ALL NEW TODAY IN OPERA HOUSE BILL

As usual there will be a smashing big vaudeville programme at the Opera House today, all new acts direct from the big theatres, genuine "big time" vaudeville.

The Man In The Street

Wouldn't a fine clear half-holiday be a pleasant surprise? Tax bills distributed today contained some surprises not so pleasant.

Getting a tax bill is no pleasure, but paying it this year will be even less enjoyable.

By the way, is any one paying taxes on that $100,000 which has been figuring in the Valley railway inquiry?

If the different tax rates for earned and unearned incomes were in force in St. John, under which heading would this amount be classed?

Even in war times ten per cent. would be a good return on capital; at this rate $100,000 would be the income from an investment of $1,000,000.

But "influence" of this kind has seriously depreciated in value since the change in the provincial administration.

However, the means by which the $100,000 was earned is merely a side-line; one might be entitled to wonder what the public-spirited citizen would charge for a full day's work.

The province will have to pay off that $100,000 without the aid of a movie tax.

The defender of the working man has done his best to avoid an increase in the cost of one of the first necessities of life.

Why should the working man be taxed a cent when he goes to the theatre to get his daily dose of Charlie Chaplin and Mary Pickford to enable him to sustain another day of strenuous toil?

"Veritas et fides" are nothing to the danger from which the toilers have been protected, and the "Scarlet Stain" on the history of the province has been posted enough without another quip being added to it.

Of course the members opposed to it in the public interest; the legislature, it would seem that it is inspired by "The Hidden Hand" or "The Voice on the Wire," or that he was merely endeavoring to give the government "The Double Cross."

When a private member, by threats of filibustering methods can hold up the legislature, it would seem that St. John should exercise some care in selecting a representative on whom to confer this power.

Why They Smiled A young man who was enjoying a cab drive through the city streets the other day was pleasantly surprised to find how popular he was.

He was kept busy bowing and smiling in return, in most cases to persons whom he had never even met before.

The triumphal progress continued until he sighted and discovered the reason for the friendly smiles. He was returning from the station with the bridegroom after bidding farewell to the newly married couple at whose wedding he had assisted.

Mr. Stewart and Mr. Campbell will preach the gospel at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. everybody welcome. No collections.

"EVERYBODY'S GOING" The "Allies Amusement Co. (pleasure promoters), are ahead with a moonlight sail on Monday evening, June 25.

Ten cents a block is good pay for a short walk, as one citizen figures it. He entered a grocery store the other day and inquired the price of potatoes.

"Eighty cents a peck" was the amount quoted. It seemed too much, so he walked two blocks to the city market.

"Sixty cents a peck" was the answer, and he was twenty cents ahead of the game.

RECENT DEATHS The death of Everett Jenkins occurred at his home in Loggieville on Tuesday evening of last week.

Mrs. Ellenora Hanson, widow of Edgar Hanson, died at her home in Fredericton on Friday.

Mrs. Lucy Sharp, widow of Hull Sharp, passed away at the home of her grandson, Elmo Reid, Hopewell, on Monday at the age of ninety-three years.

WILSON—In loving memory of Rev. Robert Wilson, who fell asleep June 24, 1912.

CARDS OF THANKS The family of the late William H. McConnell express thanks to the doctors and nurses of the General Public Hospital, and to many friends for kindness and floral tributes in connection with the death of their father.

Vacation Death Roll

During every holiday season the newspapers record a startling number of accidental deaths among pleasure seekers.

Supposing you should lose your life while on your vacation this year, what will happen to your family? Do you realize that you've a duty towards them that doesn't end with your death?

Perhaps your wife hasn't been trained to be a bread-winner. But your failure to protect her until she dies—will the children are educated and self-supporting—may force your widow into the business grind in spite of her incapacity.

It's not a pleasant prospect, is it? But isn't it a possible contingency? To offset it you need an Imperial policy to perpetuate your income after you're gone.

Write for literature and terms today. Tomorrow may be too late.

THE ISSUE IN CANADA

"Until Canada is organized on a basis of war service, until the official attitude towards the war is one of national effort, and not of private enterprise for profit, what prospect is there of enthusing the people to the necessary pitch of sacrifice?"

This question, asked by the Ottawa Citizen, is coupled with the following observations: "Only the wilfully blind could fail to see that some people of this country are not willing to submit to conscription of life unless at least equal measures of conscription are applied to the material resources and the wealth of Canada."

This paragraph describes the situation exactly. It is confirmed by the debate of the present week at Ottawa. The mere conscription of men is not enough, and if that conscription is merely proposed for the purposes of an election campaign, and no definite date is given for putting it into effect, the country will be all the more suspicious of it and the government by which it has been introduced.

THE FUEL PROBLEM

Would it not be well for the city council or a committee of citizens to give some thought to the question of providing a supply of wood for fuel next winter, in addition to the possible coal supply, which will be very high in price?

Sor - time ago ex-Mayor Frink suggested that a great deal of wood could be cut on wood-lands owned by the city - and cut at small cost. Against this it is said that the men employed might do more damage by fire than the wood-pile would pay for, but there is no ground for any such fear.

It is worth while to consider to what extent wood could be used in a city where coal has so long been the chief fuel, and at what price it could be provided. Consider the case of a man who has a wife and six children, and earns $12.00 per week. How is he to pay a high price for coal when there are eight mouths to feed on an average of less than $2 per day, also providing footwear and clothing? There will be many families next winter whose income will be small in comparison with the cost of food, fuel and clothing that they cannot but suffer. If by any means the cost of their fuel can be reduced it will not be an interference with the regular fuel dealers, as the supply would only be for the benefit of those who simply could not pay high prices. At all events, the question is worthy of serious consideration, and if anything is to be done the arrangements ought to be made as soon as possible.

THE LEGISLATURE

Premier Foster and his colleagues have come most creditably through their first legislative session. They have put some valuable legislation on the statute books, and when we remember how short a time they had to prepare their work and to acquaint themselves with the affairs of the various departments it is clear that they have made a very excellent beginning.

During the current year the government may fairly be charged to the old government, but the new one must now make its own record. The opposition, on the whole behaved itself very well, which is not surprising in view of the facts that have been brought to light since the new government turned the searchlight on the record of the last few years. There is much the opposition would like the people to forget, and there is also the prospect of further revelations of an interesting character.

During the current year the government will be able to devote itself to a more thorough study of provincial affairs and prepare further legislation of an important nature. Most of all it should insist that value is received for every dollar of public funds expended in the various departments. The financial position of the province is far from what it should be, and this is due to the recklessness and graft which marked the administration of affairs for the last nine years.

Premier Foster has made a good beginning. He stands high in the house as in the province, and being a young man he has before him very great possibilities in public life.

THAT $5,000 CHECK

That is a significant paragraph in the report of Price, Waterhouse & Co., which says: "Copies of orders dated February 16, 1917, for the supply of auto road trucks (10 to cost $77,000 and 10 to cost $87,440) were produced for our inspection. On February 2, 1917, a cheque for $5,000 was issued to the Smith Foundry Company, Fredericton, the local agents of the White Company of Cleveland, Ohio, as a deposit on the orders subsequently given."

That is to say, a cheque for $5,000 was given by the Hon. B. Frank Smith's department to the Smith Foundry before the orders for trucks were placed. This cheque was issued on Feb. 2, 1917, or just before the elections. This little transaction is to be further investigated. Incidentally it may be observed that the old government ordered some trucks which are wholly unsuited to the roads of this province because of their great weight. They would serve very well on a permanent road, but would by their weight crush the average culvert on the New Brunswick roads. Just what can be done with them it is not easy to say.

A SEARCHING CRITICISM

The Canadian Courier vigorously dissects from Sir George Foster's assertion that the war has made it impossible for a government to regulate prices. It points out that food is as cheap in London as it is here, after all the cost of haulage, insurance and risk of submarines; and that since Canada produces more foodstuffs than England "a government could, if it wanted to, conscript every crop to feed Canada for a year at less than famine prices." The Courier says further: "Unless the department of trade and commerce advises such action, it will likely not be taken. The department, we take it, does not approve of a food controller. Canada, the most bountiful producer of all the nations, according to home demand, is not to have her production and distribution of food regulated as it is in England and the United States. We don't quite see Sir George Foster's daylight. If Canada is to go on putting an increased weight into the war on all sides, it is absolutely essential that she take advantage of her own resources to keep the cost of food at least a margin lower than it is in England, France or Germany."

The Toronto Star says: "In this country just now supply gets no square chance to meet demand. Let it be admitted that it would scarcely do for the government to fix prices capriciously on the prime necessities of life. That is not what is being proposed. It is proposed, however, that, nearly all the world being at war, the government should realize the fact that it is in charge of the business management of a great country with diversified productions, and its export trade unsettled and seriously interrupted. Conditions are so unusual that the business of the country needs some special general management, which the government ought to give, because the special management which is expected to provide this special management in the public interest. If the government does not furnish special direction in these unusual circumstances, private interests will find a way of doing it and it will be done in their own interests. As is well known, they are doing it now and hugely to their own benefit."

The Murray government claimed a surplus of $12,077 on Oct. 31, 1916. Price, Waterhouse & Co. show in their report, tabled in the legislature on Thursday, that there was really a deficit of $706,838, which had accumulated but had been covered up. Not until the government was defeated and this great firm of auditors given access to the books and accounts were the facts revealed. The new government should see to it that the report of Price, Waterhouse & Co. is distributed throughout the province. It will serve as a constant reminder of what happens when the rule of graft is recognized at Fredericton.

