CHAPTER I.

IN THE SUNLIGHT.

"I—I didn't know," he said, looking from the dog to her, and hitching the terrier into a more comfortable position.

"And I didn't know that you—that any one was here, or else—" He stopped and looked down at his muddy boots; then he flicked his whip, and started at the noise it made, looking at her apologetically; and at last, in desperation, added:

"I'd better go."

It was not for her to say "Stay," so she remained silent, looking at him with the calm, sweet serenity in her eyes.

"Good-morning," he said. "Come, Pompey," and, treading as lightly as he could on the Turkey carpet, which he had mudded without the least thought a minute or two before, he turned to go. But the pitiless fates had not done with him. In his indecision whether to bow or not, he had backed up against a small cabinet loaded with Eric's shoes, and would inevitably have brought the whole lot down with a run, if Lela had not seen the threatened danger, and, with a quick movement of her hand, exclaimed, warningly:

"Oh, please! Take care!"

Lord Edgar pulled up short, but his whip caught a Louis Quinze Sevres vase, which came down with an ominous crash that startled the terrier almost into a fit.

With a quick, yet graceful movement, Lela glided forward, and, going on her knees, began that too-often useless operation of collecting the pieces.

Staggered and overwhelmed by his awkwardness, Lord Edgar dropped the terrier and his whip and cap, and went down also.

"Don't you trouble—please don't!" he said, with a deeper earnestness and anxiety than even the destruction of a rare Sevres warranted. "I'm awfully sorry! I am indeed! I'm the clumsiest brute you ever saw! I'm always breaking something! I'm not fit to be in a place like this; in fact," with a tone of penitence conviction, "I've no right here at all! I came here to—to—I forget what I did come for! Do you think the vase is smashed up for good? Can't it be mended?"

Lela, looking at the minute fragments lying in her palm, didn't feel like answering.

"No, I suppose not! What an awful nuisance I've made of myself! And, of course, it's—it's rare, and all that!"

Lela pondered a moment.

"This is the Louis vase; yes, I'm afraid it is rare. I think grandpapa said it cost over a hundred pounds!"

"And—and it's your favorite, I suppose?" he asked, despatchfully.

"Mine?" said Lela, and her large eyes fixed themselves on him wonderingly, so that his heart leaped again at their long, steady regard. "Mine? Why, no; how should you think that?"

"I—I didn't know," looking around the room vaguely, and still on his knees beside her; "I thought perhaps that—that was your room."

She laughed. Heavens, what a laugh! His face flushed under its magic. He must, he would get her to laugh again if he died for it!

"My room? Why, no! It is the marquis's, of course. Did you think the vase was mine? It is not, of course; it is a part of the Farintosh collection; it is your father's—yours," with a faint little blush at the last word.

Lord Edgar threw back his head and laughed with relief, then stopped and looked horrified, for he saw that he had made her start.

"—beg your pardon; I'm so glad! It's only ours, is it? I thought it was yours!" and he flung the fragments into the antique fire-place. Don't think about it; let me take these; they might cut your hand. Oh, yes, I've knocked it into a cocked hat! It's a wonder I didn't bring the whole complete crockery shop down! Let me take them, please."

"You are sure it can't be mended?" she said, doubtfully, holding out her hand in which the painted china lay like gems on a satin cushion.

"Quite; oh, quite!" he answered, and held out his hand—gracious Heaven, how large and coarse it seemed against her small, satiny one!

—for her to drop the pieces in. But one or two small pieces would stick, and, as she still innocently held out her hand, he, with a great thump of the heart and a dash of color in his face, timidly, fearfully picked them off the soft, pink palm.

Then he drew a long breath and sprang to his feet, looking down at her as she rose with simple, unconscious grace, and stood watching.

"I'd better go," he said, "before I do any more damage. Hello!" he broke off, as the terrier trod on his bad foot and yelped, "I remember, now! It was this little beast."

"Oh, poor little fellow!" she said, stooping over the silky morsel that lay on his back extending the injured leg stiffly, and looking as pitiable as only a small dog can look when it likes. "What is the matter with him?"

"He has got a splinter in his foot, Mr. Temple has gone for a needle; he would go. Perhaps he'd think it rude if I didn't wait until he came back," he added, with a sudden, swift joy at finding an excuse for remaining so ready to his hand. To his surprise, she turned her eyes upon him with a slow smile of pity, mingled with amazement.

"I am afraid if you wait for my grandfather to come back, you might wait till the Ides of March!"

Her grandfather! Could it be possible that he was this angel's grandfather? thought Lord Edgar. He nodded inquiringly, and a little puzzled; he had forgotten all about the Ides of March; Eton youths don't carry away much learning from that seat of erudition.

"Why?" he asked.

She laughed, as she stood pressing the terrier against her bosom with a caressing, soothing movement of her white hand against his black skin that fascinated the young man.

"Why? Oh, I am afraid my grandfather has forgotten it. He never remembers anything like that; if it had been a book, now—but, never mind, I will go and get a needle."

"No, no," he said. "It doesn't matter; I'll carry him to the stable."

But she interrupted his deep voice with her musical one.

"I will get it," she said, "if you will hold him."

He took the dog, and, with one white hand, she drew the tapestry aside, revealing a door; then she turned upon him with just the faintest flush on her lovely face.

"I forgot it was locked; I tried it just now—that was why I stayed!"

"Thank Heaven!" he thought as he strode to the library door and opened it for her; then he stood and looked after her as the soft cream dress floated down the corridor, and looked down at his muddy boots and the terrier.

"You lucky little beast!" he remarked to the terrier. "What have you ever done that you should be in her arms and be cosseted! Got a thorn in your foot! Why, I'd break my leg, both legs, to be in your place! And what an awkward, clumsy brute I must seem to her! And I was whistling and kicking up no end of a row, and she was standing there all the time wondering why the world should contain such a wild boar! Old Temple's granddaughter! I thought she had dropped from heaven! How lovely she is! Old Temple's granddaughter! Does she live here, I wonder? Will she come back? Perhaps not. I shouldn't be surprised if she'd had enough of me and sends a servant with the needle—or her grandfather, perhaps."

This fear caused such uneasiness that he fell to pacing up and down the room, pausing at the door to stare down the corridor as if his life depended upon her return.

He knew that his heart gave a great leap as he saw the cream dress against the dimness of the stairs, and he stood watching her as she came, with an eager light in his handsome eyes.

"Here it is!" she said, holding up a needle; "I have been a long time, have I not?"

"I'm afraid," he said, after a pause, "that Mr. Temple won't forgive me for disturbing him. He was reading when I came in."

"He is always reading or writing. He is very much alone here—no one comes."

"Not my father?" asked Lord Edgar.

Lela smiled.

"My lord, the marquis! No, I do not think I have seen him since I was a very little girl."

"And you have lived here—" looking around as if the place had suddenly grown sacred.

"Since I can remember," she said, simply.

"Then—then how is it that I— we have never met?" he asked, in a kind of wonder.

She laughed.

"I think when you were here last, my lord, I was at school; grandfather said so."

Lord Edgar studied with keen pleasure; they had been talking about him, then.

"Besides," she went on, her white hands locking themselves together on the cream dress as she stood in front of him, "even if we had lived in this same house we might not have met; the Abbey is divided into two distinct parts. If you had not come in here by chance to-day, we might never have seen each other."

He said nothing, but drew a long breath. Happy chance!

"This wing is set apart for us—my grandfather and me," she said, after a minute's pause, "and we live here as if it were our own. Did you never hear of the Cloister Garden?"

"Never," he said; and he looked through the window opening out on to the terrace and the landscape gardens.

Lela followed his glance and laughed softly.

"Ages—I—I mean no, certainly not," he said, blunderingly.

"I couldn't find a very fine sharp one all at once," she said, simply.

"Will this do?"

"Splendidly," he answered, without looking at it.

"Are you—are you going to hurt him?" she asked, her white brows knitting apprehensively as she shrank back.

"Not a bit," he said. "He won't feel it."

