PYORRHEA AGAIN. Pyorrhoea is so insidious that we want to repeat again and again our former warnings against it. It is not painful as a rule, and that very fact makes it all the more dangerous. Watch for those bleeding gums, they are your warnings. Do not give your body a chance to absorb poisons that come from bad teeth or diseased gums. Anything from a headache to a serious illness may result from your neglect. Pyorrhoea is a dreadful disease.

CHAPTER XII.
UNDER ARREST.

"No!" exclaimed Clarence, passionately. "Miss Iris shall not be subject to such an outrage! What—ask a servant such a question?"
"Servant, yes; but her mother's sister!" murmured the signor, smoothly. "It is a lie!" exclaimed Clarence. The signor shrugged his shoulders. "His lordship has all the obstinacy of the English," he said, resignedly. "You will not send for her? Then I will! I have borne much at his lordship's hands, my patience is exhausted. I, Baptiste, have been called a liar! Good! I will prove that I have spoken the truth, and then—he glared darkly at Clarence—"then his lordship and I will settle matters!"
He tilted the bell, but Mr. Barrington caught his arm.
"Wait!" he said; "I must have time to consider. I will not have this woman sent for."
The signor sank back into his seat, and shrugged his shoulders.
"Good!" he said. "Then it shall be as I suggest. We will say no more about this little romance. We will hush it up. Eh? Is it not so? Miss Iris shall take the gold and the lands, and my Lord Covardale shall remain a pauper as before. Is not that so?"
There was a silence, an awful silence; then, before Mr. Barrington could speak the words upon his lips, the curtains were drawn aside, and there stood Iris, white as death, her beautiful eyes glowing with anguish and agony. Beside her, and held by the arm in the tight, steel-like grasp of Iris' hand, was Felice.
The signor, for it seemed nothing less, struck the three men with dismay. Mr. Barrington sank back in his chair; the signor half-rode, then fell back with an impetuous rush; Clarence, after a second of stupor, rushed forward; but Iris' eyes, rather than any motion she made, stopped him, and rooted him to the spot.
The signor was the first to recover the power of speech.
"Feste!" he exclaimed, in a low voice. "Miss Iris—Miss Iris! I implore you—" began Clarence, but she silenced him with a glance.
Like a ghost she opened her lips, and the words came slowly, distinctly: "Felice is here! Ask her!"
Ricardo's lips opened, and his teeth gleamed, but Mr. Barrington averted his feet.

SUFFERING OF YOUNG WOMEN

Faith Tells How It May be Overcome—All Mothers Interested.

Toronto, Ont.—"I have suffered since I was a school girl with pain in my left side and with cramps, growing worse each year until I was all run down. I was so bad at times that I was sent for weeks to the hospital. I tried several doctors and patent medicines, but was only relieved for a short time. Some of the doctors wanted to perform an operation, but my father objected. Finally I learned through my mother of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and how thankful I am that I tried it. I am relieved from pain and cramps, and feel as if I had saved my life. You may use my letter to help other women as I am glad to recommend the medicine."—Mrs. H. A. GEORGE, 14 Rockville Ave., Toronto.
Those who are troubled as Mrs. George was should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Those who need special advice may write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. These letters will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

the man, respectfully, but firmly. "My name is Barrington; you have heard it, I dare say."
"The detective" said Mr. Barrington. "I cannot attend to you. I am seriously engaged."
The man bowed.
"I am very sorry, sir; I shall not keep you a minute. I have a warrant for a man I want."
"I cannot attend to you!" repeated Mr. Barrington.
"And I am informed that he is in this house," said the detective, gently, but firmly. "He is a slippery customer, and I am anxious to get him. If you will give me permission to make a search."
"There is no one here!"
"I think he is here, sir!" said the detective, persistently. "He was traced here an hour ago by one of the local police."
"He is not here!" said Mr. Barrington, impatiently. "Go, if you please; I am engaged!"
The detective bowed respectfully, and turned to the door.
But at that moment Felice glided out.
"Stop!" she said.
The man pulled up and faced her. "The man you want is here!" she said between her teeth. "He is in there," and she pointed to the inner room.
The detective sprang at the curtains like a hound unleashed. There was the sound of a struggle, and in a moment or two the detective appeared, dragging the signor after him.
Mr. Barrington and Clarence stared in amazement.
"This is my man, gentlemen," said the detective quietly, but flushed and hot with the struggle.
"Signor Ricardo!" exclaimed Mr. Barrington.
The detective smiled.
"That's one of his names. I dare say, sir. Yes, he's our man. Forgery and embezzlement is the charge, Mr. Barrington. I felt sure that he was here, for one of my men tracked him an hour ago."
The signor glared round, his face white, all his teeth showing. The detective had been none too gentle, and the signor's collar was hanging in a dilapidated fashion from his neck.
"Forgery and embezzlement!" said Mr. Barrington.
"Yes, sir; forgery of Italian bank notes. They wired to you from the other side. But we shouldn't have caught him so easily, but for information we got from a lady in this house—a Mrs. Felice—she put us on the scent."
The signor turned his glaring eyes and gleaming teeth in the direction of Felice, who stood with pale, set face and downcast eyes, as if she had no part of lot in the proceedings.
"What a fine piece of work you have done!" he said. "It was you who set the bloodhounds on my track!"
"Yes," she said, and a single glance of hatred and revenge gleamed in her black eyes. "It was I."
"Good!" he hissed. "I will remember! Fit for fat, eh? You can send me to jail, Felice, but you can't put your dainty young mistress back in the place I have thrust her from, eh?"
Felice's face remained set and impassive.
"Take him away," said Mr. Barrington.
"Come along, Mr. Ricardo," said the detective. "I expect this is not the only thing you are wanted for!"
Signor Ricardo looked round with a malicious smile.
"Wait!" he hissed. "Wait and see! Baptiste Ricardo will win the game yet!"
And with this enigmatical threat he was dragged off.

CHAPTER XIII.
"OH, HEAVEN! IT IS TRUE!"
The shadow that had darkened upon Iris' life had taken upon itself shape, and its form and name were—Shame!
She who had regarded herself as a knight, as one of the proud race which stood first and foremost in the country, was a nameless orphan, against whom the world was free to point the finger of scorn—that world which had hitherto bestowed its homage upon her and, so to speak, knelt at her feet!
Some girls would have given way to tears and hysterics; Iris shed no tear, uttered no plaint. Slowly, and like one moving in a dream, she went up to her room. As she passed through the hall, she looked up at the long line of family portraits. How often she had stood and gazed at them, and gone over in her mind the history of the past, in which so many of them had taken a great and noble part; how often her heart had throbbled with the thought that she was one of them—a Knight of Knighthood and Beverly. It seemed to her, now, that the faces were mocking and gibing at her as an impostor and usurper, and that one and all cried out:
"You are none of us—you have no part or lot with us; begone!"
When she reached her room—the very luxuriance of which seemed to upbraid her—she sank on to a chair, and, covering her face with her hands, strove to realize the awful blow which had befallen her.
She did not doubt the truth of Ricardo's statement; she knew that Felice would have been only too glad to give him the lie. No, it was true! She was the daughter of shame and reproach, without name or abiding place; a thing for the world to scoff at and condemn; in a word—an outcast!

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

"I DON'T BELIEVE IT."
Do you ever find yourself saying when anything passes your comprehension or seems unlikely to you, "I don't believe it!"
Once upon a time when I was a little girl another little girl told me that she had heard how a man was killed because he took hold of another man and tried to pull him off an electric wire, and he just stuck to the first man, and another man stuck to him, and they were both killed. I thought that was a very silly story to expect me to believe, "I don't believe it," I said. She defended the authenticity and veracity of her source, and as I remembered we nearly came to blows over it.
That Foolish Little Girl.
Of course I have looked back many times since and laughed at the pugnacity and the cocksureness of that foolish little girl who had not learned that there were more things in heaven and earth than were dreamed of in her philosophy.
And yet how often folks who have been taught their ignorance over and over again by finding how tiny an island is their knowledge and experience, in the vast sea of possible knowledge and experience, will still say, "I don't believe it" (or think it if they do not say it) when confronted with some fact or condition which does not square with what they know, or think they know.
What a wonderful thing a reputation for reliability is, by the way, a sort of personal trademark copyrighted in the courts of character.

Alfred the Great Died.
On October 28, A.D. 901, that being the festival of the Apostles Saint Simon and Saint Jude, Alfred the Great, the English King, died. That description of title given to him in the English language the same as that of Peter the Great, Emperor of Russia, and of the Grand Monarque, as that given to Louis the Fourteenth, King of France; and no sovereign was more worthy of such a distinction. If any equally so, as Alfred the Great for several reasons. Born at Wantage, in Berkshire, in 849, he succeeded his father, Ethelwulf, as King of the West Saxons; who inhabited what is now the south-west of England. Of the deeds that deserved for him that title, the first was that he resisted and defeated the Danes, who invaded England. Secondly, he brought London into a flourishing state, and which has continued ever since the capital of England. Thirdly, he assembled what may be called the first English Parliament, which was consisted of bishops, earls, aldermen, and thanes, who were called twice a year to London, Oxford, or Gloucester. Fourthly, he translated Latin books into English, being himself a scholar, to teach his ignorant subjects by their reading them. Fifthly, he founded the English fleet, which has since made the Empire so famous. It is no wonder that by all this service he became very dear to his people, and that he has been distinguished ed as "the Great." In his private life he divided each day into three parts; one for the worship of God, a second for public affairs, and the other for rest and refreshment. He died and was buried at Winchester.

The Captain Gave It Up.

