GORGEOUS CORONATION GARB

Gay Decorations, Brilliant Military Uniforms and Gala Holiday Garb of Visitors Produce Kaleidoscopic Effect, with Dazzling Illuminations.

LONDON, June 17.—On the eve of coronation week, London is ablaze with color. A few days ago the aspect of the streets suggested a city in splinters so vast was the area of bare timber. The metropolis now appears in her gayest gala attire. From early morning until late at night, the streets are crowded with a cosmopolitan throng. Motor buses are doing a brisk business, carrying sight-seers over the coronation route. Musical rehearsals are proceeding with full choir and orchestra for the great ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

THE GREAT CHOIR FOR THE CATHEDRAL.

No fewer than 450 voices compose the choir, drawn from every cathedral in England. The interior transformation of the Abbey is completed, and with the final rehearsal on Monday, at which their Majesties are expected to be present, everything will be in readiness for Thursday's celebration.

Early in the week the last of the royal delegates will arrive and London will then contain as distinguished a company as ever gathered in any capital. Few seats remain unsold, and those only the most expensive. Contrivances of various kinds for raising the users a foot above the heads of their fellows are being extensively advertised, but unfortunately for the buyers, Scotland Yard has decided to treat such appliances as portable stands. Any one carrying or wearing them within 100 yards of the route of procession will be unceremoniously conducted into the nearest side street.

60,000 TROOPS TO BE FED DURING CEREMONY.

With the return of the king and queen to Buckingham palace from Windsor, the coronation season opened in earnest.

All over the west end sentry boxes are springing up like mushrooms, as in all the principal hotels the royal guests will be housed by Monday when all the chief state visitors will be here.

The staff of the war offices is working far into the night to complete the multitudinous details in connection with the processions and the housing and feeding of the sixty thousand troops who will take part in the celebration.

A BIG RUSH FOR LORD KITCHENER

Lord Kitchener, who will command the soldiery, is so overwhelmed with work that he is unable to take time for meals or sleep.

Sultans, pashas, potentates and princes are pouring into London by every train. The principal thoroughfares are full of crowds attired in all the colors of the rainbow, the brilliant uniforms of sixty thousand soldiery home from overseas contributing to the kaleidoscopic effect.

The illuminations in London on coronation night and the Friday night following will be on such a stupendous scale that the electric lighting companies have given notice that they will be unable to supply any more current than already has been arranged for.

CORONATION WEEK ENGAGEMENTS.

The list of royal engagements for coronation week are as follows:

June 17, 18 and 19—The royal representatives from foreign courts arrive in London.

June 20—The special envoys and delegations will be received by the King and Queen. State banquet at Buckingham Palace.

June 21—Reception by their majesties of the overseas premiers and representatives; the Duke of Connaught gives a dinner at St. James' palace.

June 22—Coronation day.

June 23—Royal progress through South London.

This is the manner of Service to be performed at Westminster Abbey.

I. First the Archbishop of Canterbury, divers great officers of state going along with him, presents his Majesty to the people, that they may recognize him, and acclaim him by their voices as their King.

II. Then after prayer to God, such as we ourselves have now made, the King takes a solemn oath to govern his people according to the laws and customs of the realm; to cause law and justice, in mercy, to be executed in all his judgements; and to protect the Church.

III. Thereupon after solemn prayer for the presence and blessing of God the Holy Ghost, the King is anointed with holy oil upon his head, his breast, and his hands, in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; forasmuch as Kings, Priests, and Prophets of old were after this manner made and consecrated to teach and govern the people of Israel; and the Archbishop says over him this blessing:—

Our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, who by his Father was anointed with the oil of gladness above his fellows, by his holy anointing pour down upon your head and heart the blessing of the Holy Ghost, and prosper the works of your hands; that by the assistance of his heavenly grace you may preserve the people committed to your charge in wealth, peace and godliness; and after a long and glorious course of ruling this temporal kingdom wisely, justly, and religiously, you may at last be made partaker of an eternal kingdom; through Jesus Christ our Lord!

IV. Then is his Majesty invested with the Ensigns of his kingly state. First, he is clothed with royal vestments; and then he receives the Sword of Justice, brought from the Altar of God, and delivered to him by the hands of the Bishops; and when he is girded therewith, the Archbishop says:

With this Sword do justice, stop the growth of iniquity, protect the holy Church of God, help and defend widows and orphans, restore the things that are gone to decay, maintain the things that are restored, punish and reform what is amiss, and confirm what is in good order; that doing these things you may be glorious in all virtue; and so faithfully serve our Lord Jesus Christ in this life, that you may reign forever with him in the life which is to come.

Then the King, rising from the chair of his Coronation, Ungirds his Sword, and going to the Altar, offers it there to God from whom he has received it.

After this the Armill and the Royal

KING GEORGE V.

Ode for Coronation of George V.

JUNE 22nd, 1911.

Oh great King!

Oh, son of that great King who wrought for Peace
And Britain's highest good, till that loud call
From God's high altar shook the world,—
And her—the well beloved—whose name
The nation loves—we pledge thee faith,—
We welcome thee! An Empire's glad welcome
To thy Royal heritage—Britain's ancient crown.

Thou art crowned King of a mighty Empire
Circling the wide world!
From all thy vast far-reaching realms watched
By the never setting sun,
From the populous isles of the eternal sea
That owns thy sway,
From the myriad hosts—the tribes and peoples
Of an ancient kingdom,—
Across the great Dominion's widely flung
Many peopled lands,—
High above the hoar eternal hills, the Loud tumultuous shout of the nation's Glad acclaim fills the echoing skies,
And the teeming millions of mighty London
Swell the thunderous, echoing, welcoming
Plaudits, rejoicing for thy sake—and ours.

God, save thee, great King!

And make thy reign glorious—
And when The Highest shall place upon thy Head eternal crown, may the love of all
Thy people, for the good that thou hast wrought them,—
With fragrant memories throne and crown thee
In the nation's story—forevermore.

JUNE WEDDING BELLS

The Month of Brides Brings Numerous Interesting Nuptial Events in Which the Principals are Well-known and Popular in Bridgetown and Vicinity.

WEDDING BELLS AT PARADISE.

An exceedingly pretty marriage ceremony took place at 10.30 o'clock Wednesday morning, June 14th at the Baptist church, Paradise. It was that of Frances Elizabeth Ruggles, daughter of Mrs. J. C. Phinney, and Harry H. Hopkins, of Andover, N.B.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. F. Wallace. The bride, attired in white duchesse satin en traine with crystal and pearl bodice, tulle veil and orange blossoms, carrying a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley, roses and maiden hair fern, entered on the arm of Mr. J. C. Phinney, attended by Miss Grace Moore, of Boston, as maid of honor, in apricot messaline, with white picture hat. The bridesmaid, Miss Esma Stewart, Woodstock, N.B., was dressed in blue silk with black picture hat. Both bridesmaids carried lovely bouquets of pink roses and maiden hair fern. The groom was attended by Mr. Dwight Ruggles, of Winnipeg, brother of the bride, while Messrs. S. S. Ruggles, LeMoine Ruggles and K. Brooks performed the duties of ushers. The double-ring service was used. Master Bernard Leslie Porter, of Yarmouth acted as ring-bearer.