"Shall I—will it be any help if I hold his paw?" she asked, as the terrier was turned upside down.

"Will you?" he assented. "You need not be afraid. I shan't hurt him, and he won't bite; but I forgot, you are not afraid of dogs. Hold up, young'un!" This, it is needless to say, was to the terrier.

Lela took the paw in her hand, murmuring comforting words, and Lord Edgar held the needle; but it seemed poised in the air, his eyes were so entranced by the contrast of the white, slim fingers against the dog's black leg.

"Why do you wait? Are you afraid?" she asked, innocently.

"No, oh, no!" he said, and dexterously picked out the splinter; the dog flinched a little, and Lord Edgar saw the white fingers quiver in sympathy.

"Oh, poor little fellow!" she murmured, and raised the morsel to her cheek. As she did so, Lord Edgar's hand went up with the terrier, and just swept against the front of her shoulder; he felt the soft, creamy dress against his fingers, and a thrill ran through him and quivered along his arm, so that his voice sounded almost rough, as he said:

"He's all right now; you can put him down."

She obeyed slowly; all her movements seemed to the young man to be tuned to some invisible, and by him unheard music, so graceful and peculiar to herself were they, and he stood looking down at the dog, as it jumped up at her and barked its gratitude.

It was time he went now; he had fulfilled his object, the splinter extracted, and yet he lingered. It seemed to him as if, when he turned out of this quiet, peaceful room, that he should feel it cold and chilly and sunless outside. He tried to think of something to say; wondered if she were wishing him to go, wondered whether she thought him stupid and boorish; and yet there was no sign of embarrassment in her face; it did not seem to matter to her a straw whether he went or stayed.

"I'm afraid," he said, after a pause, "that Mr. Temple won't forgive me for disturbing him. He was reading when I came in."

"He is always reading or writing. He is very much alone here—no one comes."

ONE PEACE TREATY.
PARIS, March 25. (By the A.P.)—It became known to-night that a serious effort was being made in the highest quarters to join together all the peace treaties with Germany, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria, thus making one comprehensive treaty in which Germany would be linked with the other Central Powers as their responsible head. Should the plan be adopted it is expected that the four countries could be linked together and completed by May 12.

The Executive Committee of the Sinn Fein party issued an official statement late Tuesday night announcing that the public reception planned for Prof. Edward De Valera, who has been in an English prison for some time and who escaped on February 4, has been abandoned. The statement explained that Prof. De Valera had sent word to the committee that he did not believe a reception for him would justify the lives of citizens of Dublin.

PARIS, March 25. In President Wilson's study at his Paris residence to-day, the first gathering of Premiers took place, under the plan proposed by the President that continuous meetings be held until questions which have been obstructing the early conclusion of the peace treaty should be received. The session began at 11 o'clock this morning, was resumed after lunch and continued in the evening with no other councils or conferences to distract the attention of the conference. It marked the initial step by the super council in taking direction of affairs and in meeting apprehension to the revolution blazing up in Eastern Europe.

He has been turned over to the Italian military authorities by the French.

FIGHTING IN NORTH RUSSIA.
WITH THE ALLIED FORCES IN NORTH RUSSIA, March 24.—The Bolsheviks are entrenching and reinforcing both their infantry and artillery at Bolsheia Ozera and are endeavoring to hold this important point in the line of the Allied communications between Obezerskaia and Onega. Yesterday the British and Americans attacked from the west side of the village, and the Russians, supported by British and Americans, attacked from the east along the road. Fighting under the utmost difficulties the Allied troops were unable to advance beyond the line of enemy machine guns, while Bolshevik artillery maintained a sweep of the winding high road through the woods, struggling waist deep in the soft drifting snow of the forests. The forces striking from the east found a flanking movement impracticable, and they were able to progress only at the rate of a mile an hour. To-day the Allied troops were bivouacked along the road on both sides of the village.

Discovered in England.

One of our big trawlers working as far as the Iceland banks, will be away three weeks and return with seventy or eighty tons weight of mixed fish. These fish, remember, are cleaned aboard the trawler, and naturally there is a lot of offal in the shape of heads, livers, and so on. This offal which, in the case of such a catch as that already mentioned, would weigh twelve or fifteen tons, is known as stocker bait, and is the perquisite of the crew. It is kept in barrels holding each about five hundredweight, and these, in the old days before the war, were sold for about twelve shillings a barrel, and used for bait and manure.

War has seen the price of stocker bait double, and has also brought about a new development. In 1917 a company was formed for purchasing this offal, and dealing with it on a large scale. The livers are separated out, pressed and melted for oil, of which they yield a very valuable quality. It is an interesting point that, even if the livers have begun to decay, perfectly sweet oil can be made from them. All the heads and bones are dried and ground up for manure. Fish guano is greedily bought by market gardeners, being rich in nitrogen. The amount of oil made out of one trawler's offal will be from five hundred gallons upwards, and of manure some ten tons. The company also deals with fish condemned by the sanitary authorities as unfit for human food. In one month nearly four hundred tons of fish have been so condemned in Billingsgate Market alone. Even fish skins have a commercial value, being made into gelatine, so in the end nothing of the catch is wasted.—Pearsons' Weekly.

He Says Dodd's Kidney Pills Saved His Life.

James Black at the Age of Eighty-Five is Singing the Praises of the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Guelph, Ont., March 26th. (Special.)—"I would have had to undergo an operation, or be dead only for Dodd's Kidney Pills." These are strong words. But Mr. James Black, an old gentleman who moved here recently from Maldstone, makes the statement without hesitation. "I suffered from kidney trouble and pain in my back," Mr. Black goes on to relate, "and a friend told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. When I had used half a box I began to pass sand and gravel. I have half a pound of it in a bottle to show people.

"I also had cramps in my legs so that I could not sleep at night. I used 14 or 15 boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now I am cured of all these ailments."

Mr. Black who is in his eighty-fifth year, is confident that he owes his life to Dodd's Kidney Pills, and never tires of singing their praises. "They are worth twice their weight in gold," he says.

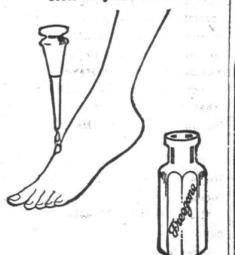

Dodd's Kidney Pills have long ago earned the name of "The Old Folks' Friend." For the kidneys are the first to feel the strain of advancing years. Acting directly on the kidneys, and strengthening those organs, they have made many an old person shout "I feel young again."

By Desire.

On the occupation of Cologne, Gen. Sir H. C. O. Plumer was assigned a splendid villa belonging to a wealthy German Jew. After the General's arrival the owner of the villa got hold of the A.D.C., and to him, with many bows and flowery words, expressed his deep sense of the honor of having so great a soldier under his roof. Had the General any commands for him? He had but to express a wish for it to be fulfilled. "I will see," said the A.D.C., who departed and presently returned. "Has the General any orders for me?" cried the eager Teuton. "Yes," said the A.D.C., "at least the General desires something." "Ach! vot is is, vot is is?" "The General's one and only desire," coolly answered the A.D.C., "is that during his occupation of your villa you will be neither seen nor heard!"

Banquet in College Hall-- Great Enthusiasm Over the Movement.

The movement for the extension of the Methodist College and erection of a new Residence in connection therewith, was launched in the College Hall last night, at which some 150 guests were present. His Excellency the Governor was received on arrival by Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, Deputy Chairman of the Executive of the Board of Governors; Mr. A. Soper, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Mr. A. Macpherson, Chairman of the Banquet, and escorted to the head table by these gentlemen who were the three appointed representatives of the Ways and Means Committee. At the head table were noticed Chairman Macpherson, H. E. the Governor and Private Secretary Capt. Cambell, Chief Justice Horwood, Rev. Dr. Curtis, Supt. of Meth. Education; Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, Dep. Chairman Board of Governors; Hon. W. W. Halfyard, Col. Secretary; Rev. T. B. Darby, M. A., Guardian of the Home; Mr. S. T. Harrington, M.A., Principal of the College; W. J. Herder, Esq.; Inspector Gen. Hutchings, Sir P. T. McGrath, Editor of the Herald; Rev. Dr. Bond, L.L.D., Pastor of Cochrane St. Church; A. Soper, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and the members of the Executive of the Board of Governors, and in the audience, Dr. J. Alex. Robinson, Postmaster General of Nfld.; Rev. Chas. Lench, of Bonavista; Rev. E. W. Forbes, M.A.; Rev. T. W. Atkinson and Mr. John Powell, Gen. Supt. of the Reid Nfld. Co.

