The Countess of Landon.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

It was not a very happy comparison, but Seymour did not notice its grotesque applicability.

"If I consent to make you an allowance," he said, sternly, and fingering his wine-glass—he could not fill it for the man had just drunk out of it—"If I consent to come to terms with you, how am I to be sure that you will not continually harass and annoy me?"

Jake smiled.

"A man who's got a thousand a year isn't such a fool as to risk losing it," he said. "I shan't trouble you. I shall leave England, and swell somewhere on the Continent. Barring a receipt for the coin every half year, you won't hear from your effeminate father, my lord."

Seymour affected to ponder for a minute or two, then he sighed.

"It is a large sum of money, and to give you any at all goes against my conscience"—Jake put his tongue in his cheek and grinned—"but I will assent to your terms."

"Right!" exclaimed Jake, extending his dirty paw. "Give me your hand on it. And I'll take the first half year in advance, my lord."

Seymour took a check-book from the drawer.

This promptness roused Jake's suspicions.

"I don't take checks," said Jake, sullenly. "Much to easily traced."

"Do you think I keep five hundred pounds lying loose in my pocket?" said Seymour.

Jake gnawed at his lip and scowled down at him.

"I'd go about with my pockets crammed with gold if I was in your place my son," he said.

Seymour ignored the remark.

"I haven't a sovereign," he said quietly. "If you object to a check, I will get the money from the bank and send it to you in the morning."

"No," said Jake, after a moment. "I'll come for it. I'm not afraid of your running away," and he grinned.

Seymour leaned back and looked straight before him.

"Very well; I have no more to say."

"But I have—just one thing," said Jake. "I want those sparklers Madge gave me. Like a fool, I left 'em on the table this morning. But I was so flurried by the women. I'll take 'em now, my lord, please."

Seymour remembered sweeping the diamonds into a drawer when he had been left alone.

"That is unfortunate," he said. "The countess took them away with her."

Jake's face darkened, and he swore. "They're mine," he said. "Madge gave 'em to me, and I mean having 'em."

Seymour shrugged his shoulders.

"You may have them, for all I care," he said. "They are not my property. I will get them for you tomorrow, if I can."

"You'd better," said Jake, significantly. "I reckon they're worth a heap. I'll take them with the five hundred—both together, or none at all."

"Very well," assented Seymour, wearily. "at twelve to-morrow."

Jake glanced at him suspiciously.

He had not expected to find his victim so ready and acquiescent. But after all, what else could Seymour do than cave in?

"Right!" he said, with affected cheerfulness. "I'll drop in at twelve. Good-night, my lord. I'll take another glass of wine, though, and a cigar, if you've got it."

Seymour pushed a box of cigars down the table, and Jake took one and lighted it at the candle, and emptied the rest into his pocket.

"Good-night," he said. "If you'll take my advice, you'll cut that for to-night"—he nodded to the bottle—"and get to bed early. You want to keep your head clear, you know."

Seymour took no notice and, with a nod, Jake went out.

Seymour looked the window after him, and paced up and down. His brain was working on a new tack. Jake's request for the diamonds, and his remark about "running away," had started a idea—a tremendous idea in Seymour's befuddled brain.

Besides the diamonds lying in the drawer, the whole of the London jewels which had been got from the bank for the ball were in the house.

They represented almost a fabulous sum. Even allowing for the loss on realization, they would supply him with a large income.

He could sell them at Amsterdam.

Neither the countess nor Royce would care to prosecute him. He would be a rich man, and— He would do it.

He looked at his watch. There would be time to secure the jewels and catch the train to London. He would go without stopping, to Holland, and then— Well, he could plan out his future afterward. Anyhow, he would be rich enough to live luxuriously in one of the continental capitals, and afford to play for high stakes, and enjoy himself after his fashion. After all, the life he had been leading had been a bore, and the reputation for petty not worth the trouble.

His face flushed with renewed hope and pleasant anticipation. It would be a charming way of revenging himself. Royce might have the title—though that was not certain—but that gypsy vagabond wife of his should never wear the Landon diamonds.

He rang the bell and ordered the brougham, and his voice, though rather thick, was suave as usual.

Then he went upstairs and packed a small portmanteau, put on his loose far-lined traveling-coat, and sat down for a few minutes to gain coolness and courage. When in the house, the jewels were kept in a small safe in the countess's dressing-room, but it was very probable that, in the confusion and excitement of last night they were most of them lying on the dressing-table. Even if Louise had been thoughtful enough to put them in the safe, he might be able to get the key. At the worst, the safe was stronger in appearance than—reality, and he could force the lock.

He waited a quarter of an hour, then, with a small black bag concealed under his loose great-coat, he went quickly along the corridor and entered the countess's dressing-room.

He tried the safe. It was, as he had feared, locked. Louise had put away every jewel. He thought for a moment. Then a brilliant idea struck him. He went out on to the corridor and waited. Presently Louise came out of the countess's room. She noticed slightly as she saw him, and started the flush on his face and his swollen eyes.

"How is her ladyship now?" he asked.

"Better, my lord," said the maid, pausing a moment with her hand up on the handle of the door.

"I am glad—very glad," said Seymour. "Will you tell her, please, that I have to go to London at once? And, oh! Louise, I want you to look up these rings in her ladyship's safe; I have lost the key of mine. If you are busy, I will do it."

His heart beat fast. Would she refuse him the key? For a second she did hesitate, then she took it from her pocket.

"Thank you, my lord," she said. Seymour returned to the dressing-room, unlocked the safe, and emptied the contents of the morocco-lined cases into his bag. He took everything—even such trifles as a plain gold bracelet and neck-chain. The bag weighed like lead.

He went back to his room, his heart knocking against his ribs. The bell that was rung when a carriage that had been ordered was ready rang softly. He looked round the room with a sigh for he was saying good-bye to Monk Towers, good-bye to his title, to his character—to everything save the jewels.

He clutched the bag under his arm beneath the fur cloak, and went stealthily toward the door, though there was no special need for stealth. But it opened—opened inward, and Jake stood before him.

He uttered no cry, but shrunk back. Jake closed the door, and leaning against it, surveyed the white, cowardly figure with an angry glare.

"I might have known it," he said in a husky whisper. "I thought you meant to go back on me, you was so ready and willing to agree with everything. You're a mean bound, my son, and I'm hanged if I ain't avenging you!"

Seymour bit his lip.

"What—what do you mean?" he stammered.

Police of America Archaic in Method

SAYS CRIMINOLOGIST.
LOS ANGELES (A.P.)—Desperate criminals roam throughout the nation without fear of apprehension; offenders are not convicted; vice is rampant; defective traffic control is retarding industrial growth, said Chief of Police August Vollmer in a report made to the Police Commission of Los Angeles.

The purpose of the report, Vollmer said, "is to point out the deficiencies of the present plan of recruiting and organization of police departments and to offer such suggestions as will ultimately operate materially to strengthen the department organization."

Despite the importance, intricacy and difficulty of the police problem in all large cities, the chief said, "no scientific study of the subject has been made by officials or academicians. Consequently, police departments have lagged considerably in the progressive march of civilization." He refers to present police organization as "archaic."

"An unfit policeman weakens the moral fibre of his associates and destroys public confidence in the department. The organization, officers, and society pays the bill when policemen are dishonest, brutal, stupid, or physically of temperamentally unsuited. In fact, harshness, cruelty, arbitrariness and unnecessary exercise of police powers, produce crime, anarchy and kindred social and political ills."

"Our record shows that even mentally unstable men have been appointed policemen and their condition has not been recognized by commanding officers until they have killed some innocent person, or have committed some heinous offense."

The salient points in Chief Vollmer's recommendations for more efficient conduct of the department are:

- (1) The establishment of higher standards for educational, mental, moral and physical requirements.
- (2) Placement of recruits under the observation of a medico-psychologist during their training period.
- (3) Police authority should be withheld from every policeman until he has proved by his conduct and knowledge that he is capable of discharging the duties of his office.
- (4) Universities should be petitioned to provide preparatory courses and professional courses for policemen.
- (5) Creation of a crime-prevention division and appointment of a trained criminologist to conduct the activities of the division.
- (6) Establishment of a merit system.

30-Passenger Mail Planes for England- Malta Service

London, May 8 (A.P.)—For non-stop flying between London and Malta, in connection with the England-India and Australia mail service, the air ministry is asking firms to submit designs for commercial aircraft which will perform such a journey.

The machines must have a cruising speed of 100 miles an hour and accommodate 30 to 35 passengers or the equivalent in goods and mail. The journey to Malta will occupy 10 hours; to Cairo will be reached in 24 hours after leaving England; India can be reached in four days, and Australia will be brought within eight days of London.

Pope Pius Celebrates Birthday

French Ministry Tender Resignation to President Millerand --- 150,000 People Attended Empire Exhibition.

BIRTHDAY OF POPE PIUS.

ROME, June 1. The sixty-seventh birthday of Pope Pius was celebrated on Sunday with special ceremonies, including the hoisting of the Papal flag, and convocation in full uniform of the Swiss Guards and other armed bodies at the Vatican gate. The Pontiff received many telegrams and messages of congratulations, while many persons presented congratulations personally.

POLICARE AND CABINET RESIGN.

PARIS, June 1. Premier Polcare to-day tendered to President Millerand the resignation of himself and Cabinet. The official communiqué issued in connection with the resignation said, "In conformity with his decision taken immediately after the elections, M. Polcare at 11:30 o'clock this morning presented to the President of the Republic the collective resignations of his Cabinet."

WEMBLEY'S BIGGEST DAY.

LONDON, June 1. All attendance records in the Empire Exhibition at Wembley, were broken yesterday when 150,000 people had passed the turnstiles by four in the afternoon. The size of the crowd led to difficulty for many in obtaining refreshments. Queues extended four blocks for hundreds of yards, outside each cafe.

MONTREAL BANDITS.

MONTREAL, June 1. Holding up the car of the paymaster.

of the British Empire Steel Corporation here on Saturday afternoon, while over 100 employees, who were waiting for their weekly earnings, were looking on, two bandits, so far unarrested, snatched the payroll of $5,000 from the taxi in which it was being conveyed to the company's office in the east end of the city, but were later obliged to discard the booty when hotly pursued by one of the workmen.

BELGIAN'S LOSE CLAIM.

GENEVA, June 1. The monster collective damage suit brought against the German Government by 8,000 Belgians, who were deported for forced labor into Germany during the war, which has been on trial here for the past three months before a mixed German arbitration tribunal, has been lost by the plaintiffs. The tribunal said the deported persons must look exclusively to the Governments concerned and the reparations committee, to obtain indemnity for their losses and damages according to the rulings of the Versailles Treaty.