The lady who was formerly Captain Jane Lowther in the Salvation Army, and who is now the wife of General Booth, is fond of telling the story of how she was once "talked to a standstill" by a lazy but quick-witted Cockney lad.
She had been asked by the boy's father to take him to task about his idleness, and she did so.
"But why should I work?" objected the lad, in answer to her expostulations.
"To make money," he was told.
"But what do I want with money?"
"Why, save it, and be independent; then you will not have to work any more."
"I don't have to work now," the lad replied; and "Captain Jane" gave it up.

Home's Report.

HERRING AT PORT SAUNDERS AND BRIG BAY.

The S.S. Home, Capt. Norman, arrived from the Straits on Saturday morning, bringing a full load of freight and 140 passengers. Capt. Norman reports very stormy weather throughout the trip. The ship was delayed considerable time at Bonna Bay when going north, owing to a storm and was also unable to make some of the ports of call between there and Port Saunders for the same cause. Practically all the people are now off the Labrador Coast who intend to come. There was a good sign of herring at Brig Bay and John's Island when the Home was there coming south, and about two barrels to the net were taken at Port Saunders on Thursday last, being the first at the latter place for the season. At Port aux Choix Darby had about 100 barrels to date. The Home sails again to-day, and according to reports, will be unable to take all the freight offering for the Straits.—Western Star, Oct. 20.

Cheaper Potatoes.

Potatoes are coming in plentifully from the outports particularly from places in Conception Bay, where the crop has been fairly good. The tubers are selling at $2.50 per barrel, wholesale. Some of the local farmers are asking $4.00 per barrel, but they are not finding ready sale at the price.

Threatened Railway Strike Off.

Big Chiefs Take Second Thought--A New Factor in European Affairs--Sinn Fein Convention Behind Closed Doors--Crew of Schooner Imprimus at St. John, N.B.

FIVE TO CALL OFF STRIKE. CHICAGO, Oct. 27. The rail strike scheduled for October 30, was averted to-night when the big chiefs of the railway unions, engineers and firemen at a joint meeting adopted resolutions withdrawing authorization of the strike and calling for a meeting of the Railway Brotherhoods to discuss the situation.

STRIKE CALLED OFF. CHICAGO, Oct. 27. WITHIN CLOSED DOORS. DUBLIN, Oct. 27. Requesting newspaper reporters to leave the Sinn Fein Convention here to-day, Eamonn De Valera said: "This is a meeting in miniature of the nation and this is a critical time for the nation. We who are responsible for the nation's policy want to have a free expression from the representatives of the nation. We feel that they would be hampered in giving the advice we have to give, if anything we say should be open to misrepresentation outside. We have representatives of the nation at present acting on behalf of the nation in London, and we do not want, if we can possibly help it, to cut in on their work." The Convention, which opened this morning, was the first of its kind to be held in two years. Two thousand delegates from all parts of Ireland were present. It was officially explained that conference was an ad-

UNIONISTS AGGRESSIVE. LONDON, Oct. 27. Lloyd George will probably have to abandon or postpone his visit to Washington because of the critical position of the Irish negotiations, all informed newspapers asserted to-day. Irish deleg. are said to be holding out for concessions to counterbalance waiving of their demand for independence. Unrested members, interviewing Chamberlain, urged formation of a new coalition with Unionists predominant, but the Government House-Leader returned a non-

IMPRIMUS CREW LANDED. ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 27. The officers and crew of the schooner Imprimus, which foundered in latitude 34.28 north, and longitude 68.58 west, several weeks ago, were brought here on the R.M.P.S. Chaleur. They are: Captain Moses Pilley, Mate Maurice Pilley, George Ellis, Gilbert Walsh, all of Trinity Bay, Newfoundland, and John Barrett of Bonavista. The schooner was enroute from Newfoundland for Turk's Island to load a cargo of salt when they were overcome by a severe storm. They weathered the storm, but it was found that the vessel had become waterlogged, and the entire party was compelled to take to the vessel's boat, thirteen feet long. After a day and a night rowing, they were picked up by the steamer Hartford and landed at Bermuda.

Many Newspapers Centuries Old. The Manchester Guardian, one of the most influential newspapers in England, has just passed its hundredth year; but by comparison with other newspapers in the world it has still a few centuries to go before it may be considered a venerable institution. According to the list of the world's newspapers the most venerable of all the venerable newspapers is already 1,303 years old and still making its appearance regularly. The Chinese have it. The Peking Gazette, containing official decrees and official versions of the news, has appeared regularly since the days of their work. duce many copies of lettered matter at a reasonable cost. It was not until 1865, however, according to an English historian of printing, that the Oxford Gazette (the original London Gazette) made its appearance as the first newspaper in the precise sense of the word; that is, as a flat paper of news rather than a pamphlet or a bound book. In the United States the oldest newspaper which is still in existence is already 165 years old. It is the New Hampshire Gazette of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, established in 1756. Most of the space in the Colonial newspapers at first was devoted to foreign affairs. Local matters were considered to be too well known to be worthy of mention.

The Value of a Smile.

The thing that goes the farthest towards making life worth while—that costs the least and does the most—is just a pleasant smile. That bubbles from a sunny heart that loves its fellow men. Who drive away the clouds of gloom and coax the sun again. It's full of worth and goodness, too. With mainly kindness bent; it's worth a million dollars. And it doesn't cost a cent.
A smile comes very easy; You can wrinkle up with cheer a hundred, hundred times before you drop a soggy tear. It ripples out, moreover. To the heartstrings that will tug; And always leaves an echo. That is very like a bug. So smile away—folks understand what by a smile is meant; It's worth a million dollars. And it doesn't cost a cent. —"The Teller."

A Famous Vessel.

The following very interesting paragraph lately appeared in "The Lloyd's List," and might lead to reminiscences from logbookers:—

A telegram dated August 25 from Bremen, states that the Norwegian steamer Governoren, bound from Norway to Brake with a cargo of whale oil, is aground north of Heligoland. Tugs are in attendance and lighters have been sent. The "Governoren" is a steel steamer of 5,045 tons gross, and was built for the White Star Line. From 1895 to 1900 she was owned by the West India and Pacific Steamship Company, and from 1900 to 1913 by the Leyland Line, being known in both fleets as Tampoon. In 1913 she was sold to a Norwegian whaling company, who changed her name to Imo. On December 6, 1917, while leaving Halifax Harbour, she rammed the French steamer Mont Blanc, which was loaded with a full cargo of munitions, and a terrible explosion followed, which wrecked one and a half miles miles of Halifax city and caused the death of 1,200 people and serious injuries to 5,000 others. The Mont Blanc became a total loss and the Imo had to be beached in the harbour, but was subsequently repaired.

"Who," therefore, remembers the Bunko, the Tampoon, the Imo, the Governoren, whichever you please, for they were the same ship? It strikes me that this sounds quite as bad as the changed names in the Russia and Malta mystery.—"The Skipper" in Liverpool Weekly Post.

The Dead Line of Liberty

Attention has been drawn to the fact that the Statue of Liberty was placed with its back to the United States. In this connection an illuminating story is told.

An American on board a British ship from New York to Liverpool, settled himself in a comfortable chair on the deck and called to a passing steward to bring a whiskey and soda. The steward replied, "I am very sorry, sir, I can't." "Isn't this a British ship?" the passenger asked. "Yes," replied the steward. "Why bring me a whiskey and soda?" "I am very sorry, sir, I can't." "Why can't you bring me a whiskey and soda?" asked the irate American. "We have not passed the Statue of Liberty yet, sir," was the reply.

A Captain of Finance.

This is the season above all others when the people of the land, and especially the people of the West, derive direct benefit from the country's banking system. The money is always forthcoming for moving the grain crop in many ways and in widely separated places the banks have been gathering it up; some by means of deposits received in village and town branches, more from deposits in cities and industrial centres; and by the banks widely ramifying system of branches this money is distributed through the grain harvesting districts where it need be pressing and immediate.

One of the oldest and largest institutions in Canada engaged in finance is the Bank of Montreal, established in the year 1817. Its President is Sir Vincent Meredith, one of the captains of Canadian business.

Sir Vincent belongs to the well-known Meredith family of Ontario. His father was the late J. W. C. Meredith, A.B., of London, Ont., and there the son was born. He was educated at Hellmuth College, London, and soon after completing his college course he entered the service of the Bank of Montreal. That was in 1867—Confederation year, fifty-five years ago. To-day he is president of the great banking corporation, having reached that highest post through service in a long succession of subordinate positions. He became Assistant General Manager in 1903, General Manager in 1911, and President in 1913. He is also connected with other financial institutions, but apart from his business duties he finds time for other public services. He is President of the Royal Victoria Hospital, President of the Art Association of Montreal and a Governor of McGill University.

Risking Death for Sealskins.

Hunting the seal from the icy, storm-swept coast of Newfoundland is not sport; it is toil, whereby in part the Newfoundlanders win his scanty measure of bread. The hunt is a dull and hideous slaughter—a leap into the whirling and scurrying pack, and the swinging and thrust of an iron-shod gaff, a merciless raining of blows, with a silent waste of ice all splashed with red at the end of it. There is no sport in this, nor is there any fear of hurt, for the seal pleads and whines like a child, even while the gaff is falling; but the chase is beset with multitudinous and unforeshadowed perils. The wind gathers the ice into floes and jams it up against the coast, an immeasurable, jagged expanse of it interspersed with plains; then the Newfoundlanders take his gaff and his food and his goggles, and sets out from his little harbour, starting at midnight that he may come up with a pack at dawn. But the wind which sweeps the ice in inevitably sweeps it out again without warning in an hour, or a day or a week; nor does it pause to consider the situation of the men who are twenty miles off shore. It veers and freshens and drives the whole mass, grinding and heaving, far out to sea, where it disperses it into its separate fragments. The lives of the hunters depend upon the watchfulness of the stationed line of lookouts, from the women on the headland to the first sentinel within signalling distance.

