JUDGE NOT.

Judge not; the workings of his brain
And his heart thou can'st not see;
What looks to thy dim eyes a stain,
In God's pure light may only be
A scar, brought from some well won Where thou would'st only faint and yield.

The look, the air that frets thy sight,
May be a token that below
The soul has closed in deadly fight
With some internal fiery foe,
Whose glance would scorch the smiling

And cast thee shuddering on thy face!

The fall thou darest to despise—
May be the angel's slackened hand
Has suffered it that he may rise
And take a firmer, surer stand;
Or trusting less to earthly things,
May henceforth learn to use his wings.

And judge not lost; but wait, and see; With hopeful pity, not disdain; The depth of the abyss, may be The measure of the height of pain And love and glory that may rise This soul to God in after days!

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES

To the Pupils of St. Mary's Academy.

Under the Presidency of the Most Reverence A. A. Tache, Archbishop of St. Boniface, June 29th, 1898.

(Communicated.) Year after year brings a new pleasure and sentiment of increased admiration and gratitude to the numerous friends of education, who are privileged to witness the commencement exercises at St. Blair Burrows. Mary's Academy of Winnipeg. This year however the devoted Sisters of the conduct this important institution, may unprecedented success achieved by their pupils. The eager attention paid by all that were present, to the various performers, and the repeated applause granted them was the best proof of the charm under which they held their audience. We think it almost unnecessary to enter into any detail regarding this most successful entertainment. Those who could attend the examination in the various branches taught in the institusion, an examination which lasted during a whole week, will bear us out when we state that the success of both the examination and entertainment Cardingly. could only be the outcome of long months of hard study and constant application on the part of the pupils, as well as a strong proof of the untiring zeal and perfect culture of their devoted teachers. We say nothing too much in asserting that the elaborate programme tion, 9th Eng. division; given below was rendered with a complete success from beginning to end. To select however among these gems of art and literature we may be permitted to the prize of application and letter writing, the prize of orthography, 5th Fr. division; the 1st plete success from beginning to end. To division. express our special admiration for the cation, 6th French division, the 1st prize prize of inst. music, 5th course.

To Berthe Dubuc are awarded the manner in which the piano solo, "A of crochet work. Travers l'Ocean" was rendered by the Misses L. Chambers, E. Chale and M. Cardell, who all seemed to understand the music art. The English dialogue: "Science and Religion" in which the latter scored a mythology and logic, 8th French diviscomplete victory over the former, proved to be most appropriate to circumstances of embroidery, 1st course. and very refresning to all who share with us in the opinion that science is little enough indeed without the guidance of Holy Religion. In vain did proud science call to her assistance her sisters "Profane Literature" and "Natural Philosophy;" Religion after answering most conclusively all and each either by a silent or open confession to acknowledge that Religion, True Religion is the only safe guide to Him who is the Fountain Head of all knowledge and science.

Miss Maria Kennedy, who won the gold medal presented by the institution instrumental music, 5th course. to their graduating pupils, read an essay due to her own pen: "A Gleam from the Past into the Future," which produced a very deep impression upon all who heard it. None could help sharing prize of mythology, geology, 8th Eng. in the sentiments of the Young Maiden. in the sentiments of the Young Maiden, now bidding the last farewell to the home of her youth and prepairing to crayon. sail on the deep and too often treacherous ocean of womanhood. OUR ARCHBISHOP'S LETTER.

ST. BONIFACE, May 10th, 1893.

Mr. E. J. Dermody.

DEAR SIE,—I see by the last issue of the Yorthwest Review that you have been intrusted by the directors of the journal with the management of the same, "the company for the present retaining charge of the ediorial columns."

for the present retaining charge of the ediorial columns."

Ineed not tell you that I take a deep interest in the Northwest Review which is the only English Catholic paper published within the limits of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. I hope that you will obtain a remunerative success. It is enough that he editors do their work gratuitously, it cannot be expected that the material part of the publication should remain without remuneration. I therefore strongly recommend to all Catholics under my jurisdiction to give a liberal support to the Northwest Review. It has fully my approval, though, of course, I cannot be responsible for every word contained in it. The editors write as they think proper, they are at full liberty to say what they wish and in the way they like best. The sole control I can claim is over the principles they express and I have no hesitation in stating that the principles announced by them are sound and ought to be endorsed by every sound Catholic in this country.