SUBNORMALS PERISH IN FIRE.

LOS ANGELES, June 1. Fifteen girl inmates are dead five missing, and nineteen girls and six firemen were injured in a fire to-night which destroyed the Hope Development School for subnormal girls at Playa de Rey on the coast 16 miles west of here.

Vote Without Delay.

Electors Roll up the Majorities--Top Notch Figures.

Only a few hours are left for those who have not yet gone to the booths. It is therefore most important that good use should be made of this limited time to roll up the majorities for the Monroe candidates to top-notch figures. Don't stay away from the polls for the reason that you think the majority will be big enough without your vote. If too many voters get that wrong idea into their heads, the great victory we can accomplish would be considerably diminished in force, and our boast to the supporters of a sweeping majority would not be endorsed when the count is taken.

No one should wait till the last hour, from 7 to 8 o'clock, for Cocker heels, or get there at least by 5 or 6 o'clock, or at least not later than 7 o'clock; but get there anyway even at the greatest inconvenience to yourself, with time enough to spare to mark your ballot.

Woman's Christian Temperance Union

ANNUAL REPORT.

We beg to submit the annual report of the W.C.T.U. During the year the Union has endeavored to keep in touch with the Sunday Schools, and provide speakers on Temperance to be asked for. The clergymen have been requested to co-operate in setting apart one Sunday for a Temperance address on Temperance. Those who have had charge of the literary work have made arrangements for conducting a service the third Sunday of each month. Literature has been distributed among prisoners, and at the Christmas season each prisoner was given fruit candy.

"The Midnight Alarm"

AT STAR MOVIE TO-NIGHT.

This, the greatest of all fire fighting pictures is billed for to-night at the popular Star Movie, and in it we will see one of the greatest thrillers yet recorded on the silver screen. The fire sequence is an internal part of the story which revolves around the disappearance of a girl at childhood and the attempts of her business partner to keep her from gaining her wealth. Miss Alice Calhoun plays the role of Sparkie, a waif, who really is Susan Thornton, a missing heiress. Percy Marmont plays the role of fire captain and Cullen Landis is the crook. The picture is one that shows the miraculous escape from a fifteen story building of the occupants by jumping to the fire net on the pavement, and holds you breathless with amazement.

The Hawaiians, (the musical sensationists) have an entire change of program to-day, and included in this is a solo by "Big" Bill entitled "What Shall I Do," and as it is his first, we know from his harmony singing you will hear something good from him. The management wishes to state these artists will appear at the matinee performances on Wednesday and Saturday.

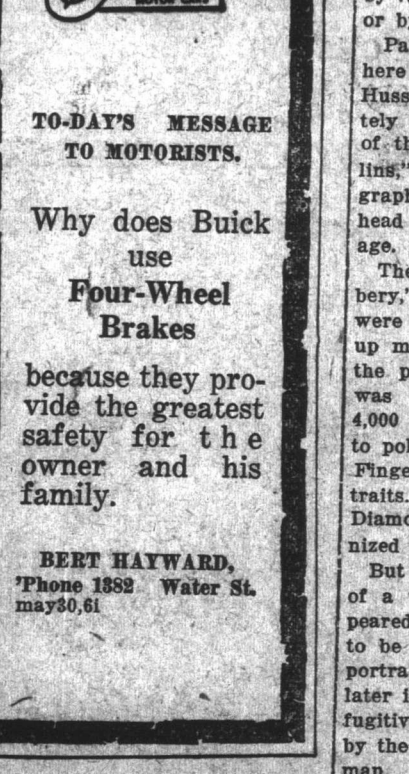

To-day is Polling-day. To-night "The Midnight Alarm."

Olympic Swimming Pool Largest in the World

PARIS, May 5 (A.P.)—The Olympic swimming pool at the Paris des Lacs, across the city of Paris from the Athletic Stadium at Colombes, is practically completed. Long delays in construction and the immense cost, for the pool will stand the City of Paris 10,000,000 francs when completed, have caused to flow as much ink as would fill it; but the Olympic officials are sanguine that no further criticism will be forthcoming, and they are already claiming the distinction of having "the greatest swimming pool in the world."

The pool itself is 50 yards in length by 18 wide and five feet at the deeper end. Accommodation for 10,000 people is provided in the Stadium which surrounds the pool and 40 dressing rooms are distributed underneath the stands. They comprise 750 separate cabins, permitting that number of athletes to dress at the same time.

The French realize that they have spent a lot of money in this affair, but the stadium was only the pretext; the swimming pool was the object. They say they have built a solid monument.

Uncommon Industries

In a cottage close to old Whitefriars Glassworks, London, lived a man who was maker of clay pipes to the court of King James I. The clay pipe industry, of course, still exists, though the introduction of briars has robbed it of its former prosperity.

Many old industries, some of them very quaint and long since displaced by modern methods of manufacture, survive in out-of-the-way places. They are carried on locally by the descendants of families who plied their trades for generations.

Perhaps the oldest and queerest of these is the art of the flint knappers of Brandon. About two thousand years ago Brandon was famous for its flint arrow-heads, ploughs, axes and hammers, owing to the fine quality of the flint found in the district.

Flint Foundations.

After the Stone Age the industry waned and only came into prominence again in the days of tinder-boxes, flint-lock guns, and cannons.

To-day, a few men descended from the ancient workers are still carrying on in the manner of their forefathers. One of the uses to which they put their craft is the shaping of flints for the decorations of buildings. It was discovered, not long ago that the bad flakes produced in working the stone could be utilized as foundations for concrete.

Another old family craft which is dying out is the making of gull pens. For the past century most of these pens were made by one family, and now only one old man, who is skilled in the art, survives.

The manufacture of gull pens requires more art and practice than might be expected. The feathers used have to go through a process of "dutching" before they were suitable for shaping into pens.

Bucklebury Bowls.

The long wing feathers of the geese are made up into big bundles and the points are stuck into damp clay. When sufficiently moist they are taken out, one at a time, and held with the end in a cavity in a coal fire. When very hot they are removed and squeezed so that all the pith is squeezed out of them. After being heated again and polished with shark's skin, the quills are ready for cutting, a process which calls for considerable experience and care.

In the country strange industries flourish, though little is known of them by those who buy their products in the shops of the big towns.

At Bucklebury, in Berkshire, is a man who makes wooden bowls from elm with the aid of lathes a hundred years old. He is a very skilful workman and has supplied some of the largest London stores with his wares for the last forty years.

Stain That Helps Science.

Although so many of us carry walking-sticks or umbrellas, probably only a few have heard of walking-stick farms, yet there are several in this country. Forests of small seedling trees are planted and after about four years they become suitable for sticks. When bent handles are required, the trees are trained to produce the desired shapes.

In parts of the North of England broom-bristle farms are to be seen. Special "broom-corn" is sown in the early summer and kept mowed with a mixture of soot and powdered sheep bones.

Many uncommon industries have sprung up in connection with science. It is solely in the interests of medical science that the smallest of British industries is carried on. This is the preparation of microscopic stains for the use of pathologists.

The stain is made by a purifying process from ordinary commercial dye-stuffs. There can be little money made from it as so small a quantity is used. A pint of stain can be produced from one gramme of dye-stuff, and only one minute drop is used at a time by the pathologist.

The stain is employed to color certain bacilli so that they become distinguishable from others under the microscope. Each type of bacillus is affected in a particular way by the coloring matter in the stain.

Sentenced to Two Years

The prisoner, Patrick Hester, who recently pleaded guilty to an indictment for Bigamy in the Supreme Court, came up for sentence on Friday last. Before passing sentence the Chief Justice observed that several persons referred to by the prisoner in his statement as present during the magisterial proceedings, had been examined upon oath and were unanimous in disproving the prisoner's allegations. The prisoner was then committed to the penitentiary for a period of two years.

Booth Tarrington's Success "Clarence"

AT THE MAJESTIC TO-DAY.
Miscellaneous and Habel will submit one of the best programmes of their repertoire of songs and violin selections at the Majestic during the first half of this week. By special request they will render "Linger Awhile." The other hits will include items from jazz to grand opera. In addition to a travelogue showing interesting places, the feature

"Clarence" will be screened. This somewhat extraordinary photoplay is taken from Booth Tarrington's greatest success, and is something new in the film world. This is that the picture is distinctly a comedy, not overburdened with plot, yet at the same time delivering a message that is quite worth while.

Clarence Smith is a Solecoprist, and also he is the only man in the world who ever drove army mules without swearing at them. He comes unostentatiously into the Wheeler household where barking and biting and bickering is of daily, if not hourly, occurrence, and the family is on the point of breaking up, when he begins his work as fixer. His quiet and trustful nature manifests itself, and before long he becomes the confidant of every one in the house. It is then that with tact and patience he sets out to build up permanently the crumbling house of cards, and in the end he succeeds most happily.

If a rocking-chair has an unpleasant habit of "travelling," paste narrow strips of velvet along each rocker.

WEALTHY CHICAGOANS CONFESS TO TERRIBLE CRIME.

CHICAGO, May 31.
Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, announced early to-day that Nathan E. Leopold, Jr. and Richard Loeb, youthful members of Chicago multi-millionaire colony and post-graduates of a local university, had confessed to the kidnapping and murder of thirteen-year-old Robert Frank, millionaire manufacturer. The boys were going to hold their victim ransom but decided to kill him and hide the body. Fearing the consequences if the kidnapping were uncovered, they fought off a search by police for nearly two days continuously, but finally gave in and confessed.

Welawanna Lost

ILL LUCK FOLLOWS RACERS.

The Lunenburg schooner Delawanna, the Canadian entrant in the first international schooner race in 1920, in which the Gloucester boat, Esperanza, was the winner, was lost on May 1 on the eastern coast of Nova Scotia, when her spring stay snapped, causing the main mast to crash down, smashing in the stern of the boat. Captain William Cook and crew escaped in their dories and made shore in safety.

The loss of the schooner Delawanna adds one more to the long series of disasters that have overtaken boats which have sought the international fishermen's trophy. The Gloucester schooner Esperanza, which won from the Delawanna in the first race in 1920, was wrecked off Sable Island, N.S., in June, 1921.

Almost on the same spot, the Gloucester schooner Puritan built as a cup contender for the 1922 race series, ended her career in June, 1922, two months after her launching. The schooner Elizabeth Howard, unsuccessful contender in two elimination contests to choose the United States representative in the races for the trophy, was lost off Forters Island, N.S., in November, 1923.

The Henry Ford, built in 1923, and loser to the Lunenburg schooner Bluenose in that year's races, went on a sandbar an hour after she was launched at Essex, and was held fast for a week before she was floated, after which extensive repairs were required. The Columbia, United States representative in the 1923 races, was rammed by a French trawler off Sable Island in the spring of that year. In October she struck a rock outside Gloucester harbor, but escaped serious damage, and was saved with difficulty.

