THE ARNCLIFFE PUZZLE, BY GORDON HOLMES

Author of "A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE."

(Continued.) "So that is what my one-time friends think of me," cried Edith, bitterly. "I am beginning now to discover that an open enemy is less to be feared."

"Oh, well," she answered, the more harshly because of an uneasy consciousness that her behavior was not altogether generous. "After all, you have only yourself to blame. People see nothing strange in Lord Arncliffe's giving three hundred pounds to his intended heiress; but, in view of your professional ignorance of the contents of his will, they do think it strange that you should ask for such a sum. I tell you frankly there are very strong hints that you did not obtain that money from Lord Arncliffe's bankers legitimately."

"So, Mrs. Ainger, I am already suspected of forgery. I presume I shall be charged with murder next."

"There are more unlikely things," snapped Mrs. Ainger. The mention of murder brought to mind the attack on her husband, and with it all her bitter suspicions. "I know well enough that you did not strike the actual blow at this, Miss Holt, that since you could not readily raise three hundred pounds for yourself, you must have wanted it for somebody else. And," she concluded grimly, "I have not been a solicitor's wife for nearly forty years without being aware that the 'somebody else' is always a man where a woman is concerned."

"Well," answered Edith, with a coolness which might have warmed her adversary, "let us assume that it was a man."

"Then," came the retort, in a voice shrill with anger and the invincible logic of the situation, "it was that man who nearly murdered my poor husband! Edith, one of the gentlest creatures breathing, could not brook the insult conveyed by that unjust taunt. She snatched her handkerchief and, in her veins flowed the bluest blood of France, and this blow from the hand of a friend was not to be endured."

Had Mrs. Ainger been gifted with greater acumen than that due to the semi-legal training she boasted of, she could not have failed to see and wonder at the calm courage which sparkled in this girl's eyes and gave unwonted firmness to her lips.

in no way altered matters. Indeed, in the few hurried interviews that had taken place between them, Warren had insisted on the necessity for concealment more strongly than ever. The girl was shrewd enough to realize that her lover, if his intentions were good, would only be too proud to proclaim her as his promised wife, but she allowed herself to be tricked—knowing she was tricked—by name and shuffling evasions, at the manner of woman yesterday, today, and tomorrow."

She looked at her watch, first with a brief glance at the face, and then, lingeringly, at the back, she all too actively gold case being blatant with turquoise and gem-stones. It was a gift from Harry, and May—who belonged to a class to which charms and talismans are an essential part of their lives—the breaking of a expensive and infallible method of ensuring constancy; which regard any ring as incomplete unless it had those forget-me-nots among the beautiful things of the world."

"Hold an hour! There he had failed her in the last week, and not another minute would she wait. And so, of course, she walked on, vowing to herself, she had vowed before, that she would endure such treatment no longer."

From the direction of the Hall there came a faint chattering of horse's hoofs. He was coming at last! The expression of mortification and anger he there, gave the maid who is not unwilling to be coaxed and petted into good temper again. She went forward a little, exclaiming with coquettishly downcast eyes. The boot-beats sounded near, with a jerk, the horse was pulled up almost at her feet.

"Why, Miss May," said the voice of Wilson the groom, "I almost ran over you!" It was just what she was just taking a stroll, and I suppose my wife were wool-gathering, for I never heard you coming. By the way, you did not come to tell me the news as you promised you would."

"I came twice, miss," protested Wilson, "but you were out both times. I suppose you heard all about the inquest, and Lord Arncliffe's nephew turning up from America?"

"Oh, yes, I did hear about that." "And of course," continued Wilson, "you heard how old Mr. Ainger was nearly murdered?"

"Yes, that is the sort of thing everybody breathes. But how are affairs going generally? I suppose that stock-up Miss Holt is putting on fine airs, now the line come into such heaps of money."

"Well, miss," answered Wilson, "people are saying some very queer things about her, and she detective chap from London watches her like a cat watches a mouse. Still, I must say she young lady is civil enough to all of us through she is a bit snooty. What are you talking about?"

"How you, miss," said Wilson, dismounting, "any one might wait an eye can see that the agent is sweet on her. It's my belief they were secretly engaged, for she used to be like honey to me, with her 'Please, Harry, and 'Thank you, Harry.' I daresay, now she's got all this brass, she'll think she can look it up to you. It's an easy matter to become 'my lady' or 'your grace' when you can put your hand on eight a million."

Miss Manning crossed her head. "Looking higher, indeed!" retorted she, scornfully, trying to keep the quiver of rage from her voice. "I don't think Mr. Warren would look at her, with her pale face and miming airs, for all her money."

"Don't you believe it, miss," said Wilson. "Any one at the Hall can tell you he has been hanging after her for a long time. I don't say it wasn't because he felt pretty sure she would get a bit of a legacy from the old man. Nobody," with a significant nod, "could prefer Miss Holt to you. But he's a bad egg, as Mr. Harry, and it has made my blood boil many a time to think of the way he has been deceiving you."

All May Manning's doubts came back to her, intensified a hundred-fold as she listened to Wilson. Warren's desire for secrecy, his continual excuses, pointed unerringly to the hope that he might be able to explain matters.

"I cannot allow you to speak of Mr. Warren in that way," she protested hotly. "You must know that he and I are engaged to be married, though it has not been made public."

"If you think you can fool me by turning on the waterworks," he said with brutal frankness, "you are very much mistaken. I am not blind. Why, the fellow had hold of you last night."