The feast was all that might be expected, being provided by the members of the Ladies College Aid, who have earned an enviable reputation as caterers. At its conclusion the Chairman referred briefly to the object of the gathering, the details of which would be elaborated as the evening progressed. Judging from the excellent beginning made he felt the project would meet with the success deserved. He then called on H. E. Sir C. A. Harris, O.B., K.C.M.G., C. V.O., who in taking up his address on Education, referred to the indifference of all to the ladies. The first idea to be considered, he felt, was the economy of the situation, but in Water Street we have a great generosity which is considered almost to the point of weakness. He understood the appeal was to be extended outside the city and believed a large amount would be realized, as there is much money in the outports that was put to no use, and those in charge of the enterprise would be wise in getting hold of it. He asked attention be given the special fitness of the scheme and objections or diverse opinions to it. His attendance was a sign of his general interest in education. Education is the bringing out of all the good in the person and he explained the difference between it and pediatrics. He pointed out as three thoughts on the subject, that released from war conditions some 500,000 in the United Kingdom were without security as to education, health of future employment; of nearly every boy in the public schools serving in the war. One of six made the supreme sacrifice, showing there is some good in the training of these schools after all, and that according to Sir Arthur Hopkinson, education wrongly directed becomes the ruin of a nation. This latter was exemplified in the case of Germany. The main object of the present movement was to raise the children to a higher and better state, not only in reading, writing and arithmetic, but in the duties of citizenship. Proper education would bring better knowledge of their duties and responsibilities to all. Here we have children who are particularly bright as a rule, but the very condition of particularly the poorer streets, is a menace to their education. He advocated religious training, without which there can be no progress morally and which must be retained to stimulate the real life of our children. In enlarging the College, he was pleased that the promoters felt fully able to do it without a waste of strength in any way.

Mr. S. T. Harrington, M.A., followed and from 16 years' experience, pointed out the urgency of the proposed improvements. The House at present was everything it should not be, being altogether too small for accommodation of the number in residence. This condition was no reflection on the builders or previous managers, who had done their best under the circumstances. By the fact of it being overcrowded some $2,000 had been lost in 1 1/2 years, as more pupils could not be taken in. This money was also lost to the country, as the children were sent abroad to be educated. He believed the record for generosity established by the Methodist people in the past warranted him in saying the necessary funds would be forthcoming.

Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, B.A., dwelt on the many evidences of the need of education which came within his own knowledge in speaking on the economic necessity of education in Newfoundland, and showed that the great problem is to apply intelligence to the great laws of Nature so as to utilize them to the best advantage. We have need of education in regard to our industrial affairs and the application of trained intelligence to the cure, etc., of our foremost marketable product, codfish, will have to be considered if we are to hold our place in the markets of the world. The same applies to our mines and forests, and it is up to us to determine whether we shall continue to ship our products abroad in the raw state or as the finished articles produced by skilled labour trained in our own institutions. Shall we ship our wood in the form of pulp or fine note paper? He had no patience whatever with those who say there is no need of economic education. Again, the only preventative against the excesses of the proletariat which are in evidence in the Old World is education, the only thing that can save democracy. Domestic training is also needed and education in business life. Newfoundland has been too generous to other parts with her sons who have been sent abroad to enrich them. The time has arrived for an institution on such broad and large lines as will keep our sons for our own enrichment and prevent the importation in many instances of those who in any way equal them. Without attention to spiritual value no system can be perfect, and none are fully trained till grounded in spiritual kindness and service.

Rev. Geo. J. Bond, B.A., L.L.D., dwelt on the necessity of the New Residence and College Extension was clearly and convincingly outlined by Mr. R. F. Horwood, who pointed out that the present Home was altogether unsuited for the purpose used and that the schools are overcrowded. It is hoped to provide recreation rooms indoors in addition to the grounds provided by Mr. C. P. Ayre, and which of course cannot be used at all seasons. The demand for the improvements is urgent and until that demand is met the Methodist people, he said, are not doing their duty.

Rev. Dr. Curtis, M.A., D.D., dwelt on the erection of the institution contemplated as a work of patriotism and pointed out the great benefits it would confer on the outports and country generally, by giving the pupils a greater vision of their possibilities. He paid a tribute to the heroes whose blood calls to us to live for the betterment of country and Empire, and said if we get that vision the new building will quickly be brought into being. He then moved the following resolution:

RESOLVED, that this gathering recognizes the pressing necessity for a new College Residence and for College Extension; approves of steps being taken at the earliest practicable moment to meet the requirements, and pledges to the enterprise its most loyal and generous support.

The motion was seconded by Hon. R. A. Squires, L.L.B., K.C., who referred to the great value of the proposed extension to the city and country, and supported by Mr. C. R. Decker and Hon. W. W. Halfyard, ex-pupils of the College, the latter for some years a teacher there, and who from personal knowledge knew the need of the improvements aimed at. The resolution was carried by a standing vote.

A vote of thanks to His Excellency the Governor and Chief Justice Horwood was also proposed by Mr. Albert Soper, seconded by Mr. Jos. Peters, and accorded by acclamation.

Sir William, in replying, spoke of His Excellency's sympathy in the cause of education, eulogized the work of Prof. Holloway and praised the efforts of those now engaged in an enterprise of dominion-wide importance.

Mr. F. Moore proposed a vote of thanks to the ladies, which was seconded by Mr. W. Drover, and warmly accorded. During the evening songs by Messrs. F. J. King and H. Courteney with Mr. Gordon Christian at the piano, added to the pleasure of all. The proceedings closed with the National Anthem.

Sing for Strength.

One of the most noticeable traits about all the armies—British, French, Italian or American—is the way they are continually singing. The more fighting fit they are, the healthier they are, the more they sing.

It has been discovered that not only do healthy people want to sing, but the reverse of this is the case; that is, if you want to be healthy and strong, you should sing. Singing is one of the best tonics in existence.

There is one good reason for this. Anyone who is constantly singing regularly exercises his lungs, keeping them fit and sound; healthy lungs are more important than perhaps any other part of the body.

A man with healthy lungs is able to supply the rest of his body with rich, healthy blood, so strengthening any weaknesses which may tend to show themselves.

First-class singers rarely die of consumption or any lung diseases. In some statistics taken of singers and musicians, it was shown, in fact, that as a class they are longer lived than most other people, while there was not a single case of consumption among players of brass instruments.

No matter how poor their voices are, children should be encouraged to sing as much as possible. For one thing, their voices will improve with constant practice; for a second, their general health will improve because of the exercise given to their lungs; while for a third, anyone who is constantly singing cannot be unhappy. And happy people are always healthy ones.

A Thing Saved Better Than...

By RUTH CAMERON

Do you find yourself more inclined to save and accumulate since the war than you were before? I am greatly interested to discover that tendency in myself. This morning I found myself picking up a small piece of string and carefully putting it away instead of throwing it into the waste basket as I usually have. (Some people regard the disposal of string as a problem at any time, but it never happened to be my pet economy.) Of wrapping paper, too, I am much more careful. Also I use the backs of envelopes to make notes on, and I still automatically save tin foil.

Straws Which Show the Wind of Economy.

These are small things but if they are true of you, too, they are straws which show that the wind is still blowing in the direction of economy, which is but one more instance of proof of the proverb, "There's no great loss without some small gain." Indeed, although a national instinct for economy is, of course, a small thing when weighed in the scale against lives, I do not think it will show up so small when we put it into the scale against the financial cost of the war.

