the possible shortage in Flour imports, have published regulations compelling the use of substitutes, which regulations, we suggest, be noted not only by dealers, but householders as well. At present 10 per cent of substitutes must be used in bread-making. After August 5th, 20 per cent will be insisted upon, and a heavy penalty is imposed on persons failing to comply. Notwithstanding the scarcity of "all white" grades the price has advanced but 25 cents, merely to cover carrying charges (this is a new one) and leading brands are now $14.75. In a few weeks "Government Standard" will be the only Flour available. The price remains at $13.50 whole sale as will have been noticed, some days ago. The United States wheat crop has been estimated to be 40 million bushels short. Pork is continues easy, but Beef shows no sign of declining and packers are confident of being able to keep up the present high prices. Therefore no hope of cheaper Salt Beef can be held out for 1918. City quotations are: Best Brands, $41; Packet and Boneless, $40; Cuttings, $39.50. Pork whole sale rates are: Ham Butt, 94¢; Cleat, 85¢; Spare Ribs, 75¢. The imports to date are short—Pork, 7,000 barrels; Beef, 5,000 barrels. Our supplies of granulated sugar from America have been cut one half, consequently the public are advised to fall back on the Barbados article for general household purposes. Prices of these grades have not advanced since last writing, and there are two cargoes on the way. The maximum price of molasses has been set by the F. C. B. at 35 cents wholesale, with an additional 1/4 cent per gallon to cover carrying expenses for each month, until the close of the season. Several cargoes are due within the next two months.

"Live in a Worry"

invites death in a hurry. Worry wastes nerve force at a tremendous rate. The more exhausted the greater the tendency to worry. Then how is one to get out of this vicious circle? By building up the nervous system with the aid of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

As the nerves are strengthened you forget to worry and find yourself resting and sleeping naturally.

Mealie Pudding.

Like the haggis, the mealie pudding is to the Sassenach a Scotch delicacy the origin of which is wrapped in deepest mystery. The other morning two travel-stained English Tommies dropped into the restaurant at Aberdeen station for some much-needed refreshment. They were heartily welcomed by the ladies in charge, and in a few minutes a succulent mealie pudding, piping hot, was placed before each. But had seen more than a bit of life since joining the army, but a mealie pudding was one of the things hitherto undreamed of in their philosophy. Determined, however, to brave the unknown, one of them boldly his pud- dings, and took a mouthful. As he slowly masticated the oatmeal a look of contentment came over his features. "Go ahead, Bill!" he exclaimed. "It's only good old porridge in a tank."

L. O. A. Anniversary Service.

SPLENDID CONTRIBUTION TO ARMY AND NAVY.

Yesterday the members of the Orange Society held their anniversary service, attending Wesley Church. Rev. H. Royle was the preacher and took for his text the words: "The Day of Jesus Christ" (Phil. 1-6). His subject was "Orangism in the Reconstruction Period." He emphasized that the two great pillars on which the foundation of the Orange Society was laid, namely, the Bible and the Throne; and second, with this foundation securely laid and with the influence that the organization was bound to exert over the world, especially on the North American Continent, there was no knowing to what extent the society, as individual members and as a whole, would have in shaping the destinies of future generations. The Orange Society was noted in the past for its loyalty and in this great war it had played its part nobly. From Canada and Newfoundland 80,000 had gone to fight for the empire, and the society was founded; of this number Newfoundland had contributed 2,000 of its members to the army and navy, a record which might well bring the flush of pleasure to every Orangeman. We had no reason whatever to be ashamed of our contributions to the army of Britain in this fearful struggle. The church was crowded to the doors and all listened with rapt attention to the able discourse delivered. Return was made to the hall by way of Hamilton Street, New Gower Street and Theatre Hill, where the members were addressed by the Grand Master, Bro. J. C. Pudeator, the Past Grand Master, Bro. R. A. Squires, and P. M. Bro. A. W. Piccott and H. E. Cowan. Votes of thanks were moved to the pastor, organist and choir of Wesley Church, and the S. A. Band, which were carried by acclamation, after which the brethren dispersed.