"I know," said May, with hurt dignity, "but it was only just the moment you came up, and the man's manner seemed so strange that I was frightened. I really do believe he had been drinking."

"Wilson is a teetotaler," said Warren, curtly. "May's comment was a somewhat unfortunate allusion from his standpoint."

"Well, then, the poor fellow must be wrong in his head. Why," with a little laugh, as if at the irresistible humor of recollection, "he asked me to marry him!"

"Well," shortly, "why don't you?" "If you are joking," she said stiffly, "I think it very bad taste. A groom! Besides, he knows very well that I am engaged to you."

"Were" he corrected. The girl's healthy red cheeks whitened and she stopped. "Harry," she said tremulously, and now there was no trace in the quiver of her voice, "what does all this mean? You insisted on our engagement being kept a secret, and you have made most pally excuses. Now you talk of our engagement being at an end. But I will not allow you to make the impertinence of that man's name the excuse. Why don't you tell the truth, and say you are hankering after Miss Holt?"

Warren was not entirely sorry that May herself had broached the subject. He imagined it would serve to amuse the way for him.

"Look here, May," he said, with sudden access of sentiment not wholly assumed, "there is not a girl in all the world I think fit to wipe your nose as long as I live, I shall never love any other woman. But I am in the very depth of a hole, and there is nothing excepting a marriage with Edith Holt that will get me out of it. Of course, dear, it need not make any real difference to me."

SHATTERED NERVES

Made Strong and Steady by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

When your nerves are out of order your whole health is on the verge of a breakdown. Sudden sounds startle you; your muscles tremble and your hands tremble; your self-control is shattered; your will-power gone. Your head aches; your feet ache; your heart jumps and lumps at the least excitement; you are restless at night and tired when you wake. Your temper is irritable and you feel utterly down-hearted. And the whole trouble is because your blood is thin and watery to keep the nerves strong. There is only one way to have strong, healthy nerves—feed them with the rich, red blood that only Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can make—and do make. Mr. Fred Forth, 17 Sullivan street, Toronto, says—"I was a complete wreck last autumn. My hands trembled, my heart jumped, and I found that I was nervous. My appetite improved, my nerves began to grow steady, and day by day I gained until I was again a well man. My weight increased twenty-five pounds while I was using the pills. To any who suffer as I did, I can say that if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are given a fair trial, a cure will be sure to follow."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills restored Mr. Forth, simply because they made the rich, pure blood which properly nourishes the nerves and keeps them strong. They will cure all the diseases due to bad blood and shattered nerves, such as anaemia, indigestion, headaches, and backaches, rheumatism, lumbago, St. Vitus dance, paralysis, general weakness and the secret ailments of growing girls and women. But you must always insist on getting the genuine pills with the full name Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People on the wrapper around each box. They are medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brookville, Ont.

WEDDINGS

Welmore-Welmore.

A large number of relatives and friends assembled on Thursday afternoon in the chapel of All-Saints, Clifton, which was tastefully adorned for the festive occasion, to witness the nuptials of Boyd A. Welmore, of Upper New Horton, and Elsie A. Welmore, one of Clifton's most popular and charming young ladies. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. S. Wainwright, rector.

The happy pair, after luncheon at the house of the bride's mother, left for their new home amid the most earnest wishes of their numerous friends for their future happiness and welfare.

After the ceremony, supper was served to the guests, and dancing was enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Lomax will reside in Lepreau.

A Good Reputation is worth a lot to any man, woman or article. The high reputation which "FIVE ROSES" FLOUR has obtained, through honest merits alone is unequalled by that of any ordinary brands, and has been achieved by years of the most careful study and endless and costly experiments in milling. The reputation of "FIVE ROSES" is of the greatest importance to us, as our guarantee as to quality and purity goes with every bag and barrel we sell. Such a guarantee, backed by our reputation, should be considered by all housekeepers when ordering flour. "FIVE ROSES" FLOUR is now recognized as the standard from which the quality of other brands is judged. No housekeeper can afford to ignore such a reputation when buying flour. She should, therefore, ask for "FIVE ROSES."

AN "ATTRACTIVE" JOB.

All sorts of applicants are in line for this position of public executioner of Denmark. This axe is the weapon used there and when there is something particularly "rotten in the state of Denmark" the high executioner shoves the offender by a head and collects $364 for the exercise. Denmark is now advertising for a "sturdy, reliable" headman, the last holder of the proud office having been robbed by age of the strength and accuracy necessary for a creditable and impressive performance.

"ROASTING" WALL STREET

Mr. W. G. Nicholas, an old Wall Street spry, who has been long enough in the "streets" to know what is going on under his surface, has just delivered himself of a few statements calculated to disburse the minds of those who believe the easy way to get money is to buy stocks.

"For nearly a year the complaint has been that it is 'everything going out and nothing coming in,' and that no matter how attractive the display of goods may be the public will not buy. Wall Street being a manufacturing community this manifestation of popular disapproval cuts deep and hurts. All sorts of explanations and excuses are made by sufferers to account for the public's aloofness, but the real reason is ignored as much as possible.

HE'S RESTING

Silence reigns at Oyster Bay. Scarcely a leader is seen. Oysters, credited in its shell, scarcely breathe or wiggle. Peeps the bird serenely, resting. 'Tiddy's resting!'

IN LIGHTER VEIN. "Skinnyman is so thin he always has to wear a checked suit."