I believe I have already written about the immense salvage company which started in the saving of tin foil for war charity and expanded into the salvaging of all sorts of little things which were once thought useless—bottle stoppers, empty boxes, etc. This now turns over some eight hundred dollars a month profit to war charity. You can imagine how large the gross amount of material saved must be.

A Thing Saved Better Than a Penny Saved.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Do you find yourself more inclined to save and reutilize since the war than you were before? I am greatly interested to discover that tendency in myself. This morning I found myself picking up a small piece of string and carefully putting it away instead of throwing it into the waste basket as I once would have. (Some people re-use the disposal of string as programs at any time, but it never happens to be my pet economy.) Of wrapping paper, too, I am much more careful. Also I use the backs of envelopes to make notes on, and I still automatically save tinfoil.

Straws Which Show the Wind of Economy.

These are small things but if they are true of you, too, they are straws which show that the wind is still blowing in the direction of economy, which is but one more instance of proof of the proverb, "There's no great loss without some small gain."

Indeed, although a national instant for economy is, of course, a small thing when weighed in the scale against lives, I do not think it will show up so small when we put it into the scale against the financial cost of the war.

I believe I have already written about the immense salvage company which started in the saving of tin-hill for war charity and expanded into the salvaging of all sorts of little things which were once thought useless—bottle stoppers, empty boxes, etc. This now turns over some eight hundred dollars a month profit to war charity. You can imagine how large the gross amount of material saved must be.

Pasteboard Boxes Instead of Wooden Boxes.

Then there is the saving by business concerns, which, of course, not only profits them individually but adds to the national wealth. For instance, my glasses came home in a pasteboard instead of a wooden box, the other day. Again, a friend who had some flowers delivered to her told me that the boy asked if she were willing to let the box go back. He said he was paid so much for each one he brought back. Every box thus used over means labor released for the production of something of actual value. I only hope that we, as a nation, accept these savings and not reject them now that the need is over. I had that danger forcibly brought to mind by the lady of the flower box. "I gave it to him," she said, "but it did seem to me a rather cheap thing to do. I think I shall tell Dick to pick out some other place next time." Now she didn't want that box. (I asked her that.) She simply resented the idea.

A Proverb That Always Exasperated Me.

From a child I always objected to the proverb, "A penny saved is a penny earned." I felt vaguely that there was something specious and sophistical about it. A penny saved has to be a penny earned in the first place, so the saving does not take the place of the earning as the proverb suggests. But a thing saved is really that much clear gain. The real wealth in the world is advanced that much by everything you save and re-use instead of utilizing labor and material to have it made again.

THE STORY OF THE LONELY RICH MAN.

A rich man who had sums of gold discovered he was growing old—Was coming to that time of life When he must quit his sordid strife And spend his few declining days In restful, less-exacting ways. But when he sat him down to rest He found his ease no joy possessed. The hours dragged, the days were long. His nights brought neither mirth nor song. And with the gold he'd fought to own He found that he must live alone. He called a trusty servant nigh Who often had gone forth to buy The things for which he wished, and said: "You long have bought my wine and bread, And bargained here in shop and store For all that I have hungered for. Now I've another task for you: Go buy for me a friend or two. I want the comradeship of men—Men who will gladly cheer me, when I am depressed, and talk with me. Go fill this room with company."

The servant left as he was told. And talked about his master's gold. He tramped the streets both up and down. Searched the far suburbs of the town. And sought to buy a friend or two. Who to a rich man would be true. But all who heard him loudly jeered. Refused his proffered coin and sneered. And this he said, when he returned: "For once your money has been spent. With all the gold you have to spend, You cannot buy one faithful friend."

Workman After More Export Business.

Mark Workman, president of the Dominion Steel Corporation, is planning to leave in the near future on a business trip to Europe. Apart from studying the situation there at close hand, Mr. Workman will, it is understood, devote some time to the development of European business for his company, which is now in position to handle export business expeditiously.—Bell Island Miner.

"Carmen" Interpreted.

Coblenz.—In an unwary moment the management of the Coblenz Stadt-Opernhaus asked an American soldier to prepare in English a brief synopsis and story of "Carmen" among those of other operas with which the doubting boy is to be regaled while awaiting westward passage.

It was wanted for the program in order that the soldiers might better understand what it was all about. The guileless Boche took the copy supplied and printed it in full, much to the delight of the first audience and the entire army. Here is the introduction of the three principal characters:

"Carmen is an oversubscribed girl. Don Jose is a N.C.O. in the I.P. whom she is about to send the S.O.S. Escamillo is an expert bull-fighter.

Act One—"A square in Seville with a crowd of people off duty, a fag factory on the right and a guardhouse on the left. Micaela, a cute little contrivance with an awful crush on Jose, comes hunting him. A bugle in the pill emporium sounds the first call for fresh air, and a bewitching bevy gushes out. Carmen trips in, courted by all except Don Jose, although he is the very guy she is looking for. He acts a little buggy, but is really a little sulky."

The second act recites that Jose went A.W.O.L. and here is the narrative of the third act: "It is a large day. Escamillo has been prominently advertised as the big excitement. Single-handed he is billed to slaughter the monthly beef ration for the Governor's mess. He has also promised to take advantage of all the bulls Jose made. As he starts for the arena, Carmen announces she is his if he gets away with his job. Then she heads for the box office to tap the free list, but Don Jose shows up for an interview. He hands her an careful of highly seasoned remarks and admits that he could be arrested for what else he thinks about her. Here Carmen makes her last fox pass. She stabs him to the quick with a jeer. He stabs her to the blood-hump with a toadsticker. Moral: Never fool with an M.P."

The Truth Fully Out.

(From the New York Tribune.)

It is no surprise to learn from documents hitherto unpublished that when the German Foreign Office, in July, 1914, was pretending it was urging Austria-Hungary to be moderate, it was in fact secretly inciting her to extreme action. The Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at Berlin reported on July 25th, 1914, that "any adjournment of military operations would be considered here as very dangerous." Two days later, in a dispatch marked "strictly secret," he said the German government had assured him "in the most convincing manner that it in no way identifies itself with these propositions"—that is, the propositions of Great Britain for moderation and arbitration. While Austria-Hungary was thus being told to hurry, the German Foreign Minister was saying he was pressing the button for peace at Vienna. At the last moment Austria-Hungary wished to recede, but her ally was determined on war. The inferences drawn from the diplomatic papers which became accessible early are now fully confirmed by direct documentary evidence. The string of lies the Kaiser personally telegraphed the Czar scarcely have an equal in diplomatic history.

BOOZE AND WATER.

Old Forty Rod is on the blink; its knoll will soon be tooted; but water is a goodly drink, when it is not diluted. Oh, water makes no strong appeal to sports all soaked with whiskey; they want a drink that makes them feel obstreperous and frisky.

But soon 'twill be a groundhog case, this thing of water drinking; man can't buy bitters for his face, or get the same by winking. And this will rack full many a mind, to some make life distressing; but soon the red nosed sports will find that hydrants are a blessing. It is a noble thing to rise, at morn, with buoyant body, and have no sore and bloodshot eyes, no headache loud and gaudy. It's fine to spend a restful night, nor dream of alligators, and then to have an appetite for steak and eggs and taters. It's good to have a bone or two, to 'ave a kopeck handy, that will not go for someone's brew, some brand of gin or brandy. The hydrant draws no gilded boys, no dead game sports surround it; but it increases human joys, when once he's learned to like the juice that from the hydrant trickles. He has to wonder why the deuce he blew for beer his nickels.

Household Notes.

That good old standby, a mixture of lemon juice and glycerine, is a great comfort to the hands, especially in housecleaning time. Case-seated chairs that have sagged can be tightened by washing them in hot water and soap and rinsing them in clear water. Dry in the open air.

THURSDAY, March 27, 1919.

Militia Department Explains.