Obituary.

JOSEPH PIPPY.

Joseph Pippy, whose mortal remains were consigned to mother earth yesterday, was for many years a resident of this city, and a valuable citizen of the Dominion. He was trained for his business career at the store of Ayre and Marshall, and when later he branched out with the late A. F. Shirran, it was with a thorough knowledge of the business. After years of successful trade he retired and then devoted his attention to minerals, and initiated the development of the Bell Island industry. It was while on a prospecting tour that he passed away, so that it can be well said of him that he was interested in the subject to the end. A daughter, Dr. Olive, and two sons, Capt. Wilfred, of the Royal New Regiment, and Mr. George Water, of the city, are left to mourn a kind and loving father.

Wedding Bells

A very quiet wedding took place at Christ Church, Bonavista, July 11th, when Miss O. Miffin, late Sister of the General Hospital, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Miffin, of Bonavista, and Mr. C. Brown, of Ayre & Sons, were united in holy matrimony. The bride was given away by her father, while her sister Miss Mary Miffin and cousin Miss Stella Moore, acted as bridesmaids. The groom was supported by Mr. J. Bishop, and Mr. A. Lawrence. After supper the wedding party drove to Catalina, from that to Trinity to spend their honeymoon.

'Justice' Wants to Know

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Some time ago a city Wholesale House imported contrary to law a large quantity of second hand clothing. The police got wise to it and confiscated some of the goods, but so far no prosecution has taken place. The chief reason for the law being on the Statute Book is to prevent the importation of disease into the country, as some years ago an epidemic of disease was traced to second-hand clothing imported from abroad. The public are discussing this case and watching the Customs Department to see what action is to be taken. If a respect for law is to be maintained in the country, then this and other similar cases must be treated fairly and British justice handed out. If flagrant breaches of the law such as this case is reported to be, are covered over by the authorities, then it is certainly time for citizens to wake up and demand a change. Yours etc.,

What Canadians say to our Victory Loan.

The following is taken from the June number of "Investment Suggestions," a monthly publication, issued by Greenshields and Company, Ottawa:

NEWFOUNDLAND'S VICTORY LOAN

Bonds of the Government of Newfoundland, which were so well thought of by British investors as to sell on a basis of less than 4 per cent, before the War, can now be had by Canadian investors on a 6 1/2 per cent basis. London is closed to outside borrowing, and so, too, is New York. This, with the general rise in interest rates, is the main explanation of the fact that a Bond of the oldest colony in the British Empire has been brought out at such an attractive rate in the Canadian market.

The Bond is a ten-year issue, bearing 6 1/2 per cent interest, the first government issue of its kind on the present movement. Newfoundland's chief industries are fishing, lumbering, pulp manufacturing and mining, and as these are prosperous, business conditions in the Island are excellent and likely to continue so. The Island's foreign trade has been showing a good balance in its favor, and for the current year it is estimated that exports will be $29,647,000 against imports of $27,534,000. The Government's revenue for the last fiscal year was $5,206,648 and expenditure $4,554,831, leaving a surplus of $651,757.

Wesley Pastor Says Farewell.

Yesterday Rev. Mr. Royle said farewell to the congregation to which he has ministered for the past four years. In the morning, the young people occupied the time, and in the afternoon, Rev. Mr. Royle addressed the members of the Orange Society who, with their friends, filled the church. At the evening service taking place with him the best wishes and the Lord helped us," he reviewed his work which showed a very creditable record. Many had been added to the membership, and finances had gone away up beyond anticipation. He thanked the congregation for the many kindnesses shown him and his family, which reached its apex when a deputation waited on him on Saturday night and presented him with a handsome cheque. Mr. Royle closed with an earnest exhortation to go forward with renewed strength and vigour in the good work, giving a parting blessing which affected both himself and his hearers. Mr. Royle takes with him the best wishes and blessings of every member of his old congregation.