Mr. Nuttch—What! You want to marry my daughter? Why, you ain't able to support yourself.

Young Nerves—Quite so. That's the very reason I gave to my family for wanting to marry your daughter.

"So you want a position as office boy? How much do you expect a week?"

"Three dollars, sir. How much are you worth?"

"About three cents, sir." "What will you do when I am in the office?"

"I'll smoke a cigar and put my feet on the desk, sir." "Have you any grand ideas?"

"No, sir. I've twice a week I'll go out and see the baseball games."

"Hi! Young man, you are too truth-tell for this office. Better go round and ask the postmaster if he needs an assistant."

THE BETTER HALF

When a man asks a girl to let him call her by her first name it means he thinks her name ought to be changed—Kansas City Times.

The Chicago woman who believes that every bachelor should be made to support at least one orphan ought to perfect her plan by deciding what should be done if there were not enough orphans to go round—Florida Times-Union.

The English girl is never natural. She is, as a rule, so self-conscious that she cannot do her own beauty justice. She knows she is dull, and the consciousness of the fact adds to her inherent shyness. She does not develop until she is married—Ladies Field.

A sign of the times is the change in the honeymoon. The usual thing in smart circles is a week or perhaps only a few days at a smart country house, and then a return to civilization.

A recently married couple went merely for a week-end into the country—Vanity Fair.

A new method of dealing with old wrinkles still the feminine world five times as much as the situation bill or the earthquake in San Francisco. We are determined to be beautiful. Our gods are those who endeavor to make us so—Ladies Pictorial.

The ways of club women differ from those of club men and an illustration of this is supplied by a notice in the billiard room in a ladies' club requesting members not to put cigarettes on the billiard table. It reminds one of the notice in the South American club requesting members not to shoot the marker—Vanity Fair.

Young girls are less eager to marry than they used to be. At one time a girl who remained unmarried when she had been out one or two seasons was almost a reproach to her parents, and an unfashionable blot on the marriage market.

But the unmarried have tacitly formed a union, which has so silently insisted upon the standard of the disgrace of their state being lowered—The Lady.

Justice allows no one to retain both the sceptre and the speck. If man, in the fight for life, had at every turn to say to his business rivals, "Allow me, madam! Please take my place; I will offer my resignation," the victory would swiftly be to the weak. If woman deposes or is forced to descend from her pedestal and vie with man, she must be willing to observe the rules of the exhausting conflict—Temple Bar.

THE JEWS UNDER THE RUSSIAN CZARS

hostility to the Jews was far from being a fixed policy with the Russian people at that time, and, as a rule, they were merely treated as foreigners. Under the first of the Romanoffs the Jews from Poland were forbidden to enter Russia. Peter the Great, undoubtedly, disliked the race, but nevertheless he made a Jew the chancellor of his empire. Under his daughter, Catherine I, the persecution was active, for the Queen hated them with a fanatic fury. In her reign they were all ordered out of Russia. Probably a good lawyer could prove that the persecutions in Russia of Jews is illegal today, for Catherine's orders have been repeated from time to time, and it is likely that some of the decrees are still in force.

THE REAL PROBLEM CREATED. Elizabeth was also anti-Jewish, but her successor, the great Catherine II, moderated some of the harsh enactments against the Jews, although in her reign took place the first of those events that led to the annihilation of Poland, and the creation of the real Jewish Problem of Russia. Heretofore, the Jews were numerous only in the southern districts, and in other parts of Russia were few and nomadic. But Poland had a vast Jewish population, which, in Catherine's reign, came under Russian law. The emperor, however, took a tolerant view of their religious belief, and set her face against their spoliation. About this time we hear, for the first time, the charge that the Jews were taking the business away from the Christians. In 1790 the Moscow merchants protested to the emperor that they were being driven out of business by the Jews.

UNDER ALEXANDER I. Under Paul I the Jews were not severely treated, and his unhappy monarch was engaged in the problem of framing laws for their protection when death ended his work. Alexander I was also favorably disposed toward them, and relieved them of some of the disabilities they labored under. It was during the thirty years' reign of his successor, Nicholas, that their greatest sufferings were endured. Nearly one-half of all the Russian laws restricting the occupation and the residence of Jews were made in his reign. It must be gilded, however, that Nicholas' sole desire was to convert them to Christianity. A baptized Jew had privileges that even an orthodox Russian did not possess. He was exempted from taxation for three years. Criminal Jews, professing Christianity, were lightly dealt with also.

THE PERSECUTION. But while every inducement was held out to turn them to Christianity, those who remained obstinate were severely dealt with. They were ruthlessly ordered into the army, in greater proportion than Christians, and more than ever restricted to the Pale. The king's emancipation campaign, which was also carried on by means of schools, where it was hoped the young Jews would be converted. Alexander II did not intend to carry out the persecution, and the Crimean War had shown to be necessary. But cross-currents of Pan Slavism and Nationalism, and under Pobjedonostseff and Alexander III, they suffered as under Alexander I. From Moscow and other large cities they were banished, July 14, 1900 of them being driven out of the former, and crowded back into the Pale, to add to the poverty and suffering there. No wonder that in the last two decades of the nineteenth century a million Jews left Russia. Under the present czar they have been massacred with a determination unexampled before, and now the indications are that they are about to undergo another terrible ordeal.