Several vessels have suffered minor mishaps in the course of the races.—Canadian Merchant.

To Fish Halibut On Gaspe

The Wick Fisheries, Ltd., of Anse au Beaulieu, Gaspe, Quebec, will fit out two auxiliary schooners for Gulf of St. Lawrence halibut fishing. Each vessel is of semi-knockabout type, 80 feet overall, 70 feet waterline, 13 feet beam, and equipped with auxiliary power. One vessel will have a Fairbanks-Morse C. O. 30 h. p. engine; the other a Norwegian Helmdal Crude Oil engine. They will carry six dories and a crew of Nova Scotians. Both are equipped with electric light and will be the first vessels ever built for Gaspe coast fishing. The vessels will go into commission on May 1st and June 1st.—Canadian Merchant.

SERIOUS TROUBLE IN JAPAN OVER U.S. IMMIGRATION LAW.

LONDON, June 2. Japan's protest against the exclusion provision of the American Immigration Law is regarded in some quarters here as justifying anxiety. The diplomatic expert of the Daily Telegraph this morning writes: "The demand that the legislation against Japanese immigration should be revoked is undoubtedly a serious one, and one is left to wonder what further diplomatic demarche will follow in the event of the almost inevitable American refusal. The writer asserts that information from competent foreign observers in Japan shows that while the Government is most reluctant to take any drastic steps, it is being irresistibly impelled to defend the national interests by a popular pressure, and its position is difficult. The Morning Post expects that the Japanese irritation will be provoked by the success of the Disarmament Conference, if one is to be called in the American elections, and surmises that it may also weaken the Singapore naval base issue in Great Britain. A passage of the exclusion provisions, the paper says, is virtually an admission that on certain issues like that of race, the ordinary machinery of diplomacy breaks down, the deciding factor being the passionate instincts and prejudices of people, recalling that the British Empire is also faced with the racial issue in South Africa, Kenya Colony, Canada and Australia." It adds, "the world is still a very unsure place and some of the political movements simmering today are almost as difficult to control as an earthquake."

THE U. S. NEWSPRINT SITUATION.
NEW YORK, N.Y., June 2. Looking forward to the gradual removal of its entire newsprint manufacturing interests to Canada, the International Paper Company will break ground in the near future for the erection of a new plant in the Dominion. Philip T. Dodge, President of the Company, announced today. "The action of the United States Congress in placing newsprint on the free list said Mr. Dodge, "has dealt the United States industrial a death blow. We will continue manufacturing in the United States for a long time to come but without a tariff to protect us, we cannot thrive. We will continue because we own vast timber tracts and when these are exhausted we will cease manufacturing we cannot compete against the cheap labor of foreign countries."

SMUTS SAY DANGER OF RED RIFLE IN SOUTH AFRICA.
DURBAN, SOUTH AFRICA, June 2. Over five hundred persons packed the Town Hall here Saturday night to hear Premier Smuts' election appeal, but disturbances organized by a minority created such a pandemonium that the Premier eventually left the Hall without speaking. Subsequently he addressed a small open air meeting of his supporters and said "The Red Flag has come to South Africa and free speech and the fundamental rights of free citizenship are denied us, this night will do more than any speech of mine to arouse public realization to the danger from that rule." The Premier denied that the disturbances were merely hotheads and declared that everything had been carefully organized. "It was a well thought out and well executed scheme of anarchy. He pointed out that the same thing had happened at Bloemfontein and elsewhere. Premier Smuts spiritedly appealed to the law-abiding citizens to rouse themselves, and not submit to the degradation of their public life and not allow with the cry of 'Red RIFLE' and 'Red RIFLE' being worn." He added the red light is up and there is danger to all we hold dear. The denial of civil rights will be followed by revolution and ultimately secession. I ask you to vote decisively on June 17 in order that these dangers may be effectively removed from our young country."

THE EVENING TELEGRAM.

THE EVENING TELEGRAM, LIMITED, PROPRIETORS.

All communications should be addressed to The Evening Telegram, Ltd., and not to individuals.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Monday June 2, 1924.

POLLING DAY

This is a fateful day, and when this issue of the Telegram appears, the destiny of the country for the next four years will have been decided at the polls.

To attempt to prophesy the result would be futile, and we can only trust to the good sense of the people to know where their best interests lie and that with this knowledge, they have placed the reins of power in the hands of Mr. Walter Monroe.

The Telegram has supported Mr. Monroe's cause, not for any reasons of self interest, but because we firmly believe in the ability of the Opposition leader to right the ills which have so long beset this unfortunate country.

In the hands of a Monroe Government, we are confident that Newfoundland will regain her former prosperity, and we are convinced also that with Mr. Monroe as Premier, our lost reputation will be speedily redeemed.

We cannot for a moment imagine that the people have taken the road to disaster to which the election of the Hickman party points the way.

It will be at least three days before the result of the election can be made known, and to those who have the welfare of their country at heart the time of waiting will be an anxious one.

As we have said before, however, we can only hope and trust that the electorate has made a wise choice, and that on Thursday we shall be able to lift our hats and cheer the success of Mr. Walter S. Monroe and his party who will usher in a new era of prosperity for Newfoundland.

An Appreciation

Polling Day sees the close of one of the shortest and hardest fought election campaigns that this country has ever known, and it would be remiss on our part did we permit this occasion to pass without a word of appreciation to the many who have assisted us to champion the cause of the Monroe party.

In times of stress such as the past three weeks have been, it is an impossibility for our permanent staff to cope with the vast amount of material which is necessary if a newspaper campaign is to be properly conducted, and we are very grateful, indeed, to those who have by their valuable contributions, helped us to do our share in combatting the dread menace of Coakerism.

We are greatly beholden, also, to our staff, particularly those in the composing room and press room, who by their willing co-operation and their readiness at all times to undertake such extra work as was required of them, ensured the punctual publication of the paper.

That Circular

The Advocate, in common with the party it supports, is clearly a firm believer in desperate remedies for desperate diseases.

Only desperation could have incited even such vile journalists as those who have conducted the Advocate during the recent campaign to produce and cause to be circulated, a "dodger" such as that which, when read by Sir John Crosbie at a public meeting on Saturday night, aroused the anger of the mildest of citizens to an unheard of extent.

This circular was of a sectarian nature, the kind of thing which panders to the basest passions of certain men, and we are confident that those voters in Conception Bay who received copies treated it with the contempt that it deserved.

There is a principle at stake, however, and the circulation of base libels, particularly those which attempt to incite bitter animosity between sects, must be suppressed with the utmost vigour of the law.

We understand that the authorities have the matter in hand, and that swift justice will be dealt out to those who are found guilty of producing or distributing these circulars.

We trust that when the perpetrators of this outrage are convicted that the sentences imposed upon them will be sufficiently severe to deter others from ever following their example.

Then, and then only, can we hope for cleaner public life in Newfoundland.

Splendid News From Districts.

ILLITERATE VOTE STRONG FOR MONROE CANDIDATES.

MONROE BIG FAVORITE IN BOHAVISTA.

Reports from the outlying settlements in St. John's West shows a strong sentiment for the Monroe candidates. In St. John's East the same encouraging news is being received. Bell Island the illiterate vote is overwhelmingly in favor of Higgins, Fox and Vincombe and the same holds true for the booths down the shore. At the Seaman's Institute this forenoon, the voting was heavy particularly in the Trinity and Bonavista booths. At 1 o'clock over 100 votes were cast and out of 12 illiterate ten were for the Monroe candidates. In the Bonavista booths 40 illiterate votes were cast. Thirty-five of these were straight for Monroe, Winsor and Little. In Burin, both three illiterate votes were cast. Two of these went Harris and Winter, the other vote was for Winter and Lake. A telephone message from Seal Cove received at noon, states that the South Shore is going strong for Woodford and Cahill and in the northern end of the district there would be no contest at all. A private received this morning from a reliable business man of Burin states that the election of Lake and Long is a certainty.

We received the following message from Trinity just before press hour: Wonderful enthusiasm every person most anxious to vote, sure win, Monroe candidates illiterate vote 100 per cent.

T. JENKINS.
A message was also received from Trepassay which reads as follows: Trepassay polling a record vote for us. Messages from all over the district point to record majority and believe whole South coast a land slide for Monroe.

Police Authorities and Justice Department Suppress Further Circulation of the Abominable Pamphlet--Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Higgins, K.C., Plead and Restrain Indignant Multitude From Destroying Advocate Building and Plant--Scurrilous Leaflet the Final Action of Desperate Political Highwaymen Wins Thousands of Friends for Opposition Candidates--Telegram's Warning Justified.

"Desperate people will perform desperate deeds and at the present time none are more desperate than Coaker, Mosdell, Hickman, Gibbs and Collishaw." The above is taken from the Evening Telegram of Friday when a leading article giving substantial facts re the political situation advised the people to be in readiness for something of a sensational character which would be published either in the Advocate-Journal office or by some other method in order to delude the people.

That the Telegram's warning was timely is best proven by the facts and incidents which occurred on Saturday, the result of the printing and circulating of an atrocious circular in the office of the Advocate-Journal and later taken away in automobiles by employees in Hickman's office who raced through Conception Bay distributing in certain sections the abominable leaflet. The facts are as follows:

At a meeting of friends and supporters of the Monroe candidates in the Star Hall on Saturday night Sir John Crosbie read a copy of a printed circular which was issued from the Advocate-Journal office before noon and later circulated as already intimated. The circular in question was handed to Sir John Crosbie during the meeting, and when all the speakers had finished he read it for the information of those who were present, as an instance of the sort of literature that is being broadcasted in the districts outside the city in order to influence the voters to support the present administration. Knowing that all right-thinking citizens would resent the insult, Sir John asked the meeting not to do anything in the matter, assuring them that the purpose for which it was issued would be defeated. Many of those present wanted to take immediate action, and one member of the gathering suggested a line of action to be taken. However, Sir John and Mr. Higgins entreated them to take no such course. After the meeting was over several hundred voters who were determined to resent the insult, proceeded to the Advocate office to demand an apology, but the doors were barred although lights were on in the building and persons were seen inside. One or two of the numbers, more rash than the rest, seized stones and hurled them through three of the windows. Shortly after this a posse of police under Superintendent O'Neil arrived on the scene, but there was absolutely no display of the rougher element, and though an entrance to the building was demanded from a member of the office staff who stood outside the door, such entrance was not granted. It looked as if the doors would be forced open when Sir John Crosbie and Mr. W. J. Higgins arrived on the scene, having been ed, and both addressed the gathering asking them to proceed quietly to their homes, giving the best possible answer to such infamy by the manner in which they would mark their ballots. Cheers were called for Mr. Monroe and the St. John's East and West teams, after which the men slowly moved away from the place. A large body of police stayed by the building until about 1.30 Sunday morning, and after this hour the place was guarded by a small number of constables. It is freely admitted that the arrival of Sir John Crosbie and Mr. Higgins prevented some unpleasant occurrence by the number who justly resented the insult that had been offered to them.