I therefore consider that you enter a good work and I pray to God that He will bless you in its accomplishment.

Yours all devoted in Christ,

its accomplishment.
I remain.
Yours all devoted in Christ,

We apologize to the parents of the pupils atending St. Mary's Convent and to the through their evolutions with a soldierly many friends of education and readers of the REVIEW for not giving this report any sooner. The oversight is due entirely to the fact of both our editor and reporter being absent from the city some days before and after the 29th.

"OUR CATHOLIC SCHOOLS."

Under the above heading, our able and esteemed contemporary; the Irish World, of New York, puts it thus:

It goes without saying that in the Catholic schools of this country religious and moral instruction is ever regarded as of paramount importance. The interest of the soul comes first in order. But because this is true, it does not follow that secular interests are neglected or that the ways and means that are necessary to their attainment are left unstudied. Some of the greatest names in science are those of Catholic priests; the Order of St. Benedict is noted for its men of letters; while the Society of Jesus is renowned for its teachers of schools and colleges, which are distinguished throughout the world. Perhaps the best known and the most successful body of school-teachers in the world to-day are the Brothers of the Christian Schools. Manhattan College, whose fame is as wide as this continent, is one of its most distinguished lighthouses. Next to the Brothers of the Christian Schools, and operating closely on their lines, are the Franciscan Brothers. Brooklyn is full of the Franciscans. At the school of the Sacred Heart, Clermont avenue, last week, the boys in charge of Franciscan Brothers gave a touch of their quality in public and in a way that reflects highest credit on teachers and scholars. It was our pleasure to be an eye-witness of what took place. The Stars and Stripes decorated the walls; and every one in the audience must have felt, particularly when the Sacred Heart Cadet Corps, if not a certain defeat. Credit is given amid enthusiastic applause, was per- to Brutus for having won such an elecforming its military drill, that he was tion, and out of that credit he makes then in a place whose atmosphere was congenial not only to religion and intelligence but that it was wholesome and invigorating to patriotism as well. Those cadets of the Sacred Heart school went bearing and a precision that would do credit to any company in the New York State Militia. This is a strong statement, and it ought not to be uttered lightly; but we write it down here because it is true, and because those cadets should receive the credit to which they are entitled.

A MODERN BRUTUS.

"Brutus was an honorable man," so eaid Mark Anthony; "So is Mr. Tarte," cries out Israel. They may be both "honorable men," but both had sufficient patriotic courage to stab their friends. In the name of patriotism the Roman Brutus struck down Cæsar, who had so befriended him; in the name of patriotism the Canadian Brutus struck at those into whose secrets he had wormed himself, and from whose hands he had received that recognition which drew him from obscurity. But he was ambitious; he sought for fame; he secured unsavory notoriety. As a purefier of the political atmosphere he set out with his little watering-can, filled with a few cup-fulls out of the morass into which he had waded; as a corrector of public men he undertook to unearth every skull and bone that might indicate that some skeleton had once been buried in the pasture of his predilection. But he went one step too far; he carried his unbridled to the philosophical debates, in the ambition one grade too high upon his stairway to importance. While Mr. Tarte confined himself to his long-sighted but well-cloaked game of undermin-Sun questioned if the pupils of any other | ing a political party to which he so long pretended to belong, success attended States could compete successfully with his efforts; but when he sought to elevate of application, mental arithmetic and himself to the lofty seat of "Lord High penmanship, 5th Eng. division.