The church was most beautifully decorated with ferns and daisies by the many friends of the bride.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl and diamond pendant, to the bridesmaids pearl pins, the groomsmen the recipient of a scarf pin, while the ushers received silver initialed glove buttoners.

The customary beautiful wedding music was rendered by Miss Nellie Phinney, Spa Springs, at the organ and Miss Crafts, teacher of Acadia Seminary, violin, who also played during the ceremony. After the ceremony the bridal party and immediate relatives drove to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Phinney, where a wedding breakfast was served. Thence Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins departed on the Eastern express amid showers of rice and confetti.

On leaving the bride was becomingly gowned in pearl grey chiffon cloth and hat to match, trimmed with tiny French roses.

The numerous gifts from relatives and friends betokened the love and esteem with which the bride was regarded.

"May every blessing with them stay that we have wished for them today."

Guests were present from South Carolina, New York, Boston and Yarmouth.

Many pretty costumes were in evidence, some of which were: Mrs. J. C. Phinney, Allie blue cashmere de soie; Mrs. D. Hopkins, black and white silk; Mrs. Porter, grey silk; Mrs. Harry Ruggles, grey net over silk; Mrs. T. D. Ruggles, lavender silk; Miss Pylor, black silk; Mrs. Edwin Ruggles, black silk; Mrs. Crisp, navy blue silk; Miss Crafts, champagne crape meteor; Miss Phinney, embroidered batiste; Miss Cahoon, brown silk; Mrs. Moore, black cashmere de soie and black velvet.

MCCORMICK—GILLIATT

Wednesday morning, June 14th All Saint's church at Granville Centre, was the scene of an interesting event, when Miss Jessie Alexa, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gilliatt, was united in marriage to Mr. Albert E. McCormick of Granville Centre.

At the hour appointed the groom, escorted by Mr. C. Burton Gilliatt, of St. John, brother of the bride, took their places at the altar, immediately followed by the bride on the arm of her father, and preceded by the bridesmaid, Miss Helen Beckwith, of Wolfville, cousin of the bride. The bride was beautifully attired in cream silk en traine, with bridal veil and orange blossoms, and presented a charming appearance. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid's dress was light blue silk and she wore a large picture hat. Rev. F. P. Grestores tied the nuptial knot. The Wedding March was rendered by Mrs. Rupert Shaffer, accompanied by Miss Mildred Withers on the violin. Messrs. Guy Mills and Roy Willett acted as ushers.

At the close of the ceremony about fifty invited guests repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where congratulations were extended, and a dainty luncheon served, after which Mr. and Mrs. McCormick took their departure for St. John and Fredericton on a wedding trip. They were accompanied to the train at Annapolis by a number of their friends. The bride's going-away suit was of plum-colored chiffon broad cloth. The presents were many and costly, including silver, linen and a substantial sum of money.

The groom's gift to the bride was a long gold chain, and to the bridesmaid a gold barette, set with pearls. Seymour Division Sons of Temperance, of which both are valued members, presented them with a silver cake basket.

Both bride and groom are exceedingly popular in social circles and in All Saint's church, where they are active members, and their many friends are glad that for the present they will reside in Granville Centre.

LAFAMME—FAY.

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. F. R. Fay, on the 14th inst at 10.30 o'clock, when his eldest daughter, Miss Aimee Fay was united in marriage to Mr. Jules Lafamme, of the department of the interior at Ottawa.

Joseph Kinney, Dodo Lloyd, James Fay and Louise Troop entered first, forming an aisle with pink and white ribbons, through which the bridal party passed, to the strains of the Wedding March played by Miss Una Cameron. The groom entered the room attended by Mr. Fred Kinney. The bride, who looked charming, attired in a travelling suit of dark blue cloth with a Copenhagen blue silk blouse and hat to correspond, and carrying a beautiful bouquet of white roses and carnations, entered on the arm of her father. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. Underwood, following which a dainty luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Lafamme left on the west-bound express for Montreal to visit at the home of Mr. Lafamme's mother. They will reside in Ottawa.

The numerous and valuable presents were as follows:

Then he receives the Ring, the ensign of kingly dignity and of defence of the Catholic Faith; and the Archbishop

Next he receives the Sceptre with the Cross, the ensign of kingly power and justice; and the Sceptre with the Dove, the rod of equity and mercy, with this injunction:

tect and cherish the just, and lead your people in the way wherein they should go."

And then the Crown is brought from the Altar after prayer to God; and the Archbishop reverently puts it upon the King's head. And the people at the sight thereof with loud and repeated shouts cry, GOD SAVE THE KING. And after that, the Archbishop goes on and says:

Disease of Trees

Enemies of Fruit Trees that Render the Business an Unprofitable Undertaking. The Brown Rot, Apple and Pear Scab, Methods of Coping With Them.

There are many diseases of fruits which, if not kept in check, render the business of fruit-growing an unprofitable undertaking. One of the most injurious diseases of stone fruit is Brown Rot.

This fungus attacks all stone fruits—peaches, apricots, plums and cherries. It causes a great deal of injury to fruits, either while being clipped in baskets. Small brown spots develop on the fruit, which gradually enlarge until the whole of it becomes dry and shrunken, and is then spoken of as mummified fruit.

On the surfaces of the diseased fruit tufts of olive brown spores are produced. Some are scattered by various agents, and these winter over under the bud scales and on the bark. Others winter over on the mummified fruits which may hang on the trees or may lie on the ground. In the spring these germinate and reproduce the rot.

Remedy for Brown Rot for peaches: Spray about a month after the fruit sets with self-bolled lime-sulphur. If the disease is bad, spray again thoroughly with self-bolled lime-sulphur about a month before the fruit ripens.

For plums and cherries—Spray with spring strength commercial lime sulphur just before buds burst. Spray again with same mixture just after blossoms have fallen, and once more three weeks later. If the disease is very bad, apply a fourth application two or three weeks later. A most important measure in treating this disease is the destruction of all mummified fruits, thus preventing the germination of a great number of the spores.

This fungus attacks plums and cherries. It shows itself by irregular swelling on twigs and branches which are often somewhat spindle-shaped and are usually more on one side than on the other. In the early stages they are covered with a greenish fungus growth, but later the swellings become hard, black knots. Summer spores are produced on this green fungus growth, and winter spores are produced on the black knots during the winter. These are liberated early in the spring, each knot proving a very potent source of infection.

The remedy is to prune out all knots, and if a tree is very badly infected, cut it out altogether. Destroy these diseased portions at once before they have time to spread the infection. Spray thoroughly just before buds open with spring strength commercial lime-sulphur.

This disease attacks the leaves, twigs, flower and fruit of the apple and pear, but is most conspicuous upon and does most damage to the leaves and fruit. The stems often become affected, allowing the young fruit to drop. Black spots appear on the fruits, and pears sometimes crack very badly, thus disfiguring them for market and causing a dry rot to set in while in storage.

During the summer spores are produced upon the scab-spots on the leaves and fruit which spread the disease during the growing months. In the winter spores are also produced upon these spots on the fallen leaves, which in the spring are blown back into the trees, particularly just when the blossoms fall.