Toronto Star:—Hon. Robert Rogers seeks to create the impression that Mr. Justice Galt is hostile to him for party reasons. Mr. Rogers assumes, says the Renfrew Mercury, "that few among the public know that Mr. Justice Galt comes of Conservative stock, that he was appointed to a judgeship by a Conservative government, and that he was, before leaving the bar for the bench, an active Conservative politician."

The conviction grows and spreads that the Borden government is more concerned in carrying the country in the general elections than in throwing Canada's whole weight into the war.

This has been a good growing week, and the farmers have also been enabled to hurry along their belated seeding. There is still a prospect of good crops. Whatever intoxicates a man sets him in the path that leads to the police court. It is quite easy to remain sober, and far more prudent.

Sorry She Asked. It was at a private entertainment, and a lady had just risen from the piano. "Would you like to be able to play as I do, dear?" she queried of a little five year old girl. "No, ma'am," was the unexpected reply. "And why not?" asked the lady. "Cause," explained the proud little observer, "I wouldn't like to have people say such horrid things about me."

She Was Not Quite Sure. A youth of the "kunt" species was exhibiting some photographs to a charming girl with whom he was in love. "This one," he said, handing her a picture, "is my photograph with two French poodles. Can you recognize me?" "Why—yes, I think so," replied the young lady, looking intently at the picture. "I'm the one with the hat on, are you not?"

Danger to Imitate. "My little girl is very clever," said a lady to her guests. "She can imitate the husband proudly." "Come, my dear, show us what you can do. Pretend to be the housemaid." "She can, say the husband proudly, giving a most realistic impersonation, greatly to the amusement of the guests. "Oh, my dear," checked the proud father. Backing away from her father, she exclaimed, in a terrified tone: "Sir, let me go! Don't touch me, sir! Let me go! Give you a kiss, indeed! Suppose missus was to hear you?" Then the clever darling was suddenly huddled out of the room.

have worked lasting injury to the good reputation of our city. Because of this record Democrats have never had any respect for Tammany Hall, and in consequence the Democratic party in New York City has had absolutely no weight in national party councils. Every Democrat in and out of Tammany Hall knows the bitter truth of this fact.

HOW TO DO IT. A "Man Doctor" unobtrusively declares that women do everything rather less perfectly than men. They don't cook so well, they don't make dresses quite so well, they don't (so we have heard, though the medical accuser is a dumb on this point) trim hats quite so well as a man who sets himself to millinery.

LLOYD GERGE TOO FLIGHTY?

Spectator Arraigns Government For Its "Levity"

Says Wild Elephant Is Loose

Appointment of Lord Northcliffe Criticised Because Balfour Was Not Consulted About It—A Remarkable Article

London, June 19.—Under the heading "Gravity and Government," the Spectator publishes a remarkable article, wherein the following are extracts:

"The outstanding lesson of the last six months, the period during which the Lloyd George administration has been in power, is that gravity, weight and due sense not only of responsibility but of dignity and solidity are absolutely necessary in the government of a great empire in a great crisis like the present. The government have done well in certain matters, and especially well on the negative side. There can be no question they have not interfered with the military policy, and they have been conspicuously successful in supplying the financial needs of war. They have also shown commendable alertness and activity, and what is perhaps best of all, a high spirit. They have tended to be depressed or to allow the nation to be depressed by the difficulties or by enemy bluff. But after we have made all allowances for their good qualities and good intentions, we are bound to say there has been a certain levity. We do not, of course, use the word in the popular sense of frivolity, but as an opposite of weight and steadiness, a certain irresponsibility, a certain fuss and hurry and confusion in all their doings.

"They have laid themselves open to the charge of raising every sort of problem but of solving none, of applying emollients and counter-irritants here a soothing syrup and there a mustard plaster; here a poultice and there a cautery; here a styptic and there an astringent. It is, if you will, a well-meant, passionate, eager clinic, but at the same time a mighty maze and quite without plan, or at least without any such infusion and suffusion of plans that the original scheme has been lost, strayed or mislaid in the jungle of new inventions which always springs up.

No Check on Defects

"Though we did not desire to see the old coalition government upset, and deprecated very strongly the manner in which it was brought to the ground, we were willing, when Lloyd George accepted power, to support him and his government and to encourage the nation in giving him every chance to do his best. It was not until we saw that the chief considerations that induced us to take this line, in spite of certain strong misgivings in regard to Lloyd George's levity, flightiness and general lack of gravity, was that we were told that the new plan of a supreme war cabinet would provide exactly the check upon his political defects which is required at a time of national crisis.

"Lloyd George was to develop the necessary engine of power, and his colleagues of the war cabinet were to be the controls to direct that energy into its rightful channels, to steady it where necessary, and to apply it at the right time and in the right place. The more cynical people said it was the old story of a wild elephant between two tigers. Lord Carson experienced elephants. Lord Carson and Lord Milner. They were to keep their gay and headstrong colleague to his task, and to see that he did not fling his feet about too wildly or diverge too widely from the path in coming from or going to his work.

"We are bound to say that the part of the scheme which so much attracted us, and we believe won for the government the support of a large section of the serious men of the nation, was the control being at work; the wild elephant is out on his own and the tame elephants are standing helplessly by or else trotting painfully miles behind him, while he goes tearing and trumpeting through the forest."

Levity Reigned Supreme

The Spectator refers to the national service failure and that of the food controller's department, and continues:

"Take the next case of the appointments to offices of prime importance. Here again levity ruled supreme. We only quote one instance—the appointment of Lord Northcliffe. We are not going to say a word against the abilities of the person appointed, now that he has been made Balfour's successor. We sincerely hope Lord Northcliffe's well-known admiration for America and his powers will enable him to do good service for the state. He has many qualities which should make for success. His must receive all the support and encouragement that he can give him. The object to us is the amazing levity in the manner in which the appointment was made. It is one in the region of foreign affairs, that is, in the department of Balfour, but the government apparently did not wait for Balfour to come home, though such waiting would only have delayed the appointment by four or five days. The argument for a little delay is not merely courtesy, and because the appointment lay in the region covered by Balfour's department. The essential reason for waiting was the fact that Balfour had, for the particular purposes of this appointment, become the greatest expert who could possibly have been consulted."

U.S. ARMY IS ON WATER WAGON

No Wet Canteen Even In France

General Pershing's Views

Ardent Advocate of Prohibition and Points to Mexican Expedition as an Illustration of its Value to Soldiers

A few days ago the New York Tribune published a cartoon which represented "John Barleycorn" with a rope around his neck, while the American congress, with a shotgun, called "prohibition" in its hand, wondered whether the prisoner ought to be shot or merely hanged on a rope of "prohibitive taxation" and left to slowly strangle. There is a formidable movement in the United States to make the country "bone dry" for the duration of the war, and there is a growing conviction among those interested in the liquor business that what goes "for the duration of the war" is likely to go more or less permanently.

The American army and navy are dry, and they will fight this war on grape juice or tea or chewing gum or whatever other non-alcoholic stimulant appeals to their palates. Even in France they will not be permitted to have a wet canteen, according to W. O. McGehee, who writes in the Tribune, and who speaks from knowledge of Gen. Pershing.

Pershing for Prohibition

The commander of the American Army is a "crank" on prohibition. He insists that the American soldier can do better work without a drink than with it, and he points to his expedition into Mexico in proof thereof. As a matter of fact, the general public is not aware that the Mexican campaign established very much of anything. Villa is still at large so far as we know, but Pershing insists that the health and morale of his Mexican army were great if they did not the Pershing expedition would close them with violence and probably destroy their stock of goods.

Mr. McGehee says that among the troops on the Mexican expedition were many men who went into the country "moderately soft and rum soaked." The sanitary reports of the expedition are likely to show some wonderful results. The sick reports were startling meagre.

The San Francisco Earthquake

Gen. Funston, who, but for his sudden death a few months ago, would doubt have commanded the American troops in France, was as much a prohibitionist as Pershing. He imposed prohibition for a spell on San Francisco, one of the most notorious cities in the world, during the earthquake. At the time of the earthquake in April, 1906, Funston was in charge of the American troops in that city. The patriotic and the federal government naturally turned to the nearest representative of the federal government and Funston was invited to take charge of the situation. On his way to see the mayor, Funston saw a crowd of men staggering out of a saloon with their arms full of bottles. In the instant he decided that the saloon should be destroyed. Orders were given to the soldiers, police and militia to destroy the contents of every bar in the city and to confiscate all liquor found in the possession of any citizen.

No Need for Appetizers

The gutters ran with whiskey, and beer and wine. For a few days the population, used to frequent and regular consumption of alcohol, protested but was paid, and presently the city adjusted itself to the second catastrophe as it had to the first. To take the measure of the popular appetite, and probably to make the cocktail unnecessary as an appetizer, Funston and men of high social standing were compelled by a brutal citizenry to spend an hour a day in tossing bricks out of the streets. They acquired all the appetite they could profitably bring in San Francisco. It is noted that although millions of dollars' worth of liquor were destroyed by Funston in San Francisco, nobody ever put in a claim for damages. Pershing, noted, inherits the Funston tradition, and for the American army in France it will be a long time between drinks.