A Thrilling Experience.

The war correspondent with the British army of the Petit Parisien relates an inspiring story of British bravery, skill and endurance. We were passing through the Lorette Wood, west of Alilly-sur-Noye, when a British aeroplane fell down 300 metres away from us. The motor caught fire, and in a moment the machine was enveloped in flames. In the furnace, strapped to his seat, and motionless, was the pilot, a very young officer, almost a lad. His head reclined on his shoulder, and in his pale face the half-closed eyes gave no sign of life. He was still alive, and when consciousness returned he showed great surprise at finding himself in the house whither he had been conveyed. In what terrible drama had this unfortunate lad played during the space of but a few minutes. He had been on a reconnoitering trip, and was flying very low to spy the enemy's positions, when eight German triplanes dashed at him. He rose immediately, stimulated fight, and then by splendid manoeuvring sent three of the enemy spinning to earth. At that moment he felt a sharp pain in his head. A machine gun bullet had struck him; others whistled by his ears, and a second broke his collarbone. His head swam, and the bursting of the engines deafened all sound. Yet a third bullet tore through the young officer's neck, and three more struck him in various parts of the body. He could do no more, and shot for the earth. Though bleeding from many wounds, and hardly able to hold up his head, he still retained enough command over the machine to avoid capsizing it, and so came to ground. How is that for an example of pluck and energy? But it is the current coin of the British Air Service.

She Talked Too Much.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Why do we talk so much? I asked the man who has charge of renting the cottages at the place where we spend our summers, why a certain very attractive cottage was not rented yet.

"Well," he said: "I think there's just one thing the matter with it."

"What's that?"

"It's Mrs. R.," he said. (She is the owner.) "I rent it all right when she isn't around, but she's there this spring and if I take anyone there she gets to talking, and you know what she is. She simply talks their heads off. Just scares them away, she does. No, I don't mean that she lets out any skeletons, but she talks so much she gets them confused, and they don't know what they do want. I'll have a man who's just about made up his mind to take the place, and then she'll bear down on him and talk to him in that la-de-da way of hers until all he wants is to get away."

If I didn't know Mrs. R. I might think the man was exaggerating. But I do know her.

Then Speech Becomes Annoying.

There is a time when speech is persuasive and convincing, and there is a time when that point is passed, and speech becomes annoying and confusing—like the buzz of the mosquito.

How few of us there are who never pass that point!

The fine art of knowing when to keep silent, is a branch of psychology which the social aspirant and the business man and woman both should master.

When I was a newspaper reporter, I learned a sharp lesson which ought to have lasted me a lifetime.

When I interviewed the Governor, I had been sent to get the man who was then governor of that State, to write me his opinion of a big evangelical campaign which had just come to a conclusion.

He did not want to do it. I argued and urged. I had him almost persuaded. I dipped his pen in the ink and was thinking of what he should say. And then, like a little fool, I said: "You don't need to write anything very positive, if you don't want to. I don't care if you are just on the fence."

A change passed over his face. He laid the pen down. "No," he said, "the governor of this state cannot be neutral. I don't think I will say anything, after all."

So I Fell Down on My Assignment.

And that was final. I had to go back and say I had fallen down on my assignment.

As I say, that lesson should have lasted me a lifetime. But I grieve to say it has not. Every now and then I catch myself at it again, saying enough and then saying some more and "spilling the beans."

When you are on the verge of talking too much, either in the way of saying unkind things, or of telling private affairs, or of talking about yourself, pause and remember this: If you keep silence now, you can speak later if you choose. But if you speak now, you can't recall it later.

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

Milady's Boudoir.

FACIAL MASSAGE.

Facial massage covers a multitude of blemishes, its efficacy is too well known to require praise for eliminating wrinkles, filling in the hollows and restoring tone to underlying tissues.