The remedy for apple scab is to spray with summer strength lime-sulphur just before the buds burst. Spray also with the same mixture just after blossoms fall. In very wet or foggy season give a third spraying about two weeks later.

For pear scab spray the same as in treating apple scab, only use home-bolled lime-sulphur for the first spraying. Bordeaux mixture may be used in place of the lime-sulphur if so desired for the first two sprayings, but not for the third, as rust may result. It may also be used in spraying for black knot. In treating the scab all fallen leaves should be gathered and burned.—J. Millar, Guelph, in Maritime Farmer.

A CLOSE CALL

A serious tragedy was narrowly averted last week, at Canada Creek. The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Ain'she Schnare followed his mother to the well. As she turned towards the house the little fellow in some way stumbled and fell into the well which was quite deep. His mother retained her presence of mind and after he had gone down for the third time she succeeded in reaching him with the well hook, brought him to the surface, and lifted him out. As soon as he was safe in her arms she collapsed.—Register.

IN THE BIG WOODS

"I wish I had something to read," said He.

"Well, what's the matter with the magazines?" promptly replied the Other One.

"I have read them all," He immediately objected.

"Why, I thought you didn't want to read anything. I thought you said this was to be a vacation in the woods, with no reading or thought of anything else," said the Other One.

"Well, of course," said He; "but a fellow has got to have something to read, after all."

"Well," said the Other One, "let me read you something out of the Bible."

"The Bible?" said He. "O, no; I want some good reading. That's what I want."

They were in camp in the deep woods, many days' canoe trip from a human being. There were two tired out men—wholly tired out when they started, with nonproductive brains and with sore, ragged nerves from their year's hard work. They were none the less worn out that it had been a year of successful work—even of triumphant work.

And so they did. They arranged for their guides carefully (and you who go to the woods look well to that). They were scrupulous to the last degree about their cook (and you who go to the woods be very sure about that). They were particular about their tents, almost technical about food and sleeping accommodations and created comforts; but reading matter—none of it for them. At the 1st minute, obeying the impulse of the civilized, they brought all the magazines in sight; and one of them, who always carried a Bible, had it with him on this occasion.

So, up the stream and over the lakes they went; and at last, far out from the path of even canoe voyagers, on the shores of a lake whose name is Beauty, and in the depths of a forest whose name is Noble, by a mossy spring whose name is Delight, they swung their axes and built their camp. Already nature had begun to work. They slept like pieces of iron, with this consciousness of going to sleep and ecstasy on awakening. They ate with the appetite of the primal man, but with the restraint of the civilized one when out in the wilderness. They were careful to get up from their meal always a little hungry. They joyed in the wood. The flight of birds was a thing to be looked at and to get pleasure from. The forests had strange, attractive sounds. The occasional sentence of the guides were full of wisdom.

Instantly Nature began her work on the brain cells. These men had planned not to think at all. They were astonished to find that they thought more than ever and more sanely, more calmly, and yet with a good deal more vigor. Every suggestion of tree and flower and cloud and shadow and shine was feigned with thought. The rain induced more than sleep; it induced a curious yet delightful life. There was none of your neurotic thoughts which come of overworked nerves and all that sort of thing.

Of course you cannot keep that kind of men down to not thinking at all. Their bodies, which so long have been unused and maltreated, demand exercise, long rambles among the trees and over mountains; canoe trips where every stroke generates more energy than it expends; target practice with pistol until the snuffing of a candle at night at twenty yards three times out of five is no extraordinary feat. Well, then, it was plain to see how the minds of these men demanded exercise just as the body did; for the minds had been more maltreated and neglected than the body.

"So I want something to read," said He.

"Well, what's the matter with the Bible?" said the Other One.

"O," said He, "I don't want anything dull. I don't want to be preached to. I feel in a religious mood, but not in a mood for a sermon."

"Why, man," said the Other One, "the Bible has more good reading in it than any book I know of. What will you have—poetry, adventure, politics, maxims, oratory? For they are all here." And he produced the Bible.

Thus occurred the first Bible-reading in the woods. After it was over: "Why, I never knew that was in the Bible," said He. "Let's have some more of it tomorrow."

And on the morrow they did have more of it. By chance one of the guides was near and he sat down and listened. The next day all the guides were there. The day after the reading was delayed, and Indian Charley modestly suggested: "Isn't it about time to have some more of that there Bible." And more of it they had.

This continued day in and day out through the long, but all too brief, vacation in the woods—the real woods, the deep woods, the limitless woods—none of your parks with trees in them.

The comments of the guides were serious, keen, full of human interest. It was no trouble for them to understand Isaiah. They had the same spirit that inspired David when he went up against Goliath. They knew, with their deep, elemental natures, the kind of woman Ruth was and Rebecca was. Moses slaying the Egyptian and leading the children of God out of Egypt, laying down the law in good, strict man-fashion, was entirely intelligible to them. One wonders what the "higher critics" and "scholarly interpreters" of the Holy Scriptures would have thought had they seen these plain men, learned in the wisdom of the woods, understanding quite clearly the twelfth chapter of Romans or the volubrious Song of Solomon or the war song of Moses or most of all, the Sermon on the Mount.

"Why I never knew those things were in the Bible. How did you ever get on to them?" said He one day, when a perfectly charming story had been read.

"Why, this way," said the Other One. "Many years ago in a logging camp there happened to be nothing to read, and I just had to read. I had read everything but the Bible. And I did not want to read that. I had read it over and over again in the church and at my home, and always with that monotonous non-intelligence, that utter lack of human understanding that makes all the men and women of the Bible, as ordinarily interpreted to us, putty-like characters without any human attributes. But there was nothing else to read. So I was forced to read the Bible, and I instantly became fascinated. I discovered what every year since has confirmed—that there is more good reading in the Bible than all the volumes of fiction, poetry, and philosophy put together. So when I get tired of everything else, and want something really good to read, something that is charged full of energy and human emotions, of cunning thought, and everything that arrests the attention and thrills or soothes or uplifts you, according to your need, I find it in the Bible."

And ye who loved me murmur, "He is dead,"

And that thro' night I seek a dimmer shore;

WHEN EXERCISE IS HARMFUL.

(Washington Herald)
"Office workers should not take exercise after their day's work," said Dr. E. A. Walker, of Boston, who is at the Arlington. "The root reason is that though headwork is not exercise in the sense that it develops the body, it most decidedly is harmful in that it quickly induces fatigue and physical lassitude. So it is almost pathetic for a man to expect any good to come from taking more exercise when the exercise involved in the day's work has already tired him out."

"One takes it that young people have had sufficient outdoor exercise reasonably to develop their frames before beginning office work. So when once they have started in the office in earnest it is much better for them to realize at once that their days of hard physical strain are over and that henceforth they must confine their efforts to week ends and holidays."

"The body and system easily attune themselves to circumstances even to over-civilized and consequently rather unnatural circumstances, and indoor headworkers will soon find that a good state of health can be maintained with little or no exercise."

"There is one medicine that every family should be provided with and especially during the summer months; viz. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed. It costs but a quarter. Can you afford to be without it? For sale by all dealers."

THE WORTHY SCOUT.