On Friday last the Telegram published a communication from a Carbonar correspondent, in which it was alleged that an ex-soldier of the Regiment, a Military Medalist, belonging to that town, had been very shabbily treated by the Militia Authorities, and seriously reflecting on the neglect of those responsible for the care of our returned men, particularly those who were wounded. On Saturday the Departmental Head requested from us the name of the soldier in question, which was furnished, engaging to make enquiry into the circumstances set forth in the Carbonar article.

The result of that enquiry has now been handed us, the report being signed by Capt. W. H. Parsons, R. A. M.C., Secretary of the Board of Pensions Commissioners of Newfoundland, and sets forth that:

About the first week in December, Capt. Parsons, whilst visiting Carbonar, was asked to see the man, who is the subject of the present enquiry, and upon examination, found him to be in a much worse condition than at the time of his discharge, physical examination showing a condition in the lung, which was probably tubercular, and the sufferer was advised to come to St. John's and enter hospital, arrangements for his admission to the Naval and Military Institution being made. On December 9th, 1918, he was admitted and on January 18th, 1919, was transferred to the St. Thomas' Rectory Hospital, which place, however, he left the same day, explaining in a letter later that he did not consider the beds fit to sleep in. Subsequently other arrangements were made with Doctors Boyle and Stentford, Carbonar, to have him boarded there. The Pension Board met on February 7th and reported condition of the man, recommending him for further treatment, which he agreed to take. His admission to the Rectory Hospital was approved by the D. M. S., and pension at the rate of $50 per month was allowed while in Hospital, and he was communicated with accordingly on February 10th. The following day by letter he refused to come into Hospital, suggesting that he would receive better treatment at home. On receipt of a letter from Dr. Stentford, referring to this case, the Board Secretary replied stating that if the Carbonar doctor would give a certificate that the sick soldier would be better at home, the case would be placed before the Board. Nothing more having been heard concerning the matter, the Pensions Board on March 10th, decided that, because of having refused treatment, they would have to deduct one-third from the man's total pension, according to regulations. Other efforts were made to get further information, but up to date of report, March 26th, nothing had been received from Carbonar, although the member for the district had been approached by Doctor Parsons on the matter. Regarding pension the report shows that this man has been paid up to January 16.

On February 1st a cheque for $10 was sent to the Rectory Hospital, which was returned, and it was thereupon held over until a final decision, as to whether he was going into hospital or not, was received. Another cheque was forwarded on March 1st, which is still outstanding. The regulation is that a man in Hospital is to receive $10 per month, and the balance of his monthly pension at the end of his treatment, or if necessary, on application, he might get it before.

We have given this space to the report on the case in the order that everything may be made clear. Apparently the Pensions Board did everything compatible with the regulations for the care of the man involved. We make no comment on either the letter of our correspondent or the report of the Board, as if there is anything at variance between the two, our Carbonar correspondent will return to the subject.

Demobilization of the R. N. R.

Department of Militia,
St. John's, March 25th, 1919.
B. B. Harris, Esq.,
Secretary Great War Veterans' Association.

Sir:—A short while ago a deputation of your Association waited on me and presented various suggestions, one of which was the mater of a more speedy demobilization of the Royal Naval Reservists. Although this particular matter in no way comes within the purview of the duties of this Department, I undertook to represent your case to the Government. The matter was considered by the Government, and I have now received a reply, copy of which I have the honour to attach herewith, for the information of your Association.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
J. R. BENNETT,
Minister of Militia.

[COPY.]

March 11th, 1919.

Sir,—Referring to your letter of the 25th, February, respecting demobilization at the Royal Naval Reserve Men, I have the honour to intimate that I have received a report from Commander MacDermott, to whom the Government wrote respecting this matter. Commander MacDermott states that he has represented the same to the Admiralty, and every effort is being made by the authorities to discharge the men as quickly as possible and to have those on the other side returned to Newfoundland in time to take up the season's fishery. The Authorities are in sympathy with this proposal, and every endeavour will be made to carry it out. The difficulty upon the other side is the matter of transports but it is hoped that as the weeks go by this will solve itself as ships are released from other services.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) W. W. HALFYARD,
Colonial Secretary.

J. R. Bennett, Esq.,
Minister of Militia.

Two Boys Drowned.

Last evening Inspector General Hutchings was in receipt of the following message from Constable Melvin, of Spaniard's Bay, which tells of two boys losing their lives by drowning on their way home from school, "John Jewer, aged 12, and Hector Gosse, aged 9½, drowned in Northern Cove Pond to-day, when returning from school."

(Sgd.) E. W. MIFFLIN.

Socony Wrecked.

The auxiliary schr. Socony, of the Standard Oil Co., is a total wreck on a reef off the Isle of Pines. The schr. was manned by Captain Yardy, and a crew of Newfoundlanders, and at the time of wrecking was on her way to New York from Jamaica. The Isle of Pines, one of the West Indian group, is south of Cuba. It is low and swampy and part hilly.

A Grand Success.

Wesley Bible Class concert and sociable held last night proved a grand success. Long before the opening of the programme the hall was packed to its utmost capacity; Rev. W. B. Bugden acted as chairman, the following taking part in the programme: Misses F. Pike, M. Joffitt, Kendall (2); Messrs. Bulley, Wheelwright, Ruggles and King. During the evening candy was for sale and quite a nice sum was realized. At the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid. The officers and members of the class wish to thank all those who helped in any way to make the concert and sociable of 1919 the best in the history of the class.

Police Court.

Only one case came before Court this morning, that of assault, which was withdrawn, and the habitues of the Court room had to brave the biting cold of the street after spending but a few minutes in the comfortable warmth. Needless to state there were heard from all sides loud denunciations of the disgraceful condition of things in the city to-day—to think that only one case came up for hearing, and that to be withdrawn just as the wretches had settled down to a quiet nap. We trust that no further trouble of this nature will arise in future.

Milady's Boudoir.

THE HOME MANICURE.

It is a simple matter to manicure your hands at home. The essential articles for a manicuring set consists of a bundle of orange sticks, a pair of manicuring scissors, a small box of cuticle cream, nail polish, a burnisher, a file, a box of nail bleach, a package of emery boards, a bowl of warm water and a piece of absorbent cotton. First of all shape your nails before washing the hands, as water softens them, and they are not then so easily filed. If your fingers taper beautifully, round the nails, following the contour of the finger tips, but if the fingers are cushioned at the ends it is better to make the nails almond-shaped. Square fingers often can be improved by the pointed nail. After filing them smooth off the rough edges with an emery board, and then soak the fingers in the water.

Use a nail brush if necessary to remove every particle of dirt. Do not scrub the fingers too violently, as it is apt to break the tender cuticle about the nails, making it ragged and unattractive. Now take a soft towel and gently but thoroughly dry the hands, and grease each nail with the cuticle cream, pushing it beneath the cuticle with an orange stick. If the moon at the base of each finger nail does not show, gently push back the cuticle until it does. If bits of loose skin have frayed away from the edges of the cuticle snip them off with the manicure scissors, but by no means cut away the rim of cuticle framing each nail.

When the nails are thoroughly clean and shaped, with the cuticle pressed back it is time to polish them. Place a little dab of polish on each nail and rub it over the surface. Then rub gently and briskly over the nail with the burnisher. Then again soak the fingers in the water to remove the superfluous nail polish, and after they are dried apply the burnisher again, giving them a final polishing.

Frau Ebert's Greatness.

The ex-Kaiser, in a sanctuary in Holland and brooding over his fallen eminence, had a chill of horror when he learned that a saddler named Ebert had been elected ruler of Germany—President of a republic, of all forms of government. What must be Wilhelm's dismay and the distress of his formerly august wife to hear of the unworthiness of Frau Ebert for the high station to which a political conviction has raised her in a topsy-turvy world! The misplaced "first lady of the land," the mistress of the "White House" of Germany, does her own domestic chores.

On the eve of the revolution the Eberts were living in the working-class quarter of Berlin. Mrs. Ebert, whose thrift with her needle made her husband presentable, could afford no servant. The industrious woman—she had no illusions, no visions of a better state—was content to sweep, to dust, to do her own washing, to go marketing and bargain for a penny a pound less, to cook the simplest dishes, and wait upon Ebert while he quaffed beer after beer with his companions. Her work was never done. She even carried up coal from the cellar. She had calloused hands. Three meals a day, sound sleep at night, and an occasional picnic on Summer Sundays satisfied her that all was well with the world. She asked for no better fortune.