ADMINISTRATION FOOT BILL ENDORSED BY COL. BRYAN

Washington, June 23.—William J. Bryan, passing through the city, endorsed the bill in this statement:

"The lives of its young men and call for the money of its older men should have power to protect the whole people from the greed of an unparliamentary few. I am not afraid to trust the president with the powers which the food administration bill proposes to confer. He has the right without a selfish interest. No president would abuse such a power."

WHAT THE SCENARIO EDITOR DOES TO THE STORIES SUBMITTED

Authors Find it Difficult to Recognize Their Children When They See Them on the Screen

In an article entitled "Don't Blame the Author," in Pictorial Review for July, Channing Pollock says in part:—

In film-land, it isn't only "somewhere East of Suez" that "the best is like the worst"; good stories and bad, carefully written and carelessly, painstaking and patchwork, passing under the hands of two or three hard-driving hired men, are apt to finish upon something very like a dead level. Certain accepted features of the photo-play are pretty sure to creep in; certain departures and distinctions are pretty sure to leak out; if a picture from the pen of your favorite action-writer proves commonplace and banal—don't blame the author!

Rachel Crothers, responsible for "The Three of Us," "Young Wisdom" and "Old Lady B," went to a private showing of her first—and last—contribution to the "movies," a tale entitled "The Dynasty of Love." "Here is a hell," said the president of the company. "If you find anything very wrong, jingle it, summon my stenographer, and set the thing right."

"Within a few minutes," declares Miss Crothers, "I sounded like the Swiss bell-ringers."

In the beginning, I could do nothing that even remotely resembled my story. "We were obliged to arrange a scene introducing a girl who was the president of the company. If you find anything very wrong, jingle it, summon my stenographer, and set the thing right."

"The whole world there are not more than a hundred persons whose dramatic instinct qualifies them for writing plays. In New York alone there are two or three hundred salaried improvers whose job it is to re-write these plays; to put in the 'punch' and the comedy, and the continuity that have escaped out of leading novelists and dramatists. Small wonder that the result achieved."

Something different from the original in my own experience, I had a mystery-story, the mystery of which depended upon how one of its characters obtained certain market skills, begun with a scene in which the character in question was shown receiving these skills. This story, "Who Killed Simon Baird" was presented under the title, "By Whose Hand?" There then was the case of "The Red Window," a success chiefly because of its consistent plot, in the cinema edition of which that plot was side-tracked to permit the introduction of two reels of horseplay at a wedding not even mentioned in the fore. The producers paid a high royalty for a popular piece in order that they might utilize the talents of John Barrymore in dropping him out of the back of a hack!

Mere lack of training hardly accounts for the blindness with which stories are re-made in the motion-picture studios, for the fashion in which their meaning is lost, their themes distorted, and their very narration jumble and and their certain market skills, begun with a scene to love, containing an unimportant and subsequent incident, are put in the injection of some romance, because its adaptation could see in it nothing but a tale of crime.

"When the adapters were through, I couldn't see even that. I had conceived the play, and set it on paper, and re-heard the two companies that presented it, but, to this day, I haven't discovered what was the idea of the screen version. In which respect, I am even worse off than Margaret Deland, who wrote of the film made from "The Iron Woman." It was extraordinarily confused, and so incoherent that, unless I had been somewhat familiar with the story, I could not possibly have understood what it was all about."

"The absurd, unreasoning, and unreasonable things that do to your best efforts" writes Louis Joseph Vance, novelist, known for his Joan Sawyer and "The Brass Bowl" Have you seen my serial, "The Secret Kingdom" I haven't. I lost interest about the time the chief scenario-writer informed me he wasn't going to let any blanketed author tell him what to do with a story! What he did without being told I gathered from a lithograph in front of the New York Theatre. There was a shipwreck with a looting party made up of negro beach-combers in the Bahamas. In my manuscript, I had gone into detail about these beach-combers, explaining that they were children of slaves who eked out a living by plundering vessels washed ashore in these possessions of Great Britain. Judge my surprise when I encountered a multi-colored depiction of Charles Richman clinging to a masthead and kicking in the abdomen a savage clad in a leopard-skin and wearing a ring in his nose!

"Joan Sawyer," if it had any merit, was interesting as a study of the manner in which stage success developed the selfishness of its principal character. Rechristened "The Footlights of Fate," the screen version of this story progressed to a climax in which Joan nobly and generously sacrificed herself to keep out of the path of another woman.

The written eighteen books, and in the theatre of them done as motion pictures, there hasn't been evidence of a single attempt to follow the original narrative, or to do anything more than group five reels of conventionally sensational incident around some one 'punch' and a title.

"Grace Miller White's sequel to "Tess of the Storm Country," like the original story, was located on the shore of a widely-known lake near Ithaca. The scenario-writer who adapted the tale achieved a remarkable situation by having one of the characters tied to a towering rock that isn't in this lake, and never has been, and nearly drowned by the rising tide.

"Of course, tides don't rise in inland waters, but how was the scenario-writer to know that? Anyway, mere revolution of nature is a detail unimportant in comparison with the utter subversion of purpose, the destruction of dramatic values befalling practically every manuscript dropped into the mill of motion picture gods. The film version of Eleanor Gates' classic "The Poor Little Rich Girl," the foundation upon which the play stood, was the unappreciated thing of its closely-guarded little heroines, having had everything that money could buy and nothing that childhood could want. Never once had she been permitted to make mud-pies.

The order of the court below as to costs stands and there are no costs to either party on the appeal.

Levi Downey vs. Commissioners of Sewers for the parish of Hopewell, etc., the chief justice, Judge Grimmer and Judge Crockett.

Judge Grimmer read the judgment of the chief justice who was absent, dismissing the appeal with costs.

Rosenburg vs. Rich, the chief justice, Judge White and Judge Grimmer. Judge White read the judgment of the court that costs be taxed according to the county court scale.

This was on a question of costs in a suit for slander. The plaintiff was awarded one dollar damages and under an old act passed in the reign of James I. It was claimed that the plaintiff was entitled to no more costs than the amount of the damages. The appeal court did not sustain the contention.

HARVARD AND THE WAR

An appeal is being made for money for the reserve officers' training corps at Harvard which was established in the University in February, 1917, and was approved by the war department. The training is substantially the same as that given at the regular government camps, such as Palsburg. Three captains of the United States regular army are in charge. In addition, six sergeants of the regular army are detailed as instructors. Also, a considerable number of the teaching staff of the university are giving their services to the administrative work of the corps. The Harvard training camp must be supported entirely by contributions. The United States government can at this time supply only the necessary rifles.

GERMANS STRIP WARSHIPS AND TAKE GUNS TO THE FRONT

Paris, June 22.—Artillerymen taken prisoners recently say that many long range guns now being used by the Germans have been taken from warships. One prisoner said his guns were from the Kaiser Barbarossa, while many others were from the same class of vessels. The feeling between the German infantry and artillery is becoming more intense, and there is general complaint of insufficient guns.

THE COURTS.

Appeal Division of Supreme Court Delivers Judgement in Four Cases—Law of Time of James I Does Not Hold.

Fredrickton, N. B., June 22.—The appeal division of the supreme court gave judgment in four cases today.

Ex Parte Thomas, Judge White, Judge Barry and Judge Grimmer. Application for the discharge of the prisoner was refused.

Charles E. Thomas was arrested in Westmorland county and held for extradition under instruction of the Massachusetts district attorney, the prisoner having been convicted of forgery in that state. Application under habeas corpus was made on the ground that the warrant committed did not sufficiently state the offence under the extradition act. This contention has not been upheld by the appeal court.

HIGH-COST-OF-LIVING TALK, NO. 4

Be Moderate in Your Demands. There are 240 different operations in putting a shoe together. The human equation enters largely into the problem of producing shoes and there are many things that MAY happen to shoes that cannot be avoided.

The increase in the cost of shoes has a tendency to make people expect longer wear. We want to be very frank and have our customers understand the facts.

Because YOU are paying more for shoes than formerly, it does not mean that you can get longer wear. The same shoes (and sometimes shoes not as good) cost more, due to causes outlined in previous articles.

When claims that are justifiable are made and shoes have been worn, we will endeavor to adjust on basis of charging for wear received and allow the difference toward the price of a new pair.

Our prices and terms are absolutely the same to everybody.

MT. ST. VINCENT CLOSING. At the closing exercises of Mount St. Vincent Academy, Halifax, this week, among the honor winners were Miss Elizabeth Gorman, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Gorman, St. John, medallion of honor, and Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McElroy, of Oromocto, special prize for Christian doctrine, class I; gold cross and chain for music, presented by Dr. W. D. Finn, and special prize for theory in music. In the programme of the day, Miss Gorman took the part of the Archbishop of Rheims in a dramatic production, "Jeanne D'Arc." Miss McElroy was a member of the orchestra. Archbishop McElroy, in speaking of the work of Mount St. Vincent, complimented the pupils on their finished performances and thanked them for the excellent entertainment which they had provided. Judge Longley, who is a familiar figure at the exercises, spoke in brief of the growth of the institution since its inception some forty years ago. Doctor Mackenzie, of Dalhousie, made reference to the new arrangement which had been made with that university in the opening up of the collegiate course, the course at present being modelled after the B. FRANCE NEEDS MORE MERCHANT VESSELS. Work of Increasing Number to Be Placed Under One Control. Paris, June 23.—The chamber of deputies yesterday passed a resolution placing the urgent work of increasing the French merchant marine under the control of one department. During the debate many members spoke of the various dangers to the country's food supply as a result of the insufficient number of merchant ships.