The Boys Scored.

Lecturing before the members of the British Association recently, Dr. Kimmins, chief inspector of L.C.C. schools, told a couple of stories illustrative of the way children sometimes manage to score off their elders.
One referred to a boy to whom a teacher said reprovingly, "When Lord George was your age he was top of the form."
"When he was your age he was Prime Minister," retorted the boy.
The other story concerned a fat inspector who asked a little girl her name.
"Mary," replied the child.
"That is funny," said the inspector, as I have a little Mary at home."
On which an irreverent boy whispered audibly to his neighbour: "Anyone can see that!"

With a charming blush, the principal witness against him interrupted, "I don't wish to prosecute the gentleman, sir," she said to the magistrate. "Anyone might have made the same mistake."

Training the Blind.

The provincial Government pays $400 per Nova Scotia student per year who attends the school for the blind at Halifax, and last year made an additional grant of $25,000. New Brunswick pays $350 per student from that province and Prince Edward Island $250. It is hoped to get $400 from Newfoundland this year. These figures were given by Sir Frederick Fraser, himself blind, superintendent of the Halifax school, at a luncheon marking the opening of a campaign for funds of the institution.

An Eye to Business.

At a concert in a country town, a young lady recited "The Village Blacksmith" and was loudly applauded.
A few evenings afterward, at another concert, she was given the programme for the same evening.
Just before she stepped on to the platform a burly fellow very much out of breath tapped her on the shoulder.
"I've just come round from the front," he whispered excitedly. "I want yer to do me a favour."

"Well, what is it?" asked the young lady.

"It's this," whispered the intruder.
"I happen ter be the feller you'll be talking about, and I want yer to put in a verse this time sayin' as how I

CAPTAIN REDUCED TO MATE.
MONTREAL, Oct. 27.
Captain V. R. Griffiths of the coal freighter Maskinonge is reduced to the rating of mate for six months from October 31, and the pilot in charge of the vessel, when she returns, and sank the Canadian Government Merchant Marine freighter, Canadian Recruit, below Quebec, about two months ago, has his certificate suspended for the remainder of the season. This was the judgment handed down this afternoon by the Dominion Wreck Commissioner, Capt. R. L. Demers. Captain Griffiths was found by the Commission to have been travelling in fog at an immoderate speed, and to have neglected the use of his fog bell. The pilot was found to have been in default in occurring in the neglect of captain.
Other officers of the Maskinonge were exonerated.

NAVAL BASES.
LONDON, Oct. 28.
The Premier announced in the House that the Imperial Conference had generally agreed with the policy previously adopted by the Admiralty, that for the better security of Britain's outlying possessions, certain naval bases, including those of the Pacific, needed modernizing and in special cases extension, but it was not the intention to ask money for this purpose this year.

NORWEGIAN ELECTIONS.
CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Oct. 28.
General elections gave no party a clear majority, and it is impossible to predict which party will form a Cabinet. Conservatives running on a prohibition platform obtained 56 seats out of 150. The radical left, the biggest party in the old Storting, lost heavily on the prohibition policy, and violations of the treaty with Portugal and Spain, which led to a tariff war and the closing of those countries to the Norwegian fish trade.

to the Paymaster Commander, H.M.S. "Briton":

1. Full Christian and Sur-

3. Date demobilised.
4. Address to which money should be sent.

Naval Prize Money will be

Until the pressure of pay-

Relics of the Neolithic Age.

Some splendidly preserved fossils of plant life of a bygone age were shown to the Telegram to-day by Mr.
W. Barker of the F. B. Wood Co. Not only from a geological, but also from an artistic standpoint, the specimens appear to be the most interesting ever found here. There are three in Mr.
Barker's possession. One shows a fossilized fern between two layers of stone, part of the top layer having been broken off and disclosing the fern.
These layers evidently form the surface on which the plant grew and the surface which formed over it in a later age. The other two fossils are really beautiful and when viewed from a distance of a few feet one gives the appearance of a lake, with a rocky border, with trees in the foreground, and the other, without any wide stretch of the imagination, is very like a glorious sunset, a yellow substance in the stone adding to the effect. The ferns are small and can be easily felt when the finger is passed over them. These fossils were found near Cabot Tower on Signal Hill but some were unfortunately destroyed by the men who turned them up, they having no idea of their geological value.

"Out of the Mouths of Babes."

Amongst a number of good stories told by J. C. Wright in "Children's Humour" is one concerning a small boy who one day came timidly to his teacher with the following query:
"Please, sir, ought I to be punished for something I have not done?"
"Why, certainly not."
"Well, then, ought I to be punished because I have not done my sums?"
Another good one concerns some children who had been taken through the Museum of Natural History.
"Where have you been?" asked the mother of one.
"We've been to a dead circus" was the response.

An Unexpected Answer.

The Bishop of Norwich, Dr. Bartram Pollock, who recently gave fresh evidence of his broad mindedness by lending the grounds of his palace for a Salvation Army "revival," is fond of telling the story of a brief dialogue he once overheard between a colleague of his and the little son of the country rector, at whose house the prelate had called.

Said the Bishop:
"Well, my little man, and how old are you?"
"Six," was the reply.
"And what are you going to be?"
asked his lordship.
"Seven," responded the child.

Not a Fair Game.

Mr. W. Pett Ridge, the well-known author, has been lecturing to a provincial audience on his favourite subject—"Cockney Humour." Amongst other stories he told was one concerning small boys who were puzzling their brains to invent a new game.
At last one of them said eagerly:
"I know, Billy; let's see who can make the ugliest face."
"Gern! No fear!" was the reply.
"Look what a start you've got!"

Safety First!

The conjurer at the annual gathering in the village schoolroom had invited any gentleman from the audience to step up on the platform, and a rustic in a velvet coat had responded.
"Now, friend," said the conjurer,
"I suppose you consider it a matter of impossibility for me to make the rabbit in that box on the table pass into your coat-tail pocket?"
"Gern! No fear!" was the reply.
"I dunno about impossible," was the reply, "but I wouldn't do it if I vers you, sir."
"Oh, you'll be in no danger, I can assure you," said the slight-of-hand man airily.
"I wasn't thinking about myself," the rustic answered calmly. "I was studying the rabbit. I've got a couple of ferrets in that 'ere pocket!"

Sweetest Things on Earth

What are the sweetest things on earth? The love that can raise a rival's worth; The fragrant rose that hides a thorn; The golden smile that looks for no return; The happy little child asleep; The smile that can smile, though they may weep; The brother's cheer, a father's praise; The minister's prayer of summer days; The heart where never anger burns; The gift that looks for no return; The roses overthrown; The pain's swift release; The footsteps guided into peace; The light of love, the lover's eyes; The honest hand that needs no ward; The life with right in true accord; The happiness that comes without alloy; The mother's kiss, a baby's mirth; These are the sweetest things of earth.

New Rector Welcomed.

A reception was held by the Dunfermline Men's Bible Class on Wednesday night in Canon Wood Hall as a welcome to the Rev. Mr. Earp, of St. Thomas's. Rev. A. Clayton presided and a few well chosen words introduced Mr. Earp to the class. The Rev. gentleman thanked the gathering for their hearty welcome, and gave a very interesting discourse on the benefits to be derived from such a class as the Dunfermline Men's Bible Class giving his experience of similar work in England. During the evening the class and guests were treated to a rabbit supper by several members of the parish which was thoroughly enjoyed. Songs and recitations were rendered by Messrs. C. Hammond, F. Martin, G. Field and A. Hammond, and the affair was brought to a close at 10.30 with the National Anthem.

Confirmation Ceremony at Carbonear.

The Sacrament of Confirmation was administered on Sunday last by His Reverend Bishop March, D.D., at St. Patrick's, Carbonear. There were 49 candidates for confirmation, and they were first addressed by His Lordship, the service from beginning to end was most edifying and will be long remembered by all who had the privilege of attending it and receiving the sacrament of its impressions. Before administering the sacrament His Lordship said that it was upon him as Ordinary of the Diocese to express his entire satisfaction with the manner in which the preparation was made by the people and their pastor, and to congratulate both of the many improvements brought about since his official visit to the parish. Rt. Rev. Monsignor McCarthy assisted the Bishop at the ceremony.

"Marry the Poor Girl."

THE NEWEST. In a play he is able to conceive a "Marry the Poor Girl" which has been a genuine success. This has been the case in his past plays, and he is now at the Casino Theatre, in addition to conceiving a brand new idea. Mr. Davis has moulded it into a play that is a continuous riot of side-splitting fun, and has filled this vehicle with intensely funny lines and situations. "Marry the Poor Girl," one of the funniest plays that has been presented for some time. The matinee attraction to-morrow is the repetition of the very popular dramatic bill "The Confession." Seats for this performance are now selling at F. V. Chamberlain's, Water Street. The opening bill for next week is a dramatic offering entitled "Jim's Girl."—adv.

Dog Runs Amuck.

A dog, which the S.P.C.A. Inspector, Mr. Jonas Barter, attempted to shoot to-day, ran amuck and with the bullets in it, raced for a considerable distance before it finally succumbed to its wounds. Mr. Barter shot at the animal on Gilbert Street, bounding it in the paw and as the canine faced him, tried another shot but the gun hung fire. A third attempt was more successful, the bullet striking the dog's body. Maddened with pain it jumped towards Mr. Barter who struck it with a stick, and then the brute rushed down towards Water Street with blood streaming from its wounds, finally falling dead.

Thoughts by the Way.