Mr. Tarte's career reads like a novel; he was a regular Don Quixote in the political arena. In the days of the DeBoucherville, the Joly, the Chaplean and the Mousseau regimes, there was no such Blue in all Quebec as Mr. Tarte; he even out did Mr. R. P. Vallee, in his every contest, And yet mark his foot- 3rd course. steps; follow them from county to county; trace his course throughout Quebec district, and you must inevitably see the "coming events cast their shadow before," Israel is sent into a county; he is a chief organizer for the Blues, and prize of reading and elements of grammhis candidate is elected by a large majority. There is no danger of any second Conservative victory in places, where Israel has once fought; he worked that part of ing, the 4th Eng. division. the scheme perfectly. The second part is to await the hour when he can hold a balance of power, become the terror of the party he has been playing with, and the only hope of the one he intends to play for. That hour comes; the political purifier gets elected and under the shield of patriotism draws the sword upon his friends of the past. So patriotic has be become that he wants to save his suffering countrymen from the terrible oppression inflicted upon them by the Bench: so patriotic is he, that he feels inclined to usurp the Archiepiscopal crozier and dictate to the pioneer missionary of the Northwest a code of conduct regarding the Catholic school question. And he has the audacity to accuse that prelate of political intrigue, he whose whole political career has been every link of which was welded with readin7, 4th French div.; the first prize the hammer of self-interest, upon the

FATHER MAISONEUVE DEAD.

A Well-Known Missionary goes to His Reward.

Struck by A Locomotive and Succumb

to His Injuries. On Thursday last, the Rev. Father

Maisoneuve, O.M.I. whilst walking on the transfer track along the bank of the Red river, was struck by a Northern Pacific locomotive and received such injuries, that although he lingered for some hours, he succumbed on Friday evening at 7.20, having never regained consciousness. From the best accounts we have had of this very sad occurence, it appears that the Reverend Father was on his way to Winnipeg to transact some business. saw him walking ahead and blew the whistle to warn him of the approach of the train, but owing to his extreme deafness, the reverend father did not hear these warning signs, and just as the engine was upon him he stepped on to prize of penmanship and linear the track with the terrible results we ring, the 1st ac. to the prize of oral have stated. At 10 o'clock on Sunday morning, high mass of Regieum was celebrated in the Langevin, superior of the Oblates in the diocese of St. Boniface, officiated, assisted by Father N. Pelletier as deacon, and Fa her J. G. Lajeunessee as sub-deacon. During the mass His Grace Archbishop Tache stood at the throne, with Rev. J. Messier, parish priest, and Rev. priest. Arter the service an address was delivered by the Rev. Father Cherrier, parish priest of the church of the Imin the uncivilized regions of the inhospitable north. In the course of his remarks Father Cherrier gave a brief sketch of Father Maissoneuve's career. His name was Charles Augustin Maisonenve: he was born on the 10th of August, 1824, in France, and was consequently 69 years of age at the time of his unfortunate death. He took his course for the priesthood in the Grand Seminary of Viviers, France, after which he entered the convent of the Oblates at Notre Dame de l'Ozter, where he made his vows in the year 1848. and was ordained a priest in the same year. He came to the Red River in 1850, accompanied by Rev. Father Tissot, with whom he took his novitiate in France, and who died in 1880. He was sent to the far Northwest as a missionary to the Indians, hunters and voyageurs, and established a mission at Isle la Crosse. In 1853, being rendered unfit for the arduous demands of his mission by an infirmity of the head he came to St. Boniface for treatment. On being restored to health he returned to the scene of his mission work in the West, and in 1857 established a mission at Lac la Biche and remained there till 1868. By this time his deafness had increased so much that he was unable to continue longer in the missionary service and he was recalled to St. Boniface, where for the

A GLEAM

From the Past Into the Future.

Life is a voyage—a similitude wafted to us on the wings of bygones mellowed by distance, but carrying in its depths the burden of a great thought. Truly is life a voyage on the stormy waves of time, over which myriads of frail barks sail, laden with precious souls, through the storms of the Past, the Present and the Future, into the great Ocean of

As the billows of the Present beat unceasingly on the golden sands strewn on the beach of the Past, a soft murmur comes from the coral shells of Memory, breathing of the rosy lights and shadows of Childhood the glorious aspirations and yearning's of Youth's halcyon hours. Louder the murmur swells as the waters of to-day blend with those of vesterday; then slowly retreating, they leave but a faint ripple to tell of their presence.