Then came the "debacle" as the French would call it of an invincible Germany Army, the pitiful flight of the Emperor in a motor car across the Dutch border, and the revolution that lifted Ebert to undreamed of heights of political importance, as if a magician's wand had done the trick. And, most mystifying of all to Frau Ebert's intelligence, occurred his selection to be President of the first German Republic, superior to and greater than Kaisers, Hindenburgs, and all the Chancellors that ever were, a saddler becomes the chief ruler of 60,000,000 Germans—N. ## Bled for His Country.

A worthy veteran of three gold stripes, who had just arrived in England for demobilization, got into conversation with a conscientious objector on the same errand. "Well, old chap, pleased it's all over, eh?" asked the Tommy. "Yes," replied the Conchy. "What job did you have in the Army?" "Officer's servant," replied the C.O. "Officer's servant, eh! Ever chopped wood for the Colonel's fire?" "Many a time." "Ever hit your finger?" "Occasionally." "Make it bleed?" "Yes," meekly replied the C.O. "That's the idea. Now when you get home, don't forget to tell your mother that you bled for your country."

GAY ATTIRE.

BERLIN, Mar. 25.
Independent Socialists in Bavaria have demanded that the Government melt all statues of former royalties and statesmen; including that of Bismarck and materials of the statues, they ask, shall be given to industry. The national flags, the independent demand, shall be converted into clothing for children.

LET THEM HAVE IT.

PARIS, Mar. 26.
(Havis)—Boris Savimoff, acting minister of war in the Kerensky cabinet, declares in an interview given here, that 30,000 Russians are ready to fight against the Bolsheviks, but lack arms and equipment. "If the Entente will give us moral and financial support, and if it will furnish us with the material," said the ex-Minister, "it would have no need to furnish men. With the peoples directly interested—the Czechoslovaks, Jugoslavs and Poles—we could raise a barrier against Bolshevism without the military intervention of the Entente."

SIGNIFICANT.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26.
The United States Government has sold to the Czechoslovak military authorities, airplanes and airplane equipment to the value of $1,000,000, it was learned to-day. The number of machines embraced in the consignment was not made public, but they were listed as valued at $3,190,000.

QUIET RESTORED.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26.
Internal conditions in Egypt have been greatly improved, according to despatches to-day to the State Department. Quiet has been restored in Cairo and Alexandria, and the lines of communication north of Cairo, which had been interrupted, have been re-opened. An adequate system of patrol is said to have been placed, the Depts advised said, and practically all of the railway stations in the Minia district had been destroyed. The Bedouins had been very active, especially in the Behera province, and near Komadada disorderly mobs, under the instigation of agitators, carried on a campaign of destruction and looting. The Agricultural Bank at Saft was reported to have been sacked and burned by a mob. Patrols of airplanes, fired upon by the rioters, retaliated with machine guns and with bombs, inflicting heavy casualties.

ORGANIZED BY GOVERNMENT.

PARIS, Mar. 26.
The Prussian National Assembly has voted unanimously against the relinquishment of Germany of any of the Rhine territory, especially the Saar Basin, according to the German despatches reaching here. The advice also tell of meetings of protest multiplying in all parts of Germany against what is called an "enslaving Peace." According to the Zurich correspondent of the Journal, these manifestations are being organized by the Government, through Count Von Brockdorf-Rantzau, the Foreign Secretary.

HIGH HONOR FOR CANADIANS.

PARIS, Mar. 26.
(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The Municipal Council of Mons gave an official reception to-day to General Loomis, officer commanding the Third Canadian Division, which formed part of the first army which liberated Mons on November 11.—The General was presented by the town with a beautiful flag, on which, in addition to symbols associated with the Canadian Army, were inscribed the names of famous towns, where Canadian soldiers had particularly distinguished themselves. The Burgomaster thanked the General, and in the name of the town handed him a small flag bearing the towns colors, together with a document authorizing the division to display the arms of Mons. General Hanetou, who represented the King of the Belgians, invested General Loomis with the insignia of Commander of the Order of Leopold.

ARRANGING A SEND-OFF.

LONDON, March 26.
It is understood that Lord Milner, British Secretary for War, is giving his personal attention to the question of the ceremonial parade through London by the Dominion troops, before their departure for home.

A delight to the palate; a comfort to the nerves—
INSTANT POSTUM
Instead of tea or coffee.

fore their departure for home. Many newspapers here are constantly expressing regret that the overseas soldiers are being allowed to depart practically without a send-off.

RIGHT OF SEARCH HELD.

PARIS, March 25.
The Italian delegation to the Peace Conference to-day, notified the conference of the suppression of the military and commercial blockade in the Adriatic, by which trading in the Adriatic returns to conditions before the war, except that, until peace is declared, Allied warships will have the right to search merchantmen.

NOT SO BAD AS IT LOOKS.

PARIS, March 25.
The persistent rumors that all Europe is on the verge of a financial collapse are not justified by the facts, a prominent American financial expert, who has been engaged for many months studying the problems facing the Peace Conference, said in a statement to-day. Conditions were serious, he added, but not panicky, and will doubtless be relieved greatly when peace is signed and the embargoes lifted. He predicted that England will be stronger within a year than ever before, because of her unusual commercial enterprise and the courage with which she meets her debts by taxation.

BERNSTORFF'S HOPE.

PARIS, Mar. 26.
Germany is determined to stick close to the Wilson programme in making peace with the Allies, Count Von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States, declared in an interview given to the Berlin correspondent of the Temps, which that newspaper prints to-day. The armistice of Nov. 11, said Count Von Bernstorff, was signed when all the powers interested had accepted the programme of peace proposed by President Wilson. Germany is determined to keep to this agreement, which history will regard in a way as the conclusion of a preliminary peace. She herself is ready to submit to the conditions arising from it, and she expects all the interested powers to do the same. If these essential conditions of the Wilson programme should be violated or neglected, and especially if conditions are imposed, which go beyond the programme, the German delegates would unfortunately find themselves in a position of say non-possimus. Von Bernstorff advocates a plebiscite for Alsace-Lorraine and German-Austria. Germany's attitude on indemnities, he continued, if fixed by her acceptance of the note of November 5th 1918, whereby reparation is accorded for all damage done to the civil populations of France and Belgium by Germany. This note admits of the payment of no other indemnities. Asked what the consequences would be of the failure to sign a peace treaty Bernstorff replied, "I am no prophet, but Bolshevism would gain immensely. The Liberal world, which has seen salvation for humanity in President Wilson principles, would be terribly disappointed if peace were not made. Even the higher classes would be driven to despair. Remember that since the middle ages, no idea has aroused the world's enthusiasm like a League of Nations, based on peace and justice, and who will dare to cause the idea to miscarry at the first test. I hope that a League of all the Nations of the world will make common cause against the spectre of Bolshevism, and triumph over it."

MANY CASUALTIES AMONG RIOTERS.

CAIRO, March 26.
(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The official report of the riots in Egypt shows that two thousand houses and villages were sacked and the railway station at Galion was wrecked.

Here and There.

WEATHER ACROSS COUNTRY.—Calm and dull; temperature 25 to 30 above.

Has the Population of St. John's increased or decreased? Supposing it is 30,000; roughly speaking there would be about 8,000 Lady Hat Wearers. Well, there is now showing half the number at Grace Building by The L. N. & P. Assn. mar25,31

LECTURE POSTPONED.—The L. O. A. lecture, which was to have been delivered in Victoria Hall this evening, has been indefinitely postponed owing to the illness of the lecturer.

NOON.