A FOUL DOCUMENT.

The circular was of so incendiary a character, so foul in its language, so false in its assertions, and so maliciously insulting, that the anger of the large gathering was unmistakable. That the anger was justifiable none will deny. Not in the history of Newfoundland has a more infamous leaflet been conceived, or published. The office that permitted it to be printed within its walls, the creature who wrote it, his comrades who conspired with him to issue it, the contemptible underlings who undertook its distribution these one and all are more fitted for deportation,—if such were possible—than for association with their fellow citizens.

UNFIT FOR PUBLICATION.

We are in receipt of a copy of the vile pamphlet but common decency would prevent any newspaper from re-publishing same. As our morning contemporary views it, "We should be guilty of inciting to riot, and so to that extent, share the guilt of the unmanly wretches who hesitated not to wade through slaughter in the hope of retaining their grips on the Treasury. When the election is over, and the matter may be viewed with the calmness of contempt; it may be our duty to disclose to the people of Newfoundland the depths of degradation to which men are prepared to descend in their unholy lust for office and their greed of gain.

So atrocious and so criminal was the language employed in the circular that the authorities had no option but to take steps to suppress, as far as possible, the distribution of the incendiary writings. The circulars had been sent out by motor car. The names of the distributors are in some instances known. Others, who were approached, contemptuously or angrily refused. Many copies have, we understand, already been seized. All have been called in, and in the efforts to conceal their guilt, some of those who were accomplices in the distribution were yesterday searching, begging, praying for their

SIR JOHN CROSBIE AND MR. HIGGINS' ACTION COMMENDABLE.

But for the restraining influence of Sir John Crosbie, Mr. Higgins, and others, Saturday night would have witnessed a serious disturbance. Men rose in their wrath; the spark might have broken into flame at any moment. It speaks volumes for the law-abiding character of the thousands in St. John's, that in spite of the provocation, they refrained from wreaking summary vengeance on the cravens who had not only insulted them, but every man and every woman in the Island.

Whilst it is not officially known who the actual writers of the atrocious circular are, but the mere fact of its having been printed in the Advocate office, the publishers of the official organs of the Government and of which Dr. Mosdell and Mr. Clouter are the Editors, is sufficient to more than suspect that one or both with the assistance of others who take special pride in this particular form of propaganda, and in any case the editors and managers of these newspapers must in the meantime be personally responsible for this outrage, which, to say the least, violated all forms of common decency and respect in local journalism. The infamous plot was timed and prepared so that it would be impossible to stop its harm, and the poisonous statements might circulate uncontradicted on the Sabbath Day. Happily the infamy was frustrated and the villainy exposed. It may be that some of the weak minded and the ignorant into whose hands the circulars have fallen have been duped. But we doubt it. The coarseness and the sheer lying are so apparent as to repel any thoughtful or honourable man; whilst the attempt to destroy the peace and harmony, in which men of all creeds have lived together, must of itself disgust.

CRIMINAL ACTION MUST BE TAKEN AGAINST PERPETRATORS.

The action of the police authorities in doing all that was possible to suppress and arrest the circulation of the dodger is praiseworthy, and we have an assurance that an immediate investigation will be advised by the Justice Department and the guilty ones arrested without undue delay to answer for their abominable conduct.

The action of the citizens is likewise worthy of commendation, and they have it in their hands to-day to show their resentment in a decisive manner by voting for clean administration, for a clean government that will forever make it impossible for such desperadoes to inflict their depraved minds and actions upon a long suffering people. The election of the Monroe Government will be the first step to insure the safety and well-being of the

ENJOYABLE LECTURE BY MR. HORSLEY.

A very enjoyable lecture was given by the St. Michael's Bible Classes yesterday afternoon by Mr. Horsley, Master of Bishop Field College and Lecturer of Queen's College. The lecturer dealt with the church life of "John Keble," an old Vicar of England. The lecture was enjoyed by all, and a vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Horsley by George Gruchy (boy's class) seconded by Miss Reid (girls' class). The lecture closed by the singing of a hymn composed by John Keble.

Monster Meeting Acclaims Monroe Candidates

INFAMOUS SECTARIAN PROP- AGANDA EXPOSED

On Saturday night a monster meeting of the voters of St. John's East and West was held in the Star Movie Hall. The meeting was called for 8.30 and an hour before that time every seat in the Hall was filled, and by 9 o'clock it is estimated that upwards of three thousand electors were in the building, filling every available space inside the roof. The galleries were thronged, the passage ways were also occupied, and in the long hall, and behind the stage hundreds of others were assembled eager to hear the speakers. Mr. F. W. Ayre presided.

REPRESENTATIVE G.W.V.A. PRE- SENT

Commander Howley, who attended the meeting on behalf of the G.W.V.A., was invited to the platform by the chairman. He explained that at the recent Dominion Conference of the G.W.V.A. certain questions were debated on to be asked candidates of both parties in this election, and it was for that purpose he was present. He then read the questions and presented each candidate with a copy. The mission for which he was sent was then finished, but as he was asked to take a seat on the platform he willingly did so.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE

Sir John Crosbie called upon deploring one of the best speeches of the campaign, and his remarks were greeted with frequent applause. In telling terms he answered all charges that had been made against him by the man who is to-day the most despised individual in the city, and he proved to his hearers that such accusations had been made only by a man who is fighting a cause which has for its object the destruction of the country's happiness. Sir John said the Monroe party does not promise the country a land of flowing milk and honey, but they do promise that their utmost endeavours will be directed towards the policy of sound government. To Commander Howley he promised the best that was in him for the G.W.V.A., because they had done their best for him, and if the voters ask for are found to be in the best interests of the country the veterans will find in him one of their best friends.

MR. N. J. VINTICOMBE

The next speaker was Mr. N. J. Vinticombe, and he felt gratified to be privileged to address such a meeting. It made him feel that at last the country has awakened and will return to the policy of the party under Mr. Wallace S. Monroe. He felt that to-day will see the beginning of the return of the independence of Newfoundland. Mr. Vinticombe concluded with an appeal for a straight ticket vote, the way of showing to the country at large that they desire a change.

MR. W. J. BROWNE

The junior candidate for St. John's West repudiated the charges made by the Government papers that the people of St. John's are rowdies. The speaker then dealt with the misdoings of the Government, laying stress on the extraordinary waste created by the agricultural policy they had adopted. Thousands of dollars had been squandered in this direction and men are drawing salaries who are completely incompetent to fill the positions for which they hold. Mr. Browne's record in the recent pitfall scandal was discussed, and the speaker reported in this connection of an instance of the fitness of a man who is now before the country seeking the support of the voters. As a striking contrast Wallace S. Monroe stands out as an example to all men—a man of unimpeachable character and honesty of purpose. Mr. Browne's address was very forcible and was probably the best effort throughout the campaign.

MR. C. J. FOX

Mr. Cyril Fox, candidate St. John's East, made a very eloquent address. He answered Commander Howley that the questions submitted will be given the most serious consideration he felt they deserved. Dealing with the record of the present administration he said it was as 80 years to have a debt of millions in the country, but it took four and a half years to add an amount fifty per cent. to this amount. This is the most important question that ever confronted Newfoundland. We now have our backs to the wall, and we are in a perilous position. The year 1923-24 will go down in history as amongst the most important in the annals of the country. We are on the story which the ballot box will tell on June 2nd, will the fate of the country depend. Walter S. Monroe, is today one of the country's leading business men, and he has well have concerned himself with his business and keep away from the worries of state. He is a man who has nothing to gain, but whose name is a patriotic citizen and whose interest of the country at large is his only concern. He is present in the position, and he offers the country a policy that contains nothing that is impossible of fulfillment.

MR. W. F. LINEGAR

On arising to address the meeting Mr. Linegar was accorded a wonderful ovation. He confined his remarks principally to labour conditions in the country, as he is in the fight, as he has been in other fights, first, last and always, for the workman. He felt assured that the party with which he is now associated will give the workers of this country, that which they have not got before, he felt that the Monroe party stands for a square deal for all, and will give to the workmen that justice which they have not had accorded them in the past. Concluding, Mr. Linegar appealed to his hearers to support the cause of Walter S. Monroe, whose policy is CLEAN UP, KEEP CLEAN, and A SQUARE DEAL TO ALL.

MR. W. J. HIGGINS, K.C.

Mr. Higgins made but a brief speech as the hour was late. He felt that the very large meeting was the best answer to those people who say that St. John's has no interest in the present condition of affairs, and that there is no spathy in the city. To prove conclusively that this was the case he asked that all who are supporting the cause of Monroe, would rise, and at his word, the meeting stood to a man, and such an enthusiastic gathering was never seen in the country.

INFAMOUS CIRCULAR READ

Sir John Crosbie then came forward to read a circular, which had been handed to him, as having been printed in the Advocate office for distribution outside the city. The circular was one of the most infamous that was ever read to a body in St. John's, and contained statements that were not only absolutely untrue, but were an insult to every religious denomination in the country. It is no wonder that the vast number present were incensed and wanted to wreak vengeance on those who are believed to be responsible for circulating this disgusting paper. However, Sir John advised those present to take no notice of such infamy, but to do it in the one manner, by registering their votes. The meeting concluded with the singing of the National Anthem and vociferous cheers for MONROE and CLEAN GOVERNMENT, and the candidates for St. John's East and West.

G. W. V. A.

RE-FORMED AT BELL ISLAND

Saturday afternoon the Dominion President and the Dominion Secretary of the G. W. V. A. went to Bell Island where a meeting of ex-Service men was held at 3 p.m. A large number of ex-Service men attended and it was unanimously decided to re-form the Branch which, during the past few years has become defunct. The President and Secretary addressed the meeting on the aims and ideals of the G. W. V. A. Association in Newfoundland, their addresses being enthusiastically received by the gathering. The following new Branch officers were elected:—

Branch President—Comrade W. J. Somerton

Vice-President—Comrade N. G. Lodge

Secretary Treasurer—H. J. G. Gowder

Executive Members—Comrades

Walt Sellars, J. Hickey, A. Murray, and J. Mews.