Few years ago when Newfoundland, Obeys Liberty's command,
Fought battles on a foreign strand
And victory won;
The praises of her sons who sought
To bring her honor, and who fought
Until they won it, then were caught
By everyone.

Again to-day in Newfoundland
We're honored by a little band
Of athletes four, who made the stand
We would have done.
Then let our hearts with praises swell,
For Skirving, Butler, Pheasant, Bell
Showed Canada, the world as well,
That we could run!

We're natives of this Newfoundland,
And love it dear from hill to strand;
So every noble deed and grand Wrought by a son
Shall gather praises far and near,
From city, village, everywhere;
Conspicuous we are— we share
The glories won.

The City Committee.

WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the Civic Commission was held last evening. Mayor Morris presided and Councillors Vinicombe, Peet, Jackman, Collier and Hallett were present. After the Minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, the following matters received the attention of the Board:

Communications were read from the Colonial Secretary as follows:—(1) Under Section 2 of the Consolidated Loan Act, 1921, an order has been issued to liquidate the temporary loans due the Royal Bank by the Council, and that same would now be included in the funded debt of the City; (2) That the Proclamation has been issued, fixing the dates for Nomination and Polling Days as December 6th and 15th respectively; also that His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to appoint Mr. F. J. Doyle as Returning Officer and Hon. F. J. Morris as Revisor of Voters' Lists in the Municipal Election.

The Inspector General, replying to the Council's communication and that of the Motor Association, in reference to unregistered out-of-town cars and drivers of same, stated that, if the Association was aware of such violations of the Motor Regulations, the matter should be reported more promptly, so that immediate action might be taken.

The Secretary of the G.W.V.A. forwarded a communication from the Executive of that Association, asking that sailors, soldiers and foresters table for the Poll Tax, might be exempt from same from the time of demobilization, January 1st 1919 to December 31st, 1921. The Council has not the power, under the Act, to make such exemptions, but legal opinion will be obtained in the matter.

Following up his last communication, regarding the removal of snow from the City streets during the coming winter season, Mr. Wm. White suggested that the manholes leading to the City Sewers be used for the disposal of snow. The Engineer stated that it would be impossible to carry out the suggestion, as most of the sewers in the city were only nine inches, and that he would not undertake such an experiment.

The Secretary of St. Michael's Church wrote, in reference to land taken for street widening purposes, Golf Avenue, that, as the authorities wished to proceed with the erection of a parsonage on this site, they would like to know the intentions of the Council in the matter. Plans and deeds of the property referred to are to be submitted.

Mr. P. Summers asked that the arbitration in connection with expropriation of his property near Windsor Lake, be proceeded with. This will be attended to as quickly as possible.

W. & G. Rendell, agents Branscombe Estate, wrote in reference to land, Lime Street, stating they would be willing to discuss the matter of compensation for portion of said land required for street widening purposes. It was ordered accordingly.

Dale & Company, informed the Board it was the intention of the Mt. Royal Insurance Company to do business in this Country, and asked that they be taxed on a pro rata basis for the balance of the year. The request was acceded to.

R. Templeton, on behalf of Muir Marble Works, stated that the debris near the premises would be removed. Road Inspector Cusker reported that, during the past week, one of the employees had been injured on the works. It was decided that the Insurance Company be notified of this, and that a claim be submitted in due course.

C. Merner forwarded catalogue and price list for street signs and numbers, etc. The matter was ordered to stand over.

Tom P. Moore asked permission to erect stable on Hamilton Avenue. Plans must be submitted before his application can be considered.

Plans submitted by S. Snelgrove, Lower Battery were deferred for consideration.

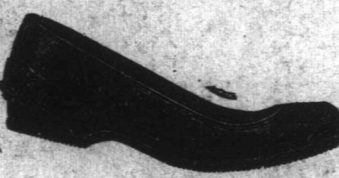

It was decided that tenders be called for the supply of 5 tons of lead pipe and 500 feet of rubber hose.

Reports of City Engineer, Health Officer, etc., for week were read. The accounts presented were ordered paid, after which the meeting adjourned.

Just Folks

Save your money, some sage has said. For money will pay for your meat and bread.

As the years go by to a fund will grow. And the fund will swell to a larger size.

Guard the seed of your finest flowers. For they will grow under April showers.

Here is a dried and shriveled thing. That into beauty and life will spring—Save it, for under its husk there lies a lovely blossom which you shall prize.

But seldom we think it is written down. That a boy is the seed of a man's renown.

That he who is given a boy to train, Has better than blossoms or gold to gain.

That dollars to fortunes will quickly grow. And seeds to flowers, are the truths we know.

But I wonder if ever we pause to see The man that anyone's boy may be?

Who touches a boy, by the Master's plan, Is shaping the course of the future man.

Father or mother or teacher or priest, Friend or stranger or saint or beast, In dealing with one who is living seed And may be the man whom the world shall need.

For who can measure the pride and joy That may some day grow from a little boy?

Re Forestation—A Suggestion.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Some of your readers have noticed that most of the conifers, pine, spruce, fir and juniper, are now carrying an enormous yield of seed bugs. These cones are fertile only at certain periods. This may be the right time for a general effort throughout the country to reforest our depleted timber lands, and to beautify our coast settlements. The bugs ought to be collected now and allowed to dry. Then the little seeds should be shaken out. They are secured to little films shaped like fly's wings, and should be scattered broad cast or in nursery beds, on a very calm day. I have in my garden here trees raised both from local and imported seeds to prove that this suggestion is worth while.

(2) The hills here now are covered with thousands of gallons of beautiful ripe partridgeberries. It seems a shame in these hard times that there is no local market for them, and no berry-barrels to put them in. It would be an easy matter to fill 100 barrels in a day or two at say 25 cents a gallon. This would mean something to those

THE IDEAL CLIMATE.

I'm living in a pleasant valley, with no extremes of heat or cold, and here the aged and weary rally, to linger till their knells are tolled. No blizzards, with their angry roaring, disturb our calm, or records break; we are not frozen, while we're snoring, or broiled or baked when we're awake. The days are mildly warm and lazy, the kind of days good judges pick; and we've all grown so all-fired lazy we lack the pep to make a kick. All day we bask on strips of lumber, all day we loiter in the sun, and nod and yawn, and sample slumber, and put off chores that should be done. And this will do for ancient fellows with shining domes and rheumy joints, who suffer from asthmatic bellows, and spavins on their starboard limbs. But if I had an heir-apparent, and he desired to anchor here, I'd say, "Augustus John, you daren't!—'twould make you worthless in a year. Here

"Bobbed Brains" and Bobbed Hair.

Baltimore, Oct. 26.—Judging a girl's fitness for business by the length of her hair as an employment standard, has little more to recommend it than the selection of a man because he wears a bow tie or a four-in-hand, in the opinion of Dr. William W. Guth, president of Goucher College of Baltimore. While a little vanity is good for any woman, "bobbed brains," are a more vital subject than bobbed hair, according to President Guth.

"It is difficult to see why this harmless feminine whim has aroused such widespread discussion," Dr. Guth added, "unless, perhaps it is true that we delight in marking mountains out of molehills. For, all the evidence visible from a college office points to the fact that the young girl of to-day is aiming toward a standard not to be compared with uniform coiffures—the standard of real usefulness in the home, in the community and in the world of business."

So much has been said about the vanities and frivolities of the modern girl that it is only fair to point out that the average girl of to-day is far better equipped mentally than the girl of a generation ago. The girl of to-day wants to be useful as well as ornamental.

The Herring Season

The English herring fishery on the East Coast in May, when the herring arrive off the mouth of Tyne. Then steamdrifts put into Shields with their catches.

Gradually the fishery moves seawards, throughout June, July, August, first Hartlepool, then Scarborough, then Grimsby becoming base of operations.

About the middle of September reach Great Yarmouth. Previous the arrival of the boats, the town has been invaded by Scottish lassies come every year for the fishery season.

The wharves are a fine sight of a record catch. A mile and more of baskets, each filled with overflowing wriggling, silver fish, waiting to be sold free auction and then despatched to be sold for immediate consumption, to be cured and shipped, pickled in salt and packed in barrels for export abroad.

Correction.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In my last letter I made the following: Proof is evidence is "inconsistent" with any subsequent assertion. Due to a typographical error, it appeared in print that "proof is evidence that is 'consistent' with any alternative assertion. As the word "consistent" renders the meaning meaningless I would be glad if you would insert this note.

A French Army Annihilated.

One of General (afterwards Viscount) Hill's most notable exploits was his surprise of Marshal Girard at Arroyo de Molinos, in the early morning of October 28, 1811. The weather, which was vile, was favourable for a sudden attack, and when a dragoon informed him of the advance of a body of men, the French General was convinced that these troops were Spanish. He joyously remarked that "Messieurs les Anglais lay too long abed to be stirring by times on such a morning!"

He was to be soon undeceived, the British gave a loud cheer, and the pipes of the Highland Regiment (8th, 9th, 10th and 11th) with an Lord's Roar remarked "some spirit of wagery," struck up the old Highland tune, "Hey, Johnnie Cope, are ye waken yet?" No shots were fired—the bayonet was to do all the work—and before long Girard's army had ceased to exist, the victors retiring with a large number of prisoners, and all the arms and baggage of the French.

How History Should Be Made.

The Traditions of the People Must Be Perpetuated.

(H. F. SHORTIS)

The History of Newfoundland has to be written. All efforts to date have been based on documentary evidence, and scant courtesy has been shown to tradition—the true source of complete and satisfactory history. Newfoundland histories are colourless, because they contain so little reference to the early struggles of our ancestors and their almost insurmountable difficulties. There has been no recognition of its importance in the world which has been so neglected, from a historical point of view, as Newfoundland. Truly, there have been some attempts made at writing a crude history of its resources and capabilities. Of these fall infinitely short of giving a mere outline of the future possibilities of our country.