Germain Street Baptist Church. The Rev. Merritt L. Gregg, B. A., of Providence (R. I.), the talented young preacher who occupied the pulpit of the Germain street Baptist church last Sunday will preach in the same church tomorrow, Sunday. Mr. Gregg is a forcible speaker, and his voice is deep full and pleasing. The choir will again be assisted by the Pine Street Male Quartette of Lewiston (Me.), at both services. Their singing last Sunday was very fine and highly enjoyed by the large congregations that heard them. The new pastor of the church, Rev. W. W. McMaster, will arrive in the city on Thursday next, and will commence his pastorate on Sunday, Aug. 5.

"WHO LAUGHS LAST"

By Bertha Robertson

Of course it was not very nice of Nettie to come out a defeated rival, but when Mason North suddenly ceased paying his attention to Clara Silva and returned to his old worship of his childhood playmate, it was only natural that she should be proud of her conquest and proceed to put poor Nettie through his very best.

As a child Nettie had guessed it over Mamma. As a girl she had ruled him with a rod of iron, and with his budding manhood had come a more absolute domination. She did not care particularly for him. He had been her willing slave from childhood, and she regarded him with the proper contempt of the young girl who feels for a four-year-old victim. It was not until Clara and her mother had come to live in Edinburgh and Mason had laid his heart at the feet of the newcomer that she realized how useful he had been.

For a year and more she had been forced to look around for escorts to entertainments, and now that Mason had come back and had sought reinstatement she would have been less than a woman had she not guessed it over Mamma.

It was the only one drenched to her triumph. Somehow or other Clara did not seem to care as much as one might have expected. She smiled in friendly fashion when she met the pair, but Nettie looked in vain for any signs of jealousy, and it was this that led her to persuade her captives.

At such entertainments as they both attended poor Mason was kept busy fetching and carrying, until it seemed as if a second relation were imminent, but somehow Nettie managed to keep him at her side.

It was at the Presbyterian strawberry festival that matters came to a climax. Evelyn Sanford, one of Nettie's one-time admirers, had brought Clara, and it seemed to Nettie that there was a smile in Clara's eyes as she passed the table where she and Mason sat.

There were over 3000 applicants for the positions of the most inspectors, to the Washington Civil Service Commission recently, 400 appointments will be made.

The 14th annual convention of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees was brought to a close in Boston with the election of John Suarez of St. Louis, as president.

By unanimous vote the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, in session at Still Water, decided to go into politics. A platform was adopted embracing a number of reforms and the president was empowered to appoint a committee to work out the details of state organization.

About 370 Philadelphia union men carried seven flags to enforce an eight-hour day in 4 shops and there is probability that every other weaver in the city—and there are many thousands of them—will strike in sympathy.

About 500 members of the West Masses' Union of New York City, have gone on strike for the abolition of coal fires in open fire places for heating the pressing irons and the substitution of gas stoves.

A feature of the Farmers' Union of the West is their political co-operation with organized wage earners. In Texas, Arkansas and Oklahoma, there are evidences of such co-operation, and the movement is spreading to other parts of the country where both farmer and wage earners are organized.

According to the general secretary of the Transvaal Miners' Association, miners' wages have been steadily reduced since the coming in of the Chinese contract laborers. Abundant supplies of Kafir labor are obtainable, and a decline in the proportion of skilled labor is a result. The strike has set in, amounting in the last month to 2772 less skilled white men than would have been employed under the old management. The labor party in the British Parliament is attacking the government on this question.

The striking mine workers at the Philadelphia colliers of Jermyn & Co., at Old Forge, resolved to remain on strike for six years, unless General Manager Jermyn of the company signs an agreement to abide by the conditions agreed upon subsequently to both. Jermyn refuses to sign an agreement, but says that he will do so if the men have been out for six months. The men have been out for six months and they number 1,200, and three mines are closed. They are being supported by the Mine Workers' Union.

The Labor Party in England will publish a daily paper called "The Majority."

The conditions and standard of labor in the cotton mills in Bombay, India, are the lowest, at least in any Asiatic country. The laborer is paid by the piece or pound weight, the wages of the mill agents and from him down to the lowest of the mill operatives. Therefore the tendency is to increase the bulk of the output, and another result is that the long hours of day labor have been introduced.

New Orleans union plumbers have been on strike since the 1st of the year.

The paper mill workers' strike throughout the country has ended.

President Gompers, of the A. F. of L., announced that the Switchmen's union of N. Y. City, in 1897, had the largest membership of any union in the American Federation of Labor. They number 12,000 members.

HONORABLE JOHN COSTIGAN

New Brunswick's "Grand Old Man" comes out strongly in favor of "Fruit-a-lives."

Who has not heard of the Honorable John Costigan? He is to-day one of the most powerful, as well as one of the oldest, figures in Canadian politics. He was one of Sir John Macdonald's ablest lieutenants, and for nearly 30 years held various portfolios in the cabinet.

To-day at the age of 71, he is the idol of the electors of New Brunswick, and a power to be reckoned with in Parliament. His rugged eloquence—biting sarcasm—and ready repartee—make him at once the dread of his opponents and the delight of his conferees.

When a public man of the Hon. John Costigan's position voluntarily testifies to the marvelous cure effected by "Fruit-a-lives," it is bound to carry convincing weight with the whole Canadian people.