The Bell Island ex-Service men have set for themselves the task of becoming the foremost branch of the G. W. V. A. outside St. John's and will not rest until they have beaten Grand Falls, which is at present the premier branch. It was also decided to enter crews for the Halc Regatta and a team for the Halc tug-of-war cup. Colonel Nangle and Capt. Whitty returned to town yesterday morning.

DIG AUGUST FESTIVAL IN DUBLIN

The revival of the ancient Irish Sports Festival "Aonach Tailteann"—the Fair of Festival of Taliesin—is the object of a widespread homecoming of the Irish race and to Ireland, visitors will thoroughly enjoy their visits to the Home Land.

Established under the patronage of Kings in the remote past, Aonach Tailteann occupied for many centuries a foremost place in the social life of the Irish people. It was there that the chiefs assembled with the chosen of their Clans in all the color and brilliance of their ancient order, bringing their athletes, charioteers, spearthrowers, harpists, singers, story-tellers, etc., to take part in the various competitions in keen, but friendly rivalry and perchance to bear away the golden talisman rings from the hand of the High King.

For many years the dream of resurrecting Aonach Tailteann, occupied the minds of progressive Irishmen. At last its realization is at hand, for preparations are very forward for the opening ceremony at Croke Park, Dublin, on August 2nd. It is proposed to follow the lines of the ancient Festival as closely as possible, while introducing many modern forms of entertainment not available when King Lugh instituted this ambitious scheme of festivity in honor of his foster-mother Talia, in the year B.C. 632!

Opening with a Reception of Competitors, massed bands, industrial tableaux and an International Hurling Match on Saturday, August 2nd, at Croke Park, the Festival will extend with all its varieties of outdoor and indoor entertainment to the closing ceremony on August 18th, in the Royal Dublin Society's grounds at Ballsbridge. All branches of athletics, outdoor and indoor games, music, drama and art are included; whilst the world famous Dublin Horse Show occupies the central week of the period.

As might be expected, where many thousands of visitors were to be considered, the problems of accommodation and of catering seriously occupied the minds of the promoters. Reception Committees were at once appointed and extensively added to.

Provision is already made for giving comfortable accommodation and good meals at a reasonable cost to a surplus population of 60,000 persons daily in Dublin and its environs during the Tailteann period. This has been made possible by the hearty support of Dublin citizens. A Central Bureau of Information is being established, where visitors can make their bookings beforehand. The Railway, Steamship and International Tourist Agencies are all interested in Aonach Tailteann. Special tours have been arranged at cheap rates. At the visitor's option, alternative routes will take in all the beauty spots of Ireland.

Irish music, drama and high class concert programmes have been arranged for the leading Dublin theatres. Mr. John McCormack is giving a special recital at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, at 8 p.m., on August 3rd.

Athletes in every branch are in active training in Ireland. These expect to make a good showing against all visiting "stars"; boxers, gymnasts, swimmers, carmen, etc., are looking forward to the greatest test of their lives.

Almost a thousand voluntary workers are engaged in the building up of extensive fabric. The frame-work is substantial and the details of the structure are now being perfected. The social side of the programme has not been neglected, and a special committee is set aside to see that the visitors will leave with the sense of having enjoyed genuine Irish hospitality. The different avenues are at present undergoing a thorough preparation, and Croke Park tracks will be in good order. The grounds will accommodate 50,000 persons.

The organization of such a comprehensive programme is an immense undertaking but the work has been going steadily since 1922. Last Autumn a programme of intensive organization was established and since then immense progress has been made. Special Commissioners were sent out to organize the different countries, and whole-hearted support is now assured from the United States, Canada, England, Scotland and Wales and the possibility of still more extensive representation.

While interest in Aonach Tailteann is necessarily confined in chief to those of Irish descent, all shades of political and religious opinion will stand together in its promotion. The Festival is subsidized by Dan Breen and Mr. J. J. Walsh, T.D., Postmaster General of the Free State, is director of games and chairman of the General Council.

It will be remembered that in 1923—when Aonach Tailteann had, unfortunately, to be postponed, owing to the outbreak of the Civil War—Mr. Seanas Doherty visited the city in connection with the work of organization, and our champion runner, Jack Bell, was selected to represent the Irish community. The present Commissioner, Mr. J. D. Burke, M.A., was unfortunately prevented by press of business from visiting St. John's, but at his request Mr. J. O'N. Conroy is acting as Honorary Representative of the General Council for this Country, and the latter will be glad to supply any information required concerning the Festival by prospective visitors or contestants. It is to be hoped that Newfoundland's colors will be seen at Croke Park in August.

Pet Monkey Sacrificed to Test Electric Chair

Manila, April 25 (A.P.)—"Bonquillo," a monkey which long has been a pet around the Laneta police station, has been sacrificed on the altar of science. The Philippine government more than a year ago adopted the electric chair as a means of executing condemned murderers, and in order to test the efficiency of the apparatus, which recently was received from the United States, Ronquillo was commended as the first victim. It required five seconds to kill the monkey.

Officials have announced that the chair is ready to be used for the electrocution of nine murderers who have been held in Bilibid prison awaiting the installation of the apparatus. The Philippine Islands is the first country in the Far East to adopt the electric chair for the execution of murderers.

In Memoriam

"Alas for life! if thou wert all, And naught beyond ph. earth!"

Thoughts suggested by the above lines filled the minds of all here in Renewal when it was known that Miss Hannah Jackman had expired at 10.30 p.m., May 27th. The esteemed young lady was the only and dearly loved daughter of our respected Postmaster, Mr. Thos. Jackman, and had attained her 24th year. Bright, cheerful and remarkably self-sacrificing the gravity of her illness was not realized until a few short weeks ago. Then medical skill and unceasing care of loved ones could not check death's rapid progress. Calmly and resignedly her young life was given back to its creator, but, at what a great sacrifice to her idolized father and brothers whose sole comfort and hope she was since her dear mother's death eleven years ago. President of the Children of Mary Sodality for the past six years, she always proved herself a discreet counsellor and was regarded by all the members as a sincere, affectionate friend. All charitable undertakings found in her a willing co-operator, and being gifted with more than ordinary musical talent was ever considered an essential to the success of every local entertainment. Sustained in her last moments by all the graces Holy Church bestows on her devoted children, we feel sure that in her were verified the words of the great St. Bernard: "A true child of Mary will never perish." Requiem Mass was sung for the repose of her soul Wednesday, and on Ascension Thursday evening the funeral took place from the Parish Church escorted by the members of the Sodality and a very large concourse of people. Our heartfelt sympathy we tender to her bereaved loved ones. Let them look beyond earth for consolation, rejoicing in truth that in Heaven they'll meet and greet the dear one who only now waits and prays for their coming. R. I.P.—COM.

Why Germans Eat Heartily Revealed by Old Cook Book

Nuremberg, Germany, May 5 (A.P.)—Song birds in apples, cooked in boiling lard, was a German delicacy of the fourteenth century and was served by royalty at all notable dinners to date. A cook book, compiled in 1485 and believed to be written by a domestic science, who quotes many recipes of the olden times, when kings and nobles gorged themselves on every occasion, and appeared to be particularly fond of black birds baked in pies.

At nearly all great feasts a most popular dish was an enormous fish pie, supposedly of Spanish origin. This contained two pounds of butter, half a pound of bacon, or pork, eight pounds of haddock, 20 to 30 eggs, one pound of veal, a pound of oysters, onions, spices and various other seasonings.

Old New England Homestead Stripped for Ford's Museum

Swampscott, Mass., May 23 (A.P.)—The interior of the Burrill homestead here, the latest historical acquisition of Henry Ford in New England, is being stripped for reassembling in his colonial museum, the Wayside Inn, in Sudbury. Mr. Ford bought the property from C. Walter Burrill. The house was erected by Ebenezer Burrill, born in 1679, and for many years it was the social centre of the town.

The son of the builder, James Burrill, was appointed chief justice of the Rhode Island supreme court in 1816 and later served in the United States senate. C. Walter Burrill is the grandson of James.

Workmen are carefully removing the handwrought nails, the handwrought floor boards, some 30 inches wide and an inch thick, the red brick of the fireplace, the doors, the sills, and wainscoting of the rooms. It is possible that some part of the exterior may also be utilized by the Ford museum.

Alberta Rich in Pulp

Edmonton, Alberta, May 25 (A.P.)—Alberta has enough pulpwood to supply the western portion of the United States with newspaper paper for 10 years to come, according to a report compiled by C. H. Morse, chief ranger for the province.

"Pulpwood resources in the province," said Mr. Morse, "total 247,500,000 cords. There are 63,900 square miles of pulpwood forests. Pine composes about 45 per cent of this growth, spruce 30 per cent, poplar 25 per cent, and other coniferous varieties 10 per cent."

Digger Indian Passes
Into Self-Made Oblivion

IONE, Calif., May 23—(A.P.)—The Digger Indian has gone. He has been killed by the Indians themselves. The Digger Indian was burned at the stake while he was jeered and mocked by 600 of his fellows at the annual "cry" of the Mowuks near here recently. The burning was in effigy while a picked band in full regalia did a war dance about the victim.

The burning, while typifying, according to the Indian allegory, the culmination of a long hunt for an enemy, actually marked the abandonment of the name Digger Indian by all Indian tribes in California. The Mowuks were the last to gain their tribal designation. They were once called Diggers.

Indians say the name Digger first made its appearance in Utah. It was said to have been first used by whites on their way to California because of the Indian custom of digging for roots. Then, as the whites continued their westward migration, the settlers continued to use the appellation.

The Digger in Indian allegory came from Utah to Nevada, then to the Pintes of Pitt-River, then to Modoc county, Shasta county, Humboldt county and down into the south. Spurred by every tribe, he became an outcast and sought shelter in the territory of the Mowuks. Here he remained hidden, refusing to leave, until his ancient capture and death at the stake.

The annual "cry" of the Mowuks is held in honor of the dead. Indians from all parts of the state attend. It is a time of ceremony, feasting and merry-making.

Urges a Selective Policy of Immigration

WINNIPEG, May 30.—Urgins a more selective policy with regard to immigration in order to make Canada an Anglo-Saxon country, Walter McRaye, Canadian author, who is in Manitoba in search of data for a book of history on the province, denounced the wholesale dumping of what he described as "little Asians" into the west in addresses at the Kiwanis club here.

In advocating Canadian nationalization, Mr. McRaye stipulated that he did not want it confused with the nationalization proclaimed by Quebec, but rather founded upon principles brought to Canada by United Empire Loyalists, that we should always remain British and should in all things govern ourselves.

"We have come to a time when decision must be reached whether we are going to have a Canadian people, or just a string of people living in Canada with their eyes fixed on some other country, and I say that Canada should harbor no man who cannot and will not become a Canadian," Mr. McRaye declared.