HEARING RESUMED IN CRAWFORD CASE. The preliminary hearing in the case of Joseph O'Brien and John Hughes, under arrest on suspicion of setting fire to the summer cottage of W. J. Crawford, Loch Lomond road, was resumed in the police court this morning. New interest was given to the case today when Fred R. Taylor, K. C., appeared in the interests of Mr. Crawford. Several witnesses were present in court this morning as a result of subpoenas being issued yesterday. Mrs. Mary Lyden, a resident of Loch Lomond road, living a little beyond the five-mile house, was recalled. She said when cross examined by Mr. Taylor that she could not identify the two prisoners as the men who called at her store on the Friday night on which the house was burned. There were two men in her kitchen at the time making some repairs to a door. Two men entered the shop and asked for a drink of beer, which was served them. They left immediately after. There was nothing out of the ordinary by which she could remember the two men. The case was proceeding at time of going to press and judging from the number of witnesses to be examined the hearing would last well over two hours. Mr. Taylor said at the beginning of the hearing that he had only returned from Montreal and would be at a disadvantage as he had not been familiar with the facts of the case and hinted an adjournment. The court said that as many of the witnesses had come from the country the case would go on but no unfairness would be done anyone.

It is more easily cleaned and more sanitary than the wooden tub, and weighs only 2 1-2 lbs. Its place is on the pantry shelf, not in the cellar. WANT CANADIANS IN CANADIAN PULPITS

Warm Debate in Toronto Methodist Conference on Importing Britishers

"Is Ministry a Union?"—Motion is Carried Asking Inquiry Into Fitness of Training of Clergy

By an almost unanimous vote, Toronto Methodist conference declared today for an inquiry into the training of Canadian Methodist preachers. This action was taken as the direct result of the action of the ministerial section in voting by 104 to 30 to admit a British minister, Rev. Trevor Davies, to conference so that he could take the Metropolitan pulpit.

He moved this resolution: "Whereas, it is manifest that our methods of obtaining and training men for the ministry would seem to be inadequate, as is evident by the fact that several times during recent years prominent churches have secured ministers from the old land; therefore, be it resolved that we memorialize the general conference to appoint a commission to inquire into our course of study for probationers, our colleges and everything connected with ministerial training, and report at an early date with a view to remedying the defects."

NEW POUND NOTES HARD TO IMITATE
Many Safeguards in English Issue To Baffle Counterfeiters

The forger who meditates reproducing the design of the new pound sterling currency notes issued in England will be a very clever craftsman if he succeeds. There are quite a number of safeguards introduced, apart from the system of watermarks, the most effective being the portrait of the king and the representation of St. George's encounter with the dragon. These, together with the broad band connecting them, have been reproduced by a special process which has never before been utilized for such a purpose, and the most expert photographer would be baffled in trying to secure a photographic copy of Bertram Kennal's work.

The designs themselves are reproduced in a brown color, but they are ingeniously "over-printed" in green and purple, and it is believed to be impossible for any photographic process to photograph the main design through the protective overprint of green and purple. A few years ago the French government introduced multi-color paper money to prevent forgery, and though the French notes are not camera-proof, they have been most successful in making the business of forging them too costly to be profitable.

by the Prussian bourgeois, whereas the Order of the Black Eagle is almost as exclusive as the English Garter. Red Eagles are allotted generally in January, along with other similar distinctions, at a festival of orders, which includes a truly democratic banquet where the chancellor may find himself sitting side by side with a station-master, or even his local postman. In the January before the war some 7,000 orders were handed out at this annual festival, no fewer than 1,200 of which were of the Red Eagle brand.

DECORATIONS IN GERMANY CHEAP

Reference Made in British House of Lords to Hun Orders

Mention by Lord Lansdowne, in the recent debate on the Enemy Princes Bill, that Lord Middleton possessed the Prussian Order of the Red Eagle, led that nobleman to intervene with the remark that when it was offered to him he wished to decline it, but was forced to accept it. The Red Eagle is certainly not a decoration coveted by the great ones of the earth, for it is one of the most lavishly-distributed of the many by means of which the Kaiser maintains his popularity among his subjects. It is cheap, and for this reason coveted

BIGGEST RETAIL MAN IN ALL WORLD

Frank W. Woolworth Was a Gawk Farm Boy

Three titles to distinction are claimed for Frank W. Woolworth. First, he is the largest retail merchant in the world. Second, he owns the tallest building (and one of the handsomest) in the world. Third, he was the greenest and gawkiest boy who ever came off a farm. He was such a palpable hayseed, indeed, that, try as he might to merchants at first would engage him at any price. He had to work for three months without any wages and board himself, and he was told that he ought to consider himself lucky because he did not have to pay his employer a tuition fee. For a humble beginning that must come pretty near to breaking all records.

When finally young Woolworth did find work, without wages, and after two and a half years moved on to another job at $10 a week, so complete a failure did he prove at selling goods, according to B. C. Forbes, writing in Leslie's, that his small pay was reduced instead of increased—and the shock temporarily shattered his health. Biography probably contains no more novel experience of an American captain of industry.

It was in 1873 that young Woolworth arrived in Watertown, N. Y., with a note of introduction to the senior partner of Augsbury and Moore, dry goods merchants, but he didn't want him.

At the end of two and a half years—he was getting $6 a week. Hearing of a vacancy in another store he went to apply. But when he saw how biggedy-piggledy everything was, he decided to name a high salary, thinking to be turned down. He asked $10 a week and was astonished when the proprietor said: "All right, when will you com-

Economy

Many people think they are saving money by buying cheap tea, forgetting that it is not the cost per pound but the cost per cup that determines a tea's economy.

You may pay 5 or 10 cents more per pound for Red Rose Tea than for common tea. But because Red Rose Tea is a blend of Indian-Assam teas with Ceylons, consisting of the choice tender shoots and buds—the parts of the tea plant that yield the largest amount of liquor and the finest flavor—one-third less is required in the pot to make the same number of cups.

The cost per cup between Red Rose Tea and common tea is then practically the same. But the flavor—what a difference.

And this distinctive and delightful flavor and rich strength is protected by the Red Rose sealed package. No air, odors or dust can get in to injure Red Rose Tea's splendid quality and economy.

Order a package from your grocer.

In sealed packages only. Red Rose crushed coffee is as generously good as Red Rose Tea and just as easy to make.

He took the job, and on this big salary felt justified in getting married. After a couple of months the proprietor met him in the basement one day and unceremoniously told him there were boys getting $6 a week who sold more goods than he sold, and that they could not continue to pay him $10 a week. So his pay was cut to $8 a week—and he was married.

"This was a terrible blow, and under it my health gave way. For a year I was at home unable to do a stroke of work. I became convinced that I was not fitted for mercantile life. . . . Eventually my former employers offered me $10 a week to come back and tune up the store. I remained with them two years until I opened up my first five-cent store at Utica, N. Y., on February 22, 1879."

We read that, less than two years after the pioneer five-and-ten-cent store idea was inaugurated, its author, finding himself worth $2,000, "which looked bigger to him than than $20,000 would now," and in need of a vacation, revisited Watertown and "was received like a conquering hero."

Incidentally, three out of the first five stores opened by Woolworth proved failures. In fact it was not until he opened a five-and-ten-cent store in New York in 1888, and again lost his health through overwork, that he began to see success written in big letters. Since his first breakdown his health had never recovered fully and at the time, we read, he was running his New York office single-handed, with the result that he was stricken with typhoid fever, and for eight weeks was unable to attend to business.

Today—thirty years later—the busi-

Studebaker

The Reasons for Studebaker's Leadership

STUDEBAKER is supreme in Canada because Studebaker Cars stand up and give the service.

The Series 18 Studebakers are even better than the Series 17.

They are maintaining the leadership the Series 17 established throughout the Dominion.

Because they embody ninety distinct improvements in mechanical construction, convenience and comfort over the Series 17.

Because they offer all the improvements, all the refinements suggested by four years' close study of the performance of 800,000 Studebaker Cars in actual service in every part of the world.

In them Studebaker gives you the QUALITY that stands up and gives service under the hardest tests on Canadian roads.

In them the many economies made possible by vast resources, the savings obtained through the development of steadily improved manufacturing methods and the installation of the latest and best labor-saving machinery are turned to your advantage.

That is why Studebaker is able to offer you a good car at so low a price.

That is why the Studebaker is a most economical car to buy.

It is economical to operate because Studebaker's "made-in-Canada" quality reduces "upkeep" to its lowest possible terms.

It is economical to drive because of great gas-line economy in ratio to power, because of great tire economy in ratio to weight and carrying capacity—Studebaker owners frequently get from 8,000 to 10,000 miles on a single set of tires.

It is economical to own, because it brings a very high second-hand value in case of re-sale or trade-in.

For these reasons you owe it to yourself to investigate the Canadian-built Studebaker before you buy a car.

Let us give you a Studebaker demonstration today.

Little Engineers Heard From But Work Counts

Divided Into Companies, Each With Its Particular Class of Work—Dangerous Operations of the Tunnelers

(By an Infantry Officer)
The Royal Engineers or "sappers" as they are called, are in the new armies, they were in the old, one of the most important branches of the service. Although the engineer's business is to work rather than to fight, he is always in the manner of the infantry; he has learnt how to use his rifle and, on occasion, can hold his own in any emergency.

THE INTERNALLY AND KEEP WELL!