As Reminiscence with her magic wand conjures up past scenes before my eyes, she envelopes each with rosy tints, while the silvery mist of Time hangs over every feature of Memory's panorama, leaving naught but happiness to gild these declining yet ever changing

The perspective of infancy is easily portrayed, form on the background of life a "Mother's Love" shines in characters of gold. Ah! who could ever penetrate the depths of that affection! Years will but unfold newer vistas, and childlike, we shrink back letting the sweet language of the heart be our only interpreters. A Mother's tender care, a Father's grave solitude, are links bound together by pure filial affection, forming a golden chain, which the breath of neglect can never rust, but remembrance will ever preserve them bright and untarnished.

Would that I could linger among the pleasant recollections evoked by the thought of happy Childhood, but the Angel of Time presses and the flowery paths of the child-world soon diverge into the broader glades of youth. As the sands of Time's hour-glass sink into the depths of the Past, I would gather a few to twine with the evergreens of memory, thus embalming them away in the sanctuary of the soul whence naught but the hand of death will destroy their sweet perfume. Among them will shine with purest light, that recording the hallowed moment when all the ardent longings of the youthful heart meet full realization, when the Angels seem to bend from their heavenly thrones to gaze upon the ravishing scene of inno-cence receiving its God for the first time. Ah! truly is the First Communion the purest pearl cast into the Ocean of Lifein after years, its radiance is still un dimmed flashes of holiest grace still gleam from it, to illumine Life's watery main. On the wings of thought, I am carried away to the dear little chapel where first my soul was inundated with the ineffable sweetness of religious influence. Near the precincts of that cherished spot another edifice is now raised, out though each stone is a testimony of a pastor tender solicitude and ardent zeal for God's glory, yet never will it be fraught with so many sacred souvenirs.

For, within those walls have knelt those to whom the tender ties of family affection bind me; there, in silent adors tion, mutual prayers have ascended with love's powerful impulse, to the Home beyond the skies; there, when the exile of Life was over, were brought their cold remains to receive Mother church last blessing, while we meekly murmured "They are not dead but gone before."

How many events would claim my attention, for memory seems to me like some grand sweet instrument, and the recollection with angelic fingers touches the vibrating chords, all the rich harmonies wake and murmur back past twenty-five years he occupied the their blended voices from the past, and with melodious cadence comes the dul-cet refrain singing of the happy hour when first I was enrolled beneath the banner of Mary, among whose folds, have sought and experienced the sweet care of a Heavenly Mother. That joyour strain tells of those happy little reunion known only by Convent girls-those annual gatherings around a Ver erable Archbishop, a Revered Pastor, of Loved Teachers.

As the orb of age advances higher if the horizon of youth, the influence school-life mingles imperceptibly with that of home and religion. Even as ou young feet yet lingered in the dark valley of ignorance, we scanned with yearning eyes, the bright summits of the lofty hill of Science, whose glittering pinnacles of glory appear to us as sub lime and inaccessible as the everlasting and untrodden Himalyan solitudes Gradually we begin the ascent, we grow through the intricate mazes, guided of by Religion's beacon-light, until at last. reaching us, we walk forth into brighter realms of thought, into the consecrate proceed from the shrines of great spirit who ever toiling upward; have left "Footprints on the sands of Time."

Ginevre's earnestness overpowered her and she remained silent till Mr. Warren again addressed her.

"Heaven forbid that I should strive to persuade you to act against your conscience! I admit that if your convictions are unalterable, you cannot of course give them up; but in that case it is much be regretted that you ever entered into an engagement beset with so many in-superable difficulties! Such a foolish opeless affair!" he repeated, with that sort of impatience which good-natured and matter-of-fact persons experience at that appears to them the needless sufferings which others entail upon them-selves by giving way to their feelings; but he was touched by the mournful eloquence of Ginevra's eyes, which were raised to his with a kind of mute appeal from the sentence he had just pronounce ed. Again he suggested, and again she rejected the only alternative which presented, itself to his mind; and at last, provoked with himself and with her, and Wearied with the discussion, he exclaimed abruptly, "Well then, keep your faith and give up my nephew. You must choose between—"

"God and man," she solemnly replied.
"Than you for those words; they have given me strenght. Now let us return home. You said you could not help me and you were right."