INDIVIDUAL DISTINCTIONS.

In all these attempts at writing the history of our country there is a singular absence of any attempt to show up our people in their true light. There are in these so-called histories we find certain men singled out for their philanthropy—their capacity of passing a fortune, or some other thing—and these are taken generally from the upper and middle classes; there has been no attempt made to show up the heroism, hardihood and generous spirit of our people. I am the fishermen of every capacity, who have built up Newfoundland and what she is, and what she is to be. What has been told to the present of the people of the country has been gleaned from old documents and records kept by the Admirals, who, from time to time, visited our shores. These documents are necessarily confined to international relations, the enormous business of the (at that time) one of the only industries of our country—codfishery. All these things are, in themselves, indispensable in them in relating the history of a country. In this connection, it must be in mind that the principal factor in compiling the history is—the history of our people.

NOTHING ABOUT THE PEOPLE.

By a singular coincidence, all who have hitherto attempted to tell the story of Newfoundland have studiously avoided this subject, which is of vital importance. A book that confines itself to the transcribing of documents and of what happened before one's birth is to remain in a state of perpetual childhood," he had in his mental vision the traditions and stories of the Roman people. The poetry of his countrymen had contributed lavishly to the making of Roman history. No one will deny that poetry enters largely into the history of all peoples. There is nothing so closely allied to tradition as poetry; it is indeed tradition in verse. The deeds and daring—the conquests and failures—the trials and difficulties of the evolution of a nation from its infancy to full-grown manhood, are handed down to posterity by the pens of the past. This is tradition, pure and simple, clothed in verse. Why did not those who have hitherto attempted to write the history of our country consult the traditions of our people?

PIONEERS IN AGRICULTURE.

Newfoundland, it must be admitted, is fast coming to the front rank in social and commercial prosperity. The sciences and arts are being taught and cultivated. Her sons when they go abroad, are proud of the land of their birth; but it is of first importance to know how this refinement and civilization were accomplished. Even here in the suburbs of St. John's, we have tracts of highly cultivated land, yielding splendid returns for the labor bestowed upon it. Yet no collector of data has been found to go visit the growth and development up to the present stage. Surely, in bringing these fine holdings into their present state, a vast amount of labor has been gone through. In going into the virgin forest, with no capital behind them save that of their own energy, perseverance and indomitable courage, the original owners of these farms handed down to their children an enduring monument to their own ability and energy. The very fact of these farms being there, is of themselves, a stimulus to the enquiring mind to seek for information about them. Men of such courage and endurance as the pioneers of these homesteads must be worth studying. It must be remembered at the time these men undertook to reclaim the land everything was against them. Climatic conditions were adverse, as the winters of those days were long and severe. Isolation was the order of the day.

FARMING UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

There were no connecting roads, and the prospective farmer not only had to face what would seem to be a determined race, but he was cut off from social intercourse with his fellow-men. Everything was against him. He had to contend with the hostile forces of Nature, an ill-supplied purse, and a want of sympathy and intercourse with his fellow-man. Yet amidst all these adverse circumstances these men reclaimed the soil from its primitive virginity—made it yield a bounteous maintenance for themselves and their families. Surely such a class of men were built of sterner stuff than the ordinary run of manhood! They are worthy of investigation and inquiry. Yet in all the histories of our country we fail to find anything like an adequate tribute paid to such men. Sterling manhood, no matter in what walk of life it is to be found, deserves to be enquired into. There is nothing so capital in the instance I have alluded to. Hundreds of farmers from England, Ireland and Scotland have gone into the primitive forests of Newfoundland, and, having overcome the difficulties and obstacles consequent to a severe climate such as Newfoundland was subject to, and accomplished such feats, that were deemed to be enquired into. There is nothing so capital in the instance I have alluded to. Hundreds of farmers from England, Ireland and Scotland have gone into the primitive forests of Newfoundland, and, having overcome the difficulties and obstacles consequent to a severe climate such as Newfoundland was subject to, and accomplished such feats, that were deemed to be enquired into.

DISTINCT AND UNIQUE.

The first settlers of Newfoundland stand out as a distinct and unique race. They appear to have been endowed, and subsequent events prove that they were endowed, by Nature with a peculiar fitness for the opening up of a new country. They were possessed of an indomitable courage, capability for physical endurance, and an unquerable determination—qualities which gave them special fitness to become founders of a race which, for courage and endurance, are second to no people in the world. I fail entirely to see the completeness of a history which, while devoting pages to the natural possibilities of a country, both present and prospective, entirely ignores the men who made these possibilities living issues in the history of the commercial world. Even the citizens of St. John's had much to contend against in the latter part of the eighteenth and early days of the past century. The arbitrary and tyrannical laws of the Fishing Admirals were not entirely removed from the Statute book. They appear to have left their tyranny and oppressions as an heirloom to their descendants, and they endeavored to the utmost of their ability, to carry out their commands. Although our forefathers have amply demonstrated their work in the quieter walks of life, as in instances I have related above, the real work of our people has been brought out whilst in pursuit of their natural avocation on the sea.

Nova Scotia Challenger Trimmed Schr. Elsie.

The Lunenburg Schr. Bluenose Defeated Fast American Elsie by More Than Two Miles in the First of the International Races.

INTERNATIONAL FISHERMEN'S RACE.

First Race, Saturday, October 22nd. (Course No. Three—39.3 sea miles.)

BLUENOSE, of Lunenburg, challenger; actual elapsed time, 4:32.16.

ELSIE, of Gloucester, Mass., defender; actual elapsed time, 4:45.25.

(By H. W. JONES, in Morning Chronicle, Oct. 24.)

Saturday was Bluenose's day. A morning wester that at one time registered thirty knots on "Casey" Baldwin's dinky little anemometer, drove Captain Angus Walters' big and beamy schooner to victory by 12 minutes and a half over the smaller Elsie, a distance, as it happened of about three miles. Marty Welch, as resourceful as ever, sailed a splendid race, and so did Walters. Each skipper worked his ship for the last inch of speed that was in her. The difference was in the schooners and, as Marty says himself, the best boat in the weather of the day won.

Marty Gave Elsie All Sail.

As usual, windward work was the deciding factor. The first three legs gave a reach, a run and another reach. The downhomer, with larger sail spread and longer water-line, had slightly the better of it off the wind, though Marty, a wise old bird of the sea, so manoeuvred his ship as to almost make up for this tiny disadvantage. On the wind for the fourth leg of the course it was a different story. Here the Canadian vessel, though kicking up her customary high bows of foam forward and heeling sharply to the puffs, was in her element. She lay over to her best sailing angle, ate into the wind in grand style and demonstrated a marked superiority over the defender on this point of sailing in this kind of weather. Marty had the stiffer boat. While Bluenose, under four lowers, had her lee scuppers decidedly awash, the Yankee fisherman, with more proportionate ballast, was stiff as a house. "She dipped her rail once or twice," said Marty, after the race, "and the bowsprit soured four or five of our crew but Elsie certainly stood up to it." All of which explains Elsie's mishap, the loss of her foretopmast on the thresh to windward. Realizing that his vessel could comfortably carry more sail than the Canadian, Marty gave her all the sail she wanted. The boat took it kindly and valiantly bore the spread of canvas. But there was a weak link in the rigging. As a squall, heavier than usual, hit the schooner the starboard foretopmast stay, an aged wire, snapped. Foretopmast and balloon were bunched in jig-time and jerry-rig made of the stay by tackle. The veteran skipper thought it would hold and crossed all sails once more. Bluenose had already opened up a wide gap on the wind and this was his only chance.

Foretopmast Broke.

But the concentrated strain was too much for that stay. It snapped again and the foretopmast, which had nobly done its part, broke off short a few feet above the mast-head. Marty could crowd sail no more for that day. His balooner and maintopmast were of no earthly use to him without a top stick to bend them to. But it made scant difference. Elsie lost but she certainly did not lose the race thereby. Bluenose had already shown herself a faster boat on the wind in that breeze and Captain Angus, who had set the jibtopmast just before the Elsie's stick broke, took the outer sail down again, just as a matter of sportsmanship. For the remainder of the windward work, the Canadian sailed under four lowers, while Marty sported main topsail. On the final reach home, of course, Elsie would have travelled faster with all sail, but here again Walters, a true sportsman, reduced his rival's handicap. Bluenose's staymast was not set, while Elsie's was.

Bluenose A Success.

If any further proof were needed, Saturday's race demonstrated that Bluenose is a complete success. Time was this summer when reports came from the Banks that Bluenose, designed by a Halifax yachtsman, W. J. Rote, as a possible contender for the international fishing schooner championship, was "a mighty good fisherman and a mighty poor racer." Her sear's fare proved the reports right in the first part; the elimination series and Saturday's contest have proved them sadly astray in the second part. How Bluenose and Elsie compare in light wind has not yet been demonstrated. Admirers of the Gloucester schooner say that she would have the advantage in a ten to fifteen knot breeze, with lots of short tacks. They argue that Elsie, being smaller, is quicker to answer the helm and would not be so long in stays as Bluenose. Supporters of the Canadian schooner, which is undoubtedly the favorite for the series, retort that Bluenose can beat Elsie at all points of sailing in any kind of wind, short of a drifting match, would be no contest, anyway. They say that Bluenose is no slouch coming about and, from the press-boat in the distance on Saturday, it really seemed as though the Elsie was very little faster in stays than the Canadian. However, that may be, the two schooners will stack up against one another again to-day. Popular prediction gives the Bluenose another victory and, Captain Angus hopes to win, but Captain Marty is pressed for a statement. "I'm from a statement," representing Elsie's owners, made the positive declaration yesterday that "there will be a third race." As to that, to-day will tell the tale.