LONDON PRESS COMMENT.
(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The London newspapers regard the action of Hungary as a direct challenge to the Associated Powers, and call for firm and sharp action to establish control of the situation. The Daily Telegraph commenting on conditions says, the Hungarian Government has openly renounced the armistice, which alone would have raised the necessity of taking firm and prompt measures to re-assert the authority of the victors. Coupled as it is, with a plain invitation to the armed Bolshevism of Russia to come to the aid of those defying the associated Powers, the action of Hungary is tenfold more serious. It calls for sharp and firm action. The Telegraph observes that the recent events have already produced an effect upon the proceedings in Paris, and it alludes to the four statesmen, now meeting daily as in effect a Council of War. It expresses the opinion that the Peace Conference has learned its lesson, and that the end has been of too lengthy deliberation. That paper continues, the imperative obligation of the hour is to re-assert our mastery of the situation. The Associated Powers possess the means to do so, and there must be a radical removal of the idea that they do not possess them or are incapable of using them, for this idea is the sole explanation of the recent display of recalcitrance in Germany, and of the flat defiance now uttered in the name of Hungary. ## The Majestic.

"The Deep Purple" attracted a large crowd to the Majestic last evening, everybody being delighted with Clara Kimball Young as the country clergyman's daughter. Her acting was superb and evoked the warmest praise of all present. Her father, the benighted old clergyman, who got into the clutches of an unscrupulous gang of crooks, also played his part well. Altogether this play was a splendid one. The third episode of "Zudora," entitled "The Mystery of the Dutch Cheese Maker," was just as thrilling and mysterious as the preceding one—which is saying a lot. The fine acting, scenery and character of "Zudora" have placed it in the category of being among the very best mystery plays shown here for a long time, and the patrons who are following it up await each episode with impatience and even anxiety. The same show will be repeated to-night, when those who could not attend yesterday will be able to see it.

Reids' Boats.

The Ethie left Placentia at 4 a.m. yesterday on the Red Island route. The Glencoe is not reported. The following marconigram was received from the Kyle: "8 p.m. yesterday. No change in ship's position; wind moderating, weather clear." The Mingle is at St. John's. The Sagona arrived at Port aux Basques at 11.55 p.m. yesterday.

Train Movements.

Tuesday's west bound express is leaving Millertown Junction when the storm abates. Yesterday's west bound express left Gambo at 7.50 a.m. to-day.

STAR OF THE SEA ASSOCIATION.

Murphy of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment will lecture to the members of the Star of the Sea Society Friday, 28th inst., at 8.30 p.m. Subject: "Across the Rhine with the Newfoundlanders, or The New Germany." Lady and Gentlemen friends cordially invited. WM. F. GRAMHAM, Sec'y.—mar27,21

Prophecies Fulfilled By the War.

The Kaiser's Fate Was Foretold Centuries Ago. (Pearson's Weekly.) The ex-Kaiser's left arm is so withered that the hand is practically useless. This fact inspired many of his subjects with dire forebodings when he came to the throne. For centuries a prophecy has been current in the Fatherland, foretelling that the German Empire would be brought to ruin under an Emperor with one hand. This prediction is not the only one which has been realized by the war. Before his assassination in 1881 the Tsar Alexander II. was haunted by the dread that the wrongs of Poland should be fearfully avenged on Russia and on the Romanoffs, who had been her chief oppressors. His favorite, the Princess Dolgoruki who passed for a religious mystic, sought to reassure him by declaring that Poland should never be avenged till Russia, Austria and Germany lay in ruins together. "Then it will never be," he said, "for it is impossible that three such powerful empires could be destroyed simultaneously."

To talk to you about C. P. F. Pipes. Funny thing the other morning one of our customers came in and purchased a $2.50 C. P. F. Pipe and he said, "What you stated in your advertisement last week REALLY did happen to me only two days ago, and that's why I am buying this C. P. F. Pipe now."

We sell dozens of C. P. F. Pipes through one customer telling another. Then again C. P. F. Pipes are different, that's why they give such satisfaction. Come in and take a look at the various grades and styles we sell.

Why the Price of Tobacco Has Increased.

For the information of the Public generally, we would ask that you publish the following extracts taken from the "United States Tobacco Journal," of Jan. 25th, 1919, Feb. 1st, 1919, and Feb. 8th, 1919, which illustrates very clearly the situation in the raw leaf market to-day and which condition has been entirely responsible for the advance in our different brands of tobacco from 5c. to 15c. per pound.

Very truly yours,
IMPERIAL TOBACCO CO. (NFLD.) LIMITED.

RIISING PRICES IN THE BURLEY MARKET. SALES ARE HEAVY. FOREIGN MARKETS SUPPOSED TO BE REPRESENTED IN MANY OF THE PURCHASES — CIGAR FACTORIES OPERATING AT NORMAL CONDITIONS.

Cincinnati, O., Tuesday. In the matter of raw tobacco, the burley markets continue to be the center of interest. Indeed that interest seems to have culminated during the past week in some top prices that are recognized as the record. At the Kenton warehouse in Covington, on Friday last, in a sale of 114,995 pounds, the highest price ever known to the market, 88 cents was reached in the sale of some superior baskets by August Small. His lowest price was 64 cents and the average was 77-1/3 cents. This was the best record in the history of burley, but there were many others nearly as good. Not only in this immediate market but throughout Kentucky, in spite of free offerings, prices ruled high. The average being $3.17 better than that of the previous week. During the week a total of 45,337,115 pounds were sold for $2,133,097.71, an average of $39.97. The previous week the sales aggregated 5,087,115 pounds, which brought $1,976,649.49, or an average of $36.80. New records have been hung up almost as fast as they could be tabulated. The season sales up to Saturday night totalled 20,215,990 pounds for a total of $7,805,275.85, an average $38.54. At Hopkinsville, in the district of "dark" production the past week has been a record-breaker and tobacco men do not hesitate to call it "wonderful." Tobacco sold at prices undreamed of, much less really expected, and they are now expected to go even higher. Fine leaf sold for 50 cents more per 100 than ever before in the history of the district. The total sales in this district thus far have closely approximated 4,500,000 pounds.

The steady upward tendency of prices has surprised everybody. The producers claimed higher prices but those who know how they felt before the sale began assert that they were prepared to be satisfied with last year's figures. The buyers counted on the larger crop to lower prices somewhat and they are really very much surprised at the stiff upward tendency. Those who know the relations existing between the half dozen very large domestic buyers could not be induced to believe that any see-sawing among them is responsible for the skyward conditions. Those who have closely watched the sales say the higher bidding is being done by men who do not talk about whom they represent but who are fairly under suspicion of acting in pursuance of heavy foreign orders. To the wise ones, this probability, which is not given as a fact capable of actual demonstration, is the only explanation available for existing conditions. They figure that after four years of comparative non-production, Europe is very short of tobacco, that her own fields will be slow to replace this shortage, that the South American surplus will not do it, that American burley is very popular in many European markets and that it is the most natural thing in the world that European buyers should make a quiet advance into our markets. And there is plenty of good reasons, economically considered, why they should find it wise to conceal their identity.

the market and the average on the sale of 180,000 pounds was $34.72. At Carlisle the sales aggregated a little less than 300,000 pounds, and the average on superior offerings was $45. At Frankfort the sales were in medium and common and the average was $35.

Extracts from United States Tobacco Journal, Feb. 8, 1919.

Cincinnati, O., Wednesday. The scramble for Kentucky's magnificent burley crop continues with a steadily rising market. Last week the high point, touched at one market only, was $95, with an average of less than $40. This year the top is $100 and the average has gone well over the $40 mark. Many of the sales are scarcely less than sensational. The total sales for the week were 5,554,135 pounds for a money value of $2,573,779.89, which is an average of $44.73 per hundred. The sales for the present week's start off at even a higher gait, the new "top" of $100 having been realized on Tuesday at Maysville where an exceptionally fine basket brought this figure.

The total sales for the season up to the close of last week were 31,728,235 pounds, with a total realization to the growers of $12,182,241.10, or an average of $38.40 per hundred, which is very largely in excess of the results of last year at a considerable period of the sale.