Massage refines the texture of the skin beautifies it and imparts a soft velvety glow through its gentle manipulations which may be acquired in no other way.

Therefore you should make it a practice to devote from twenty minutes to half an hour massaging the face, throat, arms and hands. This work is preferably done at night, for during sleep the muscles are in repose and the benefit gained will last longer.

On close inspection you will observe that a number of fine wrinkles have crept into the complexion during the summer sojourn. These as a rule manifest themselves under the eyes, from the eyes across to the temples, between the eyes and across the forehead. These wrinkles have in a great measure been encouraged by not providing the eyes with proper shade and protection while in the sun.

Where the eyes are weak, squinting is sure to follow and nothing will produce a more flourishing crop of deep lines than this practice of screwing the face into weird grimaces. Often-times hard water and strong astringent soaps alike tend to dry out the natural oil, leaving the skin dry, harsh and in a prime condition to take wrinkles.

Cucumber creams are highly recommended, as they not only tend to generally beautify the skin, but act in the capacity of a gentle bleach. They render the skin delicately smooth and pinkish in tint.

Household Notes.

Bread should be made at home. It is impossible to save too much wheat.

Excellent waffles are made of cornmeal.

Leaf bread can be made with baking powder.

A rice omelet may be made with leftover peas.

Hand-to-mouth buying means expensive living.

Cornmeal mush can be the main breakfast dish.

Sponge made with barley flour is very successful.

Cheese should always be served with corn bread.

Frankfurter sausages are good to bill with cabbage.

Add apples to the rhubarb pie, it will be less sharp.

Food should look attractive as well as taste well.

Mashed potatoes left over may be made into biscuits.

Fruit sandwiches must not be forgotten on the picnic.

One pint of milk makes 2 and a half ounces of fat soft cheese.

Pasty and fried foods are both expensive and indigestible.

The best cheese is made from milk before it has soured.

Even in a small backyard something edible can be grown.

One of the best substitutes for a piece of bread is a potato.

Shortcake may have its crust made of barley and rice flour.

After washing lettuce place in a paper bag and put on ice until used.

Every kitchen garden should have a few bushes of black currants for the sake of jam.

Sprinkle fried bread crumbs, paprika and celery salt over string beans cooked for the table.

If you can get fresh peach leaves they can be used instead of almond flavoring.

To produce when possible and save always is the duty of every housewife.

Leftover corn bread can be made into crumbs and used in making gridle cakes.

Cherries, white currants and raspberries all lend themselves to sun preserving.

Meals should be planned at least three days ahead. This aids economical buying.

French dressing made with peanut oil instead of olive oil is a pleasant change.

A very small amount of meat can be combined with rice or macaroni to make croquettes.

THE BOY WHO WON'T COME BACK.

The neighbors wonder what to say To comfort her throughout the day. The women stand about and sigh And stroke her hair and softly cry Of him who was so proud to go. They see her at the window pane And know her watching's all in vain. In vain for him she long will weep; Her soldier boy will not return.

The news has come that he lies dead And sleeps in Freedom's valley red. His mother treasures now a note He wrote her last before he wrote; "Dear little lady," it began, "He volunteered for duty grim. Knowing that death awaited him, And said, before that night attack, "And never I write to let you know We live because he dared to go. I think you would have thrilled with pride Had you been here the hour he died. "What man," I asked, "to-night, will die To look Old Glory in the sky? And he was first to leave the line And answer: 'Let the task be mine. I'll lead you all the way, I know You would have wanted him to go.' When peace returns with victory sweet, He will not march along the street Nor share the laughter and the cheers Nor see the mothers' grateful tears; But he will be among the throng Who went to save the world from wrong. Who, smiling, paid the bitter price In service and in sacrifice And whispered, in death's presence black: "Tell mother that I won't be back."

WARTIME DEBT.