Nature has mightily equipped us all, and young, to resist disease—but she gives that we give her a chance. We give her no chance if we permit lower intestine to be more or less clogged with accumulated waste. Yet it is a universal condition today, as is shown by the number of laxative drugs consumed.

You can help Nature in Nature's most natural way by Internal Bathing, and an easy, non-habit-forming way keep Intestine as sweet and clear as Nature demands it to be for perfect health. I suffer defence against contagion, or half a million kept bright, healthy, pleasurable to itself.

LITTLE WORRIES IN THE HOME

These Bring the Wrinkles and Pallid Faces that Make Women Look Prematurely Old.

Almost every woman at the head of her household, daily makes little worries in her household affairs. The care of her little ones, the work about the house all contribute to these worries. Most of them may be too small to notice an hour afterwards, but they constitute a constant strain that affects the blood and the nerves and make women look prematurely old. The effect of these little worries may be noticed in sick or nervous headaches, fickle appetite, tiredness after slight exertion, and the coming of wrinkles which every woman dreads. To those thus afflicted Dr. Williams' Pink Pills offer a speedy cure; a restoration of color to the cheeks, brightness to the eyes, a hearty appetite and a sense of freedom from weariness. Among the many thousands of Canadian women who have found new health and strength through these pills is Mrs. G. Straesser, Atton, West Ont., who says: "I am the mother of three children and after each birth I became terribly run down. I had weak, thin, blood, always felt tired and unable to do my household work. After the birth of my third child I seemed to be worse, and was very badly run down. I found the greatest benefit from the Pills and soon gained my old-time strength. Indeed after taking them I felt as well as in my girlhood, and could take pleasure in my work. I also used Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones and have found them a splendid medicine for childhood ailments."

BLACK MOULD ON ONIONS IN STORAGE

Black mould on storage onions appeared in 1916 in Ohio and in Kentucky. The disease resembles onion smut, and the same treatment is valuable to control both diseases. In the field it is not particularly noticeable, but infected onions in storage soon show dark areas on the upper portion, the disease spreading downward between the layers of the bulb and causing a shrivelling and drying of the exterior. In a short time the whole onion is decomposed. Tests made at the Ohio Experimental Station with 40 per cent. formalin, of the engineering work of dark areas on twenty-five to thirty-three gallons of water, and applied to infected seed proved this strength sufficient to control the disease. Treating seed with this solution before sowing, cleaning from fields old onion tops, rotting onions and other litter

SATISFIED MOTHERS

No other medicine gives as great satisfaction to mothers as does Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets are equally good for the newborn babe or the growing child. They are absolutely free from injurious drugs and cannot possibly do harm—always good. Concerning them Mrs. Jos. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

There are "tunnelling companies," and "field companies."

Tunnelling companies are the people responsible for those little explosions which periodically throw skyward whole units of the enemy together with many cubic feet of French territory. They are recruited very largely from men who in civilian life before the war were miners. These brave fellows work day and night for under ground worming mine galleries under the enemy's defences. They must take the utmost care to go undetected by the enemy who, of course, is always on his guard against such enterprises and countermining to frustrate them. Thus the new earth that is evacuated as the shaft grows longer cannot be thrown over the parapet, for that would give the secret away at once, but has to be packed in large sandbags and laboriously carried to the rear.

For the same reason the tunnelers must work without some of the most effective mining and boring machinery for that sets up vibrations and all armies are now supplied with remarkable and sensitive instruments which detect and record any vibrations in the earth. It is among such difficulties and dangers, and with this perpetual need for extreme vigilance and care, that the tunnelling companies work. Most of the larger matters of trench engineering are in the hands of the field companies of engineers and the infantry working parties usually work under their instruction and guidance. In the routine of trench warfare their principal work is the deepening and widening of communication trenches; the building up of the sandbag and wire revetments which support the sides of the trench, the draining of trenches, and the construction of strong dug-outs. In an attack, the business of the field companies is to construct the communications between the old line and the new. Often they have to work under the open under point blank machine gun fire digging the connecting trenches across what was once "No Man's Land."

and disinfecting crates with formalin solution (a pound to forty gallons of water) will insure, says the New York Sun, a healthy crop, if black mould has not been present before in the field. On previously infected soils the formalin solution is recommended to be applied to the seed and soil by a drip attachment to the onion sifter, from 500 to 700 gallons of solution being used per acre. The drip attachment need be only an ordinary syringe with perforated bottom and a tube to carry the solution forward to drop in the row with the onion seed.

White really thinks that an income tax he should be convinced that it is necessary before the war is over say right now.

CRAWL STROKE WAS KNOWN TO JAPANESE FOR HUNDREDS OF YEARS

The Japanese are extremely fond of swimming, and among the younger generation of students and the coast population there are some splendid long distance swimmers. Schools of natation teach the art in a systematic manner and, although the best racing records of Japan are not equal to the western, a Japanese expert can perform some truly wonderful feats. For example he can jump into deep water and maintain his position with the water no higher than the loins, while he fires a gun, writes on a slate, paints a picture on a fan with a brush or moves freely in every direction as if he were walking on solid ground.

INCOME TAX COMING

In the course of discussion in the House of Commons the other day, Sir Thomas White, finance minister, stated that it was quite possible and even probable that an income tax would be necessary in Canada before the war was over. What he means by "necessary" we do not know, but in the opinion of ninety per cent. of the people of Canada we believe that necessity arrived some time ago and that the government is far behind public opinion in the matter of taxation. In heaven's name what is the government waiting for? It really looks as though Sir Thomas White is waiting until all the wealthy men have put their money into war bonds, where it cannot be taxed, and then he will bring in his income tax. Another consideration is that protectionists as a rule are not very partial to income tax, because it shows how revenues can be raised without the aid of tariff. One of the great protectionist arguments has always been that the tariff is necessary to produce revenues, and they therefore discourage plans which show that revenues can be produced easily and plentifully by other means. If Sir Thomas

CURE CONSTIPATION

Nuxated Iron Should Be Used in Every Hospital and Prescribed by Every Physician

Says Dr. Howard James, late of the Manhattan State Hospital of New York and formerly Assistant Physician Brooklyn State Hospital.

It quickly enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves and puts most astonishing youthful power and vigor into the veins of both men and women. It often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down folks 100 per cent. in two weeks time.

Opinions of Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, and other physicians who have tested Nuxated Iron in their own private practice.

In a very interesting and instructive discourse on the great value of plenty of iron in the blood, Dr. Howard James, late of the Manhattan State Hospital of New York and formerly Assistant Physician Brooklyn State Hospital, said: "A patient of mine remarked to me (after having been on a six weeks' course of Nuxated Iron),

"Say, Doctor, that there stuff is like magic!"

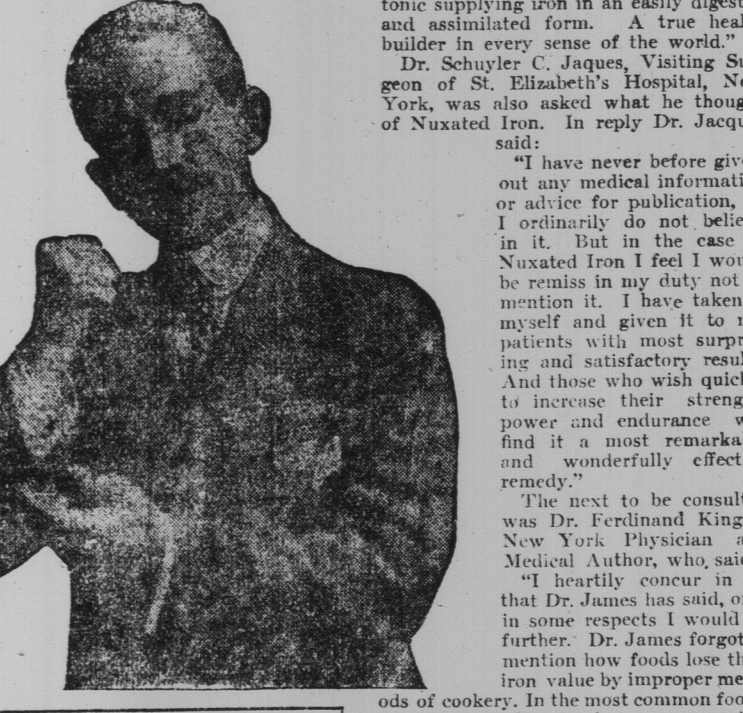

"Previous to using Nuxated Iron, I had been prescribing the various mineral salts of iron for years, only to meet complaints of discolored teeth, disturbed digestion, tired up, hardened secretions, and general lack of energy. When I came across Nuxated Iron, an elegant, ingenious preparation containing organic iron, which has no destructive action on the teeth—no corrosive effect on the stomach, and which is readily assimilated into the blood and quickly makes its presence felt by increased vigor, snap and staying power."

"Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron."

"As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all take Nuxated Iron when you feel weak or run down, instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages. I am convinced that in this way they could ward off disease, preventing it becoming organic in thousands of cases and thereby the lives of thousands might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, kidney, liver, heart trouble and other dangerous maladies. The real true cause which started their diseases was nothing more or less than a lack of iron in the blood."

"Thousands of people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. 'If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following tests: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. From my own experience with Nuxated Iron I feel it is such a valuable remedy that it should be kept in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country."

Dr. E. Sawyer, a Boston physician, who has studied both in this country and great European medical institutions was asked what he thought of Dr. James' remarks. In reply, he said: "It fully agrees with Dr. James. People need more tonic supplying iron in an easily digested and assimilated form. A true health builder in every sense of the word."