The Boy Scout movement has been taken up with much enthusiasm in Ontario, and is receiving the approval of many good citizens. One of the excellent features of the Boy Scout's program is that he shall perform at least one kind act during the day. A lady, whose small son, Harold, has lately been crooked as a Scout, was surprised when he appeared at the breakfast table with a piece of white string tied around one of his coat buttons. "What's that for, Harold?" She asked. "To remind me to do a kind act today," he replied briefly. Harold returned at noon without the white string adorning him. He was somewhat reserved during the early moments of the meal. But when dessert appeared he became communicative. "Well, I've done my kind act—helped an old man across the street," he informed the family. "And I've kept from vulgar slang all morning. But after four I'm going to knock the tar out of Billy Gordon for calling me 'goody.'"—Courier.

A STRANGE ACCOUNT.

A negro sharper started a bank in Georgia, in one of the smaller towns, and the negroes who lived thereabout were much taken with the idea and scurried to get a few dollars to start an account. One man made a deposit of five dollars. Six months later he came in to the bank and said: "I want my five dollars." "You ain't got no five dollars here, sub," said the banker, who acted as paying and receiving teller, cashier, president and carried the money in his pocket. "I ain't." "No, sub." "But I done put five dollars in this yer bank six months ago." "I know that, sub. I know that; but th' intrus' jist naturly done eat it up."—

AGAIN THE COOK.

Mrs. Cobb—"Was the grocer's boy impudent to you again when you telephoned your order this morning?" Cook—"Yes, Mrs. Cobb, he was that, but I fixed him this time. I sez, 'Who the deuce do you think you're talkin' to?' This 's Mrs. Cobb."

TAKING HIS TEMPERATURE.

Doctor—"Well, and did you take his temperature?" Wife—"Oh, yes, sir. I puts the barometer on 'is chest an' it goes up to very dry, so I fetches 'im a quart of beer, an' now 'e's gone to work."

ZAM-BUK SAVED THIS BABY

Mrs. M. Barrett, 505 Moore St., Montreal, says: "A horrid rash came out all over my baby's face and spread until it had totally covered his scalp. It was itching and painful, and caused the little one hours of suffering. We tried soaps and powders and salves, but he got no better. He refused his food, got quite thin and worn, and was reduced to a very serious condition. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and did so. It was wonderful how it seemed to cool and ease the child's burning, painful skin. Zam-Buk from the spot, and the pimples and sores and the irritation grew less and less. Within a few weeks my baby's skin was healed completely. He has now not a trace of rash or eruption, or eczema, or burning sore. Not only so, but cured of the tormenting skin trouble, he has improved in general health."

CONVINCING ARGUMENT.

A certain colonel's gardener was going through the woods belonging to his employer when he saw a man gathering nuts. As the Colonel had given strict orders that this was not to be permitted the gardener accosted the man. "You'll have to clear out of this," he said, "I've had orders to keep all these nuts for the colonel this year." "That's all right," replied the man. "I'm getting 'em for the colonel." A week later the gardener came across the man again. "Look here," said he, angrily, "you weren't getting those nuts for the colonel at all." "I tell you I was," was the emphatic reply. "Do you think I was getting them for the shells?"

AN HONEST CONFESSION.

Some of my friends confess that should a doctor cure them of pneumonia with REED'S EARTHINE and charge $50 they would kick. Whereas, if some foreign secret remedy be used they would gladly pay all the doctor might charge. Doctors understand human nature, hence, will not tell what medicines they use. Two dollars worth of EARTHINE has often saved fifty dollars expense. N. H. REED, H.D. Shelburne, N. S.

THE MAN FOR THE POSITION.

A. DeW. Foster, who has been on the teaching staff of Horton Collegiate academy two years, has been appointed to the position of house master in place of Mr. Ruggles, who has resigned. In addition to his duties in the academy during these two years, Mr. Foster has found time to do the full course of the freshman and sophomore years, to lead the intercollegiate debating teams of Acadia twice to victory, and generally to make his influence felt in all things turning toward the "good and welfare" of old Acadia and H. C. A. Horton Academy is to be congratulated on securing Mr. Foster for house master. A fine teacher, a man of high ideals, fearless in maintaining the right, full of enthusiasm, interested in all kinds of healthy athletics, popular with the boys, he is the man for the position, since the success of the academy depends to a large degree on the house master.—Wolfville Acadian.

IN YOUTH PREPARE FOR OLD AGE.

A Toronto daily last week contained a despatch from a neighboring city that... aged one hundred and one years had gone to the County Industrial Home, there to end his days, and he is said to have gone at his own request. But how the report startles us, that a man after fighting the battle of life for over one hundred years has to end his days in a poorhouse! The despatch further stated that the old gentleman had a son of seventy-five and two grandsons of over fifty living in the same County. Naturally, the reader would think it strange that so sad a course could have been necessary. But if the inner history were known, it would probably be revealed that the son and grandsons are in almost as bad a plight as the old man, and that he preferred to go to the poorhouse rather than add to their burdens. The case is a pathetic one, but it is not unique—you hear of such every day and the whole story emphasizes how terrible is an old age of penury, and how important it is that we should regard youth "as the springtime which soon departeth, and wherein we ought to plant and sow all provision for a long and happy life."

Tariff relief is still discussed as if it were an act to compel Canadians to buy from and sell to the United States. Canada will be as free to buy and sell as to legislate after the change.

The Best Butter

Practical Pointers for Maintaining Quality. The Temperature Employed During the Whole Process Must be Thoroughly Understood by Everyone Who Handles a Churn.

Two main factors must be considered in churning, temperatures and granules. You may ask why the size of the granules is of much importance. Butter granules of the proper size will allow the drainage of buttermilk with the least difficulty. Overchurning, either in the buttermilk or wash-water, should never be permitted. It is practised by a few who claim that it is one of the methods for controlling the water content of the butter. If it will control the water content, where is the proof that it accomplishes the desired effect, or produces anything that cannot be accomplished by other methods less dangerous to the body of the butter?

The temperature employed during the whole process, from churning until the finished product is in its marketable package, must be thoroughly understood by everybody who handles a churn. Temperature is the one factor that counts in the workmanship of butter. Temperature bears a direct relationship to body or texture, uniformity of color and salt, and the amount of visible and water content. Butter containing from eighty to eighty-two per cent. of fat, or any desired percentage of fat within reasonable limits, can be made by controlling the temperature conditions throughout. Degree of acidity, ripeness of the cream in the churn, etc., bear an insignificant relation. But it is absolutely necessary that the temperature of the cream, wash water and butter be correct.

In churning the cream it is not safe to say what temperature shall be employed. It varies with the season of the year and several other conditions. The one thing to be used as a guide is the granular butter. It should not be so soft that the granules cannot be kept in their natural form, nor so firm that they must be warmed up before the butter is worked. This does not mean that the temperature of the cream when it is churned must be fifty or fifty-two degrees. It would be better if it were uniform and fairly constant, with an extreme variation of from four to six degrees in churning temperature between summer and winter. There is no excuse for churning at fifty degrees one day and fifty-two the next.

The buttermilk must be allowed to drain off. Sprinkle a small amount of water as there was buttermilk, at nearly the same temperature, revivifying the churn, say, ten times or more on fast gear. While the last of the wash water is running off, sprinkle the salt on the butter, and then moisten the salt with a known quantity of water.