OTAWA, ONT., 213 Cooper St., Jan. 8th, 1906. You know what fearful trouble I have had all my life time from constipation. I have been a dreadful sufferer from chronic constipation for over thirty years and I have been treated by many physicians and I have taken many kinds of proprietary medicines without any benefit whatever. I took a pill for a long time which was prescribed by the late Dr. C. E. Church, of Ottawa. Also for many months I took a pill prescribed by Dr. A. P. Rogers, of Ottawa. Nothing seemed to do me any good. Finally I was advised by Dr. Rogers to try "Fruit-a-lives" and after taking them for a few months I feel I am completely well from this horrible complaint. I have had no trouble with this complaint now for a long time, and I can certainly state that "Fruit-a-lives" is the only medicine I ever took that did me any positive good for constipation. I can conscientiously recommend "Fruit-a-lives" to the public as, in my opinion, it is the finest medicine ever produced.

(Signed) JOHN COSTIGAN.

Was ever medicine put to a severer test than this? Here was a great Public Official, who had suffered for more than 30 years with Chronic Constipation. The leading physicians of Ottawa prescribed for him without affording any permanent relief. Finally, as a last resort, "Fruit-a-lives" were ordered. And in THREE MONTHS, Mr. Costigan WAS WELL. "Fruit-a-lives" did in THREE MONTHS, what doctors and drugs failed to do in THIRTY YEARS. "Fruit-a-lives" are the most perfect combination known to medical science. They are fruit juices, concentrated and combined with tonics and laxative ingredients. Unlike liver pills, anti-bilious pills and all preparations which irritate the liver, kidneys and bowels—these are gentle on the system and do not injure the liver, which enters the bowels and makes them move. Unless the liver be active and exerts sufficient bile to move the bowels regularly and daily every day, there is bound to be Constipation. And the only remedy that will cure Constipation is one that puts the liver in a healthy, active condition as "Fruit-a-lives" do. Do you suffer with Chronic Constipation? Are you bilious? Is the stomach out of order? Does the head ache? Do your kidneys trouble you? Or the bowels? (With "Fruit-a-lives" is the appetite poor? Take "Fruit-a-lives." They sweeten the stomach, regulate the liver, kidneys and bowels—clear the skin—and build up, strengthen and invigorate the whole system. One box will prove their value. Get a box or 6 boxes for $2.00. Send on receipt of price if your druggist does not handle them.

TUNNEL THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

(Mail and Express). A scheme fifty years old is revived in the commission, recently given to Sir Douglas Fox, past president of the Institute of Civil Engineers, to draw up plans for a tunnel between England and France. Parliamentary sanction for the enterprise will be sought, and in view of the good relations between the two countries, and the tremendous advances in modern engineering, it is possible that the old dream will become a reality. It would abolish the most unpleasant sea water passage in the world, shorten the distance between England and every point in southern Europe, and stimulate the intercourse between France and England. It would also deal a severe blow to some important shipping interests, and on this account it is sure to be strongly opposed. By restoring land communication between England and the continent, the tunnel will undo the work done by the sea some thousands of years ago. Where the English Channel now flows was once solid land, and England was joined to France, as solidly, apparently, as France to Spain. Whether the separation was effected by some tremendous cataclysm or through centuries of erosion by the waters is not known, though the scientists favor the latter theory. Geologists speak of the separation having occurred not very long ago, which probably means within a few hundred thousand years. Whenever the disjuncture took place, by whatever means, it may be properly regarded as the most important natural phenomenon since the flood. As a part of the mainland of Europe, there would have been no England, no empire, perhaps no America, as we know it today. The waves that made England an island made North America an English continent. Looking over a copy of "All the Year Round," then edited by Charles Dickens, an article came to view on the tunnel under the English Channel, unimagined, and might well have been written by its editor, at least, it is a plausible imitation of some of the mood. It is interesting to note that the great boom of the tunnel was its promise to save travelers from sea-sickness. In all its length there was no word about the time to be saved or the journey to be lessened. In 1890 the people of England did not think their time was so valuable. Nor was there in the early any reference to the danger of a French invasion, via tunnel, a topic so prominent in subsequent discussions of the subject. Another amusing feature of the article was its implicit assumption that the tunnel would be dug in three or four years. So, a half century hence may other readers comment on the article as the project is apt to call forth. In 1892 a French engineer proposed to connect the two countries by a bridge, and for some time the project was gravely debated. This idea was to have a structure 600 feet above the water, resting on piers 400 feet long. It was estimated that 250,000,000 would cover the expenditure. This staggering sum led the project to sink, but the final blow was struck by the vessel owners, who feared that they would be ruined by the wreck of the bridge. Four years later a French engineer, Thorne Dismore, shared with William Lerr the honor of preparing the first scientific plans for a tunnel. In 1897 he showed his plans at the great Paris Exposition. In 1897 Gamond, Law and James Brown combined and presented their plans to a committee, of which Lord Richard Grosvenor was chairman. On it were several eminent engineering experts, and all agreed that the project was feasible, and the engineer's calculations founded on solid facts. The theory on which the most important calculation—that of boring out through the chalk bed—was based is that the chalk formation extends unbroken from Dover to Calais. This rock is excellent material for drilling operations, and has proved almost impervious to water. In this stratum a shaft was sunk 1,600 feet deep, and not a drop of water was found. Mining experts testified to the ledge from the chalked down was not to be feared. It was estimated that $24,000,000 would build a tunnel wide enough for double tracks. This was at the rate of $3,000,000 a mile. In four years the promoters hoped to have the first shaft sunk, and the machinery was ordered, or built, and the great bore was said to be able to advance at the rate of a yard a hour, and pass out the earth and rock behind it. The French engineer approved the scheme, as did the French Chamber of Commerce, but English officialdom remained cold. The result was that the great project fell through. Since then it has been discussed more or less seriously a score of times, and the London, Chatham and Dover Railway has endeavored to arrange interest in the plan, but so far without much more success than attaches to the advancing of the metric system for England.