Captain Walters' Statement.

At the Dockyard, Saturday afternoon there was strange death of persons to congratulate Captain Walters on board his schooner there on his victory in the first race. The reason was not far to seek. Admission was only by pass and passes had been issued very sparingly. Just coming out of the fo'c'sle where he had been taking a snack after the day's hard and trying work was Capt. Angus. Modest in victory, he did not want to talk about the race. "Oh, well," he said, "when still pressed for a statement," "I sailed about three parts of a fairly good race. As far as the man goes, I just want to say that Captain Welch is a very good skipper. And the Elsie too, she's a very good boat. The man or ship that stacks up against these they're both hard to contend with. I hope to win on Monday, but I'll have to look mighty slippy to do it." Questioned about hauling down his jib topsail just after Elsie's loss of foretopmast, which those on the press boat believed had been done out of sporting spirit and not through necessity, as the sail had only just been hoisted, Captain Walters said: "We were men enough to douse our jib to give the other boat a fair show." And he added with a smile, "Of course, if he had been right on top of us, I don't know whether or not I would have dropped that sail." If Bluenose's skipper was not inclined to talk about himself, those who followed the races were. While Marty had the better of the start by 39 seconds, it is pointed out that the Lunenburg fisherman put his boat to weather and had better way on when he crossed the line. As for the luffing match soon after the start, Capt. Angus is credited with having come out of that very nicely. He had Marty on the jump all the time, menacing his weather quarter and threatening to give Elsie a large and handsome blanket. When this sort of thing had gone just far enough, Angus bore away for the buoy, the proper thing to do. Then again during the run on the second leg, with Elsie coming from behind, Angus had his wits about him. Marty's bowsprit was at times perilously near the Bluenose, but it did not jar the doughty little skipper from Lunenburg. He kept on going. With the second mark still a quarter of a mile away, Walters, grinning, placed himself to weather of Marty, the challenger having decidedly the better of the manoeuvre. On the wind, Capt. Walters demonstrated his mastery of the principles of the "luffing match" under his lee. He did not make one tiny mistake in the whole race and matched most successfully with the best skipper and fastest boat out of Gloucester.

Best Boat Won.

"The best boat won in the weather of the day," said Capt. Welch, captured by newspapermen on the Elsie's cabin. "We had a good fair breeze. Loss of our foretopmast cost us a few minutes. Your people gave us a good welcome when we came home even if we were losing. But there's another race, and maybe two, coming. She's a fine vessel, the Elsie, a nice able craft, and it would take a smart boat of her size to beat her." Marty, who is a real sportsman and therefore a good loser, talked interestingly of the race. Congratulated on his start, in which he was only ten seconds behind the gun, he said that it was a pretty close shave, but that it was possible to tell within three or four seconds just when a schooner was crossing the line. "If you don't get there first," he added, "the other fellow will." Asked about the lively luffing match between the two schooners, he said it was all part of the game. The water was shocking when Bluenose finally gave up the effort to get his weather. "We managed to keep with him almost to the second buoy," said Marty, "but in the eleven mile reach that followed, his big, long vessel gained half a mile. On the wind we gained on the Bluenose in smooth water, while she opened up on us in the sea. There was not much windward work," said the Gloucester skipper. "A few long and short tacks that's all. If we had it right dead to windward the Elsie might have done better, as she should be faster in stays than the Bluenose. I don't care about the courses; if you can't sail one course, you can't sail another," said Capt. Marty, when someone suggested that the next race should be over a windward and leeward course instead of from the start to a triangle and home.

Fast Time Made.

A feature of Saturday's race was the fast time made by the schooners. Bluenose's time for the course of 39.3 sea miles, 4 hours, 32 minutes and 16 seconds, actual elapsed time, was really faster than her record in the elimination race of a week ago, when she covered the course of 39.85 sea miles in actual elapsed time of 4 hours, 29 minutes and 3 seconds. On Monday last there were only nine miles of windward work, while on Saturday the thresh was on a leg of 11.3 miles, the schooners covering more water on this stretch on the wind than they would for the shorter one. In addition to this the luffing match soon after Saturday's start made the schooner cover about a mile of extra water, their whole course probably amounting to 50 miles. Bluenose's fastest time on Saturday perhaps was made on the reach from South East Automatic Buoy to Shut In Island Bell, a distance of exactly nine miles. The Lunenburg schooner covered this in 41 seconds and 49 seconds, or at the rate of 12.87 miles an hour.

Crews Evenly Matched.

They said when Elsie came here that her crew were highly trained and would handle sail faster than the Lunenburgers. It was the wrong hope. The two crews, for a start, could be seen, were evenly matched. Bolly Knuckle was a tower of strength on the Bluenose and all the watchmasters were right on their job, while the men under their direction worked skillfully and fast. "Mickey" Hall, Capt. Marty's wizard aloft, had a busy day and he deserves credit for the smart way in which he and his assistant stalwarts handled the situation when the foretopmast stay parted, followed by the stick itself.

The Rival Skipper.

Captain Martin Welch, who is 56 years old, was born in Digby, Nova Scotia. His father, Martin Welch, died when he was ten years of age. From Digby the family moved to Plympton, Digby County, where Walter Welch, Stipendiary Magistrate, Marty's uncle, resided. In 1878 Marty went to Gloucester to follow the sea. He has been a skipper for about twenty-five years. Among the vessels he has commanded are the Luella, Titian, Navaho, Lucania, Killarney, Benjamin Smith, Thelma, Esperanto and now the Elsie. At present Marty is part owner of the Thelma, a mackerel seiner. Captain Marty's wife is a Gloucester lady. He has two sons and two daughters. One of the sons is at Dartmouth College, another is in business in Saskatchewan. One son was killed in the great war. None of the children have followed their father's calling.

Captain Angus Walters, who was born and bred in Lunenburg town, is 33 years of age and has been a skipper for twenty years. When only nineteen years of age he took a vessel from Lunenburg, bringing to

Rescue Ship Picks Up Shipwrecked Mariners

Copenhagen, Oct. 7.—The Danish government in April appropriated 900 kroner, to defray the expense of sending the ship, Teddy, to the east coast of Greenland to search for the East Greenland Trading Company ship Dagny, which had been dispatched from Copenhagen in the spring of 1920. Since then, nothing had been heard of her. A cablegram from Reykjavik, Iceland, reports the safe arrival of the ship on July 17. She discovered a distress signal on Walrus Island and sent party across the ice to investigate. They discovered the Dagny's captain, Hansen, at German harp station. It appears that the Dagny became iceblocked on August 8, 1920, 30 miles east of the Shetland Islands. Part of the crew had previously landed at some remote established stations, and the remainder had reached land on an ice floe. Before they were rescued by the Teddy, however, three of them perished, two succumbing to scurvy and the third being killed in an encounter with a polar bear. The Teddy, herself, was icebound from August 24 to September 1.

You remember the story of the Pitcher—

It made a good many trips to the well and it came back in good order.

"I can take care of myself," it said—"they don't need to talk about risks to me."

But it went once too often.

After that it was only part of a pitcher, and they didn't need to talk to it about risks—it knew.

A lot of people won't believe tea or coffee can harm them until it does harm them.

"Nonsense!" they say, "it never disturbs me."

When it does disturb them, then they know.

Often the disturbance which they then recognize as the result of irritations to nerves and digestion which have been going on for a long time.

If you have to lie awake at night and count the clock ticks, after an evening cup of tea or coffee, then you know that it's better to be safe than sorry.

The risk of tea or coffee's harm is gone when the meal-time drink is Postum.

Here's a delightful and satisfying table beverage, with charm for the taste and without harm for nerves or digestion. You know you're on the right road with Postum; there's never the possibility that you'll go once too often.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

The Man Who
Covets England.

This country was recently visited by a young man named Hugo Stinnes, who in connection with a cigarette scheme for obtaining control of the waste products of the tobacco industry, was in St. John's. He does not realize that the visit is a grave danger to this country. One knows that Hugo Stinnes is the father of this young man. He is the back of the movement. In order to give readers some idea of the personality of Hugo Stinnes, we publish the following article by Mr. J. Stinnes, who was for eight months at Stinnes' advisers and confidential business men. It will give you a good idea of the personality of this German entrepreneur, his desire to control England, and his amazing efforts to restore the Hohenzollerns to power. Burke once wrote that "every country has the statesman which it deserves." Recent events in Europe, and, indeed, in the whole world, have proved the truth of those words. With regard to Germany, they appear strangely significant inasmuch as the most important personage in it after the war, and after the revolution which was its sequel, is a man who was hardly known outside his own country, ten years ago. Yet this man, Hugo Stinnes, now rules the country and the new National People's party, as well as an unlimited number of financial enterprises, and is the sole owner or principal shareholder of sixty different newspapers in German and other countries. In that sense, Hugo Stinnes is a kind of monstrosity. He would not reveal before anything, and he would not dilute at anything if, by the sacrifice of all that man holds dear in the realm of conscience and self-respect, he could avenge himself, as well as his country, for the just punishment meted by the Treaty of Versailles. Master of the Secret Service. He has mastered perfectly the technique of the war which looms immense and tragic out of all the misery and horror of the last years—the knowledge that with money one can obtain many things and do many things. And of money he has more than he needs—more than he knows—and his vast wealth has allowed him to seize all the old weapons of the former German government in this way of secret-service, spying, and intrigue, and to use them with far more skill than the Kaiser and his servants ever employed. Today in Germany nothing is done, be it a political, financial or industrial enterprise without Stinnes being made aware of it, and either controlling or directing it in some way. He is the whole of Germany in himself, and what is worse, he is quite aware of this terrible fact. His wealth is said to be more than $100,000,000. He owns most of the industrial concerns in his country; he knows, to keep these concerns going, how to get coal, his own steel, his own iron.