Mix a known quantity of salt and water in a can and then add it to the butter in the churn. The salt and water can be mixed a number of hours before it is used. In that case use hot water and cool it. A solution of from eight to ten pounds of salt and ten pounds of water per one hundred pounds of butter is safe for a trial churning, or twelve pounds of salt, and sixteen or eighteen pounds of water, etc. After the salt and water have been added to the churn, everything must be closed tight and left so until the butter has been worked. In starting the working of the butter, revolve the churn a few times on slow gear without working. When actual churning has commenced it must be continuous until the product is finished.

A duck which stuck faithfully to business during the summer months and laid several dozens of large fawn colored eggs complained that she wasn't appreciated. "See that hen over there," said the duck, "she hasn't laid as many eggs as I. I've nor as big, but she has hooks written about her and verses composed in her honor, while nobody is saying a word about me." "The trouble with you is," said the wise old rooster that was standing near, "that you don't tell the public what you have done. You lay an egg and waddle off without saying a word, but that sister of mine never lays one without letting everyone in the neighborhood know about it. If you want to cut any ice to this community, you must learn to advertise."

No, short story that Scribner's Magazine has published within a year has attracted such wide comment as "Vain Oblations," by Katharine Fullerton Gerould, in a recent number. In the July Scribner she will have another story, "The Wine of Violence," which will confirm the impression of the insight of this new writer. Mrs. Gerould is the wife of a preceptor in the English department at Princeton, who also is a writer of fiction.

Dairy Notes

No man can produce clean milk from cows that are permitted to live in their own filth.

Large mounds and wide bodies indicate good feeding qualities, and great digestive capacity.

A cow underfed is not doing her best work, and a cow overfed is losing something in her production.

A good feeder will soon learn the individuality of each cow, and feed her so that she will return a profit if she is capable of doing so.

A wise dairy farmer prepares for summer draughts by having some ensilage left over for summer feeding.

Give the cow all the cheap, bulky food she will eat, but feed the grain according to her milk flow. If she is in good condition.

"Do unto the cows as you would have the cows do unto you," is a motto which ought to be prominently displayed in every cow stable.

While it is doubtless true that a cow kept at perfect ease will, other things being equal, give the greatest quantity of milk yet consideration of health forbids forcing, and requires that the cow be given moderate exercise in the open air.

Many a dairy farmer hangs on to a poor bull because he is cheap and because he is not worth much to the butcher.

An up-to-date dairy cow must be handled with understanding. Her needs must be studied and met. This cannot be done by an unthinking man.

Most of the criticisms that come from feeding ensilage, come from ignorance in handling it from the time it is planted until it is fed out.

A thin skin shows a weak, nervous system, and a dry skin indicates poor digestive qualities.

The udder is a manufactory, and if symmetrical it cannot be too large.

The udder must be abundantly supplied with blood, and hence the so-called milk veins must be large, as well as the openings through which they enter the body.

Impure water is frequently a source of parasitic infection.

LAME BACK

To have a lame back or painful crutches means Disordered Kidneys, and the sooner you have the Kidneys and Bladder in a perfectly healthy condition the sooner you will enjoy life. As far as we know there is only one remedy that is guaranteed to cure you, and that is FIG PILLS. If they don't make you a strong, healthy person in two weeks your money will be refunded. 25c a box at all leading drug stores, or mailed on receipt of price by the Fig Pill Co. St. Thomas, Ont.

THE FINAL RESULT.

(Sackville Tribune.)

People buy from the mail order house because they think that by so doing they are saving money. Granted for the sake of argument that this is true. Is money the only thing to be thought of? Are there not many other things to be taken into consideration? Everyone will admit, we feel sure, that the local store is a great convenience. You may run out of necessities quite frequently and then you visit the local store. The general store in the country, at the cross roads, is certainly a valuable asset to the people of the community. No one wants to settle down in a place which is miles from a post office and store, and yet when people fail to trade at that country store, when they send their money to Unper Canada, they are hastening the day when the country store will be driven out of business. In many cases the country store of today is behind what it was twenty years ago. If the people keep sending their money to mail order houses the inevitable and final result will be that the country stores will be forced out of business and then the full realization of the matter will come home to everybody when it is too late.

M. K. PIPER PROPRIETOR AND PUBLISHER WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21, 1911.

Considerable public interest has centered around one of the jury causes before yesterday's session of the Supreme Court held in the Court House here, Judge Townsend presiding. This is a suit brought by W. C. Healey to recover payment for a quantity of apples shipped by him to P. G. Gleason, Newfoundland, who refused said payment on the ground that the apples were unsound and unfit for sale when received. The defendant claimed that he had contracted to accept fruit of grades 1 and 2 of first-class quality, true to grade. The question before the jury was: "Were the whole of the apples shipped by plaintiff to defendant f.o.b. at Round Hill in a sound condition and up to legal standard for Nos. 1 and 2 and as represented in plaintiff's letter to defendant."

Inspectors Fitch and Vroom had inspected the fruit, the former at Round Hill the latter at Halifax, and testified that they found the fruit sound and up to required standard.

The result of the judge's finding was that the fact was established that the defendant supplied the apples in strict accord with the terms of the contract and he recommended judgment for amount sued for and costs, the amount involved being about $100. J. J. Ritchie, K.C. was counsel for plaintiff, Rogers, of Halifax and O. T. Daniels K.C. for defendant.

The suit was regarded as somewhat of a test case and Mr. Healey is receiving many congratulations on winning his suit.

Coronation Ode

(Written for the Monitor-Sentinel.) Great God and King of Nations! who rulest all the world, We pray Thee bless our people wherever our flag's infurled. This day we bend before Thee and intercessions bring That Thou wilt in Thy mercy, preserve and bless our King. This day he kneels before Thee, Thy grace on him bestow, Accept him in his worship, that he may surely know By Thee, alone he reigneth; not his the power and might, And may He rest upon Thee, for strength to do the right.

May He Thy people cherish, and leaning on Thy will Have strength to conquer evil, subduing every ill! With sovereign gifts endow Him, His people humbly plead, As Priest and King before Thee, may He Thy people lead. Grant, Lord, to every nation, who wins His royal sway, In peace to dwell together, to serve Thee and obey. With joy we come before Thee, our praise and anthems bring And with one voice implore Thee to bless and save the King!

DARGIE-DEWITT.

At Brooklyn, N.Y., 336 Westminister Road, on Wednesday, June 14th, an exceedingly pretty wedding took place, the contracting parties being Mr. William Dargie, of Bridgetown, and Miss Daisy deWitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. deWitt, also of Bridgetown, formerly of New York. The Rev. F. L. Hamilton, officiated. Great interest was taken in the event, and the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. J. Robins, where the ceremony took place, had been charmingly decorated with roses and greenery. Following the service a reception was held where a large party was entertained. Later the bride and groom left for their honeymoon trip, after which they will take up their residence in Bridgetown.-COM.

FIGGOTT-BROWN.