ETIQUETTE WARNINGS FOR THE GUEST AT THE VACATION HOSTELRY

The ever growing popularity of summer hotel life has stimulated some problems of existence, but, on the other hand, it has complicated matters in a way truly bewildering to the truly inexperienced person taking up residence for the first time in a fashionable summer hostelry. The "What do" upon all occasions is a most frantic question asked by the uninitiated, who, like true Americans, have a horror of appearing at a dinner party. The only way to get an answer to this question is by long experience, or, as few of us have time to acquire that, by being told. It is hoped these paragraphs will save many a social blunder and embarrassing moment. If you are going to a hotel in the height of the season do not ask for reduced rates. You will be laughed at for your expectations. Rather select a hotel whose rates come well within your purse without stretching the strings too tightly, for your hotel bills will be only part of your expenses. Never make the mistake of going to a hotel without money sufficient to pay all the servants who serve you. The question of fees is the most trying one to the ambitious sojourner at a hotel. The main point to remember is when you check, tip. The people who serve you hold it in their power to make you very happy or miserable, so do not forget to tip the head waiter down to "buttons." If you are staying by the week, fee weekly; if by the day, fee as you go. The size of the tip depends upon the hotel. If you are not certain about this matter ask in a very quiet way an approachable person what is the correct thing in this particular hotel. At the usual first class hostelry a dollar a week to the waiter who serves two of you is sufficient, or twenty-five cents each dinner. This may be left under the plate holding the finger bowl. The head waiter who bows you so grandly to your table at the table serve you your morning paper will expect at least a dollar a week if you are a party of three or four, and a dollar a week if you are alone. Hand it to him with a pleasant word as you leave the dining room. The chambermaid, too, never should be forgotten. Stick a ball to the pillowcase occasionally just for luck. The boy who checks your hat and umbrella when it rains would like a dime. In a word, never, never, if you value your peace of mind, consider that your hotel bill includes all expenses in the hotel, and moreover, think not that money alone will insure good service. There are no more astute readers of human nature than those same people who serve you, and none so appreciative of the true gentleness and gentleness. They serve with infinitely more pleasure and attentiveness those guests who know how to deal with them through dispensing modest tips than those who tip extravagantly. Do not know when the steak is well broiled or the coffee hot. The main point to remember is, insist upon good service; make sensible if you are not properly cared for, and appreciate good treatment when you get it. Do not mistreat the servants in their work. They are there to do everything and will consider you "cheap," intent upon saving a tip, or inexperienced, if you make your own bed or reach half way across the table for the oil or pepper duster. Resist an overweening desire to pass things to your neighbors at table. They will return your kind intentions by the cold unending of the people who think you unduly anxious to make their acquaintance. In the better hotels a chapman is provided. A beautifully engraved card is left in your post box stating that if you will send your card to Miss X, she will be glad to be of service to you. She is who arranges introductions, parties and excursions and acts as guide to the social amenities. If the hotel where you are stopping does not boast of a chapman, you can always find some nice old lady who will be glad to be of service to you. Stand upon your feet for you and be an authority on correct manners. Upon arriving at the hotel look about you to see who's who. Do not form lightning friendships and do not hobnob with unacquainted people. Select the persons whom you want to know, and, in football parlance, "keep your eye on the ball." It is the only way to be a successful football player or a social triumph. The way leading from the hotel are fascinating, and your acquaintance during a few summer weeks may make or mar your whole social career. Small excursions will be made up by instructing. Your turn will come. The expense of these parties, and, by no means hang back when it comes to paying your share. Nothing shows better freedom like unwillingness to bear expense. If you cannot afford the expense of the joint remain at the hotel. You can always plead dissimulation or a headache. Never confess that you have not sufficient money. Don't tell how your financial status, but tactfully avoid disclosure of a meager pocketbook. On the other hand, never pose as a gold brick man, that is, a man who has too much money, that is, a man who has too much money. Dress upon an important role in one's Summer comedy or tragedy. The main point is always to dress appropriately to the occasion. Don't wear a silk slip under your evening gown, or a flannel shirt under your evening jacket. People feel free to stare, so the quietly dressed person will be the most comfortable. One appears at breakfast with no hat, but, whatever it may be. The same dress may be worn at luncheon with the hat, but some sort of dinner frock is required. This may be either high or low necked as desired, but on no occasion should half worn out Winter ball gowns be utilized for this wear. Simple tub frocks of sheer material are much more appropriate and comfortable. Seldom are gloves worn except to afternoon tea. Remember that the hat is off conventionally and that if you want to be considered "seasoned," you will leave all still formality at home along with the Winter bonnets and bedraggled dinner gowns. One day is the life of a shirt waist in the Summer hotel. Do not become known as a "shirt" maker. You will be set down as inexperienced—that deadly thing which we are all trying to avoid—by the people who know.

Windsor Heard From!