At the Kenton looseleaf warehouse out of a total of 137,000 pounds offered only 12,000 pounds were rejected. The bidding was spirited and high prices ruled. At Carrollton about 200,000 pounds sold at prices ranging up to $75. At Lexington floor averages ran over $50 at three different warehouses and went over $55 at one. At Sterling the prices were from $2 to $3 higher. At Frankfort, a decided upward tendency was shown. At Hopkinsville, large sales of "dark" were made on advancing figures. At Paris, the average closely approximated $50. This upward tendency was shown everywhere.

There is little or no tendency to publish comment on the conditions that have, unexpectedly to the buyers, forced so significant an advance in the price. Men who have followed the sales quietly say that they have no doubt whatever that fully twenty-five per cent. of the buying has been done on foreign orders and that a good deal more of it will be done in the weeks to come. This sort of talk, however, is not indulged in the presence of the farmers who are quite sufficiently cocky as it is. The latter are expecting the market to go higher and in many districts they are withholding their best stock for the climax, though sometimes a little in fear and trembling that they may hold on too long.—adv. 11.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. James Walsh arrived from Montreal last week on a visit to his mother, Mrs. M. A. Walsh, who is very ill at present.

Miss Mary Cron, daughter of Mr. Jas. Cron, has been accepted as a nurse at the General Hospital. Miss Cron is now waiting word to proceed to the institution to take up her work.

The whalers Port Saunders and Hawk are to-day breaking up the ice in the harbor so as to get the Ship-building Co.'s new vessel 'Jozo' on dock.

The N.E. wind to-day has once more filled up the outer harbor with heavy ice, a very unwelcome visitor at this season of the year.

Pte. Leonard Martin and Pte. Robert Stevenson arrived home last night. Pte. Martin was a prisoner of war in Germany. He was at Montreal for the past few weeks, where his mother resides. He is here now on a visit to the old home and friends.

There passed away at the Sanatorium, Topsall Road, on Friday morning, 14th inst., Robert Chesley Trappnell, at the early age of 22, son of John and the late Louisa Trappnell. Deceased was employed by the W. U. Cable Co., at Bay Roberts for the past three years, and was a general favorite; to know him was to love him. In August last he suffered from an attack of bronchitis from which he failed to recover, and in spite of every care and attention the end came rather unexpectedly. He leaves to mourn beside his father, a step-mother, four sisters, Mrs. R. S. Mann, of Hr. Grace; Mrs. C. F. Shelgrove and Mrs. S. A. Lindahl of Catalina, and Mrs. (Rev.) G. L. Mercer, of Moreton's Harbor; one brother Howard, of the cable office, North Sydney, and one half-brother Ernest, who is now very ill. The funeral took place on Sunday from his father's home, Court Residence, and was largely attended. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family in the

Royal Wedding Presents

Gifts Which Have Given Pleasure. The present which Princess Pat will most appreciate is that which her old friends in Canada are collecting for her. It is not so much the form of it—it will be War Bonds—but the feeling that so many of those whom she knew and liked in Canada are contributing to this one present.

It is not always the most costly present that is most valued by its royal recipient. When our present king was married in July 1893, nothing pleased him more than "The George." This was a beautifully designed jewel showing St. George and the Dragon in the centre, which was presented by all the Georges in the House of Commons and in other prominent positions. The idea was originated by Lord George Hamilton.

Then, too, the Queen liked nothing else so well as the Peacock's feather brooch given to her by the ex-Empress Eugenie. It was a representation in jewels of a peacock's feather, every detail being worked out in flashing gems.

When the Princess Louise married the late Marquiss of Lorne, the Jewellery given to her was very wonderful. She had a magnificent emerald from Queen Victoria, and her royal mother also gave her some marvellous opals. But here again the present which gave her most pleasure was one from the Clan Campbell. It was a very beautifully designed necklace of pearls and diamonds with a pendant representing a sprig of bog myrtle. This plant is the emblem of the Campbell Clan.

At Madrid, King Alfonso cherishes carefully King Edward's wedding present to him. This is a Stall dessert and coffee service of English porcelain, which is the finest modern work of its kind.

Extract from United States Tobacco Journal, Feb. 1st, 1919.

ACTIVITIES IN BURLEY MARKET DURING PAST WEEK. BORDER ON THE SENSATIONAL.

The burley market during the past week was something more than merely interesting. It came pretty close to being sensational. The tendency of prices on good offerings, which seem this year to predominate, is higher and higher. While the high price which startles the buyers and extremely low grades predominate. The sale at the Kenton warehouse, on the Covington side, to-day was the most successful of all. The layout of offerings included the best average of tobacco yet put on sale. The top is on the fancy grades, even the lower price reached 95 cents and while the average has not yet been announced, it will go higher than has ever before been known in the market. Throughout Kentucky the week's prices have everywhere shown a marked advance and buyers are now convinced that the end is not yet. At Maysville half a million pounds sold on Tuesday at the amazing average of $41. At Carrollton the commoner grades ruled

A pretty wedding took place at St. Paul's Church, Hr. Miss Annie Martin, sister, attended as bridesmaid, and Mr. William Jones, grandfather of the bride gave her away. The knot was tied by the Rev. W. J. R. ## Obituary.

MRS. ALAN HUDSON.
Yesterday the many friends of Mrs. Hudson were startled by the sad news that she had passed away suddenly that morning at her home in Island Cove. Mrs. Hudson, nee J. J. Lewis, J.P., whose memory is held in loving memory by the people of the North Shore of Conception Bay, was a lady whose beautiful and helpful life has laid its impress on all with whom she came in contact. In Island Cove she carried on much of the work so faithfully done by her father. She was the counsellor of the distressed and the friend of all. The distress and sorrow were all the more acute, and there is not a household there whose members are not to-day realizing that in her passing they have sustained a personal loss. To her husband, Alan Hudson, a local preacher, and for many years teacher in the Methodist settlement, she was helpful in the fullest meaning of the word, and the blow has fallen upon him with such severity that even his suddenness can have added emphasis. The Methodist church has lost one of its best workers, and whose Christian character and personal qualities endeared her to all. She leaves two sons, Rev. Louis Hudson, B.A., for some time a teacher in the Methodist college, and now taking a post graduate course at Harvard, and Alan Hudson, one of Newfoundland's gallant men, who, after faithful and fearless service, is now at home, bearing honorable scars. One daughter is married in Canada, another is a trained nurse, whose speedy return home was looked forward to with keen and pleasurable anticipation by her father, whilst a third is living with her father in Island Cove. To the growing father, brothers and sisters, the Telegram voices the sympathy of all their friends. Mrs. Hudson's memory will remain enshrined in every heart for long years to come. She lived for others and her happiness was ever brightest when ministering to the needs of her neighbors in her family. Two brothers, Messrs. John and Herbert Lewis, and two sisters, Mrs. Freeman, widow of the late R. W. Freeman, and Mrs. Garland, survive her and reside in Lower Island Cove. The late Mrs. Alexander Marshall, of this city, was sister.

Mr. H. F. Shortis will lecture to-morrow evening, in the Aula Maxima, under the auspices of the Holy Name Society, his subject being "Our Old Customers." Mr. Shortis' talents are too well known to need any recommendations, and his platform delivery is unequalled. Don't miss his lecture. It will be better than a best.

Public Notice!

Mr. Lewis J. Bartlett has been appointed by the Government in place of the late Mr. Eli Whiteway to attend to the movement of patients to and from the various public institutions with headquarters at the Public Health Office, St. John's.

Medical Practitioners, Relieving Officers, and others are hereby notified that patients shall on no account be sent to St. John's without first receiving assurance from Mr. Bartlett that they can be admitted or, in the case of the General Hospital, that cots will be available upon their arrival. It has been brought to the notice of the Government that sick people sent on without authority have been caused much additional suffering and hardship in boarding houses in the city, in some cases with risk of permanent injury to their health, for which of course they themselves or their advisors have been responsible. Cases other than emergency cases coming to St. John's without the proper authority will run the risk of being immediately sent back to their homes, so as to prevent undue suffering, as it is impossible to provide accommodation for all applicants under existing conditions. By order,