In times like these keep out of debt; your solvency's your one best bet. So long as you don't owe a cent to any swayed human soul, you have the right to look ahead without a bit of fear or dread. The times are weird, uncertain, tense; no man has such prophetic sense that he can say what grief's in stock tomorrow morn at 10 o'clock. We only know that prices rise until they scratch along the skies; we only know they won't go down while Mars still wears his bughouse frown. To-day you're husky, sound and hale, and fit to gather in the kale. To-morrow you may have disease, or break your legs off at the knees. To-day you have a job that's good, you whistle as you saw your wood; to-morrow you may be informed you've lost the place you long have warmed. If hard luck hands you, thus, a poke, what will you do if you are broke? You cannot borrow fifty cents from any easy going gent, for in these times of grief and groans each guy requires his stock of boner. Be prudent now and put

WAR REVIEW.

Bad weather continues to prevail on the greater part of the battle front in France and Flanders and the military operations are still far below normal. Nowhere have there been any engagements arising in importance above trench raids and patrol encounters. On many sectors, however, the big guns are constantly hammering opposing positions, especially on the American front along the Marne where the activity of the long range pieces has increased perceptibly on the sectors held by the British Army. Albert, Kemmel Hill and Ypres are near Corey where the French are face to face with the enemy. As yet there is no sign that the date of commencement of the great offensive by the Germans, the battle which is thought will prove the biggest effort the enemy has yet made is at hand. The military observers, however, still believe that with a cessation of the rains, the drifting away of the low clouds, and a return to clear sky an attempt at the big drive or the piercing of the Allied front will be made. All apparently is in readiness in the Entente camps for any eventualities, and supreme confidence evidently prevails among the commanders that the men and guns the enemy

Military Operations Confined to Big Gun Fighting.

New Offensive in Macedonia. Austrians Retreating in Albania. British send Troops to Siberia.

WAR REVIEW.
Bad weather continues to prevail on the greater part of the battle front in France and Flanders and the military operations are still far below normal. Nowhere have there been any engagements arising in importance above trench raids and patrol encounters. On many sectors, however, the big guns are constantly hammering on opposing positions, especially on the American front along the Marne, where the activity of the long range pieces has increased perceptibly on the sectors held by the British near Albert, Kemmel Hill and Tynes and near Corey where the French are face to face with the enemy. As yet there is no sign that the date of commencement of the great offensive by the Germans, the battle which is thought will prove the biggest effort the enemy has yet made is at hand. The military observers, however, still believe that with a cessation of the rains, the drifting away of the low clouds, and a return to clear sky an attempt at the big drive or the piercing of the Allied front will be made. All apparently is in readiness in the Entente camps for any eventualities, and supreme confidence evidently prevails among the commanders that the men and guns the enemy will have to face will prove an unsurmountable barrier to Paris or the Channel ports. The British troops in Macedonia seemingly have started an operation against the Teutonic allies, which may develop west along the front and eventually conform with the successful drive which is being carried out by the French and Italians in Albania. West of the town of Doiran which lies on the railway north of Salonika, the British have delivered a blow against the Bulgarians which was productive of good results. Details of the operation are lacking, but it is not unreasonable to assume that it had in view the ultimate capture of the railway line running north from Uskub, and the outflanking of the enemy lines northeast of Monastir. Meanwhile in Albania, the French and Italians are giving the enemy no rest, pressing him back daily over the trackless country and capturing strategic positions and villages. The latest French official statement shows that the French troops have taken the villages of Narta and Garamashi, which bring their east flank appreciably nearer Lake Ochrida. The morale of the Austrians is declared to be extremely bad, and numerous surrenders of war-sick soldiers are reported to be constantly taking place.

which the main railway from Paris to Amiens passes, and which has been in the hands of the enemy since March. More than five hundred German officers and men already captured have been sent to the rear, and others are arriving.