No Interest Outside Business. He is building now in Sweden, where his erected immense wharves without outside help, a mercantile fleet which will be twice the size of the present fleet of the Hamburg-American line, and which will be entirely outside the control of the Allies. Stinnes is about fifty years old, medium-sized, heavily-built, with a broad forehead, very dark, with a sharp nose, short-cropped hair, heavy eyebrows and rasping hands with stout fingers, thick bushy eyebrows and a penetrating, keen glance. He is quiet in manner until any one tries to differ with him, when he fires and becomes almost insolent in his way of asserting his opinions. He does not brook contradiction. His education was essentially a technical and commercial one. He speaks English, but no other foreign language; has absolutely no interest in art or literature, and no love for music. The only things he cares for are economic problems, and he has a rough contempt for people who allow themselves to become absorbed by anything outside such questions. He lives very simply, dresses almost like a beggar, in which his eldest son, who wears the same suit, overcoat and summer, stout country hobnailed boots, a small black hat, which is invariably the same, and has probably no evening clothes—at least, no one remembers having seen him wear any.

Life of this remarkable personage is about his own age—a good-looking woman, but rather deaf, dressed modestly plainly, with a simple, practical, a couple of rings of no great value composing her ornaments. "Junior" like his father, is not interested in anything but her own particular domain of household management, and is devoted to her husband, but is absolutely incapable of appreciating the subtleties of his mind. She is a strong German patriot, affecting to understand no language but her own, and refused to speak English with me, though I had reason to suspect that she knew it quite well. This congenial couple have seven children. The eldest, who, in business circles is known as "Junior," is the only child in private life, given by the simple application of "Junior," must be about five-and-twenty, and is already married to a girl of about the same type of his mother. He is just as hard regarding business as his father, whom he seeks to outdo in every way.

"Junior" speaks English very well, but despises French, and holds in complete disdain any kind of amusement outside the contemplation of his bank-books. There is no bar that, under his rule, the wealth and importance of the firm of Hugo Stinnes will diminish. One of Stinnes' aims is to seize the immense railway called Russia. But here again we find another sample of the artificiality of his elastic mind, because, far from showing himself hostile to British policy, he would like, on the contrary, to draw nearer to England, which he secretly hopes to transfer into another of his victims, scheming to re-establish Germany.

He has vast interests in England, some of which he likes to speak of, and others about which no one knows anything, except a very few of his most trusted and confidential agents. All through the war he managed, in spite of the strict watch kept by the authorities and intelligence department, to have representatives in London and other large English cities, and now has a general manager of all his business in England. The idea which is behind these schemes of Stinnes to re-establish the Hohenzollern dynasty on its lost throne is his secret ambition to become the Chancellor of the restored empire. Otherwise we shall never see him relax his activity or his efforts to bring once more to life this mighty Germany, which, according to the words of Bismarck, his model, was created "with blood and with iron." He is one of those obstinate Futons who will never admit that they have been beaten, and who imagine that their present plight is but a pause in their future development, no longer as a military, but as a commercial and an industrial nation. Feeling secure, as he does, of the Russian market, and knowing that within a few years he will be the owner of a commercial fleet which will be on the way to ousting the naval power of England from the mercantile point of view; he can afford to wait for the development of events which he imagines himself to be the only man capable of controlling, owing to the unlimited amount of money at his disposal.

Lectured on Poultry Culture.

The Newfoundland Poultry Association's lecture at Middle Eight School House, Kelligrews, was given last night. The lecturers left town by motor car and opened the meeting at 8.30. Messrs. A. J. Bayly, G. R. Williams and W. R. Butler comprised the deputation. They were received by the Rev. Hugh Facey, Rector of Kelligrews and Rev. A. Pittman, Rector of Topsail and an enthusiastic audience. Rev. Hugh Facey introduced the speakers and gave them a formal welcome. The first speaker was Mr. A. J. Bayly, who took for his subject "Poultry Propagation" and the "Housing of Birds." Mr. Bayly spoke well and distributed a large number of leaflets containing valuable information on Poultry questions, issued by the Newfoundland Poultry Association. He also left with the schoolmaster, Mr. Jones, a plan of a model poultry house. Mr. G. R. Williams followed him and took for his subject "General Poultry Topics" covering the ground as fully as possible in the time allotted to him. Mr. W. R. Butler spoke on the subject of "Pure Bred Poultry" and illustrated his lecture by exhibiting a pure bred lily Orpington bird and also brought a bird of mongrel type and compared the difference in size. He also spoke on the care of poultry generally and how poultry can be made to pay. It is hoped that when the next lecture will be given, the 60 lantern slides will be here so that the addresses can be illustrated with the aid of a lantern. The meeting closed at 10.30 with an expression of thanks from Rev. Mr. Facey who trusted that they would be privileged with another lecture later on in the season. Mr. A. J. Bayly offered two prizes for the best essay on "Poultry Culture" written by school-children and the essays are to be sent in by the first of December. Mr. Harry Cowan of Topsail Road was also present and returned to his home with the visitors, who arrived in town shortly after midnight. The Newfoundland Poultry Association hopes to visit the remaining schools and give lectures on Poultry during the coming winter in the interests of the general farming public. The lecture was much appreciated by those present and they are anxious to hear the subject further discussed.

SWEET, PURE MILK—always on hand when you want it!

If you have never used Libby's Evaporated Milk, you will be amazed to find how good, how convenient and economical it is. Many women who first tried it in some emergency now use it always—they find it gives such satisfactory results.

There's no waiting for the milkman—you can always keep several cans on the shelf and in summer there's no bothering with ice, and in winter the milk waggon can get stuck in a heavy drift of snow as often as it wants to!

And there's less waste—a can of Libby's Evaporated Milk will keep indefinitely before being opened—and after you have opened a can you can use just what you need; the rest, put in a cool place, will keep several days.

Libby's Milk comes from the finest dairying section of America and is processed in our own sanitary condensaries—it is not the "distributed" product of an unknown and nameless plant.

Kemal's Army Gives Greeks Much Worry.

With the Greek Army in the field, Sept. 30. (The Associated Press)—Mustapha Kemal's daring cavalrymen and irregulars who are scattered about Anatolia have given the Greek Army a great deal of anxiety by their attacks upon Greek columns and their bold attempts to capture the Greek General Staff. Crown Prince George of Greece had a narrow escape from injury in one of these Turkish surprise attacks and was hurriedly taken to a place of safety. It was the first real danger he had experienced since he came to the front. While the Greek army was advancing toward Angora, thousands of these Turks in the rear of the Greek line, were a constant menace to the Greek communications. They turned up when least expected. They advanced quietly to their positions at night and began their attacks at daybreak.

When The Associated Press correspondents at Dumbek, south of the Sakaria River, several hundreds of these Turkish horsemen descended upon the village and attempted to carry off the General Staff, including General Papoulas, Commander-in-Chief, and Prince George. They shelled the barracks and tents of the Greeks and kept up a steady rifle and machine-gun fire. One of their shells fell within 40 yards of Crown Prince George, but fortunately it did not explode. The Greek General Staff was preparing to move 25 miles nearer the front, and the Turkish assault from the rear took them completely by surprise. Only the fact that headquarters had 300 infantrymen available saved the whole Greek executive organization from capture. Had the Turks come the day before they would have found only a handful of men to oppose them, and it is probable at least a part of the Greek staff would have fallen into their hands. The Turkish cavalrymen galloped across the low-lying hills at daybreak and took up positions about a mile from the village in which Greek G.H.Q. were located. At the sound of the alarm from Greek sentries on the crests, General Papoulas ordered every available man, even clerks, typists and orderlies, to take up rifles. The Turkish shells and bullets were humming overhead. Within a few minutes the Greeks had several hundred men ready to answer the Turkish attack. The enemy's fire was so hot and close that the Greeks were able to advance only slowly. They were soon joined by other forces, however, and after two hours of sustained rifle and machine-gun fire the Kemalists were obliged to fall back. They then took refuge in the distant ravines and valleys, and the Greeks returned to their work of transferring G.H.Q. to another spot.

PROMINENT CLERGYMAN MAKES THIS STATEMENT.

BRIGHTON, Eng., Oct. 5. (Associated Press).—This popular city by the sea, where thousands of Londoners are wont to spend their week-ends, is declared by the Rev. Dr. Downes, a prominent Wesleyan minister, to be the "fastest town in the world." By that he means the wickedest. "Brighton," he says, "is full of slaves of sensualism. Babes are being nursed in the cradle of immorality and vice. Conscience is here waiting in darkness for earnest Christian work."

The Rev. J. Dixon, another Wesleyan minister, backed him up in his denunciation of the immorality of Brighton. "There's not a town in England in greater need of Methodism," he said. "Nowhere else can you see such a display of the vagaries and follies of fashion."

AROUND THE WORLD IN 17 DAYS.

Paris, Oct. 4. (Associated Press)—At the great airway congress now being organized in Paris in conjunction with the autumn Aero Show, an effort is to be made to join up missing links in the world airchain. Should this be accomplished a rush round the world by air in 408 hours, and at a cost of about $280 will be one of the possibilities of the future. Airway experts are now ready to specify the machines and map out the route. Leaving London at 8 a.m. on Monday, they say Constantinople could be reached at 4 a.m. on Tuesday and Cairo the same day. Then with a berth booked on an air Levant, Sydney, Australia, would be reached at 10 a.m. the following Tuesday. After this, taking the Pacific in another great air voyage, they figure that the passenger would arrive at San Francisco at 4 p.m. on Saturday. The next stage would be the Trans-American route to New York which would be reached at 10 p.m. on Monday to take another air liner to London where it would arrive at 8 a.m. on Thursday.