The question he said was how we are going to Canadianize the foreigners. If we are not Canadianized ourselves, even the government refused to recognize "Canadian" as a nationality. He did not expect a man to forget his mother country, but he thought it was illogical and unreasonable of a Canadian born to be branded as an alien or hyphenate.

"It is to have in my loyalty to the empire, but the pride that takes first place in my heart is the pride of being a Canadian," Mr. McRaye concluded.

Finger Facts

It is a fact not generally known that the fingers of the right hand move much more quickly than those of the left. They are also much more accurate.

Recent experiments have also proved that the ring finger of the left hand can work more quickly, if it is moving in conjunction with the right-hand forefinger. Any two fingers working together, indeed, move considerably faster than one finger working by itself. The more a person uses his or her fingers the more adept they become. A pianist or typist will find that, in time, the left hand becomes as skilful as the right.

There's a Big Show at the Crescent To-Night

ANITA STEWART RETURNS IN
"THE LOVE PIKER."

After casting your vote for your favourite side in politics to-night, rest your mind as well as your body by attending the big show at the Crescent Theatre. The feature attraction is "The Love Piker," in which the pretty Anita Stewart re-appears on the silver sheet.

Arrested for speeding in her roadster, Hope Warner, a wealthy young woman, meets and is aided by Martin Van Huisen, a young civil engineer who has made his way in the world by sheer force of character, despite the handicap of early poverty. Later Martin is instrumental in saving Hope's life and the friendship between the two ripens into love. They become engaged but the girl's loyalty to her lover is put to a severe test when he takes her to visit his father, old Peter Van Huisen, who lives in the tenements, where he has spent all his life and will not leave. When Hope sends out invitations for her wedding, her snobbish training asserts itself and she tears up the one intended for the elder Van Huisen. On the wedding morning she is troubled with remorse for her action and by the time she is attired in bridal costume experiences a revulsion of feeling. She jumps into an auto and hurries to old Peter, confesses her fault, brings him back with her and is married.

Voting Since 1860

CIVIL WAR VETERAN IS FOUND INELIGIBLE.

SEATTLE, May 23—(A.P.)—E. W. Binns, 36, of Seattle, veteran of the Civil War, who voted for Abraham Lincoln twice and who has cast his ballot for every Republican presidential candidate since 1860, has recently found out he is not a citizen and can not vote for a candidate this fall.

When Binns went to register the clerk of a Seattle registration office found out that he was born in England, that he was not naturalized, though he had voted since 1860, and that, while he thought his father was a naturalized citizen of the United States, he could not produce a copy of his father's naturalization papers. Binns' father died 30 years ago.

Big Melodramatic Feature at the Nickel

ALLAN HOLUBAR'S GREAT PRODUCTION "BROKEN CHAINS."

Can a born coward change his nature and become a hero, if not unaided at least unaided?

Wilfrid Kimball believes he can. She embodied her belief in the form of a motion picture scenario and entered it in the Chicago Daily News $25,000 scenario contest. She told her story so well that the famous judges gave her entry the first prize of $10,000, picking it out of the 32,000 manuscripts submitted. The prize carried with it a production on an elaborate scale by Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, with a star cast.

Goldwyn has now made the picture under the direction and personal supervision of Allan Holubar, and "Broken Chains" is coming to the Nickel Theatre to-night for three days. Everyone will want to see why this scenario captured the $10,000 prize. It is a great emotional photoplay with big dramatic moments and as thrilling and realistic a hand-to-hand fight as the silver-sheet has ever depicted.

In the cast of "Broken Chains," are Colleen Moore, Claire Windsor, Bert Mercer, Malcolm McGregor, Ernest Torrence, William Orland, James Marcus, Gerald Fryer, Edward Bell and Leo Willis. Reports from cities where this prize-winning picture has already been shown indicate that it is the biggest kind of popular success.

Japan Plans Bond Issue FOR RECONSTRUCTION WORK.

TOKIO, April 21—(A.P.)—New domestic bond issues totalling 155,000,000 yen will be floated by the Japanese government during the fiscal year 1924-25, providing loan market conditions are favorable, according to an announcement by the Department of Finance.

The government must also float conversion issues totalling 419,000,000 yen to take care of old issues maturing within the new fiscal year, from April 1, 1924, to March 31, 1925. In addition it is hoped to place on the market other issues totalling 79,000,000 yen which were scheduled for 1923-24, but withheld owing to unfavorable market conditions. These bring the total of projected domestic loans for the year to 653,000,000 yen.

Reconstruction work made necessary by the earthquake disaster will absorb nearly all the proceeds of the new issues.

The old issues maturing within the

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

THEY NEVER LISTEN.

"I admire her," the sensation that these people give me, in describing her feelings toward a new acquaintance. "She is very clever and very competent. And I like her, in a way. But I just don't seem to warm up to her."

I wondered why, and my friend considered a moment and then answered:

"Well, I think it may be because she never seems to really listen to you when you are talking to her. She asks polite questions, the way everyone does, you know, and she keeps still while you are answering, but you just don't feel as if she had the slightest interest in it. If you know what I mean?"

I thought I did.

A Baffled Feeling.

I don't happen to know the lady in question, except at second hand, but I have met several people in the course of my life who give me somewhat that feeling.

Haven't you?
Did you ever lose the party at the other end of the wire when you were talking over the phone (foolish question 982) and suddenly find yourself talking to a wire with no ear on the other end of it? It's a queer, blank feeling, isn't it, a sort of baffled feeling. And that, I think, is somewhat

I suppose the reason is that the party which should be at the other end of the wire—the attention and interest of our auditor, in other words—really isn't there.

Waiting For Their Chance.

Maybe his attention is centered on what he is going to say next. The wants-to-be-cynic declares that when any group of people sit around the fire talking, they aren't any of them so much listening to what the others are saying, as watching the conversation for a chance to tell their pet knowledge. I think that's putting it pretty strongly, but I do believe that there are some people like that. In fact we're all like it some of the time and some people are like it all the time.

It Drives Away Friends.

Or again, maybe he just plain isn't interested in other people, maybe he's just the unresponsive type.

Or perhaps he's nervous and self-conscious and his nervousness affects him that way. It does sometimes. I have known people who gave that impression at first and who were quite different when you knew them better.

But unless they do change on better acquaintance the people who never seem to really listen to other people are apt to lack for friends. A friend is a person who is willing to share the center of the stage. And, as someone has said, "the only way to have a friend is to be one."

37 Years With 'Mounties' 3 Year Old Holstein a Great Milker

SASKATOON, May 30.—After thirty-seven years of romantic service with the "Mounties" whose daring exploits and fidelity to duty played an important part in preparing the way for civilization's establishment in western Canada, Assistant Commissioner Theodore A. Wroughton of the R.C.M.P. has retired.

Col. Wroughton joined the Northwest Mounted Police as constable in 1887, was promoted to be inspector in 1898 and ultimately elevated to the post of assistant commissioner in 1917. He was one of those who fell the romantic if arduous duty of pursuing single-handed crime and wantonness across the trackless prairie, later acting at once as prosecutor and magistrate among 25,000 men in the world rush for gold to the Yukon, after which he was given complete dominion over millions of square miles of arctic waste.

Following many years of service in this isolated territory, the Colonel went to South Africa in charge of a troop of the 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles, and on his return from the hot veldt, he was sent to the other extreme, going to Dawson, Yukon territory as inspector of the R.N.W.M.P. In the first two years in which he was in command of the Yukon, Col. Wroughton sentenced 2,000 persons in the police court, and in this way he was able to put an end to the reign of the dance halls and the fun. So well did the 150 officers and men of the force do their work that the streets of Dawson became as safe as those of an eastern city.

The thoroughness with which the mounted police carried out their duties in the Yukon is illustrated in the capture and subsequent hanging of two French Canadians, Fournier and Labelle. These men left Dawson as guides to three miners who had made their pit and wanted to get outside. A few days after the finding of a body in the Yukon river, forty miles below Dawson was reported to police headquarters.

Inspector Wroughton went to the scene, held an inquest and found that murder had been perpetrated. The guides were suspected on their culpability was well known. Fournier, it was found, had fled to Alaska and Labelle to the United States. By means known only to the "Mounties" Fournier was brought back from the north and an investigator was dispatched to the United States, who after months in the underworld of that country, brought back his man. Up to this point there was only circumstantial evidence against them.

By means of a ruse, each man confessed and convicted the other, and this crime gave gruesome names to two islands in the Yukon, "Deadman's Isle" and "Murderers' Island."

When Col. Wroughton came out of the Yukon in 1901, he was honored by being appointed to command one of the squadrons which went to the coronation of King Edward. On his return, he was again sent to the Arctic, this time as superintendent, with headquarters at Fort Athabasca and Herschel Island as one of the outposts.

With the passing of Col. Wroughton goes one more of the sturdy figures that made the "Riders of the Plains" known to the world over.

Exiled Caliph Awaits Word of Moslem World

Territet, Switzerland, May 3 (A.P.)—The deposed Caliph and his suite continue to reside at Territet awaiting developments. Convinced of the strength of his position, Abdul-Mejid is quietly expecting concrete proposals from the Moslem world, including his own compatriots.

It is understood that the suggestion put forward in French quarters that a solution of the difficulty could be found in each separate community appointing its own Caliph, would be contrary to the Koranic law and therefore unlikely to be realized.

The chance of King Hassan of the Hedjaz becoming Caliph of the whole Moslem community throughout the world are not taken seriously in Turkish circles. The deposed Caliph is pleased with the attitude adopted by a section of the Egyptian ulama, which has pronounced in favor of his retention of the Caliphate.

The views of the Indian Moslems are not yet known, but steps are being taken to ascertain what the feeling is of the largest Moslem community in the world. The recent decision of the Persian ecclesiastics that the institution of a republican regime in Persia would be contrary to Mohammedan law naturally has created a good impression among the Turkish exiles.

The recent decision of the Angora National Assembly to suppress the deposed Caliph's subsidy owing to his recent manifesto to the Moslem world is confirmed. This, however, does not seem to be affecting his party, which feels that the Moslem communities will see to it that the deposed Caliph is not left in pecuniary difficulties. On the contrary, it is felt that by issuing his manifesto Abdul-Mejid has rendered a service to the Moslem world.

Joliet's Historical Voyage to be Celebrated in Pageant

Joliet, May 21 (A.P.)—Floating down the Chicago drainage canal and the Illinois River, a modern Louis Joliet, accompanied by Father Marquette and his voyageurs, will be greeted when he lands June 18 at the city bearing his name, by a pageant of more than 1,000 actors, given in commemoration of the landing of the original Joliet here 250 years ago.

The week of June 16 to 22 is to be devoted to a celebration of Joliet's exploration and discovery of the site of this city.