WASHINGTON, July 13. British reinforcements have been despatched to Siberia according to official information received here to-day to assist the Russians and Czechoslovaks guarding the Allied stores from Bolsheviks acting with German prisoners who are reported to be advancing upon Vladivostok.

Thoughts Upon the Times

(By PATRIOT.)

When the late Lord Rhondda was appointed Food Controller of Britain by Premier Lloyd George he is credited with saying, "I am going there as guardian and trustee of the consumer, and particularly the poor consumer." He lived up to his promise and his death is generally regretted all over Great Britain. By fixing the prices on all food stuffs, he put into effect a policy of controlling the profits of food dealers, from the producer down to the retailer. Everyone had confidence in Lord Rhondda's business-like methods of handling the food problems of Britain. In his death Premier Lloyd George has lost a personal friend, and the nation one of its greatest men.

The time is rapidly approaching when the fish buyers will have to agree upon the opening price for new fish. The fisherman should be on his guard and watch things more closely this year than ever. There are good reasons for this, and as the season advances these reasons will reveal themselves to the fishermen. Never before was there a greater demand for Newfoundland dried fish than now. The opening price for new fish should not be less than $14 per qt. The markets warrant this price. Considering the price paid in the foreign markets for fish, and the prices the fishermen have to pay for food and clothing, they are justified in expecting new fish to open at not less than $14 per qt. Many of Mr. Coaker's former friends among the fishermen are watching the columns of their paper—the Advocate—for advice on this important matter, but any information bearing upon it is conspicuous by its absence. Time was, when in the Advocate the fishermen would be informed of the market conditions of their produce, and get advice as to the price they might expect for the same. But that was in the past, before Mr. Coaker secured the reins of government. Be on your guard, fishermen, and remember that your fish is worth more than ever it was before.

The most important plan for the betterment of the working classes in this generation is that of the new Housing Scheme, and those who would oppose such a public and vital necessity as this appears to be, should be driven from public life and relegated to oblivion. The scheme is feasible and should recommend itself to everyone, rich and poor. Let there be no doubt about that. Long ago some such scheme should have been suggested by men in public life who have made fortunes out of the people of St. John's. The people who are to-day throwing doubts in the way of carrying out this plan were the same people who told us that we could not have conscription or raise our own Victory Loan. Unfortunately, through an overabundance of gall and push, on their side, they are to-day filling important positions in public life when other and better men should be in their place. Let them beware lest they, by their opposition to this popular scheme, compel people to take matters in their own hands and banish them from public life.

As head of his Department why should not the Minister of Finance and Customs be held responsible for the shortage of our Six Thousand Dollars which have lately disappeared from the Customs Branch? It would go a long way towards giving the Civil Servants that increase in their salaries which they have asked for and which they are entitled to. Mr. Cashin was agreeable to voting his leader, Dr. Lloyd, a salary of $5,000 a year, and his wealthy friend Hon. J. C. Crosbie another $3,000 as Minister of Shipping. The latter is a useless and costly appendage. There was absolutely no need to create such a position, as the Department of Marine and Fisheries could have handled the shipping

ITALIAN OFFICIAL.

ROME, July 13.

The official communication issued by the war office to-day says: Yesterday afternoon large enemy detachments began to attack our position on the Coronone slopes. Our garrison attacked the enemy with the bayonet driving him back to his trenches. Numerous dead were left behind. Sixty-six men were taken and four machine guns were captured. On the remainder of the front the fighting was moderate. At the Passio both artilleries were active. Enemy reconnaissances in the Frenzoia and Brentia Valleys were checked. Ten hostile airplanes were brought down. In Albania our troops maintained contact with the enemy on his new line north of the Semoni. East of the Lower Devoli retreating columns of the enemy were dispersed by our detachments on Thursday night. Between the Semoni and the Voyusa the clearing of the ground and the gathering up of prisoners continues. The number of prisoners taken since July 6th is more than 1,800.