Dr. Howard James, late of the Manhattan State Hospital of New York and formerly Assistant Physician Brooklyn State Hospital, tells physicians he believes that more Nuxated Iron should be prescribed to meet the great problem of iron deficiency with its attendant symptoms of weakness, nervousness, lack of vitality, paleness, and generally rundown conditions. WARNS AGAINST USE OF ORDINARY METALLIC IRON as commonly taken by most people.

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, was also asked what he thought of Nuxated Iron. In reply Dr. Jaques said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be remiss in my duty to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance should find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

The next to be consulted was Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, who said: "I heartily concur in all that Dr. James has said, only in some respects I would go further. Dr. James forgot to mention how foods lose their iron value by improper methods of cooking. In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degenerated corn meal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods and silly methods of home cooking, by throwing down the waste-pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked are responsible for another grave iron loss. Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful vim and vigor to a ripe age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron—Nuxated Iron—just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt.

NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor is it a cure, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not irritate the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in nuxated iron, that they offer to forfeit $10,000 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron, or whose strength is reduced 100 per cent, or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Wasson's Drug Store, and all good druggists.

The Crisis!

Untold sacrifices are being made in defence of the world's liberty, assailed by the Hun, who declares he fights for "existence." Let us not forget that other crisis in which the fate of the dread Liquor Traffic, subdued just now by the necessities of war, is also fighting for existence.

Prohibition must be impregnably fortified now by means of proper enforcement in readiness for the struggle to come when Prohibition must be finally ratified or lost by the votes of the people in many provinces, including New Brunswick.

SIR VICTOR HORSLEY AND HERBERT

"That alcohol affects disastrously the minds and bodies of innocent, unborn children must be the undoubted conclusion of those who weigh the Evidence."

Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have adopted Prohibition during the war. Prince Edward Island has enjoyed its benefits since 1901. The great majority of districts in Quebec are "dry." That is the situation to-day, but remember, the crisis comes after the war.

The total value of foodstuffs destroyed by the liquor traffic in 1,145 was approximately $4,244,090.22. Add to this the immense waste of transportation facilities, clogged and hindered by carrying the grain to destruction, and again conveying the product of the breweries and distilleries to make precious men less efficient in this solemn hour!

Ontario's Splendid Record

Since September 16, 1916, Ontario has enjoyed good enforcement of Prohibition in all but a few districts. Not the most daring anti-prohibitionist hopes for a return of the curse of the traffic in Ontario. Here are some figures showing results in Ontario's largest cities for the last three months of 1915 and 1916:

	ARRESTS FOR DRUNKENNESS
	Under License	Under Prohibition
Toronto	2,908	953
Ottawa	286	234
Hamilton	498	61
London	367	144
Brantford	152	16

Note.—"It will be noted that Ottawa has not much reduction in arrests for drunkenness. It is perhaps strange that it should show an increase in the drunkenness record, inasmuch as it is separated only by the river from the license city of Hull."—PIONEER, Toronto.

Whether your district be under the new Provincial Prohibition Law, or under the Canada Temperance Act, help us to arouse the full force of public opinion for vigilant enforcement of province-wide Prohibition.

A GREAT FIGHT IN THE CLOUDS

Five Britishers Beat Twenty-Seven Germans

A THRILLING COMBAT

Enemy, as Usual, Fight Unfairly But Even Then Are No Match For British Airmen — Detailed Story of Glorious Hour

(London Times.)
War Correspondents' Headquarters, May 8.—This is the story of how five British aeroplanes fought twenty-seven Germans and beat them, sending eight 12,000, up and down the ladders of heaven. And an extraordinary fact is that the whole that it went on, the German anti-aircraft guns below kept at work. Usually, as soon as aeroplanes engage overhead, the "Archies" are silent for fear of hitting the wrong man and whether the German gunners were drunk with excitement at what was going on above them, or whether it was that our machines formed so isolated and compact a mass in the heart of the great maelstrom that it seemed still possible to shoot at them in safety, is not known. At all events the tumult in the skies was increased by the constant pumping into the tangled mass of shells from the ground.

Primarily, any such general melee inevitably breaks up into a series of individual fights. "Formation," as it is technically known, breaks up, but nothing could have surpassed the way in which our men fought. Not one of them allowed himself ever to be cut off and isolated from the rest. Not one failed to be ready when a friend was in imminent danger to turn to his assistance. This is the more remarkable as, with the exception of the flight leader, all the pilots were practically new men, with little experience of fighting. Some had been in France only a fortnight. Yet no veterans could have exceeded these youngsters in coolness and fighting judgment. As for the flight commander himself, he, still a youth, may fairly be called a veteran, for in that battle he reached his seventeenth German victim.

"First Blood" to the British

The actual fighting lasted for a full hour, from five to six o'clock, an extraordinary time for such a thing, and during all that hour our men fought tooth and nail. And the fight had lasted but a few minutes when we drew first blood, and an enemy machine which Captain A. had attacked went down in flames, with the wings of one side shot away. Then it was Lieutenant B's turn. He caught his adversary at close range fairly, and the German aeroplane went down turning over and over as it fell straight down 11,000 feet, leaving a trail of smoke behind it. Lieutenant C scored next, his enemy's machine spinning plumb to where, somewhere below the haze, it must have crashed.

An Enemy Airman Felled

Then, for a moment, it seemed that our luck was turning. Lieutenant B's engine gave out, and he was "compelled to leave the formation." It is a simple phrase, but what it means is that, helpless, as well as his aeroplane, the aeroplane dropped out of the fight from 11,000 feet down to 8,000 feet. It was a dizzying drop, and as he fell an enemy, seeing him defenceless and scintillating prey, went after him.

But other eyes were watching. Lieutenant G saw his crippled comrade slipping downward and saw the German diving after. Quick as a flash he followed, and before the German could do his work the British machine was almost touching the tail of his machine, and in another second the German turned clean over in the air and then crashed nose foremost into the abyss.

Then, almost by a miracle, B's engine caught its breath again. Once more the machine was under control, and B, who was one of those who were new to the game, climbed and rejoined formation. Some 8,000 feet he had to climb, with the baffled "Archies" raining at him from below, up into the inverted hell above, where his four comrades were fighting enemies who outnumbered them six to one. Just as he rejoined another German fell. It was A's second victim of the day, and friend and foe alike saw the machine go, sheeted in flames, down into the gulf.

Then once again it seemed that a throw had gone against us, for, still under control, but with flames bursting from its reserve petrol tank, one of our machines began to drop. Again an enemy, glimpsing an easy quarry, dived for the flaming ruin, but quicker than he, A also dived, and while our crippled machine, still belching flames, slid off, with its nose set for home, the German, mortally hit, dropped like a stone.

It was just retribution. The unwritten laws of this marvellous game prescribe that no honorable fighter attacks an enemy in flames. Such an enemy is out of the fight, and has trouble enough for a brave man. The German who dived for our burning machine knew that it may be that that knowledge unnerved him so that he paid the penalty.

Flying Home in Flames

Strangely enough, our burning aeroplane got home. I have seen the wreckage, with the reserve petrol tank on the roof bearing two bullet holes on one side and great ragged tears on the other where the bullets passed out. The whole tank is scorched and crumpled. The flames had burned away the whole central span of the upper plane. The thick rear main spar was charred and burned through, and two ribs were completely severed and hung with loose blackened ends. Yet, like a great blazing meteor, it crossed our lines and came to earth, not indeed at its own home, but on safe and friendly ground, and as another airman said to me in admiration, "He made a perfectly topping landing."

Meanwhile, the wonderful fight was drawing to a close. The British pilot, Lieutenant D, emptied a belt from his machine gun into an enemy when so close that his wings almost brushed the other's rudder, and the enemy turned turtle, clear over on his back, and, spouting out a thick volume of black smoke, went down.

Some of the enemy were already drawing off, but our men were in no mood to let them go. It is harder to get out of a losing fight than it is to begin it, and before the enemy mob could disentangle itself from the battle two more of their machines had gone to earth—one, his third in the fight, falling to Lieutenant C, and one to Lieutenant E.

Then the last four of our machines, still lords of the air, came home. I have seen three of the machines, there when the enemy hove in sight. I speak with authority, because I have spent the day at that same aerodrome, talking to the men who did it and other officers of the squadron, and handling the battle-scars which the machines received in the fight.

It was on Saturday, May 5, a day of great heat, when there was a haze so thick that you could hardly see the ground from a height of 2,000 feet. Our men had started fairly late in the afternoon, and at five o'clock were well over in enemy country, when, with the sun at their backs, they saw two enemy machines ahead. They tried to close with the enemy, who made some show of giving fight. It was only a show, however, for as our leading machine drew near the Germans turned and made with all speed for home.

German Decoy Machines

The tactics suggested that the two enemy machines were only a decoy, intended to lure our little flotilla as far as possible from its base—and the suspicion was soon confirmed. Even as we started to chase the two flying enemies out of the haze and void on all sides new fleets came closing in.

The new arrivals flew in three formations, two of which contained eight machines, and the third contained nine—it is uncertain whether two did not contain nine, but it is better to be on the safe side—making twenty-five German aeroplanes, all of a uniform fighting type, to which the other two, which now ceased to run away, joined themselves, making a minimum of twenty-seven machines in all.