A very quiet but interesting wedding occurred at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. James S. Beless, Milton, Mass., on Tuesday evening, June 6th, when Mr. John M. Figgott and Mrs. Harriett E. Brown, both of Bridgetown, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few friends by Rev. Irad B. Hardy, of Gloucester, former pastor of the First Baptist church of Milford. Both Mr. and Mrs. Figgott have the best wishes of a large circle of friends here and elsewhere for a long continued happiness.

ELLIOTT-BOYLE.

The marriage of Miss Mabel Boyle and Dr. J. H. Elliott was solemnized this morning in the parlors of the Christian Union church, the Rev. Thornton Anthony Mills reading the service. Mrs. Marshall Boyle and Thomas F. Dunn attended the couple, and a few of their friends witnessed the ceremony. The couple left on a morning train for a brief wedding trip and upon their return will be "at home" at 621 Rockton avenue. The bride is a trained nurse and has practiced her profession with good success in Rockford. Dr. Elliott is a dentist with offices at 127 West State street.-Rockford Daily Register-Gazette.

lasting kingdom by the gift of him whose kingdom endureth forever. Amen. Last of all, the Holy Bible is brought from off the Altar, and delivered to the King by the Archbishop and Bishops with the words: 'Our gracious King, we present you with this Book; the most valuable thing that this world affords. Here is wisdom; this is the royal Law; these are the lively Oracles of God.'

V. The King having been thus anointed and crowned, and having received all the ensigns of royalty, the Archbishop solemnly blesses him, and with him all his people; and every part of the Benediction is followed with a loud and hearty Amen.

VI. And after this the King goes to his Throne, and is placed therein, with the prayer that God will establish his Throne in righteousness, that it may stand fast for evermore; and the Bishops, the Princes, and the other Peers do their homage to his Majesty.

VII. Then follows the solemn anointing and crowning of her Majesty the Queen; and after that, the King and Queen draw near to God's Holy Table to receive the Holy Communion putting off their crowns before the Altar.

At the end of this great and solemn service, the Te Deum is sung, as a hymn of praise to Almighty God, who has shown mercy to our Sovereign and his people; in thus setting him on the Throne of his ancestors.

The Mayor said that Mr. Hamm stated that the proposed new fleet would consist of as fine steamers as there was in the world in coastwise service.

It is understood that the new fleet will be operated by the Dominion Atlantic Steamship Company.

Mr. Justice Graham filed judgment on Monday in the case of the Attorney General vs the city of Sydney, an action to recover expenditure in connection with calling out militia to aid the civil power while a strike was pending. His lordship thinks that one item $20 for legal expense which the commanding officer was put to, while a very proper expenditure (securing advice from counsel) could not be recovered simply because it is not within the terms of statute. Nothing could be more necessary, when such delicate duties devolve upon the militia and he thought should be embraced in the terms of the provision. But they are not. Excluding this sum his lordship gives judgment for the amount claimed $5,289.69 and costs.—Exc.

THE HOME

BEGINNING TO THINK

"There's Mrs. Merrill coming. And she's wheeling little Harry. We'll go and help her."

Two of the children who were sitting with their mother on the front porch ran and assumed charge of little Harry and the go-cart.

Two elder ones added their words of pleasant welcome to mother's one bringing an easy chair, the other going for a glass of fresh water and a fan.

"Just like you all, dear," Mrs. Merrill smiled her appreciation of the little attentions. "I always do tell Mr. Merrill, and in fact many others that you are altogether the most polite and well-behaved young people I ever have the pleasure of meeting. Don't let Harry bother you—come up here with me, little boy. He isn't very well and has been fretful all the morning."

Harry clung to the younger ones, plainly feeling no desire to stay by his mother.

"We'll take care of him," said Nellie. "Harry, we'll go to the barn and see the kittens."

"And there are strawberries in the garden," said Phil.

"But perhaps he ought not to have them," cautioned mother.

"He may have six," said Mrs. Merrill. Harry gave the promise and was home away for what he knew would be a happy time.

There was much pleasant chat between the mothers and the ones who remained. Lucia brought mother's last new waist to show the visitor, and then had a long hunt for the address of the person who had made it. George brought a nursery swing outgrown by Phil and wrapped it to be taken home for Harry's use.

Later it rained a little, when there was a laughing rush with umbrellas for the small ones in the garden. Then George went home with Harry and his mother to hold an umbrella over the go-cart.

"I've been a good while," he said, as he came back after an hour's absence, "but Mrs. Merrill found that the girl had gone out and taken the key of the door she expected to get in at. So I waited a little and then climbed in a window to open a door for her to get in."

"I like Mrs. Merrill," said one of the children as the four gathered again with mother.

"You like me, too, dear?" asked mother.

"Ho, mother!" Four pairs of eyes turned on her in puzzled questioning.

"I have been thinking as I sat here she went on meditatively, "how nice it must be to be Mrs. Merrill."

"Why, mother?" Astonishment was joined to the questioning.

"Nicer than to be yourself?"

"Nicer than to be our mother?"

"O, dear, no," she said, with a laugh. "Of course I should want to be your mother just the same, and I don't wonder you are surprised, for really I don't see myself how it could be arranged. And after all I don't know whether my purpose would be served if you were my children. I'm being Mrs. Merrill."

"Well—I like that," said George.

"Mother," said Lucia, half fretfully. "I do wish you would stop talking riddles and tell us what you are trying to get at."

"Don't take it hard, dear. I was only thinking how nice and polite you would be to me if I was Mrs. Merrill."

"Now—mother!"

Half in reproach, half with the entering of a new thought, came the exclamation. The four pairs of eyes now gazed questioningly into each other.

"If I were Mrs. Merrill," went on mother, "you, George and Phil, would take off your hats when I came. All of you would look to see how you could be polite and attentive to me. You would hurry to relieve me of a burden. You would bring me a chair, and wait on me. You would—mother smiled as her arms reached far enough to take in four, "be just the dear children you all are."

"O mother—mother—" Lucia shook off the caressing arm, "we don't deserve your lovingness. It's just as you say. We are politer to everyone else than we are to you."

"Anybody might think, you know," said mother, gently, "that you thought that other people were more worthy of your best behavior than—"

"Now, mother, you shan't!" Four pairs of arms circled her with a pouring forth of a confused torrent of loving, repentant words. "O, O, O,—as if anybody could ever deserve good things more than you!"

"It's just because we haven't thought—"

"But we're going to think, think, think."

"And do, do, do."

"You'll see, mother,"—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

WOMAN'S PART ON THE FARM.

There are many problems connected with the farm and farm life, but none of them is of more vital importance than the problem of the farmer's wife, her position upon the farm and her relation to its management. Just how much of the work on the farm the wife should take upon her shoulders in addition to taking care of the house and preparing the meals, is possibly a question that never will be settled except by each individual and for individual cases.

The great mistake is often made in looking upon a certain class of farm duties as being essentially the work of the farmer's wife. For instance, it has been pretty generally understood on the average farm that the handling of the milk, from the time it left the barn, was the work of the housewife, whereas, if butter, cream or cheese forms any part of the income of the farm, the handling of those products is really a part of the farm work.