Although the trip down the Chicago canal and river will not follow accurately the original exploration trip of Joliet and Marquette, it may follow the route taken by the famous explorer a year later in returning to the Illinois country.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A GUEST

TO THE BABY.
I wouldn't let a grown-up smear my coat with sticky jam;
In the company of adults it's particular I am.

I wouldn't let my neighbor run my private pockets through
And scatter all my papers, but it's different with you—
You may smear my linen collar, you may rumple up my hair,
And because you're just a baby all my papers you may tear.

It's a queer old world, I tell you, with its rules of right and wrong,
And the weak by laws protected from oppression by the strong.
But you'll never find a statute, though world-over you would seek,
Which protects the strong and saves him from the innocent and weak.

Here I sit and let you maul me, though it's true as true can be,
I could have a man arrested for the things you do to me.

I've a sacred sort of person. Not a grown-up man would dare
To touch my watch and pencils or my choicest books to tear.
And I'm sure there'd be a battle if some humor-seeking chap
Should raise his hand my portfolio and just spill it in my lap.

Yet I laugh to see you do it, and I kiss your sticky face,
And I glory in the ruin that you scatter round the place.

You may take my watch and ding it, just as far as you can throw,
You may leave your sticky thumb prints on my collar white as snow.
You may snatch the paper from me when you think it's time to play,
You may even break my derby, and I've not word to say—
Why, you little treat baby, with those laughing eyes of blue,
Your fond and foolish daddy laughs at anything you do!

First Aid for Anglers

HOW TO FAIL AT FISHING.

Occasionally at the seaside you will find several old gentlemen arranged in a row on the pier in the intervals between the penny-in-the-slot machines, sitting down, gazing vaguely at the sea. They sit so still that you might fancy they were waxworks provided by the local council to amuse visitors, but on a closer examination you will see that each old gentleman is dangling a string into the water.

These old gentlemen are fishing and the idea of fishing, although you might never guess it, is to catch fish. Some fish, like sardines, live in the open, but most of them spend their time swimming in the sea. They don't know enough to come in out of the rain, but they are not foolish enough to give themselves up, nor can they be caught with the aid of a bait of salt on their tails.

It is not wise, also, to dive in after them, or a range of them might club together and hold you under water until you get drowned. Even a sprat will fight savagely in defence of its own hearth and home.

The theory is that you offer a fish some breakfast, in the middle of which is concealed a hook. The fish eats the breakfast, and the hook—or that is the supposition, anyhow—then you save him from a watery grave by pulling him out of the sea. It is a fascinating game but it seldom comes off.

The fish usually eats all the breakfast, then pulls the string to let you know that he is still hungry, and its time you hang some more breakfast on the line for him. There's the story in it if you could make the fish pay for it, but fish never have any money. They're like husbands.

You quite realize now, of course, that the breakfast is the most important part of the operation, and this usually consists of a worm.

Worms, however, are not the only bait you can use. It depends on the sort of fish you are after. If you want some of those fourpenny pieces, with plenty of vinegar and some chips, the only thing that will attract them is a sheet of nice ink newspaper. Bloaters suffer a great deal from overcrowding, and you can catch millions with one advertisement of a house to let.

Tiddlers like a jam-jar, preferably a strawberry one, as plum and apple is out of date. For a dogfish you need a catfish, obviously; and for a whale—if for any reason you should happen to want a whale—produce an old pair of corsets. These are full of whalebone, which is the stuff the whale likes to take to the bed of the ocean and worry, the same as if he were a fox terrier.

No doubt in these scientific days it won't be long before we use wireless to help in fishing. The line would make a good aerial, and after it had been playing a little while, you'd be able to watch hundreds of fishes sitting in a ring, listening to Uncle Ambrose, or dancing sorrowfully to the Blues. Some fish, again, are attracted by bits of looking-glass, which only goes to show you girls how dangerous is vanity. Others will follow a piece of brightly colored rag for miles, to end their careers by being served up filleted, fried, and sprinkled with lemon juice.

Wherefore, all you young men who get perturbation when you see a pair of ankles, or a knitted jumper, take warning. These things are like rags likewise, and your end may be stickier even than the fishes'. You may even get married.

Up till now I have been taking it for granted that when you fish, you hope for fish, but you can catch all sorts of things with a rod and line, from the hook in your trousers to the hump. Some fishermen make a speciality of old boots. They could fish in a quart goldfish bowl, and gather enough old boots out of it to stock a Government Supplies Store. What bait you use for these I don't know, unless it is bootlaces. Others catch bricks, and I know one sportsman who caught a policeman. The policeman was swimming about under the pier at the time. There was some trouble about it, for my friend was in an angling competition at the time, and the prize was awarded for the heaviest catch. He wanted to include the copper, who weighed seventeen stones, only as it happened, the next man caught the pier itself, which weighed about two hundred tons, so he won easily. I may say that nobody caught any fish. Nobody ever does in an angling competition.

I will presume that you have selected the kind of fish you require, and suitable bait. Previously, of course, you have provided yourself with a rod to hang the line on. You need a rod, because it makes it so much easier for the spiders to sing their webs from it, and you ought always to be kind to dumb animals. On the end of the line you now proceed to fasten the hook.

You may have heard tales of little boys who have caught shares on bent pins, but bent pins are against the rules, because they've only got one point, whereas your hook should have two, one for the bait, and the other for your thumb.

All that now remains is for you to

Piles

At all Dealers, GERALD S. DOYLE, DISTRIBUTOR.

drop the bait overboard and wait until it's dark, so that you can come home without being seen. After all, you don't want all your friends to know what a fool you've been.

Now comes the really interesting part of fishing. On your way back you will meet all the men who were with you on the pier. You know they've caught nothing, but in most cases they'll be carrying baskets full of all sorts of fish from tins of blonster paste to dried kipper. That's because at the end of every pier there is a fishmonger's.

No matter, you can now tell them exactly how that octopus got away from you, and how you threw it back because it was so heavy that you were afraid that it would sink the pier.

Master of the King's Horses

The Master of the Horse has a salary of £2,500 a year in return for his services in a not arduous post, but all the same this Court appointment is one in which the holder can, if he likes, make his influence felt.

When the Duke of Cornwall was King Edward's Master of the Horse, it was generally conceded that the Royal equippage had never been so well turned out. Every detail was perfect, carriages, harness, and horses, the latter being for the most part grand Cleveland bays of a type not often seen to-day.

The real work in the Master of the Horse's department falls on the Crown Equerry. Only when the King himself is in residence at Buckingham Palace has the Master of the Horse to be in London at all, to accompany His Majesty at short notice.

Honest I'll Say So

Edmonton, May 30.—Were you in Dawson City, in the Yukon, in 1903 with the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, asked a burly chap who walked into the office of Inspector J. S. Piper at headquarters of "A" division, the office of the Alberta provincial police, recently.

"Well," responded the inspector, "I was, I borrowed fifty cents from you in 1903," said the stranger, "and here is your money."

With that the man left the office, refusing to disclose his name.

A BLEAK BELIEF

I'd hate to think all men are crooks, that no one's on the square, that good men only live in books, and are but fabric there. I've always held the human race to be a great success, and if I found it in disgrace 'twould jar me. I confess, the gloomy grotesque hand us bunk and would the race defame, but I have never seen it sunk in dismal swamps of shame, I do not think my native grad is but a total loss because some skates whose hearts are bad put sinful stunts across. I do not think the country speeds to ruin and decay, because some longsome grater's deeds are in the news-to-day. I do not think our eagle bold will mutilate its screens because some swindler gathers gold by working victim schemes. Each day I read some thrilling tales of sinners and their sin, of scoundrels locked in money falls for selling deadly gin. But over this I do not brood or say the laws are junk; because one anarchist is stowed, why call the nation drunk? The good old human race, my friends, is always stacking high, the pull of virtue never ends, though sin and sinners die. Though one may shake the neighborhood with notions base, obscene, ten thousand hearts are brave and good, ten thousand lives are clean.

On which all persons are hereby required to take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

Given under my hand at St. John's, the 26th day of May, 1924.

JOHN B. WADLAND,
Returning Officer.

DIRECTIONS FOR THE GUIDANCE OF ELECTORS IN VOTING.

Each Elector, on entering the room where the Poll is to be held, shall declare his name, surname and addition.

After so doing he shall receive a Ballot Paper in the above form.

Each Elector if required by the Deputy Returning Officer, the Poll Clerk, one of the Candidates, or one of their agents shall before receiving his Ballot Paper, take an oath of qualification.

The voter is to vote only for three Candidates.

After receiving his Ballot Paper the voter shall go into one of the compartments and, with a pencil there provided, place a cross in the division containing the name or names of the Candidate or Candidates for whom he intends to vote, thus X.

The voter will then fold the Ballot Paper, so as to show a portion of the back only, with the initials of the Deputy Returning Officer and shall hand it so folded up to the Deputy Returning Officer and the Deputy Returning Officer shall, without unfolding it, ascertain that it is the Ballot Paper which he furnished to the elector and then immediately place it in the Ballot Box. The voter shall forthwith leave the Polling Station.

If a voter inadvertently spoils a Ballot Paper he may return it to the Deputy Returning Officer, who shall give him another.

If a voter votes for more candidates than he is entitled to vote for, or places any mark on the Ballot Paper by which he can afterwards be identified, his vote will be void and will not be counted.

If a voter takes a Ballot or Ballot Paper out of the Polling Station, or fraudulently puts any other into the Ballot Box than the Paper given him by the Deputy Returning Officer, he will be subject to punishment by a fine of Five Hundred Dollars, or by imprisonment for a time not exceeding Six Months with or without hard labour.

OFFERING BONDS OF PAPERBOARD CO.

A bond secured by assets valued at over 3 1/2 times the outstanding amount and with earnings of the issuing company running nearly four times interest requirements, is being offered to investors in the 7 per cent First Mortgage bonds of the Canadian Paperboard Company, Limited, through Johnston and Ward's.

From a letter of Mr. F. G. G. Kerry, President, it is noted that the company is the largest manufacturer in Canada of all grades of paperboard—turning out 25 per cent. of the requirements of the Canadian trade. Mr. Kerry makes some interesting comments on the consumption of paperboard in Canada and the United States as compared with newsprint, pointing out that in Canada the annual consumption of paperboard is approximately 100,000 tons per annum as against 115,000 tons of newsprint, and in the United States 2,100,000 tons per annum as against 2,750,000 tons of newsprint.

That the industry is an important one is seen from a study of these figures. Presumably, the reason the public is not more familiar with it is that the companies producing paperboard, such as the Eddy Company, Booths and the Canadian Paperboard Company, are largely privately owned. In the hands of the last named company, the public is given almost its first opportunity of purchasing securities of the companies operating in this industry.