One of the enemy fleets, taking advantage of the thick air, had passed behind our little squadron and came at it as from the direction of our own lines, straight between it and the sun—an awkward direction from which to have an enemy flying at you in the late afternoon when the sun is getting fairly low. The other two fleets came from the south-east and north-east. They appeared they spread out so that our men were ringed round with enemies on every side.

The Fight Begun

The general order to attack, though given, was hardly needed. Each one of our five, keen as mustard, turned at once for the enemy who was nearest.

The fight began at about 11,000 feet, but in the course of the things that followed it ranged anywhere from 8,000 to counted their bullets, fingered the cut wires, and seen the dents on spar and propeller blade; but what, I think, has amazed me most was the fact that yesterday morning four of the aeroplanes, with the same pilots and observers, had been out again. One had brought home with him some brand new scars from an anti-aircraft gun.

The fame of the battle, of course, has spread and the heroes have been flooded with congratulations. But for their own part they take it all as a bit of their day's work, and it has not interrupted the rhythmical routine and discipline of the aerodrome.

The Two German "Circuses"

There is good ground for believing that the enemy fleet which was smashed up was what is known as "von Billow's circus." There are two of these "circuses" in the German army, one commanded by Captain Baron von Richthofen, and the other by von Bulow, each comprising from twenty-four to thirty machines (or that number take the air together), which travel from German aerodrome to aerodrome, staying, perhaps a week at each, for the purpose of making spectacular flights and instilling courage into the

One doubts if Saturday's performance can have done much to brace up German courage, and what one would like to know is what the Germans say when they get home from such a battle-field.

The German airmen nowadays in the parts rarely tried to fight unless the odds of four to one or so in his favor. The other day he sent up twelve machines to attack one of ours above the aerodrome. Our man got one of the twelve, and then came safely home. Again and again, far out over his territory, we fight him with three machines to ten or a dozen, and hardly ever do he cross our lines, except as a party three or four, which may slip by fighting men by hiding behind clouds and make a sudden raid on one of the battlefields below, or hurriedly do for one of our kite balloons.

Audit Reveals Real State Of Provincial Finances

Report of Price, Waterhouse & Company Shows That Former Government, While Claiming Surpluses, Was Plunging Province Into Debt

That the Murray-Baxter government, while claiming surpluses, was steadily plunging the province into debt and attempting to conceal the fact from the people of New Brunswick is established strikingly by the report of Price, Waterhouse & Co. to Premier Foster, tabled in the legislature on Thursday evening.

The late government claimed a surplus at October 31, 1916, the fact is that there was an accumulated deficit at that time of $706,833.

The various devices and practices to which the old government resorted are exposed in the report, which also makes valuable suggestions as to alterations in the method of accounting and bookkeeping, which changes would enable the public to know the real revenue and expenditure of the province when the provincial accounts appear annually.

The report refers to many expenditures a clearance and a new point of departure, and so gives the Foster administration a clear view of the subject of investigation through royal commissions or by departmental inquiry.

The principal portions of the report of Price, Waterhouse & Co. are as follows:

COPY. PRICE, WATERHOUSE & CO., Chartered Accountants, 140 St. James Street, Montreal, June 11, 1917.

The Hon. W. E. Foster, Premier of the Province of New Brunswick, Fredericton (N. B.).

Dear Sir,—In accordance with your instructions we have made an examination of the books and accounts of the province of New Brunswick for the purpose of preparing statements of its financial position at October 31, 1916, and March 31, 1917, and making such suggestions as appear necessary for the improvement of the present accounting system and methods.

We have prepared and submit herewith the following accounts, viz: Exhibit "A"—Balance sheet at October 31, 1916, prepared in the form which we would recommend you to adopt.

Exhibit "B"—Statement showing in comparative form (a) Balance sheet at October 31, 1916, prepared in the published accounts before making any adjustments in respect of assets and liabilities omitted at that date; (b) Balance sheet at October 31, 1916, adjusted in respect of assets and liabilities which were not taken into consideration in the published accounts at October 31, 1916, but which, however, does not include all revenue applicable to the amount of the current year's revenue has not yet been determined.

Exhibit "C"—Statement showing under the head of each department the liabilities not taken up in the published accounts at October 31, 1916.

Exhibit "D"—Statement showing under the head of each department the liabilities not taken up in the published accounts at October 31, 1916.

Exhibit "E"—Summary of capital and special expenditures at October 31, 1916.

Exhibit "F"—Statement of deficit on current revenue account at October 31, 1916.

Until within a comparatively recent period it has been the practice of provinces and municipalities in Canada to keep their accounts on a basis of "revenue" basis, and this practice has been followed by the government of your province. The published accounts of the province show the monies actually received and expended in any fiscal year, but they do not show the liabilities for work done or services performed, interest accrued, etc., which are unpaid at the end of the year.

The principle of stating accounts on a "revenue" basis is universally followed by financial and industrial companies and railroads, and it is now generally conceded that it is the proper basis for provinces and municipalities to adopt. This change of viewpoint has been brought about mainly from a realization of the fact that any statement of surplus or deficit for a fiscal year cannot reflect actual conditions where receipts and expenditures are taken into consideration, since it is obvious that, if payment is not made of bills due at the close of the financial year, and if the amount thereof is not set up as a liability in the accounts, an apparent surplus for the year may be shown where an actual deficit has resulted.

Strong Recommendations. We would strongly recommend you in future to prepare the accounts on a "revenue" basis, so that at the end of each financial year you will be able to determine exactly whether the revenue has been sufficient to meet the various outlays and expenses of the year.

The annual published accounts are not drawn up in a manner readily affording information as to the province's financial position, and we would recommend that the form in which they are deficit which (after making certain other necessary adjustments in the accounts) would amount to $706,833. This amount would represent a deficit of receipts over expenditures, but not a revenue deficit. The latter would be greater or less than the amount mentioned according to whether the amount of unpaid liabilities at October 31, 1916, showed an increase or decrease over the amount unpaid at October 31, 1915. We have not made any calculations as to the amount of the unpaid liabilities at October 31, 1915.

Not Clear Enough. As another illustration of our point that the published accounts do not reflect the financial position of the province in a sufficiently clear and intelligible manner, we would refer you to the balance sheet at October 31, 1916, which shows that there were outstanding provincial debentures to the amount of $8,100,000.

One of the essential points in the balance sheet should in addition show as liabilities the $1,700,000 debentures of the province issued to provide funds for the St. John & Quebec Railway, and the $4,250,000 bonds of that railway which are guaranteed by the province both as to principal and interest, and which should be considered a direct liability in view of the fact that the railway has been taken over by the province.

One of the essential points in any system of accounting is that a clear distinction be made between the expenditures of a permanent nature and those which are of a temporary nature, and which should be charged against the revenue of the year. The published accounts should reflect this principle, and for this reason we have suggested a new system of accounting under two main captions (a) capital assets and liabilities, and (b) revenue or current assets and liabilities.

As already mentioned the annual published balance sheets do not show expenditures of a capital nature (except in the case of railway investments) although they take up as liabilities the debentures and bonds issued for the purpose of providing funds for the expenditures. There is, however, published in the annual accounts a statement of the bonds issued and the amounts of the debentures and bonds issued therefrom. In the accounts submitted we have shown as capital assets all the expenditures made out of monies raised by the issue of debentures and government stock, although in some cases the term "capital expenditure" cannot clearly be applied to the expenditures. Since these expenditures made towards the imperial government and Belgian relief, and subsidies granted to railways.

As a result of our examination of the accounts receivable at October 31, 1916, we found it necessary to make certain adjustments on the balances shown by the published accounts at that date, the principal being to reduce the balances shown by an amount of $6,460.97 which was written off the books as uncollectible subsequent to October 31, 1916.

We think that the accounts receivable of the school department should be more closely followed up and instructions given to the superintendent and the press for collection from vendors whose accounts are long overdue. A number of balances now carried on the books appear, on our audit, and on the attached balance sheet we have set up a reserve of $2,000 to provide for possible loss in this connection. Details of all adjustments made on the accounts receivable are shown on exhibit "C" attached hereto.

Copies of orders dated February 16, 1917, for the supply of auto road trucks (10 to cost $77,795 and 10 to cost $37,440) were produced for our inspection. On February 2, 1917, a cheque for $30,000 was issued to the Smith Foundry Company, Fredericton, the local agents of the White Company of Cleveland, Ohio, as a deposit on the orders subsequently given, which amount we have carried as an account receivable on the balance sheet at March 31, 1917.

The various bank balances were reconciled with certificates received direct from the bankers of the province.

The balances included under this heading are as follows:

Table with columns for October 31, 1916 and March 31, 1917. Rows include Contractors deposits, Chancery division deposits, Probate court deposits, Sales of property for taxes, Temporary deposits, Municipal lands, Official committee of property, Guarantee deposits, Municipal sinking funds.

The vouchers covering expenditures during the period from November 1, 1916 to April 30, 1917 were carefully scrutinized with a view to determining the amount of liabilities outstanding at October 31, 1916 and March 31, 1917 respectively.

In connection with the assets and liabilities shown on the appended balance sheet at October 31, 1916 (exhibit A) we would submit the following remarks:

Capital Assets. As already mentioned the annual published balance sheets do not show expenditures of a capital nature (except in the case of railway investments) although they take up as liabilities the debentures and bonds issued for the purpose of providing funds for the expenditures.