The care of the poultry from the time the old hen is set upon her thirteen eggs until the marketable eggs or dressed poultry are ready to be taken to town, is in many places looked upon as the woman's work. Not infrequently the care of the farm garden or berry patch, devolves upon the farmer's wife. Maybe the farmer plants the garden and gives it some cultivation with the hoe or other implement, but how many cases there are in which this part of the farm work would be neglected at extremely critical times if it was not performed by the wife. How often the garden would quickly become a tangle of weeds if it was not kept clean by the woman of the house.

The average farmer's wife is an energetic, industrious, and as anxious for the success of the whole enterprise as the farmer himself, and there are a great many of these things that it is often impossible for her to do and do well, and which she will enjoy doing if she has the things convenient to do with and if the job is not made too big. The mistake that is usually made in such cases is in considering some such works as these an essential part of the duties of the housewife, and allowing them to be neglected. She does not attend to them.—Maine Farmer.

THIN BLOUSES FOR SUMMER.

The separate blouse is so firmly entrenched in the wardrobe that a flattering amount of care and attention has been bestowed upon it by the leading designers, the result being a fascinating collection of filmy voiles, chiffons, mousseline and exquisite lingerie models embellished with the finest needlework and lace. These filmy lingerie blouses are exceedingly comfortable for warm weather.

The combination of fabrics so much in favor in the fashioning of frocks and suits is a feature in the development of the separate blouse. Equivocal creations of mull and lace or all-over embroidery are frequently combined with chiffon in colors or white. The chiffon is frequently introduced as an over-blouse or umper, the simplest form of which is that cut down to a deep yoke in front and low under the arms, revealing the lingerie foundation. This really gives the effect of bretelles with the lower part wholly veiled.

For travelling the separate blouse is liked best in the same shade as the suit. Chiffon voile or marquisette, relieved by a smart lingerie collar and deep cuffs, makes good looking blouse, and, toning in with the skirt, gives a one-piece costume effect. An ideal blouse for travelling was of black and white striped voile and was intended to be worn with a black, or a black and white striped suit. There was a touch of ecru at the neck and at the edge of the pleated frill which fell down the front of the blouse. There was also a touch of the color at the wrists.

Deep cape collars, sailor collars and Dutch collars of embroidered batiste or linen appear on many of the smart blouses. Plain hemstitched collars of sheer linen are also worn.

Wash blouses of silk in stripes are cool and practical for summer wear, and very good looking, too. This season they come in prettier colorings and stripes than ever.

READING ALOUD.

I found it a good experiment to have my children read aloud to me for from twenty minutes to half an hour each day. It enabled me to keep posted while I did sewing or mending. It was also a good thing for them by way of training; for from the newspapers and periodicals they obtained use of a vocabulary such as they would not have gotten from their text-books.

In so far as I felt competent, I would, at times, correct them in faults of pronunciation or expression, and we frequently consulted the dictionary.

Two of them now read aloud easily and confidently, and one is making jib-money, reading by the hour to a person who is almost blind.—Harper's Bazaar.

An one who has an irritable, peevish child, who grumbles and cries without any apparent cause, should consider whether it is much disturbed, waking or sleeping, by sudden noises.

Are the doors banged? Is there a barking dog in the neighborhood? Is there much whistling for cabs, tooting of motor horns or sputtering and whistling noises in the street?

If so, and if the child can be kept out of earshot of the noise, a very great improvement in health and temper may follow in most cases.

THE BUOYANT PERSON.

Do you know that the buoyant person often has success? The strong, bright personality, radiating cheerfulness, decision and courage is the one that brings friends and success wherever we find it. Tenderness, grace and sweetness need not be lacking, but the 'uplift' must be there; the radiant personality must shine from the body.

I know two girls. One has a perfect body, her face and form are exquisite. The spirit seems cold and dull. This girl is not truly beautiful; she does not make friends. The other girl has a small dark face; she hasn't a single good feature, but she is a glorious creature to know. Strength, and an irresistible love of life and humanity illuminate her; she is adored by a host of friends and has accomplished more good in her native town than a host of philanthropists. She refuses to have the 'blues'; she refuses to be anything but wholesome and happy, and she has had occasion to be both ill and unhappy. I wish all girls were imbued with her spirit.—Sarah Tyler Steel in 'Nautilus.'

THE USEFUL DYE-POD.

For the girl who wishes to dye her own things, the following important rules will be found useful.

All spots must be removed from the fabric about to be re-colored, as they are apt to resist the dye and show more plainly after coloring. If the materials are white or very light cream, pink, blue or green, they can be dyed almost any color. But when they are of a medium or dark shade, the question of color must be carefully considered. Red will take a darker shade of red or brown, or a purple bath will produce reddish purple or plum. Brown can be changed to a darker brown or a castorba results from the use of crimson or garnet. Cardinal red applied to a very light green becomes a crimson or garnet, and darker greens can be colored deeper shades of green, brown or black.

Fabrics containing stripes or plaids in various colors do not color as well as those which are solid shade. In such fabrics the pattern is apt to show after re-coloring. It is wisest to dye them a darker shade of the original predominating color. If the pattern exists at all in the weave, it has no effect at all upon the dyeing.

Crepe de chine and the other light wash silks are simple to dye, but when coloring taffeta and the heavier silks, stir well so that the dye fluid will penetrate the fabric.

AROUND THE HOUSE.

Washable mocha gloves may be cleaned with warm suds made from pure soap. Immerse the gloves in this, rubbing the soiled portions lightly between the hands and rinse in warm water to which a little soap has been added. When dry, rub briskly.

ink stains may be removed from the finger tips by wetting the head of a sulphur match and rubbing the stain with this.

Aprons for children, are in again. Some of them are so dainty and sweet that on hot days they can transform themselves into the coolest of little kimono dresses. Many of them are feather-stitched, but more have an eyelet design. Some are shown in tan, others in white with a colored border. One style shown had a button- and button-hole under each arm, while another was simply caught together with a little ribbon bow.

Tan-colored linens should never be put into bluing water when washed. A little vinegar to the last rinsing.

Half an eggshell with a hole in the end makes a useful little funnel. In washing blue linens always add it. It will be more desirable if the shell is slightly browned in the stove.

If the broom used for brushing rugs is plunged into water and then shaken free of superfluous moisture, the rugs will be brighter than if swept with a dry broom.

TRICHINOSIS IN PORK

Trichinosis is a disease that has been known for a long time in Europe but that has been little heard of in Canada. It has, however, gained a foothold in America, and cases of it are coming to the attention of the medical profession. This is sufficient cause for concern, as the U. S. government has just issued a bulletin dealing with this trouble.

The cause of this disease is the presence in the human system of a microscopic parasite, commonly known as trichina or flesh-worm. It has been proven in the United States that an average of one or two per cent. of the logs slaughtered in that country are infested with this parasite. When transmitted to human beings, trichina may cause serious illness, sometimes resulting in death.

The proper preventive measures to guard against trichinosis in the human family is to see that all pork is properly cooked. A temperature of about 160 degrees kills the parasite, therefore pork may be eaten without any danger of infection. Fresh pork should be cooked until it becomes white and is no longer red in color in all portions of the piece, at the centre as well as near the surface. Dry salted pork, pickled pork, and smoked pork previously salted or pickled, providing the curing is very thorough, are practically rare so far as trichinosis is concerned, but as the thoroughness of curing is not always certain, such meat should also be cooked before it is eaten.