COTTON IN TRADING POSITION WHILE AWAITING NEW CROP DEVELOPMENT.

(From Financial Service of May 13th)

The situation in the cotton market is so thoroughly complex and uncertain that it is virtually impossible to take an intelligent position in the market at present. For the time being at least, we can advise nothing more than a trading position, i.e., selling on fair rallies and buying on fair breaks.

Prevailing factors are so evenly divided on the bullish and bearish sides that it is probable that only the appearance of some new influence will be able to carry the market out of its present trading rut and cause prices to adopt a decisive trend in one direction or another. Inasmuch as the bullish old-crop statistical position and the bearish cotton goods trade situation have been largely discounted, it appears that this influence will have to come from the new crop.

A 1924-25 American crop at least 2,000,000 bales larger than that produced in the 1923-24 season is required. If concrete evidence appears that the necessary increase will be made, cotton prices would doubtless drop somewhat below current levels. If, on the other hand, planting continues to make slow progress and the indications point to a yield of less than 12,000,000 bales, values would in all probability develop renewed strength. Weather conditions in the Southern growing belt during immediately future weeks will largely determine the situation.

The strength which came into the cotton market during the early part of April has failed to hold and prices are now back to practically the same levels which obtained before the recovery developed.

Doing Away With Sleep

Medicine has its terrors no less than war. It was announced recently that two medical men are collaborating in an attempt to abolish sleep. The human brain, according to these enterprising gentlemen, is a sort of storage battery, and while it continues to supply electric energy to other parts of our organism we don't feel sleepy. It is when the electricity is exhausted that we become tired. Accordingly, the experimenters have concluded that, if we can recharge the brain battery, the necessity for sleep will vanish. Presently, therefore, instead of going to bed, we will sit down, apply an electric current to the brain-cells, and in about a quarter of an hour will be ready to start another day's work.

WHY MORE WOMEN ARE SHOPPING AT THE EMPORIUM EACH DAY

PARIS, June 2.
Raymond Poincare, who had held the premiership of France for two and a half years, tendered resignation and that of Ministry to President Millerand to-day; at same time the new chamber met in a stormy atmosphere amid recriminations, menaces and warnings and began its record by creating a Presidential crisis and the more patient and cooler headed leaders of new majority, overwhelmed by their impatient, impetuous and aggressive followers failed to prevent an outburst which in the judgment of the most competent and impartial judges of the situation, makes it impossible for Millerand to remain long in the Presidential chair.

FIRE TAKES BIG TOLL.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 2.
The ashes of the Hope Development School for subnormal children at Playa Del Rey, 7 miles from here on Ocean Beach to-day yielded the burned remains of 23 persons, as a result of a tragic fire last night. Eighteen others, inmates of school are in a serious condition at St. Catherine's Hospital in Santa Monica, a few miles away. The dead ranged in age from 4 to 47. The tree storey structure was declared by investigators to have been isolated and an unprotected fire trap. All that remains of it is a brick chimney, twisted iron pipes and ashes. Thirty eight children were housed within the private institution when the flames burst out, in addition there were in the building, the matron and the fourteen year old adopted son of the proprietor both of whom perished. A family of beach picnickers noticed the flames and gave the alarm. Before the fire apparatus arrived the building was a mass of flames. A staff of nurses from a nearby hospital rescued the children.

BRITISH ROUND THE WORLD FLIERS CANADIAN AND N.F.L.D. ITINERARY.

MONTREAL, June 2.
Unless an untoward accident occurs six points will be touched in Canada by the British hydroplane piloted by Capt. MacLaren in the trans-American stage of the round the world journey. Announcement has been made by the Air Service of the department of national defence of the route to be followed by the flier after he touches the Canadian shores at Prince Rupert. For the greatest part of the way, plane will follow the line of the Canadian National Railways and instructions have been sent out to every agent and employee in the company's service asking them to extend all courtesy and assistance to the crew of the flying boat whenever they shall have the opportunity of helping. The points of contact are Prince Rupert, B.C., Wambamun, Alta., Victoria Beach, Man., North Bay, Ottawa, Ont. and Fredericton according to the present plan. The big plane will come to rest in the journey of 4154 miles over forest, plain, lake, river and sea at Fredericton. A stop will be made and thence proceed via St. John N.B., Bay of Fundy, Amherst, NS., Northumberland Strait, Pictou Island, Bras D'or lakes to Sydney, Cape Breton where all is ready for an emergency stop over. From there the route will be via Cabot Straits, Port aux Basques and the South Coast of Newfoundland to St. John's.

In the Realms of Sport

TRAINING FOR FOOTBALL.

By An Expert Soccer Player.

When in the defence the centre-half is called on for almost unlimited assistance. He may have to tackle the opposing centre-forward, or either of the inside forwards, and then if beaten on for the ball, attempt to recover quickly and run back to help his full-backs. It is here where the speedy centre-half is such an asset, as he gets, so to speak, a couple of chances against the one of the slower player, who takes time in recovering and turning. There is a tendency today among even some of the best-known centre-halves to make defence their chief consideration, and perhaps the reason for this is that first class football has lately developed more towards preventing goals than getting them, at the same time there is no need for the young and aspiring player to show the same concern as, after all, while he may strengthen the defence, the centre-half who is prone to hang back and rigidly mark the opposing centre-forward, can obviously not assist in the attacks of his own side as he should do. Proficiency with either foot and skill with his head are essential to the centre-half; and if he has these allied to size and height so much the better. I have nothing to say against the small centre-half, since one or two of the greatest players the game has known have been comparatively small men; but it stands to reason that physique, when accompanied by skill, must tell its tale. In the first place, a centre-forward is just as likely as not to be intimidated by a centre-half weighing, say, a couple of stone more, even if the latter's size and extra weight be used fairly and squarely, while it is equally clear that a tall centre-half is going to get his head to the ball more frequently than a smaller man. As I have said before, this does not always apply, because some small players are wonderfully agile, but I should advise young players who are attempting to build up a team to prefer a big centre-half to a small one, always providing their general skill is somewhere about the same. Among the leading clubs of the day I should think one would find that ninety per cent. of the centre-halves are men of round about six feet high and well over twelve stone in weight, and this only goes to show that our big team builders have discovered by sheer experience the value of the big man is a "stopper", even if he may be a bit lacking when it comes to the assistance of his own forwards.

LAWN TENNIS.

(By an Exponent of the Game.)

There is nothing more satisfactory to a lawn tennis player than to be a good volleyer; ground shots are absolutely necessary, otherwise if you are a volleyer purely and simply you go to the net on such "poor stuff" that the other fellow has an easy mark. Ground strokes and volleying go hand in hand; the former pave the way to the net, but the right time to advance must be judiciously chosen. When you have your ground strokes and volleying going well, the same self-satisfied feeling comes over you that you experience at cricket when the ball looks as big as the moon and runs are made of any class of bowling with the greatest of ease. I wish to emphasize the point that ground shots must be well established in order to get the maximum effect from your volleys. Volleying requires anticipation, quickness of decision and a supple wrist. It will be well to remember these three requirements, for as your progress you will see the necessity for these attributes. In a single volleying is the finishing of a shot. Having played a series of ground strokes, each one with the object of putting your opponent into difficulties or of getting out of them yourself, your ultimate aim is to win the point, and the best way is to go up on the correct stroke and win it by a volley. In the doubles game—with the exception of the return of service—the whole object of your game is to volley everything, therefore ground shots are only resorted to on as few occasions as possible. Volleying may be divided into three categories, viz. the low volley, the high, and the smash or kill. The low volley is that when the ball is hit up from below the top of the net. The high is one that is hit when the ball is alone above the top of the net, but not above your head. The smash or kill is the overhead volley. Wall practice is the best method of learning to volley you are able to regulate your own pace and, later, your own direction so as to strengthen your weakness. You are also enabled to make variations at will.

BOGASH KNOCKED OUT.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 20.—Frank Moody, of Wales, knocked out Lou Bogash, of Bridgeport, in the eleventh round of scheduled 12 round bout here last night. It was the first time in his career of more than 175 fights, which included battles with five champions that Bogash was ever knocked off his feet. A right over the heart followed by a left to the chin sent Bogash reeling to the ropes in the eleventh. Moody followed with a slashing attack which knocked Bogash down for a count of six. The Bridgeporter arose and after a severe milling, Referee Calvin stopped the bout.

JUNIOR FOOTBALL LEAGUE.

A special meeting of the Newfoundland Junior Football League was held on Saturday night when matters pertaining to the approaching season's games were finalized. The committee on revision of rules reported and the new rules were discussed and adopted with some amendments. All the clubs were represented and registered their players for the season. In the list several new players comprise each team and it is forecasted that an excellent brand of football will be exhibited. The first game takes place on Wednesday next when the Cadets and T. A. will line-up for action.

PREPARATIONS FOR HAIG REGATTA.

Three boat clubs begin their preparations this morning for the Haig Regatta. It is understood that their practice boats are already in condition and that the work of putting the wharves in position will be completed to-morrow. Before the end of the week a number of crews will be practicing. Judging by the interest taken by the spectators, the regatta will, without doubt, be more keenly contested and excite more interest than any regatta that has ever been held on Quidi Vidi.

BASKETBALL MATCH.

On Wednesday 28 ult., at 4.30 p.m. a return match was played between the basketball teams of Bishop Spencer and Methodist College on the Ayre-Athletic grounds.

The game was fast and clean throughout and proved keenly interesting to the spectators. The goal-getters during the game were: Misses D. Sellars and Marion Wood for Bishop Spencer and Misses Muriel Lawrence and Marguerite Ross for the Methodist College.

At the end of the first period, the score stood 6-6, the teams being very evenly matched. When the final whistle sounded the score was 12-10, in favour of the Collegians.

Miss Nash of Bishop Spencer College refereed the game. Among the spectators were Miss Cherrington and Mr. Harrington and teachers from both colleges.

Refreshments were served after the game by the winning team at the residence of Mrs. H. G. Christian.

As the teams are now on an equal footing, an interesting return match is hoped for soon.

The White Wilderness.

NFLD'S FIRST GREAT SEALING NOVEL
(By GEO. ALLAN ENGLAND.)

Into this stirring and convincing story the author weaves his experiences aboard a Newfoundland sealing vessel.

The tale concerns the romance of Spencer Harrod and Blanche Cameron who, struggling from a "Plane" crash off Bonavista, are entrapped in the ice-world until rescued by the sealer Vigilant, on board which they encounter many hardships.

The story is an epic of the sealers' toil, from the pen of an author who has won fame by his powerful stories set in Nature's Wilds.