No asset is carried on the books of the province in respect of crown lands, but a value of $36,000,000 (the value of 700,000 acres at $51 per acre) is incorporated in the published accounts at October 31, 1916 and has been shown in the published accounts at that date.

The buildings owned by the province have been valued at $1,500,000, and ordinary expenditures of $1,508,842.86 so that from a reference to this account it would seem that there had been a surplus of revenue over expenditure for the year 1916 of $12,077.29.

We think that the accounts receivable of the school department should be more closely followed up and instructions given to the superintendent and the press for collection from vendors whose accounts are long overdue.

As a result of our examination of the accounts receivable at October 31, 1916, we found it necessary to make certain adjustments on the balances shown by the published accounts at that date, the principal being to reduce the balances shown by an amount of $6,460.97 which was written off the books as uncollectible subsequent to October 31, 1916.

We think that the accounts receivable of the school department should be more closely followed up and instructions given to the superintendent and the press for collection from vendors whose accounts are long overdue.

In the accounts as deferred credits to revenue.

The liquor license fee due on May 1, 1916, in respect of the twelve months ending April 30, 1917. We have accordingly shown the unexpired portion of the province's share of the taxes paid at October 31, 1916, as a deferred credit at that date. As a result of the prohibition act recently passed by the province, this item will disappear from the accounts in future years.

Securities Deposited with the Province. Bonds of a par value of $165,500, and certain mortgages, have been assigned to the province in connection with guarantees for the fulfillment of obligations. These securities, together with those purchased by the province for sinking fund purposes, were examined by us and found in order.

At present the securities are kept loose in a safe in the vault of the treasury office to which various officials have access. We think that it would be preferable to have the securities deposited in the vaults of a bank or trust company under the joint custody of two officials of the province. No proper records are now kept showing the deposit and movement of securities.

Deficit, October 31, 1916. We would refer you to the attached statement (Exhibit F) which shows how the deficit on revenue account of $706,833 at October 31, 1916 is made up. You will note therefore that in past years interest on the amount of bonds received from lumber operations and deposited in bank was treated as a revenue receipt, although under Act 4, George V., Cap. 10 (1914) such interest is required to be treated as an accretion of the sinking fund. In order to adjust this it has been necessary to charge revenue account with an amount of $88,199.76.

Accounting System and Methods. At present a considerable part of the accounting work of the province is done in the offices of the various departments, in place of being consolidated in the office of the treasurer. As a result it is impossible to ascertain without unnecessary waste of time, the amount of the province's current revenue receipts, and the liabilities outstanding at any specific date. Furthermore, such a condition results in duplication of work.

From a business standpoint we consider that the treasury department should receive direct all monies payable to the province. If the amount received from the Dominion government in respect of subsidies and interest on the debt due to the province is excluded, it will be found that the treasury received direct only about 10 per cent of the revenue received during the fiscal year ending October 31, 1916.

Exhibit "F". PROVINCE OF NEW BRUNSWICK. Statement of Deficit on Current Revenue Account at October 31, 1916.

Table showing deficit on current revenue account at October 31, 1916. Rows include Excess of current receipts over current disbursements, Deduct: Expenditures not included in the published accounts, Sundry other adjustments.

Current liabilities not taken up in the accounts as published October 31, 1916 (Exhibit "D"). Less: Current assets omitted October 31, 1916 (Exhibit "C").

Proportion of Dominion subsidy paid in advance to December 31, 1916. Proportion of liquor licenses paid in advance to April 30, 1916.

Interest Accrued. Interest has been accrued at October 31, 1916, and March 31, 1917, and included in the liability in the balance sheets at these dates.

We have not examined the accounts of the St. John & Quebec Railway Company, and it may be that a proportion of the interest accrued on the bonds issued by the province for the purposes of that railway represents interest on construction expenditures which might properly be treated as an addition to the province's investment. On the other hand a large section of the railroad has been operating for some time, and it is more than probable that the cost of construction has already been charged with more interest than should properly have been added to the investment.

Deferred Credits. The subsidy receivable from the Dominion government in terms of the British North America Act 1867, amounts to $611,511.20 per annum, payable half-yearly in advance on January 1 and July 1. One-third of the subsidy received on July 1, 1916, was therefore applicable to the period subsequent to October 31, 1916, and similarly only half of the amount received on January 1, 1917, was issued to the Smith Foundry Company, Fredericton, the local agents of the White Company of Cleveland, Ohio, as a deposit on the orders subsequently given, which amount we have carried as

Hon. G. P. Graham's Attitude On Conscription

Would Serve Same Purpose

In Favor of Principle But Falls Short of What is Required and Has Been Badly Handled

Ottawa, June 22.—Hon. George P. Graham, the first lieutenant of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in parliament, speaking in the commons today from his place next to his revered and trusted leader, did as Mr. Foster, chief Liberal whip, did yesterday. With the full permission and respect of Sir Wilfrid, Mr. Graham, expressing his own honest convictions on the great issue before parliament and the people.

While declaring his sincere belief that Sir Wilfrid, the veteran and experienced statesman, was pursuing the course he thought best in helping to secure national unity in Canada and the most far-sighted method of helping to win the war, Mr. Graham said that he must disavow the traditions of Liberalism, expressed his own honest convictions on the great issue before parliament and the people.

Two other Liberals today, E. W. Nesbitt, South Oxford, and Mr. Buchanan, of Lethbridge—the latter the first of the Alberta Liberals to be heard from—took the same course as Mr. Graham.

Mr. Graham devoted a considerable portion of his speech to consideration of the larger problems of conscription, as outlined in the resolution which he drafted last week. He declared for the compulsory enlistment of wealth by means of an income tax on the rich man for his raising of the war money by taxation so that a war-prosperous Canada might not shift the whole burden of war debt to the shoulders of the people when the war ends.

He declared for government action to compel industries in Canada to contribute to the production of luxuries, to turn their attention to the production of essentials. He asked that the women of Canada be organized as war workers in the States to prevent waste in the home. He urged measures for the distribution of labor to the farms. He pointed out that the public could scarcely be expected to have much confidence in a government that appointed only Conservatives to such positions as fuel controller and food controller.

Sir Thomas White, who followed Mr. Graham, urged the seriousness of the war situation, the final failure of the voluntary system and the immediate necessity for conscription for military service. As to the conscription of wealth, he gave only general promises that "everything that was necessary" to raise funds would be done. But he gave no specific promise to any of the war measures.

Active Again On Russian Front. London, June 22.—After many weeks of inactivity on the Russian front, heavy guns have been brought into operation and general activity reported. The first news of this came in today's Austrian official statement which reported heavy engagements in Galicia and was emphasized in the evening statement from Vienna which stated that "the increased firing continues."

Heavy attacks by the Germans north of the Aisne have been repulsed by the French troops with severe casualties, according to the official communication from Paris, issued tonight. In the attack, which was along a front of about one and one-quarter miles, the Germans only at one point succeeded in penetrating the French trenches, although special troops were employed which attacked stubbornly, not wavering before the destructive French fire.

Heavy artillery firing is reported north of Monastir on the Balkan front.

A Seed-waster. "There's a man planting potatoes, said Farmer Comstock, 'when he ought to be playing golf.'"

"You don't approve of gardening?" "Yes, I do. But if he'd go ahead and play golf he wouldn't be spoiling good potatoes that somebody could use."

MARY PICKFORD

"THE POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL"

AT IMPERIAL THEATRE MONDAY

THE DIGNIFIED "DRAMATIC MIRROR" SAYS:

"Here at last is a vehicle so admirably suited to the natural talents of Mary Pickford that it is certain to add thousands of converts to the host of film players who are devoted followers of 'Little Mary.' In 'A Poor Little Rich Girl' she assuredly demonstrates her right to the appellation 'Little.' She is convincingly the child of ten throughout, not once suggesting maturity in appearance or action. Whether in the resentful moments, when she fights against the cruel authority of servants in her loveless home, or when, craving affection, she steals down to her father in the night, clad in childlike night-garments and nestles in his arms—she is the little girl, impetuous, willful, lovable, withal, attracting and holding the sympathy not only because the vehicle is a splendid one, but because she has such an abundance of personality, so much of the quality of wistful sweetness, that she is irresistible.

Eleanor Gates knew the child heart when she wrote the play; Maurice Tourneur has translated the underlying theme and the crucial moments to the screen with remarkable judgment. It becomes a work worthy of Barrie or Maeterlinck. The symbolism is delicious; the humor is true, the pathos genuine. One forgets the possible traces of satire in the conception of the forlorn position in the child in the home ruled by vicious servants, of the wealthy parents who neglect their offspring until she is near death's door as a result of a maid's application of a sleeping potion, that she may escape to go to the theatre. At least there is enough of reality in the demand for love, which is so often withheld with dire results in the homes of the rich, more often than in those of the poor.

And when Gwendolyn wanders through the Valley of the Shadow in her delirium, accompanied by her faithful friend, the plumber, and the Silly Ass servant, seeing on route the horrid shapes of the household tyrants, the spectator follows breathlessly, held in horror as the dark angel offers her the gift of eternal sleep, offering freely again when the spirit of happiness lures her to green fields and the dance of joy.

"This picture deserves to rank with the best creations which have depicted the child character on stage or screen. Unbounded credit is due everyone concerned, but at the end we must revert to Little Mary's wonderful characterization, which leaves absolutely nothing to be desired, fulfilling every demand we may make, making it quite apparent that there are some stars worth every dollar they receive in salaries, and every eulogistic word that is accorded them by press agents or reviewers."