Postmaster Wigle makes a statement. The following letter from Mr. Alfred Wigle, Postmaster at Windsor, who is a man of excellent musical ability, and a most competent judge, speaks very highly of the New Scale Williams Piano. Dear Sir:— I am delighted with the New Scale Williams Piano (Style Sherman), which I purchased from you. It fully equals, if not excels, your representations, and certainly exceeds the expectations which I had formed. I esteem it to be by far the best piano I have ever owned, and I have been the owner of four of the leading pianos manufactured in Canada. Its tone has clearness, power and volume and a resonance that lengthens and enhances its outpouring "concord of sweet sounds." Anyone conversant in music must know that quality of tone depends upon the material used and the construction of the musical instrument. I have no hesitation in saying my full conviction is that the New Scale Williams Piano with its Harmonic Tone-Prolonging Bridge and other noticeable modern improvements is by far the best piano manufactured in Canada or the United States to-day. It is, without doubt, the piano of instruments of the twentieth century. Yours very truly, ALFRED WIGLE, Postmaster W. H. JOHNSON CO. LTD., 7 Market Square.

FREE RENT FOR SUNDAY

Asked by the North Holland (Lincolnshire, England) magistrate what his wages were, an agricultural laborer stated that he received 12s per week with a cottage rent free on condition that he worked on Sundays. He also received twenty-five stones of bacon and five sacks of potatoes per annum, a barrel of beer yearly, sevenpence per couple for the towels he earned, and two-pence per dozen for eggs.

A Wife for Sale

The town crier at Cleveland (according to The Manchester Courier) has been found the town "crying" the following announcement: "This is to give notice that Mr. ... will not hold himself responsible for any debts contracted by his wife in his name after this notice; and he also wishes to state that he is now up for sale by private contract."

S. M. Watson, of Biddleford, Me., was killed by a horse recently. This fact is noteworthy because it is the first accident of the kind Mr. Watson has had in all his 20 years' experience as a horseowner. Horses are made principally in Biddleford, the seat of the industry since the 18th century. A good workman can make seven dozen in a day. Simple as the industry is, it is, without doubt, one of the most important of tools are used in their manufacture.

"What have you to say to this hair I found on your coat?" "It's a horse hair." "But it's a fine hair." "Yes; it was a fine horse."

El Barrow's Toronto team in the Eastern League claims a record for the numerical strength of its payroll. During the season thirty-nine players have been tried in the hope of landing a winner, but the combination hasn't been struck.

Cures Rheumatism

"I had an attack of Rheumatism—pains near my heart—which increased to such a degree that I became very anxious. I lost my appetite, and an intense itching or heating of the head made life miserable. I asked a druggist, was there nothing he could suggest that would help me, and he replied 'Why not try ABBEY'S SALT?' I did so, and can now state positively, and without solicitation that the Rheumatism has disappeared—my appetite is grand—and the itching of my scalp has ceased. I suggested to my aged Father and Mother that they should try ABBEY'S SALT for their Rheumatism—and they tell me it has relieved immense benefit." Here given an application. 25c. and 60c. a bottle. At all Druggists. Abbey's Effervescent Salt

Murderers and Their Advantages

(New York Press). The small but brilliant band of public men who see a menace in unlimited splitting of criminal law in "habit 77" of the criminal and severe in the interest of society now includes Dr. Andrew D. White. Although Justice Brewer would do away with technicalities in all kinds of litigation so far as it is possible to do so by restraining the legislative right of appeal, and although ex-jurisdiction Brown offers a sweeping condemnation of the whole system of jurisprudence which results in too much law and too little justice, Dr. White, like Secretary Taft, advances his case to the master of murder. Secretary Taft had given a startling demonstration of the large disproportion between murders and executions in the United States. Not only as a people do we hold life cheap, but as a governmental organism, this Mr. Taft has proved. Dr. White's reference is to "sundry recent cases in New York and elsewhere" wherein the process of punishment "is seen to be a farce." In the speaker's mind must have been the Patrick case, for there is no other such instance of endless recourer for a retrial in the delays and quibbles of the law. Merely to describe the various steps taken by Patrick through the legal labyrinth from the indictment to the stay granted by the United States supreme court would be a laborious task. "One of the worst results of these cases," says the former president of Cornell, "is the growing opinion among the people that men with money can so delay justice by every sort of chicanery that there is virtual immunity from punishment for the highest crimes." This brings to mind the attitude of a prosperous man-killer now caged in the Dumb, as credited to a lawyer in touch with the case, that Thaw treats the matter as if he had been jugged for smashing a barroom window. The wretched Pittsburgher is not a lawyer, like Patrick, but his wealth cannot fail to put him on a footing he would not find if only the essentials of guilt or innocence were considered by appellate courts. "I favor preventing appeals based on mere technical matters," says Dr. White, "which have really nothing to do with the question of guilt or innocence." By resort to all these thousand technicalities many well remembered murderers were proceution down to a shadow of its original self. They walk the streets today, even if the slayer of Stanford White were found guilty of murder in the first degree he would not go to the electric chair before 1908. PITTSBURG, July 25—Mrs. Hartie expressed herself as not at all alarmed over the report that kidnappers were laying plans to steal the children. It is thought the plot, if there is one, is the work of persons who want to hold the children for a ransom. Mother—Ely, they tell me that the young sawsaw runs after you everywhere. I think it is most improper. Daughter—Well, shall I run after him?—Katherine Wittels.