Sentenced to Death

Digby, N. S., June 17—In a voice trembling with emotion, Chief Justice Townsend pronounced the death sentence on nineteen-year-old John Tebo yesterday afternoon, for the murder of an old man named McGregor.

Tebo heaped curses on everybody specially connected with his trial.

Frank Calder was the chief witness for the Crown. He swore that while boarding at Mr. Haight's, in Digby, with the accused, Tebo approached him with a plan to murder Edward McGregor in September last, just a month before McGregor disappeared.

Tebo explained to Calder that McGregor was known to carry from five hundred to eight hundred dollars over in his person all the time, and if Calder would join him Tebo said he would do the dirty part of the job and share the money with him.

The following is the story of the tragedy—

Edward McGregor, the murdered man, was reported missing after October 15th last. He lived alone, in his house on the Bay Road, a short distance on the D.A.R. bridge at Keene's crossing.

The following Sunday the neighbors entered his house, found his cats starved; everything else appeared undisturbed. McGregor was missing, also his usual working clothes, indicating that he had gone away with the intention of remaining but a short time.

Chief of Police H. W. Bowles, of Digby and a Chronicle representative immediately started an investigation and a thorough hunt for the missing man. It was said that McGregor carried large sums of money.

John Tebo, jun., who had been spending considerable money after the 18th, was arrested Oct. 31st, charged with taking money from the missing man. In the meantime a diligent search was made for the body of McGregor, for it was now thought by the general public that he had been murdered.

Detective Hanrahan was sent here from Halifax and rendered every possible assistance. He afterwards returned to the city and the Government offered a reward for the body.

Tebo was discharged on Thursday, Nov. 17th.

On Sunday, Nov. 20th a party of searchers found the body thirty-eight feet north of the Old Oakes Road, one hundred and fifty yards east of the Oakes mill pond.

It was surrounded with a quantity of cabbage and carrots. There was no money found on the body and his left pants pocket was wrong side out.

An inquest was held before Coroner Daley at which it was learned that the deceased had probably met his death by two blows on the head from a hand axe.

Detective Hanrahan, who returned from Halifax via Monday's express, (Nov. 21st) immediately left for where the body was found, accompanied by witnesses, and soon discovered a hand axe near the body. During the evening of the same day on which the body was found Chief Police Bowles again arrested young Tebo, this time on a charge of murder.

His preliminary examination resulted in his being sent up for trial and he has since been a prisoner in the Digby jail.

New Canadian Railway

SIR WILLIAM MACKENZIE GIVES INTERESTING ACCOUNT OF THE PROGRESS OF CANADIAN NORTHERN RAILWAY.

London, June 9—Sir William Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern Railway, is now paying his second visit to England this year. His first visit it will be remembered was in connection with the marriage of his daughter to Count Jacques de Lesseps. Since then Sir William has been back in Canada, and is now here again on business this time.

Sir William Mackenzie in the course of a brief conversation, spoke of the enormous number of immigrants who were pouring into Canada. Last year there were 360,000 new settlers, and this year there will be, he thought, pretty nearly half a million. "Passengers by the steamers bought for Canada," said Sir William, "are booked for months ahead, and it is well nigh impossible to get a steerage passage until midsummer. This influx of immigrants means an increase of business all round. Naturally, railways are kept very busy. Not only is traffic heavy, but in order to meet the needs of settlers, railway construction is being pushed on as rapidly as possible.

"We are planning the biggest construction programme this year that the C. N. R. has yet undertaken. The work will mean the addition of seven or eight hundred miles of new lines this year or the construction of branch lines to our system in the three Prairie Provinces. These branch lines will open up many agricultural districts for settlement. The C. N. R. also intends to run a line into the Erzeaux coalfields of Alberta in the foothills of the Rockies, where there are immense deposits of coal. The country beyond Edmonton is being opened up very rapidly. As we build branches we erect stations every eight or nine miles. Then at these points towns spring up. How rapidly these towns grow depends, of course, on the nature of the country. We built about six hundred miles of branch lines in the West last year, and on these lines have sprung up numerous new towns.

The representative of the Canadian Mail drew Sir William's attention to the cablegrams that had recently appeared in this paper regarding the government's guaranteeing the bonds of the Canadian Northern's new line from Montreal to Port Arthur. Sir William Mackenzie said that the guarantee of some $7,000 per mile would no doubt hasten the construction of the line. The Montreal and Port Arthur line would complete a link of about 1,000 miles in the main line, and would open up vast new rich territory in Northern Ontario. The line would run about forty-five miles below the low Transcontinental. He could not say when the Canadian Northern would be a complete transcontinental—the construction will be pushed as rapidly as possible, and probably would be completed by the end of 1914.

The old lines pay the fixed charges on the new lines until the latter were able to pay their own charges and in time help on new lines. They put their surplus into betterments, instead of paying dividends with it. They had now about 4,000 miles in operation without counting allied lines, of which there were about 2000 miles, which would in process of time be absorbed by the Canadian Northern.

"At present," he went on to say, "a passenger can travel from Bristol to Quebec by the Canadian Northern, "Royal" lines and then by the Canadian Northern Railway to Ottawa, three hundred miles; from there he can go by the C. P. R. to Fort Arthur, and then we take him on into the Prairie Provinces, through Winnipeg, from which city we have branches running all over the West."

"The Canadian Northern is constructing its main line west of Edmonton and through the Rocky Mountains to Vancouver.

Asked as to the Hudson Bay Railway, Sir William Mackenzie said that it was a project that must be dealt with soon. The government would build the line, but whether the Canadian Northern would control it he could not say. Besides, he added, any announcement of the kind must come originally from the government, and he could not at present give any opinion on the matter."

Referring to construction work in British Columbia, Sir William said: "We are letting contracts now for a line from the Fraser River to Kamloops. Last year we let the grading of the first sixty miles east from New Westminster, and we are now letting contracts for the balance of the work through the Fraser River Canyon to Kamloops."

Asked as to the success of the Royal line, Sir William expressed himself as being well satisfied.

In connection with the Hudson Bay Railway, Sir William said, in conclusion, that a steamship service would probably be established to run between Port Nelson or Port Churchill and a British port. Thus a passenger would reach the very heart of Canada before quitting his steamer."

THE UNION JACK AND WAY TO FLY IT.

The London Daily Mail editor says: "I frequently receive queries from the subject of flag flying from readers who ask for a copy of the official regulations. In last week's issue of the London Spectator the editor of that journal replies to an inquirer in Western China as follows: The Royal Standard is the King's flag, and naturally can only be flown by the sovereign. On the high seas the flying of the Jack and of the white, blue and red ensigns are regulated by law or by admiralty regulations having the force of law. On land any British ship is free to fly any flag he likes, but if he is a sensible man and is endowed with good taste, he will, when he wants to fly the National colors, hoist not the white, blue or red ensign, but the union flag, familiarly, if not quite correctly, called the Union Jack—Union Jack is strictly a sea term. To prevent flying the union flag upside down, a very common error—one which sends a pang through the heart of a sailor—the following doggerel may prove useful—

To fly the union flag aright: In stop staff corner place broad white.

The longer strip of white should always be uppermost.