"You have a great sacrifice to make," replied Mr. Warren; "but young as you are; and with a long life before you—" "Yes, a long life—perhaps as long as his," she added in a low voice.
"You will feel satisfied at having released him from painful position. As the cause, through the innocent cause, of his ruin, you never bould have been happy. Once more she glanced at the smoot river at her feet, and then at the blue vault of heaven over her head.

"Now you will both start afresh in life;
you will have nothing with which to re-Proach each other.' No, we must nof reprooch each other; Ginevra mechanically repeated; and they walked on in silence, except that Mr. Warren now and then made an observation tending to enforce the necessity of the sacrifice he nad urged her to make When they were within a few steps of the house, she suddenly stopped, and said, in a low deep voice, "Are you sure that you have told me the truth? There was such intense misery in the tone with which this was uttered, that Mr. Warren started, and felt chocked at having been the means of inflicting it, but he could not retract, and the tear that glistened in his eye gave a death-blow to her hopes. He felt then for her, but saw no means of escape. She pressed his hand, went up to her room, and was alone for an hour, looking her fate in the face, and struggling against despair. It was true, as she had said it herself, that Gin:vra Leslie was very young for the loae of care, for the heavy burden which weighed on her rpirit, and taxed the energies of a character which nature had ardent, and to which education and circums ances had taught self-control. Full of that indomitable fire which genius kindles and and passion durses, she had taken life and its mys teries, and its realities, as if by storm and at thirteen she had ceased to think to speak, or to feel as a child. The strung religious principles which grew her growth, and modeled her * s'e being, grappled with that nature curbed its impetuosity. Her imagination, her talents her enthusiasm, had been directed to one end by the influence a riligion, which, while it is ascetic in its discipline, and uncompromising in morality, deals with each human being according to his secret needs, and purifies while it exalts every aspiration of his soul. She had seen in the gor geous temples of her own land the riches of earth, the precious marbles and the sparkling gems, the gold of the mine, and the pearl of the ocean, lavished in profusion on the shrines of the Almighty; and she had learned, at the same time that the precious things of man's hear and of man's brain, its pearls of great price, its treasures of deep thought, its gems of countless value, should be laid apon the altar of God, not to be destroyed, like the holocausts of old, but to be hallowed and exalted by the light of the sanctuary. Every inspiration that raised her soul from earth was directed to her own genius, startling appeals, to which she responded with uplifted eye and with bended knee. When the day of trial came, the same influence saved her from despair. Her story was a strang one, and must now be briefly told. Consinfined in her infancy to the care of her motoer's relations, she had been brought up in an old mansion, whose departed grandeur had left traces of its existence in the fresco paintings which ttill lingered on its walls, and in the mutilated statues, the traces of the evenue of the broken tountains, and the avenue of cypresses which ornamented its gardens One suite of apartments in this abode was occupied ba Father Francesbo, who was at once the friend and the chaplain of the owner of that old palace. His hame has already been mentioned in this story as the uncle and the guardian of Ginevra Ferrari, the mother of our heroine. The simple furniture of these nooms contrasted with the magnificence of the gilded ceilings and the painted One small gallery, that led from the hall to the chapel, was well stored with books, French, Latrn, and Italian.

Writing-desk that stood by one of the high windows, and a pile of heavy folio volumes that lay at its side, gave indicaion that their owner had not neglected o improve by study the abilities with which Nature had encowed him. The chapel was rich in comparision with the rest of the building; and the relics of past splendor, which elsewhere had been suffered ta deday, were carefully cherished, and seemed to render a silant transfer and seemed tr tent homage to the sanctity of the spot, where night and day a lamp burned beight on the carved affigies and the On the opposite side of the building another lamp often burned through the long hours of night, and still faintly glimmered when the glory of the rising on overpowered its feeble rays. GRANTLEY MANOR was in the studio of Leonado Ferari, the artist, who some twenty years before had been the friend and the companion of Ginevra's father. Devoted to his art engrossed by that ruling passion, day and night he worked with an unwearied energy that left him no time for rest, and no care for the outward world. The only object that won a smile from the ardent painter, or beguiled him for an hour from his own life-destroying toils, was his sister's child, the little Ginevra, whose voice and whose eyes were the music and the sun shine of his lonely existence. In that singular home, like a flower that blooms unseen on the walls of a ruined cloister, she spent her chfld hood, and anvanced towards woman

Of Interest to Catholics.