How to be Healthy and Beautiful by Mrs. Henry Symes

COMPLEXION CARE FOR THE LADY GIRL

Graceful Sports for Women

LARGE percentage of women who are anxious to improve their appearance are found among the workers. The girl who is obliged to hurry off to her office early in the morning and returns homeward at night weary in brain and body has this plea to justify her unprepossessing looks—I have no time. This is justifiable, and yet it does seem to me that the girl who is really desirous of improving her looks might contrive to devote fifteen minutes to the care of her complexion.

To Remove Dandruff. Tincture of cantharides, 1 ounce; liquid ammonia, 1 dram; glycerine, 1/2 ounce; oil of rose, 1/2 ounce; oil of cedar, 1/2 ounce. Mix all together with an ounce of rose-water until no further addition of dandruff is made.

Without doubt sports, in which there is fun and splendid exercise and the keen zest which is the keynote of the game, are the most picturesque of outdoor sports. Tennis and golf and the rest of the more strenuous sports are necessary, instead, impromptu contests may be got up among the beautifully gowned women whom a summer's afternoon is sure to bring to country homes.

How to Beautify the Face. Also put a pinch of borax in the water when you bathe your face. Blackheads of the Skin. Bone-ache, rheumatism, 2 ounces; rosewater, 4 ounces. Use with friction twice a day on the skin affected.

Let the water simmer for two hours, and strain through a fine hair sieve. When cold, add more alcohol, if you wish, and mix with a little glycerine. In addition to the meals during the day if possible. This sleep must always be natural. Nothing is so bad for the appearance and general health as sleep induced by alcohol, opium, or any form of artificial stimulant.

fighter who will make the trip to Australia is Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, who has a much better offer than Hart. Bill Squires is no mean opponent. Jim Corbett says of him: "He goes at his opponent something like Mike Schrock, the Dutchman, only his style is 100 per cent faster and better. His walk is something new. It lands with the accuracy of a surveyor's instrument, and is measured in mule foot pounds energy. He is not a boxer or a fighter. He is a warrior. He is a fine example of the strenuous life in the pugilistic game."

THE RING. HART CAN'T GO TO AUSTRALIA. After having made full preparations to go to Australia, Marvin Hart has had to give up the prospect for an indefinite time. Hart has come from his home near Louisville, Ky., to the effect that Hart had contracted fever on the Salt River. After a physician's examination Hart said that he would postpone his trip to Australia indefinitely. He thus loses the chance to fight Bill Squires, the Australian heavyweight for the $3,000 prize offered by some Melbourne sports, as well as an extra $1,000 for travelling expenses. THE CHAMPION WOMAN SWIMMER. Miss Kellerman Swims 23 Miles in Only Few Minutes Over Three Hours, Father Her Guide. Annette Kellerman, the young Australian who aroused so much enthusiasm in Europe last year by her swimming feats, has just captured the Australian record for a long-distance swim on the Danube. She swam the distance of 37 kilometers, or 23 miles, in 3 hours, 11 minutes and 20 seconds, but she completely out-distanced Austria's lady champion swimmer, Mrs. Tacchini. This is the first open competition Miss Kellerman has taken part in this year. Her success augurs well for her coming attempt to win the great race through Paris in the Seine and the swimming of the English Channel at the Straits of Dover.

London, July 27.—A despatch to a news agency from Tangier, Morocco, says that a serious all day long engagement has occurred near Mullaia and that the pretender forces were completely routed with heavy loss by the Sultan's troops, who afterwards paraded the district with their heads stuck on their bayonets as trophies of the victory.

An Ontario Election Case. Toronto, July 27.—(Special)—The Port Arthur and Rainy River (Ontario) election case will be heard tomorrow morning by the Ontario Court of Appeal. The case is one of the most important cases of the year. It concerns the validity of the election of Mr. Kennedy, Liberal, to the seat by a majority of fourteen out of 2,500 votes. W. A. Jones, Conservative candidate, complains on the ground that the names of many foreigners were improperly on the voters' list.

HADES LOCATED TO A FRACTION. Eccentric Evangelist Says it is Only Eighteen Miles from Ottawa. (Ottawa Citizen). "Where is hell? Exactly eighteen miles from Ottawa. That's all—dead right, too. Eighteen miles from Ottawa; eighteen miles right from this spot. Where is it? Up, down, north, east, west or south? Down—right due down from this spot. Thermometer heat isn't in it with the terrific heat of hell; at eighteen—or in hell—miles water; at eighteen—or in hell—miles silver, platinum, any old thing will use into a terrifically sparkling precious metal. At the exact center, there's no 'down'—no bottom; it's a bottomless pit—bottom, no top."

CHARGES POLICE WITH AN ASSAULT

Peter LeClair Lays Complaint Against Sergt. James Campbell.

Peter LeClair came to the police court this morning and stated that Sergeant James Campbell had assaulted him, and he wanted a warrant for his arrest. The judge told him that it was not necessary to issue warrants in such cases and set the case down for Monday at 9.30 a. m.

The complainant in the case is a "longshoreman, and yesterday was on the I. C. R. wharf in the company of other working men. Up to ten o'clock in the forenoon he had been working on a vessel and he says that afterwards he was standing on the wharf waiting to go to work, when Sergeant Campbell came along and ordered him and the other men off the wharf. No one obeyed the command, and LeClair told the sergeant that he would not leave the wharf as he expected to go to work. He alleges that the sergeant then grabbed him and shoved him. He told him not to touch him and because the sergeant did LeClair says he has laid the complaint.