The distance covered would be 27,000 miles in the space of 17 days. This would put Jules Verne's 80-days trip sadly in the shade. But this is as yet a dream of the future.

Where Musk Comes From.

Musk in the raw looks a good deal like stale grease, and smells worse. The popular notion that the musk of commerce is obtained from the muskrat is a mistake. A somewhat similar perfume may be obtained from the muskrat, but most of the supply comes from the muskdeer, a creature that is carefully reared in India for the sake of the secretion. The secretion is shipped in the crude shape, and is used not only in the manufacture of the liquid perfumes sold as musk, but also in very small quantities to give strength and staying power to many perfumes made from the essential oils of flowers.

Curiously enough, the blossoms of two native plants have a noticeably musky odour. One is the well-known small yellow blossom. Its odour is marked, and is counteracted in the commercial perfume called musk. The other is the blood-root.

The pure white blossom of that early spring plant has a distinct though delicate musky odour. A bean known as the musk-bean is a cheap substitute for animal musk.

Beneath the Waves.

Lying along the beds of oceans are about two hundred and twenty-five thousand miles of submarine telegraph cables. More than half of this immense mileage is British, and every year British messages number all told 100,000,000 words. In forty years we have virtually forgotten that the seas were once barriers to international communication. Now they have been narrowed by speedy ships and the deep-laying cables until, as far as communication is concerned, they are little wider than streams across which men can shout to one another. The greatest known depth of the sea is in the mid-Pacific Ocean, and is recorded as five thousand two hundred and sixty-nine fathoms—thirty-one thousand six hundred and fourteen feet—or sixty-six feet short of six statute miles. This sounding was obtained on the United States steamship "Nero," and it is greater than any elevation on that continent, or as far as known, in the world.

A Smileless Land.

DIFFICULT TO SATISFY HUMAN NEEDS.

The subjoined article, by a graphic description of the mental attitude of the hungry people of Russia, was written by a correspondent of The Associated Press who entered Russia with the Red army relief workers when the doors of that country had been closed for more than three years. The writer not only visited Moscow but penetrated the famine-stricken districts of the Ukraine and the first American food was distributed and sent by cable stirring stories of the scenes he witnessed.

(By a Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press)—Russia is a smileless land. In more than 2,000 miles of travel on the Russian rivers and roads, the Associated Press correspondent hasn't heard a word of laughter. The exuberance of the first year of Bolshevism has disappeared. Speakers no longer tell of the glories of proletarian rule from the corner curbs. Red army soldiers no longer march down together to the front. They have not tried existence in the Ukraine. Russia has no conception of how difficult it is to satisfy the primitive human needs there. Every man and woman met on the Petrograd streets to-day is buying some sort of food parcel or trying to get some food on the corners. There is practically no coal and not a drop of oil. The only fuel every family has is the simple meals are prepared on the stoves.

ONLY ONE ROOM. Under the housing system most people have only one room in which to eat, sleep and do washing. All day long one hears, on the streets, the lamentation of women who are lamenting over where the bread allowance isn't regular. The frequent expression of fears of the famine in the Volga districts make the bread supply of Central Russia even worse. Potatoes at 1,000 a pound are the cheapest food on the market, but 1,000 rubles is a fortune to most of the population and it takes a lot of oil to cook them. The days of political strife apparently over. Russians have abandoned the theories of the anti-Bolsheviks no longer discuss the government. Paper decrees are showered upon Bolshevists and non-Bolshevists alike. There are no longer any strikes for food and clothing to say about what is going on in the land.

THE PATRONISE FOOD SHOPS. Without food shops are practically deserted in all the cities. The shops for food is at once the work of the recreation of the public. Gardens are lined with food wagons carrying fruit, vegetables, bread and the people seem far more content in these than in the listless streets and the little bands which occasionally evening concerts.

It seems to be no spirit of play in Russia. Even the children are quiet. Recently many toy stores have re-opened. The Soviet government never requisitioned Noah's Ark and Teddy bears, so dealers in glass of goods are unboxing their stocks and dressing Santa Claus figures. Few moving picture theaters open, and those are given over to government propaganda pictures. Dramas are offered in very few important houses. It was in the theaters and in concert halls the correspondent saw the only people who seemed to relax and give themselves from the gloomy atmosphere. Moscow newspapers and the newspapers in all the Russian cities are little more than government bulletins. Because of the shortage of paper is given over to political articles. The newspapers are pasted upon the dead walls. They gather about them eagerly. The few foreign dispatches that the majority of readers show no interest in the political leaders. Street life in Moscow present a strange appearance. Unless the day is sunny and warm there are few pedestrians in the center of the city. Markets which formerly were busy places have been abandoned and there are few food shops in the city. Formerly the great shopping place. In consequence, most people go to the food-lined boulevards and the slightest threat of rain the crowds to shelter. Boots and clothing are too precious to be left unnecessarily to the weather.

DAB COSTUMES. Well-dressed men and women are never seen on the streets. It is an unclean, therefore, soft colored shirts are a necessity, and usually all men wear dark gray wool shirts and collared blouses. Women's uniforms are made of the old regime and still in the custom. Shabby, worn-out uniforms, make up the costume of nine-tenths of the men in the streets, and the second-hand clothed display practically no clothing. Women have also abandoned themselves largely of men's uniforms in improvising costumes. Hats, coats, waists, and even shoes of army khaki are seen everywhere among groups of women. Tablecloth damask curtains, furniture covers of large-flowered cretonne, rich Persian shawls, masquerade costumes and bright-colored evening gowns have been adapted to street wear. Fortunately, Russian women have such an independent bearing and are such individualists that they show no embarrassment whatever in wearing any clothing available in this land so readily in need of cloth.

The Belles and Beaux of Nairobi.

Life is nothing if not piquant in Nairobi, writes Charles Dawnbar, who is travelling in that country. The latest British possession, in the terms of a Crown Colony, is a most lively infant he says. She has had twenty years of life on one plane, but only six months on another. In the one stage she is a Protectorate, in the other she is an appendage of the Crown of England. Of course, the second stage is more "grown up" than the first; but Kenya has no crown on her face as the result of it. Her sons and daughters are just as light-hearted as before. Though black cars may ride behind the horsemen, his features are obscured. Whatever the future may have in store for Kenya, assuredly it is not a dull time. That is impossible in this vivid atmosphere, nearly 6,000 ft. above the sea. Nairobi has risen from a swamp and a few tin huts into a flourishing town of broad streets with fine avenues and solid public buildings.

And what contrasts life provides. Here is the pioneer type, bronzed of face, sturdy of limb. On his head is a cone recalling the Mexican hat; he wears a coat-skirt, khaki-colored, open at the throat and short-sleeved, with pockets in the front. His beard is black and stubby, his hair innocent of a comb. If he were at his farm, he would be spick and span of an evening, at least. But in Nairobi he seems determined to carry the same air about the wilds with him. Perhaps it is a form of "swank" to show his freedom from convention.

Ladies Smoke in Public.
His wife is almost as brown as he. She is likewise dressed in khaki-colored clothes—a long coat, riding breeches and gaiters. Practically all women ride astride in Kenya, and thus adopt trousers or the divided skirt. And that very fact has an influence on behavior. Lovely women is not in the least austere in this far-off country. Not only does she smoke in public, but in the street! I met a charming creature in the broad thoroughfare the very latest in masculinity. Upon her head was perched a mannish hat; she wore a man's shirt and coat, shorts, and polo boots reaching to the knees. The impression of the new sex was completed by the hands being thrust into the pockets of the shorts. And from her mouth issued the smoke of a cigarette.

As to the natives, their motions of ornament are strange indeed. Not only do they bind arms and legs with copper wire, which they steal from the telegraph lines (to the constant annoyance of the authorities), but they garnish the neck with the same forbidding material. Coil after coil is wrapped round the throat—a sort of perverted Elizabethan ruff—and the outer rings fall upon the breast. The women, far more than the men, adopt this garnish. The latter generally content themselves by wrapping the wire round the forearm. Sometimes the flesh is dreadfully punished, but the wearer is as stoical as any nineteenth-century belle suffering from tight lacing. But more characteristic. They are formed also of coils of wire. The purpose is not "swank," but prevention of escape from the husband. Since the women, here as elsewhere in the black world, are workers, this wire ornament has an economic meaning.

The Kikuyu that we meet here on the further side of Nairobi, on the way to the Great Lake, are smaller and physically inferior to the rather fierce-looking Masai, who inhabit the country of the great game reserve. The odd thing is that this tribe does not eat meat or hunt game, and therefore is ideal as guardian of the reserve.

The scenery, too, on the way to the Great Lake is most impressive. The railway line lies to a height of between eight and nine thousand feet. It is very cold now. We are glad of rugs and heavy overcoats to cover ourselves in our bunks. The view is superb; deep valleys and dense groves of wattle. At Lumumba, the farming prospects are excellent. As we approach the Great Lake, the end of the line, we encounter new tribes, especially the Kavirondo, who are very black and quite naked. They are the most moral of any of the Lake inhabitants. Women, with figures like goddesses, wave shapely arms to us. Recently, the cult of clothes has possessed the young men, and at Kienuu (on Lake Victoria Nyanza itself) we hear of burglaries in which the white master's suits have formed the booty of the native Bill Sykes. This is an utterly new thing.