The supreme court of Massachusetts has rendered a decision recently which gives great satisfaction to Catholics. The decision affirms the right of Catholic parents to send their children to Catholic schools, the only test being to show olic schools, the only test being to snow by actual examination that the child has received the instruction required by law. In New York city, where the Catholic schoolboys carry off most of the West Point and Annapolis cadetships under competitive examination, this test would not be considered severe.

THE PIC-NIC

Change of Date-From Thursday, 17th to Saturday, the 19th Inst.

The pic-nic which is to be held at the Winnipeg Exhibition grounds in aid of the building fund of the church of the Immaculate Conception will take place on Saturday, the 19th, inst., instead of Thursday, the 17th, as announced in our issue of last week. This change has been made in deference to the request of a large number who desire to attend the pic-nic but could not conveniently do so if held on the date originally intended, owing to the fact that another big pic-nic has been arranged for the 17th, and also owing to the order which has recently gone into effect closing the C. P. R. shops on Saturdays. The committee in charge of the arrangements for Mrs. W. F. Luxton, accompanied by her daughter Olive, left by the C. P. R. Sunday on a trip east for the benefit of her health.

A mission was opened at the church of the Immaculate Conception on Sunday evening by the Rev. Father Godtz, 364 Main Street, - - Winnipeg, Man a Redemptorist father from Montreal The church was well filled, a much larger congregation than usual at the half past ten mass being present. When he ascended into the pulpit the mission- CHEAP CLOTHING HOUSE. ary father briefly laid down the rules he intended to adopt for the regulation of the mission. He stated that as he wished as much as possible to make it a mission for all the people of the parish he intended to preach the sermon throughout the retreat in the different throughout the retreat in the different languages spoken by the bulk of the parishioners. On Sunday morning therefore he briefly spoke in German and then preached a most impressive sermon in English on the necessity of devoting every moment of time to predevention for exercity. On Sunday after Suits in FINE BLACI paration for eternity. On Sunday afternoon there was a special service for the Germans who attended in considerable numbers. Hymns were sung in their ouching tribute to the life of the late mother language, and the beads recited. Father Maisoneuve as a mission-ry in the far west.

The convention called by the Farmars Alliance to discuss the question of the sermon was first civen by Fanch follows. uage the enormity of moral sin, and appealed to his hearers to from that moment declare an undying warfare against it. Prayers were said for the conversion of all sinners in the parish. During the week the masses will be at 5.30 and at 9 o'clock. All those who have to go to work early are expected to attend the first mass, and those who can do so should make it a point to be present at the 9 o'clock mass at which present at the 9 o'clock mass at which an instruction will be given. On Monday afternoon the children of the parish who have not made their first com-munion were all assembled in the church and addressed by the Reverend missionary, and the following day those who have made their first communion within the last three years had a special service. Each evening at 7.30 the beads are recited followed by an instruction in English, and a short instruction either in German or French. As the mission is to last only one week confessions will be heard on Wednesday and Thursday for married people, and on Friday and Saturday for others.

The Church and The Bible.

The church has received the Bible ecognized the Bible, preserved the Bible, transmitted the Bible, and acknowledged the Sacred Scripture as divine and inspired in all its parts. The church is the only system of religion upon earth whose teachings is in all parts in conformity with the Bible. The Catholic is the true Bible Christian. Others accept parts; he accepts the whole. They believe portions of the book to be inspired, he the whole of each book; or they believe the main scope to from Genesis to Revelation; or they be- and other climatic influence lieve a general guidance to have been with the sacred writers, he a distinct inspiration; or they believe such statements to be inspired as can be plainly made to harmonize with geology and all other ologies. So, while the fashionable modern infidelity would rob us of our Bible, the Catholic occupies the same ground regarding the sacred volume that St. Peter occupied eighteen long centuries ago.
